PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 104th CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION

Vol. 141

WASHINGTON, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1995

No. 141

Senate

(Legislative day of Tuesday, September 5, 1995)

The Senate met at 9 a.m., on the expiration of the recess, and was called to order by the President pro tempore [Mr. THURMOND].

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Lloyd John Ogilvie, offered the following prayer:

Gracious God, You have called the men and women of this Senate to glorify You by being servant-leaders. This calling is shared by the officers of the Senate, the Senators' staffs, and all who enable the work done in this Chamber. Keep us focused on the liberating truth that we are here to serve You by serving our Nation. Our sole purpose is to accept Your absolute Lordship over our lives and give ourselves totally to the work of each day. Give us the enthusiasm that comes from knowing the high calling of serving in Government. Grant us the holy esteem of knowing that You seek to accomplish Your plans for America through the legislation of this Senate. Free us from secondary, self-serving goals. Help us to humble ourselves and ask how we may serve today. We know that happiness is not having things and getting recognition, but in serving in the great cause of implementing Your righteousness, justice, and mercy for every person and in every circumstance in this Nation. We take delight in the paradox of life: The more we give ourselves away, the more we can receive of Your love. In our Lord's name. Amen.

FAMILY SELF-SUFFICIENCY ACT

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will report the pending business.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 4) to restore the American family, reduce illegitimacy, control welfare spending, and reduce welfare dependence.

The Senate resumed consideration of the bill.

Pending:

Dole modified amendment No. 2280, of a perfecting nature.

Feinstein modified amendment No. 2469 (to amendment No. 2280), to provide additional funding to States to accommodate any growth in the number of people in poverty.

Conrad-Bradley amendment No. 2529 (to amendment No. 2280), to provide States with the maximum flexibility by allowing States to elect to participate in the TAP and WAGE programs.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The distinguished Senator from North Dakota is recognized.

Mr. CONRAD. I thank the Chair. I inquire if the Conrad-Bradley amendment is the pending business?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CAMPBELL). The Senator is correct.

AMENDMENT NO. 2529

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from New York [Mr. MOYNIHAN], for Mr. CONRAD, for himself and Mr. BRADLEY, proposes an amendment numbered 2529.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The text of the amendment is printed in the Friday, September 8, 1995, edition of the RECORD.)

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota is recognized.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, the Conrad-Bradley amendment is based on the four principles of requiring work, protecting children, providing flexibility for States, and promoting the family structure. Our amendment fundamentally reforms the welfare system by allowing States to choose between the pure block grant approach of the Dole bill and a program that maintains a safety net for children, provides an automatic stabilizer for States, and includes the funding to pay for them.

None of us can predict the future. If there are floods in Mississippi, earthquakes in California, a drought in North Dakota, or some economic calamity in Colorado, a flat-funded block grant approach may not meet the need. We should retain the automatic stabilizer that allows a State to receive the help it requires. After all, this is the United States of America, not just 50 separate States.

Our amendment allows States to choose the Dole approach or the Conrad-Bradley option for 4 years. After that, the State may continue its program or switch to the other approach at their option. Our option provides States with complete flexibility to design work requirements, job training programs, to determine eligibility and sanctions. It allows States to set time limits of any duration for participants, provided that no participants are terminated if they comply with all State requirements.

The Conrad-Bradley amendment expands the State flexibility already included in the Dole bill. It uses States as laboratories to experiment, to find what is effective in welfare reform strategies. Although the States will have almost total flexibility to design their own welfare programs, they will do so without the risk that a natural disaster or economic collapse will prevent them from protecting children and families.

The Dole proposal before us already includes such an option for the food stamp program. If an option to choose between a pure block grant approach and a system that automatically adjusts for the need is appropriate for food stamps, I suggest we should provide the same option for the Dole AFDC block grant.

According to CBO, our amendment provides protection for children and States while saving $63 billion over 7 years, compared with the $70 billion of savings in the current version of the Dole bill. In other words, we reduce the overall savings in the Dole bill, which are currently $70 billion, by $7 billion over the 7 years, in order to protect children and protect the States—to preserve the automatic stabilizer mechanism.

Again, it is a State choice. They can choose the pure block grant approach of the Dole bill. They can choose that for 4 years. Or they can choose the approach in our bill, which represents the most dramatic welfare reform ever presented on the floor of the Senate.

Finally, the Conrad-Bradley amendment eliminates the need to struggle over State allocation formulas because it allows States to choose, to choose between the Dole block grant approach and a funding mechanism that automatically adjusts for State need and effort.

Proponents of the Dole bill say that we should let States experiment. We agree. That is precisely what we ought to do. Let us let the States go out and try various welfare reform strategies and see what works. That makes good sense. Let us give the States a chance to experiment. Let us give the States a chance to determine what works and what does not work. But let us maintain the automatic stabilizer to help States hit by natural disasters or economic calamities. Let us make certain they have the resources to meet the need that none of us can foresee. Let us make certain that we can protect children.

We are, after all, the United States of America, not the divided States of America. Let us remember our strength flows not only from our diversity, but from our union.

I thank the Chair and reserve the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate on the amendment?

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, thank you.

I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

AMENDMENT NO. 2469, AS MODIFIED

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will now resume consideration of Feinstein amendment No. 2469, on which there will be 4 minutes of debate equally divided, followed by a vote on or in relation to the amendment.

The Senator from California [Mrs. FEINSTEIN], is recognized.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I respectfully suggest the Senate is not in order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senators will take their conversations off the floor. The Senate will be in order. There will be 4 minutes of debate.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, may we have order? We need to know what we are voting on. We cannot hear.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will be in order. The Chair advises Senators to take their conversations off the floor. The Senator from California is recognized.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, the Senate is still not in order. There are too many discussions going on toward the rear of the Chamber.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senators at the rear of the Chamber—

Mr. BYRD. And staff. I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from California.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from West Virginia, because I believe this is a very important amendment.

Let me quickly sum up how my amendment, I believe, improves the underlying bill. In the Dole bill, 31 States have their funding frozen at fiscal year 1994 levels for the next 5 years. Funding is frozen despite very tough mandates to States which require a minimum work participation rate, which CBO says, as late as last night, only 10 to 15 States will be able to meet. Those States that cannot meet the minimum work participation rate will have a penalty of 5 percent with another 5 percent from the State, or a 10-percent cut in funds, and all but 19 States are locked out of the so-called growth formula.

So this is major. What I would like to say to my colleagues who represent the 31 States that are frozen out of the Dole bill is this: Not only will your State be required to meet that mandate, not only will your State receive no additional funding for child care or job training to meet the mandate, and even though your State will almost definitely experience an increase in poor population, your funding is frozen.

This bill, my amendment, takes the language of the House which says that the poor population of the State, as reflected by the census, will be used to determine the growth allocation. And, in fact, 27 States increase their funding under my amendment over the Dole bill.

Those charts have been distributed to you, and I urge, if you are one of those 27 States, that you vote for this amendment. The amendment is fair. It is as the House does it. It simply says the census determines the numbers and the money for growth is accommodated in that way.

I thank the Chair. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired. Is there further debate? The Senator from Texas [Mrs. HUTCHISON], is recognized.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I urge my colleagues not to vote for this amendment.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I must once again respectfully suggest the Senate is not in order. We cannot hear the Senator.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair asks that Senators withhold conversations. The Senator from Texas.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Thank you, Mr. President.

Mr. President, it was very difficult to solve the formula issue when we decided we were going to reform welfare. The most fair formula is the underlying bill, the Dole-Hutchison formula. What it does is allow everyone to win at some point. No one loses what they have now. Yet, the low-benefit, high-growth States are not penalized in years 3, 4, and 5.

When we decided to block grant for 5 years, we had to look at the accommodation for the high-growth States where they had low benefits. That is because the high-benefit States get their windfall in the beginning. Whereas, California gets $1,016 per poor person grant. States like Alabama get $148. Mississippi gets $138, as compared to $1,000.

So the goal of our underlying bill is to reach parity slowly, without hurting the New Yorks, the Michigans, and the Californias, but bringing up the States that no longer have to have a State match and are very poor. So it is equitable and it is fair.

I ask my colleagues to look at the overall picture and understand that if we are going to have welfare reform, we must start with the new parameters, which are that the State match is going to be phased out. Yes, New York and California had big State matches and, therefore, got more Federal dollars. They are going to keep those Federal dollars, even as the State's match is phased out. But the low-benefit, high-growth States are going to get their help in the end. That is why this is a balance. That is why this is fair and why the low-benefit States are not going to have to pay in order for California to continue to grow.

We will never reach parity under the Feinstein amendment. There will never be fairness in the system as we go to the Federal dollars, without State matches. The only way that we can go toward the goal of parity and equality in this country is to stay with the underlying bill.

I hope you will vote against the Feinstein amendment and stick with the Dole-Hutchison formula, which is fair to everyone.

Mr. D'AMATO. Mr. President, I rise to oppose the amendment from the Senator from California.

The reason I oppose this amendment is because it does nothing to help us meet our real goal in this debate, which is the fundamental reform of a failed welfare system.

Instead it reopens a funding formula debate that pits State against State, and puts the whole endeavor of welfare reform in dire jeopardy.

Let me be clear that my State is one that would benefit from the adoption of the Feinstein amendment. There are elements of the Senator from California's amendment that I believe have merit, and I believe she has made some important points in the debate on her amendment.

Nevertheless, the practical effect of her amendment will be to reopen a battle that can only stand in the way of the enactment of this important welfare reform bill. I intend to vote against this amendment, and I encourage my colleagues to do the same.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time has expired.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 2488

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under a previous order, the Senate will now resume consideration of the Breaux amendment, No. 2488, with time until 12:30 to be equally divided between the sides, and a vote on or in relation to the amendment to occur at 2:15 p.m.

The Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the time be limited on the Ashcroft and Shelby amendments to 1 hour on each amendment, equally divided between the sides.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BREAUX addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, the pending amendment is the so-called Breaux amendment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. BREAUX. I ask unanimous consent at this time that Senators JEFFORDS, KOHL, SNOWE and BAUCUS be added as original cosponsors to the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, what we present today in this amendment is a bipartisan effort, which is the way that welfare reform has to be accomplished in this country. There is no way that we as Democrats can write the bill by ourselves. There is no way the Republicans, by themselves, could write a bill that will become law. This amendment recognizes that, and it is a bipartisan effort.

We have worked with distinguished Members of the other side, Republican colleagues, to craft this amendment to make it fair, to make it one that can receive bipartisan support and reach a majority. It may not be perfect, but I think it reflects the best thoughts of those of us who have been involved in this effort for a long period of time, and I ask that our colleagues give it their favorable consideration.

Let me just preface what my amendment does by mentioning, just for a moment, a little of the history of this effort to try to solve welfare in our country. It has always been a joint effort between the States and the Federal Government.

On average, the States generally contribute about 45 percent of the total welfare funds to welfare programs within their State borders and the Federal Government contributes the other 55 percent, on the other hand, of the welfare dollars going into various States.

It has always been a joint venture, if you will, a partnership, if you will, between the Federal Government and the States. For the first time in the 60-year history of this bill, the other body—our colleagues and friends in the House—has terminated that partnership. They have said that there is no longer any requirement that the States put up any money if they do not want to help solve this problem. They say they are for block grants, and that in their minds means that the Federal Government sends them all of the money and they have no obligation to put up anything. They say that the Federal Government will continue to give the same amount over the next 5 years even if some of the programs that they have developed in their State reduces the number of people on welfare.

That is right. Under the House proposal, the Federal Government would continue to send the States the same amount of money every year for welfare even though there are fewer people each year in that State that are on welfare. What kind of a partnership is that? That is giving the Federal Government all of the responsibility of raising all of the money, and giving the States the same amount of money each year, no matter what happens within those State borders.

I think the concept of block grants can be made to work sometimes, but it has to be a partnership. We all know that when you are spending somebody else's money, it is much easier to spend it in any way you want to spend it. All of the legislative bodies, if they think the money is coming from Washington, are less responsible, in my opinion, when it comes to spending those funds than if they have to raise it through the tax programs in their respective States.

We have all heard stories about block grant programs that have not worked at this very point in the sense of having States misuse block grants coming from the Federal Government. We heard the story about the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration block grants. Someone in one community was using the Federal money to buy a tank for the police chief. Why not? It is Federal money. They did not have to contribute to it. They thought it was a nice thing to do, and they did it. So the police chief got a tank.

The Wall Street Journal just recently reported how State auditors in one State discovered that the State squandered $8.3 million in Federal child care grants on such things as personal furniture and designer salt and pepper shakers. Robert Rector, of the Heritage Foundation, certainly not a Democratic organization by any stretch of the imagination, recently commented on this phenomenon by saying:

If there's anything less frugal than a politician spending other people's money, it's one set of politicians with no accountability spending money raised by another set of politicians.

That is the point, Mr. President. That is the reason the Finance Committee considered this proposal, a proposal that said the Federal Government would continue to maintain our effort here in Washington in helping to solve welfare problems, that the State had no obligation to spend any of their money whatsoever. Therefore, I offered an amendment in the Finance Committee which required the States to maintain the same effort the Federal Government was maintaining; that if the States reduced by $5 the amount of money needed for welfare because of fewer welfare people, then the Federal Government would reduce our contribution by the same amount. That is why the amendment that is now before the Senate has been scored by the Congressional Budget Office to save $545 million over 7 years.

This is a bipartisan amendment that the Congressional Budget Office says will save $545 billion over the next 7 years. That is why I think that all of our colleagues who are interested in trying to save money on welfare reform would look with favor and support my amendment.

I want to point out on this first chart how the current system works, and why I think it makes sense. When you have a real partnership, with Federal and State funds both being used and contributed, you see here in the chart that about 9 million children of America get help and assistance under this program. You see, according to the blocks here, that we have five blocks with the representative Federal contribution and four blocks representing the State contribution to help 9 million kids. That is the current partnership. Without any State funds, under the House bill, if you say all right, the State does not have to put up anything, obviously, you are going to lose the blue boxes which represent the State contribution and instead of helping 9 million children get aid and assistance, you are now only helping 5 million.

What we are saying essentially by this amendment is that we want to maintain the partnership, we want to maintain the effort. We think what the House has proposed is absolutely unacceptable because it says that States should not have to contribute anything if they do not want to. That is not what real reform is all about.

The second chart that we have would also show something that I think is important. It shows that if you have the States willing to put up nothing, how it would affect the number of jobs that have been created over the past years. Right now, there are 630,000 job slots. These include work programs, education, training, and child care that are provided for through the Federal and State partnership.

If State spending were to be cut by 10 percent, which would be allowable under both the House and the Senate proposals, if they were cut by only 10 percent, you are talking about a cut down to 290,000 jobs being available, a dramatic reduction. If the States were to cut their contribution by only 20 percent, you would not have any jobs funded at all. We all know that without work, you are not going to have real reform. Welfare reform is about creating jobs. If you allow the States to do less than they have been doing, or nothing at all, you are going to obviously dramatically adversely affect the creation of jobs under the welfare reform bill. Therefore, this amendment is absolutely critical.

The third thing is that my amendment would enable both the Federal Government and the State governments to share the savings of welfare reform. One of the reasons we are trying to enact welfare is to save both the Federal Government and the State governments money. My amendment says that if the State government is going to reduce the amount of money they spend on welfare, so should the Federal Government. The House bill, in comparison, says: Look, if the States are going to spend a lot less because fewer people are on welfare, the Federal Government is still going to continue to give the same amount of money to the States. What kind of nonsense is that? If the State is getting $10 million from the Federal Government and reduces the number of people on welfare, under the House bill they still get the same amount of money from the Federal Government. There is no reduction. That does not make any sense whatsoever in times of tight budgetary restriction. If the State government can save money because of fewer people being on welfare, that is a good thing to happen. But the Federal Government should also say that we should also be able to reduce our contribution if the States have been able, through new inventive programs, to reduce the number of people on welfare.

Also, my amendment, which requires the States to continue to contribute 90 percent of their funding, would discourage the supplementing of existing State resources.

With the budget that we passed in the Congress, we made a clear statement that, "Federal funds should not supplant existing expenditures by other sources, both public and private," and that the "Federal interest in the program should be protected with adequate safeguards such as maintenance of effort provisions." My amendment would ensure that Federal dollars are not used to replace State welfare spending, which could be diverted to other uses like roads and bridges.

Mr. President, simply put, under the House-passed amendment on welfare reform, the States under this provision have no requirement to have any maintenance of effort, no requirement to participate financially in solving the welfare problem. If a State wants to say, "Well, we used to spend X amount of dollars on welfare programs. We want to take half of that, and we are going to use it for roads and bridges, or to buy furniture for State employees, or we are going to use it to pay for State raises for all of the State employees," Mr. President, under this amendment, the Federal Government still continues to contribute the same amount. The State is left off the hook for any real obligation to help solve the problem.

We are not going to be able to solve the problem just here in Washington. States are going to have to be involved, and they are going to have to be involved financially in order to see that the programs are handled properly, that there is a real interest in the program, and that adequate funding for the program is available. We all know that when you come to lobbying for scarce State funds that people on welfare, and children in particular, who are innocent victims, do not have a very strong lobby. People who build roads and bridges and highways do. So if a State all of a sudden sees the House-passed bill in front of them they are going to say, look at this pot of money. We are going to take all the money that we used to use for welfare, and we are going to build roads and bridges and give State pay raises because that is what gets you reelected.

I think that is wrong. Another thing that they could say is by reducing the amount of money they contribute to welfare programs, by reducing the income of a person, they are entitled to more food stamps because this is 100 percent federally funded. This is another unique way that the Federal Government is going to get stuck with the tab under the proposal in the House—let us just reduce the amount of money we give on welfare, and we know by doing that welfare recipients are going to get more in food stamps and, by golly, food stamps are paid for by the Federal Government 100 percent. Is this not a great way of getting rid of an obligation.

What that is going to do is cost the Federal Government and the taxpayers substantial amounts of money. That is one of the reasons CBO has scored my amendment as saving $545 million over the next 7 years. There is no other amendment pending that is going to produce those types of savings. It is very simple. As a State legislator, I know if I reduce my State's spending on a program for welfare recipients, they are just going to get more money in food stamps that are paid for by the Federal Government 100 percent. Is that not a great way to get out of my obligation and stick it to the Federal Government and stick it to the Federal taxpayers because they are going to have to pick up 100 percent of the tab for the cost of food stamps.

The only way we are going to solve this problem is with a real true partnership. My understanding of what the majority leader on the other side has offered is to say I think you have a point, BREAU, and this zero contribution by the States is really insufficient. They have devised an amendment I think that says, well, we are going to require the States to pay up to 75 percent of what they have been spending and contribute 75 percent for the next 3 years. But then after that it disappears. If a 75 percent contribution is good for the first 3 years, why is it not good for the life of the program or 5 years? What is magical about having it for 36 months and then, poof, it disappears? If it is good for the first 3 years, it should be good for the years of the program.

The real critical point is this. And I am really trying to speak in a bipartisan fashion. If my colleagues on the Republican side of the aisle really think 75 percent is a reasonable contribution by the States—I think it is too low, but they think it is reasonable—does anyone who has been around here more than 6 weeks think if we go to the conference with the House with the requirement that the States put in 75 percent of what they have been spending and the House has a provision which requires zero, does anybody think we are going to come out with 75 percent? Of course not.

If you have been on a conference before, you know how these things are generally settled. You divide by 2. The difference between 0 and 75 is 37½ percent. And that is what likely is to come back from a conference when the House comes in with a zero requirement and the Senate comes in with a 75 percent requirement.

So I urge my colleagues who may think that my requirement requiring a 90 percent contribution by the States of what they have been spending is too high to recognize that this bill has to go to conference. If we are going to come out with anything near 75 percent, I suggest it is absolutely essential that we come in with a minimum of a 90 percent requirement, knowing that in the conference it is going to be conferenced out and you generally split the difference when you go to conference.

I think we can pass all the laudatory measures and resolutions we want saying that our conferees should stick with 75, and we know they are going to stick with 75, and they will argue for 75. That is good. That is fine. I have been on conferences time and time again, and I have been around here too long to know that is not what happens. The other body feels very strongly that there should be no contribution by the States. I think almost everybody in this body thinks there should be a contribution. If you think 75 percent is a fair amount, it is absolutely essential that we go to conference with a higher amount.

Let me also say, Mr. President, that the amendment I have offered has a great deal of support from people who believe in block grants in particular. I know that Gov. Tommy Thompson from Wisconsin, who has been quoted so often on welfare, has said that "welfare reform requires a cash investment up front. That investment eventually turns into savings."

I agree with that, but I am concerned you are not going to be able to get money out of State legislative bodies for welfare reform without this provision. If States are told they do not have to put up anything, many States will put up nothing. That is simply a fact of life. Therefore, a requirement that they contribute in this maintenance of effort is absolutely essential.

We can argue all we want about what is proper, 75 or 90, but I remind my colleagues when we go to conference we will be going to conference with a group of House Members who will feel very strongly that zero is the proper amount. If we are ever going to come out with something that maintains effort on the States at an appropriate and proper amount, then we absolutely are going to have to come in with an amount that is consistent with what I have in my amendment, and that is a 90 percent requirement. That allows the Federal Government to save substantial amounts of money—$545 million over 7 years as scored by CBO. It requires the States to participate in a partnership arrangement for the solving of this particular problem.

Mr. President, with those comments, I reserve the remainder of my time at this point.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. BREAU. Mr. President, I ask, how much time does the Senator desire?

Ms. SNOWE. Five minutes.

Mr. BREAU. I will be happy to yield 5 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine is recognized.

Ms. SNOWE. I rise in support of the amendment that has been offered by the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. BREAU], because I do think it is essential that we ensure a continued Federal-State partnership with respect to welfare programs, and certainly regarding the welfare reform we are attempting to make in the Congress today.

The amendment offered by the Senator from Louisiana underscores a very essential point, and I think it gets to the heart of what welfare reform is all about—that it is in fact a mutual cooperative effort between the Federal Government and the States to get Americans off welfare, so that they can pursue opportunities to self-sufficiency, personal responsibility, and discipline.

Since 1935, when title IV of the Social Security Act was adopted, welfare has always been a Federal-State partnership. And as we attempt to reengineer the welfare system in America today as we know it, I also think we should renew our commitment to that partnership. The bottom line is the States have a tremendous stake in the success and outcome of welfare reform.

At the same time, I think it is also essential that they have a financial commitment and a financial stake in this reform. Many States—and I think we all can understand this—will continue to extend their programs to the neediest, as they do today, but they are also facing the same antitax, antigovernment, antiexcessive spending sentiment that we are in the Senate and in the entire Congress.

These States at the same time also have balanced budget requirements and commitments. In fact, most States do throughout the country. So they will be facing competing demands and interests for money.

Under the legislation that is pending before the Senate with respect to welfare reform, there is no requirement that the States contribute what they have spent in the past with respect to welfare. That is a concern which I have and one I share with the Senator from Louisiana.

In the last 20 years, cash assistance by the States toward welfare has been reduced by 40 percent when you take into account inflation. That is 40 percent. I do not think there is any question, as we pursue welfare reform, that we are going to still make a commitment, probably as great as what we are making today, in order to ensure that those individuals who are on welfare will move toward self-sufficiency in the future.

As the Senator from Louisiana mentioned, Governor Thompson, who has had a very successful welfare reform program in the State of Wisconsin, had to make a commitment of fivefold toward job training and child care in order to make it a success. For every dollar they invested, they got $2 in return from benefits.

Now, the Breaux amendment says that if the States do not wish to make their commitment of 90 percent of their spending at the 1994 level toward welfare, they can reduce it, but at the same time the Federal share will be reduced as well, dollar for dollar. I do not think that is unfair. I think the Federal Government should share in the benefits and the success of the program as well as the savings because this should be a shared partnership. If we are able to save money, the Federal taxpayers should save it as well. We should stand to gain from the successes as well as the savings. So we are asking the States to spend 90 percent of what they spent at the 1994 level over 5 years.

I think it is essential there is a 5-year commitment toward the maintenance of effort. It is not that we are saying that we do not expect States to make a commitment, but there have been some States who made a greater commitment toward welfare in the past than others. It is not saying we do not trust the States. I do not think it is a question of trust. It is a question of shared responsibility and the question of fairness.

Without the requirement for a fiscal commitment by the States to at least spend 90 percent at the 1994 level toward welfare, some States may not keep their end of the deal. Now, welfare reform was not designed to get the States off the hook. We are trusting them immensely through the enormous flexibility that is being granted to them through the block grant program. They stand to gain enormously in terms of how they implement a welfare reform program that is tailored to their particular State and to their constituency.

