PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 107th CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION

Vol. 147 WASHINGTON, TUESDAY, JANUARY 30, 2001 No. 12

Senate

The Senate met at 10:03 a.m. and was called to order by the Honorable BOB SMITH, a Senator from the State of New Hampshire.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Lloyd John Ogilvie, offered the following prayer:

Omnipresent Lord God, there is no place we can go where You have not been there waiting for us; there is no relationship in which You have not been seeking to bless the people with whom we are involved; there is no task You have given us to do that You are not present to help us accomplish. We need not ask to come into Your presence; Your presence with us creates the desire to pray. You delight in guiding us to pray for what You are more ready to give than we may be prepared to ask.

You are here. We do not need to convince You to bless this Senate. You have shown us how much You love and care for the United States of America. You want the very best for this beloved Nation and have chosen the Senators through whom you want to work to accomplish Your plans. Help them to see themselves as Your agents. Bless them with Your power. Keep them fit physically, secure emotionally, and alert spiritually. So much depends on their trust in You and pursuit of Your guidance. May awe and wonder capture them as they realize all You have put at their disposal to ensure that they succeed. Thank You for the biblical assurance that You work all things together for those who love You, who are called according to Your purpose. You are our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

The Honorable BOB SMITH lead the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

I thank my colleagues for their attention.

NOMINATION

Mr. President, it is an honor for me to rise in strong support of the nomination of Governor Christine Todd Whitman to become the next Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency. As chairman of the Environment and Public Works Committee, I have full confidence that she is the right person for this job and will be an outstanding leader. She has an incredible environmental record as the Governor of New Jersey. New Jersey has cleaner air; the number of days that her State violated the Federal 1-hour standard for ozone dropped from 45 in 1988 to only 4 last year.

It is a remarkable accomplishment. The water is cleaner. The fish population is thriving. New Jersey beaches are once again clean and open for enjoyment, beaches that I enjoyed, I might add, as a young man growing up in New Jersey. There was a brief hiatus where it was not even safe to walk those beaches. Annual beach closings dropped from 800 in 1988 to just 11 last year. That is 11 too many, but still it is an incredible task in development.

The National Resources Defense Council has praised New Jersey for having the most comprehensive beach monitoring system in the entire Nation.

Under Governor Whitman, New Jersey has been a national leader in redeveloping brownfields, which has long been an issue for me as the chairman of this committee, and even prior to becoming the chairman—in reforming the brownfields legislation to clean up these blights on our society. That experience in dealing with brownfields will be invaluable as we develop Federal legislation.

Conservation has also been a top priority for this nominee. During her 7 years as Governor of New Jersey, more open space and farmland was preserved than in the previous 32 years. She has preserved more land than any previous administration in New Jersey, and under a conservation program that she established, and was overwhelmingly approved by the voters, nearly 1 million acres will be preserved by the year 2010.

The list of her environmental accomplishments goes on and on, from air quality to smart growth to species conservation. The bottom line is that New Jersey's air, water, and land are cleaner because of Governor Whitman.

It is remarkable and, some hate to say, unusual for a nominee to be this qualified for this position. This is all occurring when the economy is stronger than ever. We can have a clean environment and a strong economy, and Governor Whitman has proven that.

What is most impressive about Governor Whitman's record is how she achieved this environmental success. It is an approach that focuses on results, an approach with which I totally identify and agree, results achieved through cooperation and partnership as opposed to confrontation and not working together. You use the hammer of enforcement when it is necessary, but if you can lay the groundwork too so you do not need to use the hammer, that is even better. We address problems in a holistic manner—we look at the entire problem, all the sources of pollution air, land, or water. Governor Whitman has done that.

As we begin to tackle the environmental issues of the 21st century, we need that ability to think outside the box. We need to have someone in this agency saying: Just because we did it yesterday or last year does not mean we have to do it again this year. We may want to think about something new, something innovative, something flexible.

Governor Whitman, with her record and experience, is the right person to oversee the protection of our environment. President Bush is to be congratulated for choosing such a strong protector of the environment to head the EPA.

On a personal level, in the private meeting I had with Governor Whitman, we discussed the environmental agenda of President Bush. We also discussed her own environmental agenda. I found it very much in tune with mine. We were talking at great length about the utility emissions reduction, the so-called bubble bill, where we cap and trade and bring utilities and other sources of pollution under this bubble to bring down the emissions. This is a high priority for President Bush and for Governor Whitman. I look forward to working with her on that.

Brownfields, which I discussed a moment ago, is also one of her top priorities. I predict, working with Administrator Whitman, we will move out of the gate very quickly with good strong brownfields legislation which will allow us to get into these communities where these contaminated sites are. Some are asbestos-filled buildings or other messes that have been left by industrial development. We will clean it up. We will remove the unfair liability and allow the contractors to get on site and clean them up.

The spinoff is remarkable: A, you clean up the environment; B, you create jobs; C, you allow areas to be developed that were developed and you do not have to put more pressure on green space somewhere else because now you can clean up, you can build and put new industries on the old industrial site. It is a tremendous opportunity, and it is very exciting to think about working on this with Governor Whitman.

We must address the environmental infrastructure, the combined sewage overflow, storm and sewage overflow. There is much infrastructure that is necessary to look at. She, again, has experience in this area, and we can work together.

On conservation funding, we need to get dollars into the areas we can; with a willing seller and a willing buyer to perhaps set aside new land and, at the same time, protecting private property rights and encouraging dollars to help fish and wildlife and other areas of our environment.

Something the Governor and I really click on is the MTBE issue, which is a big issue in her State as well as it is in mine. We have to work together to try to remove that contamination that is such a problem all across the country, but especially in New Hampshire, California, New Jersey, and several other States where MTBE gets into the water supply. We have to do something about the leaking underground storage tanks that create this problem and, at the same time, begin to develop another source to replace MTBE to still keep the air clean with no backsliding and see to it that we keep this kind of chemical out of our water supply.

It is an ambitious agenda. She is up to that agenda. She is up to the task. I look forward to working with her, and I am very anxious to see her nomination move quickly through the Senate this afternoon.

Mr. President, I reserve the remainder of my time and yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CRAPO). The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I came to this session of Congress as chairman of this committee, the committee of jurisdiction dealing with Christine Todd Whitman. For 17 days, I was chairman of the Environment and Public Works Committee. One of my first acts was to hold hearings regarding Gov. Christine Todd Whitman. Part of me said this is my chance to stand out. This is somebody who wants to be the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, someone whose name has been submitted to us by President Bush, whom I did not support in the election. I thought it would be a time to set a real good record show, maybe not a lot, but a significant number of Senators, that they should vote against her.

I went into the hearing with that direction: What could we do to show that she would do a bad job. We had questions from all types of her enemies in the State of New Jersey, many of which we asked orally; the others we submitted to her in writing.

I say candidly, this woman did a great job before the committee answering these questions. We went through four different rounds of questions. Some Senators sat through the entire hearing. It was long. It started at 9:30 in the morning and ended around 1 o'clock, as I recall, or 1:30 p.m. that day. She, I repeat, answered every question we submitted to her. She did not appear to be evasive. When we submitted the questions to her in writing, the answers we got back, as far as I am concerned, especially on issues relating to the State of Nevada, were even stronger than her oral answers.

I do not proudly say there was a part of me when these hearings started that wanted to find things against her. I say to the Senate and those within the sound of my voice, that perhaps was a wrong attitude. Certainly she was able to alleviate any questions I had about whether or not she should be the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency.

This is an important agency. I have been on the committee since I came to the Senate. I have seen EPA Administrators come, and I have seen them go. I am confident—and I am very hopeful—that she will be a very good EPA Administrator.

Of all the testimony that she gave, the only concern I have —and I told her this at the hearing—is that I hope she does not depend too much on voluntary compliance. I have no problem if she wants to try it, but let's not push this envelope too far. My experience has been, in the environmental field, voluntary compliance simply does not work.

This agency is responsible for protecting both the health of our citizens and the health of our environment. The agency must ensure that Federal laws protecting human health and the environment are fairly and effectively enforced.

There are 10 comprehensive environmental protection laws that Governor Whitman must administer, including the Clean Air Act, the Safe Drinking Water Act, and the Superfund law. These are very important laws. She and the regional offices she directs throughout the country need to implement them. Leading this agency is a big job.

The Administrator of the EPA needs to ensure that these responsibilities are carried out, in addition to overseeing the Agency's environmental research and making recommendations to the President on environmental policy.

Given the importance of the mission of this agency and the role it must play in developing the future direction of environmental protection, I am joining with my colleague, Senator BARBARA BOXER, as a sponsor of a bill that would give the Environmental Protection Agency Cabinet level status. I have supported efforts in the past in this regard, and I certainly support the efforts today. I think it should be a Cabinet office.

As my friend, the chairman of the committee, has acknowledged, she has been the Governor of New Jersey since 1993. Her accomplishments as Governor are significant: Preserving open space and farmland in New Jersey; expanding the brownfields redevelopment program, and having one of the most comprehensive beach monitoring programs in the entire country. I can remember, it was not long ago, I was speaking to Senator Bradley. Being from Nevada, it was hard for me to comprehend, but syringes and needles were washing up on the shore. People were afraid to go to the beaches. That is no longer a problem in the State of New Jersey, or at least it is a very minor problem.

Governor Whitman has seen the importance of the partnership between the Federal Government and the States in accomplishing mutual goals, such as cleaning up Superfund sites. I think it is significant that rather than what happens in many States, where people and Governors and State entities go out of their way to prevent Superfund sites from being declared, she did just the opposite. She went around soliciting to help the Federal Government clean up these sites that needed to be cleaned up. Therefore, we have a significant number of Superfund sites there. I believe the State of New Jersey has more Superfund sites than any other State in the Union.

She testified before our committee that she would do what she could to make sure that Superfund became an effective law and continued being an important law.

I will hold her to the promise she gave to the committee to support, defend, and enforce the laws of this land. In particular, I am glad that she and the President intend to make sure Federal facilities will comply with the same environmental standards that apply to private facilities. I am glad she has recognized that the Environmental Protection Agency must fulfill its legal obligation to set radiation protection standards for Yucca Mountain in the State of Nevada. This is the facility that is being looked at to determine whether or not it can safely hold nuclear waste.

I think she recognizes the Federal Government's legal obligation to set radiation standards for Yucca Mountain that fully protect human health and the environment. To my mind, anything less stringent than the final rule would not satisfy that responsibility.

While she has not been fully briefed on all these issues, and some of the answers provided to the committee reflected that, the Governor did say at her hearing she is committed to working on these issues. It is my hope she will look carefully at the recent actions of the new administration that would halt some of the proposals, as well as the progress of the last administration.

I expect Governor Whitman to consult with us, the committee, before making any changes that would weaken our environmental protections. We have come too far to allow a single-minded or shortsighted action to set us back environmentally. There are too many problems out there. People want clean air. They want pure water. They want these sites that are so dangerous to be cleaned up.

We have, in the State of Nevada, regarding Superfund, some very good history. I can remember coming into Reno and there was a huge pit. We called it the Helms Pit. The State of Nevada's small environmental protection agency was fighting, working with the oil companies, to do something about the black stains that appeared on this huge gravel pit. In the bottom of it was water. Just a few feet away was the Truckee River—the source of water for the entire State.

I directed the EPA to take a look at it. Within 2 weeks, an emergency Superfund site was declared at the Helms Pit. Here it is now, 8 or 9 years later, and this is a beautiful area called the Sparks Marina, full of water, with motor boats on this little lake. It is just beautiful. And it is all as a result of the Federal Government. It is the Federal Government at its best. The government came in and determined that it was dangerous. There were millions of gallons of fuel that leaked out of pipelines the oil companies had brought into the area. They paid for it. The Federal Government didn't pay for it. The oil companies paid for it.

Now all of northern Nevada has benefited from this environmental law that we passed a number of years ago. So I think it is important we do not set back the progress we have made over the last decade.

I expect, as I have indicated, she will consult with us before making any changes that will weaken our environmental laws. She has a credible environmental record, certainly not perfect, but a credible environmental record, and a profound understanding of conservation issues from a New Jersey perspective. She now needs a perspective for the entire country.

As Administrator of EPA, she will have an opportunity to learn about the different regional environmental challenges that face Americans from coast to coast. For example, in Nevada we face a situation in which dozens of small communities, through no fault of their own, will be in violation of the new safe drinking water regulation standard for arsenic. The issue of naturally occurring arsenic contaminating drinking water may not have been a major issue in New Jersey, but in Nevada it is something that I am confident she can learn about and help communities address.

These challenges are significant. It will be an important task for Governor Whitman to ensure that, all through the western United States, the water standards that have been set can be met. We know from a health perspective they should be met. We need the Federal Government to step in and help us with some of these small communities.

The Environmental Protection Agency has a 30-year history to be proud of. I hope, by working together, we can continue to do just that—protect our environment for generations yet to come.

Mr. President, I support the nomination of Gov. Christine Todd Whitman to be the Administrator, and maybe soon the Secretary, of the Environmental Protection Agency and urge my colleagues to do the same.

Before vacating the floor, I want to say, early in this session, what a pleasure it has been to work with the chairman of the committee, BOB SMITH. He and I have a long history of working together. We were both on the Select Committee on MIA-POWs. It was a very difficult year we spent together. We also spent some difficult time together, and some pleasant time together, as the two party leaders on the Ethics Committee. I have found him to be fair and to always have an open door. I look forward to working with him as the ranking member of the Environment and Public Works Committee.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. I appreciate the comments of my colleague very much. I also commend Senator REID for the expeditious and nonpartisan way in which he has handled the nomination during his tenure as chairman, which was ever so brief. It was a pleasure to work with the Senator. I look forward to working with the Senator in the future.

Mr. President, how much time is remaining on the Whitman nomination?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire has 5½ minutes. The Senator from Nevada has 3½ minutes.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I am going to just take another 2 or 3 minutes to make some comments on the Norton nomination and then will not use all of the remaining time but will be happy to yield it back so we can move to the next nominee.

Again, let me just reiterate my strong support for Governor Whitman in this position as EPA Administrator.

She is extremely well qualified—one of the most qualified people ever to be recommended for the job. She has firsthand experience as a Governor dealing with these problems—some of them on the receiving end of the Federal Government and other times just working in cooperation with the Federal Government.

It is an exciting opportunity to work together on the agenda I talked about a few moments ago: clean air, clean water, infrastructure, many other issues that will be coming before us, including MTBE, which is a big issue in New Hampshire and New Jersey.

Mr. CORZINE. Mr. President, I rise in support of the nomination of Christine Todd Whitman to be Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency.

Christine Todd Whitman has a long and distinguished record of public service, and has made many important contributions to my State of New Jersey. She is well qualified to head the EPA, and I urge my colleagues to support her nomination.

Governor Whitman is highly articulate and persuasive. She genuinely cares about the issues, and she knows how to make an impact.

Governor Whitman has been a leader in protecting New Jersey's 127-mile shoreline and in fighting for cleaner air, guarding against the kind of pollution that knows no state boundaries. As an individual and a Governor, she has demonstrated a strong commitment to preserving open space.

The Administrator of EPA has the primary responsibility for ensuring that our air and water is clean, our natural resources are preserved, and our public health protected. It is a difficult job. It often requires a careful evaluation of highly complex scientific data, and an ability to translate that data into detailed policies. It needs someone who will fight internal battles to make environmental protection a budget priority. It needs someone who will work with local communities and businesses to find mutually acceptable solutions to environmental problems. And it needs someone who, when necessary, will be tough on polluters and force them to do the right thing.

I believe that Governor Whitman has the background, the experience and the skills necessary to do the job, and to do it well. I know that we will not always agree on every policy issue. This became clear during the hearing on her nomination in the Environment and Public Works Committee. In fact, I was concerned by some of her answers with respect to the need for tough enforcement against polluters and the need to ensure that environmental decisions adequately respect the rights of minorities and other disadvantaged groups.

However, I remain hopeful that Governor Whitman will use her considerable skills to be a strong environmental advocate, and I look forward to working with her to ensure that EPA remains committed to strong and effective enforcement of our environmental laws.

With that, I want to conclude my remarks and wish Governor Whitman the best of luck as she undertakes this important new challenge.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I would like to make a short statement on President Bush's nomination of New Jersey Governor Christine Todd Whitman to serve as Administer of the Environmental Protection Agency I have known Governor Whitman for many years. I admire her public service record and believe she comes to this job with a strong committment and sensitivity to its many responsibilities. I welcome the opportunity to vote for her.

President Bush's choice of New Jersey governor Christine Todd Whitman is positive signal regarding the environmental agenda that he will pursue over the next four years at EPA. Under her guidance, New Jersey has worked with other Northeastern states to strengthen local and national clean air protections. For example, Ms. Whitman recently supported the EPA's newly announced rule to reduce pollution from diesel fuel. Ms. Whitman has been a strong advocate of preserving open space. On the issue of coastal and marine protection, which is of particular concern to my state of Massachusetts, Ms. Whitman has advocated tougher controls on ocean pollution and enhanced protection of our seashores.

One area of concern how been expressed regarding Ms. Whitman's record. Conservation groups in New Jersey claim that during her time as New Jersey governor, Ms. Whitman took a somewhat lax approach to enforcement of environmental law. Needless to say I believe environmental law should be enforced as strenuously as any other law. I anticipated that Ms. Whitman will recognize her new responsibilities and leave no one doubting her willingness to enforce the law vigorously.

While I certainly do not share all of Ms. Whitman's views on environmental protection, I believe that she has shown balance and a willingness to listen to all sides throughout her career. I wish her well at the EPA, look forward to working with her and will vote for her nomination today.

Mr. TORRICELLI. Mr. President, I rise to support Christine Todd Whitman as President Bush's nominee for Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency. During her years as Governor we have waged many fights together from open space preservation to ending ocean dumping.

President Bush has made a wise selection. The EPA and the country will be getting an Administrator who is qualified, battle-tested and ready to tackle the challenges that lie ahead for this Agency. With this nominee, there will be no learning curve.

There are few training grounds that could better prepare someone for this position than the Governor of New Jersey. As Chief Executive of the State, Governor Whitman has the managerial and administrative experience of running an agency as large as the EPA. But more importantly, no state has a better sampling of the issues facing the incoming Administrator of the EPA than New Jersey.

With 127 miles of shoreline, Governor Whitman has dealt extensively with issues of clean water and non-point source pollution. She knows first-hand the threats to the economy and the environment from ocean dumping. Governor Whitman has increased funding for beach cleanups, and under her watch, beach closings have dropped from 800 in 1989 to just 11 in 1999.

With more Superfund sites than any other state in the Union (111), she knows what works and what doesn't in the Superfund program. She has seen the value of a concerted effort to turn urban brownfields into productive industrial and commercial sites.

With the many dense urban centers in New Jersey, she has dealt with the complex funding and regulatory issues of upgrading dilapidated sewer systems and controlling combined sewer overflow.

As Governor of our Nation's most developed State, she initiated and passed a landmark $1 billion bond measure to preserve one million acres of farmland, forest, watersheds, and urban parkland. Few elected officials in this Nation, yet alone, this Cabinet, have a better understanding of what is needed to curb sprawl and protect our open spaces, than Christie Whitman.

But more than her record of environmental progress, what makes Governor Whitman uniquely qualified for this position is her understanding that economic and environmental progress are not mutually exclusive goals. For example, travel and tourism generates $28 billion in revenue and employs nearly 800,000 people in Central and Southern New Jersey. No issue is more important to those jobs than ocean quality. Yet the Port of NY/NJ is a vital component of economic growth and employment in the northern part of NJ contributing $20 billion annually to the economy and supporting nearly 200,000 jobs. I have worked with Governor Whitman to balance these constituencies and develop a policy that ended ocean dumping while still allowing for the continuation of the dredging necessary for the Port's continued growth.

The job for which Governor Whitman seeks confirmation is by no means an easy one. The challenges faced by the next Administrator are both numerous and difficult. The Superfund and Clean Water and Clean Air Acts have not been re-authorized in a decade and there are new challenges on the horizon, especially in our urban areas. Our urban centers have sewer systems that were built at the turn of the 19th Century. They frequently back-up and endanger public health and water quality because they are incapable of handling overflow. Too often industries unwanted anywhere else find homes on city blocks because of the jobs they offer and the taxes they pay. The next Administrator must make a priority of closing the gap between available funds and infrastructure needs and ensuring that environmental justice is more than a think tank slogan.

I am confident that Governor Whitman will do this and more. The challenges ahead are many—protecting our drinking water and purifying our air, preserving open space and reforming Superfund. But President Bush could not have selected a nominee with more experience and commitment than Governor Whitman. I have the utmost confidence that she will do the Senate and her home State very proud, and I urge her confirmation.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I join today in supporting the nomination of Christine Todd Whitman to be Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency.

As a member of the Committee on Environment and Public Works, I have had the opportunity to discuss with the nominee the many challenging environmental and public health issues facing us today.

As the former, two-term governor of New Jersey, Ms. Whitman brings to this position on the ground experience in finding solutions and making progress on environmental problems. Today, New Jersey's beaches, once plagued with closures, have seen dramatic reductions in closures due a comprehensive beach monitoring system. New Jersey's brownfields redevelopment initiations are leading the nation in revitalizing urban centers.

Mr. President, Ms. Whitman brings to this important post a record of accomplishment. More importantly, she has a demonstrated ability to find common ground to make progress on complex problems. Her experience as a state executive will guide her as she works with our state partners to improve air and water quality, to restore abandoned industrial sites and to reinvigorate the Superfund program.

I have every confidence of her steadfast commitment to advancing the protection of public health and the environment. I look forward to working with her and urge my colleagues to support her nomination.

NOMINATION OF GALE NORTON

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to express my strong support for the President's nominee for the Secretary of the Interior, Gale Norton. I know there are some groups out there that have mischaracterized her record and have indicated some fears or concerns. I remember similar fears and concerns being expressed about me. It didn't seem to work out the way some thought it would. They have resorted to name calling, misrepresenting her record, making false accusations. We are probably going to hear some of those accusations repeated on the floor today, regretfully.

I begin by trying to set the record straight. I think this business of personal attacking and trying to destroy people personally is a mistake that is uncalled for. It is one thing to disagree on the issues. It is another thing to begin to get into name calling and making accusations about people's character that are not justified.

Let me stick to the record. Gale Norton has a strong environmental record. Certainly, if we look at the facts in Colorado at Rocky Flats and Rocky Mountain Arsenal, she has a strong record of enforcing Federal and State environmental laws vigorously and fairly. As attorney general of Colorado, she fought to make the Federal Government and private companies clean up hazardous and nuclear waste left behind at the Rocky Mountain Arsenal and Rocky Flats.

At the Rocky Mountain Arsenal, she fought all the way the U.S. Supreme Court for the State's right to hold the Federal Government to the same stringent cleanup standards that she applied to private companies. She sued not to try to weaken the cleanup standard but to strengthen it. Today the Rocky Mountain Arsenal is a national wildlife refuge. That is not an accident. That is strong leadership on the part of this nominee for Secretary of the Interior.

The extreme environmental groups also blame Ms. Norton for the Summitville mine disaster and suggest that she didn't do enough to enforce the law. Again, their facts are wrong completely. Ms. Norton did go after the mine operator shortly after she took office. Because of her actions, the mine operator was forced to operate a water treatment facility to prevent contamination from spreading. She also brought an enforcement action against the mine operator recovering millions of dollars to pay for the cleanup. She did not let the polluter off the hook. To the contrary, she made the polluter pay.

This ''let the polluter off the hook'' is a favorite expression of the left to somehow assume that if you try to work to get cleanup and you are not extracting every last dollar from every person who has it, somehow we are letting polluters off the hook. As we know, we have crossed this rubicon in the past. We have crossed that threshold, and it depends on which polluter we are talking about. What is a polluter? Is a polluter somebody who throws a ballpoint pen in a landfill? Under some definitions, yes. We have to be very careful how we throw that term around.

We are going to hear it a lot today in the debate, that somehow she let the polluters off the hook. The facts are, she did not.

These are just a few examples. Anyone who looks at her record—instead of the environmental groups' characterizations—will see that Ms. Norton enforced the law and she protected the environment at the same time.

She appreciates the value of preserving our land. She grew up in Colorado. She understands what wilderness means and what it means to live in a beautiful, pristine area such as central Colorado.

The extreme environmental groups have also suggested that Gale Norton cannot be trusted to protect our public lands, our national parks and refuges and wilderness areas. That is not true. Her record demonstrates that Ms. Norton values our public lands and she will protect them. Again, just look at the record.

As attorney general, she worked with Congress to craft the Colorado wilderness bill that established 19 new wilderness areas in the State. That doesn't sound like somebody who is opposed to cleaning up our environment and protecting our wilderness.

That bill was enacted in part because of Ms. Norton's efforts to build consensus for the preservation of those lands.

Her record at the Department of Interior, where she was Associate Solicitor for Conservation and Wildlife from 1985 to 1987, shows once again that she was an effective advocate for protecting our public lands and natural resources, including endangered species.

Let me name just a few of her accomplishments in the Solicitor's Office:

She represented the Fish and Wildlife Service in its successful effort to add 80,000–90,000 acres to the Big Cypress National Preserve.

She was involved in an effort to add 5,000 acres to complete the Florida Panther National Wildlife Reserve in Florida.

She fought to ensure the success of the captive breeding program that saved the California condor when environmental groups sued to try to stop it. If they had succeeded, the condor would now be extinct.

She fought for the acquisition of land to extend the Appalachian Trail.

She worked on the regulations that banned lead shot for migratory birds, saving millions of birds.

She secured funds for the restoration of Ellis Island and the Statue of Liberty.

And she negotiated the original agreement with Senator MCCAIN to restrict overflights in the Grand Canyon.

Again, these are just a few of her accomplishments over the past 15 years, but they paint a clear picture.

They paint a picture of someone who has dedicated her life to public service, to preserving the environment and natural resources, and to enforcing the law.

They paint a picture of an individual who is highly qualified to be the next Secretary of Interior, and the first woman to serve in that position.

I urge my colleagues to consider the facts, not the distortions, in making their decisions about Gale Norton.

I strongly support Ms. Norton's nomination to be Secretary of the Interior, and look forward to working with her on the many challenges that lay ahead.

NOMINATION OF GALE ANN NORTON TO BE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR—RESUMED

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired. Under the previous order, the nomination of Governor Whitman is laid aside, and the Senate will now resume consideration of the nomination of Gale Ann Norton, which the clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read the nomination of Gale Ann Norton, of Colorado, to be Secretary of the Interior.

Who yields time? The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the time allotted to Senator FEINGOLD with respect to the Norton nomination be provided to Senator KERRY.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I believe I have 15 minutes to speak on the Norton nomination.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I say to my colleague from New Hampshire, I think there is a distinction between what I hope will be substantive remarks on my part in opposition to Ms. Norton to be Secretary of the Interior and personal attack.

I am a Senator from Minnesota. I am from a State where we love our lakes and rivers and streams, the environment.

My opposition to Ms. Norton to be Secretary of the Interior does not mean ipso facto that what I say represents any kind of personal attack. It is simply a very different assessment of whether or not she should in fact be the Secretary of the Interior for the United States of America.

I have a lot of policy disagreements with Ms. Norton. I have a lot of policy is agreements with any number of the President's nominees to serve in our Cabinet, but almost all of them I will support because there is a presumption that the President should be able to nominate his or her people.

On the environmental front, as long as I have the floor of the Senate—and I hope I am wrong—I say today that I believe the record of this administration will amount to a rather direct assault on environmental protection. I think that would be wrong for the country. This is not a debate about ANWR, the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, not today. My disagreement with Ms. Norton or the President is not the reason why I oppose her to be Secretary of the Interior.

Part of the debate we will have in this country has to do with this nexus between the way we consume, the way we produce energy, and the environment. I see an administration that is an oil interest administration, and the focus will be more and more on oil, barreling down a hard path energy policy, with fossil fuels, environmental degradation getting lipservice but not investments in clean technologies, renewables, safe energy.

The reason I oppose not Gale Norton as a person but Gale Norton to be Secretary of the Interior is because I have doubts about her ability to fairly enforce existing environmental and land use laws. That is why I oppose this nomination.

The Secretary of the Interior is the principal steward of nearly one-third of our Nation's land. The Secretary is the chief trustee of much of our Nation's energy and mineral wealth.

The Secretary of the Interior is the principal guardian of our national parks, our revered historic sites, and our fish and wildlife. It is the job of the Secretary of the Interior to protect this precious legacy and to pass it on to future generations. As Catholic bishops said 15 or 20 years ago in their wonderful pastoral statement, we are strangers in this land. We ought to make that better for our children and our grandchildren.

Ms. Norton has had significant positions—government positions and in the private sector. It is her record in these positions—both in government and private sector roles—that are the most troubling to me. In fact, her record indicates that she may not be able to enforce environmental protections and ensure the preservation of our public lands.

There is no doubt that Ms. Norton did a good job in the confirmation hearings. She pledged her past views, and she is certainly committed to enforcing the laws of the Interior Department. I commend her for her testimony. It is my sincere hope that she will live up to these commitments. However, I think the Senate and Senators are compelled to view her record not in terms of 2 days of testimony but the totality of her record.

The totality of her record is one that I believe points to her inability to strike the very difficult and the very delicate balance between conservation and development. As a private attorney, Ms. Norton has taken positions that indicate a strong opposition to the very environmental protections which, if confirmed, she would be asked to defend.

For instance, she has argued that all or parts of the Clean Air Act are unconstitutional—taking a State rights view. She has argued that the Surface Mining Act, which is all about protecting workers' coal dust level, which is all about occupational health and safety protection, which is all about the problems of strip-mining and the environmental degradation that it causes many communities in Appalachia, again, unconstitutional.

She has argued that provisions of the Superfund law that require polluting industries to pay for cleanup of waste sites should be eliminated.

Ms. Norton has testified that implementation of the National Environmental Policy Act—NEPA—is something that should be essentially devolved to the State level, that she would prefer not to conduct Federal land environmental reviews.

I am sorry; when it comes to this most precious heritage, when it comes to the land, when it comes to our environment, when it comes to something that is so precious for not just us but our children and grandchildren, it is not just a matter of State options.

We are a national community, and we have made a commitment to environmental protection. I believe the actions Ms. Norton has taken and the positions she has taken in the past would make it impossible for her not only to enforce these laws but to be a strong steward for the environment.

In 1997, Ms. Norton argued that the global warming problem didn't exist. That is, of course, in contradiction to the international science community. I know in her testimony she essentially said she now takes a different position—I appreciate that—as Colorado attorney general.

But I also have questions in my own mind given the position she has taken about what kind of steward for the environment she would be.

As Colorado attorney general, Ms. Norton argued against the Endangered Species Act, saying it was unconstitutional. As attorney general, Ms. Norton supported measures that would relax otherwise applicable environmental safeguards if businesses volunteered to regulate themselves. And regardless of the damage, regardless of the effect on the public, regardless of the effect on people, these companies would be shielded from any liability.

Her position is troubling to me because Ms. Norton might be willing to permit private companies that operate on or near public lands to regulate themselves. As Colorado attorney general, in the case of one mining company acting under self-regulation, there were violations and massive contamination of the Alamos River. My colleague from New Hampshire said she took action, but it was only after the Federal Government was forced to step in and say you must take action. Indeed, the Federal Government was forced to step in and spend $150 million in emergency cleanup of the river.

In addition, there is a case of citizens living downwind from a mill that had been emitting pollution for months. Again, the Secretary of the Interior refused to take action, and again the Federal Government was forced to intervene—again resulting in a record $37 million in fines against the company.

Since leaving her job as AG in 1999, Ms. Norton has been lobbying Congress and the Colorado State Legislature on lead paint issues in behalf of the NL Industries, a Houston company formerly known as the National Lead Company. This company has been named as a defendant involving 75 Superfund or other toxic waste sites in addition to dozens of lawsuits involving children allegedly poisoned by lead paint. The only thing that I can say is I understand Ms. Norton's right to work for whatever company she wants to, but it does not give me very much confidence that she is the right person to be Secretary of the Interior—a major position of environmental leadership in the U.S. Government.

After reviewing her record of 20 years, I believe Ms. Norton has not demonstrated the required balance needed to be a guardian of our national heritage and a trustee of our national lands. Furthermore, she has shown a career pattern of opposing environmental protection, which I think speaks to her ability—or, I say to my colleague from Massachusetts, her inability to carry out the requirements of Secretary of the Interior.

I appreciate her testimony to the Energy Committee, and I take that in good faith. However, I cannot ignore her resistance to prosecute the industry in order to protect Colorado's land and people while serving as attorney general. As Secretary of the Interior, Ms. Norton would be charged with balancing the interests of industry against conservation. In my view, her record strongly indicates she will heavily tilt that balance away from conservation, away from preservation of the environment, away from environmental protection, away from being the trustee for the land, and away from understanding what a sacred duty we have.

It is a value question to make this Earth a better Earth and hand it on to our children and grandchildren. I find all of that unacceptable, and that is why I oppose this nomination. I hope other Senators will oppose this nomination as well.

Might I ask how much time I have remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Three minutes 43 seconds.

Mr. WELLSTONE. I yield the floor, and I also say to my colleague from Massachusetts that I would be pleased to yield the additional time to the Senator from Massachusetts.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Minnesota not just for his graciously yielding me additional time but, most importantly, for the thoughtfulness and sensitivity expressed in his remarks. I associate my remarks very much with his thinking and his approach on this issue.

I think each and every one of us in the Senate feels an automatic pressure to want to support the nominee of the President of the United States. I think it is a national feeling that generally pretty good people, with honest records of taking a position for something they believe in in the course of a lifetime, have found their way to the top of their profession in a sense, and the President of the United States, for one reason or another, makes a decision to entrust them with significant responsibilities.

There is a lot of goodwill here in the initial days of the administration to want to give the President the person that the President chooses. I think through the 16 years I have been here, and the several Presidents I have had the privilege of giving advice and consent to with respect to their nominations, that there are precious few, a small percentage—very small—that I have chosen to cast my vote against the President's choice.

As the Senator from Minnesota said, I think what we are looking for in the person who comes to a job with that kind of responsibility, being a Cabinet Secretary in charge of major responsibilities, is somebody who brings not a series of denials, renunciations, conversions, if you will, from a lifetime of effort, but somebody who brings with them to the job their gut and their heart and their head all linked together in concert with the fundamentals of the job they are being asked to do.

In the case of the nominee Gale Norton, I don't find there is that kind of connection, that there is a continuity of a lifetime of effort that shows me with assurance where the stewardship of this department will go. I regret to say to the Chair and to my colleagues that in the course of the years I have been here and had the opportunity to provide advice and consent on other nominees, we have seen people who came without that connection, with that disconnect, and who subsequently fell short in the job because the gut instinct was not to strike the balance; it was to keep faith with who they were and what brought them to the job.

I don't cast this vote lightly because I know Ms. Norton has a long and even distinguished record of public and private service. I know her friends and others say she is a decent and a capable professional. Some have, in the course of this debate, labeled her an extremist or even caricatured her as James Watt in a skirt. I think that is unfortunate. I find those labels troubling and improper. They distract from honest differences over principle and policy that have made this nomination troubling for the Senator from Minnesota, for myself, and for others.

I oppose Gale Norton's nomination. For a Cabinet post that demands that its occupant strike a very difficult and a very delicate balance—the same word my colleague from Minnesota used—a balance between conservation and development, President Bush has selected this individual. I suppose one might ask the question, of all the people in the country who have records with respect to the environment and development and striking that balance, of all the attorneys general, of all the people involved in conservation itself, of all the people in the environmental movements of this country, of all the people who have built up records of activism in an effort to try to strike that balance, why is it that we are presented with an individual whose philosophy over the past two decades has been singularly unbalanced?

The Secretary of the Interior is responsible for protecting the almost 500 million acres of public land, including 383 parks, 530 wildlife refuges, and 138 wilderness areas. Among these are some of our Nation's most valued lands: Yosemite, with its waterfalls, meadows, the forests, and the giant Sequoias, the world's oldest living things; the Everglades National Park, with its sea of sawgrass, mangroves, hardwood hemlocks, stork, great blue heron, and egrets; Mount Rainier National Park at Mount Rainier—a 14,410-foot-tall active volcano encased in 35 square miles of snow and ice and flanked with old-growth forests and alpine meadows.

Some are sanguine to suggest, well, those areas will never be threatened. But I know from talking to people in various parts of the country I visit that there are huge movements where people are angry that so much of their State is protected by the Federal Government; where people believe more of these areas ought to be open to development, not less; where people have witnessed, indeed, efforts to try to stop finding that proper balance between mining and grazing, or a host of other interests, and who would rather open the forests and have the U.S. Government build more logging roads, without even commenting on whether our logging practices are good or bad, after fires that we had last year. Sure, we can improve, but these are different movements, these are movements which disagree with these setasides.

I remember what happened on the floor of the Senate just a very few years ago, in 1995, with the House of Representatives and the Senate first term in Republican control, and I remember standing here and by 1 vote only we managed to stop major destruction to 25 years' of efforts to protect the environment of this country—by 1 vote only.

We happen to be a little stronger in the Senate today, but knowing how close it was and watching how critical the discretion of a Secretary is in what happens in terms of the regulations, what happens in terms of efforts they take to court or don't take to court, or seek to have protected or not protected, there is enormous discretion exercised on a daily basis.

I believe we need to remember the history we have traveled here. There was a period of time where some of the lands I just mentioned, the very ones that are protected today that we think of as national treasures, were not thought of in that way. In 1853, when the U.S. Army's topographical engineers returned from a trip to what we would later call the Grand Canyon, the party reported that it was ''the first, and will doubtless be the last, party to visit this profit-less locality.''

As each decade has passed since those early forays into the American continent, the country's appreciation for its land has grown—I believe it continues to grow among Americans today—the places to hike, canoe, camp, to play, to learn, and to leave nature, except for a harmless visit now and then. There were 273 million visits to our National Parks alone in 1993, a clear sign of their value to the Nation.

At the same time, the Interior Secretary manages the development of our public lands. Private companies, from multinational conglomerates to small family businesses, use our Nation's water, minerals, timber, oil, gas, and other public resources. Their industry, obviously, contributes to the national economic growth, and it provides thousands of jobs in regional communities. Our public lands have produced all of the needs of this Nation, and the Department of the Interior has managed hundreds of thousands of claims to mine gold, copper, and other valuable metals; 34 million acres of commercial timberland and 164 million acres of rangelands that are open to grazing.

It is the Secretary of the Interior's job to strike the proper balance between conservation and development. It is a tough job. The Secretary is under enormous pressure from those who hope to profit from these natural resources. Once a decision is made to develop land, the impacts are often permanent. You can't turn back the clock and recreate an old-growth forest. You can't return an extinct species of life. You can't return polluted land to absolutely pristine condition.

There are many steps we can take to avoid unnecessary damage and restore land, and nature has shown itself to be resilient, but the rate of destruction today and the levels and the kinds of destruction too often force us to lose natural resources forever. The numbers of brownfields in cities around this country, the numbers of Superfund sites that have been on the list for years and remain not cleaned up are testimony to that tragedy.

In considering this vote, I have reviewed Ms. Norton's record as a constitutional attorney, an activist, and as Colorado attorney general, and her testimony before the Energy and Natural Resources Committee. It is a record that in my view simply does not reflect the balance I talked about that is necessary to serve as Secretary of the Interior.

I know she will be confirmed. Perhaps in the end we will see a different exercise of that discretion. As a constitutional attorney, Ms. Norton argued that bedrock Federal environmental, public health, and other laws are unconstitutional.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ENZI). The Senator has a minute and a half remaining.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, Senator BOXER said that she would yield me 5 minutes. I ask unanimous consent I be afforded that time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, based on her legal views, which are, thankfully, outside the opinion of most legal scholars and reflected in decades of court decisions—the Clean Air Act, Endangered Species Act, and Clean Water Act—and many other laws not directly related to the job of Secretary of the Interior but certainly important to this country, such as the Americans With Disabilities Act, Fair Labor Standards Act, and the Violence Against Women Act—violate our Constitution in one way or another. Indeed, if her convictions were the basis for this new administration's actions, it would unravel most of our Nation's environmental safeguards.

In addition to these writings and comments, Ms. Norton has been an active participant in several lawsuits and other efforts to overturn environmental protections. For example, she serves as an attorney to an organization called the Defenders of Property Rights that has advocated against endangered species protections in more than two dozen lawsuits.

Ms. Norton's writing and activism on these issues reaches far beyond the few examples that I have outlined here. To her credit, she has been a capable and dedicated advocate for more than two decades. The problem, simply, is that she has advocated legal and policy positions entirely at odds with the job of Secretary of the Interior.

In her testimony before the Energy and Natural Resources Committee, Ms. Norton distanced herself from her legal and activist record. While I certainly appreciate Ms. Norton's willingness to rethink and revise here views, I remain greatly concerned. Too often absolutist views were cast aside with little or no explanation. Too often the answers were vague and incomplete. Do I expect Ms. Norton to have answers to every issue she may encounter as Secretary? No. But my standard is higher for a nominee who comes before us with a career's record of fighting the laws the administration has now asked her to enforce.

History warns us to be concerned and cautious.

In 1981, Mr. James Watt was nominated to be the Secretary of the Interior by President Ronald Reagan. Mr. Watt, like Ms. Norton, came to the Senate with a record of anti-environmental legal activism. And like Ms. Norton, Mr. Watt showed a willingness to rethink and revise his views. A passage from the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD from 1981 is enlightening. For example, Mr. Watt was asked how, in light of his record, would he > carry out the Secretary's dual responsibility to permit resource development on the public lands while preserving natural values?

Mr. Watt offered the following answer:

> As Secretary of the Interior, I will fully and faithfully execute the public land policy adopted by Congress requiring such a balanced approach.

The record after this is clear. It was opposite to that very answer.

This year, Ms. Norton was asked a similar question in regard to her views on the takings clause of the Constitution and environmental enforcement. Ms. Norton answered that she:

> will protect the federal government's interests in its lands and enforce all environmental and land use laws that apply to the lands and interest managed by the Department of the Interior.

Sound familiar? My point is that we have been witness to ''confirmation conversions'' before, and the result—as in the case of Mr. Watt—is sometimes regrettable. When a nominee's record is overwhelmingly slanted in one direction and falls far outside of the mainstream on a set of issues central to the job they will perform, reversals and revision leave me concerned.

I looked to Ms. Norton's record as Colorado Attorney General to learn how she performed at a job that required her to enforce environmental laws—again she has argued are constitutionally flawed. I found that record to be decidedly mixed and worrisome.

While Ms. Norton pursued two high profile cases against the federal government, environmental organizations, environmental attorneys, and the Denver Post report that in several major cases she failed to enforce environmental law against private companies.

For example, in one case, neighbors of a Louisiana-Pacific mill were forced to abandon their homes because the stench of pollution from the facility was so great. Without assistance from the state of Colorado, they hired attorneys and won a $2.3 million court against the company. Although that civil trial uncovered criminal wrongdoing by the company, the state still failed to prosecute. Finally, the federal government interceded and assessed $37 million in fines for fraud and violating the Clean Air Act against Louisiana-Pacific.

The attorney who represented the citizens in that case, Kevin Hannon, told the Denver Post.

I would have grave concerns about Gale Norton's aggressiveness in enforcing environmental compliance and protecting citizens from environmental damage.

And there are additional similar cases.

In her defense, Ms. Norton claims to have not acted because state agencies did not ask her to prosecute. That answer is inadequate in my view, Mr. President. In several instances Ms. Norton aggressively pursued her legal agenda as attorney general. For example, Ms. Norton proactively wrote state agencies declaring that a program to increase minority enrollment at state schools was unconstitutional. Ms. Norton refused to defend a state program to increase minority contracting from legal challenge because it was unconstitutional. As Colorado Attorney General, Ms. Norton filed a brief in an Endangered Species Act case in Oregon arguing a provision of the law was unconstitutional. Clearly, Ms. Norton was an aggressive and capable advocate when the legal agenda matched her policy agenda. But when it came to enforcing environmental law against polluting companies, she too often failed to act and seems to have been uncharacteristically passive.

Arguably Ms. Norton's performance enforcing environmental law as Colorado's attorney general is the most relevant portion of her resume as she becomes the next Secretary of the Interior. One of her primary responsibilities will be to protect the environment and public land by enforcing the law against private companies. Unfortunately that record is weak on environmental crime.

As I have said, Ms. Norton will not receive my vote today. I do not cast this vote lightly. I believe that President Bush should be given wide discretion in selecting a cabinet to advance his agenda. However, there is a reason that the Constitution calls for the Senate to advise and consent on nominations. I believe that policy, ideas and a nominee's professional record matter. In many ways they matter more than the personal issues that derailed other candidates. Each Senator has the right—indeed an obligation—to vote their concerns and hope and their consciences.

Ms. Norton will be entrusted with protecting our federal lands and finding that difficult balance between conservation and development. Not an easy job. I feel strongly that Ms. Norton can only do that job properly if she sticks with the legal and policy philosophy she set forth in the Energy Committee hearings and not the philosophy she has advocated for 20 years. I feel strongly that Ms. Norton can only do that job properly if she does a better job enforcing environment law than she did in Colorado.

I yield the floor.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that 3 minutes of the time allotted to Senator STABENOW with respect to the Norton nomination be provided to the senior Senator from New York.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, first let me say I agree with many of my colleagues that Gale Norton is clearly an experienced, capable public servant with a distinguished record. I know the Senate confirmation process can be an arduous one. I think she has handled herself very well. She has made herself available to questions by those of us on the committee and conducted and presented herself in a very able way.

That said, I am afraid Ms. Norton has not been able to erase all my doubts and the doubts of many New Yorkers about her environmental record and whether or not she will be a strong enough guardian of our Nation's treasured public lands.

Although she is clearly an honorable person, I believe she does not have a balanced enough view on the question of conservation versus development to serve as Secretary of the Interior. To me, the key word is ''balance.'' I reject those on either side.

There are some who say the conservation movement, the conservation of our lands, is really not necessary, or, once you have one place preserved, you have had enough and conservation should hold little weight when we talk about the needs of development. I have always philosophically rejected that view.

I must also tell you that I reject the view of some of my friends in the environmental movement who believe in no development at all, particularly at a time of scarce resources. There has to be a balance, and that is what I think most Americans seek. Obviously, we all differ on where that balance should be. I am worried that Ms. Norton does not have enough of that balance.

She spoke very well at our committee. But if you look at her history in both the public and private sectors, it is not one of balance. It is one, rather, of almost instinctively saying that development should take precedence over conservation. I do not think that is the right person for the Secretary of the Interior, and therefore I must reluctantly—although I generally believe in supporting the President with his nominations and intend to support the President in all but two of his Cabinet level nominees—I must reluctantly vote no on the nomination of Gale Norton.

Mr. President, I yield.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes the Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, it is my understanding under the allotted time I have 15 minutes to speak on the nomination of Gale Norton as Secretary of the Interior.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, today we are charged with the important decision of considering Gale Norton for our next Secretary of the Interior. This position is extremely important. As the Secretary of the Interior, Ms. Norton would be the principal steward of nearly a third of our Nation's land; the guardian for our national parks; and the protector of our wildlife refuges.

The process of appointing and approving cabinet members is a curious mix of politics and policy. I believe President Bush has every right to exercise the same prerogative as Presidents before him, of choosing members of his cabinet that share his point of view.

In proposing Ms. Norton, President Bush asks the Senate to entrust her with our environmental heritage.

In sending me to the Senate, the people of Illinois have entrusted me with the duty of deciding whether Ms. Norton will faithfully fulfill the job that she has been asked to do.

Although Ms. Norton conducted herself well throughout the confirmation hearings, I am left with many questions about her vision for the future of our Nation's environment. I have no doubt that Ms. Norton has the professional experience to be a capable Secretary of the Interior. The question is not about her ability to lead, but whether she will be a leader for the preservation of our public lands and natural resources.

This is why I rise in opposition to her nomination today. I am disturbed that not one respected conservation group in our Nation has announced its support for Ms. Norton. Her strongest supporters hail from the mining, drilling, logging, and grazing industries—industries better known for exploiting public land than for protecting it.

My concerns were not allayed during her confirmation hearings. Despite more than 20-years experience in dealing with environmental issues, she often gave vague, uncertain answers to questions on how she would enforce many of our significant environmental laws. Her answers gave me little to reassure Americans who support conserving our natural resources.

Let me be clear. I am not opposing her nomination based on her ideology alone. Her documented public record speaks louder than her words. Her career is filled with stands on environmental law and policy that are incompatible with the Secretary of the Interior's role as steward of our public lands. Her actions reflect her philosophy that property rights are pre-eminent and Federal intervention should be minimized. She has not addressed the concern that this approach will interfere with her duty as Secretary of the Interior to aggressively enforce compliance with Federal environmental laws.

By now, most of us know that Ms. Norton started her career at the Mountain States Legal Foundation under the guidance of James Watt, the controversial former Secretary of the Interior. During her time with Mr. Watt, she pursued cases opposing the enforcement of the clean Air Act in Colorado and supported drilling and mining in wilderness areas. She followed Mr. Watt to the Department of the Interior in 1985 as an Assistant Solicitor where she worked to open up the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge to oil drilling. But it was in her capacity as attorney general for Colorado from 1991 to 1999 that we find egregious examples of her tendency to side with private, pro-development interests over those of preservation.

As attorney general of Colorado, Ms. Norton was an advocate of the policy of self-auditing: a policy that allows polluting companies to escape fines if they report the problem and correct it. Unfortunately, this policy allowed Summitville mine, a large gold mine, to continue operating even though it had serious environmental problems. It was only after the mine spilled a mixture of cyanide and acidic water into the Alamosa River, killing virtually every living thing for a 17-mile stretch, that her office became involved.

The Summitville mine was considered Colorado's worst environmental disaster and is now the poster child of bad mining practices. To her credit, Ms. Norton vigorously pursued the mining company for repayment to cover the cleanup. However, she sought no criminal charges, and her office was criticized for being slow to act. The Federal Government had to step in to prevent the disaster from worsening and later won felony convictions against many of the corporate owners of the mine. In fact, the Denver Post said: ''It's a shame that Colorado must rely on the feds to pursue the case.'' This happened under the watch of attorney general Gale Norton of Colorado.

As Secretary of the Interior, Ms. Norton will have enormous discretion to unilaterally alter environmental policy. She could block funding or enforcement of rules and regulations proposed by the previous administration. For example, she could prevent a recent proposal to limit snowmobile use in our national parks from taking effect, a proposal that was supported by literally thousands of citizens.

As a strong promoter of wilderness areas, I am concerned that Ms. Norton's pro-development leaning will make it more difficult to inventory areas for wilderness designation. I am concerned that she will open more land to mineral and mining development leaving less for wilderness areas. I am concerned that she won't stand strong and protect existing and proposed wild areas from off-road vehicle damage.

I am especially concerned that the Interior Department headed by Ms. Norton will parallel the Interior Department headed by her early mentor, James Watt. Mr. Watt tried to overturn environmental initiatives implemented by President Carter's administration. Ms. Norton says she wants to review many of President Clinton's environmental initiatives. Mr. Watt wanted to shift public land policy towards development and resource exploration. Ms. Norton has indicated she would like to do the same. Mr. Watt tried to make many of these changes out of the congressional limelight by using budgetary recommendations and administrative and regulatory actions. I am concerned that with strong public support for protecting the environment but an almost evenly divided Congress, Ms. Norton may be tempted to try the same tactics.

The Secretary of the Interior has a significant distinction from that of other Cabinet posts. That distinction is that no other Secretary's decisions have such a long-range impact. Once the earth is disturbed to start a mining operation, that land will never be the same. Once an animal goes extinct, there is no replacing it. Once land has been developed, it loses its character as a wilderness.

Mr. President, I believe that Ms. Norton's nomination sends the wrong signal to the country: a signal that we are moving away from conserving our natural resources and moving toward turning our public lands over to private interests.

As a great Republican President and the father of our Nation's conservation ethic, Theodore Roosevelt, said, ''It is not what we have that will make us a great nation; it is the way in which we use it.'' Mr. James Watt echoed this statement during his nomination process in 1981 when he testified that he would seek balance in managing our Nation's lands. Ms. Norton recently testified that she would also seek to find this balance between using and preserving our natural resources.

Unfortunately, Mr. Watt did not keep his word. If Ms. Norton should be confirmed today, I urge her to learn a lesson from Mr. Watt's experience and uphold her promise ''to enforce the laws as they are written.''

The Interior Department is responsible for many of our Nation's most valuable treasures—natural resources that belong not only to this generation but also to generations to come. Americans will be counting on Gale Norton, should she be confirmed, to protect these national treasures so they can be handed on as an enduring legacy—to keep them safe from those who would exploit and destroy them.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the remaining time under the control of Senator STABENOW be allocated to Senator BOXER.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, can you tell me how much time I consumed?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has consumed 9½ of minutes of his 15 minutes.

Mr. DURBIN. I reserve the remainder of my time, Mr. President.

At this time, I see Senator BOXER has come to the floor.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum until she is prepared to speak.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from California.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, how much time do I have for my presentation this morning?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Thirty-one minutes.

Mrs. BOXER. Thank you very much.

Mr. President, I rise to explain to my colleagues, and to my constituents, why I will vote no on the nomination of Gale Norton to be Secretary of the Interior.

It is very rare for me to oppose any Cabinet nominee because I approach the whole subject of advise and consent on Cabinet nominations with the presumption that the President has the right to pick his or her own Cabinet. Having said that, you cannot walk away from a constitutional responsibility to advise and consent if you feel that nomination is way outside the mainstream of American thought, and if you feel that nomination could harm our country in one way or another. And I have many questions about this nominee which lead me to the conclusion that it would be far better to have someone more mainstream in this position. I will be explaining it through a series of charts and through my comments.

I have supported all of President Bush's nominees but for two—this one, and John Ashcroft, which we will be speaking about later this week and perhaps into next week.

I will start by discussing why this position is so important. The Secretary of the Interior is the primary steward of our Nation's natural resources. One of the most incredible gifts that we have from God is our natural resources, the beauty of our Nation. It seems to me we have a God-given responsibility to protect those resources for future generations.

Into the hands of the Secretary of the Interior we place a vast amount of control over our parks, over our wildlife refuges, over grasslands, over ranges, and over endangered fish and wildlife.

I will just show you a beautiful photograph. I have a few. This particular one is Death Valley National Park. What you can see from this photograph is the magnificent environment the Secretary of the Interior will be protecting. If a decision is made, for example, to extract minerals from a park such as this, you could certainly endanger this beauty.

She will make decisions regarding grazing, mining, offshore oil and gas development, habitat protection or habitat destruction, and American Indian tribal concerns that will have far-reaching and long-lasting consequences.

I asked her some questions about some of these areas in my State, and I have to tell you, as I will in greater detail, that I was very saddened; they were really no answers. There was no commitment that I wanted to hear to protect these magnificent areas. I will go into some of her comments that were put in writing.

We give the Secretary of the Interior the discretion, and we trust her to balance the economic development of our rich natural resources with the need to protect and conserve them. We are looking for a balance, and in my view, we have not seen that balance, either in Gale Norton's past or, frankly, in her answers, which I did not find to be terribly believable. And again, I will get into that.

After more than a century of untempered resource extraction, we have learned we must restore some equilibrium to the management of our public lands and wildlife resources. The American people understand this. Poll after poll shows they overwhelmingly support environmental protection and restoration. They understand we are living in the most beautiful place and we have a responsibility to protect it.

They are willing, for example, to conserve a little energy in order to spare pristine areas such as wildlife refuges. How people could say you can drill in a wildlife refuge, to me, just on its face, there is something that does not make sense about that. If it is a wildlife refuge, it is a refuge; it is not oil-drilling land. Why would it be called a refuge if it is not a refuge, a magnificent area where wildlife can live?

So I think in this appointment President Bush, who for the most part I think made good, moderate appointments, has gone off the reservation. I also understand Ms. Norton will be confirmed. I hope she proves me wrong. I hope she listens to this and proves me wrong. But I can say, I am worried. And there is precedent for me to worry.

If her nomination is approved, Ms. Norton will have authority to make decisions that determine the fate of some of California's treasures and America's treasures, places such as Yosemite National Park, the Presidio, Klamath National Wildlife Refuge, the San Diego National Wildlife Refuge, Death Valley National Park—you can see from the picture how beautiful this is—and the California Desert—and believe me, it is a precious environment; I have been there; I have seen—Point Reyes National Seashore—which is in my backyard; a magnificent area that needs to be protected—and the Santa Barbara coastline. I will get into that because there are 39 leases off the Santa Barbara coastline that are under threat of development.

Ms. Norton's answer to that question leaves me very worried about what will happen.

These unique ecological and cultural gems are fragile and vulnerable places. If they are mismanaged, the damage is likely to be irreparable. She will have responsibility for protection and recovery of California's most imperiled wildlife and fish species. Those endangered species, such as the California condor, will depend upon her for their continued survival.

Taken in total, it is an awesome responsibility and one of great importance to my constituents who treasure California's unique environment.

Let me say something about that. Oftentimes, people come to the floor and say: Well, you can't be an environmentalist because it means you don't want economic growth. You can't be an environmentalist because it means you will not have enough energy. We are going to hear this argument over and over and over, particularly about energy. I will talk a little bit about that. That is a false premise.

Our economy depends on our environment in California. People come to our State and spend money to stay there because of our unique environment. They come to our ocean not to look at offshore oil drilling but to enjoy the beauty and the serenity of standing on that shoreline and looking at the vastness God gave us. To say that being an environmentalist is somehow not for a strong economy is a fact that is wrong on its face.

The green industries that grow up around clean air and clean water, a clean environment, are industries we are not exporting across the world.

To the people of this country, take heart. There are many in this body who understand this.

After Ms. Norton's confirmation hearings, her responses to over 200 written questions and an in-depth look at her long and detailed history of work on these environmental issues—unfortunately, on the other side of most of them—it is clear to me that her record is remarkably consistent. One can say that about Ms. Norton; her record is remarkably consistent.

She has spent her lifetime over the past 20 years focused on fighting against our essential Federal environmental laws and fighting for increased resource extraction from our public lands. That is her history. That is her life. Indeed, it is striking how few examples there are where Ms. Norton worked for the protection of the environment, despite the fact that her positions as Associate Solicitor at Interior and attorney general in Colorado required it.

Let us look at some of her statements. On mining she said:

> The Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act is not constitutional.

This is the act that tries to at least repair the damage that is done after there is mining.

On endangered species she said:

> The federal government has interpreted its habitat protection duties far too broadly.

In other words, she doesn't think the Federal Government should have much say in habitat protection.

On takings compensation:

> Compensation is desirable because it will have a chilling effect on federal environmental regulations.

A chilling effect on Federal environmental regulations?

We have a lot of important Federal environmental regulations: the Clean Air Act, the Clean Water Act, the Safe Drinking Water Act—all Federal regulations—the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act, the Endangered Species Act; these are important advances that our country has made. They have strong support. She likes things that give a chilling effect to Federal Government regulation. It gives me the chills to think that someone who feels this way is in charge of a lot of our laws.

We see recurring themes, deeply held philosophies. These include vehement opposition to Federal environmental regulation, an unflagging commitment to the supremacy of property rights even if those rights lead to environmental destruction and harm everyone else.

Ms. Norton has argued that ''control of land use and of mining is a traditional State function outside the scope of the commerce power.'' Thus, they are not activities that should be regulated by Federal land managers. She went so far as to argue that the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act is unconstitutional, as I have stated. Given these beliefs, it is doubtful that she will apply this law and implement it and make sure these conservation standards are applied in a meaningful way.

Mr. President, how much time do I have remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has 18 minutes remaining.

Mrs. BOXER. I thank the Chair.

She has raised strong complaints about the Endangered Species Act, another one of our bedrock laws that the Interior Secretary must implement. During her earlier tenure at the Department of the Interior, she complained the courts were providing an overly broad interpretation of the ESA's habitat provisions. She argued that the habitat protection standard should be extremely narrow so that only habitat that was immediately occupied by an endangered species would be protected. This interpretation would have ignored everything we know about the biological needs of species. It would have protected, for example, a bald eagle's nesting tree but allowed the rest of its surrounding habitat to be destroyed. With that kind of thinking, the bald eagle would never have been saved because you save the tree and then right around the tree you don't take any measures to protect the bald eagle.

Let us show a picture of some of our habitat. We are talking about God's creations that we have a responsibility to protect. This is Mohave National Preserve Joshua trees. We have to move to protect them.

Let us show some other habitat. Let us show the beautiful habitat of Alaska.

Here we can see some of the magnificent caribou up in Alaska. We will be arguing a lot about that issue. We can see, if we are going to protect their habitat, we cannot just protect a small amount. It is as if saying that we are going to protect the air in one State and not in another one. We know the air moves; the animals move. We have to think about their whole habitat if we are going to protect them and not have this narrow view that Ms. Norton has articulated, which is that you should apply it very narrowly.

She submitted an amicus brief in the Babbit v. Sweet Home case and argued that the Department of the Interior's protection of habitat on private lands was unconstitutional and constituted a taking. She argued for such a restricted interpretation of the law that it would have severely hindered our ability to protect habitat necessary for the recovery of the Endangered Species Act. On that case, her side lost. She is out of the mainstream of thought.

Is it possible she could forget her lifetime of work against these things and suddenly become a fighter for the environment? I conclude no. Over and over again, Ms. Norton has advocated for ''the devolution of authority in the environmental area back to the States.'' In other words, she doesn't really see the need for Federal laws such as the National Environmental Policy Act, NEPA.

While working in Colorado, she wrote of having ''to do battle'' with the Federal Government to wrestle control away from Washington and spoke with pride of her challenges to the Environmental Protection Agency regarding its interference in Colorado's air pollution programs. Oddly, she lamented that the end of the Civil War meant that ''we lost the idea that states were to stand against the Federal Government gaining too much power over our lives.''

There are a lot of things you could bring up to drive home a point, but to raise the Civil War is odd. She said that the end of the Civil War meant that ''we lost the idea that states were to stand against the Federal Government gaining too much power over our lives.''

She is way out there, in my opinion, because the people whom I represent—I think the vast majority of people—want to have a Clean Water Act, want to have a Safe Drinking Water Act, want to protect the magnificent species from destruction, and believe we have a God-given responsibility to do that. But she is way outside the mainstream. President Bush, for the vast majority, in my opinion—all but a couple—has chosen from the middle ground this time and reached over so far that there isn't much room on the other side and put this individual in the position where she can do harm.

As a matter of fact, given her statements about the inappropriate role of the Federal Government in all of this protection, it is hard to understand how she would want to be a part of the Interior Department, much less be the head of it. It raises questions to me about her ability to adequately serve as an advocate from the Federal perspective in various environmental decision-making processes. Ms. Norton has a long history of association with organizations that promote ideas such as eliminating the Bureau of Land Management and selling off our national parks. Not surprisingly, these views have sparked strong opposition from the people of our country.

I want to show you some of the groups that have opposed her nomination: the Natural Resources Defense Council, The Wilderness Society, Sierra Club, League of Conservation Voters, Republicans for Environmental Protection, Physicians for Social Responsibility, NAACP, AFL-CIO, Childhood Lead Action Project—I understand why they oppose her—Community Energy Project, the Network for Environmental and Economic Responsibility for the United States Church of Christ.

This is a lightning rod nomination for people who care about protecting the environment. Why do we have to see their kind of nomination? We could have had a nomination for the President to ''unify us'' and not divide us.

That is the reason I am against this nomination. Her lobbying to dissuade States from holding the lead industry accountable for the continued use of lead-based paint has brought criticism. I showed you that. The Childhood Lead Action Project, why would they get involved in this? Guess what we know. Lead-based paint causes mental retardation in children. This isn't a theory; it is a fact, and she led the charge to get the Federal Government out of regulating lead.

You have to stand up at some point in your life and be held responsible and accountable. I think this is a moment when someone has to be held accountable.

Everyone knows what a strong environmentalist I am and everyone knows how strong I am for a woman's right to choose. They know I have dedicated my life to do these two things. Suppose the laws were changed and suddenly a woman's right to choose was outlawed and I was put up for a position where I had to say enforce that law—put a woman in jail, put a doctor in jail. If this were to happen, people should come down to the floor and say BARBARA BOXER is not the right person for that job; her whole life has been dedicated to making sure that a woman has a right to choose. Why would they give her this position? They would be right. I don't care if I said I will do it; I will enforce it. They know how strongly I feel.

We know how strongly she feels about the interference of the Federal Government, what she considers to be interference in States rights in terms of protecting the environment. Why is this a good appointment? Again, you have to wonder why someone who has dedicated their adult life to opposing the Federal Government's involvement would even take this job. But we saw that happen before. His name was James Watt. We will get down to when someone says they will fully enforce the Nation's laws. Fine. But then when you ask her how she interprets those laws, you have to wonder because it is not the same interpretation as most people have.

When I asked her how she felt about priority issues for California, if she would uphold the Bureau of Land Management's important decision to deny a permit to a gold mine, which everyone agreed would destroy Native American land and destroy the environment in California near the San Diego area, she basically passed on an answer. I asked her about how she felt about the much heralded new management plan for Yosemite National Park. She basically passed on an answer. The Klamath Wildlife Refuge, she passed on an answer. The Trinity River Restoration effort, she passed on an answer. She said she wasn't familiar with the issue; she had not taken a position. This troubles me since she worked at the Department of the Interior before. Yosemite should not be unfamiliar to someone who is to be head of the Department of the Interior and, yet, she passed on an answer on Yosemite.

I would like to submit these answers for the RECORD at this time. I ask unanimous consent to have them printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

QUESTIONS FROM SENATOR DIANNE FEINSTEIN SUBMITTED ON BEHALF OF SENATOR BARBARA BOXER

Question. There are currently 36 undeveloped oil leases situated on the Outer Continental Shelf off the coast of California. Development of these leases has been strongly opposed by the state of California and the associated local coastal communities. This Administration has signaled its intent to prioritize the development of domestic oil and gas sources. Will you encourage development of offshore leases in states like California where there is strong and persistent opposition to the development of such leases? Past administrations have used their executive authority to place a moratorium on offshore oil and gas drilling in currently undeveloped areas. Would you recommend that such a moratorium be continued under this administration? Would you view such a moratorium, or any other environmental regulation that prevents development of a lease, to be a taking under the Fifth Amendment of the Constitution?

Answer. President Bush pledged to support the existing moratoria on OCS leases. He also committed to working with California and Florida leaders and local affected communities to determine on a case-by-case basis whether or not drilling should occur on existing, but undeveloped leases. If confirmed as Secretary of the Interior, I will honor these commitments and promise to work with all parties to reach a consensus on how undeveloped leases should be handled and the extension of existing moratoria.

Question. The Interior Department recently announced its denial of a permit for the Glamis Imperial gold mine that was proposed for development in Imperial County, California. This mine was rejected on the grounds that it would have caused undue degradation to the site's environmental and cultural resources. Do you think it is appropriate under current mining law for the Secretary to reject mines like the proposed Glamis Imperial Mine on these grounds?

Answer. I am not familiar with the specifics of the Glamis mine proposal or the basis on which the mine was rejected. I look forward to learning more about the proposed Glamis project and working with Congress to ensure that all new mining projects maintain an appropriate balance between legitimate mineral development activities and preservation of important environmental and cultural resources.

Question. Recently, the National Park Service developed a detailed plan for the future management of Yosemite National Park. This plan was developed after considerable input from all of the affected stakeholders and over 10,000 members of the public submitted comments to the agency. Central to this plan is the notion that visitors to the park should be encouraged to leave their personal vehicles outside the park and travel through the park on a park transit system. As Secretary of Interior, will you actively support implementation of the new Yosemite Valley Management Plan? Will you be aggressive about developing similar management plans for the many other national parks that are suffering environmental degradation because their management practices have not kept pace with the growing numbers of visitors?

Answer. I am not familiar with the details of the Yosemite Valley Management Plan. As a general matter, I support the concept of management plans for our public lands and believe that they represent an important decision-making tool for land managers. For these plans to be successful, I believe it is important that they be developed in consultation with the affected States, local communities, affected stakeholders, and environmental groups.

Question. In 1998, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service adopted a policy for Tule Lake and Lower Klamath National Wildlife Refuges in California and Oregon that prevents irrigation on commercial farmland on the refuges unless sufficient water is available to sustain the refuges' marshes. Do you support this policy which gives priority to the refuges' ecological resources over commercial farming? The National Wildlife Refuge System Improvement Act of 1997 set new requirements for the management of refuges. In response, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service issued regulations establishing procedures for determining what uses are compatible with the mission of the refuge system and the mission of each individual refuge. Do you believe farming is compatible with the mission of the Tule Lake and Lower Klamath National Wildlife Refuges? What uses would you deem to be incompatible with the mission of the national wildlife refuge system?

Answer. I am not familiar with the details of the Department's 1998 policy.

I have not yet had an opportunity to review the Compatibility Policy, and am not in a position at this time to assess how it might affect the Tule Lake and Lower Klamath National Wildlife Refuges. I am also aware that the Fish and Wildlife Service recently issued a draft Appropriate Uses Policy that may impact activities on refuges such as Tule Lake or the Lower Klamath. I look forward to learning more about the Fish and Wildlife Service's policies implementing the National Wildlife Refuge Improvement Act and about the 530 Refuges in the National Wildlife Refuge System.

Question. The Department of the Interior, with the concurrence of the Hoopa Valley Tribe, announced on December 19, 2000, a plan to restore the Trinity River in California. The decision is based on 20 years of scientific research and public involvement. It completes a process supported by the Carter, Reagan, Bush and Clinton Administrations and has enjoyed bipartisan support in the Congress. Will you commit your Department to follow through on the decision and implement the Trinity River restoration program?

Answer. I am not familiar enough with this restoration plan to respond to this question at this time. I look forward to working with you to learn more about this plan and the Department of Interior's role in implementing it.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, she had a good answer on the Outer Continental Self moratorium where she said she supported the States rights not to drill. When I pressed her on 36 existing leases off Santa Barbara, I didn't get the same answer. She said she would look at them on a case-by-case basis. That is not good enough because the State doesn't want any drilling there. Why wouldn't she just take it off the table? She couldn't do that.

I am very troubled, and we will have a lot of debate over those 36 existing leases. It is one of the most pressing environmental issues in California. We have unwavering opposition to the development of those leases. Since she says she is for States rights, now she can't suddenly say I'm for States rights on this one.

Finally, I want to address the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. I am not going to spend a lot of time on that. That will come at a later date. I agree with President Bush. It is unfair to criticize her for not wanting to drill in the Arctic. He says, I do; of course, my Secretary would. I have no problem with that. However, Ms. Norton seems to have enthusiasm about drilling there.

If you look at her historical role in pushing to open up the refuge, and her links to the oil and gas industry through the Mountain States Legal Foundation, and the oil companies that hire her current lobbying firm, and the oil and gas interests that gave her significant contributions during her Senate race, I think there are valid questions we could raise about whether she can effectively serve the role that the Secretary must fill in this type of decision-making.

What do I mean by that? Let me show you a picture of the Arctic Wildlife Refuge. You already saw a picture of the caribou there. This is just an open view of the Coastal Plain. By the way, this came from, if Senator MURKOWSKI is listening, the State biologists in Alaska. They wanted us to show this Coastal Plain. Basically, we are going to have a huge debate over whether to open up this refuge to drilling. This is going to be a tough debate. I know that at best there is 6 months' worth of oil there. If you just change the mileage on SUVs a few miles you wouldn't have to do any of this. But we will have that debate. I look forward to it.

But Ms. Norton, in her position, is going to have to be objective about facts such as how much oil lies there, and what is the impact on the caribou and the rest of the environment. I question whether she would be objective given her strong stand in favor of oil drilling.

My State is suffering from energy problems. I want to put something right out here right now. Outside of California, the people are saying it is California's fault because it didn't build enough powerplants. I want to explain something. It was explained very well in the New York Times editorial. Our utilities did not want to build any powerplants because they want to control the supply. The fact is, no new plants were built in the 1990s because prices were low, supplies were plentiful, and producers wanted to wait until they better understood the new era of deregulation.

The State of California recognized back in the 1980s that generation needs might increase, and they tried to move forward with building for new generating plants. It was the utilities, not conservationists, who blocked the efforts. They said we didn't need any new capacity until 2005, and they took their appeal to the State administrative law judge in their efforts to stop the State's push for new generating plants.

The utilities lost that battle. The State said you have to build new generating plants. Do you know what the utilities did? They ran to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. And guess what the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission did. they sided with the utilities over the objections of the State, and therefore we did not have these plants go on line. Finally, now they are coming on line, and that, along with long-term contracts and energy conservation, will solve our needs.

I can assure you that rolling back environmental laws and making our air dirty is the last thing my constituents want or need.

In Ms. Norton's testimony before the Energy Committee, she backed away from her life's work. Call me simplistic—and you can, and I don't mind it because I know I am a tough debater in this way. Call me simplistic, but I do not believe that a lifetime commitment to repealing environmental laws can be dissipated by nice, warm, fuzzy statements made in front of a committee.

I was not born yesterday. I watched James Watt. He made nice, warm, fuzzy statements in front of the committee. He said: I will fully and faithfully execute the public land laws adopted by Congress. I believe in balance. He said in his answers: Gee, I am unfamiliar with the details.

That is what Ms. Norton said. As a matter of fact, I find the parallels chilling, looking at her answers and looking at his answers.

We remember Secretary Watt's tenure at the Department of the Interior: Catastrophic impacts on the environment, opening up millions of acres of protected Federal lands, blocking Federal land acquisitions, making substantial changes in strip mining regulations that weakened or directly repealed environmental law, new plans for oil and gas drilling in the Arctic, et cetera.

In closing, let me say I cannot vote for someone for this important position whose life record has been against every single law that she says she will now protect. There is too much at stake for my State. There is too much at stake for the Nation. I have laid out my reasons. I take the Senate's responsibility of advice and consent seriously.

I would like to submit for the RECORD some of Ms. Norton's writing which include the extreme statements I referred to in my comments. I ask unanimous consent they be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
OFFICE OF THE SOLICITOR,
Washington, DC, January 14, 1987.

Hon. F. Henry Habicht, II,
Assistant Attorney General, Division of Land and Natural Resources.

Attention: DONALD A. CARR, Esquire,
Chief, Wildlife and Marine Resources Section, Department of Justice, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. HABICHT: In Palila v. Hawaii Department of Land and Natural Resources, Civ. No. 78–0030 (D. Hawaii, Nov. 21, 1986), the United States District Court for the District of Hawaii recently issued an opinion that interprets the scope of the ''taking'' prohibition of Section 9 of the Endangered Species Act, 16 U.S.C. §1538 (1982). The Interior Department is concerned that the Palila court's discussion of the concept of taking, or ''harming,'' endangered species by habitat degradation is overbroad; therefore, should the Palila decision be appealed, the Department requests the opportunity to prepare or review an amicus curiae brief for submission to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals.

In determining that the State of Hawaii's maintenance of mouflon sheep on the Mauna Kea Game Management Area (which includes most of the Palila's critical habitat) ''harms'' the Palila, the district court held that: ''A finding of ''harm'' does not require death to individual members of the species, nor does it require a finding that habitat degredation is presently driving the species further toward extinction. Habitat destruction that prevents the recovery of the species by affecting essential behavioral patterns causes actual injury to the species and effects a taking under section 9 of the Act.'' Palila, supra, slip op. at 9. The district court's analysis appears to improperly blend Section 7 concepts (i.e., the prohibitions against jeopardy and the destruction or adverse modification of critical habitat) into the definition of ''harm,'' and, therefore, needlessly expands that definition to include habitat destruction that does not actually result in death or physical injury to an endangered species, either directly or indirectly in the foreseeable future. In order to show ''harm,'' there must be proof of a causal connection between the habitat modifying activity and foreseeable death or injury to an endangered species.

The scope of the holding in Palila runs counter to the Interior Department's redefinition of the term ''harm'': Harm in the definition of ''take'' in the Act means an act which actually kills or injures wildlife * * * such act may include significant habitat modification or degradation where it actually kills or injures wildlife by significantly impairing essential behavioral patterns, including breeding, feeding or sheltering.'' 50 C.F.R. §17.3 (1985) (emphasis added). In short, the department's definition of ''harm'' quite clearly requires a showing of actual death or injury to wildlife, even in the case of taking by habitat modification.

For those who would develop real estate near or within endangered species habitat, the Palila decision could expand their Section 9 liability if essential behavioral patterns of the species are affected to the extent that recovery is prevented. No proof of mortalities or actual physical injury to endangered species would be required to sustain a prosecution or civil injunctive action under the Palila ruling. The Palila decision poses an equally serious concern to federal land managing agencies.

Please contact Michael Young of my staff at 343–2172 if we can be of assistance on this matter.

Sincerely,

GALE A. NORTON,
Associate Solicitor, Conservation and Wildlife.

TAKINGS ANALYSIS OF REGULATIONS

(By Gale A. Norton)

Because the panel already has discussed why property is both an enemy and an ally of regulation, I will move immediately to a discussion of how to protect property from excessive regulation. How do we restore a regime of property rights? I would like to discuss a few things happening on that front.

This Symposium occurs at an appropriate time: March 15, 1989, is the first anniversary of the issuance of President Reagan's Executive Order 12,630 dealing with takings. It is surprising that the Executive Order has received so little publicity because it is a unique approach to the issue. It asks the federal agencies to move beyond their environmental and regulatory impact analyses, and to perform a takings impact analysis. The agencies are asked to examine their regulations and determine whether the regulations are likely to cause takings of property and, if so, to estimate what effect the regulations will have on the federal budget. As might be expected, the agencies are not wildly enthusiastic about performing takings impact analyses. The agencies tend to believe that they are not taking anything and that they should never have to pay compensation. Nevertheless, it appears that the agencies are beginning to develop plans for performing analyses in accordance with the Order.

Compensation is the key issue in any analysis under the Takings Clause. First, of course, compensation provides fairness to the person who is harmed by the regulation or other government action. The classic rationale for compensation is that, in fairness and justice, one individual should not be forced to bear the burden that ought properly to be borne by society as a whole. Second, compensation tends to limit government action. Even though bureaucrats enjoy the benefit of spending other people's money, their actions are constrained by their agency's budget. If the government must pay compensation when its actions interfere with private property rights, then its regulatory actions must be limited. This constraint also results in a limitation on transfer activity. If compensation is paid, the political system must take into account some financial costs. Therefore, some brakes are applied on political redistribution as compared with a system that puts everyone's property rights up for grabs.

Finally, the payment of compensation helps encourage the resolution of social problems by private, voluntary contractual arrangements rather than by regulation. It may appear cost-free to work out conflicts by regulation because the costs are off-budget. But when regulations impose burdens on private individuals, the costs are borne by the private sector and are not considered in the democratic decisionmaking process. As those costs are returned to the budget by payment of compensation, we will start looking at alternatives to regulations that may in the long run be more beneficial.

President Reagan's Executive Order on takings has generated significant disapproval from the environmental community, including criticism from Jerry Jackson, a former attorney for the National Wildlife Federation. He said the Executive Order mandates an impossibility because it requires the agencies to determine under the current takings law what actions might be unconstitutional takings. I agree with him on this point. The takings case law is currently such a mess that it is difficult to ascertain what is and is not a taking. The Supreme Court has provided clear guidance in this area.

I, however, disagree strongly with Mr. Jackson about the role of the Constitution in executive agency decisionmaking. He seems to believe that the only way the Constitution figures into an executive agency's decision is that, long after the fact, a court finally addresses the issue and decides that there was indeed a taking. Before a court's decision, the agency should be oblivious to the takings implications. Mr. Jackson says, ''Whether a permit denial might be construed by a court to effect a taking is not a relevant factor in an agency's decision to grant or deny the permit absent express legislative authority making it a factor.'' I would be very interested to see that legislative authority. It would have to say something like, ''In this case, the Constitution applies.'' Mr. Jackson also notes that the Executive Order on takings may have a chilling effect on regulation. I view that as something positive.

I consider next the formulations that might be used in deciding when an environmental regulation is a taking and ought to result in compensation. An exception to the compensation requirement has been recognized when the government acts pursuant to the police power or restrains public nuisances. The exact scope of this exception is not clear. Because we are looking at alternatives. I will act like a good bureaucrat and look at the extreme alternatives.

Let us first assume that there is absolutely no police power or nuisance exception to the takings rule. The government pays whenever it regulates in a way that interferes with private property rights. In a way, this regime would be easy to administer. One would simply look at the property values before and after the regulation is imposed to determine the amount of compensation. But under this regime, the government would have to pay for all types or regulations—even those that halt the worst criminal offenses. (One wonders what the compensation to criminals would be for closing down a crack house—probably mind-boggling.) In such a case, we have little justification for taking money from the taxpayers to pay someone not to engage in socially inappropriate or criminal behavior. Such cases also pose the danger of someone coming back time and time again with, ''Well, last time you paid me to close down a crack house. Now it's time to pay me to close down the bordello, and next week you can pay me to close down whatever I dream up next time.'' The model is open to exploitation by repeat offenders.

At the other extreme, let us assume that the government does not have to pay at all unless it chooses to label its action condemnation. Again, such a regime would be easy to administer. In fact, it would be facile. The government never would have to worry about what it takes, but individual rights clearly would not be protected.

One formulation that actually has been adopted by the courts is a nuisance exception: No compensation is due if a taking is performed pursuant to the police power in regulating a nuisance. Unfortunately, this is often expressed as a broad police power exception: Compensation need not be paid for government actions undertaken pursuant to the police power. The problem with this approach is defining the police power. The police power may be interpreted very broadly, as it was, for example, in the License Cases of 1847: ''nothing more or less than the powers of government inherent in every sovereignty to the extent of its dominions.'' This definition covers far too much. No regulatory taking would ever be compensated. Furthermore, there is no textual support in the Constitution for an exception to the takings rule for police powers. A further problem with a broad police-power exception to the compensation requirement is that the public-use requirement in the Takings Clause has been interpreted as being ''coterminous'' with the police power. Combining a police-power exception to the compensation requirement with a police-power definition of what is a public use leaves an empty box as to when compensation would be awarded. A taking would be appropriate if performed pursuant to the police power and pursuant to public use, but no compensation would be necessary because it falls within the police-power exception.

A much better formulation focuses on the extent of the property rights involved, presumably, there is no actual property right in maintaining a nuisance. Thus, government is not involved in a taking when it halts a nuisance because there is no property right to take. The Keystone decision states this rule, but the analysis in the opinion proceeds to ignore it. There was clearly a property right under state law in that case, but the Supreme Court proceeded as if there were no such right.

Another crucial step in the analysis is defining a nuisance, including determining whether a nuisance is to be interpreted by the common law, and deciding whether nuisance is synonymous with a negative externality. If they are synonymous, then aesthetic harms are problematic. Let me give you an example. I am from Denver, I am a Broncos fan—at least I watch about half of every Super Bowl game in which they are involved. A few years ago, when we were in our fist Super Bowl, there was a craze to paint one's house Bronco orange. If I lived across the street from one of those houses, I would view the aesthetic harm to myself as an interference with my right to use my property, but I doubt that we want to regulate such aesthetic harm.

A different way of identifying a nuisance is to require a physical invasion of neighboring property. A physical invasion test eliminates the problem of aesthetic harm. But physical invasion standing alone is not necessarily a nuisance. There must be some additional element of harmfulness, undesirability, or inappropriateness.

Another alternative is to consider some kind of reasonable right to use our property. In the Nollan case, Justice Scalia, writing for the Court, noted that the right to build on one's property was an actual right and not a government-granted privilege. Regulation of this right may have very significant repercussions in future land-use litigation. Interestingly, we might even go so far as to recognize a homesteading right to pollute or to make noise in an area. This approach would eliminate some of the theoretical problems with defining a nuisance.

Moving beyond the question of defining the nuisance exception to the just compensation requirement. I would like to summarize a few other key components of current takings analysis. In evaluating regulatory takings, particularly in the land-use context, the Court often employs a diminution in value test. Under this test,if a regulation goes too far, it is a taking. The question, as phrased by the courts, is whether the regulation denies the owner all economically viable use of the property. Under this test, the courts have found that diminutions in value of seventy-five percent of almost ninety percent are not sufficiently severe to constitute takings.

Another question is whether a regulation substantially advances a legitimate state interest. This is similar to the requirement of having a public use for the taking under the Fifth Amendment, and therefore it does not provide us with a satisfactory test of what should and should not be compensated. It focuses on what the government is properly empowered to do, not at what it can do on the condition that it pay compensation. Although this test has been frequently reiterated by the Court, it has seldom been used to strike down an uncompensated taking.

One other approach is the bundle of rights test. An interference with a particularly important strand in the bundle of rights may constitute a taking. This test has not yielded particularly enlightening results. A right to exclude others and a right to pass to one's heirs are significant and denial of these rights will be deemed a taking. On the other hand, ownership of a support estate as part of a mineral interest or the right to sell property, are not considered significant and compensable.

An emerging way of looking at the question is the nexus requirement that is set forth in the Nollan decision and that is discussed extensively in Executive Order 12,630. This analysis requires that conditions put on permits have the same health and safety objectives, and substantially advance the same objectives, as the denial of a permit would serve. A good example of such an approach is the case of wetlands dredge and fill permits. The purpose of the wetlands regulatory program is to protect water quality. Its application has been judicially and administratively expanded to protect wetlands values. Frequently, conditions are placed on dredge and fill permits that have no relationship to the overall purpose of the regulatory program, such as providing recreational boat ramps and docks. It will be interesting to watch how these issues are treated as the Executive Order analysis develops.

In this discussion, I have not examined a number of other formulations in the takings context—compensating benefits and so forth—that further complicate the whole analysis. As the preceding discussion indicates, the analysis at this point is very confused and inconsistent. This confusion, however, creates an opportunity for a major shift in takings jurisprudence, toward a greater protection of property rights.

ECONOMIC RIGHTS PROVISIONS OF THE CONSTITUTION

(By Gale Norton)

I would like to explore some of the means by which I believe the Constitution provides judges with standards for the protection of economic liberties. Throughout the history of the United States, the protection of economic rights has been attempted through a variety of provisions: the ex post facto clause, the contracts clause, the takings clause, the privileges and immunities clause, and through theories of natural rights and due process. While each of these approaches has been largely rejected by the courts, litigants are continually exploring new approaches for the protection of economic rights.

Economic rights are clearly not protected today. Land is owned subject to the whims of one's neighbors on the zoning commission. Prices of goods and services are controlled by a plethora of governmental and regulatory bodies. Selective taxation hampers the growth and innovation of industry, and subsidies enrich some sectors of society at the expense of others.

There are substantial similarities between the takings and contracts clauses. Both clauses limit the powers of government, chiefly the police and eminent domain powers. The eminent domain power is not explicitly provided in the Constitution, but it has been upheld for many years as a necessary and inherent power of government. The police power is exercised by state governments; the federal government exercises similar authority through the commerce power and other delegated powers. The contracts clause applies by its terms only to the states, the takings clause only to the federal government. The requirement of just compensation has, however, been applied to states through the fourteenth amendment. Ellen Frankel Paul has noted the inconsistencies between recognition of the eminent domain power and the Lockean natural rights approach to property rights. An extended discussion of these inconsistencies is beyond the scope of today's discussion; however, I believe it is instructive to explore briefly the character of these governmental powers as they highlight the role and importance of the takings and contracts clauses.

The police power is basically government regulation for the promotion and protection of health, safety, morals, and the general welfare. In a narrow sense, it is the government attempting to enforce the maxim that one should use one's property so as not to injure that of another. This narrow view of the police power firmly prevailed in the early days of the United States, but it has now been broadened to include not only the protection of public safety, health, and morals, but anything rationally related to these broad areas. Indeed, Justice Brennan stated in his dissent in Nollan v. California Coastal Commission that a review of the use of the police power ''demands only that the state could rationally have decided that the measure might achieve the state's objective.'' Thus, the only practical limitation on this power comes from specific constitutional provisions such as the contracts and takings clauses.

The contracts clause is one of those provisions that has been virtually written out of the Constitution in current times. Even though James Madison eloquently discussed the contracts clause in Federalist No. 44 in fairly modern terms, modern jurisprudence has seemingly discarded the clause. Essentially, Madison viewed the contracts clause as discouraging transfer activities, keeping decisions out of the hands of lobbyists, and providing the predictability necessary for business planning.

Despite the soundness of the reasons behind the contracts clause, its erosion began discouragingly early in our history. In Ogden v. Saunders, the Supreme Court held that only existing contracts were protected by the clause. The Court had previously held that the ex post facto clause applied only to criminal activities, thereby preventing its use for the protection of contracts. Thus, by 1827 the Court had already moved away from viewing the contracts clause as a broad freedom of contract provision that would protect contracts generally.

Today, the clause is so weakened that in the recent Keystone Coal decision the Court stated, ''Unlike other provisions in article 1, section 10, it is well settled that the prohibition against impairing the obligation of contracts is not to be read literally.'' The chief reason for this view of the contracts clause is that the courts have clearly stated that the clause does not supersede the police power. This puts us in a ''catch 22'' position because the police power (in the modern broad sense) is exactly what the contracts clause should be limiting. Therefore, we have a limitation that is superseded by the power it is intended to restrain.

The takings clause is somewhat more alive than the contracts clause, but it also suffers from some debilitating restrictions. An encouraging note is the widespread interest in Richard Epstein's analysis, which expands the takings clause beyond simply eminent domain activities to encompass limitations on the commerce power, taxing power, and so forth. The analysis takes a simple political science approach, i.e., that the takings clause was meant to operate as a check preventing the majority from raiding the assets of the other forty-nine percent of society. Compensation must be paid when the burdens of society fall too heavily on an individual or group, which presumably limits regulatory excesses. The compensation may be monetary or implicit in-kind compensation. Thus, those who are burdened or taxed for the benefit of society are compensated for their special sacrifices.

The current judicial interpretation of the takings clause, however, falls far short of the role discussed by Richard Epstein and intended by the Constitution. For instance, in the public use cases of Hawaii Housing Authority v. Midkiff and Ruckelshaus v. Monsanto the Supreme Court held that the public use justification is coterminous with the police powers. This interpretation can work to deprive individuals of their economic rights. The transfer of property from private party to private party, through the compulsion of the state, will now be upheld when any rational basis can be put forth. Moreover, the courts will only step in if the state's public use determination involves an impossibility and therefore has no rational justification.

In the case of a regulatory taking, the standard approach has been that when regulation goes too far, it is a taking. ''Too far'' generally means that a regulation, under the guise of the police power, does not advance a legitimate state interest or that an owner has been deprived of all economically viable use of his property. As stated earlier, the courts will uphold any state action that is supported in any fashion by some state interest. Moreover, the courts have held that the loss of only one or several attributes of the ''bundle of sticks'' of property ownership is not equal to a taking. The courts have often gone to ridiculous extremes to find some remaining viable use. The only relief the courts have granted property owners in this area in recent times has been to hold that a deprivation of property need not be permanent to bring into force the takings clause. This is a minimal breakthrough since the property owner still has the ominous burden of showing that a taking has occurred.

I believe that some changes are desperately needed in the jurisprudence of economic liberties. The preceding analysis suggests some specific overall changes. I think one important change should be in the level of scrutiny applied to statutes affecting economic liberties. An extreme proposal would be to place the burden of proof on the government to justify its regulations. Levels of scrutiny below this extreme, but higher than the current minimal scrutiny, are realistic.

I would like to note that there are some grounds for optimism in the recent Supreme Court decisions. Bernard Siegan, in his Economic Liberties and the Constitution, states: ''A change of one vote on the Supreme Court in Ogden v. Saunders would have, in 1827, brought economic due process into being through the contracts clause. One vote likewise separated the majority and minority position on the constitutional status of economic rights in the 1872 Slaughterhouse cases. * * * [E]conomic due process was unanimously accepted in 1897 and it fell by one vote in 1937.''

Hopefully in the future these close calls will be resolved in favor of freedom.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes the Senator from Louisiana.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I yield myself such time as I may consume of Senator MURKOWSKI's time, I believe. I ask for 7 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, that is one of those remarkable things about this body. We can come to the floor and debate vigorously many different issues. In this case, we are making remarks about what I hope will soon be our secretary of the environment, our Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Gale Norton.

I come to the floor to give some words of support for her appointment and with just the greatest amount of respect to my colleague who just spoke, Senator BARBARA BOXER.

Mrs. BOXER. I thank the Senator.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Thank you very much.

With all due respect to my colleague from California—and I have the greatest respect for her as an environmental leader—I have carefully considered the nomination of Gale Norton, former attorney general of Colorado, to be our Secretary of the Interior and arrived at a different conclusion.

Let me begin by saying that since the announcement for this position, there has been much debate about positions she has taken throughout the course of her career. Whether the topic has been protection of private property rights, environmental self-audits, or certain provisions of the Endangered Species Act, she has advocated for limits on Federal power while arguing for more State and local authority.

In its core essence, that is not necessarily a bad thing. We need to be very sensitive to local and State governments as we craft and fashion and design environmental laws for this Nation. Frankly, I think in some instances the Federal Government has gone, you might say, overboard or has not had as much sensitivity to State and local governments as perhaps we should. We are still a work in progress here.

I find her position, actually, for State and local authority, refreshing and necessary, recognizing that one size does not fit all. But I do not question her commitment to clean air, to clean water, and to finding the right ways to pursue those goals.

As Secretary of the Interior, it would be her duty to manage public lands on behalf of the Federal Government and also to represent its interests in any dispute. So some legitimate concerns have been raised as to whether she would fall on the side of State and local government or Federal Government. I think she put those issues to rest clearly and squarely in her testimony before the committee as she said she would represent the interests of the Federal Government, using her sensitivity to State and local governments as an asset, but not as a barrier to fighting vigorously for and enforcing environmental laws that are on the books.

One such example I would like to point out that should be in her favor is her successful advocacy for the Rocky Mountain Arsenal cleanup. When the Federal Government itself was standing in the way of efficient and effective cleanup, Gale Norton challenged the Federal Government to clean up its own hazardous waste sites and led the fight successfully in that area, and that is a project that is still going forward.

In her 2 days of testimony before our committee as well as her answers to a few hundred written questions, I believe she has sufficiently indicated her honest intention to enforce the Federal laws as they are written and as the courts have interpreted them. Policy differences from time to time between Ms. Norton and the Members of this body are unavoidable. However, she has listened attentively to the concerns expressed by members of the committee, and her pledges to work with us seem genuine.

In addition, I am encouraged by her comments that she was willing to give appropriate consideration to the impact of Federal laws on State and local interests, which is something I mentioned before as very important to me and many Members, Democrats and Republicans, in our body. While there are certain instances where national policy on environmental issues is necessary, as I said earlier, sometimes one size does not fit all. We would be wise to recognize that and implement different strategies for different regions and different States.

In fact, Ms. Norton and I had the opportunity to discuss such a matter during her recent visit to my office—my favorite subject, actually—the Conservation and Reinvestment Act, which is a conservation program that will benefit all 50 States. She expressed an interest to learn more about this. She expressed a very keen understanding of the contribution made by coastal States, in terms of the amount of money that is sent to the Federal Government from offshore oil and gas production, that could be used more wisely to replenish and restore some of our renewable resources while we are, in fact, depleting a nonrenewable resource.

Based on the crisis that we are facing in our Nation today, our energy crisis—as the chairman, Senator MURKOWSKI, from the State of Alaska, has so ably spoken about on this floor so many times—we can really now recognize the value of producing States. Let's make sure the billions of dollars we are sending to the Federal Treasury is used not just for general government purposes but used to invest in our environment to provide parks and recreation, wildlife and conservation, and, yes, to extend help to coastal impact assistance and coastal communities everywhere.

She says she understands it. Although she has not officially endorsed the bill, she will work very closely with us to carry out our work on CARA. Let me be quick to mention, though, that while she has not taken an official position and did not do so in the hearings, President Bush did in fact endorse, during the campaign, the CARA legislation. He did remind us all as Americans that you just can't keep taking; that sometimes you have to give back if you want your children and your grandchildren to enjoy the same benefits of open spaces, wildlife, and fisheries.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for 2 more minutes to close.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. If I may, I dearly want to accommodate my good friend from Louisiana, but Senator LANDRIEU asked for 7 minutes, Senator HUTCHISON for 5, and Senator BAUCUS for a minute and a half. The two Senators from Colorado need time, and we have to finish at 12:30. I encourage colleagues to try to keep within their time limits.

Ms. LANDRIEU. I thank the Chair. I will take 1 minute to close.

President Bush endorsed this bill during the campaign, and I believe with Ms. Norton's leadership, with President Bush's leadership, and with bipartisan leadership in the Senate and House, it is an early bipartisan victory we can achieve for the environment and for our Nation. I look forward to working with her on that and many other issues. I am proud to support her nomination as our new Secretary of the Interior, and I look forward to working with her in the years ahead.

I thank the Chair, and I yield back whatever time I have remaining.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. I thank the Senator from Louisiana.

I believe the Senator from Texas seeks recognition as the next in order on the list, followed by Senator BAUCUS.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished chairman of the Energy Committee.

Mr. President, I rise today to speak on behalf of my friend Gale Norton to be Secretary of the Interior.

I have watched Gale as the attorney general of Colorado. I worked with her very closely on the lawsuit that the attorneys general of our States filed against the tobacco companies. Gale was one of the key leaders of the States' attorneys general in that effort and successfully negotiated the lawsuit against the tobacco companies. We worked very hard to make sure that that money stayed in the States, that the Federal Government was not able to take part of the tobacco settlement money away from the States. That has certainly helped all of our States use that money mostly for the purpose of better health care for the indigent people in their States and for all citizens who need help with health care.

In my State of Texas, we added it to the CHIP program for children's health insurance. I know this has added to the quality of health care coverage in our country, and Gale Norton was one of those most responsible for it.

As a former State official, she has also shown that she wants to protect the environment, and she also wants balance in our environmental laws. She believes the Federal Government should have the same requirements to keep environmental standards high that our private industries do.

As Colorado attorney general, she was able to get involved in negotiations to make sure the Federal Government cleaned up hazardous waste in the Rocky Mountain arsenal.

She is going to be the person who will improve public health and the environment in an evenhanded and thoughtful way. I can think of no person who would be better for this job as Secretary of the Interior than Gale Norton.

Mr. President, we will also be voting on the nomination of Gov. Christine Todd Whitman to be EPA Administrator, a Cabinet post. I cannot think of a better person for EPA Administrator than this wonderful Governor of New Jersey who has a very strong environmental record and who also believes in balance to make sure that our economy stays strong and we keep the environment clean for future generations.

I am proud to speak for Governor Whitman and for my friend Gale Norton to join the Cabinet of President Bush, hopefully this afternoon, because I think they will add immense experience, quality, intelligence, and integrity to that Cabinet. I am pleased to support them.

I thank Senator MURKOWSKI for giving me this time.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. I thank Senator KAY BAILEY HUTCHISON.

Senator BAUCUS is seeking recognition.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, at the outset, I want to be clear that I have reservations about Ms. Norton's ability to reconcile her history of passionately battling Federal environmental and public health laws with her duties as Interior Secretary, the public's voice in protecting and managing the Nation's national parks, its endangered wildlife and one-third of the nation's public lands.

Ms. Norton has stated she endorses the goals of our nation's land and wildlife protection laws. She must do more. She must enforce and uphold the spirit of those laws, the very laws she has tried in the past to undermine. She must ensure balance in her and her Department's decisions, listening to the concerns of all interested parties.

Because so many lands in Montana belong to the Federal Government and will fall under Ms. Norton's jurisdiction, Ms. Norton's actions will have an enormous impact on our way of life. Her actions will also impact the many native American tribes in Montana. I hope we can work together to ensure that those impacts are positive, both for Montana and for the Nation. I know I will do my part, and I expect she will do her part.

Despite these reservations, I believe that Ms. Norton is qualified for this position, I believe that she is honest and that she has the utmost integrity and that she will do her best to carry out her many obligations. I believe that Ms. Norton should be confirmed as Secretary of the Interior.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alaska.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I yield 10 minutes to the Senator from Colorado.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Colorado.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, I take this opportunity to offer my wholehearted support for Gale Norton's nomination.

After all the rhetoric about Ms. Norton for the last month, it only took two appearances before the Energy Committee to get an 18–2 vote. That may not be unanimous, but it is mighty close to it. It is certainly overwhelming. I believe it is evidence that an overwhelming majority of the committee knows she is an outstanding candidate for the job.

She has proven she is knowledgeable, articulate, and capable of enduring round after round of detailed questions while being the object of pretty outrageous charges and mean-spirited ads paid for by her extremist detractors. She handled it, as she does everything, by simply focusing on the job at hand. The more she sat in those hearings, the more she convinced our colleagues that she is the right person for the job.

My Democrat colleagues on the committee saw, as with several other Bush nominees, that getting through this nomination process is not easy. The environmental groups that focused on her simply were wrong. Her management direction and experience have been proven over and over, and I was pleased to hear some very enthusiastic and commendable words from my colleagues on the other side of the aisle and other side of the dais in our Energy Committee before we voted to send her nomination to the floor.

My friend and colleague from California, Senator DIANNE FEINSTEIN, stated:

Some of the things said about her are simply not correct.

That is absolutely true. Some of the articles in paid-for ads in the Washington Post were simply distorted.

She certainly allayed, through her testimony and her answers to 227 written questions to the committee, the fears my colleagues had. Senator BAUCUS, Senator LANDRIEU, and Senator BINGAMAN, all valued Members of this body, questioned her at length and came away with the same opinion I have: That she is going to be a very good Secretary of the Interior. Directly after the vote, the same people who had attacked her before did so again, and also sent kind of a warning shot to the Senate Democrats on the committee. The President of the Friends of the Earth, a prominent environmental group, said after the vote that Norton is ''a wolf in sheep's clothing'' and that ''she pulled the wool over the eyes of the Senators.'' That paragraph was in the Washington Post on January 24. These are the types of fictional jabs that I believe led to the vote for her overwhelmingly.

Contrary to the Friends of the Earth, she did not pull the wool over anybody's eyes. In fact, if anything, she opened the eyes of many of the committee members who had some questions about her qualifications before she had a chance to be interviewed.

I have known Gale for many years both in a professional capacity and as a friend, too. Let me state for the RECORD, she has a long and distinguished career of doing the right thing—always. Her consensus-building ability might be best illustrated by her 8 years as Colorado's attorney general. There she served under a Democrat Governor and still accomplished much for the betterment of Colorado, not the least of which was the cleanup of Superfund sites.

For more than 20 years, she has provided leadership on environmental and public lands and has demonstrated a responsible commonsense approach to preserving our natural heritage.

I listened to some of the comments of her detractors on the floor this morning, and I will tell you that is not the Gale Norton I know. In fact, the Gale Norton I know represents a balanced approach to public lands.

Another significant fact to know about Ms. Norton is she is committed to enforcing the law as it is written. Throughout her questioning in front of the Energy Committee, she repeatedly stated she will enforce the letter of the law with which she is entrusted. I believed her. The majority of the committee also believed her.

I think that is a novel approach. I say to the Presiding Officer, coming from the West, you, as I, have seen a Secretary of the Interior the last number of years who believes laws are passed by Congress, and they are simply an extension of what the Secretary of the Interior wants to do by rulemaking authority. Ms. Norton will follow the rule of law.

She listens to common sense while she searches for common ground. Unlike many in Washington, she understands that real environmental solutions do not just come from beltway professionals or are driven by ideological purists but come by including people whose lives are going to be affected. They come from real people with honest concerns about the land and the water.

She relayed this to all of the Senators she testified before and visited around the time of her confirmation hearing. She proved to 18 of the 20 Senators of the committee that she is the right person for the job. She is up to the task. She will be a very fine Secretary of the Interior.

And probably above all, we have witnessed in the West in the last few years a process which certainly locks out any local input whatsoever. Ms. Norton is concerned about that. She knows that the people whose lives are affected at the local level must also be included when we talk about public lands policy.

Her record as a public servant demonstrates she will work with all parties to craft reasonable solutions. That kind of evenhanded approach to public land management has been missing, and the West is worse off for it. I know she will bring to this office of Interior Secretary decisive action in the land and resource issues where we have recently seen too much photo-op and not enough solid demonstrable decisions.

I believe she should be confirmed by the full Senate quickly, and by a large margin, and certainly would ask my colleagues to do so.

With that, I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

Mr. MURKOWSKI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alaska.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, might I ask, how much time is remaining for debate?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Seventeen minutes 15 seconds.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Seventeen minutes. I thank the Chair, and I thank my colleague from Colorado.

Mr. President, virtually every newspaper in Colorado has endorsed Ms. Norton. I cannot think of one that has not. The attorneys general throughout the United States have rallied behind her, those who have worked with her and know her. I cannot think of a greater tribute to her than hearing from those who have worked with her and have respected her over an extended period of time.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a letter from the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, dated January 29, 2001, signed by the general president, James P. Hoffa, be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

INTERNATIONAL BROTHERHOOD OF TEAMSTERS,
January 29, 2001.

DEAR SENATOR: On behalf of the 1.5 million members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, I urge you to support the nomination of Gale Norton for Secretary of Interior.

As you know, the United States finds itself facing an ever-growing crisis in meeting its energy needs. As skyrocketing gas prices hit the pocketbooks of working Americans and rolling blackouts bring to a grinding halt the economic engine of California, the citizens of this country look to the federal government to address this program now.

Our first step must be to increase the United States' energy independence. The Arctic National Wildlife Refuge (ANWR) offers a realistic and immediate opportunity for working toward this goal. Tapping the resources of ANWR in an environmentally sensitive manner will provide 10.3 billion gallons of oil, while at the same time creating an estimated 25,000 Teamster jobs and potentially 750,000 jobs nationwide.

Ms. Norton recognizes these facts. Her commitment to finding real solutions, particularly with regard to ANWR, demonstrates that she has the ability to balance the needs of the environment with the needs of working Americans.

Admittedly, during her tenure as Colorado Attorney General, Ms. Norton did oppose the labor community on some issues very important to our members. However, I believe that her commitment to energy independence and job creation portends a welcome shift in priorities at the Department of the Interior that will benefit Teamsters and other working families.

For these reasons, I ask you to vote to confirm Gale Norton as Secretary of Interior.

Sincerely,

JAMES P. HOFFA,
General President.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I yield myself 7 minutes.

I will take the liberty of referring to the letter:

On behalf of the 1.5 million members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, I urge you to support the nomination of Gale Norton for Secretary of Interior.

The next paragraph reads as follows:

As you know, the United States finds itself facing an ever-growing crisis in meeting its energy needs. . . .

Our first step must be to increase the United States' energy independence. The Arctic National Wildlife Refuge (ANWR) offers a realistic and immediate opportunity for working toward this goal. Tapping the resources of ANWR in an environmentally sensitive manner will provide 10.3 billion gallons of oil, while at the same time creating an estimated 25,000 Teamster jobs and potentially 750,000 jobs nationwide. It would be the largest construction project in the history of North America.

Admittedly, during her tenure as Colorado Attorney General, Ms. Norton did oppose the labor community on some issues very important to our members. However, I believe that her commitment to energy independence and job creation portends a welcome shift in priorities at the Department of the Interior that will benefit . . . working families.

Mr. President, we disagree in this body on a daily basis, and that is healthy, and it is a part of the process before us. But I think some in the environmental community could learn from that model associated with Ms. Norton's confirmation effort. She represents some of the western values and approaches toward public lands and the environment.

People are free to disagree with her values and approaches; however, in some cases, some have tried to portray her as an extremist. Representatives of some special interests said that she has spent her lifetime trying to undermine the mission of the agency she is nominated to lead; that is, the Department of the Interior.

The disagreeable rhetoric used was never born out in fact. In her entire testimony before the committee, of which I chair, the Energy and Natural Resources Committee, where we have held 2 days of hearings, we had her respond to about 224 questions. We voted her out with a mandate vote of 18–2.

In any event, that rhetoric is without reality and has led to questioning the goals of some in the environmental community. I do question the goals, and I do question the effort to basically character assassinate this nominee.

Let me quote from a January 19, 2001, guest editorial in the Chicago Sun Times:

> The Norton nomination exposes a growing schism within the national environmental movement. An increasingly radical left wing, funded by a small number of liberal foundations and tens of millions of dollars each year from government grants, will stop at nothing to shut down American manufacturing and to ban all public access to public lands. These are the same groups that rioted in Seattle in November 1999 and are burning down resorts and new homes to protest sprawl.

Mr. President, it goes without saying that the Colorado newspapers have supported Ms. Norton, but they go further than that. How about the Tacoma News Tribune:

> Norton has been described, even by some Democrats, as bright, hard-working, highly ethical and willing to at least listen to those with opposing views.

Washington State Attorney General Christine Gregoire said:

> The Sierra Club asked me not to say positive things about [Ms. Norton]. I told them to show me why she shouldn't be confirmed. I am still waiting for them to show me the evidence.

Like the Washington State attorney general, I am still waiting to see the evidence that Ms. Norton does not support the Endangered Species Act.

She led the fight to save the California condor. In her appearance before the committee, she repeatedly stated that she would enforce the Endangered Species Act. I have heard television ads run about Ms. Norton's, something they call, ''right to pollute.'' They did not clarify that Ms. Norton used this phrase only in discussing emissions trading, a concept later embodied in the Clean Air Act passed by the Congress. It was a Democratic Congress.

These are two of the egregious misrepresentations of her record made by special interest groups. I am almost ashamed of some of these groups. I don't think any person in this body should repeat any of the vicious personal attacks made in desperate attempts to derail this nomination. I view some of the attacks as despicable, unworthy of the space it took to print them. Such distortions and name calling really reflect badly on the authors, not on Ms. Norton. I am also ashamed that some of these D.C.-based groups use the word ''Alaska'' as part of their name. The reputation of several of these environmental interest groups is in tatters after this process. Ms. Norton's stature remains upright and in one piece.

I know we have heard from a number of Senators expressing their views today. The Senators who will close the debate—we have already heard from Senator CAMPBELL; Senator WAYNE ALLARD from Colorado is next—have worked under the tenure of the attorney general, and I commend their statements to the Senate as a true picture of the nominee before us, the nominee who will make an excellent Secretary of the Interior.

Finally, they try to rub out the messenger, but they can't rub out her message; that is, that she will uphold and enforce the law.

I yield the remainder of the time to the Senator from Colorado.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Colorado.

Mr. ALLARD. I thank the Senator from Alaska. I compliment him on a fine job on the floor and in committee on the nomination of Gale Norton to be Secretary of the Interior. I also recognize the diligent efforts of my colleague, Senator BEN CAMPBELL of Colorado, in carrying forward, making sure we get a confirmation.

I rise today in strong support of President Bush's nomination of Gale Norton to be the next Secretary of the Interior. I have known Gale Norton for years and know her to be an individual with strong personal convictions and the upmost professional integrity.

This past month, my colleagues in the Senate and our constituents have had a chance to get to know Gale Norton. During that time they learned that Gale was a member of the law school honor society at the University of Denver; after law school she joined her alma mater as the Interim Director of the Transportation Law program at the University of Denver law school. Gale also worked at the U.S. Departments of Agriculture and Interior serving as Associate Solicitor for Conservation and Wildlife. This diverse background gave her a solid foundation to run successfully for Colorado's Attorney General, a position she was overwhelmingly reelected to in 1994. During her 20 years working on environmental and natural resource issues, Gale Norton has gained a solid reputation defending the role of the State, advocating sensible environmental cleanup and solving problems.

Now, I know that most western Senators support Gale Norton for Secretary of the Interior. But for those of my Senate colleagues who still have doubts, let me tell them some more about Gale and her career and why she deserves their support.

I am a fifth generation Coloradan, and believe me, I know what it means to represent such a beautiful and diverse State. Gale also grew up in Colorado and she knows that Coloradans take environmental issues seriously. Whether it's a farmer or rancher, small businessman, high tech employee or new immigrant to the state, everyone recognizes and appreciates the connection between our economy and our environment. Colorado is not gaining a 7th congressional seat because our environment has been neglected. If anything, Colorado has demonstrated that there can be a balance between environmental protection and economic prosperity. This balanced approach was utilized during Gale's tenure as Attorney General.

Coloradans recognized Gale's ability and qualifications and entrusted her to represent them on complex and diverse issues. As Colorado Attorney General, Gale was committed to enforcing the law. She led efforts to ensure that the federal government cleaned up its hazardous and toxic wastes in Colorado and actively participated in the settlement of complex water rights cases. Gale also testified before Congress on implementation of the National Environmental Policy Act, Superfund and Colorado wilderness legislation. Gale's input on these issues was always based on the premise that we can improve the laws so they protect the environment without imposing unnecessary burdens on society. Contrary to some reports, commenting on the effectiveness of a law does not equate to advocating repeal of the law.

We need to set the record straight on some of the outlandish statements radical environmental groups have been generating. Radical environmental groups are trying to tie Gale Norton to the Summitville mine disaster, an event that didn't even happen on her watch. It happened under former Colorado Governor Roy Romer, a Democrat, his head of Department of Natural Resources Ken Salazar, and the attorney general, also a democrat. No one denies the environmental abuses at Summitville, but unfairly trying to link Gale to this is appalling. Even Ken Salazar, who now serves as Colorado's Attorney General believes she should have the opportunity to serve as Secretary of the Interior.

During Gale's 8 years as attorney general, she never allowed free reign for polluters to come in and destroy our environment.

At this point, I ask unanimous consent to print in the RECORD an editorial entitled ''Summitville Gold Mine Is Cast As A Political Boogeyman'' by Denver Post columnist and editorial writer Al Knight.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Denver Post, Jan. 30, 2001]

SUMMITVILLE GOLD MINE IS CAST AS A POLITICAL BOOGEYMAN

(By Al Knight)

JANUARY 10, 2001.—The New York Times, for reasons that must be assumed to be political, has attempted to smear Gale Norton, President-elect George W. Bush's choice for Secretary of Interior.

In an article last Sunday, The Times essentially attempted to make Norton, a former Colorado attorney general, responsible for what is headlined as ''the death of a river.''

The article, which relied on a series of factual misrepresentations regarding the Summitville gold mine, also made a hash of explaining applicable environmental law.

The writer, Timothy Egan, clearly doesn't understand the history of Summitville, nor does he demonstrate any understanding of the ongoing dispute between the Environmental Protection Agency and various states, including Colorado, that have passed environmental self-audit laws.

Egan's thesis was simple. Summitville was an environmental disaster. Norton was attorney general when it happened, thus she was partially responsible for it. Because Norton has supported self-audit laws that allow companies to inventory and report on environmental problems, she therefore must somehow countenance the environmental damage at Summitville.

The problem with this thesis is that it is wrong on almost every count.

Egan misrepresents the so-called death of the Alamosa River. That river has for decades been anything but a prime fishery. The watershed has long been affected by acid mine drainage and by naturally occurring minerals and heavy metals in the soil. It is simply irresponsible of The Times to continue to repeat allegations that discharges from Summitville killed the river.

A high-level EPA memo written in 1995 summarizing ''ecological data and risks at Summitville'' said there were ''uniquely high and variable levels of natural background metals (in the Alamosa River) which can often exceed aquatic lethality benchmarks independently of site contamination.''

Translation: Summitville contamination alone cannot account for the absence of fish in the river.

That same memo, by the way, says that drainage from the Summitville site at certain times of the year ''could actually improve upstream Alamosa River water quality.''

Egan goes on to repeat the falsehood that cyanide releases from the Summitville mine killed fish. It makes for a nice scare story but it did not happen. No fish died of cyanide poisoning.

Norton was attorney general when the state and federal government filed suit in 1996 against financier Robert Friedland—a former owner of the company who ran the mine in the mid- and late 1980s—attempting to recover cleanup costs.

That suit was finally settled last month, with Friedland agreeing to pay $27.5 million. There is no allegation in The Times or elsewhere that Norton did less than quality work in connection with that case, which was mostly dictated by federal law. It's worth noting that Friedland paid much less than the government originally sought and won some important concessions as part of his settlement, which ends all U.S. claims against him.

For one thing, most of his money will stay in Colorado to help improve conditions in or near the Alamosa River. Normally, under the Superfund law, recovery of cleanup costs goes directly into the federal treasury. Friedland has long claimed that the federal government wasted millions at Summitville and said that he did not want his money to be used to effectively finance what he believes is EPA waste.

This concession was almost certainly won because the EPA had badly botched its legal case against Friedland. Friedland had a important case pending against the United States before the Canadian Supreme Court, and it is safe to assume the United States was anxious to avoid having that case go forward. Any mishandling of the Summitville litigation can be directly traced to the EPA and to the Justice Department. Norton was certainly not responsible.

Finally, there is the matter of the state's self-audit law. Colorado's law was passed after Summitville went out of business. The self-audit procedure has nothing whatsoever to do with Summitville. What happened under Norton's watch regarding self-audits was quite simple:

The EPA, in effect, declared war on the states that had such a statute, and North—as attorney general—defended the state law against what was clearly a federal overreach. Self-audits were never intended to trump or otherwise replace all other federal or state regulation. The truth is that the EPA didn't want to see its power diminished and decided to fight the use of self-audit laws even though there was clear and convincing proof they produced environmental benefits that otherwise would not have been achieved.

The New York Times seems incapable of keeping its clearly liberal political positions out of its news columns. It has achieved something of a temporary new journalistic low in trying to tie Norton to a mythical ''death'' of a river. The state of Colorado may have made a number of mistakes relative to Summitville, but they pale to insignificance compared with the mistakes made since by the EPA, its waste of millions in tax dollars and the federal government's mishandling of years of litigation. That's the truth, whether The New York Times knows it or not.

Mr. ALLARD. The Denver Post, which describes itself as a newspaper with an active environmentalist agenda says that ''Norton should not be slammed for other politicians' mistakes,'' also defends Norton as one who tried to fix Summitville under nearly impossible circumstances. I hope my colleagues read these editorials and help set the record straight to end these vicious rumors.

With Gale as the Secretary of the Interior, we can begin the healing process in our rural communities, of regaining their trust. You see, when I was elected to the Senate, I made a commitment to all the residents of Colorado, that I would visit their county every year for a town meeting. I've held more than 250 town meetings, and whether I was in the rural communities of Craig and Lamar or the larger communities of Grand Junction and Pueblo, the message was the same—they were tired of constant threats and assaults on their way of life, they don't trust government. And how can they? When in the waning days of the Clinton administration, some 2000 pages a day of new rules and regulations were added to the Federal Register. How can this be good for the environment and the economy?

Gale believes there is a role for local input in the public policy process. It's one thing to say that you believe in local involvement, but to actually use their input and listen is different. I know that Gale adheres to this philosophy. I also know that Gale recognizes the role of Congress in protecting our environment. I am confident that she will work with all of us, as elected officials and our constituents to address our complex environmental issues.

With Gale Norton and President Bush, we will restore the premise that the public and Congress have a role in the decision making process, especially as it relates to federal land management. Local input and congressional support ensures that sound public policy prevails. I know the new administration will work to protect the environment and restore integrity to the public process.

Now that you know who Gale Norton is and what she represents, I hope you too will give her your strong support and vote yes for her confirmation.

Again, I thank Senator MURKOWSKI and Senator BEN CAMPBELL for their efforts on Gale Norton's behalf.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alaska.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. I thank my two colleagues from Colorado for their statements in support of the nominee. I ask unanimous consent that I may be allowed to simply recognize a group of supporters who I believe should be entered into the RECORD at this time.

We have letters of support for Gale Norton from Indian tribes: the Navajo Nation, the Nez Perce Tribe, Oneida Indian Nation, United South and Eastern Tribes of Tennessee, Ute Mountain Tribe, the Southern Ute Indian Tribe, and United South and Eastern Tribes.

I ask unanimous consent to print letters of support from those tribes in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the letters were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

THE NAVAJO NATION,
Window Rock, AZ, January 16, 2001.

Hon. BEN NIGHTHORSE CAMPBELL,
Russell Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR CAMPBELL: On behalf of the Navajo Nation, I convey our support for Ms. Gale Norton, nominee for Secretary of the Department of the Interior. The Navajo Nation, in its government-to-government relationships, works with the Department of the Interior on myriad issues affecting the Nation. Although there are times when we disagree with one another we continue to work together for the benefit of the Navajo People. We wish to continue the working relationship with the new administration and we look forward to working with Ms. Norton.

The Navajo Nation's past experience with Gale Norton involved issues with the Southern Ute Tribe during her term as Attorney General for the State of Colorado. During that time Ms. Norton approached the tribes and asked how she could help. She provided testimony to the House (Natural Resources) Committee on the Animas-LaPlata project which benefitted the tribes. Her willingness to support the tribes demonstrates her knowledge of Indian nations and their position within the federal system.

The Navajo Nation does have its concerns with regard to Indian country policies and initiatives. We advise the new administration to follow the basic goals and principles of affirmation of the commitment to tribal sovereignty and self-determination, protecting and sustaining treaty rights and the federal trust responsibilities, and supporting initiatives which promote sustainable economic development in Indian country.

The Navajo Nation supports the nomination of Gale Norton for Secretary of the Interior and we trust she will continue to work with Indian country as she has done in the past. We look forward to working with her in advancing Indian country policies and Indian initiative for the Bush/Cheney Administration.

Sincerely,

KELSEY A. BEGAYE,
President.

Re: Secretary of the Interior Appointment

U.S. Senate:

With the recent George W. Bush election victory, a primary interest of the Nez Perce Tribe in the transition process is the appointment of Gale Norton as the Secretary of the Interior. As you know, this Secretary's agency, the Bureau of Indian Affairs, has the primary charge of maintaining the federal government's trust relationship with Indian Tribes.

President-Elect Bush, in a letter to the Nez Perce Tribe dated August 18, 2000, stated ''I will strengthen Indian self-determination by respecting tribal sovereignty, which has improved the quality of life for many Native Americans. I recognize and reaffirm the unique government-to-government relationship between Native American tribes and the federal government. I will strengthen Indian self-determination by respecting tribal sovereignty, which has improved the quality of life for many Native Americans. I believe the federal government should allow tribes greater control over their lives, land, and destiny.'' He also stated that he would like to work with Indian tribes to chart a course which ''recognizes the unique status of the tribes in our constitutional framework...'' We urge you to ensure that when making your decision to support the President-Elects' appointee, Gale Norton, these principles underlie the process.