And we think that they can do a better job than the Federal Government. But we also know that it is going to continue to require a commitment on their part in terms of contributions. And that is, as we were having this debate this week on the issue of child care, we know we are going to need a tremendous commitment toward child care. And that is why I was pleased that Senator DOLE included language that I and others proposed with respect to child care so that those families who have children of 5 years or under who demonstrated a need for child care and were unable to obtain it because of distance or affordability will not be sanctioned. And I think that is an important provision in the legislation.

But I also think that we have to ensure that the States will continue to make their commitment toward child care or job training or health care. And they will have the flexibility under this legislation to transfer from one to the other. But the fact of the matter is, they should make a maintenance of effort toward what they have contributed in the past, and we are asking them to provide 90 percent, which is less than what the Federal share would be, because the Federal Government would be required to pay 100 percent of their share of their contributions to the States at the 1994 funding level.

I think this is a very important principle to adopt, Mr. President, because combined Federal and State spending approximates more than $30 billion. The States contribute about 45 percent of the total amount of money spent in this country on welfare. That is 45 percent. So without the Breaux amendment, we risk having nearly half of what is now spent on welfare siphoned off to other programs. That may mean that we will not have the kind of commitment toward child care or job training or education programs that are absolutely essential and necessary if we are going to make welfare reform work.

We want the States to reduce the rolls, absolutely. But the question is how they reduce those rolls. We want to make sure they do it in a way that we reach the final goal of allowing welfare recipients to become independent and self-sufficient. That is the bottom line. Because that is in the best interest of this country. So I think it is important to have a maintenance-of-effort requirement in this legislation because we know that essentially the States cannot spend much less than what they are spending today on welfare and think that we are going to have a successful welfare reform program. I do not believe it can happen, as you can see, in the State of Wisconsin, when Governor Thompson made a fivefold commitment toward an increase in commitment toward education, job training and child care.

So I think that this is a very important amendment. And as I said—

Mr. BREAUX. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Ms. SNOWE. If States want to reduce their commitment, then the Federal share will be reduced as well. It is not preventing the States from reducing their share, but if they do, then we have a proportionate reduction of the Federal share as well.

I will be glad to yield.

Mr. BREAUX. I commend the Senator for her comments on this legislation. And I prefer calling it the Breaux-Snowe amendment and thank her for her contribution in that regard.

I wanted to—the Senator served in the other body, as I have. And the statement that some have said is that, "Well, you know, we really think that 75 percent is an appropriate amount. That is why we should pass a maintenance-of-effort requirement, and the States will have 75 percent, and then when we go to conference we will come back with 45 percent, and that will become law." And my concern is—and I ask the Senator to comment—the other body has a zero requirement for the States spending anything.

Does the Senator from Maine also have the same concern about what would happen in the conference if we start out and figure it with a substantially lower amount than the body of this amendment?

Ms. SNOWE. Yes, I share the Senator's concern in that regard because there is no maintenance of effort whatsoever.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. BREAUX. I yield 2 additional minutes.

Ms. SNOWE. Thank you.

I share that concern because the House does not include any maintenance of effort, no percentage in that regard. So we go in, and we know there is going to be much less than that because of the House's position. So we are at 90 percent. We are going to come out with much less. And I think that is why this amendment is preferable in that regard. I think it is essential to have a 5-year commitment. If we go in with less than 5 years, we know we will probably, at best, probably get maybe 3 years. But I do think it is important that we have both the 90 percent and the 5 years to go with a strong position into the conference.

Mr. BREAUX. I thank the Senator.

Ms. SNOWE. I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. SANTORUM addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized.

Mr. SANTORUM. Thank you, Mr. President. I hear great consternation of what is going to go on when this bill reaches conference. We have to vote for the Breaux amendment because of positioning, and we have to position ourselves at 90 percent so we can get something, because the House is at zero and we are at 90 percent. The Senator from Louisiana suggested we may get up to 45 percent. If we go in with 5 years, the House has nothing, we will get 2½ years.

I do not want to speak for the majority leader, but I think we would be willing to say that we will go with 45 percent and 2½ years, and we will stick to that in conference.

So if the Senator is concerned about what we are going to bargain, I think we are willing to make that commitment right here on the floor of the Senate. And I think the leader could come over and say that we will fight and stand firm on 45 percent and 2½ years. And if that is—

Mr. BREAUX. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. SANTORUM. We are willing to take that tough stand.

Mr. BREAUX. Now the Senator is arguing that 45 percent is the appropriate, proper amount?

Mr. SANTORUM. No. I was responding to what the Senator anticipates happening in conference. And I think we can save ourselves a lot of problems. I think what this shows is that this is not really an area of precision. I mean, we do not have a lot of precision here of what should be the maintenance of effort, whether it is 90, 75, or 50 percent.

It is really a question of philosophy as to whether you want to give the States the flexibility to be able to reap some rewards in managing their own program and whether you trust Governors and State legislatures. I think there is and has traditionally been at the Federal level a mistrust. I think that is unfortunate.

I will have comments later. But I see the Senator from Missouri, who was a Governor of the State of Missouri, and who was elected as Governor and Senator. I would be interested to hear from the Senator from Missouri as to whether those constituencies that elected him to both offices require him to do different things, whether he should feel differently as Governor and not care for the poor as Governor but care for the poor more as a Senator. I would be interested in whether there is that transformation as held in the State office as opposed to holding the Federal office, whether you care more about poor people as a Senator than you did as a Governor.

I would be happy to yield 10 minutes to the Senator from Missouri.

Mr. ASHCROFT addressed the Chair. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Thank you, Mr. President. I rise to question the public policy value of trying to lock States into spending 90 percent as much as the Federal Government has on a series of programs, many of which not only have failed, but have locked people into dependency and have locked people into poverty. I think there are very substantial and significant public policy reasons to say that we should allow the States the flexibility to correct the errors of the Federal Government rather than to pass legislation which would require State and local governments to persist in the errors of the Federal Government.

The Breaux amendment would require that there be a 90-percent maintenance of effort. And in my understanding of it, that means that we would require that States spend 90 percent of any block grant just as the Federal Government did, in other words, lock in an amount of spending. This could be a serious problem for States because, in some instances, it could actually require that States build the program to be a much bigger program than it now is. It might require States to go out and get far more people into the program than they now have.

Let me just give you one example that flows out of my experience as Governor, but really persists and has come as a part of the testimony that has been in the debate about welfare from my successor and from the people in his administration. As you know, I did not have the privilege of being succeeded by a Republican. So a Democrat is now Governor of our State. And so, I want you to know that these figures are not Republican figures or Democrat figures. They happen to be Democrat figures, but they came from an administration that followed mine.

Take one of the biggest welfare Programs of all. The most costly welfare program of all is the Medicaid Program. In the Medicaid program in my home State, the Medicaid director has said that if he could just have the money and not have all the Federal red tape, instead of serving 600,000 people with the money, he would be able to serve 900,000 people with that same amount of money, meaning that there are tremendous inefficiencies in the Federal program; that these inefficiencies, as a matter of fact, if they could be wiped out, would be more than a 10-percent benefit to the program. They could provide for a 50-percent increase in the population being served.

If we were to apply the Breaux amendment to that kind of a situation, what would happen? The Breaux amendment would require spending 90 percent of the money, which would mean that you would get 90 percent of the increased number of people that could be served absent the Federal regulations. That would, in a program like the Medicaid program in Missouri, automatically boost the program from a 600,000 population program to an 810,000 population program, because we would mandate that they spent 90 percent as much as they would now be spending, but do it in a context without the Federal regulations, which would allow for greater efficiencies.

Mr. BREAUX. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. ASHCROFT. Yes.

Mr. BREAUX. Does the Senator realize the Republican amendment locks in the Federal contribution at 100 percent for 5 years? Even if the State is successful in reducing the amount of people on welfare, your amendment locks the Federal Government into spending 100 percent for 5 years. If it is improper to lock the State into spending 90 percent, why is it proper to require the Federal Government spend 100 percent, even though you have fewer people on welfare?

Mr. ASHCROFT. We would do so by ending the entitlement, and that provides an incentive to the States to reduce welfare, as opposed to the Breaux amendment which would provide a mandate, in many instances, to increase welfare.

Mr. BREAUX. If the Senator will yield further on that point, just to clarify. It is an important point. Under the Republican amendment, the Federal Government is locked into spending 100 percent no matter what the State does.

Mr. ASHCROFT. The Federal Government is locked into spending 100 percent by an amount determined by its expenditures last year, and then any savings that come out of that should inure to the States. The difference is under the block grant proposal. There would be a massive incentive for the States to save money and to reduce welfare rolls.

Under the Breaux amendment, which would require a 90-percent expenditure, instead of saving the money and devoting it to things that might be more needy, they would be required to spend it in the same way they had previously, which could result in the anomaly of increasing welfare substantially.

Let me just move away from the area of Medicaid, for instance. Food stamps are the second largest of all the welfare programs. The testimony from the Office of Inspector General and from the Food and Nutrition Service and the Department of Agriculture is there is about a 12-percent administrative cost in food stamps. There is about a 12-percent slippage when you consider trafficking in food stamps and fraud and mistakes and those kinds of things, or about 24 percent of the program—24 percent of the program—does not really get to needy folks. If you are to take that kind of a welfare program and send it back to the States with a 90-percent requirement that they keep spending the money for the same program, it is another case where they might have to increase the number of people on welfare.

Mr. President, I think what we have here is a classic situation: Are we here to reform the welfare system? Are we here to reduce welfare or are we here to increase welfare? In my State, the people of Missouri spell "reform" r-e-d-u-c-e. They believe they sent us here in the year 1994, last year, to do something about an epidemic of welfare which is pulling more and more people into the category of dependence and despair and fewer and fewer people into the category of independence and industry.

I think we have to ask ourselves the question: What is our purpose in reform? I think our purpose in reform ought to be giving States the incentive to move people off welfare and, yes, if there are surplus funds and they have been successful in doing that, let the States devote those funds to the benefit of the entire population.

Let me just raise another issue. The other issue is this: If States do get the number of people down on welfare—and, after all, we should be trying to get fewer people on welfare, not more. The index of a compassionate society, J.C. WATTS said, and he is profoundly correct on this, and the Chair, being from Oklahoma, knows Congressman WATTS well, the compassion of a society should not be how many people you can get on welfare, but a really compassionate society should have few people on welfare.

If you are required to keep spending lots and lots more money on welfare per capita than you have, if you have any inefficiencies now that are expressed in the program, if you have to spend more money per case, what does that do? If you have the case level down to 75 and you still have to spend at 90, you have to make that case much richer, you have to provide more benefit.

As you increase the benefit, what do you do? You attract people back into the system. The pernicious impact of the Breaux amendment would be to attract more people into welfare to the extent the States were able to reduce the welfare caseload and the administrative cost to a level below 90 percent.

We do not want to build a welfare system here; we want to make a welfare system that helps people out of welfare into work. We do not want to make the benefits richer so it makes it harder for people to move from welfare to work; we want this system to be designed to meet the needs of truly needy individuals but without a Federal mandate that might require the State of Missouri, for instance, if it were to be applied to Medicaid, to move from 600,000 people on welfare to 810,000 people on welfare, or, in the area of food stamps, if you could somehow get a good bit of that 24-percent slippage out of the system, that would require an increase in the benefits so that more people would be enticed into the system rather than fewer.

This is a fundamental point that if you are going to reduce the number of people on welfare and you require the amount of money to be maintained at a very high level, you have to make the benefit richer and richer and richer. And if you enrich the benefit while you are decreasing the population, then all of a sudden people will start seeing the benefit being richer again, and you will attract more people into the system.

We do not want to build into welfare reform. We do not want to sow the seeds of its own destruction. We do not want to build a structure and mechanism which will result in welfare being increased and grown.

I said the people of Missouri spell "welfare reform" r-e-d-u-c-e, and they do not want to grow welfare, they want to slow welfare, not because it is so much a question of how much money we are spending, it is a question of how many lives we are losing. We are losing generations of children.

Another point: There seems to be some question—and I am glad the Senator from Pennsylvania raised this with me—as to whether people at State capitals can be sensitive to the needs of the needy. It is as if somehow people can only be heard if they have needs in Washington, DC. I suppose it might be as a result of the history of this whole enterprise of welfare, if we could mislabel welfare as an enterprise. It might be that if we were to discuss the history, we could see why that question comes up, because there was a time in America's history when individuals who were needy were not well represented in politics.

Back in the fifties and sixties, there were laws that related to access to voting which kept a lot of people from voting. The civil rights movement was a response to that. And then the Supreme Court of the United States in the 1960's said, "We can't have rural communities have an improper impact on legislation because they do not have the population anymore." So there was a Supreme Court case called Baker versus Carr that provided for one man, one vote. And there is only one legislative body in the United States of America that does not represent one man, one vote. It is the U.S. Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. KEMPTHORNE). The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. SANTORUM. I yield the Senator an additional 5 minutes.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, this is the only body in America that is not equally represented by the people of this country. Every State capital has a specific, both in their senate and house of representatives, except for Nebraska, of course, which only has one house, every State capital has one man, one vote. People have access to the ballot box like never before. As a matter of fact, the civil rights laws of the third quarter of this century moved to guarantee access and moved to remove legal barriers from voting and political participation. But just this decade, the Congress of the United States moved to remove virtually any kind of barrier. As a matter of fact, there is a special privilege for people on welfare. They are automatically asked to register when they go on welfare.

There can be no argument that people in need are people who are disenfranchised in the United States. The idea that you have come to the Federal Government to be heard or to have an impact as a citizen is a bankrupt argument. It may have had currency at one time, but that currency has been substantially devalued by a change in the law, both the judicial law and the legislative law.

The people of this country are represented and can be heard in their State capitals. I submit that they will be heard there better than in Washington, DC. As a former Governor, I witnessed far more people visiting me in the State capital than visiting me here in Washington, because the only disenfranchisement that comes now is a disenfranchisement of distance. Frankly, I cannot name a single State for which Washington, DC, is a closer destination than their State capital. It is simply not the case. If we give States discretion about how to spend this money so we can have real reform, needy people can go to the State capital. Needy people know that if the State makes a mistake, it is easier to correct and more quickly corrected than it is if the country makes a mistake. Needy people know that if there is a mistake in 1 program out of 50, it is not nearly as bad as if it is a national mistake. Needy people know that to get legislation changed in Washington, DC, you have to fight your way through special interests and all kinds of power groups, politically. They know that at the State level individual voices are heard, and the voices of neighborhoods and communities are heard.

So I rise to oppose this amendment because I think it will hurt the people who are in need in this country. I rise to oppose this amendment because I think it is an amendment which is designed to institutionalize and guarantee the maintenance of the current system. It is incomprehensible to me, after the people spoke in 1994 as loudly as people spoke to me just last month when I was home, just incomprehensible to me that we would not want to really reform this system, that we would want to guarantee that the system is 90 percent the same as it is now. If a State can save enough money to go below that 90 percent, or devote that resource to additional education or additional ways of helping people pick themselves up and carry themselves out of poverty, we say: No dice, no; you have to be at least 90 percent as inefficient as the Federal Government, 90 percent as punitive as the Federal Government; you have to be at least 90 percent as unsuccessful as the Federal Government.

I think we need to turn these States loose. There is very little doubt in my mind that there are just ways that people will solve these problems. Ninety percent, I think, would lock in a spending level. Ninety percent would likely lock in, in some cases, an increase in the number of people on welfare. I cannot think of anything more tragic than the State to sweeten its system, to redesign its program, and as a result of the redesign of the program, end up sucking more people into a system which has already impoverished many and stolen the future of generations.

In some communities, like Detroit, 79 percent of all the children are born without fathers. We have an epidemic that is aided and abetted by this system, which is counterproductive. We should not institutionalize the status quo, and we must reject the Breaux amendment.

Mr. SANTORUM addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania is recognized.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Missouri for his insightful comments. I think he really speaks from the kind of experience that we need here in this Chamber, as somebody who served as a Governor and has managed a welfare program, who understands the dynamics in the State capitals and the likelihood of success of the Dole substitute.

I think his words of support and encouragement for the bill, as it is today, and particularly the maintenance of effort provisions, are important, and I want to congratulate him for not only his statement here, but the tremendous amount of work he has done on this legislation, to bring consensus to the Republican side of the aisle and move this matter forward. He has really been a standout on this issue. I thank him for his comments and for his work on this legislation.

The Senator from Vermont is here. I will yield the floor.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, I yield myself 30 seconds just to make the comment that there clearly must be a grave amount of misunderstanding of what the Breaux amendment does.

The Breaux amendment allows the State to spend as much or as little as the State wants to spend. But it says that when a State spends 10 percent less than they are spending now, the Federal Government will also reduce our contribution. We on our side, in a bipartisan spirit, do not want to make the Federal Government spend 100 percent of what we are spending now for the next 5 years. If the State reduces their amount, the Federal Government should have the right to do that, as well. That is what the Breaux amendment is all about.

I yield at this time to the very distinguished Senator from Vermont, who has a long history of outstanding work in welfare reform and looking out for the needy. I yield 10 minutes to the Senator from Vermont.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President, I rise in support of the Breaux amendment. I listened to the very eloquent and excellent statement of the former Governor of Missouri, and there is no question in my mind that if all the Governors of this Nation were like the former Governor of Missouri, we might not need this amendment.

My memory goes back to the 1960's, when we started the welfare reform. It was because there were many areas of this Nation where the States dropped the ball with their responsibility on welfare, and the Federal Government came in to try to get some uniformity of standards in the ability to take care of the people of this country who were unable to take care of themselves or needed help in getting into a position where they could do so.

I point out that in the Breaux amendment here, we are dollar for dollar, not percentage. So you could eliminate all your State moneys and, in many cases, end up with plenty of Federal funds left, so you are only going down dollar for dollar. I think that is an important concession to those of us who want to see this; that is, not to go over the formula reduction, so if they go down 1 percent, we go down 1 percent. It is a modest proposal in that respect.

Second, the 90 percent is, I think, a reasonable figure to utilize. It does allow some drop in State effort, without losing Federal funds.

I would like to also emphasize how critically important this amendment is to some of us who want to reach a consensus on welfare reform. There are about three areas, to me, which make the difference on whether I will support the bill or not. This is one of them. It is critical in the length of time, as well as percentage. But we cannot reduce the participation of States as an important part of the welfare reform and make it important that they continue to participate in the financing of that.

Without a partnership provision like this, States could reduce their welfare expenditures to zero and use only Federal dollars for the entire costs. But with this amendment, States will have a continuing incentive to use their own resources in conjunction with Federal funds. Without, I foresee a major shift of the entire financial responsibility for welfare onto our already overburdened Federal budget. I see us returning to the problems we had before the advent of the Federal help.

Our efforts to reform the welfare system must not dismantle the current partnership by allowing this cost shift. We simply cannot afford it. Right now, the Federal Government funds only 55 percent of the total national welfare funding, while States contribute the remaining dollars, almost $14 billion in fiscal year 1994.

While the exact State-by-State ratio of State to Federal dollars spent on welfare varies by State, depending on available resources, both overall and individually, States make a major contribution. This should continue to be the case even after welfare reform. Welfare is a joint State/Federal responsibility that will not be there if there is not a monetary commitment.

While it is true that the leadership has incorporated a partial provision, an expectation of 75 percent effort from the States for the first 3 years of the bill, I believe that this provision for 90 percent for the full 5-year term of the bill is essential and critical to this bill being passed. Either we believe States have a responsibility to contribute State funds toward welfare or we do not. I do not think that responsibility somehow evaporates after the first 3 years.

Some may argue States rights against this provision. That States must be allowed to decide how much to spend and on whom to spend it. Some may argue States must be able to innovate in their delivery of benefits to save money.

I agree. I agree that States should be able to set their own funding levels, their own benefits, design their own programs, save money. As we know, perhaps too acutely right now, the appropriations process is a difficult one, requiring painstaking decisions. State budgets around the country are also under stress, some States may well decide that welfare is not a priority for them that it was in 1994, that they want to save money for welfare to use somewhere else in their budget.

I believe that when money is saved, and less is spent on welfare, both the State and Federal taxpayers should share in the savings. If the State share goes down, so should the Federal dollar, on a dollar for dollar basis.

The welfare partnership amendment has been called a maintenance of efforts provision. It is, in that it would encourage States to continue to contribute State dollars toward welfare costs. But it is not the same as many of the maintenance of effort provisions of the past that I think my colleagues are most familiar with.

Under the partnership, we ask that the States maintain a spending level of only 90 percent, not 100 percent, only 90 percent of their 1994 fiscal year expenditures on cash benefits, job education, and training and child care. Most maintenance of effort provisions require 100 percent effort or penalize with a total withdrawal of all Federal funds.

This partnership provision is much more reasonable. If a State chooses to go below the 90 percent of the fiscal year 1994 State funding levels, it will experience a dollar for dollar reduction in the Federal grant. For every dollar the State chooses not to spend, they will receive one less Federal dollar. Of course, the reduction does not even begin to occur until the State funding levels fall below 90 percent of the 1994 levels, and that is important to remember that baseline is there. If you create savings, if you were able to reduce your roles, then that baseline still is there.

In other words, assume that Vermont, through its innovative demonstration program, becomes so adept at moving people off welfare to work that they save money. They do not need as much as they did in 1994 because the caseload is dramatically reduced.

So the State decides it can afford to spend less overall on welfare. Under this proposal, the first 10 percent of savings goes to the State alone. They we can reduce State spending by 10 percent without affecting their Federal grant. After that, as the savings grow, the Federal Government share will go dollar for dollar in that spending reduction, once it goes below 90 percent of the 1994 level. If it does not go below the 1994 level they can make the savings without the provision.

Without this provision, we, the Federal Government, will continue to send the same amount to States while they cut back their own expenditures.

However, I think that Vermont, like all other States, should continue in partnership with us for welfare spending. The States will be able to set levels of spending based on need. There is no financial cliff in this provision. No financial cliff as has been indicated by some. If you go one dollar below the 1994 levels you lose all your Federal funds. No, that is not the case. The reduction is gradual and proportionate to what the States set as need.

The States currently have some flexibility in setting their benefit levels. Under this bill, the flexibility will be enhanced and expanded. I believe that many of these State flexibility changes are positive, that State innovation should be encouraged and the Federal requirement should not be overly prescriptive.

The bill will allow States to experiment with benefit levels, benefits delivery and eligibility, and do all they want within the guidelines to be able to bring about savings.

Left to their own devices, States can probably show us here in Washington a thing or two about designing programs. I am sure they can. My own State of Vermont has been involved in a very interesting and successful demonstration project using a combination of sanctions and additional support services with its welfare population.

I also believe that States may well be able to save money as they innovate and become more efficient. As they save money and are able to reduce their State welfare spending by moving people off welfare into work, this amendment would allow the Federal Government to share in those State savings. This provision allows us to share in those provisions. I want to emphasize that.

Without it, States would no longer need to spend their State funds on welfare cash assistance, child care, education, and job training in order to receive Federal dollars. Regardless of State funding commitment, the Federal Government's funding stream will remain constant, frozen at the 1994 level.

Mr. President I want to remind my colleagues that it is those very numbers, the 1994 Federal funding levels, that were set in proportion to the amount spent by the States in 1994. To continue at those same Federal levels without a requirement that States also spend seems very dangerous to me.

Realistically, the entire responsibility for the welfare system would be shifted to the Federal Government. States would no longer have a financial incentive to use State dollars along with their Federal allocations. The incentives for making the system better would go away. If they wanted they could choose to narrow their welfare eligibility and reduce benefits and pay for it all with Federal dollars.

I guess this amendment is about several things. It is about savings for the Federal Government as well as the States after reform. It is about fairness. And it is about continuing shared responsibility for welfare. It is ironic that we talk of the devolution to the States, the importance of governance at the local level, we simultaneously make welfare a solely Federal responsibility.

I hope my colleagues will join me in supporting what I believe is one of the most critical amendments we will have here today. I yield the floor.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that prior to the vote on the Breaux amendment scheduled for 2:15 that each side be given 2 minutes to explain their bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I yield briefly 2 minutes to the Senator from Missouri.

Mr. ASHCROFT. I thank the Senator from Pennsylvania. The suggestion has been made that somehow the incentives for savings persist in this bill. I think it is pretty clear that once you get below 90 percent for every dollar you save, when you would otherwise have gotten $2 for having saved that dollar you only get $1 because the dollar you would save in regard to the Federal Government then is shared back to the Federal Government.

The question is, how much incentive do we want to put in this bill to reform welfare? I believe we want to put a substantial incentive in this bill to reform welfare. We want it reformed significantly.

I do not think the people want us tinkering around the edge with the program, but they want us to give States broad latitude and broad incentives.

My understanding of the Breaux amendment is it would reduce that incentive substantially. To the extent that the incentive for reform is reduced by having the States benefit less financially when there has been reform, I think we will get less reform.