In addition, the Republican Platform states that ''high taxes and unreasonable regulations stifle new and expanded businesses and thwart the creation of job opportunities and prosperity [for Native Americans]. The federal government has a special responsibility, ethical and legal, to make the American dream accessible to Native Americans. We will strengthen Native American self-determination by respecting tribal sovereignty, encouraging economic development on reservations. We uphold the unique government-to-government relationship between the tribes and the United States and honor our nation's trust obligations to them.''

We sincerely hope that all the President-Elect's appointees, including Gale Norton, is not only aware of these basic tenets of tribal sovereignty, but that such tenets are upheld and enforced, rather than ignored or legislated out of existence. In upholding these significant maxims, it is essential that the Secretary of the Interior appointee support the rights of Indian people. To Indian Tribes, this position is extremely important so, again, we urge you to take great care in the confirmation process of the appointed Secretary of the Interior.

Thank you. Please give me a call if you have any questions.

Sincerely,

SAMUEL N. PENNEY,
Chairman.

ONEIDA INDIAN NATION,
ONEIDA NATION HOMELANDS,

Hon. FRANK MURKOWSKI,
Chairman, Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN MURKOWSKI: On behalf of the Oneida Indian Nation of New York, I am writing to express support for Gale Norton to be the next Secretary of Interior.

While our tribe does not have first hand experience with Secretary-designate Norton, I am encouraged that she has worked with Indian nations on a government-to-government basis during her tenure as the Attorney General of the State of Colorado. As Attorney General, Ms. Norton repeatedly demonstrated respect for tribal sovereignty. For example, in the wake of Colorado's settlement with the tobacco industry, Ms. Norton worked to ensure that the tribal share of the proceeds went directly to tribal governments rather than be administered through state agencies.

As Secretary of Interior, Ms. Norton would preside over the Bureau of Indian Affairs and help set the agenda for issues that are of vital importance to Native Americans. These issues, which include health care, education, sovereignty, economic development, gaming, and taxation, have been increasingly the subject of debate in Congress. Consequently, we believe that it is imperative that the next Secretary of Interior respect the role of tribal sovereignty, affirm a government-to-government relationship between the federal government and Indian nations, and provide the tools the tribes need to further the goal of tribal self-advancement and economic self-sufficiency.

Because of Ms. Norton's background and record on issues relating to Native Americans, we offer our endorsement of her nomination to become the next Secretary of Interior.

Na ki' wa,

RAY HALBRITTER,
Nation Representative.

UNITED SOUTH AND EASTERN TRIBES, INC.,

Hon. FRANK MURKOWSKI,
Chairman, Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN MURKOWSKI: As President of the United South and Eastern Tribes, I am writing to express support for Gale Norton to be the next Secretary of the Interior. USET is an organization made up of 24 Federally recognized tribes that extend from the State of Maine to the tip of Florida and over to Texas.

In my role as President of USET, I have not had first hand experience with Secretary-designate Norton, however, I am encouraged that she has worked with Indian nations on a government-to-government basis during her tenure as the Attorney General of the State of Colorado. As attorney general, Ms. Norton repeatedly demonstrated respect for tribal sovereignty. For example, in the wake of Colorado's settlement with the tobacco industry, Ms. Norton worked to ensure that the tribal share of the proceeds went directly to tribal governments rather than be administered through state agencies.

As Secretary of the Interior, Ms. Norton would preside over the Bureau of Indian Affairs and help set the agenda for issues that are of vital importance to Native Americans. These issues, which include health care, education, sovereignty, economic development, gaming, and taxation, have been increasingly the subjects of debate in Congress. Consequently, we believe that it is imperative that the next Secretary of the Interior respect the role of tribal sovereignty, affirm a government-to-government relationship between the federal government and Indian nations, and provide the tools tribes need to further the goal of tribal self-advancement and economic self-sufficiency.

Because of Ms. Norton's background and record on issues relating to Native Americans, I offer my endorsement of her nomination to become the next Secretary of the Interior.

Sincerely,

KELLER GEORGE,
President of USET.

UTE MOUNTAIN UTE TRIBE,
SOUTHERN UTE INDIAN TRIBE,
January 8, 2001.

Hon. FRANK MURKOWSKI,
Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN MURKOWSKI, We are writing in support of the nomination of Gale

Norton to serve as Secretary of the Interior, and hope you will share our remarks with members of the Committee who will visit with her during her upcoming confirmation hearing.

Our Tribes have enjoyed a strong working relationship with the State of Colorado for many years. As Attorney General, Gale Norton furthered that relationship through her commitment to resolving issues in a fair and thoughtful way. She is an open-minded leader who listens and then works toward a resolution. We were able to agree to a gaming compact with the State of Colorado during her tenure as Attorney General. In addition, her strong and adamant support of the Colorado Ute Indian Water Rights Settlement Act was a major factor in what ultimately became successful legislation to modify the Animas-La Plata Project and still meet the obligation to the Ute people of Colorado.

Ms. Norton is a very capable individual whose public service is not based on a desire for accolade or credit, but on a commitment to resolve issues, no matter how controversial.

We proudly support her nomination and enthusiastically encourage the Senate to approve her nomination.

Sincerely,

ERNEST HOUSE,
Chairman, Ute Mountain Ute Tribe.
VIDA PEABODY,
Acting Chairman, Southern Ute Indian Tribe.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. I also have letters from the Fraternal Order of Police, United States Park Police Labor Committee endorsing Ms. Norton; the Governor of Guam endorsing Ms. Norton; the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands endorsing Ms. Norton, signed by Pedro Tenorio, Governor; and a letter of January 17th from 21 State attorneys general supporting the nomination of Ms. Norton.

I ask unanimous consent that these documents be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

FRATERNAL ORDER OF POLICE,
U.S. PARK POLICE LABOR COMMITTEE,
Washington, DC, January 15, 2001.

Hon. FRANK MURKOWSKI,
Chairman, Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, Senate Dirksen Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN MURKOWSKI: On behalf of the Fraternal Order of Police, United States Park Police Labor Committee, we are writing to strongly endorse President-elect Bush's nomination of Gale A. Norton for the office of Secretary of the Interior. We feel Ms. Norton is extremely well qualified for this position and possesses the knowledge, experience, and leadership necessary to be a highly successful Secretary. We urge the Committee to favorably report her nomination to the full Senate as quickly as possible.

The United States Park Police Labor Committee is deeply concerned with the current state of law enforcement within the Department of the Interior. For this reason, we are adding our voices to the many others who are supporting the nomination of Mr. Norton. Our Committee does not customarily write endorsements, but we feel that the importance of confirming Ms. Norton justifies our participation.

During the past two years, three separate studies have been conducted to examine law enforcement operations in the Department. Two of these studies were conducted by outside experts, namely Booz-Allen Hamilton and the International Association of Chiefs of Police, while a third was an Internal Departmental review mandated by the Senate. All three studies concluded that the effectiveness of law enforcement activities by the U.S. Park Police and the Law Enforcement Rangers has been consistently declining. While both organizations continue to successfully fulfill their mission of protecting our parks and their visitors, a lack of resources and emphasis on law enforcement in the Department threatens our future ability to keep public lands safe. Strong leadership and critical reforms are needed now.

From a law enforcement perspective, Ms. Norton is an outstanding candidate for Secretary. Her background in law enforcement as Attorney General of Colorado, coupled with her previous service within the Department, gives her a unique ability to understand and address the problems faced by its law enforcement agencies. Throughout her career in public service, she has consistently shown strong support for law enforcement officers. Furthermore, she has repeatedly proven her ability to work with diverse individuals and groups to forge consensus and accomplish important tasks. We are confident that Ms. Norton will exert this same vigorous leadership as Secretary of the Interior to enact the reforms necessary to strengthen agency law enforcement efforts and ensure the safety of the visitors to our parks and monuments.

Once again, we strongly urge the Committee to favorably report her nomination to the full Senate at the earliest possible opportunity.

Sincerely,

PETER J. WARD,
Chair.

OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR,
Guam, January 18, 2001.

Chairman JEFF BINGAMAN,
Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: I am writing in support of the nomination of the Honorable Gale Norton as Secretary of the Interior. The people of Guam look forward to Ms. Norton's leadership of the executive department that has direct responsibility for insular affairs. I am confident that as Secretary of the Interior, Ms. Norton will continue progress on the issues of great importance to Guam and that she will be instrumental in resolving the land issues that have been at the forefront of the Guam-United States relationship in the past few years.

Ms. Norton has substantial experience in the Department of the Interior, having previously served in the Solicitor's Office. We believe that she has the necessary familiarity with territorial issues to be an effective Secretary and that she brings a broad understanding of the unique federal land issues on Guam to her office.

Guam has had a contentious relationship with the Department of the Interior in large measure due to the Fish and Wildlife Service's acquisition of 370 acres of excess military lands in 1993 for a wildlife refuge. The 370 acres at Ritidian have become the focal point for Guam's dissatisfaction with federal land policy on our island. Due to the historical context of the military's acquisition of over one-third of Guam's lands after World War II for national security purposes, the Interior action has been harmful to the good relationship between the people of Guam and the United States. We hold the federal government to its commitment that military lands no longer needed for defense purposes should be returned to the people of Guam.

In an effort to resolve these issues, I have been engaged in discussions for the past year with the previous Secretary and his staff on possible solutions that would enhance the level of environmental protection on Guam while addressing the issue of Interior's acquisition of Ritidian. I was willing to make the necessary compromises that would restore the good relationship between the U.S. and Guam and that would meet the needs of the Interior Department and the Government of Guam. Regretfully, the Fish and Wildlife Service was not.

We believe that Ms. Norton will restore a balance to federal land policy on Guam that has been missing since 1993. There is now an imbalance where the bureaucrats at the Fish and Wildlife Service make policy without adequate regard for local concerns. Environmental policy should not be a zero sum game where the Fish and Wildlife Service wins and the people of Guam lose. Environmental policy should be collaborative process with respect for, and accommodation of, local needs. On Guam, the respect we seek would recognize the patriotism of the people of Guam and our support for the national security interest, even when the national interest requires the use of one-third of our island for military bases. And the accommodation we seek would balance environmental policy with the federal commitment to return excess military lands to our people. We believe that Ms. Norton appreciates our history and our culture, and that she will be fair in dealing with us on these land issues.

We are also encouraged by Ms. Norton's commitment to the devolution of federal power where local governments are more appropriate to formulating public policy in response to local needs. This is a bedrock principle of self-government that Guam supports and encourages. We are confident that Ms. Norton will appoint policy makers and senior staff at the Department of the Interior that will reflect this view. Any increase in local self-governance in the territories is welcome and long overdue. We find Ms. Norton's views on limiting the role of the federal government in our lives both refreshing and promising for the resolution of the Guam's political status issues.

Thank you for considering my support of Ms. Gale Norton as Secretary of the Interior. I hope that the Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources votes to recommend Ms. Norton to the full Senate and that she is confirmed quickly. We look forward to her new leadership and her initiatives for the territories.

Sincerely,

CARL T.C. GUTIERREZ,
Governor of Guam.

COMMONWEALTH OF THE
NORTHERN MARIANA ISLANDS,
January 17, 2001.

Hon. FRANK MURKOWSKI,
Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, Hart Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR MURKOWSKI: This coming week Secretary Designate Gale Norton will proceed through the hearings in connection with consideration or her confirmation. I am writing, on behalf of the people of the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, to express our support for her confirmation as Secretary of the Interior.

The Department of the Interior, in particular its Office of Insular Affairs, plays a central role in the relationship of the Commonwealth with the United States Federal Government. We were pleased by the announcement of her nomination to this position. We believe that we could establish a positive and fruitful working relationship with Secretary Designate Norton should she be confirmed and wish her the best of luck.

Respectfully,

PEDRO P. TENORIO.

JANUARY 17, 2001.

Re nomination of Gale Norton for Secretary of the United States Department of Interior.

Senator JEFF BINGAMAN,
Energy and Natural Resources Committee, Washington DC.

Senator FRANK MURKOWSKI,
Energy and Natural Resources Committee, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATORS: We, the undersigned state Attorneys General, write to provide important information that will help you evaluate Gale Norton's nomination for Secretary of the Interior. These insights are based on our work with Gale during her eight years as Attorney General for the State of Colorado. While Gale provided numerous examples of her leadership and ability as Colorado's Attorney General, there are a few specific instances that truly demonstrate her skill and experience.

First, in the early 1990's, Gale worked with Attorneys General and Governors in an effort to force the United States Department of Energy to comply with federal environmental laws as its facilities around the nation. Gale helped lead the fight to ensure that Energy would be responsive to the states, comply with the law, and refocus on cleaning up Rocky Flats in Colorado and other sites around the nation.

Gale served as the Chair of the Energy and Environment Committee for the National Association of Attorneys General from 1992 to 1994. As Chair of the Committee, Gale worked with Attorneys General from both political parties to achieve results for all states. Gale had the instinctive ability to work for bipartisan solutions and she helped create consensus on a number of sensitive issues.

Finally, Gale's work on the tobacco settlement was significant. Gale was selected by her colleagues to be a member of the settlement negotiating team. Gale's selection was based on the fact that she is very bright, hard working, and has extremely high ethical standards and integrity. She was a valuable member of the team throughout the prolonged and complicated negotiations.

We know that you are receiving extensive comments about Gale's qualifications. We want to provide you with our views, based on our years of experience working with Gale on complex, sensitive issues. We know that Gale will do her best to build coalitions and develop solutions to hard problems in a way that creates broad-based support. It is our hope that this information will be helpful as you consider Gale Norton's nomination for Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. I thank all of my colleagues who have spoken on behalf of the nominee. The action out of the committee on a vote of 18–2 is certainly, in my opinion, a mandate for approval by this entire body. I think she will represent our new President in a manner that attempts to balance the delicate issue of concern over the environment and the ecology.

Since there has been a lot of comment about ANWR during this entire process and many pictures, for my colleagues, I show a picture of ANWR as it exists for about 9 months of the year. This is what it looks like. Do not be misinformed; it is a long, dark 9-month winter.

I thank the Chair for its indulgence.

It is my understanding that the vote will be scheduled for 2:45 on two nominations and there will be separate votes. I wonder if the Chair could identify those.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There will be two separate votes occurring at 2:45. The first will be on the Norton nomination, and the second one will be on the Whitman nomination.

RECESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The hour of 12:30 having arrived, the Senate will now stand in recess until the hour of 2:15.

Thereupon, the Senate, at 12:32 p.m., recessed until 2:17 p.m.; whereupon, the Senate reassembled when called to order by the Presiding Officer (Mr. CHAFEE).

EXECUTIVE SESSION

NOMINATION OF GALE ANN NORTON TO BE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR—Resumed

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I come before you today to offer my views on the nomination of Ms. Gale Norton to be Secretary of the Department of the Interior. I believe in some basic principles relative to Presidential nominees for the President's Cabinet. I believe they are reviewed for purposes of advise and consent of the Senate with the presumption that the President has a right to choose his or her closest advisers.

I believe our duty as Senators in discharging that constitutional responsibility of advise and consent is to assure those advisers are capable of and committed to doing the jobs for which they have been nominated.

In the past, Ms. Norton has made statements that raise questions in my mind, and in many others, about her appropriateness for the position of Secretary of the Interior. Ms. Norton's explanations of those statements suggested that her views have evolved over time.

Having listened to her responses and evaluated her truthfulness, I take her at her word and trust her sincerity. My own life experience tells me that it is possible—in fact, it is highly desirable—for individuals to evolve in their thinking over their adult years. If a person at 55 has the same views they had at 25, that would raise serious questions as to whether this was an individual who was sufficiently affected by life to be an appropriate holder of a position of major public trust.

I asked Ms. Norton a series of questions during the course of the hearings before the Energy and Natural Resources Committee. I asked Ms. Norton if she would support the current moratorium that exists on offshore oil and gas leases, particularly those in California and my home State of Florida. She answered yes. She echoed President Bush's support for those moratoriums. I take Ms. Norton at her word.

I asked Ms. Norton if she would work with our State and other States to assure that the wishes of the State, with regard to existing leases, are followed. Ms. Norton answered yes, and I take her at her word.

I asked Ms. Norton if she would enter into discussions toward the objective of developing a plan for the buyback of Outer Continental Shelf leases in those States which had expressed opposition to their development for oil and gas purposes. This is much in line with the plan which is currently in effect in Florida for buyback of leases in the area of the Florida Keys that was originally developed by President George Bush. Ms. Norton answered yes, and I look forward to the opportunity to commence that process.

I spoke to Ms. Norton in my office regarding the importance of the Department of the Interior in the restoration of America's Everglades. I consider the passage of that legislation last year to have been one of the signal events of that Congress and one of the most important environmental advances in recent years.

As a steward of four national park units and 16 national wildlife refuges, the Secretary of the Interior has a distinct role in assuring that the natural systems are protected in America's Everglades, particularly protected as we move forward with their restoration.

She clearly understood the importance of the Department of the Interior's role in Everglades restoration, and I take her at her word.

I asked Ms. Norton what her plans were for funding of the Land and Water Conservation Fund. Ms. Norton answered that in accordance with President Bush's campaign position, she supported full funding of the Land and Water Conservation Fund, both those funds that flow to Federal agencies and those that go to State and local communities. I take Ms. Norton at her word.

Ms. Norton went further and recognized the important interrelationship between a balanced park and recreation policy, with the Federal Government having the primary responsibility for the protection of natural resources and with State and local governments having the responsibility for providing appropriate recreational activities for our people.

I asked Ms. Norton how she would balance the Secretary's responsibility to protect public lands with her desire to partner with private landholders and local governments in executing those responsibilities. Ms. Norton answered that these partnerships are not a substitute for enforcement actions, and that as Secretary of the Interior, she would remain committed to enforcing the law. And I take her at her word.

I could continue this list of questions and answers for some time. However, my conclusion is that Ms. Norton demonstrated during the Energy and Natural Resources Committee hearings that she will be open minded and will take the expertise of State and local governments on the issues that come before her very seriously.

I was particularly pleased she committed to respecting the moratoria on new leases off the coast of Florida and California; that she intends to look to the future relative to the buyback of those leases which are currently outstanding, and that she intends to uphold the Department of the Interior's responsibilities as a caretaker of public lands involved in America's Everglades restoration.

With these assurances, I offer my support for the nomination of Ms. Gale Norton to be Secretary of the Interior, and I look forward to working with her, the Department of the Interior, and State and local officials in my State and elsewhere to build upon the commitments that she made during her confirmation hearings.

I thank the Chair.

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, I rise today to discuss the pending nomination of Ms. Gale Norton to be Secretary of the U.S. Department of the Interior. I suspect that Ms. Norton's nomination will be approved by the Senate later today, without my support, and I want to share with my colleagues and the people of West Virginia why I have decided to oppose this nomination.

First and foremost, I should say that I do not oppose this or any other presidential nomination lightly or on personal or ideological grounds. President Bush should have a Cabinet of people whom he trusts and who will govern as he wishes. In the vast majority of cases, I have and will lend my firm support to the President's nominees, after considering their qualifications and determining that they will effectively represent our nation and share my commitment to tackling the challenges facing West Virginia.

I have no litmus test for nominees, and I do not expect or insist that they agree with me on how best to approach our challenges or solve our problems. But I do take seriously my duty under the Constitution to approve or disapprove presidential nominees. In these times of national division and discontent without government on so many issues, what I look for in a nominee is an overriding ability to follow through on the President's promise to bring our nation together, and a commitment to the values that West Virginians hold dear.

Let there be no doubt that Ms. Norton is a capable and experienced person whose willingness to serve her country is to be commended. But I do not believe that her life's work reflects the balance and inclusiveness we need to chart this new course, and I cannot abide by her fight against laws that I and my fellow West Virginians support and respect.

One prominent example is Ms. Norton's prior work to dismantle the Surface Mining and Reclamation Control Act, SMRCA.

SMRCA is a law that strikes a balance between critical economic and industrial development and adequate environmental protections. It is intended to ensure that after mining is complete, reclamation will happen and water quality will be protected. And it provides an important level playing field for states and companies that are committed to this kind of balance—with federal standards that prevent any competitive disadvantage for sound mine reclamation.

As a constitutional lawyer for the Mountain States Legal Foundation in 1980, Ms. Norton tried to convince the courts that SMRCA is unconstitutional, on grounds that it usurped state government in a way that ''threaten[ed] to destroy the structure of government in America. . . .'' First as Governor and then as Senator for a coal state, I have disagreed with Ms. Norton's assessment. I testified then in support of surface mining legislation that would ''equalize reclamation standards among the states and alleviate West Virginia's distinct competitive disadvantage in the marketplace.''

I remain proud of my work on the surface Mining Act and its initial implementation during my years as a Governor. I know that the law is not perfect, and that we need always to be vigilant about striking the intended balance. Yet also believe Ms. Norton's position on this law is indicative of her determination to limit or eliminate the federal role in this area—even when that role can help balance the needs of critical industries with the goal of preserving our environment and protecting the quality of our water and air.

Some will say that Ms. Norton's nomination should be approved because she has promised to uphold the law and has recently distanced herself from some of her more divisive past positions. I should be clear that I do not doubt Ms. Norton would respect the decisions of the courts, nor that she would uphold the law as it is written. But I also do not believe that one can so easily change course after a career dedicated to strong and passionate advocacy for limited environmental preservation and protection.

As Interior Secretary, Ms. Norton would have enormous discretion in implementing and enforcing federal law and policies. She would set priorities or the Department's resources and would develop and promote policy positions large and small. Ms. Norton's career and experience reflect neither balance nor moderation, and I simply do not think she can be expected to change her approach so dramatically at this point.

In addition, Ms. Norton's nomination has been questioned by leading public health organizations because of her policies and actions regarding lead paint and its link to public health, particularly the health of our children. I have a long history in promoting children's health, and I feel obligated to raise these matters as part of my duty to ''advise and consent'' on the president's nominees.

Let me close by saying that my opposition to Mr. Norton's nomination is intended primarily to register my grave concern. I stand ready and willing to work with her as the new Interior Secretary and hope we can find common ground in striking a balance on environmental policies and programs.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I will vote no on the nomination of Gale Norton as Interior Secretary because, based on her record, I do not have confidence that she will serve as an environmentally-sensitive steward of the nation's public lands. There is too much at stake to take a chance on someone who, throughout her career, has consistently chosen development over environmental protection. Her responses to questions at her confirmation hearing failed to relieve my concerns about her record of weak environmental enforcement as Colorado attorney general.

For instance, Ms. Norton wrote that ''we might even go so far as to recognize a homesteading right to pollute or to make noise in an area.'' Although she attempted to explain that statement by stating that she was referring to emissions trading, I see no indication in the article itself that she was referring to emissions trading. Rather it seems to be an extreme position on takings law.

As attorney general, Ms. Norton pursued government polluters while rarely taking on corporate polluters. According to the Denver Post, Ms. Norton ''sat out fights when a corporate power plant broke air pollution laws 19,000 times, a refinery leaked toxins into a creek and a logging mill conducted illegal midnight burns.''

Further, when I asked Ms. Norton about her position on drilling for oil and natural gas in the Great Lakes, she responded that she had no position. This caused me concern because her philosophy could play a central role in decision- making on Great Lakes protections at the Department of Interior.

We have made substantial progress the past several years in improving the quality of the Great Lakes and its habitat. I hope that Ms. Norton proves my concerns unfounded and will work hard the next four years to protect our valuable natural resources and further the environmental progress that we have worked so hard to achieve.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I rise to speak in opposition to the confirmation of Gale Norton as Secretary of the Interior. After thorough consideration of her record and her recent testimony before the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, I have reluctantly concluded that Ms. Norton is not the right person to serve as the chief steward of our nation's public lands.

Ms. Norton stated at her confirmation hearings earlier this month that she would feel ''very comfortable'' enforcing federal environmental laws as they are written. Unfortunately, her record of two decades in private and public life strongly suggests that she will do so with little enthusiasm, and, where the law gives her discretion—which it often does—she will favor resource extraction over resource protection.

Ms. Norton's employment history and legal writings reflect a consistent record of supporting industry and developers over wildlife and public lands protection, even going so far as to argue to the U.S. Supreme Court that the Endangered Species Act and the Surface Mining and Reclamation Act—both of which she would administer if confirmed—are unconstitutional. She has repeatedly taken the position that the federal government lacks the constitutional power to address a wide range of environmental harms, a view that is diametrically opposed to a long line of Supreme Court rulings and is hard to reconcile with the Secretary of the Interior's role in managing our precious natural resources.

President Bush and Ms. Norton support opening the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge to oil and gas exploration. I oppose drilling in the ANWR, and I believe a bipartisan majority in the Senate feels the same way, but let me emphasize that my opposition to this nomination is not about a policy disagreement over ANWR. It is about whether we will have an Interior Secretary who will provide aggressive oversight of industries that have been granted the privilege to seek profits on federal land—whether in the ANWR (should Congress ever approve such activity) or in the hundreds of other magnificent places owned by the taxpayers of this country.

The President committed during his campaign to come to Washington to unite the nation and to work with Congress to protect America's environment. That makes his choice of Ms. Norton to head the Interior Department all the more disappointing. With so many outstanding public servants across this country to choose from, including both Republicans and Democrats with substantial experience managing public lands and a balanced view on the best use of those lands, it is regrettable that President Bush chose someone who has spent so much of her professional life working against the very mission of the Department she would oversee and, more importantly, the laws she would enforce.

I must, therefore, cast my vote against the confirmation of Ms. Norton. I urge my colleagues to do the same, and I hope that if she is confirmed Ms. Norton will set aside her long-held views and work with Congress to protect our public lands for generations to come.

Mr. CORZINE. Mr. President, I rise to oppose the nomination of Gale Norton to be the Secretary of the Department of Interior.

The Department of the Interior is charged with the protection of more than 500 million acres of public land that comprise an important part of our natural and cultural heritage. The Secretary of the Interior is the steward of this land and is responsible for protecting it for the generations that follow.

Unfortunately, based on her record, I am concerned that Gale Norton is the wrong person to handle this critically important responsibility. From all indications, she has a strong tendency to favor the interests of industry over the needs of the environment. That is not my preferred approach, nor does it represent the values of the people in New Jersey who I represent.

When Ms. Norton served as a State Attorney General, for example, she was very reluctant to prosecute industries that polluted Colorado's rivers and air. Perhaps the most disturbing example of this involved the Summitville Consolidated Mining Corporation, which spilled cyanide and acidic water into a 17-mile stretch of the Alamosa River, killing every living organism that was there. Notwithstanding this egregious conduct, Ms. Norton refused to prosecute. It took federal intervention to prosecute the polluters. I find this very troublesome.

In many other ways, Gale Norton has expressed views towards environmental protection that strongly conflict with my own. She has taken the states' rights argument to the extreme—arguing that the Surface Mining Act, an invaluable tool to protect the environment from problems associated with coal mining, was unconstitutional. She has supported restrictions to the Endangered Species Act that would have gutted the law. She has shown a readiness to accept an extremist view on what constitutes a taking under the Constitution, something that could jeopardize necessary environmental protections. She also has strongly supported drilling for oil in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, something I cannot support.

Ms. Norton also has argued against the ''polluter pays'' principle contained within the Superfund law. That is very troubling to me. Coming from a state that has the most Superfund sites in the country, I believe strongly that those who pollute the land should pay to restore it.

I recognize that during her confirmation hearings Ms. Norton seemed to moderate her approach, and promised to enforce laws such as the Endangered Species Act and the Surface Mining Act. Yet one statement before a congressional committee does not negate a lifetime opposition. For a position as important as this, we need someone whose commitment to the environment is clear and long-standing.

For all these reasons, regretfully, I must oppose the nomination of Gale Norton to be the Secretary of the Interior. However, I recognize that she probably will win confirmation. I only hope that my concerns are proven wrong.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I rise today to cast my vote against Gale Norton for Secretary of the Interior. I do this with some reluctance, as I believe that the Senate owes the President significant deference in its review of his Cabinet nominees. The Senate's review, however, must be substantive and searching, and cannot amount to automatic approval of every nominee.

Over the years of my service here, I have given great thought to the extent of the Senate's advise and consent power. In all cases, I believe that our review must focus on a candidate's experience, judgment, and ethics. However, I also believe that a Senator may consider whether the nominee holds fundamental and potentially irreconcilable policy differences with the department she will head which put in doubt the nominee's capacity to credibly carry out the responsibilities of the department.

The Interior Secretary plays a critical role in determining our national natural resource policy, which will affect our nation for centuries to come. I have concluded that Ms. Norton's record reflects a philosophy that is so contrary to the mission of the Department of Interior that I have serious doubts about the manner in which she would administer the Department.

The Secretary of the Interior enjoys wide discretion in how to best carry out the Department's mission of preserving, ''the Nation's public lands and natural resources for use and enjoyment both now and in the future.'' I have reviewed Ms. Norton's past writings, speeches and professional activities, and they reveal an ideological viewpoint at real variance with the legal requirements and responsibilities that she would have as Secretary of the Interior.

Many of my colleagues have stated that they were comforted by Ms. Norton's testimony in her confirmation hearing in which she seemed to back away from her more controversial positions and they therefore have decided to vote in favor of her nomination. I respect their decisions but I remain with too many doubts. Therefore, I will reluctantly and respectfully vote no.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, I rise today to oppose the confirmation of Gale Norton to be Secretary of the Interior.

I have three criteria I use to evaluate nominees: (1) competence; (2) integrity, and (3) commitment to protecting the mission of the department he or she seeks to lead.

I do not question Ms. Norton's competence or integrity. But I am concerned that Ms. Norton's views and her record cast serious doubt on whether she is suitable to act as our chief land conservation official—safeguarding our Nation's parks, wilderness, and wildlife refuge areas.

The Interior Department's mission is ''to encourage and provide for the appropriate management, preservation, and operation of the Nation's public lands and natural resources for use and enjoyment both now and in the future.'' The Department of Interior is charged with ensuring that we preserve and protect our Nation's extraordinary public lands and natural resources. To do this, the Interior Secretary must implement critical parts of the Clean Water Act, Clean Air Act, Superfund, Endangered Species Act and other laws that protect our nation's natural heritage.

I am concerned about Ms. Norton's commitment to fulfilling this mission. She has fought against these very laws and regulations her entire career. We need an Interior Secretary who can balance economic interests with environmental protection. Yet Ms. Norton has shown an unfortunate bias toward those who profit from public lands.

For example, as the Attorney General of Colorado, Ms. Norton refused to vigorously enforce environmental compliance against corporate polluters. She didn't seek criminal penalties against a mining company that allowed cyanide to pollute a river or against a power plant that broke air pollution laws thousands of times. She supported a law to grant immunity to industrial polluters and weaken the government's ability to enforce environmental regulations. She has also sided with companies that are being sued for exposing children to lead paint. This record of siding with corporate polluters casts doubt on her commitment to pursuing polluters and holding them accountable.

In addition, Ms. Norton has sought to overturn the Endangered Species Act. This law is essential to maintaining our nation's fragile, diverse ecosystems. Yet Ms. Norton signed onto an amicus brief in a case before the Supreme Court in which the state of Arizona sought to weaken the Endangered Species Act. She argued that the Endangered Species Act was unconstitutional in the requirements it placed on landowners. How can she enforce laws that she claims are unconstitutional?

Finally, Ms. Norton strongly supports opening the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge to oil drilling. Drilling at ANWR would threaten this fragile and unique ecosystem. It is a short-term solution to the long-term problem of energy dependency. This policy could result in irreparable damage to one of our Nation's natural treasures.

Mr. President, Ms. Norton's record raises serious concerns about her appropriateness to serve as our highest ranking land conservation official. Her record indicates that her views are fundamentally incompatible with the mission of the Department she seeks to lead. I am deeply concerned that her confirmation may lead to a significant retreat from the gains made by former Secretary Babbitt.

Although I hope her actions prove me wrong, I must regretfully oppose Gale Norton's confirmation.

Mr. TORRICELLI. Mr. President, I rise to express my concerns regarding the nomination of Gale Norton as President Bush's Secretary of the Interior. I will vote against her confirmation today. I will do so with some reluctance because I believe that the President enjoys the privilege of selecting the people he wishes to join his administration. However, after much thought and reflection, I am afraid that the views that Gale Norton and I hold on a number of important environmental issues are irreconcilable.

Let me begin by saying that I do not believe Gale Norton is a bad person. However, her documented record as Attorney General of Colorado and positions she has taken for twenty years in opposition to a number of important federal environmental laws, such as the Endangered Species Act, the Clean Water and Clean Air Acts, and Superfund are of concern.

Gale Norton supports, as does President Bush, opening the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge to oil exploration. While the President is certainly entitled to nominate those who share his views, I am unable to support a nominee who would advocate for the opening of this pristine wilderness to oil drilling.

I am also concerned that Gale Norton will bring what I perceive as a solely Western orientation to resource management issues to the Interior Department. The Secretary of the Interior must represent all regions of our Nation with equal vigor. This means understanding the unique issues facing the Northeast. Our open spaces are being churned up by development at an alarming rate. New Jersey is losing its open space faster than any other State in the Union. Federal funding for the acquisition of this open space is not viewed as a ''land grab'' in New Jersey, it is a necessity. However, I am not convinced that these concerns will be addressed. Open space protection is perhaps the most important issue facing a state like New Jersey, and I am concerned that the same passivity in enforcing environmental laws and protecting natural resources in Colorado will occur in New Jersey.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt said, ''The throwing out of balance of the resources of nature throws out of balance also the lives of men.'' I strongly believe that this balance is critical to the success of the next Secretary of the Interior. I have attempted to find this balance in President Bush's nominee, but have not. I am concerned that her record does not reflect this balance that is so necessary. I see no real difference between her positions from 20 years ago, 10 years ago, and today. Therefore, I reluctantly oppose this nomination, not this person.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I join in expressing my concern over the nomination of Gale Norton to be Secretary of the Interior.

The Secretary of the Interior is charged with being the caretaker of the Nation's public lands and public's waters, which are held in trust by the government for the benefit of the public.

Our Nation's public lands and public waters contain vast riches of minerals, oil, gas, timber, and grazing areas. The Secretary of the Interior has the responsibility of ensuring that these private uses of the public lands are compatible with the public's right to enjoy these lands as a priceless part of the Nation's environmental heritage.

I am concerned that Gale Norton's record has too often been hostile to many of our most fundamental environmental protection laws. The views she has often expressed in opposition to needed federal environmental regulation raises serious doubts about her commitment to the environment. Her partial, vague, and evasive answers to questions at the committee hearing were in sharp contrast to her past harsh criticisms of the important federal role in the protection of the Nation's natural resources.

The Clean Air Act, the Clean Water Act, and the National Environmental Policy Act—which calls for the government to '' . . . fulfill the responsibilities of each generation as trustee of the environment for succeeding generations''—are long settled and respected bodies of law. The American people are proud of the progress that we have made in recent years on the environment. The talented and committed officials in the Department of Interior deserve a great deal of credit for that achievement, and they and the American people deserve a Secretary of the Interior who shares that commitment.

Superfund and the Surface Mining Act have also been largely successful environmental laws. But it was environmental brinkmanship that made those laws necessary.

Energy crises in the 1970's and again during the Gulf war were not solved by putting our priceless environmental heritage at risk, and they cannot be solved by such a strategy today.

The position of Secretary of the Interior requires a vigilant leader who can resist the urge to exploit our natural resources at the expense of the environment.

The next Secretary will also face numerous challenges in the management and development of our National Parks. As recreation becomes more and more popular, our parks and wildlife refuges will continue to be under pressure, and sound management policies will be needed to protect them.

These, and many other environmental concerns, are widely shared by the vast majority of the American people, and the country needs a Secretary of Interior who shares that commitment.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, today as the Senate begins the consideration of the nomination of Gale Norton to be Secretary of the Interior, we confront an enormous responsibility.

The individual charged with this responsibility will set the direction for our national policies for our natural resources. This person will have the power to decide whether to nurture and conserve, or to develop and destroy our Nation's great resources. As a member of this body, I have committed myself to a career of environmental stewardship. I have tried to cast votes and offer legislation that fully reflects the importance and lasting legacy of America's natural resource management decisions. I have done so because of the role of my own home state in this matter. America's conservation history is Wisconsin's conservation history. From John Muir's battles with Teddy Roosevelt over the Hetch Hetchy Dam, to Sigurd Olson's efforts to create the National Wilderness Preservation System, to former Senator Gaylord Nelson's efforts to create the Wild and Scenic Rivers System, to Aldo Leopold's struggles to move and mold the Forest Service, Wisconsin's role in conservation has been rich. I also have another tradition to defend and uphold. I have committed myself, to a constructive role in the Senate's duty to provide advice and consent with respect to the President's nominees for cabinet positions.

As the Secretary of the Interior, Ms. Norton will be charged with unique and historic responsibilities, which will be as important as they are far reaching. In varying ways, all Americans will be affected by her decisions. As the Nation's principal conservation agency, the Department of the Interior has responsibility for most of our nationally owned public lands and resources. During the nominations process, I have been disturbed to learn of the fears that Ms. Norton will not live up to this responsibility for stewardship of all our natural resources. I have been concerned that Ms. Norton's background might cloud her judgement and objectivity on a number of important issues and place her at odds with members of the conservation community and with this Senator. While I am concerned with Ms. Norton's professed unfamiliarity with many of the laws which I regard as critical for the promotion of balanced conservation policy, I am somewhat heartened by Ms. Norton's responses to questions by members of the Energy and Natural Resources Committee with regard to her responsibility to enforce federal environmental law. I am encouraged by this statement for two reasons: first, it is an acknowlegement that she is obliged to work hard to enforce the letter of the law; second, it is an admission that there is indeed an interest on the part of all Americans in preserving our environmental heritage.

I will take Ms. Norton at her word - that she will devote her time and energy to the proper enforcement of the Interior Department policies, rather than circumvent or repeal laws which preserve our dwindling resources, that she will attempt to address the pollution of public lands which ruins our enjoyment of them and makes our air unfit to breathe and our water unsafe to drink, and that she will protect our land and water resources. For this reason, I will vote for her today.

However, in doing so, I fully recognize that my responsibility involves nothing less than overseeing the institution with stewardship of our public lands and national resource wealth. The Senate does not, by confirming Ms. Norton, place the responsibility for the protection of public lands and resources in the hands of a single individual. I do not believe that the American people are ready to ignore the voices of the environmental community who remind us how fragile and vulnerable our resources can be. That is not the message of November 4, 2000. I am hopeful that these voices will be heard by Ms. Norton. I am placing my trust in her that she will embrace her duty to take into account the future and forseeable consequences of her actions, and that she will be guided by the knowledge that this Senator will raise those consequences at all appropriate opportunities.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I rise in support of the nomination of Gale Norton as Secretary of Interior, and encourage my colleagues in the United States Senate to vote to approve her nomination as the first woman to ever hold this position as the premier land manager within the United States Government.

I don't know how I can impress upon this Senate the great impact that the Secretary of Interior can have on my home state of Wyoming, and on the rest of the Western United States. Between the National Park Service, the Bureau of Land Management, the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the Bureau of Reclamation, and the Fish and Wildlife Service, the Department of Interior is the single largest land owner within the State of Wyoming. This means that most of my state's rich natural resources and energy opportunities are dependent on the Interior to be able to find and develop those resources. I know from experience that with cooperation and open communication this process can be completed in a manner that not only benefits our nation's energy and mineral needs, but does so in a way that preserves the rich natural beauty and wildlife that calls Wyoming home.

In order to do this, however, both the Federal Government and local communities must be able to sit down together and talk through any potential conflicts and must do so in a way that lays the groundwork for the future. In her years as Attorney General for the State of Colorado, Ms. Norton was able to demonstrate the invaluable ability to talk to people, on all sides of the issues, to get to the heart of the matter, and to effect real change in the only place that really matters when it comes to environmental and community protection—directly on the ground.

As a Wyoming State legislator and member of the Wyoming State Senate, I watched Ms. Norton as she pioneered the development of Colorado's environmental self audit program. I was very interested in seeing what obstacles she faced and what hurdles she had to overcome in creating this incredible environmental protection opportunity, mainly because I wanted the same thing for my state. You see, I knew that if I could provide the people of Wyoming the same opportunity that Ms. Norton was giving the people of Colorado—the opportunity to find environmental hazards for themselves, and to provide a way for them to correct those hazards without being penalized for being responsible—then I knew that my friends and neighbors would jump at the chance to clean up their businesses and neighborhoods, and would make their homes safer, on their own, for their children to grow up in.

I also knew that without this program there would be no incentive for private business owners to find out what kind of conditions existed on their property. In fact, the over bearing bureaucratic penalties that exist to punish conscientious property owners work more as a deterrent to responsibility than as a motivation to accomplish the goals of environmental clean up.

Because of her efforts I am happy to say that she made my work much easier, and now both Colorado and Wyoming have responsible, environmental audit laws that encourage businesses to clean up their property without forcing the United States payers to foot the bill. I am also proud to say that these statutes have made more of a difference on the health and environmental well-being of local communities than superfund. There is more proactive action on the part of property owners and there is a greater testing of unknown substances so we now have a much better understanding of what is out there in our communities. Most states have now followed this lead.

Ms. Norton is also aware of the fiscal responsibilities that many federal agencies have shirked over the past several years. In one discussion I had with Ms. Norton, she made the comment that as a state official she had a fixed budget and was responsible for every dollar, but in reviewing the budgets of the Federal Agencies that fall under the jurisdiction of the Department of Interior she was appalled to see the lack of accountability. I encouraged her then, and I will encourage her now, to do what she can as Secretary to see that this situation is reversed. Most policy is set by the President. Secretaries administer and manage huge work forces. Ms. Norton is a manager.

In closing Mr. President, when I spoke with Ms. Norton earlier this year I was encouraged by her sincerity and by her understanding of the responsibility and sense of duty that must accompany public servants like the Secretary of Interior. I am convinced that Ms. Norton will uphold the laws of this land and will hold not only private individuals responsible for their actions, but will ensure that the Federal Government does not shirk its duties as a major landowner, or its liabilities as a polluter.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, today I join a majority of my colleagues in the Senate to confirm President Bush's nomination of Gale Norton as the Secretary of Interior.

As you know the Secretary of Interior has tremendous responsibilities as the chief steward of America's public lands as well as the biological and mineral resources native to those lands.

The role of the Secretary of Interior is nowhere more important than in the great state of Nevada where nearly 90 percent of the land is owned by the federal government.

Through her oversight of the Bureau of Land Management, the Bureau of Reclamation, and the Fish and Wildlife Service, the Secretary of Interior impacts the lives of Nevadans every day.

The challenges of managing the Interior Department have evolved over the years. Today, some of the most important issues facing the Secretary are urban land management decisions that did not pose major problems decades ago.

For example, the Las Vegas Valley, which is the fastest growing region in the country, is completely encircled by federal lands. Much of this public land, including scattered parcels throughout the Valley, is managed by the Interior Department.

The tremendous growth in Southern Nevada places increasing pressure on our public land resources.

As an example, recreational sportsmen cannot safely shoot in many parts of the Southern Nevada desert any longer because of urban growth and competing recreational uses.

In an effort to remedy this problem, I am working with Clark County and the BLM to identify and dedicate public land for use as a recreational shooting complex. Recreation and access to public lands are of paramount importance in Nevada.

Conservation and protection of natural resources in the Silver State are important too.

It is my sincere hope that Secretary Norton and President Bush do not view confirmation of someone who once worked for the Mountain States Legal Foundation as a mandate for the rollback of environmental protections enacted over the past 8 years.

The recently enacted phase out of snowmobile use in Yellowstone National Park will provide a litmus test for whether President Bush will promote conservation or oversee the decline and degradation of our treasured national park system and our public lands generally.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, after carefully considering the record and statements of Gale Norton, nominee for Secretary of Interior, I am voting to confirm her nomination today. I have serious concerns about many of the land use and conservation policies Ms. Norton has promoted in the past, and my vote is in no way a confirmation of these policies. However, after a lengthy discussion with Ms. Norton, she has pledged to work closely with me on the issues that affect Washington state.

We discussed many of Washington's challenges, including the Hanford Ranch, Elwha dams, salmon recovery, habitat conservation plans, and funding for Interior programs. In our conversation, I assured Ms. Norton that if she threatens Washington's interests she will find in me a strong and persistent opponent. I will speak out from the Senate floor and use my position on the Appropriations Committee to challenge any initiatives or spending proposals that don't meet Washington's needs. If the Interior Secretary seeks to roll back important policy initiatives, I will defend my state with every authority available to me. President Bush wants Gale Norton to manage the Department of Interior. I will hold President Bush accountable for his policies and budget decisions.

I believe it's important to leave the door open for discussion, and I trust that Gale Norton will reach out to work with Senator CANTWELL and me on Northwest issues. Given her pledge to work with me and her promises during the confirmation process, I'm voting for Gale Norton with the understanding that we will have a seat at the table on the policies and budgets that will affect us.

Washington state has many environmental challenges. We have the responsibility for recovering endangered species, including salmon, bulltrout, sturgeon, the spotted owl, and the marbled murrelet. The Department of the Interior plays a crucial role in protecting these species on federal lands. If the department does a good job of protecting these species, less of a recovery burden will fall to private property owners. In addition, we must also fund land and forest conservation efforts.

The next Interior Secretary will need to develop innovative partnerships that include federal, state, local, and tribal governments, along with private property owners and businesses. It is particularly important in Washington state that the Interior Secretary works closely with tribal governments and treats them as equals. Further, I call on Ms. Norton to fill critical posts, including the Director of the U.S. Fish and wildlife Service, with appointees who are familiar with the unique environmental needs of the Pacific Northwest.

I do want to address President Bush's proposal to open the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge (ANWR) to drilling, a proposal Ms. Norton supports. During the past eight years, I've consistently opposed drilling in ANWR, which the Bush Administration considers a high priority. I remain very skeptical of our ability to drill without threatening or disrupting this pristine area, and I will continue to share my concerns with the Bush Administration.

Throughout the past eight years, we have made great progress in protecting the environment and preserving natural resources while maintaining resource-dependent industries. We need to continue our progress in this fragile balance. Now is not the time to undo the environmental progress made under previous Administrations. Now is the time to look ahead, to work together, and to find creative solutions to the many problems still facing our nation. I look forward to working together with Ms. Norton in the months ahead.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President, today I rise to comment on the nomination of Gale Norton to the position of Secretary of Interior, and to explain the reasons why I plan to support her nomination.

The founders of this nation gave the United States Senate an important responsibility when they granted it advice and consent authority over Presidential nominations. Throughout my career in the Senate I have taken this responsibility seriously and have established consistent standards for application of this power, regardless of which political party sits in the White House.

However, not all Presidential nominations are equal. I apply a very different standard to Supreme Court and federal judicial appointments than to political appointees.

Federal judges and Supreme Court Justices receive the highest standard of scrutiny. They are confirmed for life and can only be removed through impeachment by Congress. Justices, by the nature of the job, should be nonpartisan. I subject Judicial nominees to intense review, examining their experience as well as their ideology.

Cabinet and subcabinet appointments receive a different standard of scrutiny. These appointees serve at the will of the President and can be removed from office with relative ease. Unless the nominee is shown, through the nomination and hearing process, to be unfit or unqualified to serve, I believe any President should be allowed to choose his or her cabinet and the Senate should confirm the nomination.

Mr. President, Gale Norton and I may disagree on many issues. However, after two days of hearings by the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee and answers to over 200 questions submitted in writing, she came across as a qualified nominee of integrity and intellect who is committed to upholding current environmental laws, whatever her past opinions. In fact, I have been encouraged by the fact that her nomination was reported to the full Senate by a bipartisan vote of 18–2.

My guess is that today she will receive the votes of a majority of Democrats who, like me, consider themselves devoted environmentalists. My good friend and the ranking member of the Energy Committee, Senator JEFF BINGAMAN, who had earlier expressed concern about the nomination, spoke yesterday on the floor of the Senate and said that Norton had stated her commitment to ''conserve our 'great wild places and unspoiled landscapes' '' and to enforce endangered species, surface mining and other laws. ''I take her at her word,'' he told the Senate.

I will also take her at her word, and will be watching her actions carefully on the natural resource issues that we Vermonters care so deeply about. In this regard, let me take a moment to lay out my positions and priorities for protecting the natural resources under the purview of the Interior Secretary.

I will not support drilling for oil or natural gas in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge (ANWR). I continue to believe that the United States' dependence on oil and its byproducts cannot overshadow the importance of keeping ANWR free from the detrimental impacts of oil and natural gas drilling and exploration. Drilling and exploration in this pristine Arctic wilderness could have a lasting impact that would forever damage the environment of this region. Hopefully, we can secure permanent protection for this unique linkage of ecosystems upon which the local communities depend, and the American community as a whole should value as a national and natural treasure.

In order to reduce our dependence on nonrenewable resources like oil and coal, we must consider alternative energy resources, as well as increasing investments in energy efficient technologies and promotion of energy conservation. I have worked to increase our nation's investments in solar, wind and other alternative technologies since founding the Congressional Solar Coalition in 1976. We must make investing in alternative energy sources and energy efficiency a higher priority.

In the past and in the future, many environmental battles come down to funding questions. One of the new Secretary's first responsibilities will be to help draft a Bush Administration budget. She should know already that I am a strong supporter of full funding for the Land and Water Conservation Fund, and I will fight to achieve this goal in the next Congress.

Our National Parks and National Monuments must receive adequate funds to cope with greater use by the American public and to ensure that these treasures and the animals that inhabit them are not loved to death. The Fish and Wildlife Service and the Bureau of Land Management are not agencies we often hear about in the news, but they play a critical role in preserving our native species of plants and animals and they must be adequately funded.

Finally, I have been and continue to be a strong supporter of mining and grazing reform. It is outrageous that a 19th century statute continues to govern what the U.S. taxpayer is paid by companies extracting precious resources from public lands.

As a Senator from the party of President Theodore Roosevelt, and a Senator who represents the beautiful State of Vermont, I believe strongly that we all must be conservationists. I will vote for Gale Norton today because I am confident that she will stand by her promise to enforce the laws that are the responsibility of the Interior Secretary, and will consult with all interested parties in making regulatory decisions. Furthermore, I pledge to be a watchdog to ensure that environmental protection and conservation are not undermined at the Department of the Interior.

Mr. KOHL. Mr. President, I rise today to explain why I have decided to support Gale Norton as the Secretary of the Interior. It is not because I agree with her on every issue. In fact, on many issues we disagree. She supports expanding the extraction of resources on federal lands, including allowing drilling in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. I do not. In the past, she has supported greater exploitation and commercialization of our public lands, and that troubles me. While I agree that public lands can have mixed uses, I am concerned that Ms. Norton will swing the pendulum too far in favor of industry. Her attitudes, however, fairly represent those of the President, and President Bush has the right to appoint a Cabinet that is a reflection of his beliefs.

While I am concerned about her past writings and beliefs about the role of the Federal government in managing federal lands and conserving natural resources, she has pledged to the Senate to uphold the law as it is currently formulated by the Congress and interpreted by the courts. She has told the Senate that her thinking on issues like global warming has changed. She now says that she supports the Endangered Species Act, and the right of the Federal government to intervene on private lands to protect wildlife from extinction. I will take her at her word and give her the opportunity to serve as our nation's leading conservationist.

Ms. Norton's opponents have compared her to James Watt, for whom she once worked, but I hope she learned well from his term as the Secretary of the Interior. I hope she learned the lesson that the American people will not tolerate an extremist anti-environment agenda. Americans have embraced a moderate environmental agenda that protects, nurtures, and manages our lands in the public interest, and not for the private benefit of a few. This country will not allow an Administration to abuse that public trust.

Secretary Watt damaged not only the Department of the Interior and our public lands, but the Administration that he served. President Bush has spoken at length about bi-partisanship and bringing this country together. Nothing will evaporate the spirit of bipartisanship faster than vigorously pursuing an anti-environmental agenda.

So I believe that Ms. Norton should be given the opportunity to serve as Secretary of the Interior, but she will be watched carefully by Congress and private organizations. She needs to prove to many that she will be a faithful steward of our natural riches and properly balance development with conservation.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I would like to take just a moment to give my full and heartfelt support to Ms. Gale Norton as our new Secretary of the Interior. It gives me great pleasure and some hope that our national land management policies will be more balanced and will take local views into account that she has been confirmed today.

I congratulate President George W. Bush for putting forward this outstanding nominee. Clearly, one of the first impressions our new president has made on the nation is that he is willing to seek out and surround himself with the most capable administrators our nation has to offer. If anyone wishes to know why Gale Norton is such a great nominee, just look at what her worst critics are not saying about her. No one has questioned her intelligence; no one has questioned her qualifications; and no one has questioned her ability to work with all sides on an issue. Some may question her views on the issues, but that is to be expected in a change of government.

Mr. President, Gale Norton understands what Utahns have always known, but what the last administration was unwilling to acknowledge:

that the environment and our public lands belong to the people, not to federal bureaucrats. Gale Norton seems to believe, like I do, that some power should be returned to our state and local communities who have the greatest interest and the greatest stake in protecting their environment.

There will always be a role for our federal government in protecting our environment and our federal lands. But our federal government cannot be effective when it fails to listen to the needs of the people it is supposed to serve. After the last eight years of increasing all viewpoints will be a breath of fresh air. I urge all of my colleagues, today, to join me in confirming Gale Norton as the Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I rise today in opposition to the confirmation of Gale Norton as Secretary of the Interior. I do not reach this decision easily. However, I do not have the confidence that Ms. Norton will bring the necessary balanced approach that should be required for this position.

I have discussed the important and special role that the Secretary of the Interior performs in this country when the Senate has considered other nominees to this office. In 1983, I described the office of the Secretary of the Interior as:

> the chief environmental officer of the United States as well as the conservator, trustee and steward of the public lands and natural resources. At the same time, the Secretary is expected to promote and direct the reasonable and efficient use of those lands and natural resources, in ways which do not conflict with his primary environmental responsibilities. And the American people, those who wish to preserve those lands and resources as well as those who wish to develop them, expect that the Secretary will bring to bear an appropriate expertise, experience and balanced temperament on the wide variety of issues he is called upon to decide.

I do not question that Gale Norton has a great deal of experience and knowledge about the matters that will come before her. However, I am concerned that her record fails to indicate a ''balanced temperament on the wide variety of issues she will be called upon to decide.''

From her earlier attacks on the Surface Mining Act and Endangered Species Act to positions she has taken to undermine implementation of the Clean Air Act and Clean Water Act, her judgments evidence a pattern that calls into question exactly how she will view her responsibilities as the steward of our public lands when she is called upon to make decisions about their appropriate use. The position of Secretary of the Interior is too important to entrust to someone whose record does not convey a commitment to the preservation of our public lands and natural resources.

For these reasons, I will cast my vote against the confirmation of Ms. Norton.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I rise today to express my opposition to the nomination of Gale Norton to be Secretary of Interior. While I am not a member of the Energy Committee that held hearings on the nomination, I have closely reviewed her record and her testimony.

The Secretary of Interior is the steward of our country's natural resources and public lands. Any nominee for this position should be selected for their commitment to protecting our precious resources as well as their dedication to uphold and enforce our environmental laws.

After reviewing the record of Gale Norton there is little doubt that she is an intelligent and dedicated public servant who has strong convictions about issues that concern the Department of Interior. On the one hand, I commend her commitment to her strong ideological views. However, it is this unyielding commitment to those strongly held beliefs that makes me question whether she will be able to set those views aside and consider the views of all Americans as we debate important issues concerning the natural resources.

As our country continues to prosper, the Secretary of Interior will oversee a number of ongoing debates concerning public lands and the protection of endangered species. There is no single solution that can serve as an answer to land management issues in each region of our country. There are many stakeholders with a wide variety of views on how we protect, access and use our natural resources. We in Vermont and New England are deeply concerned about pressure being placed on our natural resources from rapid growth. We Vermonters also have concerns that environmental standards should be strictly enforced for our lands, air, water and threatened species.

The record of Gale Norton provides important insight on how she will interpret laws and weigh the views of stakeholders concerning our natural resources. These beliefs have been remarkably unwavering.

Based on the record I must vote against this nomination. However, if Gale Norton is confirmed, you can be sure that I will work closely with her on a variety of issues that are important to Vermonters. I will work with her to try and foster consensus not only in our region but also throughout the country.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, Gale Norton has a long public record and has written extensively on environmental issues over her career. I have reviewed that record and understand the concerns of those who have asked whether, as Secretary of the Interior, she would implement and defend environmental laws, many of which she has challenged or questioned in the past.

That is the core question surrounding this nomination. It was put to Ms. Norton in a number of ways by members of the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Ms. Norton testified that she is a ''passionate conservationist'' who will enforce the law as interpreted by the courts. I will vote to confirm her nomination, but I don't discount the seriousness of the concerns raised by her opponents. I intend to monitor closely her stewardship of the Department of the Interior.

The duties of the Secretary of the Interior are profound, and have serious implications for the health of our nation's environment and the quality of life for millions of Americans. The Secretary is the primary guardian of the Endangered Species Act, our nation's flagship law for protecting plant and animal species threatened with extinction. The Secretary also is charged with administering most of our nation's public lands, including places of extraordinary beauty and fragility such as Yellowstone National Park.

As Ms. Norton undertakes these responsibilities, it is my hope and expectation that she will follow the pragmatic approach reflected in her testimony before the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources. Her success as Interior Secretary will be measured by the degree to which she maintains this balanced approach to environmental and natural resource issues.

Our nation's environmental laws, including the Endangered Species Act and the National Environmental Policy Act, must be enforced fully, as they have been interpreted by the courts.

In managing our natural resources, we should respect the views of local residents, but we must also recognize that the American people own these lands and that the Secretary must uphold the public interest as a whole.

Ms. Norton has expressed confidence in the efficacy of allowing industries to police themselves when it comes to protecting the environment. History has shown too often that this approach fails to protect the public interest. Summitville, Colorado, is only one example of how insufficient oversight has led to environmental disaster. The map of the United States is dotted with other examples. It is my hope that, through this confirmation process and through her experience in public office, Ms. Norton has gained a better appreciation of the fact that the Secretary of the Interior's trust includes active enforcement of the nation's environmental laws.

It is particularly important to me that Ms. Norton fully implement the biological opinion written by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service regarding the management of the Missouri River. The Fish and Wildlife Service has found that, unless the Corps of Engineers makes major changes in the operations of federal dams on the river, it will be in violation of the Endangered Species Act. Ensuring that the Corps makes the needed changes in the operations of the dams is a top priority for the upper Midwest, and for me personally. It is imperative that Secretary Norton follow through on the Fish and Wildlife Service recommendations so that they are adopted by the Corps.

I also hope to work with Secretary Norton to preserve small wetlands and native prairie in South Dakota, both of which provide important habitat for wildlife. Tallgrass prairie preservation has been a remarkable success in my state, and the number of farmers seeking to participate in the program has outpaced the amount of available funding.

Finally, I want to work with Secretary Norton to strengthen the Bureau of Reclamation. Vast areas of South Dakota lack potable drinking water. Federal projects funded by the Bureau of Reclamation such as the Mni Wiconi, Mid-Dakota and Lewis and Clark rural water systems are critical to the public health and economic vitality of our state. At current funding levels, however, it will be years before these projects can be completed. I urge the Secretary to give these projects the priority treatment they deserve.

Ms. Norton faces some significant policy challenges at the Department of the Interior. I expect we will have our differences, such as on President Bush's support for opening the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge for oil exploration and drilling. On those issues I anticipate a spirited debate. On many other issues, I am certain we will work closely together to protect and manage our nation's natural resources and honor our trust responsibilities to tribes.

Gale Norton has my congratulations on her nomination and confirmation as Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I rise today to speak in support of the nomination of Gale Norton to be the next Secretary of the Department of Interior. Clearly the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee hearings on Gale Norton's nomination have revealed that she is a vivacious lawyer who contemplates and explores ideas. Concepts matter to her, and more importantly she has the management ability to turn concepts into public policies which have both enhanced compliance with environmental laws and respected the responsible stewardship of citizens who live on the land. Gale Norton knows there must be a balance and this will make her invaluable for America's conservation programs and for all our communities.

Too often, some environmentalist groups only offer false choices. They only want a policy choice which pits the environment against citizens and industry. This is unacceptable. Some environmentalist groups also only want Washington ''experts'' making the decisions. Well, Gale Norton has repeatedly shown her commitment to a safe and clean environment through consensus building. For over 20 years, she has brought people together with different views to overcome problems dealing with environmental and Federal land issues.

I have little doubt that Americans will see for themselves that Gale Norton will serve with a steady, firm and fair hand as our Nation's next Secretary of Interior. I firmly believe our Nation's treasures will be both protected and improved.

Americans will quickly discover just how harshly inaccurate many special interest groups' characterizations of her have been. Gale Norton has shown the grace and resolve that will help her restore the unanimity at the Department of Interior.

Mr. THOMAS addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wyoming.

Mr. THOMAS. Is there a couple minutes remaining before the vote?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are 3 minutes remaining.

Mr. THOMAS. I yield to my friend from New Mexico.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I have spoken at length about the Interior Secretary nominee and also about our other nominee today, but I have not had a chance to say anything about the Environmental Protection Agency and the nominee, Christine Todd Whitman. I am very proud to make a statement for the RECORD that expresses my views.