I think the question is, do we want a lot of reform? Do we want major reform? Do we want sweeping reform? Or do we want reform that is incremental, and if there are incentives to additional reform they are diminished substantially.

In my judgment, we want to provide the maximum level of incentives which is what I believe the Dole bill does, and is the appropriate way for us to move in this manner.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I want to thank the Senator from Missouri and add to that the Senator from Vermont said that there would be a sharing of the savings on the Federal Government side with the 90 percent maintenance of effort, and I remind the Senator in the Dole modified amendment that if you fall below 75 percent, every dollar you fall below is shared dollar for dollar from the Federal Government.

In other words, if the State drops below 75 percent, every dollar they spend less, the Federal Government has to give $1 less. So there is the same identical provision already in the Dole modified bill as in the Breaux amendment.

There are several points I could make on the Breaux amendment and they go beyond the philosophy that we are discussing here as to whether we should be requiring States to maintain effort.

I think one of the most important things is the drop in caseload that we have experienced in the last year. If you look at the numbers from the Department of Health and Human Services, what they show is that since May 1994 we have seen a drop from 14 million recipients on AFDC, to May 1995 a little under 13.5 million—a drop of over 525,000 recipients in the program.

The principal reason for the reduction is not based on the economy or anything; it is because we have seen States like Michigan and Wisconsin and others institute these work programs and change the welfare laws to reduce caseloads. Michigan has reduced their caseload by 30 percent in the past couple of years. What we are seeing is States that are doing exactly what this bill will facilitate other States to do, are reducing their caseloads. By reducing their caseloads, they are obviously saving money and they are putting more people to work.

However, if we stick those States with a 90-percent maintenance of effort, what you say to Michigan is, "OK, Michigan," or someone like Michigan, who after this bill passes enacts a program similar to Michigan's, "You can reduce your caseload by 30 percent but you cannot reduce your welfare expenditures by 30 percent; you still have to spend 90 percent of what you were spending now, based on 1994, not 1995," where, as I said, we have already seen a reduction. So you are basing it on last year's figure, which was a historically high figure, saying you have to maintain 90 percent of that even though you may drop your caseload under programs that are, today, as much as 30 or more percent reduced. So you are holding States, as the Senator from Missouri said, to spend money on people on welfare even though there may not be those people to spend it on. I think that is unwise.

As the Senator from Missouri said, it is an incentive not to reform. It is an incentive not to reform if you cannot save any money by reforming. One of the reasons you see welfare reform is, obviously, you want to get people to work and off welfare. But also you want to save taxpayers' dollars in the process. So this is a real disincentive.

If we were going to have a figure, 90 is much too high. It does not allow for innovation. It does not take into account innovations that we have seen in States today and the dramatic reductions in caseloads that we have seen in programs that I think are going to be more common after this legislation is passed. I think it is a step very damaging to reform. This is a back-door way of trying to keep the status quo in place, and I think it is a very dangerous addition to this bill.

I also would say, you have an interesting question about what is fair. You say maintain effort at 90 percent. That sounds fair to all States. Every State has to maintain their effort at 90 percent. That would be fair if every State had the same effort in the first place. But they do not. In fact, there are wide disparities as to what States' efforts are today.

For example, I pulled this out of the Wall Street Journal of August 21. It is from the House Ways and Means Committee. It says that if you have a State like Mississippi, that their average monthly AFDC payment per family is $120 per family. A State like Alaska's is $762 per family.

What we are saying in the Breaux amendment is, "Mississippi, you have to maintain 90 percent of $120; Alaska, you have to maintain 90 percent of $762." Is that fair? Is that fair to States like Alaska, which are now being given a block grant and, under the Dole formula, are not going to be growing as much? Why? Because the Hutchison growth formula targets low-benefit States. They will grow. Their maintenance of effort is 90 percent of the low number, but they will grow. States like California, which has a $568 per family contribution and Hawaii which has $653, Vermont, $548, those States with high-dollar contributions now will not participate in the growth fund. So you are locking them in at a high-participation rate and not giving them any more money.

I do not think that is a fair way to do it, and, in fact, it could even get worse because there are many people who are going to vote for the Breaux amendment who are also going to vote for the Graham amendment, the amendment of Senator GRAHAM from Florida, who will be offering his fair share amendment. That will completely eliminate all past relationship of how AFDC was distributed and make it purely on a per-person-in-poverty allocation. So the State match will be irrelevant under the Graham amendment.

So, what would happen, in fact, will happen if we adopt the Breaux amendment, and then, as again many who will vote for the Breaux amendment will vote for the Graham amendment, what will happen is there will be States like New York and Alaska and Hawaii and California that will be required to spend more money than the Federal Government will give them under the new formula. So their maintenance of effort will actually be higher than what they get on the Federal level. How is that fair?

We are saying you have to keep your contribution high and, oh, by the way, we are going to take ours and cut yours substantially from your current level. Those are kinds of games that you get into when you have a block grant and try to keep a maintenance-of-effort provision in a block grant proposal. It does not work.

Mr. BREAUX. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. SANTORUM. Sure, I will be happy to.

Mr. BREAUX. Back to the basic point I think the Senator is making, it is that somehow if the Breaux amendment passes States will not be able to reduce the amount of money they spend on welfare. That is absolutely and clearly incorrect. States are encouraged to spend less through reforms. We just say if they are spending less than 90 percent of what they spent the year before, the Federal Government will also reduce our contribution.

Does the Senator disagree that under the Republican proposal, you lock in the Federal contribution for 5 years? Even if the State has less people on welfare, saves money, the Federal Government is still required to spend 100 percent of what they spent in 1994?

Mr. SANTORUM. Yes. And the reason we lock in—reclaiming my time—the reason we lock in the number is because, as the Senator from Louisiana knows, if we did not block grant this program and did not reform this system and allowed what happened, for example, under the Daschle amendment, to occur, AFDC would continue to grow. In fact, the Federal commitment would be even greater in 5 to 7 years.

So the fact we lock it in now, many would say, because of inflation, is "a cut." We are in fact locking in. In fact, I think one of the biggest criticisms I have heard from the other side of the aisle is that what we are in fact locking in, that is not generous enough. We need to give more. In fact, we had an amendment there today to put in $7 billion more. We had an amendment from the Senator from Connecticut to put in $6 billion more for children. There is a barrage, and I assume it will continue, of amendments from your side of the aisle to say we should be spending more.

We are going to try to strike a balance. We do not want this program to continue to increase. We do not want to cut back the Federal share because we, too, believe in a partnership. But we will say, we will tell you, States, we will commit you to flat funding over the next 5 years. And what we want you to do is to be innovative. We will keep the dollars there to allow you to innovate and allow you to move forward. And the incentive, then, is for you to get more people off the program, to get more people into work, and, yes, save some State dollars.

We think those are powerful incentives, if we keep there the steady hand from the Federal level. So I think it is a fair compromise, in a sense, not to increase funding but to hold the level funding.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. SANTORUM. I yield to the Senator from Missouri.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, I think it is well known that States are paying disproportionate shares of the welfare benefits in their States. Some States pay 25 percent or 28 percent of the welfare benefit. Some States pay as much as 60 percent of the welfare benefit.

In the event that some States are paying 60 percent, if they save—

Mr. SANTORUM. The Senator from New York—

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Fifty.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, 50 percent, pardon me. I stand corrected and thank the Senator from New York. Fifty.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. New York is 50.

Mr. ASHCROFT. New York is 50.

A State that pays 25 percent of its benefit is able, by paying that benefit, to attract 3 Federal dollars to the State. And, so, if they were to effect a savings and they only got to save the State's part and they had to give the Federal part back, by saving 25 cents for the State they could curtail the flow of $1 for the State; they would curtail the flow of 3 additional dollars to the State.

What I am trying to say is that a program which provides reductions, of course, savings—if it is just one for one—is a program which does not provide the same amount of incentives as if you get to keep the amount that is left in the block grant.

If it is a one-for-one savings, it is the same for all States. But we want to have States with an incentive to reform the program, and the larger the reward for reforming the program and reducing the roll, the larger the incentive. And it seems to me the incentive is larger under the Dole bill, which provides that you not only get to keep the State's share which you save, but you get to keep a dollar that reflects the State's share for every dollar you save in the Federal Government.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I think the Senator from Missouri is right, that the Dole formula is fair. And it is also, I think, structured to create the incentive for States to reform their welfare system. Remember, if we are going to pass the Dole amendment, the States will then have the opportunity—I am confident that every State will take this opportunity because under this bill we block grant money to the States—they will have to at some point convene their legislature and with the Governor will have to develop their own welfare plan. I think it would be incumbent upon them, almost a requirement, that they do so because they would have block grant funds and would have to take some action to spend the dollars. So we would be forcing every legislature in the country to go forward and redesign their program.

What the Dole amendment does is say for the first 3 years you have to maintain 75 percent of effort. There is a lot of argument here about States racing to the bottom. You cannot race to the bottom, particularly if you are a high-dollar State, if you have to maintain 75 percent of your revenue. If we are going to make the State legislatures reform welfare, they are going to do it relatively quickly within the first year or two. So we will have the results.

To suggest that we need to stretch this to 5 years suggests that State legislatures are going to continually every year be reforming and cutting their welfare rolls. As we know, we do not do that. We do not do that here. The State legislatures do not reform welfare every year. They pass a welfare package, and, like this body, see how it works. It takes some time.

So I think a lot of this, whether we have 3 or 5 years, is really just a matter of making yourself feel comfortable in Washington. The real changes in welfare will occur in the first 1 or 2 years. I think that is the important thing to look at.

I want to talk a little bit more following up on the disparity among States. I think this is really an important and significant problem with this 90 percent basis of effort. One of the things that I had suggested—and we are not able to come to closure on this—is that it is not fair for New York and Pennsylvania. Pennsylvania spends per child, based on the State cash aid relating to this block grant, about $1,092 per child. That is ranked 17. Alaska is No. 1 with $3,182, and last is Mississippi with $107. So the disparity is just tremendous. To suggest that we are being fair hereby saying Mississippi has to maintain 90 percent of $107, and Alaska has to maintain 90 percent of $3,182, again does not reflect the reality of a block grant.

Eventually over time what this block grant is hoping to do, as the Senator from Texas, Senator HUTCHISON, suggested with her growth formula is to equalize the Federal contribution per child across this country. So a child in Alaska should not be paid more out of the Federal coffers than a child in Mississippi. I think that is sort of a non-sense thing. I think most of us, if we are going to go to this block grant, would like to see us achieve a program where the Federal payments per child would be the same. I do not see how we get there, in fact, I do not think we can get there, if we require States to maintain this high share of effort.

I am hopeful that we agree to this compromise that was in the Dole modified bill at 75 percent. It is a reasonable compromise. It puts the compromise in place for 3 years, which I think is the most crucial time when these State legislatures are enacting their programs, and it does not penalize a high-dollar State.

The compromise that I had even offered was to suggest that States like

New York and Pennsylvania would not have to maintain 75 percent of their effort but they would only have to maintain 75 percent of what the average effort is among States. So, if you took all the States' contributions already and set an average, I think according to the gain per child average of State cash aid here, I would guess would be around—just looking at the numbers, the 25th State is Wyoming at $758. That is the median. I assume the average is somewhere close to that; to suggest that Alaska would have to maintain 75 percent of $758 instead of $3,182 and any State above the average would only have to maintain 75 percent of the average, I think is a fair burden to put on States given the fact that a lot of these States are going to be growing, or are big States and are not going to get any more money.

Any State below the national average, Maine being one, which is 26th, and Louisiana, which is 50th out of the 51 jurisdictions, Louisiana is at $155. I mean, I can understand why the Senator from Louisiana wants a 90 percent maintenance of effort for Louisiana. It is $155 per child in 1994. But I am in Pennsylvania. I have $1,092. You are saying that the State government of Pennsylvania has to maintain $900-plus in Pennsylvania but $130 in Louisiana. How is that fair when we are block granting the funds? We are not over the next 5 years giving Pennsylvania one additional dollar, and I might add Louisiana gets a big chunk of the growth fund because they are a low-dollar State. This is having your cake and eating it, too.

I think that is just too penalizing of larger States that have made substantial contributions to welfare. You are going to stick them with a program that maybe passes the administration. We have a new Governor in Pennsylvania, and the Governor, I know, is very aggressively pursuing a reform of the welfare system. And what we are going to do with Pennsylvania is lock them into high contributions of 1994 forever, that they have to continue if they want to continue to receive their Federal dollars. Remember, you say, "Well, if you reduce the amount of people on welfare, you lose dollar per dollar." Pennsylvania is not going to have any increase in Federal dollars. If Louisiana goes below 75 percent, they are still going to get an increase in Federal dollars because of the growth formula.

Mr. BREAU. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. SANTORUM. I think it creates a lot of inequity in the system.

I am happy to yield.

Mr. BREAU. The decision of what the States do is their decision taking into account the cost of living in the respective States. The cost of living in Louisiana is substantially less than in your State or New York. That is a State decision. But with the Senator's own amendment—the alternative does not in fact lock in the Federal Government at 100 percent. If it is inappropriate to lock in the States, why is it appropriate to lock in the Federal Government at 100 percent no matter how much the State reduces their caseload? Under your approach, the Federal Government continues to have to give 100 percent of what they are giving in 1994. If we are going to have savings, why should not the Federal Government share in the savings, which, according to the Congressional Budget Office, saves the Federal Government $545 billion?

Mr. SANTORUM. Because we would like to see some innovation occur at the State level. We believe if you lock in the Federal contribution and give the States the opportunity to actually save dollars, that is the key. When you say, "Well, the States can go ahead and reduce their dollars," but when they reduce their dollars, they lose Federal dollars. So in a sense they are a wash because, sure, they have spent $1 less of their money but they get $1 less. So they are pretty much held harmless.

I think that is not a great incentive to save money if in fact for every dollar you save you lose a dollar.

Mr. BREAU. Why is it inappropriate? If the States can save a dollar, why should not the Federal Government save a dollar?

Mr. SANTORUM. The point that I am trying to make is that, in effect, when you consider the net amount of money spent by the State, it is not really saving any money because what they are doing is, when they reduce their dollar, they lose a Federal dollar. So they are at zero. So there is no incentive financially for them to go below the 90 percent.

That is why I am saying this is sort of a bad way of supporting high expenditures of welfare dollars. What we are trying to do is say, if you want to innovate, we want you to innovate. We are willing to put up money so we will encourage you to innovate. We will encourage you to do what Michigan has done—as the Senator from New York is fond of saying—under the current law, under the 1988 Family Support Act, to reduce your caseload, get people to work. And by coming up with these innovative solutions and getting people back into the work force, you will in fact benefit financially. Under the Breau amendment, they will not benefit financially because for every dollar where they go below 90 percent, they will lose a Federal dollar. So they are at a zero position as far as benefits. I think that is a real impediment to the kind of innovation that we want to see on the State level.

Mr. President, I reserve the remainder of my time.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, I rise today to speak in support of the amendment offered by the Senator from Louisiana.

This amendment is straight forward. It says to States, all States, if the Federal Government turns over a block of money to do as you please in welfare reform, we ask that you commit your own resources as well. That is a fair deal.

Welfare reform is a partnership. It isn't just a State problem and it isn't just a national problem. It's everybody's problem. Unfortunately not every State has viewed it that way over these past decades. Some States simply don't want to make a commitment. If this legislation passes without a requirement that the States maintain their commitment, I have no doubt some Governors and State governments will quickly cut their funding to real welfare reform at the very same time they are accepting Federal dollars.

Mr. President, what of those States that are sincere about welfare reform? What happens when the next recession hits? Will political pressures force them to fund other programs from current State welfare funding? There will be more people who will need assistance but at the same time many school budgets will be squeezed by that recession and they will be asking for some of these welfare dollars. In the next recession what if the crime rates increase? If the prison system needs more dollars where will these Governors get the money? And what about a race to the bottom? If one State cuts its spending on welfare will the neighboring State be forced to do the same? One State may decide it can attract new jobs and companies from another State by offering a business tax cut funded from State welfare dollars.

In my state of Maryland we have not received an overly generous Federal match when it comes to welfare funding. We are willing to do our part. What we do not want is to be forced into a race with another State that is more concerned about cutting benefits as a substitute for real welfare reform.

If we are serious about welfare reform then it is time we demand that the State governments as well as the Federal Government make a commitment. That commitment demands more than just different ideas, it demands both Federal and State resources and dollars.

Mr. BREAUX addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana is recognized.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, I yield to the distinguished ranking member of our Finance Committee, the Senator from New York, 8 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York is recognized.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I thank the Chair. I thank my friend from Pennsylvania for his very open and candid remarks.

I would like to approach this subject from a slightly different angle, which is to make the case that Federal initiatives have begun to show real results in moving persons from welfare to work. It took a little while for the 1988 legislation to take hold, but it did. What we put at risk at this point is giving up all that social learning, about 20 years really, that built up to the 1988 legislation and has followed on since.

The Senator from Louisiana mentioned it when in the Chamber he gave a clip from a Louisiana paper, in Baton Rouge, "Project Independence Trims Welfare Rolls Across State."

Just a few days ago, last week, we heard Senator HARKIN of Iowa describe the legislation that had been adopted for new pilot projects on welfare around Iowa, passed by Governor Branstad, now having 2 years of experience. "The number of people who work doubled, went up by almost 100 percent and the expenditures per case are also down by about 10 percent." And I point out once again that is the Family Support Act.

Now, in this morning's Washington Post, we have a very able essay by Judith Gueron, who is the head of the Manpower Development Research Corp., "A Way Out of the Welfare Bind." As I have said several times, research at MDRC was the basis of our 1988 legislation. Data we had. She makes a simple point that "Public opinion polls have identified three clear objectives for welfare reform: Putting recipients to work, protecting children from severe poverty, and controlling costs." And she makes the point that this triad involves conflicting goals at first glance. She then goes on to say that we seem to be learning how to resolve those conflicts.

I will read one statement, if I may.

A recent study looked at three such programs in Atlanta, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Riverside, Calif. It found that the programs reduced the number of people on welfare by 16 percent, decreased welfare spending by 22 percent, and increased participants' earnings by 26 percent. Other data on the Riverside program showed that, over time, it saved almost $3 for every $1 it cost to run the program. This means that ultimately it would have cost the Government more—far more—had it not run the program.

Now, Mr. President, it is not at this point any longer politically correct to say that those programs began under the Family Support Act. They are programs under the job opportunities, basic services. I regret that you cannot say this. The Department of Health and Human Services would deny it. Silence is the response to the first success we have ever had with this incredibly defying, mystifying, sudden social problem. If we give up the maintenance of effort, we will give up the resources that made these programs possible.

Senator GRASSLEY has been talking about the wonders in Iowa, Senator HARKIN about the wonders in Iowa, Senator BREAUX about fine programs such as Project Independence in Louisiana, Atlanta, Grand Rapids, Riverside—real results. They are results from a secret program called the Family Support Act, the job opportunities, basic services.

I hope we do not do it, Mr. President. I hope we support the Senator from Louisiana. This is not a moment of which anybody can be particularly proud.

Let me be clear. If we put through time limits, we strip the Federal Government of responsibility, you will cut caseloads 10, 15 percent. There is always on the margin people who really do not—if the alternative was sufficiently unpleasant, they would leave. But you will not change the basic phenomenon of nonmarital births, out-of-wedlock births such that in the city of New Orleans, 47 percent of the children are on welfare at one point or another in the year. That is small compared to the city of Washington, but it is not small compared to the concern of the Senator from Louisiana. He cares about those children. They are his children. They are our children, too. And if we abandon the Federal maintenance, the Federal level of effort, we abandon those children.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the article in the Washington Post about the secret Government program that has done such wonders in Riverside and Grand Rapids and Atlanta be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Washington Post, Sept. 12, 1995]

A WAY OUT OF THE WELFARE BIND

(By Judith M. Gueron)

Much of this year's debate over welfare reform in Washington has focused on two broad issues: which level of government—state or federal—should be responsible for designing welfare programs, and how much money the federal government should be spending.

The debate has strayed from the more critical issue of how to create a welfare system that does what the public wants it to do. Numerous public opinion polls have identified three clear objectives for welfare reform: putting recipients to work, protecting their children from severe poverty and controlling costs.

Unfortunately, these goals are often in conflict—progress toward one or two often pulls us further from the others. And when the dust settles in Washington, real-life welfare administrators and staff in states, counties and cities will still face the fundamental question of how to balance this triad of conflicting public expectations.

Because welfare is such an emotional issue, it is a magnet for easy answers and inflated promises. But the reality is not so simple. Some say we should end welfare. That might indeed force many recipients to find jobs, but it could also cause increased suffering for children, who account for two-thirds of welfare recipients. Some parents on welfare face real obstacles to employment or can find only unstable or part-time jobs.

Others say we should put welfare recipients to work in community service jobs—workfare. This is a popular approach that seems to offer a way to reduce dependency and protect children. But, when done on a large scale, especially with single parents, this would likely cost substantially more than sending out welfare checks every month. To date, we haven't been willing to make the investment.

During the past two decades, reform efforts, shaped by the triad of public goals, have gradually defined a bargain between government and welfare recipients: The government provides income support and a range of services to help recipients prepare for and find jobs. Recipients must participate in these activities or have their checks reduced.

We now know conclusively that, when it is done right, the welfare-to-work approach offers a way out of the bind. Careful evaluations have shown that tough, adequately funded welfare-to-work programs can be four-fold winners: They can get parents off welfare and into jobs, support children (and, in some cases, make them better off), save money for taxpayers and make welfare more consistent with public values.

A recent study looked at three such programs, in Atlanta, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Riverside, Calif. It found that the programs reduced the number of people on welfare by 16 percent, decreased welfare spending by 22 percent and increased participants' earnings by 26 percent. Other data on the Riverside program showed that, over time, it saved almost $3 for every $1 it cost to run the program. This means that ultimately it would have cost the government more—far more—had it not run the program.

In order to achieve results of this magnitude, it is necessary to dramatically change the tone and message of welfare. When you walk in the door of a high-performance, employment-focused program, it is clear that you are there for one purpose—to get a job. Staff continually announce job openings and convey an upbeat message about the value of work and people's potential to succeed. You—and everyone else subject to the mandate—are required to search for a job, and if you don't find one, to participate in short-term education, training or community work experience.

You cannot just mark time; if you do not make progress in the education program, for example, the staff will insist that you look for a job. Attendance is tightly monitored, and recipients who miss activities without a good reason face swift penalties.

If welfare looked like this everywhere, we probably wouldn't be debating this issue again today.

Are these programs a panacea? No. We could do better. Although the Atlanta, Grand Rapids, and Riverside programs are not the only strong ones, most welfare offices around the country do not look like the one I just described.

In the past, the "bargain"—the mutual obligation of welfare recipients and government—has received broad support, but reformers have succumbed to the temptation to promise more than they have been willing to pay for. Broader change will require a substantial up-front investment of funds and serious, sustained efforts to change local welfare offices. This may seem mundane, but changing a law is only the first step toward changing reality.

It's possible that more radical approaches—such as time limits—will do an even better job. They should be tested. But given the public expectations, we cannot afford to base national policies on hope rather than knowledge. The risk of unintended consequences is too great.

States, in any case, are concluding that time limits do not alleviate the need for effective welfare-to-work programs. In a current study of states that are testing time-limit programs, we have found that state and local administrators are seeking to expand and strengthen activities meant to help recipients prepare for and find jobs before reaching the time limit. Otherwise, too many will "hit the cliff" and either require public jobs, which will cost more than welfare, or face a dramatic loss of income with unknown effects on families and children and, ultimately, public budgets.

Welfare-to-work programs are uniquely suited to meeting the public's demand for policies that promote work, protect children and control costs. But despite the demonstrated effectiveness of this approach, the proposals currently under debate in Washington may make it more difficult for states to build an employment-focused welfare system. Everyone claims to favor "work," but this is only talk unless there's an adequate initial investment and clear incentives for states to transform welfare while continuing to support children.

Many of the current proposals promise easy answers where none exist. In the past, welfare reform has generated much heat but little light. We are now starting to see some light. We should move toward it.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Thanking the Chair and thanking my friend from Louisiana, I yield the floor.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, I yield 5 minutes to the Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for 10 seconds—

Mr. BREAUX. Absolutely.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. While I put on a button from Riverside, CA. It says, "Life Works If You Work." That is the spirit of these programs, and they are working. But we cannot talk about them, evidently.

I thank the Senator. I thank the Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. BREAUX. I yield to the Senator from West Virginia.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. I thank the Chair.

I wish we could solve all of our problems with a button; it would make it a lot better.

What interests me about this amendment, Mr. President, in a sense, it may be the most important amendment we are making to this bill and yet it has such an awkward title, maintenance of effort, that vast numbers of folks who might be listening or watching do not know what we are talking about.