Mr. President, ''just as houses are made of stones, so is science made of facts; but a pile of stones is not a house and a collection of facts is not necessarily science.'' For the past 8 years I have questioned numerous collections of facts put out by the Environmental Protection Agency in the name of science. That is why I strongly support president Bush's nomination of Christine Todd Whitman as the new Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency.

President Bush has endorsed Christie Whitman as a person who understands the importance of a clean and healthy environment and who will ensure that environmental regulations are based, not merely on assembled facts, but on solid, sound science. Sound science has been left out of the regulation equation too often over the past 8 years. A prime example is the new arsenic standards proposed last week. These standards were not based on sound science and they were not implemented to increase health benefits, they were put into effect because it was the politically expedient thing to do.

Arsenic is naturally occurring in my home state of New Mexico. I have not seen reasonable data in support of increased health benefits from these lower standards. I have only seen a collection of facts from studies conducted outside of the United States. New Mexicans will not see appreciable health benefits; they will see their water bills double and will be forced to endure financial hardship.

Ms. Whitman has been an advocate of clean water, clean air and clean shores and while I know that she will continue to promote these things for all Americans, I am excited about the way she will champion these causes. I believe that she will promote scientifically valid initiatives to ensure that we have clean water, clean air and clean shores.

In conjunction with sound scientific, Ms. Whitman also understands that better results can be achieved through a more cooperative, rather than a confrontational, approach with the regulated community. This too is consistent with the beliefs and philosophies of President Bush. President Bush has said that the federal model of mandate, regulate, and litigate needs to be modernized. Americans need to be rewarded for innovation and results when it comes to protecting the environment.

Christie Whitman has worked extensively on environmental issues during her service as the New Jersey Governor. She has demonstrated her commitment to a safe and clean environment and shows that she is willing to bring all parties together in an effort to find solutions to complex environmental issues. She exemplifies the qualities of a consensus builder, not a divider.

Environmental issues continue to be some of the most complex and contentious and require a leader who can balance various competing interests. Christie Whitman will bring this type of leadership into the Environmental Protection Agency.

It is time to base our regulations on more than just a collection of facts. It is time to work together and to search for solutions that are based on scientifically valid facts. I look forward to working with Ms. Whitman in doing just that.

As I have said, the Secretary of the Interior has important jobs besides just the Interior Department's functions. I say the same about Christine Todd Whitman. She will have a tough job because America is in an energy crisis. That means every Department of our Government is going to have to start looking not only at their policies but how do their policies affect America's energy future? She will have a difficult job because that has not been the case at EPA in the past. So I bid her well. I hope she has a very successful term because if she does, we will. If she adjusts some of her rulings to a bigger problem, and can make some cost-benefit assessments that are good for the environment, but also for energy, the energy supply, I think that will be a marvelous achievement.

Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on the nominations.

NOT VOTING—1

Dorgan

The nomination was confirmed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the President will be notified of the Senate's action on these nominations.

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will return to legislative session.

The Democratic leader.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I will use my leader time under the agreement and under the rule of the day. It is my understanding the time now will be designated primarily for statements related to the Ashcroft nomination. There may be other comments and other remarks to be made about other issues, but it is my intention to make some remarks with regard to the Ashcroft nomination.

NOMINATION OF JOHN ASHCROFT

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, in 14 years in the Senate, I have voted on 36 Cabinet nominations: 24 by Republican Presidents and 12 by a Democratic President. Of all of them, this one is by far the most difficult. I have struggled with this decision, as have most of us.

I have spent many hours thinking about what I have heard and read. I have reviewed the words of our founders, and I have searched my memory and my conscience.

In his inaugural address, President Bush pledged to ''work to build a single nation of justice and opportunity'' for all Americans. I think most Americans share that desire.

That is why this vote is so important.

John Ashcroft is a man of considerable accomplishment. He is a graduate of Yale and the University of Chicago Law School, a former State auditor, State attorney general, and a former Governor.

Beyond that, he is a former Member of this Senate. Many of us have worked with him for a number of years.

The question facing us, however, is not: Does John Ashcroft have an impressive resume? Clearly, he does.

The question facing us is: Is John Ashcroft the right person to lead the United States Department of Justice?

The Attorney General is more than ''the President's lawyer.'' He is the guardian of the constitutional rights of all Americans—the protector of our fundamental freedoms.

The Attorney General of the United States has enormous power. He advises the President and every other Cabinet member—on whether their actions are constitutional. He has enormous authority to decide which laws are enforced, and to what extent.

The Attorney General decides how—and whether—to intervene in court cases. He is responsible for screening and recommending nominees for the Federal bench, including the Supreme Court.

Because of his enormous authority and discretion, the Attorney General—more than any other Cabinet member—has the power to protect, or erode, decades of progress in civil rights in America.

I believe the President has the right to choose advisers with whom he is philosophically comfortable.

That is why—out of 36 Cabinet nominations, I voted so far on 35, ''yes.'' The only nominee I voted against was John Tower. I think we are all aware of the problems with that nomination.

My respect for the President's right to choose his own Cabinet is also a good part of the reason I have voted to confirm every other nominee this President has sent us.

At the same time, the Senate has a right—and a responsibility to evaluate the President's nominees; offer advice; and either grant—or withhold—its consent.

How do we decide whether to confirm—or reject—a Cabinet nominee? Our Founders, unfortunately, gave us no constitutional guidelines. The ''appointments clause'' of the Constitution says only that the Senate has the power of advice and consent. It does not specify how we should decide.

During his 6 years in this body, Senator Ashcroft had his own standard. He made it clear he believes Presidential appointees can—and should—be rejected for ideological reasons. That is the standard he used in blocking Bill Lann Lee's nomination to head the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division.

As Senator Ashcroft put it at the time: Mr. Lee ''obviously (has) a strong capacity to be an advocate. But his pursuit of objectives important to him limit his capacity to make a balanced judgment.''

Some might say it is fair to hold Senator Ashcroft to that same standard. And they might be right. But I choose a different standard.

In Federalist No. 76, Alexander Hamilton said there must be ''special and strong reasons'' for Senators to reject a Presidential nominee.

Rarely has that standard been met. Out of more than 900 Cabinet nominations that have reached this floor, the Senate has rejected only five.

Only one nominee for Attorney General has ever been rejected on the Senate floor; and that was 76 years ago.

Nearly 30 years ago, Archibald Cox was the special Watergate prosecutor—until President Nixon had him fired for doing his job too well. Before that, he was Solicitor General of the United States.

He has said that the best way to judge what sort of Attorney General a person will make is not by listening to the nominee's promises about the future. It is by examining his past.

In his words:

> Respect for the law—the fairness with which the law is administered—is the foundation of a free society. The individual who becomes Attorney General can do more by his past record . . . than by his conduct in office . . . to strengthen or erode confidence in the fairness, impartiality, integrity and freedom-from-taint-of-personal-influence, in the administration of law.

Is John Ashcroft the right person to lead the Justice Department? Or are there ''special and strong'' reasons that make his appointment as Attorney General unwise? The answer is not in his heart. It is in his long public record.

Senator Ashcroft has been a public official for nearly a quarter of a century.

Throughout his career, he has been a fierce advocate for his beliefs. Those beliefs—on civil rights, on women's rights, workers' rights, separation of church and State, and many other issues—put him far to the right of most Americans.

Senator Ashcroft and his supporters argue that his past activism does not matter. Legislators write laws, they say. Attorneys general simply enforce the laws that are on the books.

It is an interesting distinction. But in 8 years as Missouri's attorney general, it is not a distinction John Ashcroft made.

For 8 years as Missouri's attorney general and 8 years after that as Governor, John Ashcroft prevented efforts to end segregation of public schools in St. Louis and 23 surrounding communities.

The Federal court system found the State responsible for the segregation, and ordered it to correct its sad history. John Ashcroft fought nearly every one of those orders. Three times in 4 years, he appealed all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court. Each time, he lost.

When St. Louis and the surrounding communities agreed on their own to a voluntary desegregation plan, Attorney General Ashcroft used the power of his office to block it. His obstruction provoked one judge in the case to threaten him with contempt. Today, he insists that his opposition was just a matter of guarding the public till.

But in 1984, when he ran for Governor, John Ashcroft denounced the voluntary desegregation plan as ''an outrage against human decency.''

According to the St. Louis Post Dispatch, he and his opponent in the 1984 Republican Gubernatorial primary competed ''to see who could denounce desegregation most harshly . . . exploiting and encouraging the worst racist sentiments that exist in the state.''

His continued defiance as Governor caused another judge in the case—a Republican appointed by President Reagan—to conclude that ''the State is ignoring the real objectives of this case—a better education for city students—to personally embark on a litigious pursuit of righteousness.''

John Ashcroft's 16-year fight to prevent the voluntary desegregation cost Missouri taxpayers millions of dollars. Worse than that, it cost many children their right to a decent education.

So much for the distinction between writing laws, and merely enforcing them.

In addition, Attorney General Ashcroft vigorously opposed the Equal Rights Amendment.

When the National Organization for Women urged a boycott of Missouri and other States for failing to ratify the ERA, Attorney General Ashcroft ignored settled legal precedent and stretched antitrust laws to sue the organization. He used taxpayer dollars to take the case all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court. The Court ruled that NOW members were simply exercising their fundamental, constitutional right to free speech.

Governor Ashcroft also twice vetoed voting-rights bills that would have allowed trained volunteers to register voters in the city of St. Louis—just as they did in neighboring suburbs, where there were more white and Republican voters.

Earlier this month, in his opening remarks before the Judiciary Committee, Senator Ashcroft described himself as ''a man of common-sense conservative beliefs.'' The truth is, there is nothing common about his conservatism.

Here in this Senate, he demonstrated what the New York Times called ''a radical propensity for offering constitutional amendments that would bring that document into alignment with his religious views.''

In more than 200 years, our Constitution has been amended only 27 times—including the 10 amendments of the Bill of Rights. In his one term in this Senate, John Ashcroft introduced or cosponsored seven constitutional amendments. One of his amendments would have radically rewritten the rules to make it easier to amend the Constitution. Another would have made abortion a crime, even in cases of rape and incest, and even when continuing a pregnancy would result in serious and permanent injury to a woman. It also would have banned most common forms of birth control.

By his own account, Senator Ashcroft was ''probably more critical than any other individual in the Senate'' of Federal judges. He has vilified judges with whom he disagrees as ''renegade judges, a robed and contemptuous elite.''

He frequently opposed qualified Presidential nominees. He opposed both Dr. Henry Foster and Dr. David Satcher for Surgeon General because they supported President Clinton's position on a woman's right to choose. In Dr. Foster's case, he prevented the nomination from ever reaching the Senate floor.

In 1998, when James Hormel was nominated to serve as U.S. Ambassador to Luxembourg, Senator Ashcroft said he opposed the nomination because Mr. Hormel ''has been a leader in promoting a lifestyle.''

While Senator Ashcroft never met with Mr. Hormel to discuss his qualifications, he now asserts vaguely that it was the ''totality'' of Mr. Hormel's record that prompted his opposition.

Then-Senator Al D'Amato—a member of Senator Ashcroft's own party—saw a different reason.

In a 1998 letter to Senator LOTT, Senator D'Amato wrote: ''I fear Mr. Hormel's nomination is being held up for one reason and one reason only: the fact that he is gay.''

Senator Ashcroft blocked Bill Lann Lee's nomination to head the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division because of Mr. Lee's views on affirmative action.

Just as Senator Ashcroft assures us that he will enforce laws with which he disagrees, Mr. Lee assured members of the Judiciary Committee that he would enforce Supreme Court rulings restricting affirmative action.

Senator Ashcroft refused to accept that assurance. Perhaps the most troubling for me personally is Senator Ashcroft's treatment of Judge Ronnie White, the first nominee to the Federal district court to be rejected on the Senate floor in 50 years.

Judge White grew up in a poor family and worked his way through college and law school. He is a former prosecutor, State legislator, circuit judge, and member of the Missouri State appeals court. He is the first African American ever appointed to the Missouri Supreme Court. In 1997, he was nominated to be a U.S. district court judge. For 2 years, Senator Ashcroft blocked Judge White's nomination from coming to the Senate floor. The wait lasted so long that the seat for which Judge White was nominated was officially declared a judicial emergency.

When Judge White's nomination finally did come to the floor, Senator Ashcroft misled the Senate and deliberately distorted his record. For me, that day was one of the saddest in all of my years in the Senate.

John Ashcroft smeared Judge White as ''pro-criminal and activist,'' a man with a ''tremendous bent toward criminal activity.'' Nothing could be further from the truth.

Stuart Taylor who writes for the conservative National Journal magazine writes that John Ashcroft's treatment of Judge White alone makes him ''unfit to be Attorney General.''

''The reason,'' Taylor writes, ''is (that) during an important debate on a sensitive matter, then-Senator Ashcroft abused the power of his office by descending to demagoguery, dishonesty and character assassination.''

I do not believe John Ashcroft's treatment of Judge White was motivated by racism. I believe it was plain political opportunism. In the heat of a tough reelection battle, John Ashcroft was willing to try to distort the record and destroy the reputation of a good man. To this day, Senator Ashcroft continues to misrepresent Judge White's record and insist that he himself did nothing wrong.

The job of Attorney General demands fairness, judgment, tolerance, and respect for opposing views. It demands commitment to equal rights for all Americans and a sensitivity to injustice. John Ashcroft has shown a pattern of insensitivity through his public career. Even now he refuses to disavow Southern Partisan Quarterly Review, a magazine that has defended slavery. He refuses to distance himself from Bob Jones University, a cauldron of intolerance that has described Mormons and Catholics as ''cults which call themselves Christian.''

Senator Ashcroft has said there are only ''two things you find in the middle of the road: a moderate and a dead skunk.'' I think he is wrong. The other thing you find in the middle of the road is the vast majority of the American people.

An article in the December 23 New York Times quoted an adviser to President Bush as saying:

> Attorney General was the one area where the right felt very strongly, a la Ed Meese. This is a message appointment.

The adviser described it as a signal to the conservatives that ''I hear your concerns.''

What message does making John Ashcroft Attorney General send to the rest of America? What message does it send to women or to minorities? What message does it send to judges and others who may not see the world exactly as John Ashcroft sees it? What message does making John Ashcroft Attorney General send to Americans who fear their votes don't count and aren't counted?

John Ashcroft has said:

> There are voices in the Republican Party today who preach pragmatism, who champion conciliation, who counsel compromise. I stand here today to reject those deceptions. If ever there was a time to unfurl the banner of unabashed conservatism, it is now.

I say, if ever there was a time to unfurl the banner of conciliation, it is now. Senator Ashcroft is a man of intellect and passionate beliefs. I am sure there are many ways he can serve the causes in which he believes so fiercely, but I do not believe it is fair or reasonable for us to expect him to fully enforce laws he finds unwise, unconstitutional, and, in some cases, morally repugnant.

How can John Ashcroft enforce laws he has spent his entire public career fighting? What would that say about him if he did?

I have turned this over in my head a hundred times. Every time the answer is sadly the same: I do not believe John Ashcroft is the right person to lead the U.S. Department of Justice. For that reason, I will vote no on this nomination.

In his inaugural address, President Bush spoke of the ''grand and enduring ideals'' that unite Americans across generations. ''The grandest of all these ideals,'' he said, ''is an unfolding American promise that everyone belongs, that everyone deserves a chance, that no insignificant person was ever born.''

I applaud the President's words, but I cannot reconcile them with this nomination. John Ashcroft spent 6 years in the Senate mocking bipartisanship. To require that we confirm him now as proof of our bipartisanship and good faith is asking too much.

I thank Senators LEAHY and HATCH and members of the staff of the Judiciary Committee for conducting a full and fair hearing. I thank the many witnesses and people all across our Nation who made their voices heard on this critical nomination.

In closing, regardless of what we decide, I hope we will all remember what this debate is about. It is not about partisan politics. It is not about whether we are willing to work with this President. It is about justice.

Nearly a century ago, another Republican, President Theodore Roosevelt, heard rumors that the district attorneys and marshals in a particular State would be ordered to replace their deputies for political reasons. Immediately President Roosevelt sent a letter to his Attorney General, a man named William Moody, demanding that the plan be stopped. As he put it:

> Of all the officers of the Government, those of the Department of Justice should be kept free from any suspicion of improper action on partisan or factional grounds.

He went on to say:

> I am particularly anxious that the federal courts . . . should win regard and respect for the people by an exhibition of scrupulous nonpartisanship, so that there shall be gradually a growth—even though a slow growth—in the knowledge that the Federal Court and the Federal Department of Justice insist on meting out even-handed justice to all.

That was in 1904.

Over the course of the 20th century, we made great strides in assuring that America's courts and Justice Department are indeed committed to even-handed justice for all. Now, as we begin the 21st century, is not the time to turn the clock back.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. REID. Will the Senator withhold for a unanimous consent request?

Mr. INHOFE. Yes.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, we are in a time for morning business. In an effort to have Senators know what is next, I ask unanimous consent that Senator INHOFE be recognized next for up to 15 minutes or whatever time.

Mr. INHOFE. Maybe a little bit longer.

Mr. REID. Senator INHOFE for 25 minutes. Following that, the Senator from Michigan, Ms. STABENOW, be recognized for 15 minutes; following that, Senator BUNNING be recognized for up to a half hour; following that, Senator HARKIN be recognized; and following that, Senator MURRAY from Washington be recognized.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I was just advised that I failed to mention Senator JACK REED in the mix, and we want him to follow Senator BUNNING in the same order, if there is a Republican who needs to speak in between Senator REED and Senator HARKIN.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. INHOFE. I was listening very carefully during the entire presentation of our very illustrious minority leader, immediate past majority leader. I had a hard time figuring out who he was talking about.

I am 66 years old, and I have been involved in virtually every kind of political job. I have been involved for 30 years in the private sector. I don't believe I can stand here and think of one person I have ever met in my entire life who is a more honorable person, who is totally incapable of telling a lie, than John Ashcroft.

I have watched him take courageous stands for things he believes in, yes, but he always tells it exactly the way he believes it. That is not the question here. We are talking about a law enforcement officer. We are talking about the chief, the guy at the top.

When I have heard people say that he will not uphold the rule of law, I am reminiscent of the last 8 years, certainly Janet Reno and the Clinton administration. We have been waiting for her to uphold the law, to prosecute people, and not to let people off just because they may be friends of the administration.

I have watched her refuse to go after campaign fundraising abuses, refuse to appoint an independent counsel where it is required by law, reject advice by Louis Freeh and Charles LaBella, refuse to prosecute Gore's White House phone calls, questionable plea bargains with John Huang, Charlie Trie. I have watched the theft of nuclear secrets, watched the botching of the investigation of Wen Ho Lee. I have watched this Attorney General refuse to vigorously enforce gun laws. Gun prosecutions went down under the Reno administration.

We could think of a lot of examples. One that comes to mind, I happen to be in a Bible study with a man named Chuck Colson, who occasionally comes by. I got to know him quite well. I think most Americans know who Chuck Colson is. Chuck Colson violated the law back during the Watergate era. He disclosed confidential information and leaked it to the media. As a result of that, he was found guilty and he served time, was prosecuted and went to prison in a Federal penitentiary.

Ken Bacon did exactly the same thing. I have stood on this floor on three different occasions and talked for about 40 minutes just on this particular case, that during the Linda Tripp case, Ken Bacon did in fact release confidential information to the media. And as a result of that, this person was taken out of consideration in terms of credibility.

There is no reason in the world. The law hasn't changed. If anything, it is stronger than it was at that time. But there is no reason in the world that if Chuck Colson was prosecuted 25 years ago and spent time in the Federal penitentiary, Ken Bacon should not have been prosecuted and sent to the penitentiary exactly as Chuck Colson was.

There is an accusation that John Ashcroft would not uphold the law. I am not saying he should be just a little bit better than our previous Attorney General, Janet Reno, has been. He has to be much, much better. But there is certainly no comparison.

As far as Ronnie White is concerned, I think it is important that we not try to paint John Ashcroft as being any kind of racist. During the time he was in the positions that he held in the State of Missouri, he supported 26 of the 27 black judges. It is my understanding that he supported more black judges during his administration than anyone had before him.

As far as Ronnie White is concerned, I listened to him testify before the committee, and I was wondering why certain things were not said that should have been said, because after going back and reading the case—I believe the name is James Johnson—where this individual had gone out and had violently murdered a sheriff, in the same night a deputy sheriff, in the same night another deputy sheriff, and then, if that weren't enough, went to a person's home where they were having a Christmas party and in the process of praying brutally murdering the wife of one of the sheriffs, White was the lone dissenter in the death penalty case involving that man who brutally murdered four people.

On the same day that the nomination came to the floor, I heard this story. I voted against Ronnie White mostly because of that case.

But I have to say this. I don't think many of us here who were not on the Judiciary Committee knew that Ronnie White was black. This is the thing that shocked everyone. One of the Senators said this: The first time I realized that he was black is when someone took the floor and said this was a result of racism. I know this isn't true.

There is one thing I want to clarify. I think it is important during the next few hours that each one of these allegations be responded to because there is an assumption out there that is true. I am going to respond to one in kind of an unusual way about James Hormel.

I almost 3 years ago on the floor of this Senate made a speech. It was on May 22, 1998. I heard some comments by one of my favorites in the Senate. I have to say this. When Patrick Moynihan was in the Senate, I always referred to him—he was my nextdoor neighbor—as my favorite liberal. Since he is gone, I think I will refer to PAUL WELLSTONE as my favorite liberal. He and I have found that we don't agree on too many things, but he made some comments concerning my opposition to James Hormel.

It has been stated several times on this Senate floor, and I think in the hearings also, that John Ashcroft was the one responsible for James Hormel not getting legitimately confirmed. I am here to say today that it was not John Ashcroft; it was I.

I am going to read the RECORD where I thanked the Senator from Minnesota, Mr. WELLSTONE, for some comments he made, and I also said what we might do since we are both sharing time was that I would speak first and he could respond afterwards.

Some statements were made on the floor yesterday concerning the hold I have on James Hormel to be Ambassador to Luxembourg. It is true I have a hold on James Hormel. This is I, myself, speaking almost 3 years ago. It was not John Ashcroft, it was I.

There very well may be a vote on this individual, but I will oppose his nomination, and I want to stand and tell you why.

Statements were made on the floor by the senior Senator from Minnesota, Mr. WELLSTONE. I will read excerpts from it.

> Now, one of my colleagues, and I think it is extremely unfortunate, one of my colleagues has compared Mr. Hormel, a highly qualified public servant and nominee, to Mr. David Duke, who, among other credentials, is a former grand wizard of the Ku Klux Klan.

He goes on to say:

> I want to say to my colleagues, that given this kind of statement made publicly by a United States Senator, this kind of character assassination, it is more important now than ever that this man, Mr. Hormel, be voted on.
> In defense, really, of the senior Senator from Minnesota, I say that if I had said what he thought I said, he was certainly entitled and justified to make the statements that were made. But I think it is important to know that I did not make those statements in the context that he believed I made them.
> Let me, first of all, say that there probably are not two Members of the U.S. Senate who are further apart philosophically than the senior Senator from Minnesota and myself, I would probably, in my own mind, believe him to be an extreme left-wing radical liberal and he believes me to be an extreme right-wing radical conservative. And I think maybe we are both right.
> But one thing I respect about Senator WELLSTONE is he is not a hypocrite. He is the same thing everywhere. He is the same everywhere. He honestly believes that government should have a more expanded role. He is a liberal. I am a conservative.

Having said that, let me go back and talk a little bit about what he had actually said. I made the statement when I was running for office—and I have been consistent with that—that if I get to the Senate where I have the opportunity to participate in the confirmation process, I will work to keep the nominee from being confirmed if that individual has his own personal agenda and has made statements publicly to the effect that he believes strongly in his personal agenda and will use that office to advance the personal agenda more than he will the American agenda.

In the case of James Hormel, a gay activist, he made statements in the past, which I will read in a moment, that have led me to believe that his personal agenda is above the agenda of the United States. As I said, the same thing would be true if it were David Duke. If he were up for nomination, I would oppose him because I believe he would have his agenda above the agenda of America. Maybe with Patricia Ireland it would be the same thing, Ralph Reed, who started the Christian Coalition. Maybe if he were up for nomination and he made the statement that he would use that nomination, whether it be ambassadorial or anything else, to advance his own agenda, I would oppose it. Yet I agree with his agenda.

I would also like to quote someone who I think is familiar to all of us and whom we hold here in very high esteem, Faith Whittlesey, former U.S. Ambassador to Switzerland. She was talking about this trend of trying to put people with their own personal agendas in the various embassies. She said:

> Ambassadorial appointments should not be used for the purposes of social engineering in the countries to which the ambassadors are assigned.

One of the many statements I have made previously about James Hormel that led me to the conclusion he wanted to use his position to advance the agenda was the following statement he made June 16, 1996. He said:

> I specifically asked to be Ambassador to Norway because, at the time, they were about to pass legislation that would acknowledge same-sex relationships, and they had indicated their reception, their receptivity, to gay men and lesbians.

I believe he was implying and there is no question in anyone's mind that he was saying he was going to use that job to advance his own agenda. I think it is important that we understand that.

I would like to repeat what I just said. It was 3 years ago.

As we listen to the confirmation hearings and hearing the speeches on the floor, whoever it was who said that John Ashcroft was the one who blocked and attempted to block the confirmation of James Hormel, they are wrong. I am the one. It was not he.

I think there is a more serious thing here. I don't think it is the issue so much of James Hormel, or of abortion, or of discrimination. We are always shocked when we hear about repercussions in places such as Sudan and China. People are enslaved for their religious belief.

I look at this and I think John Ashcroft is guilty of one thing. He is guilty of having an inseparable walk with the Lord. And he has said that several times.

There is someone I dearly love by the name of Bill Bright who wrote the book ''Red Sky in the Morning.'' I think it should be required reading for all Americans. Let me read a couple of things from it.

> George Washington, ''Father of Our Country,'' 1st President of the U.S.: ''Bless O Lord the whole race of mankind, and let the world be filled with the knowledge of Thee and Thy Son, Jesus Christ.''
> ''It is impossible to rightly govern the world without God and the Bible.''
> Patrick Henry, American Revolutionary Leader: ''It cannot be emphasized too strongly or too often that this great nation was founded, not be religionists, but by Christians; not on religions, but on the Gospel of Jesus Christ.''
> Thomas Jefferson, 3rd President of the United States: ''Indeed I tremble for my country when I reflect that God is just, and that His justice cannot sleep forever.''

It goes on and on. You can read all of the founding fathers of this country.

What would John Adams, who said we have no government armed with power capable of contending with human passions, unbridled mortality, and religion—what would they say if they knew right now that a man from Missouri, after very carefully listening to all the comments, all the charges have been made about John Ashcroft?

I believe this is a case of religious persecution.

I have to conclude by saying what I started out by saying; that is, of all the people I have known and worked with in my entire life, I know no one of greater character or more highly moral than John Ashcroft.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CHAFEE). Under the previous order, the Senator from Michigan is recognized.

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak for up to 15 minutes in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has that right.

Ms. STABENOW. I thank the Chair.

(The remarks of Ms. STABENOW pertaining to the introduction of S. 215 are located in today's RECORD under ''Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.'')

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky is recognized for 30 minutes.

Mr. BUNNING. Mr. President, before I am recognized under the time allotted under the previous order, I ask unanimous consent that notwithstanding the previous order, Senator ALLARD be recognized for up to 15 minutes following the remarks of Senator REED of Rhode Island and that Senator THOMAS be recognized for up to 15 minutes following the remarks of Senator HARKIN.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BUNNING. Mr. President, I rise in support of the nomination of John Ashcroft to be our next U.S. Attorney General. For weeks now, the media, Members of this body, and the liberal left have conducted nothing more than a smear campaign against John Ashcroft.

For the past 2 years in the 106th Congress, I served with John Ashcroft as a deputy whip, and I came to know him very well.

He is one of the most intelligent, fair, and compassionate men I have ever known. He is thoughtful and full of integrity and humility. He is going to make a fine Attorney General.

What is being done to John Ashcroft and his reputation is wrong and despicable. Today I want to help set things straight about John Ashcroft, and to separate the facts from the lies and distortions that are being carelessly tossed around about him and his record.

First of all, John Ashcroft is one of the most qualified nominees ever to be named to be Attorney General. He was twice elected to be Missouri's attorney general. He was twice elected to be Missouri's Governor. And the people of Missouri elected him in 1994 to be one of their U.S. Senators.

None of our previous Attorneys General has had such broad popular support from the people who knew them best.

In each of these posts, John Ashcroft served with distinction, being honored by his peers with leadership positions.

As Missouri's attorney general, John Ashcroft was elected president of the National Association of Attorneys General. In other words, the other 49 elected him to lead their group.

As Missouri's Governor, he was elected chairman of the National Governors' Association. The same thing: 49 others elected him to lead the Governors' organization.

Now many of the liberal special interests groups are trying to tar and feather him by attacking his long and distinguished record of public service.

But facts are stubborn things, and the facts prove them wrong.

The liberals claim that John's views are out of the mainstream. Some are even resorting to name-calling and calling him a racist and an extremist.

It is hard to see how he could be such a demon and still be five times elected to statewide office.

If John Ashcroft's execution of these earlier public trusts was as far ''out of the mainstream'' as his critics now claim, the people of Missouri would have ridden him out of town on a rail. His peers surely would not have honored him for his achievements.

The fact of the matter is that John Ashcroft's views are in line with those of most Missourians and most Americans.

If his ideas and beliefs are so far out of the mainstream, are John Ashcroft's critics really saying that the majority of citizens in Missouri who elected him to these posts are extremists? Are his critics ready to make this claim? I doubt it.

The rhetoric we have heard from these critics serves nothing more than to fatten up the fundraising of the left and to scare people into voting for liberals by continuing to try and label conservatives as mean-spirited.

We saw it with Robert Bork. We saw it with Clarence Thomas. Now we are seeing it with John Ashcroft.

It is just hot air, and I believe that the American people are going to reject these tactics and the politics of personal destruction.

Another one of the lies that is being told about John Ashcroft is that he is a racist. His critics point to his opposition to Missouri Judge Ronnie White for a position as a Federal judge as proof.

But, again, let's ignore the rhetoric and look at the facts. When he was Governor, John Ashcroft appointed the first black judge to one of Missouri's appellate courts. As a Senator, John Ashcroft voted to confirm 26 black judges out of 28 nominated to the Federal bench.

He led the fight to save Lincoln University which was founded by black soldiers. His wife, Janet, even teaches as a law professor at Howard University, one of our leading historically black colleges.

For his critics to now turn around and call John a racist is absurd and nothing more than dirty politics. When they're not calling John Ashcroft a racist, the liberals sneer that he can't be trusted to enforce the law. They don't have any real proof, just a lot of strong words. They say that John isn't fair-minded enough to enforce laws he might not agree with.

But John did a fine job enforcing Missouri's laws when he was attorney general there. And I believe that after he lays his hand on the Bible and swears to uphold the Constitution as our 68th Attorney General that he will do a fine job for our Nation.

Eight years ago when Janet Reno was nominated to be Attorney General, no one made the ridiculous charge that she wouldn't uphold laws she might not agree with.

No one can or should make the same claim about John Ashcroft.

John Ashcroft will enforce the law. He is a man of his word. He has an impeccable record of law enforcement. I know and I fully trust him to do the job which he will be sworn to do.

Let's face it. The real problem the critics on the left have is John Ashcroft's stance on the issues and his conservative philosophy. But they know they can't use this as a real reason to defeat his nomination, so they resort to calling him names and throwing mud at him, hoping that some will stick. They drag out the process as long as possible and dig around in the dirt for any scraps they can find.

They smear his good name. They make up bogus charges. They even sink as low as to question his religious beliefs. It is very sad, but it won't work.

The job of Attorney General is not to advocate policy. It is to enforce our laws. The question we have to ask about John Ashcroft is, will he enforce those laws? His record says he will. He has repeatedly said he will. There is no evidence to say otherwise, just false charges and name-calling.

John Ashcroft is going to be confirmed, and I believe his critics and the tactics they take will backfire.

Mr. President, I urge my colleagues to vote for John Ashcroft. We could not ask for a more qualified and fair-minded person for the job. John will make us all very proud.

I yield the floor.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, the Senator from Rhode Island came to the floor quickly. The Senator from Oklahoma has about a 4-minute statement he would like to make on Christine Todd Whitman. Would the Senator from Rhode Island allow him to proceed?

Mr. REED. Absolutely.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

NOMINATION OF CHRISTINE TODD WHITMAN

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I thank the assistant minority leader.

Certainly in having the discussion on the floor about Christine Todd Whitman and her nomination to be the director of the EPA—I have served on the Environment and Public Works Committee since I have been in the Senate—I can say what a refreshing change it is going to be. I have watched her record and things for which she stands. She is someone who really believes in a commonsense approach to solving problems. She has experience as Governor and has the desire for cost-effective programs and environmental beliefs. I am very pleased that she is going to take on this job at a time when we really have serious problems.

For the last 8 years, we have not had a reliance upon science in the promulgation of our rules and regulations. We haven't had the cost-benefit analyses that I think most people realize we should have. I think there is a lot of work to be done.

I was very upset when we ended up with the so-called ''midnight regulations.'' I applaud President Bush for issuing a 60-day review of all of the Clinton administration's midnight regulations. For example, one of the regulations was the final rule, the sulfur diesel rule which spent 2 weeks at the OMB instead of the customary 90 days. This is something that will have a direct effect on the cost of fuel, something we were having hearings on, and we didn't need to rush into that. Or some of the regulations having to do with putting 60 million acres out of reach so that they cannot be developed or have roads built on them.

Right now, we have a crisis in this country. Some States have a greater crisis than we have. But certainly it is a crisis in terms of the price of fuel and the availability of fuel. By putting this 60 million acres in the category that it is in, it would keep us from developing about 21 trillion cubic feet of natural gas. That would be enough to run this country for a period of 1 year.

The EPA doesn't operate in a vacuum. Some of the things they have and the rules they promulgate affect other departments. I happen to be chairman of the Senate Armed Services Subcommittee on Readiness. And I can tell you right now that some of the EPA regulations on our training grounds have caused us to be less than adequate in our training activities. In fact, we have testimony from one of our commander trainers that they spend more money on compliance of EPA rules and regulations than they do actually on training.

In terms of the energy supply, we can't just act as though all of these new rules and regulations affecting our refiners don't have an effect on cost. They do have an effect on cost of gasoline that we burn in our cars. It is something that will have to be dealt with. Right now, we are at 100 percent of refining capacity in this country. Any new rules and regulations that would cause any of these refiners to drop down directly impacts and increases the cost of fuel.

If I could single out one thing that I am really thankful for in Christine Todd Whitman taking on this position, it is that she has been on the receiving end of abusive regulations. She has been the Governor of a State that had to comply with things without adequate time, without the resources, and I think it is time we had someone in that position who has been on the receiving end of these regulations. I am sure Christine Todd Whitman will be one of the best directors we have ever had for the EPA.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. REED. Thank you, Mr. President.

NOMINATION OF JOHN ASHCROFT

Mr. REED. Mr. President, after listening to the testimony given before the United States Senate Judiciary Committee and after much reflection, I decided to oppose the nomination of John Ashcroft as Attorney General of the United States.

This has been a difficult decision; one that I take very seriously. Just as the Constitution gives the President the unfettered right to submit nominees to the Senate, the Constitution requires the Senate to give ''Advice and Consent'' on such nominations.

The Senate does not name a President's Cabinet, but it also does not merely rubber stamp his choices. Senatorial consent must rest on a careful review of a nominee's record and a thoughtful analysis of a nominee's ability to serve not just the President, but the American people.

Unlike other cabinet positions, the Attorney General has a very special role—decisively poised at the juncture between the executive branch and the judicial branch. In addition to being a member of the President's Cabinet, the Attorney General is also an officer of the federal courts and the chief enforcer of laws enacted by Congress.

He is in effect the people's lawyer, responsible for fully, fairly and vigorously enforcing our nation's laws and Constitution for the good of all.

In addition to being intellectually gifted, legally skilled and of strong moral character, I believe that the position of Attorney General requires an outlook and temperament that will allow the American people to believe that he will champion their individual rights more than any particular and potentially divisive dogma.

During the past several weeks, I have listened to John Ashcroft's words in the context of his lifetime of public conduct. As a state attorney general, a governor and a United States Senator, he has established a pattern of activism that challenges important civil and individual rights.

Instead of being a positive force for reconciling the races, as Missouri's Attorney General John Ashcroft conducted a futile struggle to frustrate the voluntary integration of public schools.

He fought a voluntary desegregation plan for the city of St. Louis, showed defiance of the courts in those proceedings and used that highly charged issue for political advantage instead of for constructive action.

Instead of accepting commonsense approaches to limiting the damage done by guns in our society, he has rigidly worked against such solutions—such simple solutions as asking that guns be sold with safety locks

He also has aggressively worked to dismantle some of our country's most basic legal tenets, such as the separation between church and state.

On the nomination of Judge Ronnie White to the United States Federal court, he appears to have mischaracterized Judge White's record unfairly, and at the end of the process, raising issues that really did not go to the merits of Judge White's nomination. This raises serious concerns and questions about both his sense of fair play and his respect for judicial independence.

In sum, although he claims he will enforce the letter of the law, I fear he will not recognize the true spirit of the law.

I believe he will use the considerable power of the Attorney General in directing resources, initiating lawsuits, and interpreting the law to clearly and consciously impose his views as he has done in the past.

His views are not the views of a vast majority of Americans, regardless of political affiliation.

Given the extremely divisive nature of the last election, and the nature of some of the voting irregularities, our nation needs an Attorney General who can lead us on critical civil rights issues, unite us in the pursuit of justice, and help heal some of these wounds.

I believe that John Ashcroft lacks the temperament needed to serve as Attorney General of the United States and I cannot support his nomination as our next Attorney General.

I yield the floor. I note the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the quorum call be dispensed with and that I may proceed for 5 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Florida is recognized without objection.

BUDGET PITFALLS

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, I had the privilege of coming to Congress in 1978 and being assigned as a freshman in January of 1979 to the House Budget Committee. In 1979, I never thought I would live to see the day we would balance the budget, much less did I think I would live to see the day that, in fact, we would get into a surplus situation. Now, in this time of prosperity and budget surpluses, it is very much incumbent upon us to be fiscally wise and fiscally disciplined in how we use these budget surpluses so we do not go back into the boom-and-bust cycles that we have experienced in the past.

Mr. President, 22 years ago as a freshman member of the House Budget Committee—I am now a freshman member of the Senate Budget Committee—we had an annual deficit somewhere in the range of about $20 billion to $24 billion. Then, as we moved into the decade of the 1980s, that annual deficit crept higher and higher and higher. Toward the end of the decade of the 1980s, we exceeded $300 billion in annual deficit spending. That is not the kind of financial situation you want.

Indeed, we just had Mr. Greenspan before the Budget Committee and he continued the very severe lecture that he has given us for years, which is: Be very fiscally disciplined and wise, and don't return to that era of deficit spending.

I bring this up today—and this is, by the way, my maiden speech in the Senate, so what a privilege for me to be here, what a privilege to represent such a dynamic State as the State of Florida—but I rise on the occasion of my maiden speech to talk about the potential pitfalls that could take us back into deficit spending. In these times of prosperity and budget surpluses, it is important for us to be very wise and fiscally conservative in making these choices—and we are going to make some choices very soon.

One of the first choices we have to make is: Are we going to use all of the Social Security surplus and most of the Medicare trust fund surplus to be applied to reducing the national debt? I can tell you the people in Florida believe very firmly that we should use the surplus to reduce and ultimately pay off the national debt. I think most of us, almost unanimously in this Chamber, would be dedicated to that particular part of budgetary restraint. We have the surpluses. We need to do that.

The next question that is going to face us, then, is: What should be the size of the tax cut?

I am going to argue and articulate about what my people have educated me, and that is to craft a Federal budget that will be balanced so we can have a substantial tax cut and, at the same time, we can address a number of other very important needs facing this country, such as modernizing Medicare, a 35-year-old system, to provide a guaranteed prescription drug benefit.

I will give another example: a substantial investment in education that will help bring down class sizes and pay teachers more to give them the respect they need in their profession and who ought to have the very best to compete with the private sector, so that we have the very best teaching for our children; an investment in education that will also enable us to make the classrooms more safe and the schools safe.

In addition to lowering class sizes, paying teachers more, and making the schools safe, we should have our schools accountable for the product they produce. That is just another example.

Clearly, defense is another important priority: the new systems we are going to need, the research and development that will be needed. Indeed, what is one of the main reasons for having a National Government? It is to provide for the common defense, not even speaking about the question of pay for our men and women in our armed forces.

I have only listed three, and there are many more. I mentioned prescription drugs, education, and defense, all being needs in which, over the next decade, this Government is going to have to invest more.

The question is: With the available surplus, after we subtract the Social Security surplus and the Medicare trust fund surplus, with what is left, what is wise for us then to enact in a tax cut? Should it be the tax cut that is proposed by the administration which, after one considers the interest cost and the alternative minimum tax, is going to be in the range of a $2.2 trillion tax cut over a decade? What that would do is wipe out all of the available remaining surplus over the next decade so there would not be anything left for prescription drugs, education, defense, strengthening Social Security, the environment, and I could go on and on.

What I argue in my maiden speech in this august body, of which I am so privileged to be a part, is that we approach our budget with balance, that we keep in mind primarily paying down the national debt with the surplus, and that as we make choices, we make them wisely on a substantial tax cut, but a tax cut that leaves enough of the surplus left to do these other things; plus one more thing, and that is, we need a rainy day fund.

We do not know that these budget projections are going to pan out over the course of the next 10 years. We ought to have a cushion. We ought to be conservative in our fiscal planning so that if those budget projections do not turn out to be accurate, then we have a cushion to fall back on so we never get back into the situation we were in during the decade of the eighties when, in 1981, we enacted a tax cut that was so large—and I voted for it; I admit I am gun shy on this because of the lessons I learned—we had to undo it not once but three times, in 1983, 1986, and again in 1990 when I had the privilege of serving in the Congress.

I argue for balance, I argue for fiscal restraint, I argue for fiscal discipline, I argue for fiscal conservatism as we make these choices in the budget that we will be adopting over the next several months.

I thank the Chair.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Indeed, I yield with pleasure.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I was sitting at my desk poring over my mail, watching for grammatical errors, errors in sentence construction, and, lo and behold, I heard this voice coming to me. I heard the voice saying this was a maiden speech, so I just stopped everything, and I said to the other staff people in the office: That man says this is his maiden speech. I am going to go up and listen to him.

This is a reminder to me of the old days when Senators gathered around close to hear a new Senator's maiden speech. The word would go out, and we came. We did not have the public address system. We gathered close by so that we could clearly understand the words that were being spoken, and we looked the speaker eye in the eye and he looked us eye in the eye.

This reminds me of those days when Senators gathered together to listen to a new Senator. This Senator has greatly impressed me. He serves on the Budget Committee with me. We are both newcomers on that committee. I have had the chance to talk on very few occasions with Senator NELSON. I have been impressed by his straightforwardness, his high sense of purpose in service. He comes to us from Florida. My wife and I lived in Florida for 7 months during the last days of the war—the Second World War, that is, not the Civil War.

I was a welder in the shipyard at the McClosky shipyard in Tampa. Spessard Holland was the Governor of the State of Florida. I later came to this body, and, lo and behold, here was Spessard Holland in this body. I went right over there, about the second or third seat in the front row, and I sat down and talked with Spessard Holland the day I was sworn in. I said: Well, Governor, I lived in your State. I was a welder down in your State while you were Governor. I am proud to be here serving with you.

Spessard Holland was a very fine Senator. He was always courteous to a fault and made up his own mind. I think this Senator from Florida will be one who will make up his own mind. That is something we need to be very careful of here. I do not count myself being in a particular ideological group of Senators. I am an independent Senator—not an Independent but an independent Democrat. Sometimes I differ with my other Democratic friends.

That is not the point here. I think we have a fine Senator in Senator NELSON who will be his own man, who will make up his own mind. He will study things carefully, and he will try to reach a reasoned, balanced—I use his word ''balanced'' there—disciplined—he used that word, too—judgment. I am proud we have such a man coming into the Senate. I predict he will be a power in the Senate, and I consider myself very fortunate in having the opportunity to serve with Senator NELSON.

I was trying to think of a bit of poetry that I wanted to recall for this particular occasion. But aside from that—I may get back to it later—I like what the Senator said. He intends to weigh very carefully this proposed tax cut which is in the nature of $1.6 trillion. That is $1,600 for every minute since Jesus Christ was born. That is a good way to gauge the size of this tax cut: $1,600 for every 60 seconds since the birth of our Lord Jesus Christ.

That is a lot of money, and I am going to weigh it very carefully with him. Yes, we need to think carefully about education. We also must remember that the 7 percent contribution we make to the education budgets in the States is not a great deal. And I am not sure how much good what we contribute really does. Probably, we will never be really sure.

But education is at the local level. We need good teachers, teachers who know the subjects, teachers who are dedicated. We need parents who will back up the teachers. And we need students who want to learn.

I was fortunate, coming up in the Great Depression, to have good teachers. They didn't make much money, and many times they had to give 20 to 25 percent of their check in order to get it cashed in the days of the Great Depression. But they were dedicated teachers.

I started out in a two-room schoolhouse; I am proud of it. I thank God for it. I thank God for the fact that I came through the Great Depression. It left some very vivid memories with me.

I was born in 1917, and so my recollections of the Great Depression are as they were only of yesterday. I remember that little two-room schoolhouse at Algonquin in Mercer County. And I remember a little two-room schoolhouse up on Nubbins Ridge where I attended. There were two teachers in that little school. One was a man; one was a lady. The man walked, I expect, 4 miles every morning to school. He came from far down the creek, and he came up, walked by my house, and I fell in line when he came by the house, and I walked on to school with him.

I learned in those days. My heroes were the great patriots of the American Revolution. And they were men such as George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, Francis Marion, the ''Swamp Fox,'' Daniel Morgan, and men who lived during the formation of this Republic.

Now, I wanted to learn. And the man who raised me never told me he would ever go up and whip the teacher if I came home with a bad report card. He wouldn't go up. And if the teacher gave me a whipping—which he didn't—I was told that I would get another one when I got home. And I knew that was the case.

I wanted to please the two old people who raised me. They were not my father and mother, but I wanted to please them. I wanted to please the teacher, just to get a pat on the back, just to get a little pat on the top of my head from the teacher.

I remember I took violin lessons beginning in the seventh grade. And at this particular school—it was in a coal mining camp—the principal was a tough disciplinarian, the kind we need in our schools, if they would let teachers discipline children. I don't think they will let them do that anymore. Too bad.

But the principal's wife was a music teacher, and an excellent one. She talked me into asking the people who raised me if they would buy a violin for me so I could take music lessons. She thought I might grow up to be a violinist.

So I remember one Saturday night when we all piled into the back of a big truck and went to Beckley 10 or 12 miles away. And there—I always called him my dad; he was the only dad I ever knew—he bought a violin and a case and a fiddle bow. Now I am talking about a fiddle, but it is all the same thing. But this whole kit and caboodle cost about $26 or $28. That was big money in a coal camp.

Anyhow, I went home that night carrying that fiddle case under my arm and with visions—old men dream dreams, and young men have visions—of myself being a Fritz Chrysler or a great violinist. Well, I took lessons. And in this high school orchestra, I was the first violinist. It so happens, I was the first violinist. I was the first one. I got to the point where I thought I had all the lessons down pat, that I didn't have to practice as hard anymore.

So one day I went to school, and the teacher had a little tryout. And lo and behold, she demoted me to the second chair. I went home a crushed lad, crushed because I had been demoted. I liked that music teacher. In all my years of 83, I have lost I think four teeth. It was on one of those occasions when I had an abscessed tooth that this music teacher said to her husband: Now, you take this boy to Sophia. That was 3 miles away. This was in the wintertime. It was up a steep mountain. She said: You take him up to the dentist. And he took me.

I was crushed that night because I had been demoted. But it was my fault. I got just a little too overly confident. So that night I practiced and I practiced and I practiced and I practiced; and the next day I recovered my first chair in that orchestra. Those are the kinds of teachers we had.

We can put all the money we want into education, but the teachers have to be dedicated teachers. I had dedicated. They didn't make much money. As I say, they had to give a fourth or a fifth of it away in order to get a check cashed in the days of the Depression. But we can't pay enough money to a good teacher. And it is very disappointing to me when I see athletes draw down millions of dollars every year. Of course, I admire good athletes, but I think this country has gone all wild over athletes, and it is standing its values on its head. A lot of these athletes go out here and they commit crimes. They are not very good models. Of course, there are people outside athletics who are not good models, too. There have been a few in politics, especially in recent years, perhaps not altogether recent years.

Look at some of the anchors on the TV from the networks. They are drawing down $5 million, $6 million, $7 million, $8 million a year. They aren't worth it. They aren't worth it.

But we need to stimulate a love and a search for excellence in this country. Most of that can be done, most of the stimulation of that, the motivation of that; some of it will come from within; some of it starts in here. But it also comes from a good teacher, a good parent, who sets the example for that young person and encourages them to study, and study, and make something out of themselves—to use the words of my own people who raised me, try to make something out of themselves, try to continue learning.

I try to continue learning. I am always trying to learn. Solon, one of the seven wise men of Greece, said: ''I grow old in the pursuit of learning.''

We can pour out all the money from the Treasury, but it can be poured down a rat hole. The motivation has to be there. The good teacher has to be there. We ought to pay those good teachers. After all, they are dealing with our most precious resource. They ought to be paid well. But they ought to be held accountable for the work they do. And the parents, as I say, ought to strive to stimulate in the child a motivation, a desire to learn, learn, learn.

I have gone a long way in my desultory ramblings here, but this matter of education is one that is overly, overly, overly important. As I often say to young people, no ball game ever changed the course of history, not one. And when you have seen one, you have seen them all. When you have seen one ball game, you have seen them all.

I can play every position on the team. I can go through all the motions. I don't say this now in derogation of athletics. I don't do that at all. But we have our values standing on their heads. We have a job to do. We do need to think about education, as we think about the so-called surpluses. These surpluses, I have seen them on paper. I haven't seen one yet that really glitters because we don't have them in hand, and we may never have them in hand. If we go for this big tax cut, $1.6 trillion, once we write that law and the President signs it, that money goes out. It is gone. The surpluses won't be in hand, if ever, for some years. It will take a while. So we need to proceed with great caution.

I hope the Senator will forgive me for imposing on his time. I felt so proud to see Senator NELSON come to the floor. I have lived more than 83 years. I have been fooled by a few people in my lifetime.

My mom used to keep boarders, and I would go to her when we had a new boarder, and I would say: Mom, that man is going to cheat you out of your board payment.

I didn't do that often, but I think I was about right in every one I selected. That man will cheat you out of your board bill; there is something about him.

I think there is something about this man. In any case, he is going to be a good Senator, a hard-working one. I am proud to listen to him in his maiden speech, and I am delighted to work with him. I thank him for what he has said today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired. The Senator from Colorado is recognized.

Mr. REID. Will the Senator yield for a brief comment?

Mr. ALLARD. I am glad to yield.

Mr. REID. I also appreciate having had the opportunity to listen to the Senator from Florida. We served in the House together. He is just as good as the Senator from West Virginia expects him to be.

It is a rare occasion that we have on the Senate floor two doctors: the doctor from Colorado and the Presiding Officer who is a doctor. They are both doctors of veterinary medicine. I think we should recognize the fact that they are and recognize that their talents are far beyond their medical training. It is unusual to have two doctors on the floor at the same time.

I yield the floor to the Senator from Colorado and recognize that my friend, the Presiding Officer, is also a doctor of veterinary medicine.

Mr. BYRD. Will the distinguished Senator yield to me briefly?

Mr. ALLARD. I am glad to yield to the Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. I did not know that Senator ALLARD was a doctor. He has gone up in stature with me since I have learned that. I have a little dog, a little Maltese dog, Billy Byrd. He is approaching his 14th birthday. If I ever saw in this world anything that was made by the Creator's hand that is more dedicated, more true, more undeviant, more faithful than this little dog, I am at a loss to state what it is. I take my hat off. My wife and I pay some pretty high bills to some of these veterinarians, but we gladly pay them. We love that little dog. I take my hat off. I wish I could say that I had been a veterinarian. It must be a joy to work with animals, especially with dogs. I believe it was Truman who said: If you want a friend in Washington, buy a dog. Well, I have a friend in McLean, and I take my hat off to the veterinarians, the two of them, the one in the Chair as well. I am glad we have two here. I did not know this about Senator ALLARD. I have served with him a while. I am pleased to hear this.

Thank you for the services you perform on creatures that make us happy and that show us God's love and show us how to be honest and true and faithful and guileless.

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Will the Senator further yield?

Mr. ALLARD. I thank the Senator from West Virginia, as well as the Senator from Nevada, and in a moment I will recognize the Senator from Florida to comment, too.

I want to invite all of you to join the veterinary caucus with all the favorable comments we are getting here. Before I yield to the Senator from Florida, I want to respond that Senator GREGG has a dog by the name of Wags, and Wags comes down the hallway and frequently comes into my office to say hello. We visit with him a little bit. If your dog is ever visiting you in your office, bring him down. We love dogs and would like to have an opportunity to get to know Senator BYRD's dog.

I yield to the Senator from Florida.

Mr. NELSON of Florida. I thank the distinguished Senator for yielding for me to make the comment that it is not only a great privilege to serve here and to represent my State, but it is doubly a pleasure to serve with the quality of Members of this body as exemplified by the senior Senator from West Virginia. He is someone I have naturally gravitated to in these first few weeks as someone from whom I can learn a lot. Of course, I knew of his tremendous talents as one of the best orators who has ever been produced in the Senate. His reputation precedes him as one of the best fiddlers the Nation has ever produced, and now I am delighted to know how he got started as an expert fiddler by virtue of the story he told us of receiving the gift of a violin as a child.

I thank the Senator for his comments, and I thank the Senator for yielding.

Mr. ALLARD. I would also like to join with the Senator in commending Senator BYRD for his distinguished service in the Senate. We all respect him. Whether we agree with him or not, he is one of the more honorable Members here, somebody I appreciate. He has joined on the Budget Committee; I am new on the Budget Committee. I am looking forward to visiting with him about those issues as they come up before the Budget Committee. I think it is going to be a challenging year, and it is an important committee. It is an important start for the Congress.

Hopefully, we will get some legislation quickly reported out of there, as we get the process moving forward.

Again, I am glad we have all these animal lovers here in the Senate. I talked to Senator ENSIGN, who is in the Chair, about facetiously setting up a veterinary caucus. With all these comments, I begin to take it more seriously. We would like to perhaps extend an invitation to all the dog lovers here in the Senate, to see if they would like to join us.

Mr. BYRD. I thank the Senator.

NOMINATION OF JOHN ASHCROFT

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I come to the floor this evening to lend my support to President Bush's nomination of John Ashcroft to be the next United States Attorney General. He is another individual in the Senate whom I have always viewed as quite honorable.

It is the constitutional right and duty of each President to appoint Cabinet Members who will help serve the citizens of this great country during their tenure. I believe President Bush has made a wise choice in John Ashcroft as a member of his Cabinet.

John Ashcroft is a man of great honor and high personal integrity. He will bring these much needed characteristics to the office of the U.S. Attorney General. I have no doubt about that. He has had a long and distinguished career serving the people of Missouri and the people of the United States. I am confident he has the experience to fulfill the duties of this position.

Those who defended President Clinton to the death are now attacking one of the most honorable individuals of the Senate as less than honorable. This was most evident by Senator Ashcroft's gracious concession to his opponent in his Senate race in Missouri.

John Ashcroft served as Missouri's attorney general from 1976 to 1985, where he worked tirelessly to enforce Missouri State laws and chaired the National Association of Attorneys General; having been supported in that position, I might add, by both Democrats and Republicans. After serving his home State as their top law enforcement agent, he was elected as Missouri's 50th Governor in 1984. He was reelected in 1988 to a second term, where he received 64 percent of the vote.

It was during his second term that he was recognized as a leader among his colleagues and was named chairman of the National Governors' Association. Again, he was supported by both Democrats and Republicans.

In 1994, John Ashcroft was elected by the people of Missouri, this time to serve his State in the U.S. Senate. While serving in the Senate, Senator John Ashcroft was a member of the Judiciary Committee as well as chairman of the Judiciary Subcommittee on the Constitution. His record has shown a strong commitment to upholding the Constitution and the rule of law equally and fairly.

Throughout this grueling nomination process, Members on the other side of the aisle have questioned John Ashcroft and, in some cases, even accused him of allowing race to affect his decision on judicial nominees.

There is absolutely no evidence that backs up these absurd allegations.

Let me remind Members of this body that as a United States Senator John Ashcroft supported 26 of 28 African American Judicial nominees sent to the Senate for confirmation by the President.

As the Governor of Missouri, John Ashcroft nominated eight African American judges, including the first ever to the court of appeals in the state. He appointed three African American members to his cabinet while he was the chief executive of the state of Missouri. He supported and signed into law Missouri's Martin Luther King, Jr. holiday. He supported and signed the law that established Scott Joplin's house as the first and only historic site honoring an African American citizen. He led the fight to save independent Lincoln University, founded by African American soldiers.

He established an award, emphasizing academic excellence, in the name of George Washington Carver. I believe John Ashcroft wants equal opportunity extended to all.

Over the last few weeks we have heard from a number of people who have questioned the nomination of John Ashcroft. I would like to take a few moments to mention some of the groups who have endorsed the nominee for Attorney General:

National District Attorney's Association, Fraternal Order of Police, International Brotherhood of Police Officers, Law Enforcement Alliance of America, National Sheriffs Association, Missouri Police Chiefs of Police, National Victims Constitutional Amendment Network, Victims of Crime United, Citizens for Law and Order, Justice for Homicide Victims, Justice for Murder Victims, National Organization of Parents of Murdered Children, National Association of Manufacturers, United States of Commerce, Associated Builders and Contractors, American Farm Bureau Federation, and the American Insurance Association.

I could go on and on and continue to name a total of some 263 groups that have voiced their support for John Ashcroft to be the next Attorney General.

John Ashcroft is clearly qualified for the job of U.S. Attorney General.

He understands what is expected of the office. During his hearings he summed up his duties in one statement:

> My responsibility is to uphold the acts of the legislative branch of this government and I would do so and continue to do so in regard to the cases that now exist and further enactments of the Congress.

John Ashcroft is a man of unquestionably high character and morals who has the knowledge and experience to serve our Nation with justice and excellence as our Nation's next Attorney General.

Thank you Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Mr. President, I want to take just 1 minute to say a word of commendation for my colleague, John Ashcroft. As the Judiciary Committee, at this very hour, prepares to meet for a vote on his confirmation, I say that this man of honor and integrity has gone through an unprecedented ordeal in his desire to serve this country as Attorney General.

I cannot imagine any person who comes to that position with greater qualifications or a greater sense of integrity. I do not believe my colleagues on either side of the aisle would question this man's commitment nor his faith. In fact, I suggest no one would argue but that he is the man of deepest faith in this body, and yet that very faith commitment has been turned on its head to make it an issue against his confirmation. I find that astounding and very disappointing.

The fact that people would ask, can John Ashcroft enforce the laws because of his religion and his faith—John had the best answer to it when he said before the Judiciary Committee: I will enforce the laws of this land because of my faith. As someone who shares much of the same faith as John Ashcroft, I can relate to and understand exactly what John is saying.

Though he may hold deep convictions—and he may or may not agree with all the laws of this land—it is because of his deep faith that he knows he must enforce the laws of this land—and will.

Who in this body would question his sincerity or his honesty? And as he stood before the Judiciary Committee, and sat before that Judiciary Committee, and took that oath to tell the truth, and said he would enforce the laws of this land—whether he agreed with them or not—who would we be and which of my colleagues would dare question his sincerity or his honesty?

It was interesting to me, as you look back historically at how we have previously confirmed Democrat nominees for the Cabinet, overwhelming votes, without filibusters, and without delay, here is a quote about the nomination process worth repeating:

> We must always take our advice and consent responsibilities seriously because they are among the most sacred. But, I think most senators will agree that the standard we apply in the case of executive branch appointments is not as stringent as that for judicial nominees. The president should get to pick his own team. Unless the nominee is incompetent or some other major ethical or investigative problem arises in the course of our carrying out our duties, then the president gets the benefit of the doubt.

That statement was made by Senator LEAHY. He laid down the right standard. He is right. The President should be able to pick his own team. I hope my colleagues recognize that and will support the confirmation of our distinguished colleague from Missouri, Senator John Ashcroft.

Mr. President, I thank you and yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I rise this evening to speak about the nomination of Senator John Ashcroft to serve as Attorney General. I want to be very clear. I did not seek this debate. I think it is unfortunate that this new Senate has to address such a difficult and contentious nomination that opens up old history and old wounds and old debates, rather than moving forward on issues that unite our country.

I do not relish the role of opposing a new President's nominee for Attorney General. In fact, quite to the contrary. I believe a new President should be able to fill his Cabinet with the people he wants. Unfortunately, this is not something over which I have control. President Bush picked Senator Ashcroft and in doing so he brought this conflict upon himself and he must accept responsibility for that decision.