The Breaux amendment has to pass if welfare reform is going to work. It absolutely has to pass. A welfare reform bill with this name should free up States to do all kinds of things with new flexibility, without micro-management from the Government. But welfare reform should not encourage States, or in fact even egg them on, to back out of their commitment to poor children. If you look around now at State legislatures, what is it they are discussing? Their woes with Medicaid and the temptation—believe me, if they are not required to participate in welfare reform, a number of them will not. They simply will not.

To me, the Breaux amendment is the answer. It very clearly says to the States, you keep your end of the bargain, and we at the Federal level are going to keep our end of the bargain, just as we have always done on both sides.

Again, speaking as a former Governor, I sincerely doubt that Governors who like the welfare reform bill before us just exactly the way it is without the Breaux amendment, for example, would ever propose that kind of a relationship in some of their dealings with local communities or counties in terms of matching grants.

In fact, that is part of what money is for, is to leverage more out of other people. You say, "Here is a certain amount. You put up some more, and together we can do this. But if you do not participate, we cannot." And it is human nature in State and local government, just as it is at any level.

The majority leader made some modifications to the Republican welfare package just before the recess. And one of them involves the claim that he added a maintenance-of-effort provision. It is not, in fact, that, it is very weak. And we can and must pass the Breaux amendment, in this Senator's judgment, and not accept the majority leader's modification.

In the first place, the majority leader's modification only lasts for 3 years. We are talking about a lot longer period than that before we come back to this subject in a major way. And it asks States to put 75 percent of a portion of their AFDC spending back in 1994 back into their future welfare reform system.

In fact, the Dole provision adds up to only asking all States to invest a grand total of $10 billion a year just for the first 3 years, with no basic matching requirement whatsoever for the last 2 years on this bill. So it is a fraud.

This leaves a gaping hole in the State's share, if compared to the current arrangement across the country. So $30 billion could and possibly will disappear from this country's safety net for families and children.

What is worse to me, almost more cynical, is the clever attempt in how a State's share is calculated under the Dole modification. The Dole bill would allow States to count, so to speak, State spending on a whole variety of programs simply mentioned in this bill but not pertinent.

For example, States would be able to get credit, essentially, for their spending on food stamps, SSI, other programs that help low-income people towards meeting their requirement. That means that money for programs not specifically directed to financing basic welfare for children could easily count towards the so-called maintenance of effort. Again, this is a flatout invitation for States to back out of keeping their basic historical responsibility to children.

And remember, two out of every three people that we are talking about in this country on welfare are children.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. I hope urgently that colleagues on this side of the aisle, and as many colleagues as possible on the other side of the aisle, will support the very important Breaux amendment.

I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. GRASSLEY addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa is recognized.

Who yields time to the Senator from Iowa?

Mr. SANTORUM. I would be happy to yield 5 minutes to the Senator from Iowa.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, because I do not want to speak on the amendment, I ask unanimous consent to use my 5 minutes to speak as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

REINVENTING AMERICORPS

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I had an opportunity to read in the New York Times this morning that the President has been making speeches around the country and particularly in response to action yesterday by one of our subcommittees of appropriations, because yesterday the National Service Corps was zeroed out by the subcommittee. And the statement that I do not like is referenced to the fact that we are just playing politics when a program like this is zeroed out. I hope I can stand before this body as a person who has criticized the National Service Corps or AmeriCorps with credibility and say that I can be watchful of how the taxpayers' dollars are spent without being accused of playing politics. Most of my colleagues would remember that during the Reagan and Bush years when we controlled the White House and even controlled this body during part of that period of time I was not afraid to find fault with my own Presidents—Republican Presidents—when this was a waste of taxpayers' dollars when it comes to expenditures for defense.

I think I have a consistent record of pointing out boondoggles, whether it be in defense or anything else. And I have raised the same concerns about AmeriCorps based upon the General Accounting Office saying that each position costs $26,650 and that that is about twice what the administration said that these would cost. And the poor AmeriCorps worker getting $13,000 out of that $26,000 for their remuneration so that much of the money is going to administrative overhead and bureaucratic waste. And I do not see, when we are trying to balance a budget, that we can justify a program that is going to have about 50 percent of its costs not going to the people that are supposed to benefit from that program. And so I have pointed out to the President the General Accounting Office statement. I wrote a letter to the President on August 29 of this year, more or less saying reinvent the program or it is going to be eliminated.

I have not heard a response from my letter to the President yet. I hope he will respond. But I have suggested that he needs to keep the costs of the program within what he said it would cost a couple years ago when it was invented, and that most of the benefits of it should go to the people that are doing the work, not to administrative overhead.

And I suggested reinventing it by doing these things. And I will just read from the letter six headlines of longer paragraphs that I have explaining exactly what I mean.

No. 1, limit the enormous overhead in the AmeriCorps program.

No. 2, ensure that the private sector contributes at least 50 percent to the cost of AmeriCorps. This was an important point that the President was making when the program started, that at least $1 or 50 percent of the total cost would come from the private sector; $1 of taxpayers' money leverages a dollar of private sector investment. I doubt if we would find fault with the program if it were to do that. Then I also suggested limiting rising program costs by not awarding AmeriCorps grants to Federal agencies. They say that they get match on this—if EPA has a program with an AmeriCorps worker, that whatever the EPA puts in is part of the match. Well, that is the taxpayers' match; that is not a private sector match.

I said funds must be targeted to assist young people in paying for college because some of the money is going to volunteers who will either drop out or not use the money to go to college.

Then I said to increase the bang for education bucks by making sure that the money is used for those who are going to go to higher education.

Finally, I suggested that if the President wants to reinvent the program, to tell us where in the VA budget, VA-HUD appropriations bill the money ought to come from because there is a lot of other money used. As Senator BOND said yesterday, the money was taken from AmeriCorps and put in the community development block grant program.

I am suggesting to the President that he needs to take into consideration—could I have 1 more minute, please?

Mr. SANTORUM. One additional minute.

Mr. GRASSLEY. I suggested to the President that he, according to this chart, consider the fact that he has 20,000 volunteers of AmeriCorps; and we have got 3.9 million Americans who volunteer. These are young people, volunteers who do not worry about getting paid anything for volunteerism.

A second thing that the President should consider is that for one AmeriCorps worker we can finance 18 low-income people to go to college with a PELL grant. Those are some alternatives that the President ought to think about as he has a news conference today to expose what he says is playing politics with his program.

When I make a suggestion to the President that he reinvent the program according to his own definition of how that program should be financed and operated, I mean reinvent it. Just do what the President of the United States said the program was going to cost and who it was going to benefit or it will be lost. I speak as a person who wants no playing of politics, but as a person who wants to make sure that the taxpayers' dollars are used well, whether it is in AmeriCorps or whether it is in a defense program.

Mr. NICKLES addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ASHCROFT). Who yields time to the Senator from Oklahoma?

Mr. SANTORUM. I yield 7 minutes to the Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, first I would like to compliment my colleague and friend from Iowa for his work on AmeriCorps. I hope that the American people realize, according to the General Accounting Office, that the cost per beneficiary is $27,000. The Senator from Iowa has been very diligent in trying to awaken America to this enormously expensive program. It is a new program. I understand it is one of President Clinton's favorite programs, but it is enormously expensive—enormously expensive.

So I compliment my colleague from Iowa for bringing it to the attention of this country, and, hopefully, we can stop wasting taxpayers' money and maybe do a better job either through the student loan program or PELL grants and help lots of people go to school and obtain a college education instead of a few select receiving benefits in the $20,000-to-$30,000 category.

FAMILY SELF-SUFFICIENCY ACT

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I rise in opposition to the amendment of my friend and colleague from Louisiana, Senator BREAU. I think if we adopt the so-called Breau amendment, we are preserving welfare as we know it. President Clinton said we want to end welfare as we know it, and I happen to agree with that line. But if we maintain or if we adopt this maintenance of effort, as Senator BREAU has proposed—he has two amendments, one at 100 percent and one at 90 percent—if we adopt either of those amendments, we are basically telling the States: "We don't care if you make significant welfare reductions, you have to keep spending the money anyway."

So, there is no incentive to have any reduction of welfare rolls; certainly, if you had the 100-percent maintenance of efforts. "States, no matter what you do, if you have significant reductions, you spend the money anyway." That is kind of like "in your face, big Government, we know best; Washington, DC is going to micromanage these programs anyway. Oh, yeah, we'll give money to a block grant, but if you have real success, you have to spend the money."

I think that is so counter to what we are trying to do that I just hope that our colleagues will not concur with this amendment. This is a very important amendment.

I just look at the State of Wisconsin. Currently, they are saving $16 million a month in State and Federal spending.

Between January 1987 and December 1994, they experienced a 25-percent reduction in their AFDC caseload. My compliments to them. I wish more States would do more innovative things to reduce their welfare caseload.

This amendment of my colleague, Senator BREAUX, says, "States, even if you do that, if you have phenomenal success, you still have to spend the money. You have to spend as much money as you did," and the year that they picked, using the year of 1994, it was an all-time high for AFDC caseload.

Between May 1994 and May 1995, nationally there was a reduction of 520,000 recipients on AFDC. So, he happens to pick the highest caseload year as the base and then says, "States, you have to maintain a level at either 90 percent or 100 percent of that level. You have to spend the money. You can't enjoy the benefits and allow your constituents to maybe have more money for education, roads or highways, even if you reduce your welfare caseload." In other words, let us make sure we keep rolling out the State money.

I think that is a serious mistake. We will be voting on this, I believe, shortly after the policy luncheons. I urge my colleagues to vote no on the Breaux amendment.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the time be equally charged to both sides.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BREAUX. I ask the Chair how much time is remaining for both sides.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana has 15 minutes; the Senator from Pennsylvania has 9 minutes.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, I yield myself 3 minutes.

Mr. President, I take this time just to try and conclude what we are trying to do with my amendment.

We, in a bipartisan spirit, in joining with our Republican colleagues, offered an amendment that simply says States should be partners in welfare reform with the Federal Government; that the States should be required to help participate and help fund welfare reform; that it is not right, as the other body has done in their bill, to say the States have to put up nothing; that it becomes a 100-percent Federal burden and the Federal Government has to pay for the entire cost of welfare. That is what the bill that passed the other body says. It says there is no maintenance of effort on behalf of the States at all, and that is wrong.

I think that we, in this body, clearly feel that the States should have to participate financially in helping to solve these problems. It is like we said before, if you spend somebody else's money, you can be very careless in how you spend it. Therefore, if the States are required to participate and put up some of their money, I think we will all do a better job in crafting programs that, in fact, are truly welfare reform.

Our legislation says that the States should participate by putting up 90 percent of the money that they put up in 1994. The Federal Government will continue to put up 100 percent. If the States are able to reduce their caseload by welfare reform, we are very pleased with that. That is the goal. The Federal Government should participate in those savings as well as the States participate in those savings.

The Republican bill, on the other hand, says we are going to continue 100 percent Federal funding for 5 years, no matter how much the State government is going to be able to reduce the people on welfare, and that is wrong. If there are savings to be made by fewer people on welfare, then the Federal Government should benefit from those savings, as should the State benefit from those savings.

That is what the bill says. That is why my amendment is scored by the Congressional Budget Office to save $545 million in this program over the next 7 years. That is real savings. If you vote against the BREAUX amendment, you are saying, "I'm not interested in saving $545 million to the Federal Treasury. I do not care. It is not important."

Well, I think it is important. That is why we have tried to craft an amendment that is balanced, that, in effect, saves Federal dollars as well as it saves State dollars.

It is simply not correct to say under my amendment the States would not be able to spend less on welfare. Of course they can. We want them to spend less, but when they spend less, we want to be able to spend less as well. That is a true partnership that has been in existence for 60 years.

It is incredibly wrong, in my opinion, to say for the first time we are going to put all the burden on the Federal Government to pay for the cost of welfare reform. It has to be a partnership if it is going to work.

My amendment maintains that partnership and, at the same time, provides for real economic savings, savings to the Federal taxpayer to the tune of $545 million over 7 years. There is no doubt about that. It has been scored by CBO. We think it makes sense.

With that, I yield back the remainder of the time on the 3 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time? The Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, the Senator from Louisiana keeps bringing up the point about the Federal Government contributing 100 percent, not having the benefit of any savings. I just suggest to you that if what we want to accomplish here is savings in the welfare system, the 90-percent maintenance effort will do more to reduce those savings than anything we have seen produced.

The fact of the matter is, yes, his amendment may be scored as a reduction in Federal outlays. But I suggest, Mr. President, if you went back to the Congressional Budget Office and said, "What would be the increase in State spending as a result of this amendment," you would see that it would be more than offset in the reductions in Federal spending.

What does that mean? That means from the average taxpayer who does not care whether the money is being spent on the Federal level or State level, they are going to pay more for welfare.

That is the bottom line here. It is not how much the Federal Government saves, or how much the State government saves, or how much we spend and they spend, but how much the taxpayers spend on the program.

I think what your amendment will do is net result in higher welfare expenditures. Sure, they will have to pay more State taxes or more money to the State than the Federal if we equal them out dollar for dollar in taxes.

The fact of the matter is your amendment will cause States to spend even more money than what we save on the Federal side. I think that is clear. I think that is your concern.

Do not try to approach this amendment that we are somehow being nice to taxpayers. Taxpayers pay State taxes and Federal taxes. When you tell them they have to pay more on the States, more than we save on Federal, this is not a friendly taxpayers amendment. This will cost more money to the average taxpayers in America, not less.

Just because we save a few dollars, they will be more than made up by required increased expenditures on programs that are being dramatically reduced.

I have a table that shows from just 1993 to 1994, and I say to the Senator from Louisiana that we have even seen more reductions in welfare caseload from 1994 to this year because of other programs being put into effect.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD this table showing the change in the average number of AFDC recipients from 1993 to 1994.

There being no objection, the table was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, what it will show is that we have seen State after State—Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan—many States who have already reduced their caseload or are in the process through welfare of reducing it more, and the amendment of the Senator from Louisiana will make them spend as much money, although they have less on the caseload.

That just is not right. That penalizes States for doing exactly what they want them to do. I think it is a well-intentioned amendment. I understand the concern for the race to the bottom.

But the Dole, as modified, bill provides adequate safeguards to make sure that States are not going to eliminate their welfare expenditures. I think it does so in the context of encouraging welfare reform on the State level.

I reserve the remainder of my time. I suggest the absence of a quorum. I ask unanimous consent that the time be divided equally.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BREAUX. I yield myself 3 minutes.

We have had a lot of discussion as to the amendment that I propose which requires the State to participate and how it affects the States.

I mentioned a number of Governors who have spent a great deal of time on this effort, including the former chairman of the National Governors' Association, Governor Howard Dean of Vermont. I quote him:

I support the concept of State maintenance of effort as envisioned by Senator BREAUX and other Senators. States should provide adequate levels of support for welfare programs to prevent a "race to the bottom."

The Governor of Colorado, Gov. Roy Romer:

The Federal-State partnership is an essential component in a strategy designed to provide families with temporary assistance to help them achieve or regain their economic self-sufficiency. We are particularly concerned that if States reduce their commitment to these programs, then responsible States will become magnets for displaced welfare clients.

These Governors are recognizing that, yes, States ought to have to be required to participate in solving welfare problems, that we should not engage in a race to the bottom as could happen if we have no requirement that the States actively participate.

Equally as important, Mr. President, is the comment by the chairman of the U.S. Catholic Conference, the domestic policy chair, the Most Reverend John Ricard, auxiliary bishop of Baltimore who said:

We urge you to pass genuine reform which strengthens families, encourages work, promotes responsibility, and protects vulnerable children, born and unborn, insisting that States maintain their current financial commitment in this area.

Catholic Charities President, Fred Kammer, said:

In exchange for Federal dollars and broad flexibility, States should be expected to maintain at least their current level of support for poor children and their families.

Mr. President, I think it is very clear the distinguished Governors and other distinguished social experts in their field have recognized the importance of requiring States to continue to participate.

That is, in fact, what the Breaux amendment does. We do it and at the same time save the Federal Government $545 million over the next 7 years as estimated by the Congressional Budget Office. That partnership is absolutely essential. To say the States would not have a requirement to be able to be participants in this process I think is the wrong message.

I say under our amendment, States clearly would reduce the amount of money they spend, and after it is reduced by more than 10 percent, the Federal Government will be able to reduce our contribution so that there should be joint savings by people who pay Federal taxes, as well as by people who pay State taxes.

It is wrong to maintain 100 percent Federal requirement as the Republican position does even if there are reductions in the amount of people on welfare and any particular State.

Both sides should say the States have the flexibility to cut up to 10 percent under my amendment and still get 100 percent Federal funding. If they cut further than that, if they decide to spend more money on roads and bridges, well, then, the Federal Government ought to have the right to spend less, as well. If they do so because they reduce the number of people on welfare, we should benefit from those savings, as well.

That is what a true partnership is all about. That is what the Breaux amendment tries to accomplish. And I think it is important to know there is a bipartisan effort here. This is not a party difference, it is a question of how we achieve a mutual goal of true welfare reform.

I reserve the remainder of my time.

Mr. COHEN. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, I yield to the Senator from Maine. Does he wish to speak in support? What time does he require?

Mr. COHEN. Not more than 5 minutes.

Mr. BREAUX. I am happy to yield 5 minutes to the Senator.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. President, I rise today in support of the Breaux maintenance of effort provision. While I want to let States step up to the plate and implement innovative welfare to work programs with the assistance of Federal Government—not interference—I believe a Federal-State partnership is a key part of successful welfare reform. Therefore, Congress must make a strong statement on the need for State investment in welfare.

We need to encourage States to provide their own funds as a condition of receiving the Federal block grant. Under current law, States have an incentive to spend their own money on AFDC and related programs. That incentive is the Federal match. Fourteen States receive one Federal dollar for each State dollar they invest. The rest of the States receive more than a dollar-for-dollar match.

Under Senator DOLE's maintenance provision, States can satisfy the requirement by spending money on any program which is modified or altered in any way by the Dole bill. This would mean State spending on food stamps, State foster care, Head Start, or even SSI State supplemental benefits would satisfy the requirement in the Dole amendment.

I support the Breaux amendment to require a State match, using a formula of a dollar for dollar to determine the Federal match for each welfare dollar a State spends. If a State reduces its spending below 90 percent of its 1994 spending on AFDC and related child care programs, administrative costs, and job training and education funds—for each dollar the State spends below that threshold, the Federal grant to the State will be reduced by $1.

This amendment is extremely important. It maintains an incentive for a

State to spend its own resources to aid its own people. Understand, however, that the State match does not require a State to spend money. If a State is successful in trimming its caseload or cutting administrative costs, there is no requirement that it maintain its spending. But if a State is going to realize savings in the welfare program, I think the Federal Government should share in the savings, too.

Mr. President, I have listened to the debate with considerable care, and I must say I find myself in agreement with at least the very last point made by the Senator from Louisiana about the need to try to approach welfare reform on a bipartisan basis, because I do not think either Republicans or Democrats necessarily have the right solution. I have read a great deal by sociologists. I have listened to the commentators on television, those who are advocating change. There is a general consensus that we have to change the system, but there is no agreement on what those changes should be, and few are confidently predicting what the ultimate consequences of any reform are likely to be.

It seems to me that welfare recipients generally can be divided into three groups. On the one hand we have people who lose their jobs after working years and years and are temporarily in need of assistance and should have that assistance. There are those at the other end of the spectrum that I think we all recognize that, by virtue of some disability or some other handicap as such, they are unable to work and they deserve our support and not our scorn. Then there are those in the middle category, people whom we feel generally should be expected to work, who have been caught up in a cycle of welfare over decades, if not generations, even though they would seem able to work. We have to reform the system in order to encourage, if not require, these people to break the cycle by entering the workforce long-term.

So I have looked at the various proposals, and I come to the conclusion, after listening to my colleague from Louisiana, that there should be a maintenance of effort undertaken by the States. A couple of reasons lead me to that conclusion. On the one hand, I believe, as my colleague from Maine, Senator SNOWE, and also my colleague from Vermont indicated, there is a partnership between States and the Federal Government. The State is under no requirement to spend $1. The State does not have to spend anything if they do not want to. They can decide they do not want to take care of welfare recipients; that those who are out of work, either voluntarily or involuntarily, that is not their problem. But States that take this view should not expect to continue to receive the same amount of Federal welfare dollars.

Without a maintenance provision, some States may engage in a race to the bottom by setting their benefits low to discourage residents in States providing minimum benefits from moving to States with more generous benefits. This concern has been dismissed by opponents of this amendment but remember: For years, many conservatives have argued that welfare recipients moved from State to State to get generous benefits. In a recent survey done in Wisconsin, 20 percent of newly arrived Wisconsin welfare recipients admitted that they had moved to get a bigger check.

We must also address the vulnerability of the new block grant program to cost-shifting. Increasingly, we have seen States which excel in shifting recipients in the general assistance and AFDC programs into the SSI Program, a program funded entirely by Federal dollars. By shifting their cases to the SSI Program, the States can be big winners: States are able to recoup interim general assistance payments that they provide to the beneficiary, from the date of application for SSI to determination of SSI eligibility. Even more important, States will avoid future costs by shifting populations to a program entirely funded by the Federal Government. One State contracted with a for-profit corporation at a cost of $2.7 million to shift cases from the State's disability rolls to the SSI Program. The State enjoyed net savings of $27 million in 1992 because of this concentrated effort to move people to the SSI Program.

I predict that we will see additional cost-shifting onto the Food Stamp Program. Without a strong maintenance of effort provision, States who retain food stamps as a Federal program can do what other States are already doing—pay lower AFDC benefits. When that happens the Federal Treasury will bear the burden as the food stamp benefit increases because the cash benefit is low.

We must steer away from doing anything to encourage States to make unreasonable cuts in their welfare spending. We do not want Federal programs to become a magnet for new recipients who hope that the Federal Government will absorb reductions by the State. This increases budget costs for the Federal Government. Just as important, the results we hope to attain through reform of welfare have only a small chance of being realized because we have excused the States from shared fiscal responsibility.

For these and other reasons, Mr. President, I wanted to indicate I intend to support the Breaux amendment, and I yield the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, in the couple of minutes left before concluding our side of this debate, I just suggest this really boils down to whether you really want to see dramatic reform or not and whether you want to see dramatic savings in the welfare system. Because, if you require States to keep 90 percent of maintenance of effort, what you will do is create a disincentive in an approach that was supposed to be the maximum incentive to welfare reform; to get welfare savings for the taxpayer—to do both.

I think it is pretty clear this is sort of a moderating attempt to try to make welfare reform not as dramatic as it could be. I think that is unfortunate. I think what the public has demanded on the issue of welfare is that you cannot go too far in trying new things to get people off welfare, to get people on to work, to reduce the amount of expenditure that we have.

I remind all Senators that, even under the Republican plan as it exists today, welfare spending will go up 70 percent—70 percent—over the next 7 years. It was scheduled to go up 77 percent. We have it go up only 70 percent. That is hardly dramatic, but it is something. It is a start in the right direction, at least, because we believe even though the Federal expenditures on welfare will go up 70 percent, we believe State expenditures will come down and come down dramatically. We are willing to make that tradeoff because we believe ultimately the taxpayer is going to benefit more from this proposal because of lower State expenditures even though the Federal Government is going to maintain a relatively high level of expenditures.

I am hopeful we can look to the goals of this, the Dole substitute, which is dramatic, ingenious, inventive reform, to get people back to work, all at a savings of taxpayers' dollars on the Federal level and even more dramatically on the State level.

If this amendment is adopted, we will see less reform, less innovation, and more money spent overall on welfare. And that is not what the goal of this welfare reform debate should be.

I yield the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana has 2 minutes 50 seconds left.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, do I understand we have an agreement that there will be 4 minutes after we return?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, has the Republican side yielded back their time?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. BREAUX. What do I have left? Do I have any?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. A minute and a half.

Mr. BREAUX. I would say, Mr. President, when we return after the party caucuses, we will be, of course, voting on this amendment. I think, from our perspective, this has been a real effort at trying to reach a bipartisan agreement. We have Republican cosponsors and we have Democratic cosponsors of this effort. It is an effort to try to achieve a partnership between the States and the Federal Government.

The States should be required to participate. The Federal Government is required to participate. When savings are achieved, which they will be, both sides should benefit from those savings. When States spend less money because they have fewer people on the welfare rolls, the Federal Government should have to contribute less money, not the same amount. That is why our amendment clearly is scored by the Congressional Budget Office as saving $545 million over the next 7 years. Those are important savings. Without my amendment, they will not be achieved.

I think this amendment continues the participation that we have had, allows the States to be inventive as to different types of programs they come up with, but requires them to participate. The Federal Government should not have to pay 100 percent of the cost of welfare. The States should participate, and jointly, together, we can produce a better result.

With that, Mr. President, I yield the remainder of our time.

RECESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the hour of 12:30 p.m. having arrived, the Senate will stand in recess until the hour of 2:15 p.m.

Thereupon, at 12:30 p.m., the Senate recessed until 2:15 p.m.; whereupon, the Senate reassembled when called to order by the Presiding Officer (Mr. COATS).

FAMILY SELF-SUFFICIENCY ACT

The Senate continued with the consideration of the bill.

AMENDMENT NO. 2488

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There will now be 4 minutes of debate equally divided on the Breaux amendment No. 2488.

Who yields time?

Mr. SANTORUM addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I think we had a good debate on the maintenance of effort provision. I think it boils down to simply this. If you want a welfare reform bill to come out of the Senate that is going to be an impetus for change, it is going to say to the States to go out there and be innovative and be able to reduce the welfare caseload, reduce the amount of State expenditures, and have the flexibility you need to do those without artificially holding States to the high level of maintenance of effort. I think the Dole 75 percent provision that is in there right now does that. It prohibits a race to the bottom. It gives States flexibility. It says be innovative. It saves money. And I think that is really what we want to accomplish. It is a prevention of the worst-case scenario which is no welfare spending from the States, and at the same time provides that amount of flexibility that is needed to go forward and do some dramatic changes in the welfare system. I think we have struck a very responsible compromise.

I think this amendment goes too far. This basically says we are going to continue to spend money. The Senator from Louisiana often says we are going to save money at the Federal level. Why should not the Federal Government save money? We may be saving money on the Federal level but we are spending a lot more taxpayers' money at the State level. The taxpayer overall under this amendment will lose even though the Federal Government is going to save a little money. It will spend a lot more in State resources. Again, it is an unfriendly taxpayer amendment and at the same time stifles innovation.

I urge the rejection of the amendment.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, I will conclude my remarks by pointing out that for 6 years we have had a partnership between the Federal Government and the States. The House, when they took up welfare reform, said for the first time the States will have no obligation to do anything. They can spend zero dollars if they want. But the Federal Government has to continue to foot 100 percent of the bill. That is wrong.

My amendment says we are going to require the States to spend 90 percent of what they were spending and the Federal Government will spend 100 percent of what it was spending. But if the States are able to reduce what they spend below 90 percent, we will also reduce the Federal contribution. If they save a dollar, we will save a dollar. That is a true partnership. They can be as inventive as they want. We hope they are. We hope they save money. But when they save money and spend more than 10 percent less than they were spending last year, the Federal Government will also reduce our contribution.

The Congressional Budget Office looked at our amendment and the Congressional Budget Office said that it would save $545 billion over the next 7 years. Without my amendment being adopted, we will not see those savings implemented into law. Mr. President, $545 billion over 7 years is a significant amount of money. It maintains the partnership between the Federal Government and the States. Why should we in Washington send the money to the States if they are not going to participate? If we let the States get off the hook and we continue to send the money, that is not a true partnership and that will be contrary to the reforms that we are trying to reach. Anybody who has ever been to a conference around here knows the House has a zero requirement. If we go in with a 75 percent requirement, in all likelihood we are going to split the difference.

So if all of our Republican colleagues think 75 percent is a reasonable amount to come out of a conference, I would suggest it is absolutely essential that they vote for the Breaux amendment as it currently is drafted.

I yield the time.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I move to table the Breaux amendment, and I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Pennsylvania to lay on the table the amendment of the Senator from Louisiana. On this question, the yeas and nays have been ordered, and the clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

AMENDMENT NO. 2562

The VICE PRESIDENT. Under the previous order, the Senate will now consider amendment No. 2562, offered by the Senator from Missouri [Mr.

ASHCROFT]. There will be 1 hour for debate equally divided.

The Senator from Missouri is recognized.

(Mr. COATS assumed the chair.)

Mr. ASHCROFT. Thank you, Mr. President. I yield myself 10 minutes, and I ask to be notified when the 10 minutes has expired.

Mr. President, we are debating this week a very important topic, and it is not the future of a series of governmental programs, not the role of the Federal Government in providing for a social safety net. We are not debating how much money we will save. What we are debating this week is nothing less than the lives of millions of American citizens.

The welfare program, as it is currently constituted, has entrapped millions of Americans and has robbed literally generations of their future. What we are debating is whether we will continue to subsidize the current system, which may feed the body, but it numbs the spirit. It is a system which traps people in a web of dependency, places them in a cycle of hopelessness and despair. It is a system which promises a way out, but punishes those who try to find the way out.

Today's welfare system is heartless and cruel; it is unfeeling, it is uncaring. Whatever we do, we must remember those facts, and we must remember the faces that are the portraits of suffering that have been drawn on the canvas of American history by our welfare system as it is now constituted.

Welfare's failure is evident in many programs. Nowhere is it more evident, though, than in the Food Stamp Program. Food stamps, part of the Great Society's war on poverty. Today, food stamps is the country's largest provider of food aid. It is also, arguably, the Nation's most extensive welfare program. Last year, the program tried to help more than one out of every 10 Americans at a cost of nearly $25 billion.

As the chart behind me illustrates, spending on food stamps has increased exponentially since becoming a national program in the early seventies, a quite dramatic and rapid increase. It has not been a function of population growth alone. This expansion is the result of fraud and abuse, compounded by oversight, as well as a variety of other factors.

This stack of papers in front of me on the desk to my left is a stack of the 900 pages of food stamp regulations that States are forced to comply with in trying to help individuals find their way to independence and out of the despair of the welfare trap.

It is important to note that we have tried to reform welfare on previous occasions and tried to reform food stamps, as well, in the process.

The last real attempt at reform was in 1988, and you do not have to have particularly strong analytic skills to see what has happened since 1988 in the food stamp program: The program has skyrocketed.

A 1995 General Accounting Office report, a 1995 GAO report, found through fraud and illegal trafficking in food stamps, the taxpayers lost as much as $2 billion a year. Mr. President, $2 billion a year is a lot of money. That would average out to $40 million per State. That is close to $800,000 a week, per State, all across this country.

Furthermore, despite GAO's conclusions that the resources allocated for monitoring retailers was grossly inadequate, in other words we have not had the kind of enforcement that GAO says might be appropriate, the Food and Consumer Service officials still uncovered 902 retailers involved in food stamp fraud last year alone. That is where food stamps, which are designed to help people with nutritional needs, are used to acquire any number of other things that are not part of the design for food stamps.

In February 1994, the Reader's Digest chronicled fraud and abuse in an article entitled the "Food Stamp Racket." One example was Kenneth Coats, no relation to the occupant of the chair I am sure, but owner of Coats Market in East St. Louis. It seems Mr. Coats paid as little as 65 cents on the dollar for food stamps and then cashed them in at full value.

During a period of 18 months he re-deemed $1.3 million, enabling him to pay for his children's private schooling, with enough left over for $150,000 in stocks, five rental houses and a Mercedes.

If that were not bad enough, Reader's Digest reported that this was not Mr. Coats' first attempt at defrauding the American taxpayers. Ten years earlier his market was disqualified from participating in the Food Stamp Program because of fraud, though he was only disqualified for 6 months. Obviously, he was back in business. And at 65 cents, paying welfare recipients and cashing them in with the Government at obviously the face value, he made quite a bit of money.

Now, there are stories of food stamp fraud and abuse to be found in every State in the Nation. There is a lot to like about the Food Stamp Program but there are many ways in which this so-called ideal transitional benefit has been a problem. They are a stopgap measure. They serve the people. They serve children. They serve the elderly.

But there is a lot to dislike about the program which we have already discussed. It is because we want to change this system to help people and to empower States that I am today introducing this amendment.

Mr. President, we can do better. My amendment would fundamentally change food stamps. Instead of having a system run and administered by bureaucrats in Washington, my amendment would return responsibility for the Food Stamp Program to the States. It would do it with an important qualifier: It would do it still allowing funding for growth at the CBO projected levels for the next 5 years.

Unlike the present system, however, this block grant would give the States an incentive to improve the program's performance and efficiency. It would accomplish this by allowing any and all savings achieved by the States to be applied to help more people who are really in need.

This approach, if adopted, would have enormous advantages. One, it would allow States to spend available resources on the people who need food, rather than on feeding the bureaucracy. It would make it possible to reduce some of the costs. The highest administrative costs in welfare, 12 percent, are in the Food Stamp Program.

Second, it would allow the States to coordinate their efforts in assisting the needy. So much of the problem we have now is when we shift welfare burdens from one quadrant of the welfare equation to another.

The leadership's bill would maintain many of the complicated regulations which have frustrated State efforts to help individuals in need. I think we need to give States the flexibility to administer need in accordance with the needs of the needy and the State rather than in accordance with the 900 pages of Federal regulations.

Third, a clean block grant to the States will work to end the fraud and abuse which have cost the taxpayers billions. I think this is so because when the State has a block grant and it reduces fraud and abuse, it gets to keep the money which has been involved in the fraud or abuse.

There will be a real incentive for the States to drive down the costs associated with fraud and abuse. It is true that the leadership bill in this measure has some incentives but they are not incentives which would thoroughly match the incentives of a block grant, the structural incentives of providing for savings and allowing the States to recoup the savings in their entirety.

Finally, States can provide individualized assistance. They know their welfare recipients' needs. They can coordinate thoroughly on their own terms their welfare programs.

We have real welfare reform. It is time for us to understand that reforming this, the largest of the welfare programs which touches more people than any others, should be a part of that reform.

We have heard a lot about devolution, that term that means we need to reduce the size and scope of the power of Washington. Well, we need to change the way in which Washington has affected the welfare system by stopping the arrogant assumption that Washington knows best, particularly in such a significant program. Every American has had an experience at some time or another with the abuses that are involved in food stamps. Federalism has one of its hallmarks of trusting Government close to the people. It is time for us to do that with the Food Stamp Program.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri has spoken for 10 minutes. I believe he wanted to be notified.

Mr. ASHCROFT. I thank the Chair. I yield myself such additional time I may need to conclude my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. ASHCROFT. A vote for this amendment is a clear and principled stand for the limits of the Federal power and the need for State control.

A vote against this amendment is also clear. It is a clear statement against the rights of people to control their own destinies, their own lives, in a way that is free from the intermeddling of nearly 1,000 pages of regulation, micromanaging what happens in States, interfering with their ability to meet the needs of their citizens.

We are in the midst of a long and substantial debate. It is a necessary debate on welfare. Passions are high. Rhetoric is high. Progress is slow. It is time for us to make real progress on a major welfare program.

Every so-called welfare reform for the past two generations has had a couple of things in common. They have resulted in more people being trapped in the web of dependency; and second, they have resulted in more bureaucracy. We need not rearrange the deck chairs on the welfare bureaucracy again. We need to make substantial changes. We cannot afford half measures. The poor cannot afford half measures.

We are about to fundamentally change AFDC. We are about to fundamentally change a number of other smaller welfare programs. It seems we are just happy to tinker around the margins with food stamps.

I believe food stamps are welfare. They are the largest—they serve more clients than any other welfare program. They provide an incentive to illegitimacy, just as AFDC does, by providing more payments with more children that are brought into this world while on welfare. They are a part and parcel of the welfare system which seeks to help but actually hurts.

I do not know how it is that block grants can make sense for everything else from AFDC to job training but not for food stamps.

Yet, given all this, the leadership bill makes involvement in the food stamp block grant optional while simultaneously creating a disincentive for individual States to choose to operate under the block grant.

By removing Federal entanglement, it is my hope we can begin to eliminate the fraud, cut down on waste, the high administrative costs, and make it possible for States to take action which helps move people from welfare to work.

If we succeed where others have failed, we must be bold and consistent.

I do not think we need to wait 7 years to determine whether a food stamp block grant is desirable. Washington's one-size-fits-all system has not worked. Continuing a system that entraps people in dependency will do nothing more than to sow the seeds of future disaster.

I reserve the remainder of my time.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, will the Senator from Indiana yield?

Mr. LUGAR. I am happy to yield to the distinguished Senator as much time as he requires.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished manager and chairman.

I have listened to the speech of my distinguished colleague from Missouri, and if this indeed was simply a question of whether the States could make the decisions or not, it would be one thing, but it is not. In fact, it is quite the opposite. Under the bill of the distinguished Republican leader, the States have the right to make a decision—a decision to choose to take a block grant instead of food stamps, or to participate in the Food Stamp Program. The amendment, No. 2562, by the distinguished Senator from Missouri, removes that right.

I think, also, it removes an option available to many of the elderly and disabled. If somebody has received 24 months of assistance in their lifetime, then food stamps can no longer be made available unless they are working. We see where, if somebody has had assistance years before, worked many, many, many years before becoming disabled, they are told "You got your bite of the apple a long time ago." They lose their food assistance under this amendment. States no longer have the option, under this amendment, of choosing a block grant instead of food stamps, and participating in the Food Stamp Program.

The bill does impose on States, whether they want it or not, an unfair formula for providing funds. If you look at the formula, it penalizes growth States but also penalizes States that face recessions. During the last recession, when millions of people lost their jobs, they turned to food stamps to help feed their children. Under this amendment, when there is a recession, then benefits would be cut. Just when a temporarily out of luck family would need assistance, the amendment says, "Too bad, have a hungry day." For example, if you are an industrial State and large manufacturing plants suddenly close, that is when this could cut in. It seems, when fewer people need food stamps, the benefits increase again.

Let me give an example. In California a couple of years ago, there was a massive earthquake. Mr. President, 40 percent of all the food stamps issued in California were issued in L.A. County for that month. Basically, what we would say under this is we are going to allow the people who lost everything they had in L.A. County because of the earthquake to eat. But all the rest of the State is going to go hungry.

One of the things the Food Stamp Program is supposed to do is to help even out those kinds of peaks and valleys because the earthquake that occurs in California may be the hurricane that occurs in Florida or the recession that occurs in Illinois or the flood that occurs along the Mississippi or Missouri River.

So I think we should not eliminate the choice of whether States should decide to take the block grant. Congress should not impose that on them. There are a lot of decisions that Governors and legislators have to make, so I urge my colleagues to vote against the amendment. It removes the State's right to decide, hurts the elderly and disabled, and hurts some States at the expense of the others.

I like the original Agriculture Committee bill written by Senator LUGAR. It gives the States plenty of flexibility. It does not abandon the Federal-State partnership.

We have worked for years, constantly, to improve aspects of the food stamp program. The bill I talked about before that I introduced, on electronics benefits transfer, will do that. We have tightened and limited eligibility. But in the only major power on Earth that can not only raise enough food to feed 250 million people but have food left over for export and for storage, I question whether we should tamper with the most basic program for feeding hungry people—the elderly, disabled, those temporarily out of a job.

There are those who rip off the system and we can nail them. We have laws to do that. But let us not say you are going to be removed. And let us not say this is something that encourages more babies. What are you going to say, that if we do not feed a hungry baby, if we cut off the food, that baby will suddenly go away? Are we saying do not have the baby, abort the child, or do something else? The fact of the matter is, a hungry child is a hungry child. That child does not make that decision to be hungry. That child does not make that decision to be born. Let us not think that child will go away if we simply cut the food stamps or any other benefits for them.

Mr. President, I thank the distinguished senior Senator from Indiana for his courtesy and I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. DEWINE). The Senator from Indiana is recognized.

PRIVILEGE OF THE FLOOR

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that an employee of the Congressional Research Service, Joe Richardson, be granted privilege of the floor during consideration of welfare reform legislation.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished Senator from Vermont for his thoughtful debating comments. He has offered leadership in the nutrition area throughout the entirety of the 19 years that I have served in this body.

Throughout that period of time, I have been deeply concerned about the Food Stamp Program for several reasons, and the distinguished Senator from Missouri has expanded on many of them. The Food Stamp Program, because it is a national program and an extraordinarily complex one dealing with myriad retail situations, has led to great fraud and abuse. That has been a concern of the Committee on Agriculture really throughout the entirety of the program. It has to be our concern today.

But I have also been deeply concerned about the Food Stamp Program because it is the basic safety net for nutrition for Americans. It is the stopper, in terms of people starving, in this country. We have known that. We have regretted its abuse on occasion, but we have cherished the thought that every American, in a country of abundance, would have a chance to eat. That is fundamental and that we must preserve.

The distinguished Senator from Missouri, the great Governor of his State, has been a fighter for the reinvigoration of federalism, and I share that idealism. As mayor of the city of Indianapolis, I was involved in the first wave of the new federalism with President Nixon. Program after program came to our city. We tried to demonstrate, I think with some success, that mayors and local officials, in addition to Governors and county officials, can handle most of the aspects of the internal workings of government in this United States best at the local level. Clearly, in the welfare reform debate we are now having, we are about to test out the proposition that we should give back to States and local governments authority to handle a great deal of difficult matters.

But in the case of the food stamp and nutrition programs, the House of Representatives and the Senate to date have said that there must be a safety net, basically, for eating, for nutrition—a safety net against starvation in this country. This is not an experimental situation in which, as the Senator from Missouri advocates, like it or not we send it back to the States and say to the Governors: "You are going to have to run it. You may not have asked for it. You may not wish to deal with it at all. But, by golly, you are going to have it and with exactly the same amount of money being spent now with a little bit of inflation rise per year. It does not matter whether the country is in recession or prosperity; it does not matter whether you have more people coming in. That is your tough luck. We are going to send it to you because we are tired of it and we do not want to spend any more money on it and we do not want to take the responsibility for it."

Mr. President, I believe that is an understandable attitude but, I hope, not the attitude the Senate winds up with today. Because, for many thousands of Americans, that is likely to be a disastrous decision and Senators really have to consider and weigh on their consciences today the proposition, which is a very fundamental one, before us.

As the Senator from Vermont pointed out, we are not doing this amendment as a favor to Governors. As a matter of fact, most have not requested this responsibility. Most of the Governors coming into our committee have not wanted the responsibility. To give some impression that Governors all over the country are eager to grasp all of this is totally erroneous.

There are some very able Governors who want to run it, and my judgment is that they will run it very well. But we have had a good number of Governors who have said we are inundated by people. We are inundated by the economic cycle. Yet, here we debate on this floor today the thought that, like it or not, the States will simply have the Food Stamp Program, or, as a matter of fact, they may not have much of a program at all.

The Governors may decide, in fact, to use the money for something else. If you happen to be a citizen of one of those States, you are out of luck. We have said thus far, Mr. President, that if you are an American, if you are here in this country and you are unemployed, you are disabled and you have problems, there is at least a safety net. And we have been proud that has been the case.

Let me just say that the Committee on Agriculture, long before we got into the welfare debate, was involved in reform of food stamp discussions this year. We are also involved in a very serious budget problem. We are going to have a reconciliation bill shortly. By September 22, we must report from our committee $48.4 billion of savings over a 7-year period of time.

Mr. President, we have identified $30 billion of savings in the nutrition programs and most of that in the Food Stamp Program. The Committee on Agriculture has been diligent because we have tried to both reform the program and make certain it was less expensive even while retaining the basic safety net of the program. The House of Representatives has done a similar job.

Mr. President, I will point out that the Republican leadership welfare proposal we are now debating, as does the House bill, does not block grant the Food Stamp Program but makes dramatic changes in its structure. It greatly expands the States' administrative flexibility and ability to implement welfare reform initiatives. By allowing States to operate a State-designed simplified food stamp program for cash welfare recipients and have more control over a host of regular program rules, States are given the option of taking the food stamp assistance as a block grant.

So, Mr. President, if I am in error—and there are a host of Governors out there who have been eager to get this program, they are going to have that option. They may be lined up at the door, but I have not seen the line. All I am saying is they have that option. If they do so, they must spend 80 percent of the money that the Federal Government is spending on food. The rest can be spent on employment and training programs and, up to 6 percent, on administration.

The citizens in their State will have to hope that those Governors and legislators, if they become involved in that decision—that is a very interesting question, Mr. President: What if there was a case in which State legislators allow the Governor alone to make such a decision? Should a decision as grave as this one be vested in a Governor to take an entire State off the Food Stamp Program irrevocably, a one-time decision from which there is no return without the legislature, without any check and balance within that State? Should the Governor, in fact, be prepared to terminate the program if that is his wish or her wish, as the case may be? Where is the democracy in that situation even while we are eager to shed this burden and move down the trail of devolution?

Let me say it is important that Senators know the reforms that were enacted by the Agriculture Committee and have been adopted by the leadership proposal. I cite not all of them but ones that I think are very important that Senators know are a part of this bill but would not be a part necessarily of any regime in any State that decided simply to block grant food stamps.

In this bill, we disqualify any adult who voluntarily quits a job or reduces work effort. We deny food stamps to able-bodied adults 18 to 50 without children who received food stamps for 6 months out of the previous 12 months without working or participating in a work program at least half time. Those are pretty stringent qualifications.

We ensure that food stamp benefits do not increase when a recipient's welfare benefits are reduced for failing to comply with other non-work-related welfare rules, such as the failure to get children immunized. States may also reduce food stamp allotments for up to 25 percent for failure to comply with other welfare programs rules. States may do that.

We allow in this bill States to disqualify an individual from food stamps for the period that they are disqualified from other public assistance programs for failure to perform an action required in the other program. For example, failure to comply with AFDC work requirements must trigger a food stamp disqualification. We establish mandatory minimum disqualification periods for violation of work rules, and States may adopt even longer disqualification periods and may permanently disqualify a recipient for a third violation of a work rule—permanently disqualify.

We give States control over the Food Stamp Program for households composed entirely of AFDC members as long as Federal costs do not increase. States choose their AFDC rules, food stamp rules, or a combination to develop one standardized set of rules. States may do all of this under this bill.

Mr. President, if this is the case, a Senator might ask, why the objection to simply letting States do it all? Why not make it permissive? Why spell it out in a Federal bill? We do so to preserve a national safety net.

The leadership bill before us now that we are debating is not a bill that is very permissive. This is a bill that saves $30 billion over 7 years. In almost every conceivable way, in the 106 pages which the Agriculture Committee put together, it tries to make certain that food stamp programs stay on the straight and narrow.

Perhaps State legislatures will want to replicate that. Perhaps legislatures want to borrow this intact and pass it as a State law. But if they do not, Mr. President, the Governor of that State is going to have a heck of a time administering food stamps. The provisions in the leadership bill come from a body of knowledge and experience over the years of how fraud and abuse occur, and it occurs in many, many ways, not easily discovered in a transition period of a few weeks during which time the States with or without enthusiasm take over the Food Stamp Program.

Mr. President, the overwhelming case for a rejection of this amendment finally comes back to the fact that none of us can foretell the future in a dynamic economy such as ours. We are a free country. Thank goodness. People can move from State to State, and they do so by the tens of millions every year.

Yet, Mr. President, we are in the process of about to lock in flat amounts to States for the duration of this experiment, an amount of money that will not be changed if that State has a huge number of new people coming into it for whatever reason.

Perhaps States may say, "Well, we will control that. We will simply abandon the Food Stamp Program. There is nothing attractive about our State. Why not let other States that have a food stamp program take care of persons who are disabled or suddenly unemployed, or infants and children or what have you? Why not let those States take care of them?"

Mr. President, people can pick and choose where to live by their migratory patterns in this country. Perhaps the idea of a safety net wherever it is, is not attractive to Senators or citizens. But I have not heard the case made on those grounds very frequently. And I would say furthermore that even if there were no changes in population in the country, clearly there are changes every year in the economic cycle.

In my home State of Indiana in 1982—I was reminded of this as we were discussing another food stamp amendment yesterday—in Kokomo, IN, in Anderson, in Muncie, Indiana where there were large concentrations of auto workers at a time of great recession, the unemployment reached, in each of those cities, 20 percent. I would just say that kind of unemployment is massive, and it is horrible to witness. The Food Stamp Program was very important to those cities, very important to our State. Whoever was Governor of Indiana could not have anticipated in 1979 and 1980 or even 1981 that there would be 20-percent unemployment in those localities. There was no way anyone could have been wise enough to have prophesied that. But the Governor of Indiana was mighty pleased that in fact there was a safety net for nutrition in our country and in the State of Indiana at that point and that he was not responsible at that moment for facing a whole apparatus for administering the Food Stamp Program.

Our Governor did not assert that he was wiser than everybody in the country; that he could do it better. He knew the problems better in Kokomo. Of course, he did. But that would not have made a whit of difference in terms of the nutrition needs of people who were suddenly and massively unemployed in ways that were not going to be remedied very rapidly.

Mr. President, it is simply reckless in a country of great dynamic changes of population and in the economic cycle to throw away the safety net; and that is the issue here.

The Senator from Missouri, in intellectual fairness, has presented very squarely that his amendment is the end of the Federal safety net, the end of the Federal Food Stamp Program, and there are many who will rejoice in that and say good riddance; we should never have started this humanitarian effort to begin with.