Senator Ashcroft, too, must accept responsibility for his actions, especially those that have raised doubts about his ability to serve as Attorney General. I did not seek this conflict, but under the U.S. Constitution the Senate is called upon to provide advice and consent on Cabinet appointments, and I take that responsibility seriously.

I do want to point out that I and all of my colleagues took great care to treat John Ashcroft carefully. In fact, throughout the debate over Senator John Ashcroft's nomination I have said that I would only make a decision after Senator Ashcroft had a full and fair hearing. That is what fairness requires.

Senator Ashcroft had an opportunity to respond to questions before the Senate Judiciary Committee. I reviewed the testimony thoroughly and then I reached my decision. I want to share with my colleagues and the people I represent how I reached the conclusion that Senator Ashcroft should not serve as Attorney General.

First, I considered the unique responsibility and trust placed in an Attorney General. Far more than any other Cabinet officer, the Attorney General of the United States has the power to affect the rights and the lives of all Americans. For that reason, this nominee must be chosen with great care.

I can tell you I spent many days and several long nights thinking about qualities I would want to see in an Attorney General. In addition to being honest and independent, that person must actively enforce the laws and ensure the public's confidence in our legal system. The Attorney General must also display the highest standards of fairness, trust, and respect for the law. I developed those standards and then I looked at Senator Ashcroft's statements in the RECORD.

As I have looked at the facts, it seems clear that, in his hearing, he obscured his record and did not prove to me that he is qualified to be Attorney General.

As I said, I have taken great care to ensure that John Ashcroft had a fair opportunity to respond to the questions raised about his nomination. Unfortunately, Senator Ashcroft did not extend that same standard of fairness to Judge Ronnie White, and fairness is one of the critical qualities needed in an Attorney General.

In the case of Ronnie White, Senator Ashcroft leveled serious charges against a respected jurist. Through Senator Ashcroft's timing and maneuvering, Judge White was never asked about those charges. Judge White was never even given an opportunity to defend himself, and that is fundamentally unfair.

In any Senator, such behavior is inappropriate and regrettable. In an Attorney General, such behavior can be dangerous.

Unfortunately, Ronnie White was not the only nominee that Senator Ashcroft, in his long tenure, has treated questionably. Senator Ashcroft's treatment of Ambassador James Hormel is also very troubling to me. At the time Senator Ashcroft said he opposed Mr. Hormel's selection to be Ambassador to Luxembourg because he actively promoted the gay lifestyle. More recently, however, we heard a different answer from John Ashcroft. He told the Senate Judiciary Committee that he voted against Mr. Hormel because he knew him personally. But Mr. Hormel has said that he never met Senator Ashcroft, and, further, that Senator Ashcroft had refused to even meet with him. In fact, John Ashcroft would not even attend the nomination hearing in the Foreign Relations Committee of which he was a member. His treatment of Mr. Hormel, and his varying and contradicted claims about the reason for his decision, give me great pause.

It would be easy to give Senator Ashcroft the benefit of the doubt if this were an isolated incident, but in addition to Ronnie White and James Hormel, Senator Ashcroft also treated Bill Lann Lee unfairly. As my colleagues will recall, Bill Lann Lee was nominated to be head of the Justice Department Civil Rights Division. In opposing Lee, Ashcroft said Lee had an intensity that belongs to advocacy, not the balance that belongs to administration.

It seems to me that Senator Ashcroft would not even pass his own test. Senator Ashcroft's treatment of Judge White, Ambassador James Hormel, Bill Lann Lee, and others does not show the level of fairness that an Attorney General must display. This is not how the U.S. attorney general should treat people.

Let me turn to the second standard I considered—trust. The Attorney General must be someone the American people can trust to vigorously protect their rights.

Citizens of this country should feel comfortable that the highest law enforcement officer of the land will ensure their basic liberties. Unfortunately, for far too many Americans, Senator Ashcroft's record creates fear, not trust. His appointment sends the wrong message to Americans who already face discrimination and unfair treatment in their daily lives.

Next I want to turn to integrity because Senator Ashcroft is often said to be a man of integrity, and I do not challenge his integrity, but I do ask this: If he is true to his beliefs, how can he vigorously enforce the laws he has vehemently opposed and sought to overturn throughout his public service?

His past history shows he does not believe in and has fought against the laws that strengthen gun safety, protect a woman's right to choose, and civil rights. I can only assume that a man who prides himself on his integrity would continue to advocate those views.

John Ashcroft is a man of uncommonly strong beliefs. Based on what I know of Senator Ashcroft, he has not convinced me that he can set aside those beliefs to execute fully the laws with which he disagrees.

I also considered Senator Ashcroft's willingness to enforce the law, especially those with which he disagreed. Because we are a nation of laws, the Attorney General must actively enforce our laws. This is an area where Senator Ashcroft has an extensive record.

Unfortunately, as Missouri's attorney general, John Ashcroft was selective in his application of the law. Often he acted outside the scope of his office. For example, Senator Ashcroft refused several court orders to implement desegregation of public schools in St. Louis. In fact, one judge said of Senator Ashcroft's efforts representing Missouri:

> The State has, as a matter of deliberate policy, decided to defy the authority of this court.

The St. Louis desegregation case is the most troubling example of Senator Ashcroft's refusal to enforce the laws with which he disagreed.

Senator Ashcroft has also failed to convince me that he would actively enforce the laws that protect a woman's right to choose.

Finally, the Attorney General must be someone to whom all Americans can look as their advocate. President Bush has said he wants to unite our country, not divide it. This nomination, more than any I have ever seen, has divided our country and left many Americans wondering if their rights will be protected in the Bush administration.

I have received literally thousands of calls from a wide variety of citizens in my State asking me to oppose Senator Ashcroft's nomination, and they are not just saying oppose Ashcroft and hanging up. These are people who are telling me they have been following the debate and are really concerned that their rights will not be protected if John Ashcroft becomes Attorney General.

I want to say one more thing about the high level of public comment we have heard in recent weeks. Some claim that interest groups are to blame for John Ashcroft's problems. I disagree. No interest group made John Ashcroft mistreat Ronnie White or James Hormel or Bill Lann Lee. John Ashcroft did that himself, and he has to accept responsibility for his actions.

Those are the factors I considered: fairness, trust, ability to enforce the law, and ability to represent all Americans and to safeguard their rights.

I asked myself: Is John Ashcroft someone whom all Americans can trust to treat them fairly and to protect their rights? I have concluded he is not.

I will vote against John Ashcroft because he has not shown the fairness, the trust, or the respect of the law required in America's highest law enforcement officer.

Given the likelihood of his confirmation, I hope that John Ashcroft's actions in office will prove me wrong. Either way, I will hold President Bush accountable for his decision.

I thank the Chair, and I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. VOINOVICH). The Senator from Alabama.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, President Bush's Cabinet nominees are the finest group of Cabinet nominees I believe we have seen in the last 100 years. They are extraordinary men and women of accomplishment and achievement. They are grownups. They are people who have a proven record of achievement, and I am proud of them.

John Ashcroft is a quality nominee. He is 59 years old. He served twice as attorney general of Missouri, twice as Governor, and he was elected to the Senate. He was five times elected to public office in the State of Missouri, a heartland State, a State that is always a bellwether for who will win the Presidency.

This is not a man who is an extremist. This is one of the finest, most decent men I have ever known. This is a man who tells the truth to a degree unusual in this Capital, and to have John Ashcroft accused of not telling the truth by the very same people who on this floor defended the former President of the United States, Bill Clinton, for bald-faced misrepresentations and lies he has finally admitted to making is stunning.

John Ashcroft is not that kind of person. John Ashcroft is a better person than that. He tells the truth. He does what is right. I have seen that aspect of his character exhibited time and time again on this floor. He is one of the most principled and decent Senators I have ever known.

As I told some friends of mine back home, I have not met a finer person in my church, in my State, or in Washington than John Ashcroft.

It is really disturbing to me to have Members of this body be encouraged and pushed by a group of hard-left activists to make statements that are demonstrably untrue. This is especially true when the people parroting these irresponsible statements were not present to observe the hearings that we had on this nomination. In fact, some who have announced their intentions to vote against John Ashcroft did not even wait for the Judiciary Committee hearings to begin before making their rush to judgment.

I am a member of the Judiciary Committee, and I was there when we had the hearings concerning this nomination. The committee gave everybody their say. We had representatives of Planned Parenthood, who oppose virtually any kind of control on abortion. We had representatives of the National Abortion Rights Action League as well. We also had a representative from Handgun Control who admitted to me that his organization never criticized the Clinton administration when they allowed prosecutions of gun crimes to drop 46 percent over the past eight years.

He never criticized the Clinton administration, not even one single time. Yet he has no problem launching attacks on Republicans who would not agree to support more and more regulation of innocent law-abiding citizens who want to possess guns. That is what the gun debate had become. Whatever bill you agree to pass, these groups want to put something more extreme out there so that it implicates the second amendment to a degree that is arguably unconstitutional, thereby giving them ammunition with which to attack the person who will not vote for it.

They never criticized the Clinton administration for not prosecuting gun cases even though Attorney General Reno allowed prosecutions to plummet 46 percent over the past eight years. Why was this group silent? If their agenda is truly one of concern about the criminal misuse of firearms, why were they willing to turn a blind eye to the Democratic administrations lax enforcement efforts?

The truth is that many of these activist groups are fundamentally arms of the Democratic National Committee, and they are leaders of the hard left in America. They think they can come in and dictate to the President of the United States that he cannot appoint a decent, exceptionally skilled, and fine individual as Attorney General of the United States.

John Ashcroft went to Yale. He graduated from the University of Chicago Law School.

He is a scholar. I have heard him make speeches that are extraordinarily fine in their analytical thought. He follows his principles to a degree that I think is unsurpassed here. So it is really surprising to me to hear these complaints raised about him.

Let's talk about one matter his opponents keep raising. I would like to stand here all night debunking the myths that the far left has attempted to construct, but for the moment I am just going to talk about a couple of them tonight. The Ronnie White matter is one of the first myths that the hard left is perpetuating.

Let's look at the facts. John Ashcroft voted for every single African American judicial nominee who came up for a vote on this floor except Ronnie White—26 out of 27. Ronnie White was opposed not only from his home State of Missouri by John Ashcroft, he was also opposed by KIT BOND, the senior Senator from Missouri. Both of the home State Senators opposed this nominee. Was this some sort of an extremist position? I mean, confirmation is a fact and we need to deal with the cases that come before us.

John made a speech on this floor indicating his opposition to that nomination. He voted against it in committee. I think it came up in committee on two different occasions and on both occasions he voted against it and expressed his opposition to the nominee. But, to his credit, he did let the nominee come to the floor for a final vote. He agreed to allow that to happen.

So now he has been accused of intentionally mistreating Ronnie White because he allowed the full Senate to consider the nomination, rather than attempting to quietly defeat the nomination in committee. Let me tell you, if you hold a nominee in committee—and I suppose Senator BOND and Senator Ashcroft could have kept that nominee in committee—the left would have been attacking him now for not letting the White nomination come to a vote. I am telling you, that is what he would be accused of. I have been here on the floor, and I have seen that.

John made a speech delineating some of the reasons—which I am going to mention in a moment—that he opposed him. And 54 of the 100 Senators in this body voted no.

How is that an extreme matter? Why would they vote no? There were several reasons. Out of the 114 sheriffs in Missouri, 77 of them wrote in opposition to the White nomination. Incidentally, many of these sheriffs are Democrats. Additionally, the Mercer County District Attorney wrote a letter to John Ashcroft stating:

> Judge White's record is unmistakably anti-law enforcement, and we believe his nomination should be defeated. His rulings and dissenting opinions on capital cases and on fourth amendment issues should be disqualifying factors when considering his nomination.

You have heard another far left myth if you listened to the debate to date in that some opponents of John Ashcroft's nomination claim that John Ashcroft's members of the Supreme Court voted to dissent on criminal cases more frequently than Judge White. That is a very inaccurate statement. Let me tell you why. It is because apples are being compared to oranges. While the Ashcroft judge Mr. White replaced did vote against the imposition of the death penalty in a number of cases that Ashcroft nominee was voting on a series of cases that were not the same cases Judge White was ruling on when he was on the Supreme Court. He was ruling on a different group, with different facts and different legal questions involved. It is apples and oranges.

In order to place Judge White's death penalty dissents in proper perspective, it is necessary to compare Judge White's rulings to all the members of the court during the time Judge White sat on the court. When apples are compared to apples, it is clear that Judge White dissented four times more frequently than any other judge on that court.

That is a record that should be examined. That is a cause of concern. Some of Judge White's opinions that I have read cause me great concern because I was a Federal prosecutor for 15 years, and an attorney general for 2. I know some of the issues that come up with judges. I have spent by far the largest portion of my career in Federal court before Federal judges.

You have to understand something about Federal judges. They are appointed for life. They have absolute power in many instances in a trial, power that is unreviewable by any court. The most dramatic of these powers is the ability to grant a judgment of acquittal at the end of the prosecution's case.

For example, if you present a case against a defendant for murder, or some other fraud or crime, and the prosecution stands up at the end of its case and says, ''The prosecution rests,'' immediately now, these days, no matter what the evidence, the defense lawyer will stand up and make a motion for a judgment of acquittal.

Usually they are denied. Usually these motions are just hot air. They are just saying stuff for the record, frankly. Most prosecutors bring good, strong cases. So defense attorneys as a matter of routine move for a judgment of acquittal. If the judge grants that judgment of acquittal, it is the same as if a jury had acquitted that defendant. Jeopardy attaches. Under the Constitution of the United States, you cannot twice be held in jeopardy under the law. That defendant is acquitted, and he can never be tried again, no matter how guilty he or she may have been of the offenses charged.

So a Federal judge with a lifetime appointment in many ways is much more problematic for the system than one member of a seven-member supreme court. John Ashcroft, as a former State attorney general, understood that.

Federal judges also routinely overrule the entire criminal justice system of a State. You may say that is not routine. I suggest to you it is very frequent, and they are often asked to do so.

For example, if a case is appealed all the way to the Missouri Supreme Court, and the Missouri Supreme Court rules, then the defendant can file post-conviction relief in Federal court and ask the Federal court to review the State case to see if the Federal Constitution has been implicated and violated in some way that the defendant was tried.

So if you have a Federal judge on the bench who wants to let criminals go or is undisciplined in the responsibilities of his office in applying the law, or has demonstrated a bias against law enforcement officers, you can have a real problem.

In Alabama, people knew who the judges were who were always letting criminals go. It was not a secret. I am telling you, if you have a nominee come up from my State for a lifetime Federal judgeship, I am going to ensure—because I was an attorney general also—that they are going to give law enforcement a fair day in court, too. They are going give the prosecutor a fair chance to put on his or her case.

That is the way John Ashcroft felt about it. So imagine his concern when he realized that he had prosecutors in his State opposing the White nomination. He had a majority of the sheriffs in his state oppose this judge. He even received written opposition from national law enforcement organizations, such as the National Sheriffs Association, that wrote in and opposed this judicial nomination.

So, keeping these facts in mind, John looked at the record, and thoroughly examined a number of the opinions Judge White had issued which concerned these groups. And what he discovered, as he expressed in his floor speech at the time of the vote, is that Judge White had made a series of ''procriminal rulings''. The far left analyzes this as some sort of unwarranted attack upon Judge White's character, but it was not. It was simply a description of the opinions involved.

This is clear if one bothers to read the statement John made here on this floor. He was referring to his opinions. You can call them liberal opinions; you can call them bleeding heart opinions; you can call them anti-law-enforcement opinions. You can call them whatever you want to characterize them. But it is not disqualifying, in my opinion, to be Attorney General if you refer to a justice's opinions as procriminal when they continually rule in favor of criminal defendants.

One of the cases that caused the greatest disturbance was the Johnson case. In this case the defendant, Mr. Johnson, was involved in a domestic disturbance. The call went out to the sheriff's department. As so often happens, sheriff's deputies go out to those houses in response to a domestic call. These missions are considered to be perhaps the most risky and dangerous thing they do. In this case a deputy knocked on the door, and Johnson appears with a gun. As the deputy tried to get away, Johnson shot him in the back. The deputy fell to the ground, and Johnson walks over and puts a bullet through his forehead, execution style.

That is not enough to satisfy Johnson's blood lust, however. What does he do next? After murdering, in cold blood, a deputy doing his duty, Johnson goes out and tries to track down the sheriff. The sheriff isn't home. But the sheriff's wife is in the home, having a social gathering there—and with her own children about—and he shoots the wife five times through the window, killing her.

Then Johnson continues his rampage by tracking down two other deputy sheriffs and killing them.

This is one of the most horrible crimes I have seen.

At his trial, Johnson's defense lawyers suggest that because he served in Vietnam, the murders were the result of posttraumatic stress syndrome. The trial had all kinds of expert testimony and things of that nature to deal with this issue.

The defendant was caught, surrounded in a building, and surrendered. He made a detailed confession. I would say, as a prosecutor, it was a powerful demonstration of guilt beyond virtually any doubt that this defendant committed this crime.

The defense tried to say this guy thought he was in Vietnam. These were good defense lawyers, they had been award-winning criminal defense lawyers. All of them were highly skilled. So, on behalf of their client they claimed he had posttraumatic stress syndrome. In light of the overwhelming evidence what else could they do? The murders were plain and simple. During the course of the trial, these lawyers made some representations that were not factually accurate, but which were not sufficiently egregious for the majority of the Missouri Supreme Court to find any error in their actions.

But Judge White felt differently. He concluded that the defense attorneys were incompetent, and that Johnson didn't get a fair trial. He also suggested that he wanted to apply an insanity theory that was different from established Missouri law. In fact, what White said was that if Johnson didn't meet the legal definition of insanity, he had something ''akin to madness.''

Two of the most significant criminal justice issues in America are the question of insanity and incompetent counsel. That is true because so many cases in our criminal justice system are like this case—the guilt is clear and overwhelming. So when they go and appoint a paid State attorney, a court-appointed attorney—by the way, in this case these attorneys were retained counsel, hired by this defendant or his family; he hired them; he wanted good attorneys—normally, the appeal goes forward dutifully after conviction because that is what a lawyer is expected to do. The State will pay for it. So they make an appeal and raise these issues on appeal.

When the guilt is overwhelming and the defendant did something violent such as this, what are the two issues you can raise? Ineffective assistance of counsel and insanity. And in this one opinion, Judge White showed clearly that he lacked judicial discipline. He lacked a comprehensive and clear understanding of the importance of a judge maintaining clear rules on insanity and incompetence of counsel. His dissent, if applied, would have completely destabilized the law in both of those areas for the State of Missouri.

Another big factor in cases is, even if the lawyer made a mistake and could in one sense be held to be incompetent, the judge must ask himself, on appeal, would that have had any likelihood of changing the outcome of the case. Certainly it would not have in this case, as the majority opinion clearly held.

There were a series of other cases such as this one that caused the former attorney general of the State of Missouri to wrestle with his conscience about whether or not he could approve this judge. He concluded he could not, that he ought to oppose him. By giving him a lifetime-appointed Federal judicial position, the danger would be great, and he should not be promoted with this kind of anti-law-enforcement record. So he made a statement to that effect on the floor, and 54 Senators agreed with him.

That is not disqualifying. That shows to me a man of courage, because he knew it would be a difficult matter, that many would disagree with him and he would probably be attacked. It showed the kind of courage that prosecutors have to have. It is not always a pleasant task to take on these cases. You have to do your duty, and John did in this case.

He did the right thing. Judge White's opinions are, in my opinion, outside the mainstream, and he should not have been confirmed—54 Senators agreed with this conclusion.

The far left has also made allegations about the Bill Lann Lee nomination, and they have been attacking Senator Ashcroft for his small role—they don't say small role—in the Bill Lann Lee matter.

Bill Lann Lee was nominated by the President for chief of the Civil Rights Division of the Department of Justice. He had been a career civil rights attorney, a good one, who had filed lawsuits all over the country. That had been his goal throughout life. He came at the office from that perspective.

That is not disqualifying. As a matter of fact, it could be a good quality. In fact, I consider it a good quality that he had litigated and had been active in the areas of law which he would be called upon to enforce.

Many of his cases, however, had obtained rulings or forced agencies he was suing into consent decrees that went beyond what I believe is justified under current Supreme Court law. In fact, in recent years the U.S. Supreme Court rendered an opinion called the Adarand opinion. It was a very important case. It clarified in many ways the issue concerning quotas and affirmative action programs in terms of what is legitimate and what is not. Basically, the Supreme Court held that the Government can't have quotas. It cannot say that you get this contract for highway work because of the color of your skin and you don't get it because of the color of your skin. The Government can have affirmative action programs; it can have action to encourage small businesses. It can do a lot of different things to encourage minorities to have the opportunity to compete. But it cannot, as a matter of American law and fundamental justice, say to one group or another: You can't get this contract because of the color of your skin.

We had a hearing on that in the Judiciary Committee. We had Mrs. Adarand, the wife of Mr. Adarand, testify how their business had been damaged by a quota system in Federal highway funding. She described that in some detail.

We had a lady, a Chinese American from San Francisco, who testified about her daughter who had studied very hard to get into a special advanced quality school in San Francisco for math and science, I believe. She met the test scores, and they were so excited. Then she got a letter saying they were not accepted.

This woman went down to the school's office and said: My daughter made this test score. I thought she would be accepted. Why wasn't she?

She said the man to whom she was speaking looked at her and said: She was rejected because there are too many Chinese enrolled already.

Even though her child qualified in every way, she was rejected because of her ethnic, racial background.

That is the kind of thing that is happening in America today. It is not a healthy thing. Adarand made clear that those kinds of things are not justified. Adarand holds that there is a presumption in the law that programs based on race, that favor one group or another based on their race, are unconstitutional and that they fail and cannot be enforced unless they pass a strict scrutiny test, which is a very high test.

Isn't that true? Isn't that what America is about? Equal opportunity for all, regardless of their race and background, color or creed or religion? Yes, that is what America is about. So this is a seminal case.

So Mr. Lee came up. It became a really important question as to whether or not he would follow this because his background, particularly in a lot of cases before Adarand was ruled on, was contrary to that. He said he thought Adarand was fine, he would follow it. But we questioned him in some detail about how he interpreted Adarand, and that was a matter that did not go well for Mr. Lee, in my opinion. It troubled the entire committee.

The precise questions dealt with the enforcement of Adarand. When asked to state the holding of Adarand—we asked him what he thought the holding of Adarand was—he testified that racial preference programs are permissible ''if conducted in a limited and measured manner.'' Racial preferences are permissible in America, he said, if conducted in a limited and measured manner.

But Adarand doesn't say that. That was the problem. Adarand says they are presumptively unconstitutional unless they pass strict scrutiny, some specific reason—normally, a clear bias that is being fixed by a post-adjudication order. But even when this was pointed out to Mr. Lee, he stayed with his expressed position. That was very troubling.

I liked Mr. Lee. I told him I liked him. But I was troubled that he was going to be chief of the Civil Rights Division in the Department of Justice, and he wasn't prepared to enforce plain rule, as I saw it, in the Adarand case.

Chairman HATCH, who is a constitutional scholar, was also troubled. He came and made a speech on this floor which had the quality of a Law Review article dissecting this important seminal case and Mr. Lee's responses to it. He voted no, the chairman of the Judiciary Committee, as did eight other members of the Judiciary Committee, of which I was a member. He failed in committee 9–9.

They blamed John Ashcroft as being a man who personally blocked this person from that high office. I don't think that is right. I think that is wrong. That is deliberate distortion of what happened. Members of the committee who were there ought to have known better than to criticize John Ashcroft with regards to the Bill Lann Lee nomination. They should not repeat a false allegation, and they should correct their colleagues who may not know otherwise.

It was an honest, professional discussion of the law. It was an honest discussion of what ought to be done for Bill Lann Lee, and we concluded that his understanding of Adarand was different than what we understood Adarand to be and that he could not fulfill the very heart of his office's responsibility if he didn't understand the seminal case on preferences and quotas in America law, the Adarand case.

There are hundreds of Federal programs based on race in America. When asked if any of them would fall because of Adarand, Lee suggested maybe one. I think that is unlikely to be so as the law continues to develop in this area. I think we had a real problem there. That is why that matter was decided the way it was.

It certainly is unfair to say that this brilliant lawyer, this principled Senator, this public servant of over 25 years was somehow anti-Chinese-Americans because he voted against Bill Lann Lee. He voted for 26 out of 27 African American judges that the Clinton administration sent forward, objecting only to the one in his State where his sheriffs and police chiefs opposed him. Does that mean that he is anti-black? They are wrong. This is going too far. What is happening here is not right.

I was talking to a group, and I acknowledged that John was different from the rest of us. He doesn't drink, dance or smoke because of his dedication to his religious beliefs. He has been married to one wife, and he has a fine family. His personal life is conducted on the highest standard of decency and fairness. In many important ways, John Ashcroft is different from the rest of us. In many important ways, John Ashcroft is better than the rest of us.

He has appointed numerous African Americans to the bench in Missouri. He signed into law and supported the Martin Luther King birthday law in Missouri at a time when some didn't want to do that. His wife, a law professor herself, is teaching at the Howard University, a majority black college here in D.C. John has a clear record of fairness and justice.

It is wrong to allow a series of groups that are not answerable to the American people, that have hard-left agendas, to come in here and caricature his decisions as being somehow anti-civil rights because he voted against Bill Lann Lee; that he is somehow anti-black because he voted against this one judge. To make that kind of caricature of this good man and then ask us to vote against him based on that caricature is fundamentally wrong.

If you had heard the testimony and heard him answer and explain how he did this and other things in the hearing, you would agree, I believe, that he made a wonderful case for what he did. It was plausible and reasonable and principled and is not in any way extreme or outside the mainstream of American law.

Another far left myth is that John is against integration because he resisted massive Federal Court intervention in the State of Missouri's school systems.

Many of you have probably heard of the Kansas City case where a Federal judge imposed a tax and ordered a county commission to impose a tax to pay for the court's plan for education. John was the attorney general of the State of Missouri, the sovereign State of Missouri, that has a constitution that says what State school boards do, what State superintendents of education do, and how the system is set up. This Federal judge came in and ripped it all apart doing what he thought was just.

I am telling you, if the attorney general wants to defend his State, what is the matter with that? Who is in charge? Is he supposed to stand idly by and allow the court to do that?

Senator Danforth, one of the most respected Senators who has served in this body, is an Episcopal priest, and was attorney general before John. He opposed these court orders. His successor opposed these orders. The second successor to John Ashcroft, Jay Nixon—I was attorney general, and I knew Jay. Jay opposed those orders exceedingly vigorously. But that didn't stop a few of the Members of this body, Senators KENNEDY and HARKIN, from going to Missouri and having a fundraiser for Jay Nixon in his race for the Senate.

Let me repeat that. Senators KENNEDY and HARKIN held a political fundraiser for Jay Nixon after he opposed these court orders vigorously, yet somehow it was improper for then Attorney General Ashcroft to have opposed them as well.

This example is illustrative. Like the integration charge, all the charges made against John are trumped up. This is not fair. John Ashcroft was doing his duty as an attorney general. He favored school integration, and he has stated that unequivocally. He believes in integration, but he did not agree with the actions taken by the federal courts.

This is what was in one of the court orders that John Ashcroft resisted as attorney general of Missouri. It ordered the school system to have an 8-lane, 50-meter swimming pool, the biggest in the State, bigger than any of the universities' swimming pools; a 300-seat Greek amphitheater with a stage framed with white columns; a planetarium; greenhouses; a dust-free diesel mechanic shop—I worked in my dad's mechanic shop. It wasn't dust free. It didn't hurt me, I don't think—broadcast cable radio and TV studios; school animal rooms, including an indoor petting zoo; private nature trails; overseas trips for students; and a model United Nations with language translation.

The attorney general is supposed to sit by and let a Federal judge take over the whole State and issue these kinds of orders? Who is going to pay this $1.7 billion? The people of Missouri.

Who is this judge? How do judges get to do this? They have to be careful about this. You can't issue orders to remedy a past discrimination. You can't do that, but judges do it regularly. But many judges over reach. Many court rulings have over reached.

As attorney general, John Ashcroft thought it was his duty to defend Missouri as his predecessor and as his two successors did. That is not an extreme position.

This is second-guessing somebody and twisting it to make it sound as if he opposed integration, which he absolutely did not.

There are many more matters that have been charged. The responses to them are just as compelling. In fact, it is clear to me that the case against John Ashcroft totally collapsed in the hearings that we held. We gave everybody a chance to testify. John responded to all of them. He answered 400 questions propounded to him.

There is no case here that shows that he wouldn't be the finest kind of Attorney General. I am convinced that he will. I am convinced that he will be a great Attorney General.

As one who spent 15 years in the Department of Justice, I dearly love and I respect it from my deepest being. It has not been run well in the last 8 years. It really has not. Morale is not where it needs to be. They have not pursued cases effectively, in my view. For long, long periods of time, chief positions such as Criminal Division Chief have been left vacant. There has not been a focus and a leadership there, and it is desperately needed. More than anybody I know, John Ashcroft can fill that role with integrity, with fairness, and with justice to restore the concept of equal justice under the law, even if it means denying pardons to millionaire fugitives who won't come back to face the medicine.

He would never have approved a pardon for that kind of case. That kind of stuff is rotten to the core. The same people in this body who have defended, excused, and apologized for lies, for unprincipled operation of the Department of Justice, or for former President Clinton's subversion of the law, now see fit to attack a man of character and decency. This is tragic, and it speaks volumes about John's opponents.

He is going to be confirmed, because my colleagues know the truth about John Ashcroft. He will be a good Attorney General. Members of this Senate in opposition to this nomination ought to reevaluate their conscience about how they have handled this case. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arkansas.

ELIMINATING FEDERAL BARRIERS

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Mr. President, I rise to enthusiastically applaud George W. Bush's community and faith-based initiative which he announced yesterday and is emphasizing and talking about this week. It is a very exciting prospect that we have a President who recognizes the vast untapped potential of the charitable and faith-based sector and who wants to rally what he calls the ''armies of compassion'' to solve the deeper social problems and the deeper social challenges we face in this Nation.

The government can do many things. Some of those things it does well, but there are many things government cannot do. It cannot put hope in our hearts or a sense of purpose in our lives. This is done by churches, synagogues, mosques, and charities that warm the cold of life. It is done by the faith-based sector in our society.

I am pleased the President has established the Office of Faith-Based and Community Initiatives. By creating this office, we now will have a clearinghouse in the executive branch to point up where we have legislative and administrative barriers that have been erected to make it more difficult for people to encourage and support these faith-based initiatives. It will identify such problems in Federal rules, practices, and regulatory and statutory barriers in order that we might find relief and coordinate new Federal initiatives to empower and partner with faith-based and community problem solvers.

As he rolled out this plan—some of it, I am sure, is going to be controversial, and that is where the media would like to focus—much of what the President has rolled out makes common sense if we go beyond welfare reform, passed a few years ago and signed by President Clinton. Welfare reform has had a dramatic impact. We have seen the welfare roles decline by half across the Nation. All of us involved in the effort understood that was but the first step, and if we were ultimately to get to the deeper problems in a welfare culture, if we were going to deal with the problems of drug dependency, if we were going to deal with the high rate of recidivism in our prisons that we had to embrace, we had to involve the faith-based sector.

The President has suggested we should expand private giving, we should grant a charitable deduction for nonitemizers. The Federal charitable deduction, under the President's plan, will be expanded to 80 million taxpayers. Seventy percent of all filers do not itemize, and thus currently cannot claim this benefit. This initiative will spark billions of dollars in new donations to charitable organizations. He has suggested that we should promote corporate in-kind donations. The administration seeks to limit the liability of corporations that in good faith donate equipment, facilities, vehicles, or aircraft to charitable organizations, thus enhancing the ability of these organizations to serve neighborhoods and families. That, I say to my colleagues, is common sense. It should not be controversial. He suggested that we permit charitable contributions from IRAs without penalty. Under current law, withdrawals from IRAs are subject to income tax. This creates a disincentive for retirees to contribute some or all of their IRA funds to charity.

President Bush supports legislation that would permit individuals, over the age of 59, to contribute IRA funds to charities without having to pay income tax on their gifts. He promotes a charitable State tax credit. He supports raising the cap on corporate charitable deductions and creating a compassion capital fund.

All of these are a simple means in which we can use the Tax Code to encourage donations to the faith-based and charitable sector and unleash this vast source of energy to help solve these very deep-rooted problems that we have in our society.

Among the new approaches, he suggests action that would help the children of prisoners, improving inmate rehabilitation, providing second chance maternity group homes, and more afterschool opportunities.

I want to tell one such story from the State of Arkansas that I believe the President's initiatives will assist. We had a wonderful organization started in Little Rock, AR, called PARK. It stands for Positive Atmosphere Reaches Kids. It was established by someone whose name will be familiar to football fans across this country. It was established by Keith Jackson. Keith was raised in a single parent household in a low-income neighborhood of Little Rock. He held steadfast to his course of finishing high school, playing football, and ultimately graduating from college. Unfortunately for us, he played football for the University of Oklahoma. But he went on to the NFL where he had a stellar career. He returned to Little Rock with this burden to help underprivileged children in Little Rock.

This is what he said in 1989. He said, while watching an evening newscast, he was struck by the number of stories involving teenagers and violent crime. He said: It seemed like every story was about a kid getting shot or robbing a liquor store or being in a gang fight. It really hit me for the first time that somebody had to do something to stop this. What we are doing now isn't working.

He said the Government programs, as many and as well motivated as they were, were not doing the job. He established PARK. It is a wonderful program. It is an afterschool program. From September through May, the program operates 4 days a week. Kids ride schoolbuses to PARK. When they arrive, they eat a nutritious snack. They participate in the required academic program which requires homework, tutoring, reading or research in the library, working in the computer lab that is equipped with software designed to enhance skills in reading, math, and language arts.

Volunteer tutors and mentors come in. After they spend the hour doing the academics, they then get to enjoy the recreation. They have a skating rink, a weight room, basketball courts, racquetball courts, and an arcade. Some kids may go so they can be involved in the recreation, but they first have to do the academic work. They have a summer program. They have a community service program. They emphasize parental involvement.

When school is over, the buses take the kids to PARK, where they enjoy an extra hour of academic emphasis. Then they have the recreation. They have a nutritious snack. They have parental involvement. They have mentors and tutors. And they have a college prep program. All of this is done without one red cent of Government money. It is all from donations. It is all from foundations; not any Government assistance.

Why shouldn't we make it easier for people who believe in programs such as PARK to be able to give and contribute and have a tax incentive to do that? I simply applaud President Bush for seeing this need and for stepping forward and being willing to take some of the barbed attacks he has faced, and will continue to face, for this initiative because it is sorely needed.

I want to tell one more example. Here in Washington, DC, a group of Hill staffers, a few years ago, saw the need of children in disadvantaged homes in the District of Columbia, where many of them did not have the same educational opportunities as children from more affluent homes. They went out and they started a school called Cornerstone. They started it on a shoestring. They had no great resources. They had no great endowment. They had no great foundation. All they had was a vision and a dream. They are Hill staffers. They have started a school that is now serving scores of young people here in the District of Columbia. While we may argue about vouchers, we surely should not argue about making it easier for people to support faith-based initiatives such as Cornerstone.

DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE MEMBERS

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, the following is our completed list of Democratic members of the Energy Committee: Senators BINGAMAN, AKAKA, DORGAN, GRAHAM, WYDEN, JOHNSON, LANDRIEU, BAYH, FEINSTEIN, SCHUMER, and CANTWELL.

NOMINATIONS

TOMMY G. THOMPSON TO BE SECRETARY OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I supported Governor Tommy G. Thompson's nomination to be Secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS) because he is a proven leader in reforming welfare, health care, and other important social policies.

As the steward of the Department of Health and Human Services, he will be involved in managing more than 300 separate programs and the largest budget of any cabinet agency, more than $400 billion per year. In this position, it is my hope that he will make providing affordable, universal prescription drug coverage to every Medicare beneficiary, and reforming the Medicare program to ensure its long-term fiscal solvency at the top of his agenda.

Also, I would hope that under his leadership, HHS will take an active role in working to address continued funding and access shortfalls in the rural health care system, particularly as they relate to Medicare reform. This is especially important in my state of North Dakota, where health care providers are struggling to offer quality services to seniors living in rural areas. In addition, we know that Governor Thompson has fought hard to expand health care coverage for low-income parents and children in the state of Wisconsin. It is my hope that he will continue this effort at the federal level, with a firm commitment to retaining a strong federal role in important programs such as Medicaid and the State-Children's Health Insurance Program.

I look forward to working with Governor Thompson in the coming years to improve health care and income security for all Americans.

CONFIRMATION OF MEL MARTINEZ

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I supported Mel Martinez as Secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. I believe that Mr. Martinez will contribute both his knowledge of housing policy and personal experience toward increasing home ownership among all Americans. During his confirmation hearing, Mr. Martinez said that he knows the value of home ownership, because he has witnessed its great power throughout his entire life. It is true that the foundation of community involvement and prosperity is built upon home ownership, which is a critical element of the American Dream.

I am pleased that Mr. Martinez has voiced his support for the President's proposal to provide $1.7 billion in tax credits over five years to build and renovate single-family homes in poor communities and to allocate another $1 billion in tax credits to assist up to 650,000 families attain their dreams of becoming homeowners.

Having emigrated to the United States at the age of 15 and successfully risen to the post of Chairman of Orange County, Florida, Mr. Martinez has proved his mettle and displayed his commitment to public service. I look forward to working with Mr. Martinez in his capacity as our nation's newest Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

NORMAN MINETA TO BE SECRETARY OF TRANSPORTATION

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I was very pleased to support the nomination of Norman Mineta to be Secretary of Transportation.

Mr. Mineta has had a long and distinguished career in public service. Most recently, he served with distinction as Secretary of Commerce. Before that, he served for many years in the House of Representatives, where he rose to become Chairman of the Transportation Committee. With that background, Mr. Mineta could not be better prepared for the challenges he will face.

One of this country's great competitive advantages in the global economy has been our transportation infrastructure, which allows us to move raw materials to processing plants and finished products to markets around the world with great efficiency. However, our infrastructure is starting to show its age. Our roads and airports, in particular, are increasingly congested, and delays are costing our economy tens of billions of dollars annually. In recent years, the Congress has dramatically increased our national commitment to highway and airport funding to make sure our infrastructure is up to the standards and challenges of the twenty-first century. Our next Secretary of Transportation will have the important task of implementing these legislative initiatives as well as helping to negotiate the next highway bill.

As he takes on these challenges, I hope Secretary Mineta will keep in mind some of the concerns of primarily rural states like North Dakota. In my state, Essential Air Service is critically important to preserving air service to mid-size communities and helping to foster economic development in those communities. More generally, federal funding is essential to maintaining the hundreds of miles of highways that bridge the distances between population centers. Finally, I had the opportunity to talk with Mr. Mineta the other day about the unique situation in the Devils Lake region in my state and the need to come up with an innovative solution that will maintain the road network in the face of continued flooding of Devils Lake.

I look forward to working with Secretary Mineta on these many issues and wish him well in his new position.

FH CHARITABLE CONTRIBUTIONS

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, later today I plan to introduce legislation that will be a very important part of our tax bill and also part of the effort to encourage people to give more to charitable institutions. This bill was passed by Congress last session, and it was vetoed by the President. Senator DURBIN and I are going to reintroduce it. It is the IRA charity rollover bill.

It will allow simply anyone 59½ or older to take money from their IRA that they find they do not need for the lifestyle in which they wish to live in retirement and give it directly to charity without having to pay taxes on it. This will give more money to the charity, it will allow that person to choose where his or her money will go, and it will certainly continue to encourage people to save for their retirement security. It will also give them flexibility, an option, if they have saved in good faith and find they now can be more generous and would like to help the charity of their choice.

The charity IRA rollover bill will be introduced by Senator DURBIN and myself this afternoon. I am very pleased it also is going to be part of President Bush's tax package. Now I know that when we pass this bill, it will be signed by the President.

TRIBUTE TO ALAN CRANSTON

Mr. CLELAND. Mr. President, for the information of all Senators, I am being joined by former Senator Alan Simpson and my distinguished colleagues, Senators BOXER, FEINSTEIN, KENNEDY and ROCKEFELLER, in sponsoring a Memorial Tribute to our former colleague and my dear friend, Alan Cranston, who passed away on New Year's Eve 2000. The tribute will be held on Tuesday, February 6, 2001, at 2 p.m. in Room 902 of the Hart Building. I invite and encourage all Senators to join us for this celebration of Alan's life of service to the people of our country.

BUDGET SCOREKEEPING REPORT

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I hereby submit to the Senate the budget scorekeeping report prepared by the Congressional Budget Office under Section 308(b) and in aid of Section 311 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, as amended. This report meets the requirements for Senate scorekeeping of Section 5 of S. Con. Res. 32, the First Concurrent Resolution on the Budget for 1986.

This report shows the effects of congressional action on the 2001 budget through January 24, 2001. The estimates of budget authority, outlays, and revenues are consistent with the technical and economic assumptions of the 2001 Concurrent Resolution on the Budget (H. Con. Res. 290).

The estimates show that current level spending is above the budget resolution by $33.9 billion in budget authority and by $21.8 billion in outlays. Current level is $14.1 billion above the revenue floor in 2001.

This is my first report for fiscal year 2001, and my first report for the first session of the 107th Congress.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

TRIBUTE TO JERE W. GLOVER

• Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I speak today to praise Jere Glover, former Chief Counsel for Advocacy at the U.S. Small Business Administration, for almost seven years of outstanding work in that position.

The United States Senate confirmed President Clinton's appointment of Mr. Glover as Chief Counsel for Advocacy on May 4, 1994. Mr. Glover served as Chief Counsel until January 20, 2001. The following briefly highlights some of the Office of Advocacy's achievements during Mr. Glover's leadership.

Mr. Glover was instrumental in making the third national White House Conference on Small Business a success. Held in June of 1995 in Washington, DC, it was attended by nearly 2,000 delegates. Some 20,000 small businesses participated in 59 state conferences and six regional conferences leading to the national conference. In the legislation authorizing the conference, the Congress mandated that SBA monitor and report to the delegates on the progress made to implement their recommendations. Under Mr. Glover, the Office of Advocacy established networks of delegates and provided information through ''regional issue chairs.'' In the month of September in 1996, 1997, and, finally, 2000, the Office of Advocacy sent annual implementation reports to Congress, the President and the delegates. These reports indicated the unprecedented progress, compared with previous conferences, in implementing the recommendations of the 1995 White House Conference on Small Business.

Following up on the recommendations of the 1995 White House Conference on Small Business, the Office of Advocacy provided research and testimony in support of a number of laws designed to reduce small business tax, regulatory, and paperwork burdens. In addition to the Small Business Regulatory Enforcement Fairness Act of 1996, the Office of Advocacy supported provisions in the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997, the Small Business Job Protection Act of 1996, the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996, the American Inventors Protection Act, the Federal Activities Inventory Reform Act and others, all of which incorporated the Conference recommendations.

Since the enactment of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (RFA) in 1980, the Office of Advocacy has had an oversight role in monitoring compliance with the law. The RFA requires federal agencies to determine whether a proposed rule will have a disproportionate effect on small firms and other small entities and, if so, to explore equally effective alternative regulatory solutions. In 1996, Congress expanded the Office of Advocacy's role by passing the Small Business Regulatory Enforcement Fairness Act of 1996 (SBREFA). This law provides new avenues for small businesses to participate in and have access to the federal regulatory arena.

The Office of Advocacy held briefings for more than 600 federal officials on the requirements and procedures mandated by this amendment to the Regulatory Flexibility Act. The Office of Advocacy held a special conference for the economic analysts in each agency on how to analyze the economic impact of agency regulations on small business and was successful in challenging violations of the RFA and SBREFA in court.

Under Jere Glover, the Office of Advocacy pursued the mandates of SBREFA in over 20 EPA and OSHA small business advocacy review panels. The panels reviewed proposals that would impose burdens on small business and recommended changes. The work of these panels helped craft stronger, more equitable regulations. Even in cases where agreement wasn't reached, small businesses were better informed of regulatory burdens and requirements.

At the beginning of this year, the Office of Advocacy published its 20th Anniversary Regulatory Flexibility Act Report. Chief among the report's findings is the estimate that in the 1998–2000 period, regulatory changes supported by the Office of Advocacy saved small businesses about $20 billion in annual and one-time compliance costs.

In addition to the Regulatory Flexibility Report, the Office of Advocacy has completed its fourth annual report focusing on small business lending activities of the nation's commercial bank lenders. This study analyzes information in the ''call'' reports filed by all federally regulated banks. The national and state-by-state analyses of the data show which banks, large and small, are most likely to lend to small businesses. The Office of Advocacy reports also categorize the banks by the percentage and dollar volume of their lending to small businesses.

Additionally, under Mr. Glover's tenure, the Office of Advocacy has developed, or assisted in the development of a number of databases to address the critical gap in equity capital financing, aide public and private contracting officers seeking small business contractors, subcontractors and partnership opportunities and, measure job creation by small business. Using this data, the Office of Advocacy estimates that small businesses created more than 12 million net new jobs between 1992 and 1996.

Mr. President, as the Ranking Democratic Member of the Senate Committee on Small Business, I would like to extend my congratulations to Mr. Glover for his successes while Chief Counsel for Advocacy and wish him well in his future endeavors.

I ask that a letter from business groups around the country, thanking Mr. Glover for his hard work and support of America's small businesses, be printed in the RECORD.

The letter follows:

A TRIBUTE TO JERE W. GLOVER

Jere W. Glover is a great American.

Each of us, the undersigned, has had an opportunity to work closely with Jere Glover over the last six years, and we would like to share with America some of our unique experiences and accomplishments with him as the Chief Counsel for Advocacy of the U.S. Small Business Administration. On January 20, he will leave behind a significant legacy in the regulatory arena.

Jere Glover advanced the cause of small business by decades, by being one of the driving forces behind one of the most significant changes to the Regulatory Flexibility Act (RFA): the Small Business Advocacy Review Panel process. The Panel process enables the Chief Counsel, with the advice of the small business community, to review and evaluate the basis for certain regulations at an early stage of the process. These are regulations that could have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small businesses, small nonprofit organizations, and/or small governments. The Panel process led to a number of significant improvements to regulations of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) in recent years.

Perhaps the largest part of his legacy, the work Jere Glover has done with EPA rules affecting the petroleum refining industry, has been most effective. Thanks to Jere Glover, there will continue to be a significant small business presence in this industry.

For example, EPA was planning to propose a significantly more stringent regulation of sulfur in gasoline, but Jere helped to persuade EPA that such a decision would be unnecessary and unduly costly to the consumer. EPA eventually signed a rule that would delay the final standards for four to six years for small businesses, allowing them to make more manageable reductions in sulfur over a longer period of time.

The same is true about EPA's recent rule to control hazardous air pollutants from mobile sources. Due largely to Jere's counsel, EPA backed away from initial plans for a more stringent rule to commit to a no-cost approach at proposal. His continued interest and advocacy led to further changes to the final rule, which helped the Agency to ensure that it would meet its twin goals of a no-cost rule that, at the same time, maintains the significant air quality improvements over the last several years.

Jere Glover was also successful in persuading EPA to build some flexibility into the rule for the control of sulfur in highway diesel fuel, so that small refiners could stage significant investments in the diesel and gasoline sulfur rules.

In the safety arena, Jere Glover has been a real watchdog for the rights of small business under the RFA. While there have been only three SBREFA panels at OSHA, Jere Glover was closely involved with each one, ensuring that the concerns of small business were heard. Without the input of Jere and that of small employers, OSHA would not have revised its economic impact analysis of the Ergonomics rule, nor added provisions such as the Quick Fix option, which gave flexibility to small entities.

Jere Glover has been a true advocate for the millions of small employers affected by both the Ergonomics rule and the Safety and Health proposed rule. He insisted that OSHA take into consideration not only how differently small employers operate their workplaces, but also how burdensome and costly government regulations are on those employers. With Jere's constant commitment to small business, he was able to argue convincingly that OSHA's cost estimates in both the Ergonomics rule and the Safety and Health program standard were significantly underestimated.

And Jere Glover did not stop there. He was instrumental in persuading the EPA not to finalize national wastewater discharge standards for the textile supply and service industry (industrial launderers). By pointing to existing local regulations, Jere was able to convince the EPA that the industry's voluntary pollution prevention and resource conservation program was a more appropriate course of action.

He also managed to persuade EPA to provide significant flexibility in the Transportation Equipment Cleaning Industry wastewater regulation.

And last, when did EPA learn that the public already knew that there was actually gasoline at gas stations? When Jere Glover pointed it out. The Agency had been insisting that gas station owner/operators should annually complete more paperwork on gasoline to serve the public's right-to-know about environmental hazards. But Jere Glover helped them to see that EPA could use existing paperwork, the underground storage tank forms, to accomplish the same goal at less cost and less burden.

The small business community salutes you, Jere Glover. We will miss you, Jere, and your invaluable contributions to our cause. Good luck to you in your future endeavors. We will never forget you.

In honor of the new Bradford Cleveland Institute for Continuing Education located at Oakwood College, I wanted to take this opportunity to recognize a man who has been a pioneer in religious and community involvement.

After graduating from Oakwood College in 1941, and being ordained in 1946, Elder Cleveland embarked on a remarkable path which has taken him all over the United States, across 6 continents, and 67 countries. STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Ms. COLLINS (for herself, Mr. KYL, and Ms. LANDRIEU):

S. 203. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide an above-the-line deduction for qualified professional development expenses of elementary and secondary school teachers and to allow a credit against income tax to elementary and secondary school teachers who provide classroom materials; to the Committee on Finance.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I rise today with my friend and colleague from Arizona, Senator KYL, to introduce the Teacher Support Act of 2001. We are very pleased to be joined by our good friend and colleague, Senator LANDRIEU, in proposing this legislation.

Senator KYL and I crafted this bill to help our teachers when they pursue professional development or pay for supplies for their classrooms.

Our legislation has two major provisions.

First, it will allow teachers and teacher aides to take an above-the-line deduction for their professional development expenses. Thus, educators who don't itemize their deductions will still be able to benefit from tax-favored treatment for their professional development.

Second, the legislation will grant educators a tax credit of up to $100 for books, supplies, and other materials that they purchase for their classrooms. According to a study by the National Education Association, the average public school teacher spends more than $400 annually on classroom supplies. This sacrifice, I think, is typical of the dedication of many of our schoolteachers toward their students.

While our legislation provides some financial assistance to educators, its ultimate beneficiaries will be their students. Other than involved parents, a well-qualified teacher is the most important prerequisite for students' success. Educational researchers have demonstrated over and over again the close relationship between qualified educators and successful students. Moreover, educators themselves understand how important professional development is to maintaining and extending their level of competence.

Mr. President, when I meet with teachers from my State of Maine, they repeatedly tell me of their need for more professional development and the scarcity of financial support for this worthy pursuit. As President Bush has put it, ''Teachers sometimes lead with their hearts and pay with their wallets.''

The willingness of Maine's teachers to fund their own professional development activities has deeply impressed me. For example, an English teacher, who serves on my education advisory committee, told me of spending her own money to attend a curriculum conference. She then came back and shared her new knowledge with all of the teachers in her department at Bangor High School. She is typical of the many educators who generously reach into their own pockets to pay for professional development and to purchase materials to enhance their teaching.

Let me explain how our legislation works in terms of real dollars. In my home State, the average yearly starting salary of a public school teacher is about $23,300. Under the current law, even a teacher who is earning this modest salary cannot deduct the first $466 in professional development expenses that he or she paid for out-of-pocket. That is because of the requirement in the current law that sets a floor of 2 percent that has to be reached before the cost of the course or other professional development is deductible. Moreover, under current law, professional development expenses above $466 can be deducted only if the teacher itemizes his or her deductions. Only about one-third of our Nation's schoolteachers do itemize their tax deductions.

Our legislation would enable all educators, regardless of whether or not they itemize deductions, to receive tax relief for professional development expenses.

I greatly admire the many educators who have voluntarily financed additional education to improve their skills so that they may better serve their students. I admire those teachers who purchase books, supplies, equipment, and other materials for their students in order to enhance their teaching.

I hope this change in our Tax Code will encourage educators to continue their formal course work in the subject matter they teach and to attend conferences to give them new ideas for presenting course work in a challenging manner. This bill will reimburse educators for a small part of what they invest in our children's future. This money would be well spent. Investing in education helps us to build one of the most important assets for our country's future—a well educated population. We need to ensure that our public schools have the very best educators possible in order to bring out the very best in our students.

Last year, Senator KYL and I offered a similar version of this legislation as an amendment to the Affordable Education Act of 2000. Our amendment enjoyed overwhelming support and passed the Senate by a vote of 98–0. Unfortunately, the underlying bill was not taken up by the House of Representatives.

This year, we are very pleased that President Bush has made the classroom supplies portion of our bill part of his education platform, and that our legislation has received the support of the National Education Association. Our hope is that the bill will become law before the end of the year. We urge our colleagues to join us in supporting this legislation.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to print the bill in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I was an original cosponsor of the Teacher Support Act of 2001. Working together last year, Senator COLLINS and I, with invaluable assistance from our departed colleague Paul Coverdell, persuaded the Senate to pass almost identical legislation by a vote of 98–0.

Like the amendment approved by the Senate last year, the Teacher Support Act would provide an annual tax credit of up to $100 for teachers' un-reimbursed classroom expenditures that are qualified under the Internal Revenue Code. For amounts over $100, teachers would continue to use the deductions allowed for such expenses under current law.

We know the need this legislation addresses is real. According to a recent study by the NEA, the average K–12 teacher spent $408 every year on classroom materials needed for education but not supplied by the schools. These materials include everything from books, workbooks, erasers, paper, pens, equipment related to classroom instruction, and professional enrichment programs.

In my discussions with teachers—public and private—I have been amazed to learn that many use their own money to cover the cost of classroom materials that are not supplied by their school or school district.

I have attended intense meetings in which Arizona teachers have related to me, in confidence, that they have used money from the family budget, without telling their spouses, for needed classroom supplies, and that though they feel wracked with guilt, they would do it again for their students. The Teacher Support Act stands for the idea that teachers should not feel compelled to make such sacrifices.

Though there is no absolute linkage between personal contributions for school supplies and the quality of the teaching, there likely is some correlation, given the degree of commitment evidenced by these teachers who are spending their own money. To the extent this is true, the proposal will have the effect of encouraging instruction of the highest quality.

I am pleased that President Bush campaigned on a similar proposal last year, and that he has included it in the education package he announced last week. This legislation, sends a much-needed message to the hard-working teachers of this country that they have our support, and that, working together, we can improve education for America's children.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, as you well know, the need for reform in the American education system is a priority for many members of Congress, as well as for President Bush and his newly assembled administration. While there still is some debate over a few remaining issues such as annual testing and private school vouchers, it is clear that there is much that we agree must be addressed if our children are to receive the type of education necessary to be competitive in the 21st century. Almost no one disagrees that focused efforts to recruit and retain qualified teachers are the key to increasing student achievement. Today, research is confirming what common sense has suggested all along. A skilled and knowledgeable teacher can make enormous difference in how well students learn. One Tennessee study found that the students who had good teachers three years in a row scored significantly higher on state tests and made far greater gains than students with a series of ineffective teachers. Another study conducted at Stanford found that the strongest indicator of how a state's students performed on National assessments was the percentage of well qualified teachers.

The Department of Education estimates that 2,000,000 new teachers will have to be hired in the next decade. Yet, each year, only 60,000 college graduates enter into teaching. In my home state of Louisiana, almost one in five of our teachers has not completed the standard regimen for teaching. One of the main detractors for qualified professionals to choose to enter the profession of teaching is simply that the salaries cover little more than life's daily expenses. While the amount of salary a teacher makes is not determined by the federal government, that does not preclude us from putting forth innovative strategies to address the gaps left by these salaries. In fact, I think it is our responsibility to do all that we can to assist states in their efforts to bring the best and the brightest teachers into our nation's classrooms. The federal tax code provides us with several opportunities to acknowledge and reward teachers for the work that they do for our children everyday.

I am proud to join Senator COLLINS in introducing the ''Teacher Support Act of 2001''. This bill allows educators to receive a tax credit for some of the costs associated with furthering their professional development. Specifically, it will allow educators to deduct professional development expenses, without requiring the deduction to be subject to the existing two percent floor. In addition, this legislation creates an above the line deduction, allowing for teachers who do not itemize their taxes to take advantage of these helpful benefits. And finally, it allows educators to claim a tax credit of up to $100 for books, supplies, and equipment that they purchase for their students.

This is the first of the many steps we as a body must take toward building a system of supports for our teachers. This small investment will have an inordinate impact on their ability to provide effective instruction to our nation's school children. Henry B. Adams once said ''A teacher affects eternity; he can never tell, where his influence stops.'' With this in mind, I ask you to support this bill and others like it, so that we can truly affect the future of education in America.

By Mrs. HUTCHISON (for himself, Mr. DURBIN, and Mr. LEVIN):

S. 205. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to waive the income inclusion on a distribution from an individual retirement account to the extent that the distribution is contributed for charitable purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, today I rise to introduce legislation that will enhance and encourage charitable contributions in the United States.

As many know, this week, the President is set to unveil a number of initiatives to promote charitable giving and to expand the role that charities and faith-based institutions play in attacking social problems in the United States.

Government alone is incapable of solving society's most vexing problems. In fact, government programs often fail in their missions. The old welfare system is a perfect example of what often goes wrong. Under the old system, we encouraged people to stay on welfare. We encouraged out-of-wedlock births. We encouraged fathers to live out of the home. We ended this with our welfare reform bill. Welfare rolls have now dropped by half across the United States.

The track record of charitable organizations have been far superior than the government's in tackling social ills. America's top charities cover a broad range of problems, from the Salvation Army to the YMCA, and the American Cancer Society to the Red Cross. Each is playing a role in improving America's health, education and welfare. How successful can they be? It has been known that mentors in the Big Brothers/Big Sisters program can cut drug abuse by 50 percent.

Americans appreciate the role of these groups. They are actively involved in charitable causes. Nearly half of all Americans volunteer in some capacity on a regular basis.

Nearly 25 percent of all Americans are active in their religion on a volunteer basis. This is why it is so logical to use faith-based organizations as means of accomplishing objectives at which the government has failed. The Chicago Tribune recently noted that ''churches, temples and prayer halls cannot replace the mammoth task of helping the needy. But, they do a better and more efficient job of understanding their communities and meeting the need of their citizens.''

The legislation I am introducing today will make it easier for charitable contributions to the made and for charitable organizations to pursue their missions. Under this bill, individuals age 59½ and older will be able to move assets penalty-free from an IRA directly to a charity or into a qualifying deferred charitable gift plan, such as a charitable remainder trust, pooled income fund or gift annuity. Current law requires taxpayers to first withdraw the IRA proceeds, pay the taxes due and then contribute the funds to a charity. Taxes can be offset by the current charitable deduction, but only to an extent.

Americans currently hold well over $1 trillion in assets in IRAs, and nearly half of America's families have IRAs. This bill will allow senior citizens who have provided for their retirement—but find that they do not need their entire IRA for living expenses—to transfer IRA funds to charity without dilution. This will cut bureaucratic obstacles to charitable giving and unlock a substantial amount of new funds that could flow to America's charitable organizations.

I first introduced this legislation in 1998, and it was folded into our tax bill in 1999. Regrettably, it was vetoed by the President. But, given our new leadership in the White House, this is an idea whose times has come. In fact, President Bush made this part of his tax plan when it was unveiled in 1999.

This is also not a partisan proposal. Senator DURBIN was an original cosponsor of this legislation. I look forward to working with him, and the White House on this bill. It also has the support of numerous universities and charitable groups, including the Charitable Accord and the Council of Foundations, two umbrella organizations representing more than 2,000 organizations and associations.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I am pleased to introduce, along with Senator KAY BAILEY HUTCHISON, the charitable IRA Rollover Act of 2001. We introduced this legislation in the last Congress. While it was included in last year's year-end tax bill, our provision was unfortunately stripped out at the last minute Senator HUTCHISON and I sincerely hope that this legislation will become law this year.

The IRA Charitable Rollover Act has the support of numerous charitable organizations across the United States. The effect of this bill would be to unlock billions of dollars in savings Americans hold and make them available to charities. Our legislation will allow individuals to roll assets from an Individual Retirement Account (IRA) into a charity or a deferred charitable gift plan without incurring any income tax consequences. Thus, the donation would be made to charity without every withdrawing it as income and paying tax on it.

Americans currently hold well over $1 trillion in assets in IRAs. Nearly half of America's families have IRAs. Recent studies show that assets of qualified retirement plans comprise a substantial part of the net worth of many persons. Many of these individuals would like to give a portion of these assets to charity.

Under our current law, if an IRA is transferred into a charitable remainder trust, donors are required to recognize that as income. Therefore, absent the changes called for in the legislation, the donor will have taxable income in the year the gift is funded. This is a huge disincentive contained in our complicated and burdensome tax code. This legislation will unleash a critical source of funding for our nation's charities. This legislation will provide millions of Americans with a common sense way to remove obstacles to private charitable giving.

Under the Hutchison-Durbin plan, an individual, upon reaching age 59½, could move assets penalty-free from an IRA directly to charity or into a qualifying deferred charitable gift plan—e.g. charitable remainder trusts, pooled income funds and gift annuities. In the latter case the donor would be able to receive an income stream from the retirement plan assets, which would be taxed according to normal rules. Upon the death of the individual, the remainder would be transferred to charity.

There are numerous supporters of this legislation including Georgetown University, the Art Institute of Chicago, the University of Chicago, the Field Museum, the Catholic Diocese of Peoria, Northwestern University, the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, and others. There are over 100 groups in Illinois alone that support this sensible legislation.

I hope the Senate will join in this bipartisan effort to provide a valuable new source of philanthropy for our nation's charities. I hope that our colleagues will co-sponsor this important piece of legislation and that it will be enacted into law this year. I thank the Senator from Texas, Senator HUTCHISON, for working with me and my staff in this effort.

By Mr. SHELBY (for himself, Mr. MURKOWSKI, Mr. SARBANES, Mr. GRAMM, Mr. DODD, Mr. LOTT, Mr. CRAIG, and Mr. CRAPO):

S. 206. A bill to repeal the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, to enact the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 2001, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

Mr. SHELBY. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 2001. This bipartisan bill is designed to help America's energy consumers by repealing an antiquated law that is keeping the benefits of competition from reaching our citizens. I am pleased to be joined by Senators GRAMM and SARBANES, chairman and ranking member of the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs, Senator MURKOWSKI, chairman of the Energy and Natural Resources Committee, Majority Leader LOTT, and Senators DODD, CRAIG, and CRAPO in introducing this important legislation. Our bill, which closely tracks legislation voted out of the Senate Banking Committee with bipartisan support in the 106th Congress, repeals the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, PUHCA.

The original PUHCA legislation passed over 60 years ago in 1935. At that time, a few large holding companies controlled a great majority of the electric utilities and gas pipelines. However, such a limited number of providers no longer offer a majority of the utility service. In fact, over 80 percent of the utility holding companies are currently exempt from PUHCA.

This legislation implements the recommendations that the Securities and Exchange Commission, SEC made first in 1981 and then again in 1995 following an extensive study of the effects of this antiquated law on our energy markets. In the 1995 report entitled. ''The Regulation of Public-Utility Holding Companies,'' the Division of Investment Management recommended that Congress conditionally repeal the Act since ''the current regulatory system imposes significant costs, indirect administrative charges and foregone economies of scale and scope . . .'' In the end, the report serves to highlight the fact that the regulatory restraints imposed by PUHCA on our electric and gas industries are counterproductive in today's competitive environment and are based on historical assumptions and industry models that are no longer valid.

In order to ensure that ratepayers are protected, this bill provides the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and the States access to the books and records of holding company systems that are relevant to the costs incurred by jurisdictional public utility companies. As a result, the regulatory framework to protect consumers is not only protected in this bill, but enhanced.

Let me be clear about the effect of PUHCA repeal: it eliminates redundant and burdensome regulation while enhancing existing consumer protections.

Mr. President, we are at a time in our nation's history when we are going to have to make some critical choices regarding our national energy policy. The fact is, future technological innovation and economic growth is contingent upon this country's ability to meet its ever increasing demand for energy. In order to do this, we need to modernize production systems, increase market competition, and strip away unnecessary regulations. Achieving these goals is going to be a difficult and time consuming process. However, repeal of this law would be the first step in the right direction.

Mr. President, it has been a very long time since it first became clear that this out dated, Depression-era law had become an unnecessary constraint on the ability of American gas and electric utilities to compete. Unfortunately, the many bipartisan efforts to repeal PUHCA have not been successful. However, strong support still exists for its elimination. I believe that it is imperative that we achieve this goal in the 107th Congress.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

By Mr. FRIST (for himself, Mr. HARKIN, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. HUTCHINSON, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. BINGAMAN, and Mrs. MURRAY):

S. 208. A bill to reduce health care costs and promote improved health care by providing supplemental grants for additional preventive health services for women; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, although we often think of cardiovascular disease as a men's health issue, the American Heart Association estimates that nearly one in two women will die of heart disease or stroke. However, because of its historically male stereotype, most women do not realize that they are at such high risk for cardiovascular disease even though cardiovascular diseases kills nearly 50,000 more women each year than men. Even more alarming is data reported by the Society for Women's Health Research which revealed that not all physicians know that cardiovascular diseases are the leading cause of death among American women.

Each year nearly half a million women lose their lives as a result of heart disease and stroke. Fortunately, men have experienced a decline in deaths due to cardiovascular diseases since 1984; but women have not, and many of these tragic deaths could have been prevented had these women known they were at risk. For instance, they could have taken preventive measures by not smoking, lowering their cholesterol or blood pressure, or by eating more nutritiously, and perhaps avoided becoming a victim of heart disease or stroke. For many women, prevention is truly the only cure, since it has been reported that as many as two-thirds of women who die from heart attacks have no warning symptoms of any kind.

Cardiovascular diseases kill more American females each year than the next 14 causes of death combined, including all forms of cancers. Over half of all cardiovascular deaths each year are women, and in 1997 alone heart diseases claimed the lives of more than half a million women. My own home state of Tennessee has the second highest death rate from heart disease, stroke, and other cardiovascular diseases in the nation and the 13th highest ranking state in women's heart deaths. In 1997, 10,884 Tennessee women died from these two cardiovascular diseases alone. Moreover, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) reports that women in the rural South are more likely to die of heart disease than those in other parts of the country.

Fortunately, some preventive measures, such as physical activity and better nutrition, can be taken by women to reduce their risk for cardiovascular diseases, as well as other preventable diseases, such as osteoporosis—a disease that affects one out of every two women over 50 and threatens roughly 28 million Americans, 80 percent of whom are women.

To continue to draw greater awareness to health issues among American women, particularly cardiovascular diseases, I am very pleased to reintroduce legislation which I introduced last Congress, the ''WISEWOMAN Expansion Act of 2001,'' with Senator HARKIN. Our goal in expanding this program is to reduce the risk of cardiovascular diseases, and other preventable diseases, and to increase access to screening and other preventive measures for low-income and underinsured women. In addition to making cardiovascular diseases screening accessible to underserved women, this program will also educate them about their risk for cardiovascular diseases and how to make lifestyle changes—thereby giving them the power to prevent these diseases.

The CDC's National Breast and Cervical Cancer Early Detection Program (NBCCEDP) is an example of a successful program that has provided critical services to help prevent major diseases affecting American women. The NBCCEDP has done an outstanding job of reaching out to low-income underinsured women—women who are generally too young for Medicare and unable to qualify for Medicaid or other state programs—and providing them with preventive screenings for breast and cervical cancers. These women would likely otherwise fall through the cracks in our health system.

Our bill provides for the expansion of the WISEWOMAN (Well-Integrated Screening and Evaluation for Women in Massachusetts, Arizona, and North Carolina) demonstration project, which is run by the CDC in conjunction with the NBCCEDP, to additional states. The WISEWOMAN program capitalizes on the highly successful infrastructure of the NBCCEDP to offer ''one-stop shopping'' screening and preventive services for uninsured and low-income women. In addition to these very important breast and cervical cancer screenings, WISEWOMAN screens for cardiovascular disease risk factors and provides health counseling and lifestyle interventions to help women reduce behavioral risk factors. The program addresses risk factors such as elevated cholesterol, high blood pressure, obesity and smoking and provides important additional intervention and educational services to women who would not otherwise have access to cardiovascular disease screening or prevention. This bill also adds flexibility to the program language that would allow screenings and other preventive measures for diseases in addition to cardiovascular diseases, such as osteoporosis, as more preventive technology is developed.

I would like to thank Judy Womack and Dr. Joy Cox of the Tennessee Department of Health for their counsel and assistance on this legislation and for their efforts in helping Tennesseans.

I ask unanimous consent that three letters supporting the WISEWOMAN Expansion Act of 2001 be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the letters were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

AMERICAN HEART ASSOCIATION,
OFFICE OF PUBLIC ADVOCACY,
Washington, DC, January 26, 2001.

Hon. BILL FRIST, M.D.,
Hon. TOM HARKIN,
United States Senate,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATORS FRIST AND HARKIN: Heart attack, stroke and other cardiovascular diseases remain the leading cause of death of women in the United States. Heart disease, alone, is the number one killer of American women and stroke is the number three killer. In fact, low-income women are at an even higher risk of heart disease and stroke than other women, and they have a higher prevalence of risk factors contributing to these diseases. The American Heart Association is very grateful for the support you and other members of the United States Congress have given to the WISEWOMAN demonstration program which uses the National Breast and Cervical Cancer Early Detection Program network to provide heart disease and stroke screening services, as well as diet and physical activity interventions and appropriate referrals.

The American Heart Association applauds the WISEWOMAN program and we are anticipating even greater results in the battle against heart disease and stroke as the program expands to serve more women throughout the United States. The Frist-Harkin ''WISEWOMAN Expansion Act of 2001'' will expand WISEWOMAN's heart disease and stroke screenings beyond its current limit, which we believe will have a tremendous positive impact to the cardiovascular health of women who live in states served by the program.

The American Heart Association recommends increased funding and expansion of the WISEWOMAN program during fiscal year 2002. Also, because of the solid scientific evidence that cardiovascular screenings can help prevent heart disease and stroke in women, we believe cardiovascular screenings provided by WISEWOMAN should be expanded before using the demonstration program to provide screenings for other diseases affecting women.

We thank you for your commitment to fighting heart disease and stroke, and look forward to your continued support in the future.

Sincerely,
ROSE MARIE ROBERTSON, M.D.,
President.

SOCIETY FOR WOMEN'S HEALTH RESEARCH,
Washington, DC, January 25, 2001.

Hon. BILL FRIST,
Chair, Subcommittee on Public Health, Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.
Hon. TOM HARKIN,
Ranking Member, Subcommittee on Public Health, Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATORS FRIST AND HARKIN: On behalf of the Society for Women's Health Research, we express our appreciation for your leadership on the introduction of the ''WISEWOMAN Expansion Act of 2001.'' In addition to a strong national research program, disease prevention is vital to our nation's health. Chronic diseases, such as heart disease, cancer, diabetes, and osteoporosis are among the most prevalent, costly, and preventable of all health problems.

As you know, women tend to live longer but not necessarily better than men. They have more chronic health conditions and are more economically insecure. Safety net programs often are the difference between life and death. The WISEWOMAN Expansion Act is building on a foundation that has provided positive feedback and will allow additional states to provide prevention services to those women in need. We applaud the flexibility of the legislation. With the passage of time, as new technologies develop, as disease burdens shift, and as lifestyles change, the program can address women's most critical health needs.

We thank you for your commitment to improving the nation's health through prevention. By focusing on the health of women, you ultimately will be improving the health of the nation's families.

Sincerely,
PHYLISS GREENBERGER,
President and CEO.
ROBERTA BIEGEL,
Director of Government Relations.

NATIONAL OSTEOPOROSIS FOUNDATION,
January 29, 2001.

Hon. TOM HARKIN,
Hon. BILL FRIST,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATORS HARKIN AND FRIST: On behalf of the National Osteoporosis Foundation (NOF), I commend you on the introduction of the bipartisan WISEWOMAN Expansion Act of 2001 that supports your effort to provide additional preventive health services, including osteoporosis screening, to low-income and uninsured women.

As you know, osteoporosis is a major health threat for more than 28 million Americans, 80 percent of whom are women. In the United States today, 10 million individuals already have the disease and 18 million more have low bone mass, placing them at increased risk for osteoporosis. Also, one out of every two women over 50 will have an osteoporosis-related fracture in their lifetime. It is estimated that the direct hospital and nursing home costs of osteoporosis are over $13.8 billion annually, with much of that attributed to the more than 1.5 million osteoporosis-related fractures that occur annually.

The health care services included in the WISEWOMAN program have provided positive results for many women who have participated and ultimately cost-savings for the states that have participated. Expansion of the WISEWOMAN model to additional states and for additional preventive services, such as screening for osteoporosis, should enhance positive results for both the women and states participating in the program.

The National Osteoporosis Foundation is most appreciative of your efforts to promote improved both health and endorse the WISEWOMAN Expansion Act of 2001.

Sincerely,
SANDRA C. RAYMOND,
Executive Director.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I am pleased to join Senator FRIST today to introduce the ''WISEWOMAN Expansion Act.'' This bill will help thousands of women have access to basic preventive health care they may otherwise not receive. The legislation builds on a successful demonstration program and expands screening services and preventive care for uninsured and low-income women across the nation.

Beginning in 1990, I worked as Chairman of the Labor, Health and Human Services and Education Appropriation Subcommittee to provide the funding for the National Breast and Cervical Cancer Early Detection Program, NBCCEDP, run through the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. In Iowa alone, the program has successfully served close to 9000 women through 618 provider-based breast and cervical cancer screening sites.

Today, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention currently run the WISEWOMAN program through the NBCCEDP as a demonstration project. The program has successfully built upon the framework of the NBCCEDP to target other chronic diseases among women, including heart disease, the leading cause of death among women, and osteoporosis. The programs address risk factors such as elevated cholesterol, high blood pressure, obesity and smoking and provide important intervention services.

This demonstration project has been successful. It is now time to expand the program to additional states, and eventually make it nationwide. As the brother of two sisters lost to breast cancer and the father of two daughters, I know first hand the importance of making women's health initiatives a top priority. The first step to fighting a chronic disease like cancer, heart disease or osteoporosis is early detection. All women deserve to benefit from the early detection and prevention made possible by the latest advances in medicine. This bill ensures a place for lower income woman at the health care table.

The majority of Americans associate cardiovascular disease with men, but the American Heart Association estimates that nearly one in two women will die of heart disease or stroke. In fact, cardiovascular diseases kills nearly 50,000 more women each year than men. In my own state of Iowa, cardiovascular disease accounts for 44 percent of all deaths in Iowa. Close to 7,000 women die annually in Iowa from cardiovascular disease. Each year, nearly half a million women lose their lives as a result of heart disease and stroke. Sadly, with appropriate screening and interventions, many of these deaths could have been prevented.

Osteoporosis is also a preventable disease and affects one out of every two women over the age of 50. Fortunately, some of the preventive measures women can take to reduce their risk for cardiovascular diseases, such as eating more nutritious foods and exercising, can also reduce their risk for osteoporosis.

Our bill would do the following:

Expand the current WISEWOMAN demonstration project to additional states;

Add flexibility to program language that would allow screenings and other preventive measures for diseases in addition to cardiovascular diseases;

Allow flexibility for the WISEWOMAN program to grow and adapt with the changing needs of individual states and our better understanding of new preventive strategies; and Ensure continued full collaboration of the WISEWOMAN program with the NBCCEDP; Authorize the CDC to make competitive grants to states to carry out additional preventive health services to the breast and cervical cancer screenings at NBCCEDP programs, such as: screenings for blood pressure, cholesterol, and osteoporosis; health education and counseling; lifestyle interventions to change behavioral risk factors such as smoking, lack of exercise, poor nutrition, and sedentary lifestyle; and appropriate referrals for medical treatment and follow-up services.

In order to be eligible for this program, states are required to already participate in the NBCCEDP and to agree to operate their WISEWOMAN program in collaboration with the NBCCEDP.

This bipartisan legislation has the support of the National Osteoporosis Foundation, the American Heart Association, the American Cancer Society and the Komen Foundation, among others. I urge my colleagues to join us in supporting this critical legislation.

By Mr. CAMPBELL (for himself and Mr. INOUYE):

S. 210. A bill to authorize the integration and consolidation of alcohol and substance abuse programs and services provided by Indian tribal governments, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, I am pleased to be joined today by the Vice Chairman of the Committee on Indian Affairs Senator DANIEL K. INOUYE in introducing the Native American Alcohol and Substance Abuse Program Consolidation Act of 2001. This important legislation will authorize Indian Tribes to consolidate and integrate alcohol, substance abuse prevention and treatment and mental health programs to provide more comprehensive treatment and services to Native Americans across the country.

More often than not, individuals with alcohol and substance abuse problems are also hobbled with mental health problems, and this bill authorizes tribes to make mental health services available as well.

Native Americans have higher rates of alcohol and drug use than any other racial or ethnic group in the United States. Despite previous treatment and preventive efforts, alcoholism and substance abuse continue to be prevalent among Native youth: 82 percent of Native adolescents admitted to having used alcohol, compared with 66 percent of non-Native youth.

Alcohol continues to be an important risk factor associated with the top three killers of Native youngsters—accidents, suicide, and homicide.

Based on 1993 data, the rate of mortality due to alcoholism among Native youth ages 15 to 24 was 5.2 per 100,000, which is 17 times the rate for whites in the same age group.

In a 1994 school-based study, 39 percent of Native high school seniors reported having ''gotten drunk'' and 39 percent of Native kids admitted to using marijuana.

Alcohol and substance abuse also contribute to other social problems including sexually transmitted diseases, child and spousal abuse, poor school achievement and dropout, unemployment, drunk-driving and vehicular deaths, mental health problems, hopelessness and suicide.

Alcohol, substance abuse, and mental health program funds are available to tribes from virtually every agency in the federal government including the Departments of Education, Health and Human Services, Housing and Urban Development, Interior, Justice, and Transportation.

To help Tribes slice through the bureaucracy, this bill authorizes Tribal governments and inter-Tribal organizations to: 1, consolidate these programs through a single federal office in the Department of Health and Human Services—Indian Health Services, IHS; and 2, use a single plan to reduce the administrative and bureaucratic processes, resulting in better services to Native Americans.

This bill tries to replicate the success of the widely-hailed ''477 model'' that Tribes have used to effectively coordinate employment training and related services through the Indian Employment Training and Related Services Demonstration Act of 1992, Pub. Law 102–477.

Under the ''477 model,'' and applicant Tribe files a single plan to draw and coordinate resources from the spectrum of federal agencies and administer them through one office. I am hopeful that armed with this creative tool, Tribes can begin to bring an end to the devastation of alcohol and drug abuse in their communities.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a copy of the legislation be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 211. A bill to amend the Education Amendments of 1978 and the Tribally Controlled Schools Act of 1988 to improve education for Indians, Native Hawaiians, and Alaskan Natives; to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, I am pleased today to be joined by the Vice Chairman of the Committee on Indian Affairs, Senator DANIEL K. INOUYE, in introducing legislation to improve the education delivery systems in Indian schools so that the President's goal that ''no child be left behind'' is as true for Native youngsters as for all Americans.

Grounded in the Constitution, treaties, federal statutes and court decisions, the United States has a unique role in the education of Native people. This is especially true for the Bureau of Indian Affairs school system for schools on or near reservations built and designed by the federal government. The only other school system in which the federal role is so significant is with Department of Defense schools for the children of those serving our nation in the armed forces.

As a youngster from a troubled background and a former teacher myself, I firmly believe that more than ever a quality education holds the key to a brighter and more hopeful future. I also know that the life-blood of Native people and the best chance they have for improving the lives of all their members lies in a well-educated community. In short, I believe community development starts with individual development and education is the key.

Like President Bush, I believe that education reform stands at the top of our national agenda. Education reform in Indian country is critical if this nation's Native people are to make the kind of advancement that is so clearly needed.

The geography of much of Indian country is difficult: from wintry Alaska, to the windswept Plains, to the searing heat of the Southwest, the terrain often makes it hard to get to school, let alone do well in school. I believe this reality must be acknowledged as we work to improve Native school systems.

Members of the Committee on Indian Affairs know all too well that the conditions in many, if not most, Indian schools is appalling: crumbling facilities, asbestos and PCBs, lead paint, lack of heat and other problems combine to make the schools nearly uninhabitable. Most members, indeed most Americans, would probably pull their children from school if they were subjected to these conditions.

We made a solid start at facilities replacement and repair with the Fiscal Year 2001 Interior appropriations bill which provided nearly $300 million in funds for these purposes.

Nevertheless, the backlog in school construction needs is still in the $800 to 900 million range.

I am very encouraged by President Bush's plan to establish an Indian tribal school capital improvement fund of more than $900 million to rectify the facilities crisis.

The bill I am introducing today, the Native American Educational Improvement Act of 2001, will improve education for Native people in a variety of ways.

Title I of the bill will amend the Education Amendments of 1978 in several respects. This legislation was enacted to provide a comprehensive structure for the BIA funded schools system including grant, contract and BIA operated schools.

The bill addresses most aspects of the BIA school system including standards and accreditation, facilities and various funding issues. It also provides guidance for how funding should be allocated by establishing a formula to effect a more equitable distribution of funds. The formula is based on weighted student units with extra weight given for such things as disabilities of gifted and talented abilities.

In keeping with the policy of Indian Self Determination, the bill carves out a key role for Indian Tribes by requiring that actions undertaken pursuant to the Act be done in consultation with the Tribes. This emphasis on maximizing local, Indian involvement is witnessed in the bill in several respects including the use of negotiated rulemaking in proposing and developing regulations to carry out the Act.

There is no single federal policy more successful than the contracting and compacting opportunities provided by the Indian Self Determination and Education Assistance Act of 1975, as amended.

Tribes and Tribal consortia have demonstrated that when they are provided the resources and flexibility to design and implement programs and services formerly provided by the Federal government, good things happen: 1, the quality of those services is refined; 2, the Tribe or consortium enhances its administrative and managerial abilities; and 3, federal resources are used more efficiently and effectively.

In keeping with this pattern, the bill authorizes Tribal contractors to perform all functions that are not inherently federal.

The bill will unshackle local authorities from the constraints of centralized management by authorizing Tribes to waive BIA school standards and design and implement standards that will better meet the needs of that Tribe's students.

Standards, flexibility and accreditation are important aspects of any good school system, but so is a sufficient pool of resources.

This bill will help evaluate whether funding levels for BIA schools are sufficient and seeks a review by the General Accounting Office to that effect.

While the core purpose of the Act is to provide a blueprint for the BIA school system, the bill I introduce today incorporates Tribal departments of education as well as early childhood development programs that provide services to meet the needs of parents and children under age six.

Title II of the bill amends the Tribally Controlled Schools Act of 1988, TCSA, by expanding the opportunities for Tribal operation of schools that would otherwise be run by the BIA.

Passage of the TCSA in 1988 grew out of dissatisfaction with the method of contracting educational services under the Indian Self Determination and Education Assistance Act, P.L. 93–638, ISDEAA.

While many services were being successfully contracted by Tribes under ISDEAA, education continued to be plagued with problems and Tribes were looking for an alternative to contracts.

The bill I am introducing today is grounded in the concept of ''lump-sum'' financing to Indian Tribes. This approach is intended to address some of the problems faced by ISDEAA contractors. That is, if a Tribe wants to operate a school pursuant to contract, it would be forced to negotiate a separate contract for each of the various school functions. A separate contract was required for transportation, for programs, for operations and maintenance, and other functions. This bill will consolidate these and other functions into one contract.

The grant schools operated by Tribes are provided considerable latitude in managing their finances provided that four specific requirements are met: As long as a grant school 1, submits an annual program report; 2, submits an evaluation report; 3, is accredited; and 4, adheres to the federal Single Audit Act, then that school may continue to enjoy the flexibility afforded it under P.L. 100–297.

Last, to ensure that Tribal initiative and creativity are not thwarted unnecessarily, this bill prohibits regulations from being established unless specifically authorized.

I have highlighted but a few of the major provisions included in this bill and I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this important initiative. I ask unanimous consent that a copy of the legislation be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 211

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

''(b) POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States to work in full cooperation with tribes toward the goal of assuring that the programs of the Bureau of Indian Affairs funded school system are of the highest quality and provide for the basic elementary and secondary educational needs of Indian children, including meeting the unique educational and cultural needs of these children.

''SEC. 1121. ACCREDITATION AND STANDARDS FOR THE BASIC EDUCATION OF INDIAN CHILDREN IN BUREAU OF INDIAN AFFAIRS SCHOOLS.

''(a) PURPOSE; DECLARATIONS OF PURPOSE.—

''(1) PURPOSE.—The purpose of the standards implemented under this section shall be to ensure that Indian students being served by a school funded by the Bureau of Indian Affairs are provided with educational opportunities that equal or exceed those for all other students in the United States.

''(2) DECLARATIONS OF PURPOSE.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Local school boards for schools operated by the Bureau of Indian Affairs, in cooperation and consultation with the appropriate tribal governing bodies and their communities, are encouraged to adopt declarations of purpose for education for their communities, taking into account the implications of such declarations on education in their communities and for their schools. In adopting such declarations of purpose, the school boards shall consider the effect the declarations may have on the motivation of students and faculties.

''(B) CONTENTS.—A declaration of purpose for a community shall—

''(i) represent the aspirations of the community for the kinds of people the community would like the community's children to become; and

''(ii) contain an expression of the community's desires that all students in the community shall—

''(b) STUDIES AND SURVEYS RELATING TO STANDARDS.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of the Native American Education Improvement Act of 2001, the Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of Education, consortia of education organizations, and Indian organizations and tribes, and making the fullest use possible of other existing studies, surveys, and plans, shall carry out, by contract with an Indian organization, studies and surveys to establish and revise standards for the basic education of Indian children attending Bureau funded schools. Such studies and surveys shall take into account factors such as academic needs, local cultural differences, type and level of language skills, geographic isolation, and appropriate teacher-student ratios for such children, and shall be directed toward the attainment of equal educational opportunity for such children.

''(c) REVISION OF MINIMUM ACADEMIC STANDARDS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of the Native American Education Improvement Act of 2001, the Secretary shall—

''(A) propose revisions to the minimum academic standards contained in part 36 of title 25, Code of Federal Regulations (on the date of enactment of the Native American Education Improvement Act of 2001) for the basic education of Indian children attending Bureau funded schools, in accordance with the purpose described in subsection (a) and the findings of the studies and surveys carried out under subsection (b);

''(2) FINAL STANDARDS.—Not later than 6 months after the close of the comment period for comments described in paragraph (1)(B), the Secretary shall establish final standards under this subsection, distribute such standards to all tribes, and publish such standards in the Federal Register.

''(3) FURTHER REVISIONS.—The Secretary shall revise standards under this subsection periodically as necessary. Prior to making any revisions of such standards, the Secretary shall distribute proposed revisions of the standards to all the tribes, and publish such proposed revisions in the Federal Register, for the purpose of receiving comments from the tribes and other interested parties.

''(4) APPLICABILITY OF STANDARDS.—Except as provided in subsection (e), the final standards published under this subsection shall apply to all Bureau funded schools not accredited under subsection (f), and may also serve as model standards for educational programs for Indian children in public schools.

''(5) CONSIDERATIONS WHEN ESTABLISHING AND REVISING STANDARDS.—In establishing and revising standards under this subsection, the Secretary shall take into account the unique needs of Indian students and support and reinforce the specific cultural heritage of each tribe.

''(d) ALTERNATIVE OR MODIFIED STANDARDS.—With respect to a school that is located in a State or region with standards that are in conflict with the standards established under subsection (c), the Secretary shall provide alternative or modified standards in lieu of the standards established under such subsection so that the programs of such school are in compliance with the minimum accreditation standards required for schools in the State or region where the school is located.

''(e) WAIVER OF STANDARDS; ALTERNATIVE STANDARDS.—

''(1) WAIVER.—A tribal governing body, or the local school board so designated by the tribal governing body, shall have the local authority to waive, in part or in whole, the standards established under subsection (c) and (d) if such standards are determined by such body or board to be inappropriate for the needs of students from that tribe.

''(2) ALTERNATIVE STANDARDS.—The tribal governing body or school board involved shall, not later than 60 days after providing a waiver under paragraph (1) for a school, submit to the Director a proposal for alternative standards that take into account the specific needs of the tribe's children. Such alternative standards shall be established by the Director for the school involved unless specifically rejected by the Director for good cause and in writing provided to the affected tribes or local school board.

''(f) ACCREDITATION AND IMPLEMENTATION OF STANDARDS.—

''(1) DEADLINE.—Not later than the second academic year after publication of final standards established under subsection (c) or (d), or after the approval of alternative standards under subsection (e), to the extent necessary funding is provided, each Bureau funded school to which such standards would apply shall meet the applicable standards or be accredited—

''(A) by a tribal accrediting body that has been accepted by formal action of the appropriate tribal governing body;

''(B) by a regional accreditation agency;

''(C) in accordance with State accreditation standards for the State in which the school is located; or

''(2) DETERMINATION OF STANDARDS TO BE APPLIED.—The accreditation type or standards applied for each school shall be determined by the school board of the school, in consultation with the Administrator of the school, provided that in the case where the School Board and the Administrator fail to agree on the type of accreditation and standards to apply, the decision of the school board with the approval of the tribal governing body shall be final.

''(3) ASSISTANCE TO SCHOOL BOARDS.—The Secretary, through contracts and grants, shall assist school boards of contract or grant schools in implementing standards established under subsections (c), (d), and (e), if the school boards request that such standards, in part or in whole, be implemented.

''(4) FISCAL CONTROL AND FUND ACCOUNTING STANDARDS.—The Bureau shall, either directly or through a contract with an Indian organization, establish a consistent system of reporting standards for fiscal control and fund accounting for all contract and grant schools. Such standards shall yield data results comparable to the data provided by Bureau schools.

''(g) ANNUAL PLAN FOR MEETING OF STANDARDS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subsections (e) and (f), the Secretary shall begin to implement the standards established under this section on the date of their establishment.

Such plan shall include detailed information on the status of each school's educational program in relation to the applicable standards established under this section, specific cost estimates for meeting such standards at each school, and specific timelines for bringing each school up to the level required by such standards.

''(h) CLOSURE OR CONSOLIDATION OF SCHOOLS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as specifically required by law, no Bureau funded school or dormitory operated on or after January 1, 1992, may be closed, consolidated, or transferred to another authority and no program of such a school may be substantially curtailed except in accordance with the requirements of this subsection.

''(2) EXCEPTIONS.—This subsection (other than this paragraph) shall not apply—

''(A) in those cases in which the tribal governing body for a school, or the local school board concerned (if designated by the tribal governing body to act under this paragraph), requests the closure, consolidation, or substantial curtailment; or

''(B) if a temporary closure, consolidation, or substantial curtailment is required by facility conditions that constitute an immediate hazard to health and safety.

''(3) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary shall, by regulation, promulgate standards and procedures for the closure, transfer to another authority, consolidation, or substantial curtailment of school programs of Bureau schools, in accordance with the requirements of this subsection.

''(4) NOTIFICATION.—

''(A) CONSIDERATION.—Whenever closure, transfer to another authority, consolidation, or substantial curtailment of a school program of a Bureau school is under active consideration or review by any division of the Bureau or the Department of the Interior, the head of the division or the Secretary shall ensure that the affected tribe, tribal governing body, and local school board, are notified (in writing) immediately, kept fully and currently informed, and afforded an opportunity to comment with respect to such consideration or review.

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall submit a report to the appropriate committees of Congress, the affected tribal governing body and the designated local school board, describing the process of the active consideration or review referred to in paragraph (4).

''(B) CONTENTS.—The report shall include the results of a study of the impact of the action under consideration or review on the student population of the school involved, identify those students at the school with particular educational and social needs, and ensure that alternative services are available to such students. Such report shall include a description of consultation conducted between the potential service provider and current service provider of such services, parents, tribal representatives, the tribe involved, and the Director of the Office regarding such students.

''(6) LIMITATION ON CERTAIN ACTIONS.—No irreversible action may be taken to further any proposed school closure, transfer to another authority, consolidation, or substantial curtailment described in this subsection concerning a school (including any action that would prejudice the personnel or programs of such school) prior to the end of the first full academic year after the report described in paragraph (5) is submitted.

''(7) TRIBAL GOVERNING BODY APPROVAL REQUIRED FOR CERTAIN ACTIONS.—The Secretary may terminate, contract, transfer to any other authority, consolidate, or substantially curtail the operation or facilities of—

''(ii) LIMITATION.—With respect to applications described in this subparagraph, the Secretary shall give consideration to all the factors described in subparagraph (B), but no such application shall be denied based primarily upon the geographic proximity of comparable public education.

''(B) FACTORS.—With respect to applications described in subparagraph (A) the Secretary shall consider the following factors relating to the program and services that are the subject of the application:

''(i) The adequacy of existing facilities to support the proposed program and services or the applicant's ability to obtain or provide adequate facilities.

''(ii) Geographic and demographic factors in the affected areas.

''(iii) The adequacy of the applicant's program plans or, in the case of a Bureau funded school, of a projected needs analysis conducted either by the tribe or the Bureau.

''(iv) Geographic proximity of comparable public education.

''(v) The stated needs of all affected parties, including students, families, tribal governing bodies at both the central and local levels, and school organizations.

''(vi) Adequacy and comparability of programs and services already available.

''(vii) Consistency of the proposed program and services with tribal educational codes or tribal legislation on education.

''(viii) The history and success of these services for the proposed population to be served, as determined from all factors, including standardized examination performance.

''(A) PERIOD.—The Secretary shall make a determination concerning whether to approve any application described in paragraph (1)(A) not later than 180 days after the date such application is submitted to the Secretary.

''(B) FAILURE TO MAKE DETERMINATION.—If the Secretary fails to make the determination with respect to an application by the date described in subparagraph (A), the application shall be treated as having been approved by the Secretary.

''(3) REQUIREMENTS FOR APPLICATIONS.—

''(i) on the date that is 18 months after the date on which the application is submitted to the Secretary; or

''(ii) on an earlier date determined by the Secretary.

''(6) STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to preclude the expansion of grades and related facilities at a Bureau funded school, if such expansion is paid for with non-Bureau funds.

''(j) JOINT ADMINISTRATION.—Funds received by Bureau funded schools from the Bureau of Indian Affairs and under any program from the Department of Education or any other Federal agency for the purpose of providing education or related services, and other funds received for such education and related services from non-Federally funded programs, may apportion joint administrative, transportation, and program costs between such programs and the funds shall be retained at the school.

''(k) GENERAL USE OF FUNDS.—Funds received by Bureau funded schools from the Bureau of Indian Affairs and under any program from the Department of Education or any other Federal agency for the purpose of providing education or related services may be used for schoolwide projects to improve the educational program of the schools for all Indian students.

''(l) STUDY ON ADEQUACY OF FUNDS AND FORMULAS.—

''(1) STUDY.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall conduct a study, in consultation with tribes and local school boards, to determine the adequacy of funding, and formulas used by the Bureau to determine funding, for programs operated by Bureau funded schools, taking into account unique circumstances applicable to Bureau funded schools, including isolation, limited English proficiency of Indian students, the costs of educating disabled Indian students in isolated settings, and other factors that may disproportionately increase per-pupil costs, as well as expenditures for comparable purposes in public schools nationally.

''(2) FINDINGS.—On completion of the study under paragraph (1), the Secretary shall take such action as may be necessary to ensure distribution of the findings of the study to the appropriate authorizing and appropriating committees of Congress, all affected tribes, local school boards, and associations of local school boards.

''SEC. 1122. NATIONAL STANDARDS FOR HOME LIVING SITUATIONS.

''(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary, in accordance with section 1137, shall revise the national standards for home-living (dormitory) situations to include such factors as heating, lighting, cooling, adult-child ratios, need for counselors (including special needs related to off-reservation home-living (dormitory) situations), therapeutic programs, space, and privacy. Such standards shall be implemented in Bureau schools. Any subsequent revisions shall also be in accordance with such section 1137.

''(b) IMPLEMENTATION.—The Secretary shall implement the revised standards established under this section immediately upon their issuance.

''(c) PLAN.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Upon the submission of each annual budget request for Bureau educational services (as contained in the President's annual budget request under section 1105 of title 31, United States Code), the Secretary shall submit to the appropriate committees of Congress, the tribes, and the affected schools, and publish in the Federal Register, a detailed plan to bring all Bureau funded schools that have dormitories or provide home-living (dormitory) situations into compliance with the standards established under this section.

''(2) CONTENTS.—Each plan under paragraph (1) shall include—

''(A) a statement of the relative needs of each of the home-living schools and projected future needs of each of the home-living schools;

''(B) detailed information on the status of each of the schools in relation to the standards established under this section;

''(C) specific cost estimates for meeting each standard for each such school;

''(D) aggregate cost estimates for bringing all such schools into compliance with the standards established under this section; and

''(E) specific timelines for bringing each school into compliance with such standards.

''(d) WAIVER.—A tribal governing body or local school board may, in accordance with section 1121(e), waive the standards established under this section for a school described in subsection (a) in the same manner as the governing body or school board may waive the standards provided under section 1121(c) for a Bureau funded school.

''(e) CLOSURE FOR FAILURE TO MEET STANDARDS PROHIBITED.—No school in operation on or before July 1, 1999 (regardless of compliance or noncompliance with the standards established under this section), may be closed, transferred to another authority, or consolidated, and no program of such a school may be substantially curtailed, because the school failed to meet such standards.

''SEC. 1123. SCHOOL BOUNDARIES.

''(a) ESTABLISHMENT BY SECRETARY.—Except as described in subsection (b), the Secretary shall establish, by regulation, separate geographical attendance areas for each Bureau funded school.

''(b) ESTABLISHMENT BY TRIBAL BODY.—In any case in which there is more than 1 Bureau funded school located on a reservation of a tribe, at the direction of the tribal governing body, the relevant school boards of the Bureau funded schools on the reservation may, by mutual consent, establish the boundaries of the relevant geographical attendance areas for such schools, subject to the approval of the tribal governing body. Any such boundaries so established shall be accepted by the Secretary.

''(c) BOUNDARY REVISIONS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Effective on July 1, 1999, the Secretary may not establish or revise boundaries of a geographical attendance area with respect to any Bureau funded school unless the tribal governing body concerned or the school board concerned (if designated by the tribal governing body to act under this paragraph) has been afforded—

''(A) at least 6 months notice of the intention of the Secretary to establish or revise such boundaries; and

''(B) the opportunity to propose alternative boundaries.

''(2) PETITIONS.—Any tribe may submit a petition to the Secretary requesting a revision of the geographical attendance area boundaries referred to in paragraph (1).

''(3) BOUNDARIES.—The Secretary shall accept proposed alternative boundaries described in paragraph (1)(B) or revised boundaries described in a petition submitted under paragraph (2) unless the Secretary finds, after consultation with the affected tribe, that such alternative or revised boundaries do not reflect the needs of the Indian students to be served or do not provide adequate stability to all of the affected programs. On accepting the boundaries, the Secretary shall publish information describing the boundaries in the Federal Register.

''(4) TRIBAL RESOLUTION DETERMINATION.—Nothing in this section shall be interpreted as denying a tribal governing body the authority, on a continuing basis, to adopt a tribal resolution allowing parents a choice of the Bureau funded school their child may attend, regardless of the geographical attendance area boundaries established under this section.

''(d) FUNDING RESTRICTIONS.—The Secretary shall not deny funding to a Bureau funded school for any eligible Indian student attending the school solely because that student's home or domicile is outside of the boundaries of the geographical attendance area established for that school under this section. No funding shall be made available for transportation without tribal authorization to enable the school to provide transportation for any student to or from the school and a location outside the approved attendance area of the school.

''(e) RESERVATION AS BOUNDARY.—In any case in which there is only 1 Bureau funded school located on a reservation, the boundaries of the geographical attendance area for the school shall be the boundaries (as established by treaty, agreement, legislation, court decision, or executive decision and as accepted by the tribe involved) of the reservation served, and those students residing near the reservation shall also receive services from such school.

''(f) OFF-RESERVATION HOME-LIVING SCHOOLS.—Notwithstanding the boundaries of the geographical attendance areas established under this section, each Bureau funded school that is an off-reservation home-living school shall implement special emphasis programs and permit the attendance of students requiring the programs. The programs provided for such students shall be coordinated among education line officers, the families of the students, the schools, and the entities operating programs that referred the students to the schools.

''SEC. 1124. FACILITIES CONSTRUCTION.

''(a) NATIONAL SURVEY OF FACILITIES CONDITIONS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 12 months after the date of enactment of the Native American Education Improvement Act of 2001, the General Accounting Office shall compile, collect, and secure the data that is needed to prepare a national survey of the physical conditions of all Bureau funded school facilities.

''(2) DATA AND METHODOLOGIES.—In preparing the national survey required under paragraph (1), the General Accounting Office shall use the following data and methodologies:

''(A) The existing Department of Defense formula for determining the condition and adequacy of Department of Defense facilities.

''(B) Data related to conditions of Bureau funded schools that has previously been compiled, collected, or secured from whatever source derived so long as the data is relevant, timely, and necessary to the survey.

''(C) The methodologies of the American Institute of Architects, or other accredited and reputable architecture or engineering associations.

''(3) CONSULTATIONS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—In carrying out the survey required under paragraph (1), the General Accounting Office shall, to the maximum extent practicable, consult (and if necessary contract) with national, regional, and tribal Indian education organizations to ensure that a complete and accurate national survey is achieved.

''(B) REQUESTS FOR INFORMATION.—All Bureau funded schools shall comply with reasonable requests for information by the General Accounting Office and shall respond to such requests in a timely fashion.

''(4) SUBMISSION TO CONGRESS.—Not later than 24 months after the date of enactment of the Native American Education Improvement Act of 2001, the General Accounting Office shall submit the results of the national survey conducted under paragraph (1) to the Committee on Indian Affairs and Committee on Appropriations of the Senate, and the Committee on Resources and Committee on Appropriations of the House.

''(5) NEGOTIATED RULEMAKING COMMITTEE.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 6 months after the date on which the submission is made under paragraph (4), the Secretary shall establish a negotiated rule making committee pursuant to section 1137(c). The negotiated rulemaking committee shall prepare and submit to the Secretary the following:

''(i) A catalogue of the condition of school facilities at all Bureau funded schools that—

''(I) rates such facilities with respect to the rate of deterioration and useful life structures and major systems;

''(II) establishes a routine maintenance schedule for each facility; and

''(III) makes projections on the amount of funds needed to keep each school viable, consistent with the standards of this Act.

''(ii) A school replacement and new construction report that determines replacement and new construction need, and a formula for the equitable distribution of funds to address such need, for Bureau funded schools. Such formula shall utilize necessary factors in determining an equitable distribution of funds, including—

''(I) the size of school;

''(II) school enrollment;

''(III) the age of the school;

''(IV) the condition of the school;

''(V) environmental factors at the school; and

''(VI) school isolation.

''(iii) A renovation repairs report that determines renovation need (major and minor), and a formula for the equitable distribution of funds to address such need, for Bureau funded schools. Such report shall identify needed repairs or renovations with respect to a facility, or a part of a facility, or the grounds of the facility, to remedy a need based on disabilities access or health and safety changes to a facility. The formula developed shall utilize necessary factors in determining an equitable distribution of funds, including the factors described in subparagraph (B).

''(B) Not later 24 months after the negotiated rulemaking committee is established under subparagraph (A), the reports described in clauses (ii) and (iii) of subparagraph (A) shall be submitted to the committees of Congress referred to in paragraph (4), the national and regional Indian education organizations, and to all Indian tribes.

''(6) FACILITIES INFORMATION SYSTEMS SUPPORT DATABASE.—The Secretary shall develop a Facilities Information Systems Support Database to maintain and update the information contained in the reports under clauses (ii) and (iii) of paragraph (5)(A) and the information contained in the survey conducted under paragraph (1). The system shall be updated every 3 years by the Bureau of Indian Affairs and monitored by General Accounting Office, and shall be made available to Indian tribes, Bureau funded schools, and Congress.

''(b) COMPLIANCE WITH HEALTH AND SAFETY STANDARDS.—The Secretary shall immediately begin to bring all schools, dormitories, and other Indian education-related facilities operated by the Bureau or under contract or grant with the Bureau into compliance with all applicable tribal, Federal, or State health and safety standards, whichever provides greater protection (except that the tribal standards to be applied shall be no greater than any otherwise applicable Federal or State standards), with section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and with the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990. Nothing in this section shall require termination of the operations of any facility which does not comply with such provisions and which is in use on the date of the enactment of the Native American Education Improvement Act of 2001.

''(c) COMPLIANCE PLAN.—At the time that the annual budget request for Bureau educational services is presented, the Secretary shall submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a detailed plan to bring all facilities covered under subsection (b) of this section into compliance with the standards referred to in subsection (b). Such plan shall include detailed information on the status of each facility's compliance with such standards, specific cost estimates for meeting such standards at each school, and specific timelines for bringing each school into compliance with such standards.

''(d) CONSTRUCTION PRIORITIES.—

''(1) SYSTEM TO ESTABLISH PRIORITIES.—The Secretary shall annually prepare and submit to the appropriate committees of Congress, and publish in the Federal Register, information describing the system used by the Secretary to establish priorities for replacement and construction projects for Bureau funded schools and home-living schools, including boarding schools, and dormitories. On making each budget request described in subsection (c), the Secretary shall publish in the Federal Register and submit with the budget request a list of all of the Bureau funded school construction priorities, as described in paragraph (2).

''(2) LONG-TERM CONSTRUCTION AND REPLACEMENT LIST.—In addition to submitting the plan described in subsection (c), the Secretary shall—

''(A) not later than 18 months after the date of enactment of the Native American Education Improvement Act of 2001, establish a long-term construction and replacement priority list for all Bureau funded schools;

''(B) using the list prepared under subparagraph (A), propose a list for the orderly replacement of all Bureau funded education-related facilities over a period of 40 years to facilitate planning and scheduling of budget requests;

''(C) publish the list prepared under subparagraph (B) in the Federal Register and allow a period of not less than 120 days for public comment;

''(D) make such revisions to the list prepared under subparagraph (B) as are appropriate based on the comments received; and

''(E) publish a final list in the Federal Register.

''(3) EFFECT ON OTHER LIST.—Nothing in this section shall be construed as interfering with or changing in any way the construction and replacement priority list established by the Secretary, as the list exists on the date of enactment of the Native American Education Improvement Act of 2001.

''(e) HAZARDOUS CONDITION AT BUREAU FUNDED SCHOOL.—

''(1) CLOSURE, CONSOLIDATION, OR CURTAILMENT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—A Bureau funded school may be closed or consolidated, and the programs of a Bureau funded school may be substantially curtailed by reason of facility conditions that constitute an immediate hazard to health and safety only if a health and safety officer of the Bureau and an individual designated by the tribe involved under subparagraph (B), determine that such conditions exist at a facility of the Bureau funded school.

''(B) DESIGNATION OF INDIVIDUAL BY TRIBE.—To be designated by a tribe for purposes of subparagraph (A), an individual shall—

''(i) be a licensed or certified facilities safety inspector;

''(ii) have demonstrated experience in the inspection of facilities for health and safety purposes with respect to occupancy; or

''(iii) have a significant educational background in the health and safety of facilities with respect to occupancy.

''(C) INSPECTION.—In making a determination described in subparagraph (A), the Bureau health and safety officer and the individual designated by the tribe shall conduct an inspection of the conditions of such facility in order to determine whether conditions at such facility constitute an immediate hazard to health and safety.

''(D) FAILURE TO CONCUR.—If the Bureau health and safety officer, and the individual designated by the tribe, conducting the inspection of a facility required under subparagraph (A) do not concur that conditions at the facility constitute an immediate hazard to health and safety, such officer and individual shall immediately notify the tribal governing body and provide written information related to their determinations.

''(E) CONSIDERATION BY TRIBAL GOVERNING BODY.—Not later than 10 days after a tribal governing body received notice under subparagraph (D), the tribal governing body shall consider all information related to the determinations of the Bureau health and safety officer and the individual designated by the tribe and make a determination regarding the closure, consolidation, or curtailment involved.

''(F) CESSATION OF CLOSURE, CONSOLIDATION, OR CURTAILMENT.—If the Bureau health and safety officer, and the individual designated by the tribe, conducting the inspection of a facility required under subparagraph (A), concur that conditions at the facility constitute an immediate hazard to health and safety, or if the tribal governing body makes such a determination under subparagraph (E) the facility involved shall be closed immediately.

''(G) GENERAL CLOSURE REPORT.—If a Bureau funded school is temporarily closed or consolidated or the programs of a Bureau funded school are temporarily substantially curtailed under this subsection and the Secretary determines that the closure, consolidation, or curtailment will exceed 1 year, the Secretary shall submit to the appropriate committees of Congress, the affected tribe, and the local school board, not later than 3 months after the date on which the closure, consolidation, or curtailment was initiated, a report that specifies—

''(i) the reasons for such temporary action;

''(ii) the actions the Secretary is taking to eliminate the conditions that constitute the hazard;

''(iii) an estimated date by which the actions described in clause (ii) will be concluded; and

''(iv) a plan for providing alternate education services for students enrolled at the school that is to be closed.

''(2) NONAPPLICATION OF CERTAIN STANDARDS FOR TEMPORARY FACILITY USE.—

''(A) CLASSROOM ACTIVITIES.—The Secretary shall permit the local school board to temporarily utilize facilities adjacent to the school, or satellite facilities, if such facilities are suitable for conducting classroom activities. In permitting the use of facilities under the preceding sentence, the Secretary may waive applicable minor standards under section 1121 relating to such facilities (such as the required number of exit lights or configuration of restrooms) so long as such waivers do not result in the creation of an environment that constitutes an immediate and substantial threat to the health, safety, and life of students and staff.

''(B) ADMINISTRATIVE ACTIVITIES.—The provisions of subparagraph (A) shall apply with respect to administrative personnel if the facilities involved are suitable for activities performed by such personnel.

''(C) TEMPORARY.—In this paragraph, the term 'temporary' means—

''(i) with respect to a school that is to be closed for not more than 1 year, 3 months or less; and

''(ii) with respect to a school that is to be closed for not less than 1 year, a time period determined appropriate by the Bureau.

''(3) TREATMENT OF CLOSURE.—Any closure of a Bureau funded school under this subsection for a period that exceeds 1 month but is less than 1 year, shall be treated by the Bureau as an emergency facility improvement and repair project.

''(4) USE OF FUNDS.—With respect to a Bureau funded school that is closed under this subsection, the tribal governing body, or the designated local school board of each Bureau funded school, involved may authorize the use of school operations funds, which have otherwise been allocated for such school, to abate the hazardous conditions without further action by Congress.

''(f) FUNDING REQUIREMENT.—

''(1) DISTRIBUTION OF FUNDS.—Beginning with the first fiscal year following the date of enactment of the Native American Education Improvement Act of 2001, all funds appropriated to the budget accounts for the operations and maintenance of Bureau funded schools shall be distributed by formula to the schools. No funds from these accounts may be retained or segregated by the Bureau to pay for administrative or other costs of any facilities branch or office, at any level of the Bureau.

''(2) REQUIREMENTS FOR CERTAIN USES.—

''(A) AGREEMENT.—The Secretary shall not withhold funds that would be distributed under paragraph (1) to any grant or contract school, in order to use the funds for maintenance or any other facilities or road-related purposes, unless such school—

''(i) has consented to the withholding of such funds, including the amount of the funds, the purpose for which the funds will be used, and the timeline for the services to be provided with the funds; and

''(ii) has provided the consent by entering into an agreement that is—

''(I) a modification to the contract; and

''(II) in writing (in the case of a school that receives a grant).

''(B) CANCELLATION.—The school may, at the end of any fiscal year, cancel an agreement entered into under this paragraph, on giving the Bureau 30 days notice of the intent of the school to cancel the agreement.

''(g) NO REDUCTION IN FEDERAL FUNDING.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to reduce any Federal funding for a school because the school received funding for facilities improvement or construction from a State or any other source.

''SEC. 1125. BUREAU OF INDIAN AFFAIRS EDUCATION FUNCTIONS.

''(a) FORMULATION AND ESTABLISHMENT OF POLICY AND PROCEDURE; SUPERVISION OF PROGRAMS AND EXPENDITURES.—The Secretary shall vest in the Assistant Secretary for Indian Affairs all functions with respect to formulation and establishment of policy and procedure, and supervision of programs and expenditures of Federal funds for the purpose of Indian education administered by the Bureau. ''(A) for the construction of school facilities in accordance with section 1124(d);

''(B) for the improvement and repair of education facilities and for establishing priorities among the improvement and repair projects involved, which together shall form the basis for the distribution of appropriated funds; and

''(C) for capital improvements to education facilities to be made over the 5 years succeeding the year covered by the plan.

''(2) PROGRAM FOR OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—

''(i) PROGRAM.—The Assistant Secretary shall establish a program, including a program for the distribution of funds appropriated under this part, for the operation and maintenance of education facilities. Such program shall include—

''(I) a method of computing the amount necessary for the operation and maintenance of each education facility;

''(II) a requirement of similar treatment of all Bureau funded schools;

''(III) a notice of an allocation of the appropriated funds from the Director of the Office directly to the appropriate education line officers and school officials;

''(IV) a method for determining the need for, and priority of, facilities improvement and repair projects, both major and minor; and

''(V) a system for conducting routine preventive maintenance.

''(ii) MEETINGS.—In making the determination referred to in clause (i)(IV), the Assistant Secretary shall cause a series of meetings to be conducted at the area and agency level with representatives of the Bureau funded schools in the corresponding areas and served by corresponding agencies, to receive comment on the projects described in clause (i)(IV) and prioritization of such projects.

''(B) MAINTENANCE.—The appropriate education line officers shall make arrangements for the maintenance of the education facilities with the local supervisors of the Bureau maintenance personnel. The local supervisors of Bureau maintenance personnel shall take appropriate action to implement the decisions made by the appropriate education line officers. No funds made available under this part may be authorized for expenditure for maintenance of such an education facility unless the appropriate education line officer is assured that the necessary maintenance has been, or will be, provided in a reasonable manner.

''(3) IMPLEMENTATION.—The requirements of this subsection shall be implemented as soon as practicable after the date of enactment of the Native American Education Improvement Act of 2001.

''(A) make provisions for monitoring use of the gift or bequest; and

''(B) submit a report to the appropriate committees of Congress that describes the amount and terms of such gift or bequest, the manner in which such gift or bequest shall be used, and any results achieved by such use.

''(3) EXCEPTION.—The requirements of paragraph (2) shall not apply in the case of a gift or bequest that is valued at $5,000 or less.

''(g) FUNCTIONS CLARIFIED.—In this section, the term 'functions' includes powers and duties.

''SEC. 1126. ALLOTMENT FORMULA.

''(a) FACTORS CONSIDERED; REVISION TO REFLECT STANDARDS.—

''(1) FORMULA.—The Secretary shall establish, by regulation adopted in accordance with section 1137, a formula for determining the minimum annual amount of funds necessary to operate each Bureau funded school. In establishing such formula, the Secretary shall consider—

''(A) the number of eligible Indian students served by the school and the total student population of the school;

''(B) special cost factors, such as—

''(i) the isolation of the school;

''(ii) the need for special staffing, transportation, or educational programs;

''(iii) food and housing costs;

''(iv) maintenance and repair costs associated with the physical condition of the educational facilities;

''(v) special transportation and other costs of an isolated or small school;

''(vi) the costs of home-living (dormitory) arrangements, where determined necessary by a tribal governing body or designated school board;

''(vii) costs associated with greater lengths of service by education personnel;

''(viii) the costs of therapeutic programs for students requiring such programs; and

''(ix) special costs for gifted and talented students;

''(C) the costs of providing academic services that are at least equivalent to the services provided by public schools in the State in which the school is located;

''(D) whether the available funding will enable the school involved to comply with the accreditation standards applicable to the school under section 1121; and

''(E) such other relevant factors as the Secretary determines are appropriate.

''(2) REVISION OF FORMULA.—On the establishment of the standards required in sections 1121 and 1122, the Secretary shall—

''(A) revise the formula established under paragraph (1) to reflect the cost of compliance with such standards; and

''(B)(i) by not later than January 1, 2002, review the formula established under paragraph (1) and take such action as may be necessary to increase the availability of counseling and therapeutic programs for students in off-reservation home-living schools and other Bureau operated residential facilities; and

''(ii) concurrently with any actions taken under clause (i), review the standards established under section 1121 to be certain that the standards adequately provide for parental notification regarding, and consent for, such counseling and therapeutic programs.

''(b) PRO RATA ALLOTMENT.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, Federal funds appropriated for the general local operation of Bureau funded schools shall be allotted on a pro rata basis in accordance with the formula established under subsection (a).

''(c) ANNUAL ADJUSTMENT; RESERVATION OF AMOUNT FOR SCHOOL BOARD ACTIVITIES.—

''(1) ANNUAL ADJUSTMENT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—For fiscal year 2002, and for each subsequent fiscal year, the Secretary shall adjust the formula established under subsection (a) to—

''(i) use a weighted factor of 1.2 for each eligible Indian student enrolled in the seventh and eighth grades of the school in considering the number of eligible Indian students served by the school;

''(ii) consider a school with an enrollment of fewer than 50 eligible Indian students as having an average daily attendance of 50 eligible Indian students for purposes of implementing the adjustment factor for small schools;

''(iii) take into account the provision of residential services on less than a 9-month basis at a school in a case in which the school board and supervisor of the school determine that the school will provide the services for fewer than 9 months for the academic year involved;

''(iv) use a weighted factor of 2.0 for each eligible Indian student that—

''(I) is gifted and talented; and

''(II) is enrolled in the school on a full-time basis, in considering the number of eligible Indian students served by the school; and

''(v) use a weighted factor of 0.25 for each eligible Indian student who is enrolled in a year long credit course in an Indian or Native language as part of the regular curriculum of a school, in considering the number of eligible Indian students served by such school.

''(B) TIMING.—The Secretary shall make the adjustment required under subparagraph (A)(v) for such school after—

''(i) the school board of such school provides a certification of the Indian or Native language curriculum of the school to the Secretary, together with an estimate of the number of full-time students expected to be enrolled in the curriculum in the second academic year after the academic year for which the certification is made; and

''(ii) the funds appropriated for allotments under this section are designated, in the appropriations Act appropriating such funds, as the funds necessary to implement such adjustment at such school without reducing an allotment made under this section to any school by virtue of such adjustment.

''(2) RESERVATION OF AMOUNT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—From the funds allotted in accordance with the formula established under subsection (a) for each Bureau school, the local school board of such school may reserve an amount which does not exceed the greater of—

''(i) $8,000; or

''(ii) the lesser of—

''(I) $15,000; or

''(II) 1 percent of such allotted funds, for school board activities for such school, including (notwithstanding any other provision of law) meeting expenses and the cost of membership in, and support of, organizations engaged in activities on behalf of Indian education.

''(B) TRAINING.—Each local school board, and any agency school board that serves as a local school board for any grant or contract school, shall ensure that each individual who is a new member of the school board receives, within 12 months after the individual becomes a member of the school board, 40 hours of training relevant to that individual's service on the board. Such training may include training concerning legal issues pertaining to Bureau funded schools, legal issues pertaining to school boards, ethics, and other topics determined to be appropriate by the school board.

''(d) RESERVATION OF AMOUNT FOR EMERGENCIES.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall reserve from the funds available for allotment for each fiscal year under this section an amount that, in the aggregate, equals 1 percent of the funds available for allotment for that fiscal year.

''(2) USE OF FUNDS.—Amounts reserved under paragraph (1) shall be used, at the discretion of the Director of the Office, to meet emergencies and unforeseen contingencies affecting the education programs funded under this section. Funds reserved under this subsection may only be expended for education services or programs, including emergency repairs of education facilities, at a school site (as defined in section 5204(c)(2) of the Tribally Controlled Schools Act of 1988).

''(3) FUNDS REMAINING AVAILABLE.—Funds reserved under this subsection shall remain available without fiscal year limitation until expended. The aggregate amount of such funds, from all fiscal years, that is available for expenditure in a fiscal year may not exceed an amount equal to 1 percent of the funds available for allotment under this section for that fiscal year.

''(4) REPORTS.—If the Secretary makes funds available under this subsection, the Secretary shall submit a report describing such action to the appropriate committees of Congress as part of the President's next annual budget request under section 1105 of title 31, United States Code).

''(e) SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS.—Any funds provided in a supplemental appropriations Act to meet increased pay costs attributable to school level personnel of Bureau funded schools shall be allotted under this section.

''(f) ELIGIBLE INDIAN STUDENT DEFINED.—In this section, the term 'eligible Indian student' means a student who—

''(1) is a member of, or is at least ¼ degree Indian blood descendant of a member of, a tribe that is eligible for the special programs and services provided by the United States through the Bureau to Indians because of their status as Indians;

''(2) resides on or near a reservation or meets the criteria for attendance at a Bureau off-reservation home-living school; and

''(3) is enrolled in a Bureau funded school.

''(g) TUITION.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—A Bureau school or contract or grant school may not charge an eligible Indian student tuition for attendance at the school. A Bureau school may not charge a student attending the school under the circumstances described in paragraph (2)(C) tuition for attendance at the school.

''(2) ATTENDANCE OF NON-INDIAN STUDENTS AT BUREAU SCHOOLS.—The Secretary may permit the attendance at a Bureau school of a student who is not an eligible Indian student if—

''(A)(i) the Secretary determines that the student's attendance will not adversely affect the school's program for eligible Indian students because of cost, overcrowding, or violation of standards or accreditation requirements; and

''(ii) the local school board consents; and

''(B)(i) the student is a dependent of a Bureau, Indian Health Service, or tribal government employee who lives on or near the school site; or

''(ii) tuition is paid for the student in an amount that is not more than the amount of tuition charged by the nearest public school district for out-of-district students, and is paid in addition to the school's allotment under this section.