I am not one of them, Mr. President. I am hopeful a majority of Senators do not join in that point of view either. Of course, we must reform, and I have listed 6 of possibly 50 very sizable, tough reforms. Of course, we have to downsize and, of course, we have to economize. And we are doing it with a vengeance; $30 billion in 7 years for food stamp recipients, but, of course, we must have a safety net in a vast and complex country such as ours.

Mr. President, I yield and reserve the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. ASHCROFT addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. ASHCROFT. May I inquire as to the remaining time on both sides?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri has 16 minutes and 55 seconds, the Senator from Indiana has 7 minutes and 18 seconds.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, I yield so much time as I might consume.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. ASHCROFT. The question we debate today is not whether or not there will be assistance to individuals who are in need. The question we debate today is whether or not that assistance will be delivered by State officials who are proximate to the problem or whether we are going to persist with a one-size-fits-all system in Washington, DC, which is characterized by the highest administrative costs of any welfare program, rampant fraud and abuse, and 900 pages of excessive Federal regulations. I have not proposed ending the ability of States to meet the needs of their people. I am proposing enhancing the ability of States to meet those needs.

The distinguished Senator from Vermont talked about the needs in the event of earthquakes, floods, or other natural disasters. And the distinguished Senator from Indiana, for whom I have great respect, talked about needs in times of recession. I believe those are needs, those are legitimate needs, those are times when people legitimately need assistance, and I believe that assistance can best be rendered if we ask those at the State level to effect those programs they can effect to provide delivery of the services.

I might point out that the proposed amendment does not diminish the funding available for food stamps. We took the CBO numbers, the projections under the Dole bill and said those would be the amount of the block grant.

This is not a debate over the amount of resources that will be available. This is a debate over whether that resource will continue to be delivered through a one-size-fits-all bureaucracy that has failed in Washington, DC, or whether we are going to empower States that have substantial ideas on what they can do to deliver this program.

Let me quote to you what Gerald Miller says, director of social services for Governor Engler in Michigan.

"Under a block grant," he said, "States could deliver services more cheaply and efficiently without cutting benefits." Miller contends that if the food stamp program remains unchanged, it will have to be cut to meet deficit reduction targets. If the food stamp program were to be made into a block grant," he said, "I don't know one Republican Governor who would cut benefits to one client."

The distinguished Senator from Indiana indicated that Republican Governors or Governors in general might not be in favor of these kinds of amendments. I am pleased to just say that I know of one Governor, Gov. Tommy Thompson, who is a leading Republican Governor and one of the leading proponents of welfare reform in the country. I have his letter dated September 11, 1995, which I will submit for the RECORD.

I ask unanimous consent that it be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATE OF WISCONSIN,
September 11, 1995.

Hon. JOHN ASHCROFT,
U.S. Senate, Senate Hart Building, Washington
DC.

Hon. RICHARD C. SHELBY,
DC.

DEAR SENATORS ASHCROFT AND SHELBY: As I know you both agree, the welfare reform bill currently being considered, S. 1120, is a dramatic improvement over current law. Each of you has submitted amendments to this bill which allow for still greater flexibility in the use of food stamps in the form of block grants. The purpose of this letter is to support your efforts in this regard.

Senator Ashcroft's amendment allows the maximum level of state flexibility while preserving the anticipated level of federal financial support envisioned in the leadership bill. Senator Shelby's amendment would also allow for generous state flexibility while at the same time reducing federal expenditures on food stamps through anticipated improvements in state efficiency in managing the program.

I heartily endorse both of your efforts to increase the level of flexibility allowed in the management of the food stamp program. In addition, the transferability of funds from the food stamp block grant to the AFDC block grant, which is common to both your bills, is of critical importance to states like Wisconsin. We anticipate spending more on work programs and supports to work, such as child care, and less on unrestricted benefits. Therefore, we need this funding flexibility.

We fully support both of your efforts to improve the leadership bill to allow for more effective administration of the food stamp block grant.

Sincerely,

TOMMY G. THOMPSON,
Governor.

Mr. ASHCROFT. It is addressed to the Honorable RICHARD C. SHELBY of this body and to me. It endorses the effort to increase the flexibility for States in the Food Stamp Program and the block grant program.

Now, reference has been made to the safety net for nutrition; that we need to help citizens who are in real need; we need to deliver and meet that need effectively.

Reference has been made to the potential—and I do not understand this—of an irrevocable, one-time decision by Governors to abandon food help to their citizens. I do not know of any Governor that has that kind of authority, and I do not know of any government anywhere in the United States that can make irrevocable decisions to abandon things.

The political process operates. People with needs know their way to the State capital. It is easier to get there than it is to the National Capital. Welfare recipients have the right to vote. This body and the U.S. Congress in the last session provided a special means of registering welfare recipients so that they would be given a right to vote, their voice would be heard, making their voice heard in a place close to them, the State capital, instead of demanding that they come to Washington to have their voice heard, and demanding that they find their way through 900 pages of Federal regulations appears to me to be an important thing.

Let me just additionally say it was indicated no one has the ability to know what the future holds if we were to have a block grant to the States. I can tell you what the future holds if we do not block grant this to the States. The future holds the same kind of problems that we have had in the past with entitlement spending that continues to build the program. When the Federal program is an entitlement program, it is in the interest of the State to build the program. States administering the program without a financial stake in the program keep shifting people into the program; it brings money to the State automatically. It is part of the pernicious impact of this Federal system of welfare which has resulted in a growing portion of our population being dependent on Government rather than a shrinking portion of our population being dependent on Government.

It is a simple question. Do we want more welfare and less independence or do we want more independence and less welfare? The structure of the way we deliver benefits should not be designed to increase welfare as it is now. It should be designed to increase independence.

I believe the opportunity made available to the States of this country through a block grant so that States can formulate their own rules and they know they are operating within a limited amount of resources is exactly what we need. An entitlement system simply is absent the kind of incentive for reduction in the problem.

We need to reform welfare, not to grow it. People in my State, when they spell reform, spell it r-e-d-u-c-e, reduce. It is time for us to reduce welfare.

So with all due respect for my distinguished colleagues from Vermont and from Indiana, who have indicated that it is important to have an entitlement program that is open ended, I think it has the wrong structural incentives.

One last point that I would make. My respected and distinguished colleague from Vermont, Senator LEAHY, mentioned we could not consider this program to be an incentive for illegitimacy. I do not think it was designed to be an incentive for illegitimacy. But the fact of the matter is that the more children you have in the family, the bigger the benefits are. And in the context of a benefit that can be changed into cash with unfortunate and inappropriate ease, I think it is undeniable that we have simply exacerbated the problem.

Mr. President, I reserve the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. LUGAR addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Indiana.

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, let me just indicate again that the welfare reform bill in front of the Senate is not one that is permissive. It talks about reform and reduction, as the distinguished Senator from Missouri has pointed out. All of the requirements that I mentioned in the reform of food stamps are clearly not permissive. They do not permit a program that is open-ended. Quite to the contrary, they demand a program that reduces expenses by $30 billion in 7 years of time, a program that is thoroughly conversant with fraud and abuse, as has been observed and will be discovered by States that attempt to run these complex programs. But, Mr. President, I have no quarrel with a Governor or a State that wishes to take over the Food Stamp Program. As a matter of fact, the bill in front of us permits that explicitly.

What I do think is inadvisable is for the Congress—or the Senate more particularly today—to simply say, whether you want the program or not, it is yours and you are going to have to deal with it, all of the regulations, all of the stipulations. And even if you are well motivated to serve those who are hungry, you are going to have to figure out from scratch how to do that and on a limited amount of money that will not increase whether the economic times change or the population changes. That I think, Mr. President, is ill-advised, and so do many others.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD, Mr. President, letters from the Food Marketing Institute, from the National-American Wholesale Grocers' Association, the National Cattlemen's Association, and the National Peanut Council, Inc., that back the current proposals in the welfare bill that is before us and would oppose block-granting food stamp programs.

There being no objection, the letters were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

FOOD MARKETING INSTITUTE,
Washington, DC, July 11, 1995.

Hon. RICHARD G. LUGAR,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR LUGAR: The retail food industry full supports the efforts of this Congress to produce meaningful welfare reform that is simpler, more efficient and less costly than the current system. The food stamp program is one aspect of welfare reform that is of particular concern to our industry. We have been participating in this program for over twenty-five years and have long supported food stamps as an effective and efficient way of reducing hunger.

FMI supports the food stamp reforms approved by the Senate Agriculture Committee. The supermarket industry believes the Agriculture Committee bill allows state and local flexibility to create innovative programs while maintaining a system that guarantees allocated funding will be used for food assistance. Research has demonstrated that removing the link between program benefits and the actual purchase of food results in the deterioration of nutritional diets, especially for our children. Food assistance programs are different from other welfare programs—they are the basic safety net for those who cannot afford adequate diets. We are concerned that converting the federal nutrition program into a cash program would inadvertently result in eliminating the current food stamp program and the long-term effects would be disastrous.

As the most effective way to curb fraud and abuse, FMI supports the conversion of paper food stamps to a nationally uniform EBT system. Without a uniform national delivery system, there is potential for different sets of standards and operational procedures all of which would make it impossible to set up an effective central monitoring system to detect fraud and abuse. Continued access for recipients in rural communities and urban centers is critically important as we move to implement a nationwide EBT system. We support modifications to the Agriculture Committee bill to assure that all EBT systems are compatible and available to the smallest, local community stores. This will allow recipients to retain the freedom to shop at stores of their choice without overly restricting state flexibility. A uniform delivery system is the best way to reduce cost and make this important domestic feeding program even better and more efficient. Current law also prohibits the government from shifting EBT program cost to retailers who are licensed to accept food stamps which would in effect eliminate many from participating in the program. We would oppose any efforts to eliminate that protection.

FMI pledges to work with you to achieve meaningful welfare reform. However, we must not lose sight of the fact that cashing out the food stamp program would be a disaster for needy families and their communities all across America. This is why we support the approach taken by the Senate Agriculture Committee.

The Food Marketing Institute (FMI) is a nonprofit association conducting programs in research, education, industry relations and public affairs on behalf of its 1,500 members including their subsidiaries—food retailers and wholesalers and their customers in the United States and around the world. FMI's domestic member companies operate approximately 21,000 retail food stores with a combined annual sales volume of $220 billion—more than half of all grocery store sales in the United States. FMI's retail membership is composed of large multi-store chains, small regional firms and independent supermarkets. Its international membership includes 200 members from 60 countries.

Sincerely,

TIM HAMMONDS,
President and CEO.

THE FOOD DISTRIBUTORS ASSOCIATION,
September 12, 1995.

Hon. RICHARD LUGAR,
Chairman, Senate Committee on Agriculture,
Nutrition, and Forestry, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN LUGAR: The National American Wholesale Grocers' Association and the International Foodservice Distributors Association (NAWGA/IFDA) supports the reform of our welfare system, including the significant reforms your Committee has recommended for the Food Stamp Program. However, we do not believe "cashing-out" the Food Stamp Program falls under the rubric of reform. NAWGA/IFDA is an international trade association comprised of food distribution companies which primarily supply and service independent grocers and foodservice operations throughout the U.S. and Canada.

We understand that several amendments may be offered in the coming days which would effectively cash-out the Food Stamp Program. NAWGA/IFDA respectfully urges the rejection of these amendments.

There is no conclusive evidence that cashing-out the Food Stamp Program would improve the delivery of welfare benefits. In fact, cash-out demonstration projects conducted by the Department of Agriculture have shown a five to eighteen percent decline in food expenditures. Although attractive because of its administrative simplicity, we do not believe that such a system could effectively serve food stamp recipients.

Sincerely,

KEVIN BURKE,
Vice President,
Government Affairs.

NATIONAL CATTLEMEN'S ASSOCIATION,
Washington, DC, February 14, 1995.

Hon. BILL EMERSON,
House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: I am writing to convey the National Cattlemen's Association's recent grassroots policy decisions on Welfare Reform and specifically block granting federal food-assistance funds (H.R. 4). The National Cattlemen's Association, which is the national spokesperson for all segments of the U.S. beef cattle industry representing 230,000 cattle producers throughout the country, supports welfare reform by providing increased control to local government. Cattle producers have long supported the Commodity Distribution Program and other food assistance programs, as a means of providing nutritious foods to those in need in a cost effective manner. We believe it is time however, to review these programs and make appropriate changes to increase their efficiency and effectiveness.

In addition to overall themes of increasing state flexibility balancing the budget, the National Cattlemen's Association supports the following provisions in any welfare reform legislation:

Money designated for food stamp recipients must be spent on food only.

A commodity purchase group should continue within USDA to assist states in increasing their volume purchasing power, thus saving states money.

A means must be established to purchase non-price supported commodities when an over-supply situation occurs.

Third party verification to assure contractual performance.

Adequate nutritional standards for school lunch programs.

The National Cattlemen's Association supports efforts to control federal spending and decrease the size of the federal government. We would very much like to work with you to make these goals a reality. For further information, please contact Beth Johnson or Chandler Keys in our Washington office (202) 347-0228.

Sincerely,

SHERI SPADER,
Chairman, Food Policy Committee.

NATIONAL PEANUT COUNCIL, INC.,
Alexandria, VA, December 9, 1994.

Hon. RICHARD G. LUGAR,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR LUGAR: We write to urge you in the strongest possible terms to oppose proposals, such as those included in the Pension Responsibility Act (PRA), to replace current federal food assistance programs with block grant funding. We oppose both the concept of block grant funding and the sharply reduced funding levels that have been proposed.

We oppose these proposals for the following reasons:

(1) The block grant approach fails to assure that federal dollars will go for their intended purposes. Under the PRA, large portions of federal funding for food assistance could be provided in cash. Specifically, the PRA would allow benefits previously provided as food stamp and WIC coupons to instead be provided as cash. Thus, states would be free to provide assistance that could be devoted to other non-food needs. This approach could not only have a serious deleterious effect on low-income children and families but also could effect adversely the entire food and agriculture economy. In addition, the block grant converts nutrition programs from entitlements into discretionary programs subject to annual appropriations. Thus, there is no guarantee that any federal dollars will be available for food assistance.

(2) The block grant approach is inherently insensitive to the poor when their needs are greatest. There is no mechanism in block grants to assure assistance will expand during a recession or when need arises (such as a natural disaster). At the very time that needs go up in one state and potentially down in another, the funding will be inflexible and thus inefficiently applied to those states.

(3) The PRA would likely end the school lunch program as we know it. By proscribing assistance paid for meals served to "middle income" children, the likely result of the PRA is that millions of school children and thousands of schools will abandon the current system that guarantees free and reduced price meals to low-income children. Far smaller cutbacks in this subsidy in 1981 resulted in a loss of about 2,000 schools and two million children (750,000 low-income) from the program.

(4) The block grant approach removes from food assistance any tie to nutritional standards. Once states are free to design any program they want, there will be no assurance that the federal dollars are being spent consistent with fundamental standards on diet and health.

The block grant approach, especially with reduced funding levels, will result in more children in this country going hungry. Most of the programs affected are child nutrition programs, and half of all the participants of the largest nutrition program affected (food stamps) are children.

The resulting tremendous increase in need cannot be met by private charities. These institutions have repeatedly documented that they cannot meet the demand currently placed upon them. Furthermore, we strenuously object to any policy that could have the effect of an exponential increase in the number of Americans who must feed their families through soup kitchen and bread lines. This is no way for the greatest nation in the world to care for its needy residents.

Finally, we suggest that a return to block grants ignores the history of why federal food assistance programs were established. The federal government stepped in because states were either unable or unwilling to meet the needs of our people.

The federal nutrition programs are an enormous success story, built with bipartisan support from Congress over many years. Study after study has documented the effectiveness of the very programs that proposals like the PRA would turn back to the states. These programs have been proven to enhance the health and education of our children, some saving money in the long run. They also can serve as effective organizing tools for crime prevention.

Initial estimates indicate the PRA could reduce food assistance funding by about ten percent ($4 to $5 billion a year) from the projected $40 billion FY 1996 food assistance funding level. Even this inadequate level would not be guaranteed since each year's funding would be subject to appropriations. There may be a need for the federal government to save money, but not feeding hungry children and their families is a poor place to start.

Sincerely,

DR. A. WAYNE LORD,
National Peanut Council Chairman,
Southco Commodities.

AMENDMENT NO. 2562

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, I rise today to speak in opposition to the Ashcroft amendment on food stamps.

For the second straight day we are being asked to launch an attack on the Food Stamp Program. Once again I want to restate that Democrats support real reform of food stamps, not an effort to take food away from people. This amendment block-grants food stamps and in the process denies a safety net for kids. Once we turn this program into a block grant we end our commitment to feed all those children who fall victim to the next recession.

I am serious about reforming this program. I am pleased that Maryland has lead the country in introducing ways to cut down on fraud by going to an electronic system. Democrats have included reform of food stamps in our welfare reform bill. We included increased civil and criminal forfeiture for grocers who violate the Food Stamp Act. We tell stores that they must re-apply for the Food Stamp Program so that we make sure that fraud is not happening. Retailers who have already been disqualified from the WIC Program are disqualified from food stamps. We encourage States to enact their own reforms including the use of an electronic card and a picture ID. Democrats don't stop there. We are willing to require able-bodied people to work.

Mr. President, the fight here is over food, not fraud. This amendment would take the current system and throw it out. After we eliminate the current system we then turn it over to State governments. There are no guarantees in this amendment that States will not create their own bureaucratic wasteland. No guarantees that money going for food won't be diverted to nonnutrition needs. If we block-grant food stamps, what guarantees U.S. taxpayers that the dollars going for food stamps won't be converted to fund other programs in the next recession? What guarantees do we have that these nutrition funds won't become a bailout fund for some politically vulnerable Governor?

Mr. President, I repeat, I am for welfare reform—all Democrats are. That is why we worked hard at a real reform bill. That bill includes reforms to the Food Stamp Program. This amendment replaces reform with regression. Regression back to a time when we did not commit our Nation to a goal of feeding hungry people. It is time we focused our attention back on reform. We can do that by voting down this amendment.

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I reserve the remainder of my time, and I ask once again for clarification of how much time remains to the two sides.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Indiana has 5 minutes; the Senator from Missouri has 8 minutes 15 seconds.

Mr. LUGAR. I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

If no one yields time, the time will be deducted equally from both sides.

Mr. LUGAR addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Indiana.

Mr. LUGAR. I yield myself as much time as I may require for a concluding statement. I see no other Senators wishing to speak on this subject on our side.

Mr. President, let me just state the case for retaining the welfare bill in front of us, the leadership bill, which permits block granting to States but does not demand it.

First of all, the mandatory block grant would subject poor children, families, and elderly people to serious risks during economic downturns.

Second, the formula for distributing funds would be inequitable and would penalize large numbers of States, especially those with expanding population.

Third, the Agriculture Committee, which I chair, would have to make deeper cuts in farm programs or the school lunch or other child nutrition programs because the amounts in the Ashcroft amendment are not as great a cut as the ones that we have already made. There is a discrepancy of over $3 billion as we calculate it.

Fourth, the amendment would likely lead to sharp reductions in food purchases and nutritional well-being and would injure the food and agricultural sectors of our economy.

Fifth, the bill denies food stamps to indigent, elderly, and disabled people who do not meet the work requirements.

Sixth, the amendment allows States to withdraw all State funds used to administer the Food Stamp Program and substitute Federal funds for them.

Seventh, the amendment would widen disparity among States and intensify a race to the bottom.

Eighth, Mr. President, it would weaken the safety net for children throughout the country.

And, finally, the amendment could increase fraud even though the desire, obviously, of the proponents is to limit fraud. There is no guarantee that States, starting from scratch in a complex program, would enjoy a situation of a greater fight against fraud than we experience in the Federal Government. Really, I think the evidence is to the contrary.

Mr. President, for all of these reasons, plus the obvious one, and that is a safety net of nutrition for Americans is vital and it should not be cast away in this amendment, I call for the defeat of the Ashcroft amendment and the retention of the safety net that we have currently.

I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. ASHCROFT. May I inquire of the Chair the time remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri has 7 minutes remaining. The Senator from Indiana has 1 minute 45 seconds.

Mr. ASHCROFT. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, I am pleased to ask the Members of this body to vote in favor of endowing the States with the opportunity to substantially reform the welfare system, the single largest component of the welfare system, which touches almost 1 in every 10 Americans, and to do so by providing the resources to the States so that their legislatures and their Governors can make the resources available to truly needy individuals in a way that is far more efficient, is far less likely to consume additional resources. This is an idea which is welcomed by the States. Let me read from Governor Thompson's letter sent to my office.

Senator Ashcroft's amendment allows the maximum level of state flexibility while preserving the anticipated level of federal financial support envisioned in the leadership bill. In addition, the transferability of funds from the food stamp block grant to the AFDC block grant, which is common, is of critical importance to States like Wisconsin.

Wisconsin, as you know, has been a leading State in welfare reform. One of the reasons it is important that we have the kind of transferability and that we put AFDC and food stamps both into block grants is that, if you leave one Federal program as an entitlement without any limit as to the spending involved and you put another Federal program into a block grant, States can shift people from one area to another, pushing people into one area and elevating the Federal responsibility in order to curtail the responsibility of the State.

This would distort the allocation of resources. It simply would not be appropriate. We need to have the discipline and the management tools necessary for these programs to be administered appropriately and honestly. You could understand that if the AFDC Program, which is a shared program between the State and the Federal Government were to be block granted, and you maintained an entitlement in food stamps, that it would lead States to shift people from the limited area of State assistance to the unlimited area of the entitlement.

The distinguished Senator from Indiana has indicated that they hope to have savings of a substantial amount as a result of reforms that have been added to the program. Of course, we have seen these reforms year after year and time after time. We had major food stamp legislation in 1981 and then in 1988 and several times it has been adjusted in this decade. We have also seen what the chart shows: That food stamp consumption goes up and up.

It is anticipated that food stamps will rise. Under the Dole bill, food stamp consumption is supposed to go up. SSI is supposed to go up. It is anticipated that AFDC will remain low.

Surprise, surprise. The Dole bill, the leadership bill, provides that AFDC would be a block grant where the incentives would exist to keep the program down. And the anticipated rises here, frankly, by CBO are not rises that project any cost shifting, sending people from this category into these categories. That is not the reason for the rise, that is just another projection.

But if we make this a block grant program and it is limited and we say that these continue to be unlimited in entitlement programs, the natural tendency will be for States to start shifting clients from this client base over into these categories. As I suggested, these categories are likely to be increasing even further.

I believe that the people of this country have called upon us to reform welfare. To ignore the largest single welfare program in terms of people that it touches in this country and to say that it is off the table, and to call it some kind of a safety net, and to say we cannot trust local officials or State officials to be compassionate in the administration of these funds, and to say that we prefer the Federal bureaucracy, and that somehow there is greater compassion in this body and the Congress than there would be at State capitals, I think is to miss the point. The point should be that we should be focused on reforming the welfare system. We will not get great reform if we say to States, "Well, you can opt into a block grant but, on the other hand, if you do not opt into a block grant, we will let you continue in an entitlement program." "In an entitlement program" means you can continue to get money for all the people you can possibly find to qualify.

The incentives for cost reduction in that environment, the incentives for caseload are substantially lower than they would be in the setting of a block grant.

Not only would the incentives be substantially lower, but compliance costs, for complying with these 900 pages of regulations, still exist. You still find yourself in a system with about 24 percent friction in the system—the fraud, the abuse, the high administrative costs. It has been estimated that perhaps the leadership bill would take 90 pages out of the 900 pages of regulations. Some suggestion has been made, well, the States would not know how to come up to speed on this. After all, they could not do this in a couple weeks, they could not make this transition.

The truth of the matter is that States have had to administer this program covered over with the redtape of the Federal bureaucracy for years for the last quarter century. They know this program better than the Federal officials do. There are not that many food stamp employees in the country that are not State and local governmental employees, but they know what they are working under and they know how it is burdening the system and they know the additional costs. It is that additional cost that has caused them to say, if we could have this program as a block grant, we could serve people far more carefully and far better.

So I believe that our responsibility is a responsibility to really reform welfare. Our responsibility is a responsibility to avoid cost shifting. Our responsibility is a responsibility to recognize that we have been working with a failed system.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk which I now would like to have a vote on and discussion.

Essentially, this is the bottom-line child-protection amendment. It establishes a requirement that there be a voucher program for children, minor children, whose families would otherwise be eligible for assistance except for the time limit or other penalties, and where the parent has not complied with whatever the State rules are, the payment for that child's assistance could be made if necessary to a third party.

Mr. President, I ask my colleagues to take a good look at this amendment and to support it because, quite frankly, this amendment is one that can be supported by those who favor block grants and by those who oppose block grants. It also warrants support by those who favor State flexibility and by those who oppose State flexibility. This amendment speaks to maintaining a safety net for poor children.