''(3) ATTENDANCE OF NON-INDIAN STUDENTS AT CONTRACT AND GRANT SCHOOLS.—The school board of a contract or grant school may permit students who are not eligible Indian students to attend the contract or grant school. Any tuition collected for those students shall be in addition to the amount the school received under this section.

''(h) FUNDS AVAILABLE WITHOUT FISCAL YEAR LIMITATION.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, at the election of the local school board of a Bureau school made at any time during a fiscal year, a portion equal to not more than 15 percent of the funds allotted for the school under this section for the fiscal year shall remain available to the school for expenditure without fiscal year limitation. The Assistant Secretary for Indian Affairs shall take such steps as may be necessary to implement this subsection.

''(i) STUDENTS AT RICHFIELD DORMITORY, RICHFIELD, UTAH.—Tuition for the instruction of each out-of-State Indian student in a home-living situation at the Richfield dormitory in Richfield, Utah, who attends Sevier County high schools in Richfield, Utah, for an academic year, shall be paid from Indian school equalization program funds authorized in this section and section 1129, at a rate not to exceed the weighted amount provided for under subsection (b) for a student for that year. No additional administrative cost funds shall be provided under this part to pay for administrative costs relating to the instruction of the students.

''SEC. 1127. ADMINISTRATIVE COST GRANTS.

''(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

''(1) ADMINISTRATIVE COST.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The term 'administrative cost' means the cost of necessary administrative functions which—

''(i) the tribe or tribal organization incurs as a result of operating a tribal elementary or secondary educational program;

''(ii) are not customarily paid by comparable Bureau operated programs out of direct program funds; and

''(iii) are either—

''(I) normally provided for comparable Bureau programs by Federal officials using resources other than Bureau direct program funds; or

''(II) are otherwise required of tribal self-determination program operators by law or prudent management practice.

''(B) INCLUSIONS.—The term 'administrative cost' may include—

''(i) contract or grant (or other agreement) administration;

''(ii) executive, policy, and corporate leadership and decisionmaking;

''(iii) program planning, development, and management;

''(iv) fiscal, personnel, property, and procurement management;

''(v) related office services and record keeping; and

''(vi) costs of necessary insurance, auditing, legal, safety and security services.

''(2) BUREAU ELEMENTARY AND SECONDARY FUNCTIONS.—The term 'Bureau elementary and secondary functions' means—

''(A) all functions funded at Bureau schools by the Office;

''(B) all programs—

''(i) funds for which are appropriated to other agencies of the Federal Government; and

''(ii) which are administered for the benefit of Indians through Bureau schools; and

''(C) all operation, maintenance, and repair funds for facilities and government quarters used in the operation or support of elementary and secondary education functions for the benefit of Indians, from whatever source derived.

''(3) DIRECT COST BASE.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided in subparagraph (B), the direct cost base of a tribe or tribal organization for the fiscal year is the aggregate direct cost program funding for all tribal elementary or secondary educational programs operated by the tribe or tribal organization during—

''(i) the second fiscal year preceding such fiscal year; or

''(ii) if such programs have not been operated by the tribe or tribal organization during the two preceding fiscal years, the first fiscal year preceding such fiscal year.

''(B) FUNCTIONS NOT PREVIOUSLY OPERATED.—In the case of Bureau elementary or secondary education functions which have not previously been operated by a tribe or tribal organization under contract, grant, or agreement with the Bureau, the direct cost base for the initial year shall be the projected aggregate direct cost program funding for all Bureau elementary and secondary functions to be operated by the tribe or tribal organization during that fiscal year.

''(4) MAXIMUM BASE RATE.—The term 'maximum base rate' means 50 percent.

''(5) MINIMUM BASE RATE.—The term 'minimum base rate' means 11 percent.

''(6) STANDARD DIRECT COST BASE.—The term 'standard direct cost base' means $600,000.

''(7) TRIBAL ELEMENTARY OR SECONDARY EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS.—The term 'tribal elementary or secondary educational programs' means all Bureau elementary and secondary functions, together with any other Bureau programs or portions of programs (excluding funds for social services that are appropriated to agencies other than the Bureau and are expended through the Bureau, funds for major subcontracts, construction, and other major capital expenditures, and unexpended funds carried over from prior years) which share common administrative cost functions, that are operated directly by a tribe or tribal organization under a contract, grant, or agreement with the Bureau.

''(b) GRANTS; EFFECT UPON APPROPRIATED AMOUNTS.—

''(1) GRANTS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to the availability of appropriated funds, the Secretary shall provide a grant to each tribe or tribal organization operating a contract or grant school, in an amount determined under this section, for the purpose of paying the administrative and indirect costs incurred in operating the contract or grant school, in order to—

''(i) enable the tribe or tribal organization operating the school, without reducing direct program services to the beneficiaries of the program, to provide all related administrative overhead services and operations necessary to meet the requirements of law and prudent management practice; and

''(ii) carry out other necessary support functions that would otherwise be provided by the Secretary or other Federal officers or employees, from resources other than direct program funds, in support of comparable Bureau operated programs.

''(B) AMOUNT.—No school operated as a stand-alone institution shall receive less than $200,000 per year under this paragraph.

''(2) EFFECT UPON APPROPRIATED AMOUNTS.—Amounts appropriated to fund the grants provided for under this section shall be in addition to, and shall not reduce, the amounts appropriated for the program being administered by the contract or grant school.

''(c) DETERMINATION OF GRANT AMOUNT.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The amount of the grant provided to each tribe or tribal organization under this section for each fiscal year shall be determined by applying the administrative cost percentage rate determined under subsection (d) of the tribe or tribal organization to the aggregate cost of the Bureau elementary and secondary functions operated by the tribe or tribal organization for which funds are received from or through the Bureau. The administrative cost percentage rate does not apply to programs not relating to such functions that are operated by the tribe or tribal organization.

''(2) DIRECT COST BASE FUNDS.—The Secretary shall—

''(A) reduce the amount of the grant determined under paragraph (1) to the extent that payments for administrative costs are actually received by a tribe or tribal organization under any Federal education program that is included in the direct cost base of the tribe or tribal organization; and

''(B) take such actions as may be necessary to be reimbursed by any other department or agency of the Federal Government (other than the Department of the Interior) for the portion of grants made under this section for the costs of administering any program for Indians that is funded by appropriations made to such other department or agency.

''(3) REDUCTIONS.—If the total amount of funds necessary to provide grants to tribes and tribal organizations in the amounts determined under paragraph (1) and (2) for a fiscal year exceeds the amount of funds appropriated to carry out this section for such fiscal year, the Secretary shall reduce the amount of each grant determined under this subsection for such fiscal year by an amount that bears the same relationship to such excess as the amount of such grants determined under this subsection bears to the total of all grants determined under this subsection for all tribes and tribal organizations for such fiscal year.

''(d) ADMINISTRATIVE COST PERCENTAGE RATE.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this section, the administrative cost percentage rate for a contract or grant school for a fiscal year is equal to the percentage determined by dividing—

''(A) the sum of—

''(i) the amount equal to—

''(I) the direct cost base of the tribe or tribal organization for the fiscal year; multiplied by

''(II) the minimum base rate; plus

''(ii) the amount equal to—

''(I) the standard direct cost base; multiplied by

''(II) the maximum base rate; by

''(B) the sum of—

''(i) the direct cost base of the tribe or tribal organization for the fiscal year; and

''(ii) the standard direct cost base.

''(2) ROUNDING.—The administrative cost percentage rate shall be determined to 1/100 of a percent.

''(e) COMBINING FUNDS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Funds received by a tribe, tribal organization, or contract or grant school through grants made under this section for tribal elementary or secondary educational programs may be combined by the tribe, tribal organization, or contract or grant school and placed into a single administrative cost account without the necessity of maintaining separate funding source accounting.

''(2) INDIRECT COST FUNDS.—Indirect cost funds for programs at the school that share common administrative services with the tribal elementary or secondary educational programs may be included in the administrative cost account described in paragraph (1).

''(f) AVAILABILITY OF FUNDS.—Funds received through a grant made under this section with respect to tribal elementary or secondary educational programs at a contract or grant school shall remain available to the contract or grant school—

''(1) without fiscal year limitation; and

''(2) without reducing the amount of any grants otherwise payable to the school under this section for any fiscal year after the fiscal year for which the grant is provided.

''(g) TREATMENT OF FUNDS.—Funds received through a grant made under this section for Bureau funded programs operated by a tribe or tribal organization under a contract or grant shall not be taken into consideration for purposes of indirect cost underrecovery and overrecovery determinations by any Federal agency for any other funds, from whatever source derived.

''(h) TREATMENT OF ENTITY OPERATING OTHER PROGRAMS.—In applying this section and section 106 of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act with respect to an Indian tribe or tribal organization that—

''(1) receives funds under this section for administrative costs incurred in operating a contract or grant school or a school operated under the Tribally Controlled Schools Act of 1988; and

''(2) operates one or more other programs under a contract or grant provided under the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act, the Secretary shall ensure that the Indian tribe or tribal organization is provided with the full amount of the administrative costs that are associated with operating the contract or grant school, and of the indirect costs, that are associated with all of such other programs, except that funds appropriated for implementation of this section shall be used only to supply the amount of the grant required to be provided by this section.

SEC. 201. TRIBALLY CONTROLLED SCHOOLS.

Sections 5202 through 5213 of the Tribally Controlled Schools Act of 1988 (25 U.S.C. 2501 et seq.) are amended to read as follows:

''SEC. 5202. FINDINGS.

''Congress, after careful review of the Federal Government's historical and special legal relationship with, and resulting responsibilities to, Indians, finds that—

''(1) the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act, which was a product of the legitimate aspirations and a recognition of the inherent authority of Indian nations, was and is a crucial positive step towards tribal and community control;

''(2) because of the Bureau of Indian Affairs' administration and domination of the contracting process under such Act, Indians have not been provided with the full opportunity to develop leadership skills crucial to the realization of self-government and have been denied an effective voice in the planning and implementation of programs for the benefit of Indians that are responsive to the true needs of Indian communities;

''(3) Indians will never surrender their desire to control their relationships both among themselves and with non-Indian governments, organizations, and persons;

''(4) true self-determination in any society of people is dependent upon an educational process that will ensure the development of qualified people to fulfill meaningful leadership roles;

''(5) the Federal administration of education for Indian children have not effected the desired level of educational achievement or created the diverse opportunities and personal satisfaction that education can and should provide;

''(6) true local control requires the least possible Federal interference; and

''(7) the time has come to enhance the concepts made manifest in the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act.

''SEC. 5203. DECLARATION OF POLICY.

''(a) RECOGNITION.—Congress recognizes the obligation of the United States to respond to the strong expression of the Indian people for self-determination by assuring maximum Indian participation in the direction of educational services so as to render the persons administering such services and the services themselves more responsive to the needs and desires of Indian communities.

''(b) COMMITMENT.—Congress declares its commitment to the maintenance of the Federal Government's unique and continuing trust relationship with and responsibility to the Indian people through the establishment of a meaningful Indian self-determination policy for education that will deter further perpetuation of Federal bureaucratic domination of programs.

''(c) NATIONAL GOAL.—Congress declares that a major national goal of the United States is to provide the resources, processes, and structure that will enable tribes and local communities to obtain the quantity and quality of educational services and opportunities that will permit Indian children—

''(1) to compete and excel in the life areas of their choice; and

''(2) to achieve the measure of self-determination essential to their social and economic well-being.

''(d) EDUCATIONAL NEEDS.—Congress affirms—

''(1) the reality of the special and unique educational needs of Indian people, including the need for programs to meet the linguistic and cultural aspirations of Indian tribes and communities; and

''(2) that the needs may best be met through a grant process.

''(e) FEDERAL RELATIONS.—Congress declares a commitment to the policies described in this section and support, to the full extent of congressional responsibility, for Federal relations with the Indian nations.

''(f) TERMINATION.—Congress repudiates and rejects House Concurrent Resolution 108 of the 83d Congress and any policy of unilateral termination of Federal relations with any Indian Nation.

The submission of such applications and the timing of such applications shall be strictly voluntary. Nothing in this part may be construed as allowing or requiring the grant recipient to make any grant under this part to any other entity.

By Mr. CAMPBELL (for himself, Mr. INOUYE, and Mr. MCCAIN):

S. 212. A bill to amend the Indian Health Care Improvement Act to revise and extend such Act; to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, I am pleased to be joined today by the Vice Chairman of the Committee on Indian Affairs, Senator DANIEL K. INOUYE, and former Chairman, Senator JOHN MCCAIN in introducing important legislation to reauthorize the Indian Health Care Improvement Act of 1976, the ''IHCIA'' or the ''Act''.

The United States first provided health services to Indians in 1824 as part of the War Department's handling of Indian affairs. In 1849 this responsibility went to the newly-created Department of the Interior where it rested until 1955 when it was transferred to the Public Health Service's Indian Health Agency.

The evolution of the Indian Health Service from an ad hoc service provided to Indians by the BIA to a specialized agency within the Department of Health and Human Services was completed with the passage of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act of 1976.

In 1970, President Nixon issued his now-famous ''Special Message to Congress on Indian Affairs'' laying out the rationale for a more enlightened Federal Indian Policy: Indian Self-Determination.

Self-Determination is the core principle embodied in the IHCIA the main purposes of which are to improve the health status of Indian people and to increase the number of Indians involved in the health professions.

The Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act of 1975, the IHCIA, and the amendments to each over the years can all be traced directly to the fundamental changes first proposed in 1970.

I am proud to say that legislation I proposed in the 106th Congress, the Indian Tribal Self-Governance Amendments of 2000, were enacted into law as Public Law 106–260. The bill we introduce today builds on this new law in important respects.

By introducing the IHCIA reauthorization bill, we re-affirm Indian Self-Determination and the principles of the IHCIA (1) that the provision of Federal health services is consistent with the federal-tribal relationship; (2) that a goal of the U.S. is to provide the quantity and quality of services to raise the health status of Indians; (3) that Indian participation in the planning and management of health services should be maximized; and (4) that the numbers of American Indians and Alaska Natives trained in health professions be maximized.

Before the passage of the Act in 1976 the mortality rate for Indian infants was 25 percent higher than that of non-Indian babies. The death rates for mothers was 82 percent higher and the mortality rates from infectious disease-causing diarrhea and dehydration was 138 percent greater.

Today we can see marked improvements. Infant mortality rates have been reduced by 54 percent, maternal mortality rates have been reduced by 65 percent, tuberculosis mortality by 80 percent and overall mortality rates have been reduced by 42 percent.

While encouraging, these statistics mask the fact that the health status of Native people in America is still poor and below that of all other racial and ethnic groups.

While we will continue to push forward on all fronts in seeking to improve Indian health services, I believe that there are three emergent issues that we need to address; urban Indian health care; Indian health facilities construction needs; and the booming problem of diabetes.

Undoubtedly the 2000 decennial census will likely show what past counts have shown—that more than one-half of the 2.3 million American Indians and Alaska Natives reside off-reservation and are referred to as ''urban Indians.'' Though the health services framework that now exists has slowly begun to acknowledge this trend, I am concerned that urban Indian health care needs require a more focused and vigorous approach.

Another problem that must be addressed is the growing backlog in health care facilities construction. Recent estimates show that there is some $900 million in unmet facilities needs. The dogged approach to eliminating this backlog by relying on federal appropriations will not work, and I strongly believe that innovative proposals need to be made, refined and perfected in order to accomplish our common goal.

I am heartened by the cooperative federal-tribal efforts in making the Joint Venture Program a success and look forward to building on this success in the coming years.

Ailments of affluence continue to seep into Native communities and erode the quality of life and very social fabric that holds these communities together. Alcohol and substance abuse continue to take a heavy toll and diabetes is reaching alarmingly high rates. Most troubling is the increasing obesity and diabetes that is occurring with alarming frequency in Native youngsters.

It is now time to make the extra effort to look at the positive things we have accomplished and build upon them.

This bill is a step in the right direction on these and other health matters. The bill we introduced last year was the product of months-long consultations by a group of very dedicated individuals consisting of Indian Tribal leaders, health and legal professionals, and representatives of the private and public health care sectors. The group reviewed existing law and has proposed changes to improve the current system by stressing local flexibility and choice, and making it more responsive to the health needs of Indian people.

I am hopeful that in moving forward this year we can draw from the hearing record built after no fewer than five hearings on the bill that was introduced in the 106th Congress, S. 2526.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this key measure. I ask unanimous consent that a copy of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 212

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; TABLE OF CONTENTS.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the ''Indian Health Care Improvement Act Reauthorization of 2001''.

(b) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—The table of contents for this Act is as follows:

TITLE I—REAUTHORIZATION AND REVISIONS OF THE INDIAN HEALTH CARE IMPROVEMENT ACT

SEC. 101. AMENDMENT TO THE INDIAN HEALTH CARE IMPROVEMENT ACT.

The Indian Health Care Improvement Act (25 U.S.C. 1601 et seq.) is amended to read as follows:

''SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; TABLE OF CONTENTS.

''(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the 'Indian Health Care Improvement Act'.

''(b) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—The table of contents for this Act is as follows:

''SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

''Congress makes the following findings:

''(1) Federal delivery of health services and funding of tribal and urban Indian health programs to maintain and improve the health of the Indians are consonant with and required by the Federal Government's historical and unique legal relationship with the American Indian people, as reflected in the Constitution, treaties, Federal laws, and the course of dealings of the United States with Indian Tribes, and the United States' resulting government to government and trust responsibility and obligations to the American Indian people.

''(2) From the time of European occupation and colonization through the 20th century, the policies and practices of the United States caused or contributed to the severe health conditions of Indians.

''(3) Indian Tribes have, through the cession of over 400,000,000 acres of land to the United States in exchange for promises, often reflected in treaties, of health care secured a de facto contract that entitles Indians to health care in perpetuity, based on the moral, legal, and historic obligation of the United States.

''(4) The population growth of the Indian people that began in the later part of the 20th century increases the need for Federal health care services.

''(5) A major national goal of the United States is to provide the quantity and quality of health services which will permit the health status of Indians, regardless of where they live, to be raised to the highest possible level, a level that is not less than that of the general population, and to provide for the maximum participation of Indian Tribes, tribal organizations, and urban Indian organizations in the planning, delivery, and management of those services.

''(6) Federal health services to Indians have resulted in a reduction in the prevalence and incidence of illnesses among, and unnecessary and premature deaths of, Indians.

''(7) Despite such services, the unmet health needs of the American Indian people remain alarmingly severe, and even continue to increase, and the health status of the Indians is far below the health status of the general population of the United States.

''(8) The disparity in health status that is to be addresses is formidable. In death rates for example, Indian people suffer a death rate for diabetes mellitus that is 249 percent higher than the death rate for all races in the United States, a pneumonia and influenza death rate that is 71 percent higher, a tuberculosis death rate that is 533 percent higher, and a death rate from alcoholism that is 627 percent higher.

''SEC. 3. DECLARATION OF HEALTH OBJECTIVES.

''Congress hereby declares that it is the policy of the United States, in fulfillment of its special trust responsibilities and legal obligations to the American Indian people—

''(1) to assure the highest possible health status for Indians and to provide all resources necessary to effect that policy;

''(2) to raise the health status of Indians by the year 2010 to at least the levels set forth in the goals contained within the Healthy People 2010, or any successor standards thereto;

''(3) in order to raise the health status of Indian people to at least the levels set forth in the goals contained within the Healthy People 2010, or any successor standards thereto, to permit Indian Tribes and tribal organizations to set their own health care priorities and establish goals that reflect their unmet needs;

''(4) to increase the proportion of all degrees in the health professions and allied and associated health professions awarded to Indians so that the proportion of Indian health professionals in each geographic service area is raised to at least the level of that of the general population;

''(5) to require meaningful, active consultation with Indian Tribes, Indian organizations, and urban Indian organizations to implement this Act and the national policy of Indian self-determination; and

''(6) that funds for health care programs and facilities operated by Tribes and tribal organizations be provided in amounts that are not less than the funds that are provided to programs and facilities operated directly by the Service.

This Act and the amendments made by this Act take effect on October 1, 2001.

By Mr. HATCH (for himself and Mr. BENNETT):

S. 213. A bill to amend the National Trails System Act to update the feasibility and suitability studies of 4 national historic trails and provide for possible additions to such trails; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce an amendment to the National Trails System Act which would update the feasibility and suitability studies of four national historic trails and allow possible additions to them. The trails in question are the Oregon, the Mormon, the Pony Express and the California National Historic Trails.

In 1978, the Oregon and Mormon trails were established by the National Trails System Act. At that time the language of the bill defined these trails as ''point to point,'' limiting them to one beginning point and one destination. The Mormon Pioneer National Historic Trail at that time was defined as the route Brigham Young took in 1846 through Iowa and then to the Salt Lake Valley in 1847. The Oregon Trail was defined narrowly as the route taken by settlers from Independence, Missouri, to Oregon City from 1841 to 1848. It, too, was limited to a single trail with only three variants.

Later, in 1992, Congress passed an amendment for the establishment of the California and Pony Express National Historic Trails. This amendment broadened the possibility of trail variants for the California Trail and provided a more accurate depiction of the original trail. However, the legislation I am introducing today will provide additional authority for variations to these trails.

To those of us in the West, these trails are the highways of our history. With this legislation, I hope to capture the stories made along the side roads, as well. In many cases, our most interesting and telling history was made along the variations of the main trails. Since the enactment of the National Trails System Act in 1978, there has been a great deal of support to broaden the Act to include these side roads to history.

Not every pioneer company embarked on their journey from Omaha, Nebraska or Independence, Missouri. Tens of thousands of settlers began from other starting points. These trail variations and alternate routes show the ingenuity and adaptability of the poineers as they were forced to contend with inclement weather, lack of water, difficult terrain, and hostile Native American tribes. The variant routes taken by the pioneers tell important stories that would otherwise slip through the cracks under a strict interpretation of the National Trails System Act.

The Act requires that comprehensive management and use plans be prepared for all historic trails. In 1981, such plans were completed for the Mormon and Oregon trails. Since that time, however, endless hours of research by the Park Service and trails organizations have produced a more complete picture of the westward expansion. The National Park Service has determined, however, that legislation is required to update the trails with this newfound history.

That is why I am introducing this legislation today. This bill would authorize the study of further important additions to the California, Mormon Pioneer, Oregon, and Pony Express National Historic Trails and allow for a more complete story to be told of our history in the West.

I thank the Senate for the opportunity to address this issue today, and I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

By Mr. MCCAIN (for himself, Mr. INOUYE, Mr. CONRAD, Mr. DASCHLE, and Mr. CAMPBELL):

S. 214. A bill to elevate the position of Director of the Indian Health Service within the Department of Health and Human Services to Assistant Secretary for Indian Health, and for other purposes; to Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I rise to introduce legislation to designate the Director of the Indian Health Service as an Assistant Secretary for Indian Health within the Department of Health and Human Services. My colleagues, Senators INOUYE, CONRAD, DASCHLE and CAMPBELL are joining me in this effort as original co-sponsors. I am pleased to note that Congressman Nethercutt from Washington will introduce companion legislation on the House side.

The purpose of this legislation is simple. It will redesignate the current Director of the Indian Health Service, IHS, as a new Assistant Secretary within the Department of Health and Human Services to be responsible for Indian health policy and budgetary matters.

As the primary health care delivery system, the Indian Health Service is the principal advocate for Indian health care needs, both on the reservation level and for urban populations. More than 1.5 million Indian people are served every year by the IHS. At its current capacity, the IHS estimates that it can only meet about 60 percent of tribal health care needs. The IHS will continue to be challenged by a growing Indian population as well as an increasing disparity between the health status of Indian people as compared to other Americans. Thousands of Indian people continue to suffer from the worst imaginable health care conditions in Indian country—from diabetes to cancer to infant mortality. In nearly every category, the health status of Native Americans falls far below the national standard.

The purpose of this bill is to respond to the desire by Indian people for a stronger leadership and policy role within the primary health care agency, the Department of Health and Human Services. The Assistant Secretary for Indian Health will ensure that critical policy and budgetary decisions will be made with the full involvement and consultation of not only the Indian Health Service, but also the direct involvement of the Tribal governments.

This legislation is long overdue in bringing focus and national attention to the health care status of Indian people and fulfilling the federal trust responsibility toward Indian tribes. Implementation of this bill is intended to support the long-standing policies of Indian self-determination and tribal self-governance and assist Indian tribes who are making positive strides in providing direct health care to their own communities.

Tribal communities are in dire need of a senior policy official who is knowledgeable about the programs administered by the IHS and who can provide the leadership for the health care needs of American Indians and Alaska Natives. We continue to pursue passage of this legislation as many believe that the priority of Indian health issues within the Department should be raised to the highest levels within our federal government.

I look forward to working with my colleagues on both sides of the aisle and the new Administration to ensure prompt passage of this legislation. I ask unanimous consent that the full text of this bill be included in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

By Ms. STABENOW:

S. 215. A bill to amend the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act to permit importation in personal baggage and by mail of certain covered products for personal use from certain foreign countries and to correct impediments in implementation of the Medicine Equity and Drug Safety Act of 2000; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, today I rise to introduce my first bill in the Senate, the Medication Equity and Drug Savings Act, or the MEDS Act.

On January 22, a little over a week ago, I had the privilege of addressing my colleagues in my first speech on the Senate floor. The topic of the speech was health care, specifically the need to pass a strong Patients' Bill of Rights. I pledged my commitment to making health care a priority during my tenure in this esteemed body.

Today, I am pleased to share with my colleagues that I am taking the next step in keeping my promise by introducing a bill that addresses another priority health care issue: the price of prescription drugs. We all know that providing prescription drugs for seniors has become a very important issue for the American public. In fact, this was a key issue in many campaigns throughout the country, including my own.

On a fundamental level, I believe everyone should have access to affordable prescription drugs, especially senior citizens enrolled in Medicare and the disabled. It is an outrage that not only must those seniors, who rely solely on Medicare for their health insurance, pay for all of their medications out of their own pockets, but that in many instances they pay more for the same drug than their counterparts with other insurance.

So we have situations where those without insurance, and most often this falls on our seniors—but anyone without insurance is most often walking into the pharmacy and paying more. We did a study in my State that showed, on average, they paid twice as much as someone with insurance for the very same medications.

I have conducted several prescription drug price studies in Michigan, and I have learned that, in fact, there is a genuine problem that touches the lives of so many people whom I represent. My concerns have been confirmed by literally thousands of letters and e-mails and phone calls from seniors and families who cannot afford to buy their medications.

I have been saddened by the sheer number of seniors who confided in me that the cost of their drugs is so high that they are often forced to give up their meals or are not able to heat their homes. In Michigan that can be very serious in the wintertime. This is in order to buy their medications.

These are not new stories. I know my colleagues have heard these stories as well, but they are real. They are not just stories. They are affecting people today. As we speak, there are seniors somewhere deciding whether or not they are going to skip their meals to get their medicine, or whether they are going to eat and not have the medications they need.

I also know from hearing from doctors in my district who are worried about seniors, who decided to do their own self-regulation. They cannot afford all their pills, so they will skip a couple of pills, or they will take them every other day, or cut them in half. Oftentimes they have been placed in serious jeopardy as to their health because they have not been able to afford their medications and they have taken them inappropriately.

The bottom line is that Medicare should include a defined, voluntary prescription drug benefit to help cover the costs of prescription drugs for seniors and the disabled. I am committed to working with my colleagues across the aisle, and the administration, to finish what we started last year and create this new component of Medicare that is absolutely critical. Without it, we are not fulfilling the promise of universal health care for those over the age of 65, or the disabled. If we do not cover medications, we are not providing health care in the truest sense for those individuals.

In fact, one of the very first bills I cosponsored this year was S. 10, a bill that would create this important benefit in the Medicare program. I am ready to work with my colleagues to make sure that we do whatever it takes to update Medicare and create a defined benefit that will make such an incredible difference in the lives of seniors and their families in my great State of Michigan and all across the country. As we work on this complex issue, there are other approaches we can take in a more immediate sense to cut the costs of prescription drugs.

Last year, Congress passed and the President signed into law an important new Act that would permit U.S. manufactured, FDA approved drugs to be reimported back into the United States by wholesalers. I firmly believe that implementing this Act could substantially reduce the cost of drugs, not just for seniors, but for everyone.

Many of my colleagues may remember that during my campaign I organized several bus trips to Canada. As you know, Canada is just a short trip over a bridge or through a tunnel for many residents of Michigan. What I discovered on my bus trips was almost unbelievable.

With just a short drive across the border, U.S. citizens can substantially reduce the cost of their medications by purchasing them in Canadian pharmacies. The difference in price for medications was absolutely shocking. A price study I conducted, comparing the price of several drugs purchased in the U.S. to the Canadian prices, conformed what we saw happening on our bus trips—the price of the same drug purchased in Canada is substantially lower than the average U.S. price.

I have brought a chart to the floor to show my colleagues some of the incredible differences between the average price in Canada and the average price in Michigan. I would like to point those out today.

Zocor, a drug to reduce cholesterol, costs $109.73 in Michigan for 50, 5 milligram tablets. The same drug costs only $46.17 in Canada. That is a 138 percent difference in price.

Prilosec, a drug to treat ulcers $115.37 in Michigan for 20, 20 milligram capsules. The same drug costs only $55.10 in Canada. That is a 109 percent difference in price.

Procardia XL, a drug to treat heart problems, costs $133.36 for 100, 30 milligram tablets in Michigan. The same drug costs only $74.25 in Canada. That is an 80 percent difference in price.

Norvasc, a drug to treat high blood pressure, costs $116.79 for 90, 5 milligram tablets. The same drug costs only $89.91 in Canada. That is a 30 percent difference in price.

Tamoxifen, a drug to treat breast cancer, costs $136.50 in Michigan for a one month supply. The same drug costs only $15.92 in Canada. That is an 88 percent savings in price.

Zoloft, a drug to treat depression, costs $220.64 for 100, 50 milligram tablets in Michigan. The same drug costs $129.05 in Canada. That is a 30 percent difference in price.

These are all drugs that have been manufactured in the United States and have met all FDA manufacturing, safety and purity requirements. Furthermore, because these are U.S. drugs, the companies developing and manufacturing them have all benefited from substantial assistance from the U.S. government, including NIH supported research and the Research and Development tax credit. Furthermore, a great deal of this research is conducted in state universities.

I believe that U.S. citizens should have access to these U.S. drugs that are sold at lower prices in other countries. Competition is key to ensuring prices that consumers are willing to pay. Keeping the Canadian border, as well as other borders, closed is an obstacle to competition and is serving to maintain artificially high prices for drugs in the United States. I believe that permitting U.S. wholesalers, such as pharmacies, to bring lower priced drugs back into this country could reduce the price of drugs for every American.

As my colleagues know, the Secretary of Health and Human Services was given broad discretion in implementing the wholesale reimportation provision of the Act. The former Secretary expressed concerns that the provision may not provide cost savings and could pose risks to the public health and opted not to promulgate rules. I understand that my colleagues are urging the new Secretary to reconsider this decision and to begin the implementation process. I am hopeful this may happen and would like to work with my colleagues to forward this effort.

Nonetheless, I recognize that there are some concerns with the law enacted last year. My bill addresses these concerns by correcting these impediments that may delay the Secretary from promulgating regulations and permitting reimportation. Furthermore, my bill directs the Secretary to dispense with the delay and instructs him to begin the rulemaking process within 30 days of enactment of the bill.

The first of the concerns about wholesale reimportation addressed by my bill is the sunset provision. My bill would lift the 5 year sunset imposed in the Act. Critics argued that sunsetting the provision would be a disincentive for distributors to develop ways to comply with the reimportation requirements when there was the possibility that reimportation could be prohibited again in the near future.

Careful thought was put into the requirements to ensure consumers would be protected. I believe reimporters should be given every opportunity to meet these requirement and that removing the sunset will give these distributors what they need.

Further, I believe consumers should always have access to U.S. manufactured drugs as long as they comply with FDA safety requirements and there is no need for a sunset. If Congress or the administration identifies safety concerns in the future, they should be addressed by revising the reimportation safety requirements, not sunsetting the entire provision of the law.

The act also did not specify that reimorters could use the manufacturers' FDA-approved labels. These labels are required by law if the products are to be sold in the United States. My bill would make those labels available to the reimporters from the manufacturers for a small fee.

Finally, while the act prohibited manufacturers from entering into agreements with distributors that would interfere with reimportation of drugs, critics argue this provision was not strong enough to work. My legislation tightens up this section by prohibiting manufacturers from discriminating against wholesalers simply because they intend to reimport the product.

The bill also has stronger language prohibiting price fixing. Wholesale reimportation of prescription drugs is only half the story. While I think it is critical that wholesalers be permitted to bring U.S.-manufactured drugs back into the country to reduce the price for consumers, I also believe individuals should be able to cross the border and purchase medication for themselves.

The act we passed last year did not change the current law which prohibits individuals from bringing medications across the border for their own use. That is why my bill also makes personal reimportation legal. I believe individuals should be able to cross the border and purchase prescription drugs at a lower price for their own use.

The FDA currently has an enforcement policy that permits individuals who meet specific requirements to bring a 90-day supply of medication with them into the United States from another country, and my legislation would codify the current enforcement policy into law. It requires essentially the same safety precautions currently expected of individuals who bring medication over the border under the FDA's enforcement policy.

The bill also recognizes that some individuals may be too ill to cross the borders themselves and permits them to designate a proxy to bring the medication back for them as long as they provide a letter from their doctor indicating that the trip to another country would endanger their health.

The bill also provides opportunities for individuals to order medication over the Internet—there are other new sites being developed—and other means—hotlines, et cetera—in order to also have prescription drugs delivered by mail.

I am committed to this issue of making prescription drugs more affordable for everyone. This is a matter of fairness. This bill is a matter of fairness to Americans, young and old, who need to have access to affordable prescription drugs. We as Americans ought not to be underwriting the research and at the same time, after the medications, as great as they are, are developed, manufactured, and sold, have Americans paying on average twice as much as those in other countries. That makes no sense to me.

I am committed to working with my colleagues on both sides of the aisle. I appreciate the time I have been given today. This is a critical issue. I cannot think of a more serious issue affecting particularly older people today than the issue of access to medications. I think it is shameful that we have even one senior who is having to choose today, tomorrow, or next week between eating or taking their medicine. We can fix that. One way is to start with this legislation which opens our borders and allows real competition for the best price for American citizens.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

By Mr. SPECTER (for himself, Mr. HARKIN, Mr. BIDEN, and Mr. JEFFORDS):

S. 216. A bill to establish a Commission for the comprehensive study of voting procedures in Federal, State, and local elections, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Rules and Administration.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I have sought recognition to introduce legislation which seeks to modernize Federal election voting procedures throughout the United States. The 2000 election saga is now over and, in the words of President John F. KENNEDY, ''Our task now is not to fix the blame for the past, but to fix the course for the future.''

I believe that had we studied our country's voting and monitoring procedures after President KENNEDY's election, we would have in place today a uniform Federal election system that would have avoided the very problem presented in Florida. The presidential election of the year 2000 has drawn attention to several issues relating to current voting technologies. The central question is, how can we ensure fair, reliable, prompt and secure voting procedures?

In this electronic age—in a nation that has put a man on the moon and an ATM machine on every corner —we have no excuse not to ensure that we have an accurate voting system in which every person's vote counts. Thousands of my Pennsylvania constituents raise similar questions relating to the paradox of the ''Internet age'' and antiquated voting procedures. In order to move the voting process to the point we expect in the 21st century, we must establish a system that will improve the integrity of elections and facilitate faster, more accurate results and overcome the weaknesses of older election technology.

It is not really practical for someone to layout an entire bill with the precise procedures to implement these objectives, but it seems to me that it will be useful to establish a Commission which would take up the question of how to reform our Federal election procedures. On November 14, 2000, the first legislative day following the presidential election, I introduced legislation addressing the issue of modernizing our voting procedures. Today, I am reintroducing essentially the same bill with my distinguished colleague, Senator HARKIN, as the lead cosponsor. This bill would establish a Commission for the Comprehensive Study of Voting Procedures which would take up the very question of the best methods to ensure accurate, electronic, and timely reporting of vote counts. The Commission would then submit a report to the President and Congress which would include recommendations to reform or augment current voting procedures for Federal elections. Further, this bill would authorize matching grants for States and localities to implement the Commission's recommendations in relation to Federal elections. Congress should address this issue as least as to Federal elections, leaving the matters of State and local elections to State officials under Federalist concepts.

Specifically, my bill would create a 6 member Commission with the President, Senate Majority Leader, Senate Minority Leader, Speaker of the House, and House Minority Leader each appointing one member; and the Director of the Office of Election Administration of the Federal Election Commission serving as a advisory, non-voting member. The Commission would conduct a thorough study of all issues relating to voting procedures in Federal, State, and local elections, including the following: (1) Voting procedures in Federal, State, and local government elections; (2) Current voting procedures which represent the best practices in Federal, State, and local government elections; (3) Current legislation and regulatory efforts which affect voting procedures; (4) Implementing standardized voting procedures, including technology, for Federal, State, and local government elections; (5) Speed and timeliness of reporting vote counts in Federal, State, and local government elections; (6) Accuracy of vote counts in Federal, State, and local government elections; (7) Security of voting procedures in Federal, State, and local government elections; (8) Accessibility of voting procedures for individuals with disabilities and the elderly; and (9) Level of matching grant funding necessary to enable States and localities to implement the recommendations of the Commission for the modernization of State and local voting procedures. The details of this bill are incorporated in the attached section-by-section analysis.

Studies have shown that more than half of the nation's registered voters are currently using outdated voting systems. A recent USA Today article noted that most voters across our country still punch paper ballots, even though experts say that system is more vulnerable to voter error than any other. In addition, approximately 20% of voters use mechanical-lever machines that are no longer manufactured, while more than 25% of voters fill in a circle, square, or arrow next to their choice of candidates on a ballot.

My bill is necessary to prevent a recurrence of the problems that threatened the 2000 presidential election whose problems could have been avoided if we had modernized voting and monitoring procedures. Voting is the fundamental safeguard of our democracy and we have the technological power to ensure that every person's vote does count. The time is now to repair the problems of our patchwork system in order to restore the faith of American voters in our Federal election process. Mr. President, I ask that the full text of the bill and a section by section analysis be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I am pleased to join with Senator SPECTER on the introduction of the Commission on the Comprehensive Study of Voting Procedures Act of 2001. This measure is very similar to the one we introduced soon after last year's election. I think that we can all agree that this year's Presidential election has exposed a number of serious flaws in Florida's voting system, as well as in those of many states around the country.

First, thousands of ballots were not counted due to voter error. Some people voted for two candidates. Some voted for no candidate. And thousands who voted for just one candidate did so in such a way that their ballots could not be accurately read by vote-counting machines.

Second, the systems we traditionally use to decide elections—systems that can determine the results of an election that is won by one percent or two percent or five percent of the vote—simply aren't accurate enough to decide an election based on a margin of just hundredths of one percent. For example, ask any election expert in the country, and they'll tell you that punch card machines just aren't up to such a task. The press late last year was filled with reports and analysis showing that punch card systems have a far greater proportion of undercounted votes than other systems.

We also now know that butterfly ballots were not the wisest idea. And it's not just a matter of avoiding that particular design. We've also got to develop a mechanism to ensure that ballots are designed in ways that voter error is minimized. In addition, we learned that some Floridians thought they were registered to vote. However, when they arrived at the polls, they found that their names were not listed on the registration roles. These citizens were not allowed to vote in Florida.

Clearly, our voting system has flaws. However there's nothing wrong with our voting system that can't be fixed by what's right with it. For example, in Iowa, we have a law that allows any potential voter who is not found on the registration roles to cast a ''challenged ballot.'' This challenged ballot is like an absentee ballot. It's put in an envelope, and election officials spend the days immediately after the election rechecking registration roles for clerical errors.

If an error was made, and a person was indeed registered to vote, then his or her challenged ballot is counted. This isn't a perfect solution, but it ensures that fewer people fall through the cracks. And there are more creative answers like this just waiting to be discovered in innovative, forward-thinking counties throughout America. That's why Senator SPECTER and I have introduced a bill designed to revamp our election systems to make them as clear, accessible and accurate as possible.

The Specter-Harkin bill establishes a bipartisan commission which would spend one year examining election practices throughout America. The Commission would seek to discover the strengths and weaknesses in our election system in order to determine the best course of action for the future.

The Commission would specifically be responsible for studying the following:

(1) Voting procedures in Federal, State, and local government elections.

(2) Voting procedures that represent the best practices in Federal, State, and local government elections.

(3) Legislation and regulatory efforts that affect voting procedures issues.

(4) The implementation of standardized voting procedures, including standardized technology for Federal, State, and local government elections.

(5) The speed and timeliness of vote counts in Federal, State and local elections.

(6) The accuracy of vote counts in Federal, State and local elections.

(7) The security of voting procedures in Federal, State and local elections.

(8) The accessibility of voting procedures for individuals with disabilities and the elderly.

(9) The level of matching grant funding necessary to implement the Commission's recommendations.

Lastly, the bill authorizes a one-to-one matching grant program subject to the appropriation of the funds.

The commission would seek to answer questions like the following: What are the latest innovations in voting technology? What are the best failsafe systems we can install to alert voters that they've voted for too many candidates or too few? Are we doing everything we can to make our voting system accessible to the elderly, people with disabilities, and others with special needs?

The next Presidential election is less than four years away. By allotting 12 full months for the Commission to study our voting systems, we'll leave time for the Commission to finish a report and submit it to Congress for review and passage, and to allow Federal, State and local governments to pass and implement new voting legislation. But the timeline is tight, and we must move forward quickly.

Clearly, when it comes to voting, local officials should have discretion in their precincts. But at the very least, we must establish minimum standards for accessibility and accuracy in order to ensure a full, fair and precise count. We also need clear guidelines regarding the recounting of votes in very close elections. Each vote is an expression of one American's will, and we cannot deny anyone that fundamental right to shape our democracy.

There will always be conflicting views about what happened in Florida. And we'll probably never come to complete agreement on the results. But let us move forward and work together to minimize voting inaccuracies in the future and ensure every American's right to be heard.

By Mr. SCHUMER (for himself, Mr. WARNER, Mr. DURBIN, Mr. SANTORUM, Mr. SARBANES, Mr. CHAFEE, Mr. VOINOVICH, Mr. KERRY, Mr. DODD, and Ms. MIKULSKI):

S. 217. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide a uniform dollar limitation for all types of transportation fringe benefits excludable from gross income, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I am proud to join my colleagues—Senators WARNER, DURBIN, CHAFEE, SARBANES, SANTORUM, DODD, KERRY, VOINOVICH, and MIKULSKI today to introduce the Commuter Benefits Equity Act of 2001. This bill corrects an inequity in the tax code and has the potential to draw hundreds of thousands of commuters out of their cars and onto our nation's transit and commuter rail systems.

The inequity I am speaking about is the largely ignored difference in the amount of ''pretax'' compensation that current law permits employers to give employees to cover parking and transit costs. At present, a company may provide a worker with $175 per month to cover parking expenses. That limit is set at $65 per employee for mass transit expenses.

At a time when our nation's highways and bridges are under unprecedented strain, it is hard to believe that federal law provides a greater incentive for workers to drive to work than to leave their cars at home.

The Commuter Benefits Equity Act of 2001 would raise the monthly cap to $175 for transit and provide ''cost of living'' increases for both benefits in the future. I would note that the parking benefit just received a $5 COLA.

It is often said that people love their cars and simply will not ride mass transit to work. Many times this view is asserted as if it were an incontrovertible fact. I don't believe it at all, and recent ridership increases show how untrue such statements are.

According to the American Public Transportation Association, Americans took over 9.4 billion trips on public transportation last year—a 320 million ride increase over 1999. This figure marks the highest ridership number in more than forty years. It also signifies a 20 percent increase over the last five years.

Clearly, Americans are willing to use mass transportation. I suspect that if the federal government were to remove barriers like the current disparity in the parking and transit benefits, even more would abandon their cars.

It certainly is a goal worth pursuing.

According to the Texas Transportation Institute, between 1982 and 1997 the average delays faced by commuters in our metropolitan areas increased by alarming percentages. Over that fifteen-year period, commuters in New York endured a 158-percent increase in the amount of time they spent stuck in traffic. And that, comparatively speaking, is low. The figure for Detroit commuters was 182 percent. In Dallas it was 300 percent. Denver commuters faced a grim 337-percent increase.

The monthly cap on the federal transit benefit must be raised because it is far below the average costs incurred by the suburban commuters who use mass transportation. For instance, it costs a Westchester, New York commuter over $170 per month to take MetroNorth into the City. In Chicago, the average cost is approximately $148. In suburban Seattle that cost can exceed $200. Many commuters who would prefer to ride a train into work versus sitting in traffic probably can't afford to do so. This is because the choice between paying the majority of their own mass transportation costs or sitting in traffic and getting heavily subsidized parking is one they cannot justify economically.

My colleagues and I believe that by creating a more level playing field between the transit and parking benefits, mass transportation use in this country will rise more rapidly. We also anticipate that our nation's urban highways will operate more efficiently. This view is shared by groups such as the Sierra Club, Environmental Defense, and the U.S. Conference of Mayors, who have endorsed the Commuter Benefits Equity Act of 2001.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that any comments relating to this bill appear in the RECORD following my remarks as well as the text of the Commuter Benefits Equity Act of 2001.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

''(A) a qualified transportation fringe as defined in section 132(f)(1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986;''.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I am pleased today to join with my distinguished colleague from New York, Senator SCHUMER, to introduce the Commuter Benefits Equity Act of 2001.

Transportation gridlock in the metropolitan Washington region is dramatic and well documented. The average commuter spends about 76 hours a year idling on our area roads. The average speed on the Capital Beltway has decreased from 47 miles per hour to 23 miles per hour today. This wasted time in cars results in lost work productivity, lost time with families and degraded air quality. The quality of life for commuters is significantly reduced all across the country. I firmly believe the strength of our economy will be jeopardized if the growing rate of congestion in our communities remains unchecked.

Yes, the construction of new roads and the expansion of existing roads must occur. But, this alone is not the answer to our problems. Relief from our growing gridlock will not come from any one solution. It will only come from an integrated policy of options that provide short-term, immediate solutions, together with long-term planning for new transportation facilities, both roads and transit.

For these reasons, I have worked over the years to provide commuters with greater incentives to use mass transit, bus or rail, and to join vanpools. Increased transit ridership, extension of the Metro system, the Dulles Rapid Transit System, and expanded telecommuting opportunities are critical to providing temporary short-term solutions. Greater transit use and broader telework options are measures we can implement today that will deliver results tomorrow.

The measure I am introducing today with Senator SCHUMER will provide parity in the tax code for those who enjoy employer-provided parking and those who elect to commute by mass transit.

Today, the tax code provides two benefits for employers to offer their employees, both Federal employees and those in the private sector. Employers can offer employees a cash benefit of $65 per month for commuting expenses, or employers can set aside up to $65 per month of an employee's pre-tax income to pay for commuting costs. Under the tax code, however, the employer-provided parking benefit is valued at $175 per month.

The legislation introduced today will increase the transit/vanpool benefit to $175 per month to be on par with the value of the parking benefit.

Last year, I authored a provision in the FY 2001 Department of Defense Authorization bill requiring the Department of Defense to offer the cash commuting benefit to all DOD employees working in areas that do not meet the Federal air quality standards. With a total metropolitan Washington regional federal workforce of 323,000 persons, the Department of Defense is, by far, the single largest federal employer with 65,000 persons.

The implementation of this benefit by the Federal agencies will improve employee satisfaction and have a positive effect on retention rates in the Federal workforce. This measure, however, is not limited to Federal employees. It does extend the benefit to private sector employees as well.

Equally important are the resulting air quality benefits from increased transit use. According to the Environmental Protection Agency, the metropolitan Washington area is an air quality non-attainment area, categorized as severe, under the Clean Air Act Amendments of 1990. Mobile sources are responsible for the majority of our air quality violations.

Mr. President, I commend this legislation to my colleagues for their attention. It's costs are modest, and the benefits to our society are significant.

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I am pleased to join with my colleagues Senators SCHUMER and WARNER in introducing the Commuter Benefits Equity Act of 2001. This measure is another important step forward in our efforts to make transit services more accessible and improve the quality of life for commuters throughout the nation.

All across the nation, congestion and gridlock are taking their toll in terms of economic loss, environmental impacts, and personal frustration. According to the Texas Transportation Institute's Annual Mobility Report, in 1997, Americans in 68 urban areas spent 4.3 billion hours stuck in traffic, with an estimated cost to the nation of $72 billion in lost time and wasted fuel, and the problem is growing. One way in which federal, state, and local governments are responding to this problem is by promoting greater use of transit as a commuting option. The American Public Transportation Association estimates that last year, Americans took over 9.4 billion trips on transit, the highest level in more than 40 years. But we need to do more to encourage people to get out of their cars and onto public transportation.

The Internal Revenue Code currently allows employers to provide a tax-free transit benefit to their employees. Under this ''Commuter Choice'' program, employers can set aside up to $65 per month of an employee's pre-tax income to pay for the cost of commuting by public transportation or vanpool. Alternatively, an employer can choose to offer the same amount as a tax-free benefit in addition to an employee's salary. This program is designed to encourage Americans to leave their cars behind when commuting to work.

By all accounts, this program is working. In the Washington area, for example, the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority reports that 168,500 commuters take advantage of transit pass programs offered by their employers. That means fewer cars on our congested streets and highways.

Employees of the federal government account for a large percentage of those benefitting from this program in the Washington area. Under an Executive Order issued by President Clinton, all federal agencies in the National Capital Region, which includes Montgomery, Prince George's, and Frederick Counties, Maryland, as well as several counties in Northern Virginia, are required to offer this transit benefit to their employees. The Commuter Choice program is now being used by 115,000 Washington-area federal employees who are choosing to take transit to work.

However, despite the success of the Commuter Choice program in taking cars off the road, our tax laws still reflect a bias toward driving. The Internal Revenue Code allows employers to offer a tax-free parking benefit to their employees of up to $175 per month. The striking disparity between the amount allowed for parking—$175 per month—and the amount allowed for transit—$65 per month—undermines our commitment to supporting public transportation use.

The Commuter Benefits Equity Act would address this discrepancy by raising the maximum monthly transit benefit to $175, equal to the parking benefit. The federal government should not reward those who drive to work more richly than those who take public transportation. Indeed, since the passage of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991, federal transportation policy has endeavored to create a level playing field between highways and transit, favoring neither mode above the other. The Commuter Benefits Equity Act would ensure that our tax laws reflect this balanced approach.

In addition, the Commuter Benefits Equity Act would remedy another inconsistency in current law. Private-sector employers can offer their employees the transit benefit in tandem with the parking benefit, to help employees pay for the costs of parking at transit facilities, commuter rail stations, or other locations which serve public transportation or vanpool commuters. However, under current law, federal agencies cannot offer a parking benefit to their employees who use park-and-ride lots or other remote parking locations. The Commuter Benefits Equity Act would remove this restriction, allowing federal employees access to the same benefits enjoyed by their private-sector counterparts.

The Washington Metropolitan Region is home to thousands of federal employees. It is also one of the nation's most highly congested areas, with the second longest average commute time in the country. This area ranks third in the nation in the number of workers commuting more than 60 minutes to work, and has the highest per vehicle congestion cost and the second highest per capita congestion cost in the nation. It is clearly in our interest to support programs which encourage federal employees to make greater use of public transportation for their commuting needs.

The simple change made by the Commuter Benefits Equity Act would provide a significant benefit to those federal employees whose commute to work includes parking at a transit facility. For example, a commuter who rides the Metrorail System to work and parks at the Wheaton park-and-ride lot pays about $50 monthly for parking, on top of the cost of riding the train. A private-sector employee whose employer provides the parking benefit in addition to salary could receive $600 a year tax free to help pay these parking costs. Federal government employees should be allowed the same benefit.

I support the Commuter Benefits Equity Act because it creates parity—parity in the tax code between the parking and transit benefits, and parity for federal employees with their private-sector counterparts. Both of these improvements will aid our efforts to fight congestion and pollution by supporting public transportation. I encourage my colleagues to join me in supporting the Commuter Benefits Equity Act.

S. 218. A bill to establish an Election Administration Commission to study Federal, State, and local voting procedures and election administration and provide grants to modernize voting procedures and election administration, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Rules and Administration.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I rise today to re-introduce along with Senators TORRICELLI, FEINSTEIN, ALLARD, SMITH, BREAUX, BURNS, REID, BENNETT, LANDRIE, SANTORUM, ROBERTS, HUTCHINSON, and WARNER meaningful, bipartisan legislation to reform the administration of our nation's elections. I ask that the entire text of my statement and the text of the legislation appear in the record.

As we move into the twenty-first century it is inexcusable that the world's most advanced democracy relies on voting systems designed shortly after the Second World War. The goal of our legislation is rather simple: that no American ever again be forced to hear the phrases dimpled chad, hanging chad or pregnant chad. The Election Reform Act will ensure that our nation's electoral process is brought up to twenty-first century standards.

By combining the Federal Election Commission's Election Clearinghouse and the Department of Defenses' Office of Voting Assistance, which facilitates voting by American civilians and servicemen overseas, into the Election Administration Commission, the bill will create one agency that can bring focuses expertise to bear on the administration of elections. This Commission will consist of four Commissioners appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. It will continue to carry out the functions of the two entities that are being combined to create it.

In addition, the new Commission will engage in ongoing study and make periodic recommendations on the best practices relating to voting technology and ballot design as well as polling place accessibility for the disabled. The Commission will also study and recommend ways to improve voter registration, verification of registration, and the maintenance and accuracy of voter rolls. This is of special urgency in view of the allegations surfacing in this election of hundreds of felons being listed on voting rolls and illegally voting, as reported in the Miami Herald, while other law abiding citizens who allegedly registered were not included on the voting rolls and were unable to vote. Such revelations from this year's elections coupled with the well-knows report by ''60 Minutes'' of the prevalence of dead people and pets both registering and voting in past elections make clear the need for thoughtful study and recommendations to ensure that everyone who is legally entitled to vote is able to do so and that everyone who votes is legally entitled to do so—and does so only once.

In addition to its studies and recommendations, the Commission will provide matching grants to states working to improve election administration. During the first four years, low-income communities will get priority for these grants and low-income communities are permanently exempted from the requirement to provide matching funds. The legislation also ensure that states comply with the provisions in the Uniformed Overseas Voting Act designed to facilitate voting by members of the armed forces stationed overseas.

Finally, I am pleased also to announce that Representative TOM DAVIS, along with Representatives ROTHMAN, DREIER, and HASTINGS are re-introducing the House companion to our bill today.

Mr. DODD (for himself, Mr. MCCAIN, Mr. HOLLINGS, and Mr. HAGEL):

S. 219. A bill to suspend for two years the certification procedures under section 490(b) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 in order to foster greater multilateral cooperation in international counternarcotics programs, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, today I send to the desk legislation on behalf of myself, Senators MCCAIN, HOLLINGS and HAGEL. The purpose of the bill we are introducing today is to help the incoming Bush administration in its efforts to strengthen international cooperation in combating international drug trafficking and drug-related crimes.

As you know, the issue of how best to construct and implement an effective international counter narcotics policy has been the subject of much debate in this Chamber over the years, and I would add much disagreement. Our intention in introducing this legislation is to try to see if there is some way to end what has become a stale annual debate that has not brought us any closer to mounting a credible effort to eliminate or even contain the international drug mafia. We all can agree that drugs are a problem—a big problem. We can agree as well that the international drug trade poses a direct threat to the United States and to international efforts to promote democracy, economic stability, human rights, and the rule of law throughout the world, but most especially in our own hemisphere.

While the international impact is serious and of great concern, of even greater concern to me personally are effects it is having here at home. Last year Americans spent more than $60 billion to purchase illegal drugs. Nearly 15 million Americans (twelve years of age and older) use illegal drugs, including 1.5 million cocaine users, 208,000 heroin addicts, and more than 11 million smokers of marijuana. This menace isn't just confined to inner cities or the poor. Illegal drug use occurs among members of every ethnic and socioeconomic group in the United States.

The human and economic costs of illegal drug consumption by Americans are enormous. More than 16,000 people die annual as a result of drug induced deaths. Drug related illness, death, and crime cost the United States approximately over $100 billion annually, including costs for lost productivity, premature death, and incarceration.

This is an enormously lucrative business—drug trafficking generates estimated revenues of $400 billion annually. The United States has spent more than $30 billion in foreign interdiction and source country counter narcotics programs since 1981, and despite impressive seizures at the border, on the high seas, and in other countries, foreign drugs are cheaper and more readily available in the United States today than two decades ago.

We think that for a variety of reasons, that the time is right to give the incoming Bush administration some flexibility with respect to the annual certification process, so that it can determine whether this is the best mechanism for producing the kind of international cooperation and partnership that is needed to contain this transnational menace. I believe that government leaders, particularly in this hemisphere, have come to recognize that illegal drug production and consumption are increasingly threats to political stability within their national borders. Clearly President Pastrana of Colombia has acknowledged that fact and has sought to work very closely with the United States in implementing Plan Colombia. Similarly President Vincente Fox of Mexico has made international counter narcotics cooperation a high priority since assuming office last December. These leaders also feel strongly, however, that unilateral efforts by the United States to grade their governments' performance in this area is a major irritant in the bilateral relationship and counterproductive to their efforts to instill a cooperative spirit in their own bureaucracies.

The legislation we are introducing today recognizes that illicit drug production, distribution and consumption are national security threats to many governments around the globe, and especially many of those in our own hemisphere, including Mexico, Colombia, and other countries in the Andean region. It urges the Administration to develop an enhanced multilateral strategy for addressing these threats from both the supply and demand side of the equation. It calls upon the President to consider convening a conference of heads of state, at an early date, to review on a country-by-country basis, national strategies for drug reduction and prevention, and agree upon a time table for action. It also recommends that the President submit any legislative changes to existing law which he deems necessary in order to implement this international program within one year from the enactment of this legislation.

In order to create the kind of international cooperation and mutual respect that must be present if the Bush administration's effort is to produce results, the bill would also suspend the annual drug certification procedure for a period of 2 years, while efforts are ongoing to develop and implement this enhanced multilateral strategy. I believe it is fair to say that while the certification procedure may have had merit when it was enacted into law in 1986, it has now become a hurdle to furthering bilateral and multilateral cooperation with other governments, particularly those in our own hemisphere such as Mexico and Colombia—governments whose cooperation is critical if we are to succeed in stemming the flow of drugs across our borders.

Let me make clear however, that while we would not be ''grading'' other governments on whether they have ''cooperated fully'' during the two year ''suspension'' period, the detailed reporting requirements currently required by law concerning what each government has done to cooperate in the areas of eradication, extradition, asset seizure, money laundering and demand reduction during the previous calendar year will remain in force. We will be fully informed as to whether governments are following short of their national and international obligations. Moreover, if the President determines during the two year suspension period that the certification process may be useful in order to elicit more cooperation from a particular government he may go ahead and issue the annual certification decision with respect to that country. The annual determination as to which countries are major producers or transit sources of illegal drugs will also continue to be required by law.

I believe that we need to reach out to other governments who share our concerns about the threat that drugs pose to the very fabric of their societies and our own. It is arrogant to assume we are the only Nation that cares about such matters. We need to sit down and figure out what each of us can do better to make it harder for drug traffickers to ply their trade. It is in that spirit that we urge our colleagues to give this proposal serious consideration. Together, working collectively we can defeat the traffickers. But if we expend our energies playing the blame game, we are certainly not going to effectively address this threat. We aren't going to stop one additional teenager from becoming hooked on drugs, or one more citizen from being mugged outside his home by some drug crazed thief.

During the Clinton Administration, Barry McCaffrey, the Director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy did a fine job in attempting to forge more cooperative relations with Colombia, Mexico and other countries in our own hemisphere. The OAS has also done some important work over the last several years in putting in place an institutional framework for dealing with the complexities of compiling national statistics so that we can better understand what needs to be done. The United Nations, through its Office for Drug Control and Crime Prevention has also made some important contributions in furthering international cooperation in this area. However, still more needs to be done. We believe that this legislation will build upon that progress. I would urge my colleagues to give some thought and attention to our legislative initiative. We believe that if they do, that they will come to the conclusion that it is worthy of their support.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of this legislation be printed in the RECORD at the conclusion of these remarks.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 219

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. TWO-YEAR SUSPENSION OF DRUG CERTIFICATION PROCEDURES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The international drug trade poses a direct threat to the United States and to international efforts to promote democracy, economic stability, human rights, and the rule of law.

(2) The United States has a vital national interest in combating the financial and other resources of the multinational drug cartels, which resources threaten the integrity of political and financial institutions both in the United States and abroad.

(3) Illegal drug use occurs among members of every ethnic and socioeconomic group in the United States.

(4) Worldwide drug trafficking generates revenues estimated at $400,000,000,000 annually.

(5) The 1961 Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs, the 1971 Convention on Psychotropic Substances, and the 1988 Convention Against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances form the legal framework for international dung control cooperation.