This amendment essentially provides a floor below which no child in this United States will fall. Essentially, what it says is that children will not be penalized for the behavior of their parents. We have already had a lot of discussion in this forum about welfare reform, and the extent to which it affects the children. Quite frankly, the numbers make it very clear that out of the 14 million people in the United States who are currently receiving AFDC, 9 million of those people are children.

So essentially, if we penalize the majority, the children, for the behavior of their parents, I think we will have committed a great harm. It seems to me that our efforts to reform the welfare system should at a minimum do no harm to the children.

Mr. President, the United States, our country, has a child poverty rate of some 22 percent. That is one in five children who is poor. Our child poverty rate exceeds those of all the other industrialized nations. As we address the whole issue of poverty in the United States, and particularly child poverty, it seems to me that we ought to provide a minimum below which no child will fall, a minimum safety net that still allows the States to construct their own rules and requirements. A State can set up whatever kind of plan it wants to, at least within the parameters of the underlying legislation. A State will have the flexibility through the block grants to do as they will in terms of time limits, in terms of other requirements. But at a minimum, I think we should have consensus in this body that children caught in that situation will not be penalized for the failure of their parent to comply with the rule, whatever that State rule is, pertaining to welfare.

Mr. President, this amendment would ensure at a very minimum that every State will provide essential support through a voucher for poor children whose parents and families no longer qualify for assistance. The amendment would allow the use of block grant funds for this purpose. So in that regard, it will allow for the maintenance of the flexibility that is in the underlying legislation again for the protection of children.

Mr. President, I ask for my colleagues' support of this legislation. I am prepared of course to entertain any questions regarding this.

Specifically, Mr. President, I would like to point to the notion that, with regard to the underlying legislation, there is a 5-year time limitation in terms of public assistance. It is unlikely, quite frankly, but there is the possibility—hopefully, it will not happen all that often, but there is at least a prospect—that we will have 6-year-old children walking around with no subsistence, with no support, with no help at all.

If, indeed, their parents fail to comply with the time limit in this bill or any other limitation that may be proposed by this legislation or the State in developing their plan, again I think we have to be mindful and cognizant of the fact that as Americans we have an obligation to all the children and that we would want to ensure that, at a minimum, there be an opportunity for those children who are left out to be fed, to be housed, and to receive adequate care.

The child-voucher approach will allow payment to a third party for essential services provided to minor children.

Mr. President, that, in substance, is the child-voucher amendment. I have on previous occasions discussed this issue in depth, regarding the operation of the welfare program with regard to children and the operation of the underlying legislation.

There is little question but that there ought to be some minimal standard. I believe the child-voucher amendment allows that, and so again I would entertain any questions about this legislation and ask for its favorable consideration.

I would also point out, Mr. President, this amendment has been analyzed and the CBO analysis is, "The amendment would not alter block grant levels and therefore would have no direct impact on Federal spending."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I observe the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, could I inquire about how the time is being divided at this moment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois has 48 minutes and 10 seconds remaining, and the opposition has 58 minutes and 52 seconds remaining.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, for the sake of time being treated fairly, if we do go back into a quorum, I ask unanimous consent that the time be equally divided on both sides.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. I think I am going to object to that.

I would say to my colleague, I am prepared to talk about this further.

Mr. LOTT. Fine.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. My own view was that I thought the opposition, if there is opposition—I hope there will not be opposition; it seems to me on this amendment we should reach consensus about it. But in the event there is opposition, I hope that the opposition would express itself in this period and would actually engage in dialogue about the importance of having again this child-voucher approach or some bottom-line protection for children. It seems to me to be an important enough subject to talk about it as opposed to just going into a quorum call.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, if the distinguished Senator from Illinois will yield, that would be fine, if the Senator is prepared to speak further. And I am sure we will have some comment in opposition or some further discussion. But I just did not want us to be in quorum call with the time being counted just against this side. If the Senator would like to speak, that will resolve the problem, and then I am sure we will begin to ask questions and have dialogue.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. All right, I will continue then.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, a lot of what I have to say about this particular amendment is in reiteration of what I said the other day. And, again, I would call my colleagues' attention to the significance of having a bottom-line protection for children. If anything, this amendment says that we will do no harm by the children; that in order to get the conduct of the 4.6 million adults who are receiving public assistance, we will not hurt the 9 million children who may be caught up and not understand all the rules.

The children are not responsible for their parents not going to work. The children are not responsible for their parents not complying with the family cap. The children are not responsible for their parents not abiding by the rules. The children have no way of fighting back or even challenging a State's decision to construct a program in one way or the other.

In light of the fact that what we are doing with this reform effort is setting up 50 different assistance systems—that is essentially what is going on—by devolving from the national program under the Social Security Act for public assistance, we are allowing the States to craft their own programs, and so a child living in one State or another may well wind up really the victim, if you will, of an accident of geography.

It seems to me that at a minimum we ought to be able to say, as part of our national commitment as Americans, we are not going to allow a child to go homeless; we are not going to allow a child to go hungry; we are not going to allow a child in any State to be subject to the vicissitudes of misfortune, or, alternatively, to an accident of geography, and that we will provide a minimal safety net under which children can be cared for.

This issue is actually one of the more troubling aspects of this whole debate—the question of what about the children, what do we do about the children in the final analysis.

Earlier in the debate about welfare reform, the question was raised by some: Well, what happens if the parents do not comply with the rules? Then what do you do with the children? The suggestion was even made by some that you put them in orphanages.

We do not yet have the orphanages. We do not yet have any alternatives for these babies who may well be left homeless and hungry, with no subsistence at all if their parents get cut off of welfare.

I raised the issue with my colleagues the other day about the notion that while it is being touted as a new approach to public assistance, really this is an old approach; what we are doing here has happened before in this country.

I put into the RECORD this article from the Chicago History magazine called "Friendless Foundlings and Homeless Half Orphans," and it talked about the situation in our country before we had a national safety net for children, what happened there.

What we found was that, depending on the State of residence, depending on where the child lived, the different States responded to the issue of dependent children in different ways. And, in many instances, the children were left to their own devices—sleeping in the streets, in some instances, a parent—and that is where the term "homeless half orphan," which I never heard before I read this article, came from. The women in some instances could not support them and would take to the doors of a church or orphanage and just leave them there for the winter so as to provide their babies with some way to live when times were really hard.

I do not think we want to go back to that in this country. As a matter of fact, I am certain of it. And I do not sense frankly that even the architects of this bill want to go move this country backward. The architects of this legislation, however, have often said, well, we are just going to take our chances because the States are going to do no harm to the children. States will not leave the children homeless and hungry, and the States will not make decisions, the Governors will not make decisions that will hurt the children any more than we in the Senate would want to hurt the children.

And I am prepared reluctantly to take the gamble that we all will take with the passage of this legislation, that that is the case. But I have to raise the question whether or not, as a national community, we are willing to take that gamble on the backs of the children, whether or not we are willing to take that gamble without regard at all to any protection for them, any bottom line for them.

Would it not be in our own interests as a national community, all of us, because we are all residents of various States, residents of the State that sent us here in the first instance, we are residents of local governments as well, but would not it make sense for us to have some bottom level below which no child—no child—will be jeopardized? That is the only question. Are we prepared to take a loser-risk-all kind of gamble, or are we willing to say with regard to the basics of subsistence issues for children—food, clothing, care, shelter—with regard to health, with regard to those very basic things, we are going to provide some level of support?

That is what this child voucher amendment does. It says to the States, you are free to do what you want to do in terms of constructing the parameters and the operation and the system for your program. You are absolutely free to do that. But at a minimum, you have got to provide that if a child winds up with nothing because that child's parent does not comply with the rules or does not fit into the program, that that child in the final analysis will be entitled to a voucher, the voucher is not for any adults, it is for that child, that 6-year-old, that 7-year-old, that 4-year-old even, that that child will be entitled to a voucher. Vouchers would go to a third party and it might well be an orphanage or might be somebody in the community or it might be some other system that the State establishes. We are not telling the States how to do this.

We are just telling them that there has to be this bottom-line protection and that they have an obligation to try to work out some system so that children will not fall below the level of care and subsistence that as a national community we believe is appropriate. We do not want to get to the point—and I do have the picture; I do not know if it is still here—that was demonstrated graphically in the article that talked about what we had in this country before we had a national safety net, a national commitment to safety for the children. We do not want to wind up with children sleeping in the streets and fending for themselves. This is actually a picture. This picture is not made up. And this is in the United States of America, let me point out.

This is not some foreign country, although we do, frankly, have pictures of foreign countries that do not have a child safety net and the situation of their children is dire in 1995. But this particular picture here which I would call the Chair's attention to, this is a fascinating article.

And if the Chair gets an opportunity, because I know, Mr. President, that you have a great interest in this subject, this article was written regarding turn-of-the-century America and the situation regarding child welfare in this country. This picture here was taken in Illinois, I say, in my own State, circa 1889. This is 1889.

Until the reform efforts of the late 19th century, the public largely ignored the plight of destitute children. Barefoot children wandering about the streets, boys selling newspapers, and "street arabs" sleeping on top of each other for warmth, were among the realities that forced charities to undertake measures to protect orphaned and abandoned children.

Again, I cannot imagine anybody in this Chamber wanting to go back to this type of child poverty. I do not think anybody wants to get to this again. But the only way we can keep this from happening this happening in this country is to provide for a basic safety net. And that is exactly what the child voucher amendment does.

Mr. President, one of the other issues in terms of the analysis of S. 1120, the underlying legislation, that I thought ought to command and compel our attention are the issues of the number of children that might be kicked off, if you will, because their families did not comply with the rules, either the time limit or the family cap or whatever.

The estimates are that if the bill—I will quote—if the bill were fully implemented, the States would not be able to use Federal funds to support some 3.9 million children because those children are in families that have received AFDC for longer than 5 years. This analysis takes into account that 15 percent of the entire caseload will be exempt from the 5-year limit. If the States were to impose a 24-month time limit instead of a 60-month time limit, 9 million children would be denied assistance.

Now, Mr. President, those are not my numbers. Those are the numbers from HHS. And I think those are numbers that all of the authors of S. 1120, the authors of this plan, recognize to be true. This is not made up. And so the question becomes for all of us—do we really want to take the chance that some 3.9 million children will be left to be street urchins and left to their own devices because of the time limit operation in the bill? Or more to the point, if we change the time limit and impose some other requirements—or worse yet, the States could impose a time after 24 months—if that were to happen, as many as 9 million children would be denied assistance altogether? I, for one, do not believe that is a chance that any of the Members of this body want to take.

Certainly we have some philosophical disagreements about this legislation. There are disagreements about the many constituent parts of it. But on this, Mr. President, I believe there can be no disagreement that the children are deserving of our absolute commitment, and the children are deserving of some protection, and, in passing this legislation, we will provide a minimal level of protection. And I have proposed that the way we do that is to state for the record that the States should be required to establish a child voucher program so that those children would be eligible for assistance such as food, care, and shelter.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. SANTORUM addressed the Chair. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I yield myself such time as I may consume. I would like to say that this amendment, which is similar in nature to what Senator DASCHLE had offered in his substitute, really does violate the whole principle of ending welfare as we know it. What this amendment does is continue the entitlement to welfare benefits albeit in a different form. It is not cash, it is vouchers, still an entitlement, Federal dollars to families on welfare in perpetuity. There is no time limit. So this will, in effect, end the time limit.

Now, if we are serious—I would say that the President when he offered his bill a year ago in June, although he had some loopholes, he did have a time limit. And he did, after 5 years, under some circumstances, not many, unfortunately, but some circumstances actually end welfare in the sense that the cash assistance, voucher—no further entitlement under AFDC would be continued. And to suggest that if we provide in an entitlement just for children and not for the mother that somehow the children are going to get this money and the mother or father, whoever the custodial parent, is not going to get this—I do not know many 3-years-olds who fend for themselves. The money is going to go to the parents and it is going to be a support.

Now, I would say, under the Dole modified bill, we do continue to support that family with Medicaid, with food stamps, with housing if the family qualified for housing. About 25 percent of families on AFDC qualify for Federal housing assistance, whether it is section 8 or public housing. So all of those benefits continue. And all we are doing is saying, after 5 years, after we have given you intensive training under this bill—we believe there will be intensive worker training or retraining if necessary, 3 years of work opportunity—at some point the Federal contract with the family who is in need ends. And what we are going to say is we will continue to provide food and medical care and other things if you chose not to go to work.

But at some point we are going to say we are not going to continue to provide assistance in the form of cash, or in the case of the Senator from Illinois's amendment, a voucher, which is the equivalent of cash to provide for other services that cash would be used for.

So to me this is just a backdoor attempt to continue the welfare entitlement in perpetuity. And if you understand the whole motivation, the reason the President in such dramatic fashion in 1992 stood squarely behind the idea of ending welfare as we know it, that whole concept of ending welfare as we know it was based on a time limit, a 5-year time limit on welfare. You cannot end welfare if you continue welfare, and this continues welfare. If we adopt this amendment, anyone who stands here and says, "We are ending welfare as we know it" is not telling the truth, because you continue the entitlement. It is very important that this amendment, although I understand and respect the Senator from Illinois and her desire to protect children, I suggest that you can go to cities across this country and find pictures of children in, unfortunately, the same situation today. Usually, they may not even be out on the street, because in many of these neighborhoods, they certainly would not be safe out on the street because of the violence and the degradation that we have seen in the communities that they live in.

We go back to the whole point that we are here today, and the whole point we are here today is the current system is failing the very children it is attempting to help. To suggest we are going to help children by continuing dependency, by continuing the welfare system, in a sense, with this entitlement stretching on in perpetuity, I think, just belies the fact that the system is failing.

I appreciate her concern for children, and I think everyone here who stands behind the Dole bill has that same concern for children. We honestly believe, and I think rightfully believe, that ending the entitlement to welfare, requiring work, moving people off a system which says, "We are going to maintain you in poverty," to a system that says, "We are going to move you out of poverty," that is a dynamic, time-certain system, is the way to really change the dynamics for the poor in America today and for the children in America today.

It is a philosophical difference. Many times I go back home and I have town meetings. People at my town meetings say, "Why don't you folks just work it out? You are always playing politics down here. Why don't you folks come together?"

I say to the Senator from Illinois, we did come together on one of her amendments. She was to offer three. One of the amendments we accepted. We accepted her amendment on a demonstration project, called JOLI, $25 million. We understand that that system is experiencing some success, so we agreed to accept one of her three amendments.

The other two we have very different policy differences. This is not politics. They are fundamental differences of opinion as to whether welfare is working with a system of endless entitlement, or whether we need, as the President has stated, to put some certainty of time, some commitment to the individual that welfare will be there to help for a discrete period of time to intensively try to turn someone's life around with the expectation and requirement that at some point you will move off and the social contract between the Government, whether it is the State or whether the State, hopefully under the Ashcroft provision of the Dole amendment, moves it to the private sector and has a private entity more involved in provision of welfare, whatever the case may be, we believe that that dynamic process is so possible under this amendment, that is so different than what we have seen in the past, that I am hopeful that we can defeat this amendment, keep that time-limit provision in place and move forward with this bill.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Mr. President, first, I want to thank the Senator from Pennsylvania. He is correct, the job training demonstration amendment has been accepted, and I am delighted to have been able to work with him in a bipartisan fashion.

Second, I say to him that this is not a back door around the time limit. If anything—and I want to make this point because I think it is very important to our colleagues' analysis of the child voucher amendment—if anything, this amendment is no more and no less than an insurance policy for the children.

We know there is going to be a time limit. That is written in the legislation. We know there are going to be work requirements. There may well be a family cap. We know all these things are happening, but there are so many uncertainties in this legislation, not the least of which is whether or not the parents will be able to find jobs after 5 years.

The Congressional Budget Office estimated that only 10 to 15 States could potentially meet the fiscal year 2000 work participation requirements in this legislation. They go on to say that because the bill provides States with significant flexibility to set policies that may affect caseloads, the estimate contains a high degree of uncertainty.

To the extent that there is uncertainty here, are we really prepared to say we are going to make 6-, 7-, and 8-year-olds pay for any failure of our analysis? Are we going to make them pay for the sins of their parents? Are we going to make them pay for our failure to adequately put together a system that addresses the issues that go to poverty?

The Senator from Pennsylvania, when he starts talking about this issue, starts talking about crime and violence in the communities. There are a lot of issues involved in this whole question of welfare. But I say to my colleagues once again, welfare does not stand alone in a vacuum. It is only a response to a larger issue, which is poverty, child poverty.

Our Nation has tried different approaches to the issue of dealing with child poverty and destitute children, and now we are about to try another one. We are about to try the "ending of welfare as we know it." Well, Mr. President, it is just like anything else. We all know, for example, that we are going to die, but most of us have the sense to go ahead and get an insurance policy anyway.

The fact of the matter is that this is going to change. Will we have an insurance policy for children? I submit that we should. I hope that my colleagues will agree with me, and I urge your support for the child voucher amendment.

I ask for the yeas and nays.

Mr. President, before I do, Senator LIEBERMAN has requested to be added as a cosponsor on the child voucher amendment. I ask unanimous consent that he be added as a cosponsor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Also, Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senators MURRAY and MIKULSKI be added as cosponsors to the child voucher amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. And I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The yeas and nays have been ordered on the child voucher amendment.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Mr. President, I understand we will stack the votes on these amendments; therefore, I want to move on to the second amendment in this series and get that resolved as well.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak out of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The majority leader.

THE WAR ON DRUGS

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, earlier today, the Department of Health and Human Services released the results of its 1994 National Household Survey on Drug Abuse. According to the survey, marijuana use among teenagers has nearly doubled since 1992, after 13 straight years of decline.

This troubling fact confirms what we already know: Today, our children are smoking more dope, smoking and snorting more cocaine, and smoking and shooting up more heroin than at any time in recent memory.

Unfortunately, while drug use has gone up during the past 2½ years, the Clinton administration has sat on the sidelines, transforming the war on drugs into a full-scale retreat.

The President has abandoned the moral bully pulpit, cut the staff at the drug Czar's office by nearly 80 percent, and appointed a surgeon general who believes the best way to fight illegal drugs is to legalize them. He has presided over an administration that has de-emphasized the interdiction effort, allowed the number of Federal drug prosecutions to decline, and overseen a source-country effort that the General Accounting Office describes as badly managed and poorly coordinated.

Mr. President, illegal drug use declined throughout the 1980's and early 1990's, so we know how to turn this dangerous problem around. It means sending a clear and unmistakable cultural message that drug use is wrong, stupid, and life-threatening. It means beefing up our interdiction and drug enforcement efforts. It means strengthening our work in the source countries by making clear that good relations with the United States require serious efforts to stop drug exports.

And, yes, it means leadership at the top, starting with the President of the United States.

Today's survey is yet another warning for America. We must renew our commitment to the war on drugs, with or without President Clinton as an ally.

I yield the floor.

FAMILY SELF-SUFFICIENCY ACT

The Senate continued with the consideration of the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Amendment 2472 is now pending.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Mr. President, this is kind of an interesting place to pick up, following the child voucher amendment. This, again, is separate and distinct from that. If anything, the child voucher amendment really is the most important in terms of the children.

This next amendment goes to the adults. What do we do about the parents? In that regard, as we know the underlying legislation calls for States to provide work experience, assistance in finding employment and other work preparation activities, section 402(A)(2) of the bill.

One of the uncertainties in the legislation, uncertainties that CBO spoke to, that many of the speakers on this issue have noted, is that the States have not yet geared up to do this. Only a few will be ready to move forward.

We have the example of Wisconsin. I understand in a couple of counties there they have already moved to a work assistance kind of program, an initiative. Other States have tried it. Under the Family Support Act, those kinds of work-training experiments and initiatives are encouraged.

The point is that a lot of States have not yet moved to that. The question is whether or not the States will actually do so, whether they will actually move to employment training, work preparation, work experience, assistance in finding employment for individuals. Again, the CBO estimates that there is not enough funding in the bill to do that.

This legislation says that the State should not just kick somebody off of assistance—this is as to the adults, not the children, as to the adults—the States should not kick the adults off unless they have provided work assistance.

Now, HHS has estimated that under the leadership plan, some 2.9 million people would be required to participate in a work plan under the plan. That is fine. The point is that in terms of the number of dollars to meet that participation rate there is not enough, it is also estimated we need 161 percent more dollars than presently provided in the legislation.

Clearly, there is a dissonance, a gap in the interesting goal and our intent to provide work and job training assistance and our dollars that will flow to do so. We do not know how that will come out. It creates a great uncertainty.

It seems to me that, again, as a bottom line—as to the adults—we ought to make it clear that States should not just kick people off without providing them with some assistance.

I encourage my colleagues to take a good look at this. Again, we have the numbers from CBO regarding whether or not their respective States will be able to meet the work requirements and not have a penalty. Most of the States will not. It is estimated only 10 to 15 States already are geared up sufficiently to provide the kind of work assistance that the bill, the underlying legislation, calls for.

All this amendment says is that States must provide those services in terms of job assistance and the like if they are going to cut people off at a time certain, whether it is 5 years, 2 years, 1 year, 6 months, or whatever the time limit is.

Again, this State responsibility amendment, if anything, goes to providing the parents with some comfort level that in the event there are no jobs in their area, in the event the State has not been able to get them into some kind of gainful employment, that they will not thereby lose their ability to feed themselves and to provide for their children.

I point out, Mr. President, also that this amendment only requires that the States deliver the services to those recipients that the State decides need to have those services. That is not to say they have to provide everybody with job training. The State can make decisions as to who has to go into job training or receive education.

We are not fooling with States' flexibility with this amendment. What we are saying in those instances, and there are instances where either there are no jobs or the State has not been able to figure out a way to get people transported to where the jobs are located, or, alternatively, the individual has been trained for a job but the job does not exist any longer, in the event that happens, they will not be denied assistance.

I think Mr. President, given the fact we have huge dissonances in our economy, again, this is a response to poverty this amendment is needed. It is not the answer to it but it is a start.

The answer to poverty, which is where the Senator from Pennsylvania and I are most in agreement, the answer to resolving poverty is to look at the underlying economic issues and to create an environment in which jobs get created, that people can go to and earn a sufficient living to support their families. That ought to be our objective, and I think that will be our objective as we take up these issues.

As we talk about what is our interim response to poverty, if welfare is that response, we ought to make certain that we do not wind up just throwing people over the edge of the Earth because we have failed to actually address the fundamental issue of economic dislocations.

Mr. President, I do not know if you were in committee—I know the Senator from Pennsylvania was there—the other day when we were talking about this. In my own State, there are areas of my State where there is 1 percent private employment. One percent private employment.

Mr. President, that is not a recession or depression. That is economic meltdown. If an individual lives in an area where there is 1 percent private employment, then the question becomes where, pray tell, are they going to work?

This chart shows areas of high unemployment in the city of Chicago specifically, but I was in southern Illinois just this weekend and the single biggest complaint and cry I heard there was about the huge unemployment and dislocations caused by closing of the coal mines. We had not gotten to the point of economic development there, to provide people with alternatives to working in the mines. In areas of the city of Chicago, there is a community with 72.3 percent poverty rate. Unemployment is 43.4 percent. Given the way we count unemployment numbers, that is only counting the people that have been in the job search for the last 6 months, so a lot of the people in this category have given up looking, so the numbers are even higher.

These numbers, Mr. President, again, these numbers in certain segments are even higher. Again, I point to what I thought was the most stunning, stunning example, and that was the area that had 1 percent private employment.

Until we figure out how to get capital into those communities, until we figure out how to get jobs created in those communities, we will have to do something. I dare say the States will have to come up with transportation initiatives to move people out of their neighborhoods to neighborhoods where the jobs are or figure out some public service; they will have to work through these plans.

That is the whole import of this devolution of welfare, sending it to the States, is tell them, "You go figure this out."

As we do that, the question becomes, what about these individuals that get caught up and for whom there are no options? I dare say, Mr. President, we have an obligation to see to it that these individuals—and, again, every State has them, I have numbers even for the Presiding Officer's State—but as we go through this experiment, I do not think we have the luxury of being generous with the suffering of others, and that we want to really, really put ourselves in a position where people who want to work but cannot find work wind up with absolutely nothing and with no help from their State in helping them to do better and to do for themselves and to provide for themselves and their families.

With that, Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on the second State responsibility amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, the Senator from Illinois knows how much I appreciate her efforts and how much she tries to do good here on the floor. Certainly, what she is talking about here is something that is very alluring and very tempting, if you do not care where the moneys are coming from, if you do not really care about trying to reach a position whereby we live within our means.

Under the Moseley-Braun amendment that is currently being debated, it prohibits the States from imposing a time limit if the States fail to provide job-related services, that is work experience, work preparation activities. So, if the State fails to do that, then the State cannot impose a time limit on how long a person has to get to work.