(6) The United Nations International Drug Control Program, the International Narcotics Control Board, and the Organization of American States can play important roles in facilitating the development and implementation of more effective multilateral programs to combat both domestic and international drug trafficking and consumption.

(7) The annual certification process required by section 490 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2291j), which has been in effect since 1986, does not currently foster effective and consistent bilateral or multilateral cooperation with United States counternarcotics programs because its provisions are vague and inconsistently applied and in many cases have been superseded by subsequent bilateral and multilateral agreements and because it alienates the very allies whose cooperation we seek.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) many governments are extremely concerned by the national security threat posed by illicit drug production, distribution, and consumption, and crimes related thereto, particularly those in the Western Hemisphere;

(2) an enhanced multilateral strategy should be developed among drug producing, transit, and consuming nations designed to improve cooperation with respect to the investigation and prosecution of drug related crimes, and to make available information on effective drug education and drug treatment;

(3) the President should at the earliest feasible date in 2001 convene a conference of heads of state of major illicit drug producing countries, major drug transit countries, and major money laundering countries to present and review country by country drug reduction and prevention strategies relevant to the specific circumstances of each country, and agree to a program and timetable for implementation of such strategies; and

(4) not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President should transmit to Congress legislation to implement a proposed multilateral strategy to achieve the goals referred to in paragraph (2), including any amendments to existing law that may be required to implement that strategy.

(c) TWO-YEAR SUSPENSION OF DRUG CERTIFICATION PROCESS.—(1) Subsections (a) through (g) of section 490 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2291j), relating to annual certification procedures for assistance for certain drug-producing countries and drug-transit countries, shall not apply in the first 2 calendar years beginning after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(2) Notwithstanding any provision of paragraph (1), section 489 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2291h), relating to the international narcotics control strategy report, and section 490(h) of that Act (22 U.S.C. 2291j(h)), relating to determinations of major drug-transit countries and major illicit drug producing countries, shall continue to apply in the 2 calendar years referred to in that paragraph.

(3) The President may waive the applicability of paragraph (1) to one or more countries in one or both of the calendar years referred to in that paragraph if the President determines that bilateral counternarcotics cooperation would be enhanced by the applicability of subsections (a) through (g) of section 490 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 to such country or countries in such calendar year.

(d) APPLICABILITY.—(1) Except as provided in paragraph (2), the provisions of subsection (c) shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act and apply with respect to certifications otherwise required under section 490 of the Foreign Assistance of 1961 in the first two fiscal years beginning after that date.

(2) If this Act is enacted on or before February 28, 2001, the provisions of subsection (c) shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act and apply with respect to certifications otherwise required under section 490 of the Foreign Assistance of 1961 in fiscal years 2001 and 2002.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, I rise today to join my good friend Senator DODD, and our distinguished colleagues Senator HAGEL and Chairman MCCAIN, in cosponsoring an important piece of legislation with far-reaching effects in our struggle to combat drug trafficking. Our bill calls for the development of a multilateral strategy among major illicit drug producing, transit, drug demand, and consuming countries to improve cooperation with respect to the investigation and prosecution of drug related crimes. Intelligence reports have shown that sophisticated cartels operate on a truly global scale. America's drug demand problems may feed Europe's money laundering problems which are related to Asia's organized crime problems or street-crime in Latin America. All the states of the world are under attack from a common, sophisticated enemy. Our bill encourages the President of the United States to bring the heads of state together to review individual country strategies and develop a new multilateral approach. This bill requires the President to submit to Congress legislation to implement a multilateral strategy devised through the consultation process described above.

Drug trafficking becomes harder to fight as the world becomes increasingly interconnected. I am united with my colleagues to remain vigilant in fighting the proliferation of drugs on the streets of the United States. The last time I checked, the United States does not produce one ounce of cocaine, or one ounce of heroin. This bill recognizes the essential truth of drug trafficking—it is a multinational, multifaceted criminal plague that respects no borders.

With this in mind, I rise to support a 2-year moratorium of the annual U.S. certification procedures which require the President to certify that other nations qualify as ''partners'' in combating drug trafficking. This certification is required for the release of certain U.S. bilateral assistance, as well as for the release of multilateral development aid from institutions where the United States is a voting member. This practice stymies multilateral cooperation in combating drug trafficking and has not yielded any measurable results—unless one counts the resentment of our neighbors. We need a new approach and new strategic partners. This legislation will direct President Bush to seek out new approaches and new partners rather than wasting time and energy on certification.

Officials from Mexico, our neighbor and close ally, have routinely appealed to the President of the United States and to Congress to suspend the drug certification process. They argue it is detrimental to bilateral cooperation in enforcement and interdiction, it is bad for the morale of law enforcement, and it serves to absolve the United States from its responsibility in the proliferation of drug trafficking. Americans spend an estimated $110 billion a year on illegal drugs—the equivalent of one-tenth the value of the country's entire industrial production. Unfortunately, the dedicated and hardworking efforts of our law enforcement and customs officials to gain control of drugs entering our country from Mexico are to date unsuccessful. The Mexican police have been overwhelmed by the sheer volume of drugs transhipped through their country (The DEA estimated that, in 1999, 55 percent of the cocaine and 14 percent of the heroin which enter the United States came from Mexico, as did 3,700 metric tons of marijuana). The situation is further complicated by the existing corruption in Mexican police ranks. By way of example, in December 1999 the Government of Mexico reported that between 1997 and 1999 more than 1,400 federal police officers had been fired for corruption and that 357 of the officers had been prosecuted. Given the pervasive scale of the problem, the Federal Preventive Police (FPP) was created to investigate and root out crooked officers in the federal police. By the winter of 2000, several agents of the FPP were under investigation themselves for corruption.

Despite these grim examples there are clear signs of hope. In July 2000 Mexico turned a corner in history and ended seven decades of one-party rule by sending opposition candidate Vincente Fox to Los Pinos. Fox cast a wide net in the Mexican mainstream with themes of inclusion and governmental responsiveness in a historic campaign. ''Democracy is a starting point—it is the process by which society becomes organized and gains its own voice'' said Fox. ''Democracy provides the legitimacy necessary for the country to meet the historic challenges in the areas of development, social justice, and the reduction of inequality.''

President Fox represents a clean break with the institutionalized corruption and graft that carried Mexico to the brink of Chaos in 1994 when PRI presidential candidate Donaldo Colosio was assassinated. President Fox inherited a judicial system and a federal police force rocked by scandal and largely ineffectual in combating drug trafficking. Mexico ranked 4th in the World Bank's 2000 list of most corrupt governments. Backed with a popular mandate for change, Fox put fighting corruption as the overarching goal in all his policy initiatives. The task will not be easy. Last Friday, January 19th, for example, it was reported that convicted drug kingpin Joaquin Guzmán Loera escaped from a maximum security prison in Jalisco. Guzmán is a leader of the Félix Gallardo drug family, which authorities say is deeply involved in shipping illegal drugs to the United States.

While I am sobered by the accounts of the Guzmán escape, it is encouraging that the Mexican Supreme Court reversed its decision on extraditions for drug crimes and agreed to turn over drug kingpins wanted in the United States. We must further these confidence-building initiatives between the United States and Mexico. One way to do this is to grant Mexico a two-year moratorium from the drug certification process to allow President Fox to organize his Administration and to set his course. We should not evaluate President Fox for the corruption of his predecessors. We must allow him to address the endemic corruption that plaques the Mexican state.

This legislation does not cede Congress' role in the so-called drug war. It call for new energy and a new multilateral approach. It emphasizes Congress' interest in building real partnerships and looking for new answers in this difficult struggle. This legislation will give us a fresh start with our neighbor to the south and build confidence between our people. President Fox is committed to reforming Mexico and I intend to urge my colleagues to help this vibrant new leader to achieve his goal. He has brought the liberating force of democracy to his people, but his work is not done. President Fox has to use his power to transform the state. He has an old order to dismantle, a new one to build, and 6 years to do it. I have confidence in Mr. Fox and his able cabinet. My colleagues and I are reaching out to the Fox Administration and the Mexican people; we want to build a partnership and seek new ways to address common problems.

By Mrs. BOXER:

S. 221. A bill to authorize the Secretary of Energy to make loans through a revolving loan fund for States to construct electricity generation facilities for use in electricity supply emergencies.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, since last week, I have introduced several bills to help California deal with the electricity crisis and to help prevent such emergencies from occurring in other States in the future. Today, I am introducing another such bill—the State Electricity Reserve Fund Act.

Current electricity generating capacity is tied to the expected need. Private generating companies have no incentive to build or maintain facilities that would generate capacity greater than what is needed to meet consumer demand. The plants would be idle most of the time. As a result, electricity shortages can occur.

A lack of rainfall, which means that hydroelectric facilities cannot be operated as often, as well as unseasonably hot or cold temperatures, or rapid population increases in a State can all result in a demand for electricity unexpectedly exceeding supply. But with supply tied to expected demand, this can result in devastatingly large price increases for consumers and/or electricity shortages, which in turn could cause brownouts or blackouts.

This is exactly what has happened in California. In the late 1980's, the California Public Utilities Commission required utilities to determine demand for new power generating capacity. At that time, the state recognized that generation needs could increase. However, the utilities argued that no new capacity would be needed in California until 2005. The utilities fought the attempt by the state to make them build more generating capacity. The utilities argued it was not needed.

It turned out that it was needed. And whether the utilities should have known is another argument for another day. But the point here is that we cannot rely on the private sector to create a ''rainy day fund'' of electricity in the event of emergencies.

So, the State Electricity Reserve Fund Act would create a revolving loan fund for states to use to help pay for the creation of an electricity reserve capacity. These loans could be used by states to build electricity generation facilities that would be controlled by the state and would be kept in reserve unless the Governor of the State declares an electricity emergency.

Mr. President, it is not an unusual thing for the federal government to prepare for energy emergencies. We have the Strategic Petroleum Reserve in the case of oil shortages, and last year we established the Home Heating Oil Reserve for the Northeastern States. My bill is based on the same premise.

True, we cannot store electricity like we can store petroleum and heating oil. But we can financially help States build a reserve facility, including a reserve of the fuel that is needed to generate electricity, to be used in the case of electricity emergencies. If such a reserve had existed in California, we would not have reached State III emergencies and rolling blackouts over the past couple of weeks.

Mr. President, I think being prepared for emergencies is always a good policy. Helping States be prepared for electricity emergencies is no different.

I ask unanimous consent that a copy of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 221

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

Whereas Army nurses served in hostilities in Korea, Vietnam, Grenada, Panama, Kuwait, and Somalia;

Whereas Army nurses were there to care for United States soldiers, wherever those soldiers were fighting, thereby winning extraordinary distinction and respect for the Nation and the United States Army;

Whereas on this 100th Anniversary of the United States Army Nurse Corps, nurses in the Army Reserve, the Army National Guard, and the Regular Army are deployed to over 15 countries, including to Bosnia-Herzegovina and Kosovo;

Whereas the motto of Army nurses, ''Ready, Caring, Proud'' is more than mere words, it is the creed by which the Army nurse lives and serves;

Whereas it is certain that Army nurses, selflessly serving the Nation, will continue to be the credentials of our Army, even though no one can predict the cause, location, or magnitude of future battles; and

Whereas the United States Army Nurse Corps is committed to providing quality care in peace and war, at anytime and in any place: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That Congress—

(1) recognizes the valor, commitment, and sacrifice that United States Army nurses have made throughout the history of the Nation;

(2) commends the United States Army Nurse Corps for 100 years of selfless service;

(3) requests that the President issue a proclamation recognizing the 100th anniversary of the United States Army Nurse Corps on February 2, 2001; and

(4) calls upon the people of the United States to observe that anniversary with appropriate ceremonies and activities.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce a resolution to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the United States Army Nurse Corps.

As a proud supporter of the Army Nurse Corps, both the officers and the many enlisted and civilian personnel who work with them, I am pleased that we are taking time today to recognize their contributions to our army and our nation.

Since the War of Independence, nurses have served our military in peace and in war, but it was not until 1901 that a bill came before the Congress to establish a permanent Nurse Corps. The Nurse Corps became a permanent corps of the medical department under the Army Reorganization Act passed by the Congress on February 2, 1901. At that time, the Nurse corps was composed of only women.

The Army Nurse Corps has a proud history. More than 21,000 nurses served during World War I, many of them named in British Army dispatches for their meritorious service. In World War II, more than 57,000 Army nurses again served with distinction. Sixty-six of those nurses were captured in the Philippines and held as prisoners of war for three years before their liberation in February 1945. There is not enough time to describe all of the heroic actions of the nurses who waded ashore on the Anzio beachhead and many other locations throughout the war. One nurse, Lieutenant Frances Y. Slinger from Roxbury, Massachusetts, wrote a letter to Stars and Stripes from her tent in Belgium:

Sure we rough it. But compared to the way you men are taking it, we can't complain, nor do we feel that bouquets are due us. . . . It is to you we doff our helmets. To every G.I. wearing the American uniform-for you we have the greatest admiration and respect.

Seventeen days later, on October 21, 1944, Lieutenant Slanger died of wounds caused by the shelling of her tented hospital area. Hundreds of soldiers replied:

To all Army nurses overseas: We men were not given the choice of working in the battlefield or the home front. We cannot take any credit for being here. We are here because we have to be. You are here because you felt you were needed. So, when an injured man opens his eyes to see one of you . . . . Concerned with his welfare, he can't but be overcome by the very thought that you are doing it because you want to . . . you endure whatever hardships you must be where you can do us the most good.

Eventually, on August 9, 1955, Public Law 294 authorized commissions for male nurses in the U.S. Army Reserve. Army Nurses went to serve our nation in Korea, Vietnam, Grenada, Panama, Operation Desert Shield/Desert Storm, Somalia, Bosnia, Kosovo and other far away destinations. Army Nurses are currently deployed to more than 15 countries, and there are nurses in the Army Reserves, Army National Guard and the Active Force. Today, we recognize the men and women of the Army Nurse Corps for their selfless service and dedication to our nation and our military. I commend the Army Nurse Corps for its commitment to excellence and for a century of leadership and caring for America's Army from 1901 to 2001.

Mr. TORRICELLI (for himself and Mr. BROWNBACK) submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

S.CON.RES 6

Whereas on the morning of January 26, 2001, a devastating and deadly earthquake shook the state of Gujarat in western India, killing untold tens of thousands of people, injuring countless others, and crippling most of the region;

Whereas India has asked the World Bank for $1,700,000,000 in economic assistance to start rebuilding from the earthquake;

Whereas the United States has offered technical and monetary assistance through the United States Agency for International Development (USAID); and

Whereas offers of assistance have also come from the Governments of Turkey, Switzerland, Taiwan, Russia, Germany, China, Canada, and others, as well as countless nongovernmental organizations: Now, therefore, be it

(A) the people of India as they continue their efforts to rebuild their cities and their lives;

(B) the efforts of the World Bank;

(C) continuing and substantially increasing the amount of disaster assistance being provided by the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) and other relief agencies; and

(D) providing future economic assistance in order to help rebuild Gujarat; and

(3) recognizes and encourages the important assistance that also could be provided by other nations to alleviate the suffering of the people of India.

SENATE RESOLUTION 15—CONGRATULATING THE BALTIMORE RAVENS FOR WINNING SUPER BOWL XXXV

Mr. SARBANES (for himself and Ms. MIKULSKI) submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. RES. 15

Whereas in March of 1984, the Baltimore Colts stole away in the dark of night, to become the Indianapolis Colts;

Whereas for eleven long years, the football-crazy fans of Baltimore waited for an NFL franchise;

Whereas the arrival of the Ravens, coupled with the enthusiasm and energy of their fans, has ushered in a new era of unity in the Baltimore community;

Whereas the drive of the Baltimore Ravens' organization to win has embodied the spirit and pride of Baltimore as a city with great football heritage and as a great city on the rise;

Whereas members of the Ravens' team have exemplified confidence, character, perseverance, talent, dedication, and most importantly, a commitment to giving something back to the Baltimore community;

Whereas the Baltimore Ravens' defense goes down in history as one of the NFL's all-time best defensive units;

Whereas in the 2000–2001 NFL season, the Baltimore Ravens compiled a remarkable record of achievements including—

(1) the American Football Conference title;

(2) the NFL record for the least number of points allowed in a season (165);

(3) 4 shutouts;

(4) the NFL record for the least rushing yards allowed in a 16-game season;

(5) a Ravens' franchise record of 12 regular season wins;

(6) the NFL's Defensive Player of the Year Award (Ray Lewis);

(7) an NFL punt return leader (Jermaine Lewis); and

(8) a rookie running back who rushed for over 1,300 yards (Jamal Lewis); and

Whereas the Baltimore Ravens won Super Bowl XXXV, defeating the valiant New York Giants 34 to 7 in a hard-fought battle: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) commends the unity, loyalty, community spirit, and enthusiasm of the Baltimore Ravens' fans;

(2) applauds the Baltimore Ravens for their commitment to high standards of character, perseverance, professionalism, excellence, and teamwork;

(3) praises the Baltimore Ravens' players and organization for their commitment to the Greater Baltimore Community through their many charitable activities;

(4) congratulates both the Baltimore Ravens and the New York Giants for providing football fans with a hard-fought, but sportsmanlike Super Bowl;

(5) congratulates the Baltimore Ravens and their fans on a Super Bowl victory and an NFL Championship; and

(6) recognizes the achievements of the players, coaches, and support staff who were instrumental in helping the Baltimore Ravens win Super Bowl XXXV on January 28, 2001.

SEC. 2. The Secretary of the Senate shall transmit an enrolled copy of this resolution to the Baltimore Ravens' owner, Art Modell, and to the Ravens' head coach, Brian Billick.

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, it is with great pride that I introduce this resolution congratulating the Baltimore Ravens on their remarkable championship season. On Super Bowl Sunday, the Baltimore Ravens completed an incredible season, beating the New York Giants by a score of 34 to 7 to become the 2000–2001 National Football League Champions.

At the beginning of the season, very few of the experts thought the Ravens would have a chance at glory. And as the team endured a five game stretch without a touchdown, the nay sayers grew and many wrote the Ravens off entirely. But during the season's early rough spots, when the team could have fallen to pieces, no one pointed fingers or assigned blame. Instead, under the leadership of a great coaching staff, they grew together and formed a remarkable bond not only amongst each other but also with the fans of Baltimore.

And then, with the NFL's best defense leading the way, the Baltimore Ravens began to string together win after win. The victories weren't always pretty, but the team always found a way to win—with a new hero stepping forward to make something happen. Week in and week out, Matt Stover, Quadry Ismail, Shannon Sharpe, Duane Starks, Jamal Lewis, Jermaine Lewis, Ray Lewis, Trent Dilfer, Rod Woodson, Tony Siragusa, Sam Adams, Jonathan Ogden, and countless others took it upon themselves to make the big play.

Still, even through the playoffs, the experts kept scratching their heads wondering how the Ravens were beating their highly acclaimed opponents. To the very end, the doubters outweighed the believers. Only the Ravens themselves and the fans of Baltimore truly dared to believe that a Championship season was possible. Finally, after a hard fought, playoff run—on the road—against the AFC's finest, the Ravens have brought the Lombardi Trophy home to Baltimore. And now the experts believe.

The game was a defensive masterpiece as those who know and have followed the Ravens would expect. But what makes this victory particularly special is that the Ravens played as a team, with remarkable cohesiveness and spirit. And in the world spotlight, they were able to display their diverse, but largely unsung, talents. Jamie Sharper's interception, Jermaine Lewis's terrific kickoff return, Brandon Stokely's outstanding touchdown reception, Jamal Lewis's diving touchdown run, Trent Dilfer's pain-filled, but error-free game, Kyle Richardson's coffin corner punts and Ray Lewis's MVP Award-winning performance, are just a few of the individual efforts that combined to secure this victory. The list goes on and on.

And Finally, I want to take a moment to recognize the leadership of Coach Brian Billick who is in his second year as head coach of the Ravens. We all know that to be champions requires a strong commitment to working harder than the rest. The Ravens' Super Bowl win is a credit to an extraordinary effort by the entire Baltimore Ravens' organization, from Art Modell down—but I would be remiss if I didn't mention the motivational push, level head and remarkable football mind demonstrated by Coach Billick and his coaching staff throughout the season, and especially during the playoff run. Most importantly, he helped Baltimore believe through thick and thin.

There is a statue of Edgar Allen Poe located in the plaza of the University of Baltimore Law School not too far from PSiNet Stadium, with an engraving that reads, ''Dreaming dreams that no mortal ever dared to dream before; To thee the laurels belong''.

Today the Lombardi Trophy belongs to the Baltimore Ravens because they dared to dream when no one else believed a championship was possible. I congratulate them and their worthy opponents, the New York Giants, on a tremendous season and I urge my colleagues to do the same.

(b) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—The table of contents for this Act is as follows:

TITLE I—NEEDS-BASED BANKRUPTCY

SEC. 101. CONVERSION.

Section 706(c) of title 11, United States Code, is amended by inserting ''or consents to'' after ''requests''.

SEC. 102. DISMISSAL OR CONVERSION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 707 of title 11, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking the section heading and inserting the following:

''§ 707. Dismissal of a case or conversion to a case under chapter 11 or 13'';

and

(2) in subsection (b)—

(A) by inserting ''(1)'' after ''(b)'';

(B) in paragraph (1), as redesignated by subparagraph (A) of this paragraph—

(i) in the first sentence—

(I) by striking ''but not at the request or suggestion of'' and inserting ''trustee, bankruptcy administrator, or'';

(II) by inserting '', or, with the debtor's consent, convert such a case to a case under chapter 11 or 13 of this title,'' after ''consumer debts''; and

(III) by striking ''a substantial abuse'' and inserting ''an abuse''; and

(ii) by striking the next to last sentence; and

(C) by adding at the end the following:

''(2)(A)(i) In considering under paragraph (1) whether the granting of relief would be an abuse of the provisions of this chapter, the court shall presume abuse exists if the debtor's current monthly income reduced by the amounts determined under clauses (ii), (iii), and (iv), and multiplied by 60 is not less than the lesser of—

''(I) 25 percent of the debtor's nonpriority unsecured claims in the case, or $6,000, whichever is greater; or

''(II) $10,000.

''(ii)(I) The debtor's monthly expenses shall be the debtor's applicable monthly expense amounts specified under the National Standards and Local Standards, and the debtor's actual monthly expenses for the categories specified as Other Necessary Expenses issued by the Internal Revenue Service for the area in which the debtor resides, as in effect on the date of the entry of the order for relief, for the debtor, the dependents of the debtor, and the spouse of the debtor in a joint case, if the spouse is not otherwise a dependent. Notwithstanding any other provision of this clause, the monthly expenses of the debtor shall not include any payments for debts. In addition, the debtor's monthly expenses shall include the debtor's reasonably necessary expenses incurred to maintain the safety of the debtor and the family of the debtor from family violence as identified under section 309 of the Family Violence Prevention and Services Act (42 U.S.C. 10408), or other applicable Federal law. The expenses included in the debtor's monthly expenses described in the preceding sentence shall be kept confidential by the court. In addition, if it is demonstrated that it is reasonable and necessary, the debtor's monthly expenses may also include an additional allowance for food and clothing of up to 5 percent of the food and clothing categories as specified by the National Standards issued by the Internal Revenue Service.

''(II) In addition, the debtor's monthly expenses may include, if applicable, the continuation of actual expenses paid by the debtor that are reasonable and necessary for care and support of an elderly, chronically ill, or disabled household member or member of the debtor's immediate family (including parents, grandparents, and siblings of the debtor, the dependents of the debtor, and the spouse of the debtor in a joint case) who is not a dependent and who is unable to pay for such reasonable and necessary expenses.

''(III) In addition, for a debtor eligible for chapter 13, the debtor's monthly expenses may include the actual administrative expenses of administering a chapter 13 plan for the district in which the debtor resides, up to an amount of 10 percent of the projected plan payments, as determined under schedules issued by the Executive Office for United States Trustees.

''(IV) In addition, the debtor's monthly expenses may include the actual expenses for each dependent child under the age of 18 years up to $1,500 per year per child to attend a private elementary or secondary school, if the debtor provides documentation of such expenses and a detailed explanation of why such expenses are reasonable and necessary.

''(iii) The debtor's average monthly payments on account of secured debts shall be calculated as—

''(I) the sum of—

''(aa) the total of all amounts scheduled as contractually due to secured creditors in each month of the 60 months following the date of the petition; and

''(bb) any additional payments to secured creditors necessary for the debtor, in filing a plan under chapter 13 of this title, to maintain possession of the debtor's primary residence, motor vehicle, or other property necessary for the support of the debtor and the debtor's dependents, that serves as collateral for secured debts; divided by

''(II) 60.

''(iv) The debtor's expenses for payment of all priority claims (including priority child support and alimony claims) shall be calculated as—

''(I) the total amount of debts entitled to priority; divided by

''(II) 60.

''(B)(i) In any proceeding brought under this subsection, the presumption of abuse may only be rebutted by demonstrating special circumstances that justify additional expenses or adjustments of current monthly income for which there is no reasonable alternative.

''(ii) In order to establish special circumstances, the debtor shall be required to—

''(I) itemize each additional expense or adjustment of income; and

''(II) provide—

''(aa) documentation for such expense or adjustment to income; and

''(bb) a detailed explanation of the special circumstances that make such expenses or adjustment to income necessary and reasonable.

''(iii) The debtor shall attest under oath to the accuracy of any information provided to demonstrate that additional expenses or adjustments to income are required.

''(iv) The presumption of abuse may only be rebutted if the additional expenses or adjustments to income referred to in clause (i) cause the product of the debtor's current monthly income reduced by the amounts determined under clauses (ii), (iii), and (iv) of subparagraph (A) when multiplied by 60 to be less than the lesser of—

''(I) 25 percent of the debtor's nonpriority unsecured claims, or $6,000, whichever is greater; or

''(II) $10,000.

''(C) As part of the schedule of current income and expenditures required under section 521, the debtor shall include a statement of the debtor's current monthly income, and the calculations that determine whether a presumption arises under subparagraph (A)(i), that shows how each such amount is calculated.

''(3) In considering under paragraph (1) whether the granting of relief would be an abuse of the provisions of this chapter in a case in which the presumption in subparagraph (A)(i) of such paragraph does not apply or has been rebutted, the court shall consider—

''(A) whether the debtor filed the petition in bad faith; or

''(B) the totality of the circumstances (including whether the debtor seeks to reject a personal services contract and the financial need for such rejection as sought by the debtor) of the debtor's financial situation demonstrates abuse.

''(4)(A) The court shall order the counsel for the debtor to reimburse the trustee for all reasonable costs in prosecuting a motion brought under section 707(b), including reasonable attorneys' fees, if—

''(i) a trustee appointed under section 586(a)(1) of title 28 or from a panel of private trustees maintained by the bankruptcy administrator brings a motion for dismissal or conversion under this subsection; and

''(ii) the court—

''(I) grants that motion; and

''(II) finds that the action of the counsel for the debtor in filing under this chapter violated rule 9011 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure.

''(B) If the court finds that the attorney for the debtor violated rule 9011 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure, at a minimum, the court shall order—

''(i) the assessment of an appropriate civil penalty against the counsel for the debtor; and

''(ii) the payment of the civil penalty to the trustee, the United States trustee, or the bankruptcy administrator.

''(C) In the case of a petition, pleading, or written motion, the signature of an attorney shall constitute a certification that the attorney has—

''(i) performed a reasonable investigation into the circumstances that gave rise to the petition, pleading, or written motion; and

''(ii) determined that the petition, pleading, or written motion—

''(I) is well grounded in fact; and

''(II) is warranted by existing law or a good faith argument for the extension, modification, or reversal of existing law and does not constitute an abuse under paragraph (1).

''(D) The signature of an attorney on the petition shall constitute a certification that the attorney has no knowledge after an inquiry that the information in the schedules filed with such petition is incorrect.

''(5)(A) Except as provided in subparagraph (B) and subject to paragraph (6), the court may award a debtor all reasonable costs (including reasonable attorneys' fees) in contesting a motion brought by a party in interest (other than a trustee, United States trustee, or bankruptcy administrator) under this subsection if—

''(i) the court does not grant the motion; and

''(ii) the court finds that—

''(I) the position of the party that brought the motion violated rule 9011 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure; or

''(II) the party brought the motion solely for the purpose of coercing a debtor into waiving a right guaranteed to the debtor under this title.

''(B) A small business that has a claim of an aggregate amount less than $1,000 shall not be subject to subparagraph (A)(ii)(I).

''(C) For purposes of this paragraph—

''(i) the term 'small business' means an unincorporated business, partnership, corporation, association, or organization that—

''(I) has less than 25 full-time employees as determined on the date the motion is filed; and

''(II) is engaged in commercial or business activity; and

''(ii) the number of employees of a wholly owned subsidiary of a corporation includes the employees of—

''(I) a parent corporation; and

''(II) any other subsidiary corporation of the parent corporation.

''(6) Only the judge, United States trustee, or bankruptcy administrator may bring a motion under section 707(b), if the current monthly income of the debtor, or in a joint case, the debtor and the debtor's spouse, as of the date of the order for relief, when multiplied by 12, is equal to or less than—

''(A) in the case of a debtor in a household of 1 person, the median family income of the applicable State for 1 earner last reported by the Bureau of the Census;

''(B) in the case of a debtor in a household of 2, 3, or 4 individuals, the highest median family income of the applicable State for a family of the same number or fewer individuals last reported by the Bureau of the Census; or

''(C) in the case of a debtor in a household exceeding 4 individuals, the highest median family income of the applicable State for a family of 4 or fewer individuals last reported by the Bureau of the Census, plus $525 per month for each individual in excess of 4.

''(7) No judge, United States trustee, panel trustee, bankruptcy administrator or other party in interest may bring a motion under paragraph (2), if the current monthly income of the debtor and the debtor's spouse combined, as of the date of the order for relief when multiplied by 12, is equal to or less than—

''(A) in the case of a debtor in a household of 1 person, the median family income of the applicable State for 1 earner last reported by the Bureau of the Census;

''(B) in the case of a debtor in a household of 2, 3, or 4 individuals, the highest median family income of the applicable State for a family of the same number or fewer individuals last reported by the Bureau of the Census; or

''(C) in the case of a debtor in a household exceeding 4 individuals, the highest median family income of the applicable State for a family of 4 or fewer individuals last reported by the Bureau of the Census, plus $525 per month for each individual in excess of 4.''.

(b) DEFINITION.—Section 101 of title 11, United States Code, is amended by inserting after paragraph (10) the following:

''(10A) 'current monthly income'—

''(A) means the average monthly income from all sources which the debtor, or in a joint case, the debtor and the debtor's spouse, receive without regard to whether the income is taxable income, derived during the 6-month period preceding the date of determination; and

''(B) includes any amount paid by any entity other than the debtor (or, in a joint case, the debtor and the debtor's spouse), on a regular basis to the household expenses of the debtor or the debtor's dependents (and, in a joint case, the debtor's spouse if not otherwise a dependent), but excludes benefits received under the Social Security Act and payments to victims of war crimes or crimes against humanity on account of their status as victims of such crimes;''.

(c) UNITED STATES TRUSTEE AND BANKRUPTCY ADMINISTRATOR DUTIES.—Section 704 of title 11, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by inserting ''(a)'' before ''The trustee shall—''; and

(2) by adding at the end the following:

''(b)(1) With respect to an individual debtor under this chapter—

''(A) the United States trustee or bankruptcy administrator shall review all materials filed by the debtor and, not later than 10 days after the date of the first meeting of creditors, file with the court a statement as to whether the debtor's case would be presumed to be an abuse under section 707(b); and

''(B) not later than 5 days after receiving a statement under subparagraph (A), the court shall provide a copy of the statement to all creditors.

''(2) The United States trustee or bankruptcy administrator shall, not later than 30 days after the date of filing a statement under paragraph (1), either file a motion to dismiss or convert under section 707(b) or file a statement setting forth the reasons the United States trustee or bankruptcy administrator does not believe that such a motion would be appropriate, if the United States trustee or bankruptcy administrator determines that the debtor's case should be presumed to be an abuse under section 707(b) and the product of the debtor's current monthly income, multiplied by 12 is not less than—

''(A) in the case of a debtor in a household of 1 person, the median family income of the applicable State for 1 earner last reported by the Bureau of the Census; or

''(B) in the case of a debtor in a household of 2 or more individuals, the highest median family income of the applicable State for a family of the same number or fewer individuals last reported by the Bureau of the Census.

''(3) In any case in which a motion to dismiss or convert, or a statement is required to be filed by this subsection, the United States trustee or bankruptcy administrator may decline to file a motion to dismiss or convert pursuant to section 704(b)(2) if the product of the debtor's current monthly income multiplied by 12 exceeds 100 percent, but does not exceed 150 percent of—

''`7. If you were not represented by an attorney during the negotiation of the reaffirmation agreement, it will not be effective unless the court approves it. The court will notify you of the hearing on your reaffirmation agreement. You must attend this hearing in bankruptcy court where the judge will review your agreement. The bankruptcy court must approve the agreement as consistent with your best interests, except that no court approval is required if the agreement is for a consumer debt secured by a mortgage, deed of trust, security deed or other lien on your real property, like your home.

''`Your right to rescind a reaffirmation. You may rescind (cancel) your reaffirmation at any time before the bankruptcy court enters a discharge order or within 60 days after the agreement is filed with the court, whichever is longer. To rescind or cancel, you must notify the creditor that the agreement is canceled.

''`What are your obligations if you reaffirm the debt? A reaffirmed debt remains your personal legal obligation. It is not discharged in your bankruptcy. That means that if you default on your reaffirmed debt after your bankruptcy is over, your creditor may be able to take your property or your wages. Otherwise, your obligations will be determined by the reaffirmation agreement which may have changed the terms of the original agreement. For example, if you are reaffirming an open end credit agreement, the creditor may be permitted by that agreement or applicable law to change the terms of the agreement in the future under certain conditions.

''`Are you required to enter into a reaffirmation agreement by any law? No, you are not required to reaffirm a debt by any law. Only agree to reaffirm a debt if it is in your best interest. Be sure you can afford the payments you agree to make.

''`What if your creditor has a security interest or lien? Your bankruptcy discharge does not eliminate any lien on your property. A ''lien'' is often referred to as a security interest, deed of trust, mortgage or security deed. Even if you do not reaffirm and your personal liability on the debt is discharged, because of the lien your creditor may still have the right to take the security property if you do not pay the debt or default on it. If the lien is on an item of personal property that is exempt under your State's law or that the trustee has abandoned, you may be able to redeem the item rather than reaffirm the debt. To redeem, you make a single payment to the creditor equal to the current value of the security property, as agreed by the parties or determined by the court.'.

''(ii) In the case of a reaffirmation under subsection (m)(2), numbered paragraph 6 in the disclosures required by clause (i) of this subparagraph shall read as follows:

''`6. If you were represented by an attorney during the negotiation of the reaffirmation agreement, your reaffirmation agreement becomes effective upon filing with the court.'.

''(4) The form of reaffirmation agreement required under this paragraph shall consist of the following:

''`Part B: Reaffirmation Agreement. I/we agree to reaffirm the obligations arising under the credit agreement described below.

''`Brief description of credit agreement:

''`Description of any changes to the credit agreement made as part of this reaffirmation agreement:

''`Signature: Date:

''`Borrower:

''`Co-borrower, if also reaffirming:

''`Accepted by creditor:

''`Date of creditor acceptance:'.

''(5)(A) The declaration shall consist of the following:

''`Part C: Certification by Debtor's Attorney (If Any).

''`I hereby certify that (1) this agreement represents a fully informed and voluntary agreement by the debtor(s); (2) this agreement does not impose an undue hardship on the debtor or any dependent of the debtor; and (3) I have fully advised the debtor of the legal effect and consequences of this agreement and any default under this agreement.

''`Signature of Debtor's Attorney: Date:'.

''(B) In the case of reaffirmations in which a presumption of undue hardship has been established, the certification shall state that in the opinion of the attorney, the debtor is able to make the payment.

''(C) In the case of a reaffirmation agreement under subsection (m)(2), subparagraph (B) is not applicable.

''(6)(A) The statement in support of reaffirmation agreement, which the debtor shall sign and date prior to filing with the court, shall consist of the following:

''`Part D: Debtor's Statement in Support of Reaffirmation Agreement.

''`1. I believe this agreement will not impose an undue hardship on my dependents or me. I can afford to make the payments on the reaffirmed debt because my monthly income (take home pay plus any other income received) is $_____, and my actual current monthly expenses including monthly payments on post-bankruptcy debt and other reaffirmation agreements total $_____, leaving $_____ to make the required payments on this reaffirmed debt. I understand that if my income less my monthly expenses does not leave enough to make the payments, this reaffirmation agreement is presumed to be an undue hardship on me and must be reviewed by the court. However, this presumption may be overcome if I explain to the satisfaction of the court how I can afford to make the payments here: _____.

''`2. I received a copy of the Reaffirmation Disclosure Statement in Part A and a completed and signed reaffirmation agreement.'.

''(B) Where the debtor is represented by counsel and is reaffirming a debt owed to a creditor defined in section 19(b)(1)(A)(iv) of the Federal Reserve Act (12 U.S.C. 461(b)(1)(A)(iv)), the statement of support of the reaffirmation agreement, which the debtor shall sign and date prior to filing with the court, shall consist of the following:

''`I believe this agreement is in my financial interest. I can afford to make the payments on the reaffirmed debt. I received a copy of the Reaffirmation Disclosure Statement in Part A and a completed and signed reaffirmation agreement.'

''(7) The motion, which may be used if approval of the agreement by the court is required in order for it to be effective and shall be signed and dated by the moving party, shall consist of the following:

''`Part E: Motion for Court Approval (To be completed only where debtor is not represented by an attorney.). I (we), the debtor, affirm the following to be true and correct:

''`I am not represented by an attorney in connection with this reaffirmation agreement.

''`I believe this agreement is in my best interest based on the income and expenses I have disclosed in my Statement in Support of this reaffirmation agreement above, and because (provide any additional relevant reasons the court should consider):

''`Therefore, I ask the court for an order approving this reaffirmation agreement.'.

''(8) The court order, which may be used to approve a reaffirmation, shall consist of the following:

''`Court Order: The court grants the debtor's motion and approves the reaffirmation agreement described above.'.

''(9) Subsection (a)(2) does not operate as an injunction against an act by a creditor that is the holder of a secured claim, if—

''(A) such creditor retains a security interest in real property that is the debtor's principal residence;

''(B) such act is in the ordinary course of business between the creditor and the debtor; and

''(C) such act is limited to seeking or obtaining periodic payments associated with a valid security interest in lieu of pursuit of in rem relief to enforce the lien.

''(l) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title:

''(1) A creditor may accept payments from a debtor before and after the filing of a reaffirmation agreement with the court.

''(2) A creditor may accept payments from a debtor under a reaffirmation agreement which the creditor believes in good faith to be effective.

''(3) The requirements of subsections (c)(2) and (k) shall be satisfied if disclosures required under those subsections are given in good faith.

''(m)(1) Until 60 days after a reaffirmation agreement is filed with the court (or such additional period as the court, after notice and hearing and for cause, orders before the expiration of such period), it shall be presumed that the reaffirmation agreement is an undue hardship on the debtor if the debtor's monthly income less the debtor's monthly expenses as shown on the debtor's completed and signed statement in support of the reaffirmation agreement required under subsection (k)(6)(A) is less than the scheduled payments on the reaffirmed debt. This presumption shall be reviewed by the court. The presumption may be rebutted in writing by the debtor if the statement includes an explanation which identifies additional sources of funds to make the payments as agreed upon under the terms of the reaffirmation agreement. If the presumption is not rebutted to the satisfaction of the court, the court may disapprove the agreement. No agreement shall be disapproved without notice and hearing to the debtor and creditor and such hearing shall be concluded before the entry of the debtor's discharge.

''(2) This subsection does not apply to reaffirmation agreements where the creditor is a credit union, as defined in section 19(b)(1)(A)(iv) of the Federal Reserve Act (12 U.S.C. 461(b)(1)(A)(iv)).''.

''(D) information that an assisted person provides during their case may be audited pursuant to this title, and that failure to provide such information may result in dismissal of the proceeding under this title or other sanction including, in some instances, criminal sanctions.

''(b) A debt relief agency providing bankruptcy assistance to an assisted person shall provide each assisted person at the same time as the notices required under subsection (a)(1) with the following statement, to the extent applicable, or one substantially similar. The statement shall be clear and conspicuous and shall be in a single document separate from other documents or notices provided to the assisted person:

''`IMPORTANT INFORMATION ABOUT BANKRUPTCY ASSISTANCE SERVICES FROM AN ATTORNEY OR BANKRUPTCY PETITION PREPARER.

''`If you decide to seek bankruptcy relief, you can represent yourself, you can hire an attorney to represent you, or you can get help in some localities from a bankruptcy petition preparer who is not an attorney. THE LAW REQUIRES AN ATTORNEY OR BANKRUPTCY PETITION PREPARER TO GIVE YOU A WRITTEN CONTRACT SPECIFYING WHAT THE ATTORNEY OR BANKRUPTCY PETITION PREPARER WILL DO FOR YOU AND HOW MUCH IT WILL COST. Ask to see the contract before you hire anyone.

''`The following information helps you understand what must be done in a routine bankruptcy case to help you evaluate how much service you need. Although bankruptcy can be complex, many cases are routine.

''`Before filing a bankruptcy case, either you or your attorney should analyze your eligibility for different forms of debt relief made available by the Bankruptcy Code and which form of relief is most likely to be beneficial for you. Be sure you understand the relief you can obtain and its limitations. To file a bankruptcy case, documents called a Petition, Schedules and Statement of Financial Affairs, as well as in some cases a Statement of Intention need to be prepared correctly and filed with the bankruptcy court. You will have to pay a filing fee to the bankruptcy court. Once your case starts, you will have to attend the required first meeting of creditors where you may be questioned by a court official called a 'trustee' and by creditors.

''`If you choose to file a chapter 7 case, you may be asked by a creditor to reaffirm a debt. You may want help deciding whether to do so and a creditor is not permitted to coerce you into reaffirming your debts.

''`If you choose to file a chapter 13 case in which you repay your creditors what you can afford over 3 to 5 years, you may also want help with preparing your chapter 13 plan and with the confirmation hearing on your plan which will be before a bankruptcy judge.

''`If you select another type of relief under the Bankruptcy Code other than chapter 7 or chapter 13, you will want to find out what needs to be done from someone familiar with that type of relief.

''`Your bankruptcy case may also involve litigation. You are generally permitted to represent yourself in litigation in bankruptcy court, but only attorneys, not bankruptcy petition preparers, can give you legal advice.'.

''(c) Except to the extent the debt relief agency provides the required information itself after reasonably diligent inquiry of the assisted person or others so as to obtain such information reasonably accurately for inclusion on the petition, schedules or statement of financial affairs, a debt relief agency providing bankruptcy assistance to an assisted person, to the extent permitted by nonbankruptcy law, shall provide each assisted person at the time required for the notice required under subsection (a)(1) reasonably sufficient information (which shall be provided in a clear and conspicuous writing) to the assisted person on how to provide all the information the assisted person is required to provide under this title pursuant to section 521, including—

''(1) how to value assets at replacement value, determine current monthly income, the amounts specified in section 707(b)(2)) and, in a chapter 13 case, how to determine disposable income in accordance with section 707(b)(2) and related calculations;

''(2) how to complete the list of creditors, including how to determine what amount is owed and what address for the creditor should be shown; and

''(3) how to determine what property is exempt and how to value exempt property at replacement value as defined in section 506 of this title.

''(d) A debt relief agency shall maintain a copy of the notices required under subsection (a) of this section for 2 years after the date on which the notice is given the assisted person.''.

The trustee shall make such tax returns of income of corporations and of partnerships as are required under any State or local law, but with respect to partnerships, shall make said returns only to the extent such returns are also required to be made under such Code. The estate shall be liable for any tax imposed on such corporation or partnership, but not for any tax imposed on partners or members.

''(c) With respect to a partnership or any entity treated as a partnership under a State or local law imposing a tax on or measured by income that is a debtor in a case under this title, any gain or loss resulting from a distribution of property from such partnership, or any distributive share of any income, gain, loss, deduction, or credit of a partner or member that is distributed, or considered distributed, from such partnership, after the commencement of the case, is gain, loss, income, deduction, or credit, as the case may be, of the partner or member, and if such partner or member is a debtor in a case under this title, shall be subject to tax in accordance with subsection (a) or (b).

''(e) The estate in any case described in subsection (a) shall use the same accounting method as the debtor used immediately before the commencement of the case, if such method of accounting complies with applicable nonbankruptcy tax law.

''(f) For purposes of any State or local law imposing a tax on or measured by income, a transfer of property from the debtor to the estate or from the estate to the debtor shall not be treated as a disposition for purposes of any provision assigning tax consequences to a disposition, except to the extent that such transfer is treated as a disposition under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

''(g) Whenever a tax is imposed pursuant to a State or local law imposing a tax on or measured by income pursuant to subsection (a) or (b), such tax shall be imposed at rates generally applicable to the same types of entities under such State or local law.

''(h) The trustee shall withhold from any payment of claims for wages, salaries, commissions, dividends, interest, or other payments, or collect, any amount required to be withheld or collected under applicable State or local tax law, and shall pay such withheld or collected amount to the appropriate governmental unit at the time and in the manner required by such tax law, and with the same priority as the claim from which such amount was withheld or collected was paid.

''(i)(1) To the extent that any State or local law imposing a tax on or measured by income provides for the carryover of any tax attribute from one taxable period to a subsequent taxable period, the estate shall succeed to such tax attribute in any case in which such estate is subject to tax under subsection (a).

''(B) the same or a similar tax attribute may be carried back by the estate to such a taxable period of the debtor under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

''(j)(1) For purposes of any State or local law imposing a tax on or measured by income, income is not realized by the estate, the debtor, or a successor to the debtor by reason of discharge of indebtedness in a case under this title, except to the extent, if any, that such income is subject to tax under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

''(2) Whenever the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 provides that the amount excluded from gross income in respect of the discharge of indebtedness in a case under this title shall be applied to reduce the tax attributes of the debtor or the estate, a similar reduction shall be made under any State or local law imposing a tax on or measured by income to the extent such State or local law recognizes such attributes. Such State or local law may also provide for the reduction of other attributes to the extent that the full amount of income from the discharge of indebtedness has not been applied.

''(k)(1) Except as provided in this section and section 505, the time and manner of filing tax returns and the items of income, gain, loss, deduction, and credit of any taxpayer shall be determined under applicable nonbankruptcy law.

''§ 1503. International obligations of the United States

''§ 1504. Commencement of ancillary case

''A case under this chapter is commenced by the filing of a petition for recognition of a foreign proceeding under section 1515.

''§ 1505. Authorization to act in a foreign country

''A trustee or another entity (including an examiner) may be authorized by the court to act in a foreign country on behalf of an estate created under section 541. An entity authorized to act under this section may act in any way permitted by the applicable foreign law.

''§ 1506. Public policy exception

''Nothing in this chapter prevents the court from refusing to take an action governed by this chapter if the action would be manifestly contrary to the public policy of the United States.

''§ 1507. Additional assistance

''(a) Subject to the specific limitations stated elsewhere in this chapter the court, if recognition is granted, may provide additional assistance to a foreign representative under this title or under other laws of the United States.

''(b) In determining whether to provide additional assistance under this title or under other laws of the United States, the court shall consider whether such additional assistance, consistent with the principles of comity, will reasonably assure—

''(3) prevention of preferential or fraudulent dispositions of property of the debtor;

''(e) Whether or not the court grants recognition, and subject to sections 306 and 1510, a foreign representative is subject to applicable nonbankruptcy law.

''(f) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, the failure of a foreign representative to commence a case or to obtain recognition under this chapter does not affect any right the foreign representative may have to sue in a court in the United States to collect or recover a claim which is the property of the debtor.

''§ 1510. Limited jurisdiction

''The sole fact that a foreign representative files a petition under section 1515 does not subject the foreign representative to the jurisdiction of any court in the United States for any other purpose.

''§ 1511. Commencement of case under section 301 or 303

''(a) Upon recognition, a foreign representative may commence—

''(1) an involuntary case under section 303; or

The court where the petition for recognition has been filed must be advised of the foreign representative's intent to commence a case under subsection (a) prior to such commencement.

''§ 1512. Participation of a foreign representative in a case under this title

''§ 1513. Access of foreign creditors to a case under this title

''(a) Foreign creditors have the same rights regarding the commencement of, and participation in, a case under this title as domestic creditors.

''(b)(1) Subsection (a) does not change or codify present law as to the priority of claims under section 507 or 726 of this title, except that the claim of a foreign creditor under those sections shall not be given a lower priority than that of general unsecured claims without priority solely because the holder of such claim is a foreign creditor.

''(2)(A) Subsection (a) and paragraph (1) do not change or codify present law as to the allowability of foreign revenue claims or other foreign public law claims in a proceeding under this title.

''(B) Allowance and priority as to a foreign tax claim or other foreign public law claim shall be governed by any applicable tax treaty of the United States, under the conditions and circumstances specified therein.

''§ 1514. Notification to foreign creditors concerning a case under this title

''(a) Whenever in a case under this title notice is to be given to creditors generally or to any class or category of creditors, such notice shall also be given to the known creditors generally, or to creditors in the notified class or category, that do not have addresses in the United States. The court may order that appropriate steps be taken with a view to notifying any creditor whose address is not yet known.

''(b) Such notification to creditors with foreign addresses described in subsection (a) shall be given individually, unless the court considers that, under the circumstances, some other form of notification would be more appropriate. No letter or other formality is required.

''(c) When a notification of commencement of a case is to be given to foreign creditors, the notification shall—

''(1) indicate the time period for filing proofs of claim and specify the place for their filing;

''(2) indicate whether secured creditors need to file their proofs of claim; and

''(3) contain any other information required to be included in such a notification to creditors under this title and the orders of the court.

''(d) Any rule of procedure or order of the court as to notice or the filing of a claim shall provide such additional time to creditors with foreign addresses as is reasonable under the circumstances.

''(2) a certificate from the foreign court affirming the existence of the foreign proceeding and of the appointment of the foreign representative; or

''(3) in the absence of evidence referred to in paragraphs (1) and (2), any other evidence acceptable to the court of the existence of the foreign proceeding and of the appointment of the foreign representative.

''(c) A petition for recognition shall also be accompanied by a statement identifying all foreign proceedings with respect to the debtor that are known to the foreign representative.

''(d) The documents referred to in paragraphs (1) and (2) of subsection (b) shall be translated into English. The court may require a translation into English of additional documents.

''§ 1516. Presumptions concerning recognition

''(a) If the decision or certificate referred to in section 1515(b) indicates that the foreign proceeding is a foreign proceeding (as defined in section 101) and that the person or body is a foreign representative (as defined in section 101), the court is entitled to so presume.

''(b) The court is entitled to presume that documents submitted in support of the petition for recognition are authentic, whether or not they have been legalized.

''(c) In the absence of evidence to the contrary, the debtor's registered office, or habitual residence in the case of an individual, is presumed to be the center of the debtor's main interests.

''§ 1517. Order granting recognition

''(a) Subject to section 1506, after notice and a hearing, an order recognizing a foreign proceeding shall be entered if—

''(1) the foreign proceeding for which recognition is sought is a foreign main proceeding or foreign nonmain proceeding within the meaning of section 1502;

''(2) the foreign representative applying for recognition is a person or body as defined in section 101; and

''(3) the petition meets the requirements of section 1515.

''(b) The foreign proceeding shall be recognized—

''(1) as a foreign main proceeding if it is taking place in the country where the debtor has the center of its main interests; or

''(2) as a foreign nonmain proceeding if the debtor has an establishment within the meaning of section 1502 in the foreign country where the proceeding is pending.

''(c) A petition for recognition of a foreign proceeding shall be decided upon at the earliest possible time. Entry of an order recognizing a foreign proceeding constitutes recognition under this chapter.

''(d) The provisions of this subchapter do not prevent modification or termination of recognition if it is shown that the grounds for granting it were fully or partially lacking or have ceased to exist, but in considering such action the court shall give due weight to possible prejudice to parties that have relied upon the order granting recognition. The case under this chapter may be closed in the manner prescribed under section 350.

''§ 1518. Subsequent information

''From the time of filing the petition for recognition of the foreign proceeding, the foreign representative shall file with the court promptly a notice of change of status concerning—

''(1) staying execution against the debtor's assets;

''(2) entrusting the administration or realization of all or part of the debtor's assets located in the United States to the foreign representative or another person authorized by the court, including an examiner, in order to protect and preserve the value of assets that, by their nature or because of other circumstances, are perishable, susceptible to devaluation or otherwise in jeopardy; and

''(3) any relief referred to in paragraph (3), (4), or (7) of section 1521(a).

''(b) Unless extended under section 1521(a)(6), the relief granted under this section terminates when the petition for recognition is granted.

''(c) It is a ground for denial of relief under this section that such relief would interfere with the administration of a foreign main proceeding.

''(d) The court may not enjoin a police or regulatory act of a governmental unit, including a criminal action or proceeding, under this section.

''(e) The standards, procedures, and limitations applicable to an injunction shall apply to relief under this section.

''(f) The exercise of rights not subject to the stay arising under section 362(a) pursuant to paragraph (6), (7), (17), or (28) of section 362(b) or pursuant to section 362(l) shall not be stayed by any order of a court or administrative agency in any proceeding under this chapter.

''(2) sections 363, 549, and 552 of this title apply to a transfer of an interest of the debtor in property that is within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States to the same extent that the sections would apply to property of an estate;

''(4) section 552 applies to property of the debtor that is within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States.

''(b) Subsection (a) does not affect the right to commence an individual action or proceeding in a foreign country to the extent necessary to preserve a claim against the debtor.

''(c) Subsection (a) does not affect the right of a foreign representative or an entity to file a petition commencing a case under this title or the right of any party to file claims or take other proper actions in such a case.

''§ 1521. Relief that may be granted upon recognition

''(a) Upon recognition of a foreign proceeding, whether main or nonmain, where necessary to effectuate the purpose of this chapter and to protect the assets of the debtor or the interests of the creditors, the court may, at the request of the foreign representative, grant any appropriate relief, including—

''(1) staying the commencement or continuation of an individual action or proceeding concerning the debtor's assets, rights, obligations or liabilities to the extent they have not been stayed under section 1520(a);

''(2) staying execution against the debtor's assets to the extent it has not been stayed under section 1520(a);

''(3) suspending the right to transfer, encumber or otherwise dispose of any assets of the debtor to the extent this right has not been suspended under section 1520(a);

''(b) Upon recognition of a foreign proceeding, whether main or nonmain, the court may, at the request of the foreign representative, entrust the distribution of all or part of the debtor's assets located in the United States to the foreign representative or another person, including an examiner, authorized by the court, provided that the court is satisfied that the interests of creditors in the United States are sufficiently protected.

''(c) In granting relief under this section to a representative of a foreign nonmain proceeding, the court must be satisfied that the relief relates to assets that, under the law of the United States, should be administered in the foreign nonmain proceeding or concerns information required in that proceeding.

''(d) The court may not enjoin a police or regulatory act of a governmental unit, including a criminal action or proceeding, under this section.

''(e) The standards, procedures, and limitations applicable to an injunction shall apply to relief under paragraphs (1), (2), (3), and (6) of subsection (a).

''(f) The exercise of rights not subject to the stay arising under section 362(a) pursuant to paragraph (6), (7), (17), or (28) of section 362(b) or pursuant to section 362(l) shall not be stayed by any order of a court or administrative agency in any proceeding under this chapter.

''§ 1522. Protection of creditors and other interested persons

''(b) The court may subject relief granted under section 1519 or 1521, or the operation of the debtor's business under section 1520(a)(3) of this title, to conditions it considers appropriate, including the giving of security or the filing of a bond.

''(c) The court may, at the request of the foreign representative or an entity affected by relief granted under section 1519 or 1521, or at its own motion, modify or terminate such relief.

''(d) Section 1104(d) shall apply to the appointment of an examiner under this chapter. Any examiner shall comply with the qualification requirements imposed on a trustee by section 322.

''§ 1523. Actions to avoid acts detrimental to creditors

''(a) Upon recognition of a foreign proceeding, the foreign representative has standing in a case concerning the debtor pending under another chapter of this title to initiate actions under sections 522, 544, 545, 547, 548, 550, 553, and 724(a).

''(b) When the foreign proceeding is a foreign nonmain proceeding, the court must be satisfied that an action under subsection (a) relates to assets that, under United States law, should be administered in the foreign nonmain proceeding.

''§ 1524. Intervention by a foreign representative

''Upon recognition of a foreign proceeding, the foreign representative may intervene in any proceedings in a State or Federal court in the United States in which the debtor is a party.

''§ 1532. Rule of payment in concurrent proceedings

''Without prejudice to secured claims or rights in rem, a creditor who has received payment with respect to its claim in a foreign proceeding pursuant to a law relating to insolvency may not receive a payment for the same claim in a case under any other chapter of this title regarding the debtor, so long as the payment to other creditors of the same class is proportionately less than the payment the creditor has already received.''.

(B) minimum periodic payment features offered in connection with open end credit plans impact consumer default rates;

(C) consumers make only the required minimum payment under open end credit plans;

(D) consumers are aware that making only required minimum payments will increase the cost and repayment period of an open end credit obligation; and

(E) the availability of low minimum payment options is a cause of consumers experiencing financial difficulty.

APPOINTMENTS

CONGRATULATING THE BALTIMORE RAVENS FOR WINNING SUPER BOWL XXXV

Mr. SESSIONS. I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of S. Res. 15, submitted earlier today by Senators SARBANES and MIKULSKI.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 15) congratulating the Baltimore Ravens for winning Super Bowl XXXV.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Ms. MIKULSKI. I stand to honor the Baltimore Ravens who soared over the Super Bowl winning 34–7.

I also want to honor the city of Baltimore. Baltimore has often been overlooked and under valued.

Baltimore is the comeback city: the crime rate is dropping; test scores are rising; we are building a digital harbor; and now we are the Super Bowl champs for the first time since 1971.

We want the world to get to know Baltimore as a dynamic city, a city of communities—that's unified around our values, our patriotism, and our Ravens, a city with a great football heritage—and a great football future.

I congratulate the Baltimore fans, loyal and with high energy. They spent 11 years without any team at all after our Colts snuck out of town. We now have the Ravens—and we're the Super Bowl champs. We deserved this win.

I congratulate owner Art Modell, who won his first Super Bowl in 40 years of owning the team; head coach Brian Bilick, who won after only 2 years as a head coach; Ray Lewis, named most valuable player; the Ravens defense, one of the best defensive teams ever, making records and Super Bowl history, allowing just 165 points in the 16-game regular season, and had caught four interceptions during the Super Bowl.

The Ravens' offense and special teams scored big. Quarterback, Trent Dilfer threw the first touchdown pass of the game and had no interceptions; Brandon Stokely caught a 38-yard touchdown pass; Jermaine Lewis, a Maryland native and former Maryland Terrapin, returned an 84-yard kick-off to put the game out of reach.

The resolution we are passing today commends the loyalty, community spirit and enthusiasm of the Baltimore fans, applauds the Baltimore Ravens for their high standards of character, perseverance, professionalism, excellence and teamwork, praises the Ravens for their community service, congratulates the Ravens and the New York Giants for a hard-fought, sportsmanlike Super Bowl, congratulates the Ravens and their fans for the Super Bowl victory, and recognizes the achievements of the players, coaches and support staff who made this win possible.

We have been celebrating since Sunday night.

Today we had a parade through Baltimore.

We gave the Ravens the key to our city; they already have the key to our hearts.

I just watched as our colleagues from New York made good on their bet and recited Edgar Allen Poe's ''The Raven.''

We want our colleagues to share in our excitement for our Ravens and for our city.

Mr. SESSIONS. I ask unanimous consent that the resolution and preamble be agreed to en bloc, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating to the bill be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 15) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

(The resolution is located in today's RECORD under ''Senate Resolutions.'')

ORDERS FOR WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 31, 2001

Mr. SESSIONS. On behalf of the majority leader, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until the hour of 10 a.m. on Wednesday, January 31. I further ask consent that on Wednesday, immediately following the prayer, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the morning hour be deemed expired, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and the Senate then begin a period of morning business until 10:30 a.m. with Senators speaking for up to 5 minutes each, with the following exceptions: Senator BROWNBACK or his designee, 10 to 10:15 a.m.; Senator DURBIN or his designee, 10:15 to 10:30 a.m.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SESSIONS. On behalf of the majority leader, I further ask that following morning business the Senate proceed to executive session to begin consideration of the Ashcroft nomination.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. SESSIONS. Tomorrow the Senate will be in a period of morning business from 10 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. Following morning business, the Senate will resume consideration of Senator Ashcroft's nomination to be Attorney General of the United States. Under the order, debate will occur throughout the day. It is hoped that we can schedule Senators in an alternating manner throughout the day.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 10 A.M. TOMORROW

Mr. SESSIONS. If there is no further business to come before the Senate, I now ask unanimous consent the Senate stand in adjournment under the previous order.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 7:14 p.m., adjourned until Wednesday, January 31, 2001, at 10 a.m.