The things that can be said for this amendment, it seems to me, are that a State should not be able to cut recipients off without providing them training to become self-sufficient. And the second point would be the States will not be willing to spend money on recipients that need extensive services. At least that is the argument.

But when you look at the other side of the argument, that is, when you have to stop and think is this the right thing to do if we want to get spending under control, if we want to have a true welfare reform, if we want everybody on a equal level, if we want a level playing field and everybody understands the rules and lives within them, then you have to look at the fact that this, some believe, and I am one of them, is a back-door attempt at continuing the entitlement.

Let us be honest about it. Entitlement programs have been eating the budget alive. They go on and on, up and up, without any controls, no ceilings, no lids, no nothing. Gradually, demand always outstrips supply when you make something free. That is just the way it is. It is human nature. People take advantage. And this would really allow an entitlement program to continue.

Second, it would create a new entitlement which requires States to provide services. One of the reasons we are doing this welfare reform bill is to try to end these escalating entitlement programs, to get spending under control, face our problems, but face them within an authorization process that says this is the limit to where we are going, we are not going to go beyond that. We are going to be fair, we are going to try to take care of people—we do not want anybody to be without a work life experience, we do not want to have people without appropriate training—but this is what we are going to spend this year. If we find that does not cut it, does not make it, we can always increase the authorization and appropriation to take care of it. But we do not need to create new entitlement programs which are programs that go on regardless of what Congress says. They keep going up and up and up as people take advantage of them.

The third point is this opens the States up to lawsuits from recipients who claim they do not get the type of training they want, rather than the type of training the State thinks they need. So any time a recipient or potential recipient feels he or she is not getting what they want, even though the State is providing job training and other forms of training and education, they can turn around and sue the State and say, "I am not getting what I want," and the State finds itself embroiled in litigation.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. HATCH. That is not the way it should work.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Will the Senator from Utah yield?

Mr. HATCH. I will be happy to yield.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. This section of the bill, 402 of the legislation, refers to the State and the definition of the eligible State. It would be my understanding of the operation of law that here, this would not confer standing upon an individual to sue. This section of the bill relates to the State's obligations vis-a-vis its development of its plan. So this is not calling on the States to do anything but abide by its own plan. It would not, however, confer standing on an individual to sue with regard to enforcement of that plan.

Mr. HATCH. As I read it, it does; it is the failure of the State to provide work-related activity. The amendment reads:

The limitation described in paragraph (1) shall not apply to a family receiving assistance under this part if the State fails to provide the work experience, assistance in finding employment, and other work preparation activities and support services described in [this] section.

I contend that does give a right to sue to recipients.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Again, this section amends lines 13 through 18 on page 25 of the bill which relates to State planning. Again, without debating—

Mr. HATCH. No, according to this amendment, it amends page 40 between lines 16 and 17.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. I am sorry, that is correct.

Mr. HATCH. If I go to page 40, amending section requirements and limitations and put this in between lines 16 and 17, the Senator provides for an entitlement. It seems to me the Senator provides for a means whereby people can bring litigation if they do not get their way. That just is not the way we can run the business here.

We have to presume that when we provide these funds, the States are going to utilize them properly and they are going to provide job training or work-related programs that work. What you do is make it another entitlement, which is what is eating our country alive.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. No, sir—will the Senator yield?

Mr. HATCH. Sure.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Again, on page 43, lines 16 to 17, those sections refer to the development of the State plan, and the amendment says the limitation described in paragraph (1) shall not apply to a family if the State fails to provide work experience, assistance in finding employment, and other work preparation activities, support services described in section 402(a)(1)(A)(ii).

Again, the issue of standing is a different one. Whether we argue—we can debate the issue on the entitlement, whether or not this creates an entitlement. But on the issue of standing, I think for the record it is really important to make clear this is not allowing and it is not the intent of this sponsor to allow an individual cause of action, right of action under this section. It only goes to the development of the State's plan and administration of the plan.

Mr. HATCH. If you look at the way it is written, it certainly does. Frankly, that is one of the reasons—only one of the reasons—I think the amendment is inadvisable, even though I have to acknowledge I appreciate what the distinguished Senator is trying to do. But we just plain—I think the big argument is, this is another entitlement that continues to go on and on and escalate on and on, and to which there is no lid, there is no cap. It is a never-ending type thing that just puts us into even more of a budgetary difficulty than we have been in before.

All of us want to help people who do not have the training. We know the way to get people off welfare is to get them trained; give them job training, give them the education, the vocational education and other things that will help them to become self-supporting, self-sufficient citizens.

But we want to get away from the entitlement approach, which just allows people to make ingenious arguments that they should have something that really the State has not provided or does not think it is advisable to provide. I do believe, if you read this carefully, it is subject to litigation.

But be that as it may, the fourth reason I would give as to why we really should not support this amendment is that this is similar to the Daschle bill, in that it says there is a time limit, but there are so many exemptions that there is not really a time limit.

The major exemption is this. It creates a loophole. Those who are deemed by the State as work ready can insist on going through job training and other services in order to avoid work in the private sector. That is one of the things that this amendment will do. And there are people who take advantage after advantage after advantage of the job training and other services, rather than having to go get a job in the private sector and work every day and do what they should do, support themselves and/or their families if they have a family.

Again, I have to say that I know what the distinguished Senator is doing. I know her heart is right. I know she is trying to do what is right. But it is a difference in philosophy.

We have had 60 years now of entitlement programs that have been eating the American public, the taxpayers, alive and not doing the job. They are not doing the job. In fact, they are doing a lousy job, and they are eating us alive, they are ruining the country. And now we are going to add another entitlement to this when we write a bill that literally will get job training and other related services to the people as they need it. And we have the States develop and administer these programs. The States are in a better position to do it than the Federal Government.

Just look at what entitlements have meant. We are talking about just AFDC spending. They are not all entitlements. From 1947 to 1995, in current dollars, we have gone since 1947 in AFDC spending from $106 million—that is current dollars—to $18 billion. And we are worse off today than we were then. That is a 17,000-percent increase, a lot of which is driven by the entitlement nature of a number of these programs.

If you use constant dollars, constant 1995 dollars, it would go from $697 million in 1947 to $18 billion. That is a 2,500-percent increase.

So, if you take current dollars, it is a 17,000-percent increase; constant dollars, based on 1995, would be a 2,500-percent increase.

Of course, the source of this is the Congressional Research Service of June 1995. It shows how these programs tend to run away if we do not write language in that requires the States to live within their means. In this particular case, this language would not require the States to live within their means. As a matter of fact, it allows the States and it allows the individuals to continue to run wild as we have in the past without any sense or protection to the taxpayers.

Everybody knows that in my whole career, 19 years here, I have worked hard for on-the-job training, the Job Corps, the whole bit. We now have over 150 job training programs in this country. Every time we turn around, we create another one. A lot of them are entitlements.

This welfare bill should try to consolidate some of these to reduce the entitlement nature of our legislative process and reduce the burden on the taxpayers. Frankly, we are a lot better off facing the music every year and having the States have to face the music within certain caps, albeit sometimes entitlement caps but nevertheless caps, and go on from there.

I encourage our fellow Senators to not vote for this amendment because I think it just continues business as usual. I have to admit it is well-intentioned but naturally it is bad. I commend my friend for her good intentions. But it still undermines the basic thrust of what we are trying to do here, getting spending under control while being compassionate, reasonable, and decent for people who need to get off welfare rolls and get on to the work rolls.

We think the exemption and the back-door loophole here really undermines what we are trying to do.

So I encourage folks to vote against this amendment as much as I appreciate and respect my friend from Illinois.

Can I just say one other thing about it? This amendment does not amend the State plan provisions. The State plan provisions are found in section 402. This amends section 405 following the minor child exemption and the hardship exemption.

So, as such, it is an entitlement, and, as such, it gives the right of litigation that would not otherwise be, that I talked about that lets the individuals second-guess the State. I know in some of the States there are lawsuits by recipients that do not get the type of training that they want rather than what the State thinks they should have. I think those are important points.

It is for the totality of those reasons why we should vote this amendment down.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ABRAHAM). Who yields time?

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Mr. President, it is pretty clear certainly that it is a very difficult thing to argue with the chairman of the Judiciary Committee, a man for whom I have the highest regard and affection. And, quite frankly, I do not know if I would want to, but at this point I am going to have to respectfully disagree with my senior colleague, the chairman of the Judiciary Committee. As a lawyer I am reading the same language also.

Again, to the Senator from Utah, just on this point, I will make it and move on because there are other larger points to be made about this amendment.

Section 405 of the legislation referred to the State requirement, the State plan, and the time limitation. All that this amendment does is to call on the States to do what it says it is going to do in the plans. It does not create a private right of action. We could argue that until the cows come home and probably put everybody else to sleep who may be listening to this debate. But rather than do that, I would like to go on. But I did want to make the point that it is this Senator's intention and this Senator's reading of the law that it does not create a private right of action.

To move on, I think it is interesting to note that a lot of the debate and a lot of the argument against this amendment that I am hearing has to do with the word "entitlement" and what is an entitlement and what is not. I find a very curious kind of logic underlying the opposition which says we have failed to address and resolve the issue of poverty and employability of people. Therefore, we are going to give up. We are going to say we are out of the business. We are going to give it to the States, cap the amount of money they can spend on this stuff, and it is their problem. That, it seems to me, really kind of begs the question in terms of what are we going to do.

Assuming for a moment that the State plan has a job and work requirement, I do not think anybody here would argue that people who can work should work, that people who have the ability to go to work ought to do that, and that States ought to require them to do that. I do not think there is much argument there.

But assuming for a moment the State plan calls for work assistance and the State does not give that work assistance and then after whatever the time limit is—right now it is 5 years in the bill, and it may, not too long before this legislative process is over, change—but assuming for a moment that the time limit is met and the individual has gotten nothing, the State has not done what it is supposed to do under its own plan, that person then is not only denied subsistence but, more to the point, that individual's children are denied subsistence.

I mean let us talk about who the object is here. We have 5 million adults. Paint a picture of the people on welfare in poverty in this country. Again, we have the numbers here regarding poverty in the United States. It is a number about which none of us should be proud. But in any event, we have some 14 million recipients, people on the welfare program, and 14.2 million give or take. Of that 14.2 million people, 9.6 million are children.

So we are going to construct all of this stuff to get to the parents, that the parents have to go to work, which, again, we are not arguing about that. But we are not going to give them any help.

The State plan says they should go to work and the States are going to help them. We just might not do that, and it would risk these 9 million children. You talk about putting the cart before the horse. You are hurting potentially—we do not know this to be the case. I hope, frankly, the most optimistic projection turns out to be true. I hope that every State plan works, and I hope that every State is able to find people jobs, and I hope that parents who are right now drug addicted, irresponsible, and ripping off the taxpayers turn around, straighten up, and fly right, do the right thing, and take care of their own children. That is what we all hope for.

But the question is, are we really going to allow for all those 10 million babies to be jeopardized, to be left with the potential of no subsistence at all because of the sense of the parents, or, worse yet, for the sense of the State in not helping the States, which the State says it wants to do?

That is what these two amendments are about. I mean, these are different amendments. That is kind of where it is.

Are we going to jeopardize the children? I think the bottom line is that we could have a consensus that children will not be hurt.

I point out that in fiscal year 1992—I think this is an important point—42 percent of the youngest children in these welfare families were under the age of 3.

So I would say to my colleague, if you are not going to support enforcing work training for their parents, at a minimum support an insurance policy for the kids; an insurance policy for children so that, worse come to worse, if all else fails, the State does not provide assistance for the work training or the family cap gets violated, the mother keeps having babies, whatever situation happens, at a minimum we have a safety net for children.

Now, is that an entitlement? Well, you may want to call it that, but it seems to me that one of the issues for our time is whether or not as a national community we have an obligation to provide for destitute children. We do not have the orphanages for them. We do not have the private sector options for them. We really do not have any mechanisms in place. It seems to me that we have an obligation at a very minimum to provide those children with some options and, on the other hand, with regard to their parents, to provide the parents with some job training.

I submit to my colleagues, let us separate out—as we try to get at the 5 million parents, let us not jeopardize the 10 million kids.

And with that, I again yield to the Senator from Utah.

Mr. HATCH addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. HATCH. I yield to myself such time as I need.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, again, the major issue here is this is another entitlement program. I do not think the American people realize how many entitlement programs we have in the Federal Government as we exist right now. I am going to talk generally, and I think these figures are pretty accurate.

Today, in the Federal Government, there are approximately 410 entitlement programs—410. The bottom 400 will total about $50 billion in spending. They are relatively small programs. Most of them are under $10 billion each, although to me that is a fairly substantial program. But the bottom 400 are costing us $50 billion and going up every year.

The top four entitlement programs currently in our country today—these are programs that automatically go up no matter what the Congress does. Year after year after year, this Congress basically has not been able to restrain the growth of spending. The top four entitlement programs are as of fiscal year 1994, to make that clear, No. 1, Social Security. Social Security in 1994 cost us around $333 billion, and it is going up and everybody knows it. It is going up dramatically, and everybody knows it.

No. 2 is Medicare. When we first enacted it, those who argued for Medicare said it would be a relatively small cost. If I recall correctly, it was somewhere between $10 and $20 billion a year. It is now up to $177 billion a year as of 1994. Of course, it is more this year, in fiscal year 1995.

So Social Security is $333 billion. Medicare in 1994 was $177 billion. Medicaid, which also was supposed to be a relatively low figure, to take care of people who really need help, who were low-income people, low-income seniors as well, and some who are persons with disabilities, now costs us, in 1994, $96 billion.

Other retirement programs are entitlement programs costing us $65 billion as of 1994. These big four, plus interest, will be about $900 billion in 1995.

The point I am making is that about 400 programs cost us about $50 billion. These four will cost us $900 billion. And as you all know, they are going up.

Take Medicare. Medicare, at $177 billion last year, if we keep going the way we are going, will be off the charts by the year 2002. We are trying to restrain the growth, not cut Medicare, but restrain the growth from its current 10.4 percent approximately a year down to about 6.4 percent—above the rate of inflation, by the way. And already, because we have announced we are trying to restrain the growth of that entitlement program, some of the hospitals and others are trying to find ways of restraining the growth, just because we are saying it has to be done. Can you imagine if we pass legislation that says it has to be done? They are going to have to live within the 6.4, which is about 2½ percent above the inflation rate.

Some of our colleagues on the other side want the 10.4 to keep going on, which will eat this country alive. And I am going to make that point. And it is true of all of these big four entitlement programs. Let me just make the point. The big four entitlements, plus interest, were—

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. HATCH. They were and they will be if we do not pass the balanced budget—

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Will the Senator yield just for 1 second?

Mr. HATCH. Sure.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Is it not the case AFDC is not one of the top, one of big four entitlements?

Mr. HATCH. It is not. Neither will the Senator's amendment be, but it still is an entitlement program, and we need to stop doing entitlements. Let me make my point.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Will the Senator yield? The Senator is including Social Security and Medicare and Medicaid.

Mr. HATCH. Including all entitlement programs to make this point, because it makes the point that we have to face the music someday. We cannot just keep entitling our runaway budget.

Now, we are going to continue Social Security the way it is. I do not think anybody here is going to change it. We are trying to make some changes in Medicare, maybe Medicaid. And I do not know of any changes in the retirement programs. But there is an effort to try to restrain the growth of runaway spending.

One of the reasons it has run away is an entitlement program—now, true, this would be one of the less than $10 billion programs, although it would rapidly escalate as an entitlement program. I just make this one point. I am just trying to make this point on how entitlements are eating us alive and why as a principle we want to stop making things legislative entitlements.

The big four entitlement programs, plus interest, were 25 percent of total spending back in 1965—25 percent of total Federal spending. By 1975, they were 36 percent of total Federal spending. By fiscal year 1985, they were 47 percent of total Federal spending, going up every year. By fiscal year 1995—this is just the big four, just the big four—Social Security, Medicaid, Medicare, and retirement—they will be almost 60 percent of the total Federal budget. And by fiscal year 2005, these entitlement programs will be almost 70 percent, not counting the 400 smaller entitlement programs that automatically will be going up themselves unless we put a lid on it and say we are not going to go the entitlement route anymore.

We know that Social Security is going to keep going up the way it is. We know that Medicare is going to go up dramatically even if we are successful in restraining the growth from 10.4 percent down to about 6.2, 6.4 percent—above inflation, by the way, is that figure. We know Medicaid is going to keep going up, and we know other retirement programs are going to keep going up. In fact, the 400 programs will keep going up unless we put some restraint of growth and unless we stop the entitlement nature of these programs and face the authorization and appropriations process every year as good legislators should.

I wanted to make that point because as sincere as the distinguished Senator from Illinois is, and I know she is, and as compassionate as she is—and I feel the same way—I think the bill has better language to take care of these problems with less problems than will arise if we enact her amendment. And the principle of stopping these entitlement programs to the extent we can ought to be observed.

That is why I suggest we have just got to bite the bullet around here and we have to do what is right. I have also made the point that there are other reasons why the amendment is one that should not be supported. The main reason is it is another entitlement program.

I understand we differ on whether it entitles recipients to bring litigation. But be that as it may, there is no time limit, no real time limit in this amendment because those who are deemed by the State as work ready will be able to insist on going to job training rather than taking a job. Then they can avoid working in the private sector, something we want to stop. We want people who are ready and able to work; to work. And that is what this bill is going to try to get done. I think it makes a valiant and very intelligent attempt to do so. And it should not be changed into another entitlement program.

I yield the floor.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Thank you, Mr. President.

The Senator from Utah and I find ourselves singing from the same choir book sometimes and other times singing on different pages. But certainly with regard to our need to balance our budget and get our fiscal house in order, he and I could not be more in agreement.

We were on this floor together during the debate on the balanced budget amendment, both of us supporting moving in the direction of a balanced budget. But how one gets to a balanced budget, gets on a glidepath to some fiscal integrity—and fiscal integrity is as important as getting there. So the question becomes, what are our priorities and how will we approach the difficult issues as we are trying to get our fiscal house in order? How are we going to approach that task?

Let me suggest that we not do it on the backs of children and that we not target and single out poor people for our exercise in newfound frugality and our exercise in fiscal right thinking. The fact of the matter is—and let us talk about the numbers for a minute because it is very important. In the first instance, AFDC is not one of the big four entitlements. Those big four entitlements will be the topic of many upcoming floor discussions. I served as a member of the bipartisan commission on taxes and on entitlement and tax reform, and, yes, we have some serious and thorny issues to deal with. But AFDC is not one of those big four entitlements.

Indeed, in 1969, Aid to Families With Dependent Children took up some 3.1 percent of our Federal budget. In 1994 it had declined. I know this is counterintuitive. This does not comport with what the talk shows will tell you. But the reality is that the numbers showed it had declined to 1.1 percent of the budget. The fact of the matter is that over time the amount of AFDC payments have not kept up with inflation and have declined some 47 percent in the last 25 years.

And let me give you another fact that may sound counterintuitive. In 1993, the total cost-benefits, plus administration, Federal and State—Federal and State; this is everybody—the total cost was $25.24 billion, which is an amount equivalent to 1.8 percent of Federal Government outlays. That is total, State and Federal. The Federal Government's share of AFDC costs came to $13.79 billion in 1993, or 0.98 percent of total Federal outlays.

So what we are talking about is less than 1 percent of total Federal outlays that can have a devastating, devastating effect on the almost 10 million children in this country who receive assistance.

Again, my colleagues have argued that our efforts so far have not worked. And indeed, if anything, one of the more distressing and depressing charts—and I do not think I have a large version of this, Mr. President—but this one talks about the percentage of low-income children lifted out of poverty. It has got Sweden, 79.7 percent; Germany, 66.7 percent; the Netherlands, 73 percent; France 78.2 percent; the United Kingdom 73.5 percent; Australia, 45.1 percent; Canada 40.8 percent; United States, 8.5 percent, under 10 percent.

We have done less with our wealth and the efforts that have been started to try to fix this situation and to address poverty and have barely gotten underway before we got into the debate about "getting rid of welfare as we know it." Here we are in a situation of saying, well, we have not come up with a magic potion or the silver bullet to deal with the issue of poverty, and so we are going to junk our commitment altogether.

All these amendments say—it does not say we are going to spend more money. In fact, the legislation has a ceiling on the amount of money that will be spent in this area. It does not say that anybody is entitled to stay on forever. In fact, if anything—again, the issue here—the legislation is time limited, may well have family caps, and it may have other kinds of limitation that the States will develop. All these amendments say is that when all is said and done, no child in these United States will be allowed to go without food, without shelter, without subsistence.

And it also then says, that is after the 10 million people, almost 10 million children, on assistance, receiving assistance, as to their 5 million parents, it says no parent will be kicked off for failing to meet a work requirement if the State has not lived by its own words in terms of supporting work.

I yield to the distinguished Senator from New York, Senator MOYNIHAN.

Mr. MOYNIHAN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I rise with the most emphatic support of the amendment of the distinguished, learned Senator from Illinois, who brings to us the central subject of this legislation, which is children and what will happen to them under the provisions we are discussing.

I have two charts which I would like to suggest involves the central issue of the number of families that would be affected by a 5-year time limit. This is the work of the Urban Institute, established almost 30 years ago when it was thought we would address these issues at a time when they were—Franklin Roosevelt might have said it—"a cloud no bigger than a man's hand," that would come into the situation we are today of the number of families who would lose their benefits, who would see a 5-year time limit reach them.

In the year 2001, a total of 1.4 million families; make it almost 2 million, 2.5 million children. In 2002, 1.65; make that 3 million children.

This is the Urban Institute, Mr. President. This is not a political document. It is not one that is even touched by the necessary differences and tensions between the executive branch and the legislative branch. This is the Urban Institute, under William Gorham, with whom I worked on the task force that produced the Economic Opportunity Act of 1965. Bill Gorham and I worked together. He never stopped working at this. He has created an institute of impeccable standards. No one will ever say that we have got the most perfect measuring systems, but we have peer review, we have measures of degrees of confidence in data. And the numbers are overwhelming.

In the year 2003, 1.8 million families; 2004, 1.9 million; 2005, 1.96 million—call it 2 million families, and call that 5 million children. The 2 million is an estimate; the 1.96 is exact. I am making a round number. Five million children with no provision for their support, with their support in some sense illegal—certainly not contemplated, certainly not desired by this legislation. Are we to believe that my friend from Utah, who is as compassionate and understanding a man, a member of our congregation 19 years ago on this subject—this is what has happened. And this is why it would happen and where it would happen. The numbers are startling.

The proportion of children receiving AFDC—I would like to bring this around so my friend can see it. My friend from Illinois has seen it in the past. This is what we are dealing with. Thirty years ago when the OEO legislation was adopted, when the Urban Institute was established, we were talking about numbers so small that you could say let them be done by church, let them be done by localities, let them be done by municipalities.

In Baltimore, MD, in the course of a year, 56 percent of all children receive AFDC. At any given moment, 43 percent are receiving it.

In Detroit, MI, in the course of a year, 67 percent, numbers that we have not contemplated. This is a time of continued economic prosperity, in the aftermath of a half-century in which we basically have managed the business cycle. We have had pockets of unemployment, but unemployment ranged at very comfortable levels. The level of employment is high.

In Los Angeles, 38 percent, Los Angeles, the setting of all those grand houses, remarkable neighborhoods, 38 percent.

Philadelphia, I do wish my friend from Pennsylvania were here so I could say to him, in Philadelphia, 57 percent of the children are on AFDC at some point during the course of a year.

In my own city of New York, 39 percent; New Orleans, 47 percent; Milwaukee, 53 percent; Memphis, 45 percent; Cleveland, 66 percent. These numbers overwhelm a social system. It cannot handle it.

Should we have ever gotten to this point? I do not say we should have. Should we have done more? Yes, we should have. Have we done some things? Yes, we have. We have certainly committed the Federal Government to this issue.

I was reading this morning the statement in the Washington Post by Judith Gueron, president of Manpower Development Research Corp., as the Senator from Illinois well knows. She was saying, "Look, we are learning to do these things." She talked about Riverside, talked about Atlanta, talked about Grand Rapids, Family Support Act, jobs programs, working, getting hold, finally getting it.

The Senator will remember the director from Riverside, CA, where President Bush visited 3 years ago. There was a button: "Life works if you work," getting the sense that welfare offices should be employment offices. If only people had been a little more gracious to Frances Perkins, and if only Frances Perkins had been a little less willing to accommodate whatever President Roosevelt seemed to need at the time, the AFDC Program would be in the Department of Labor. The Social Security Act, with its retirement benefits, unemployment insurance, dependent children was to be in the Department of Labor, but there was the suspicion of labor, and such, and the underestimate of Mrs. Perkins' enormous ability. She said, "All right, we will have an independent agency." Had it not been, right now, when you walk into a welfare office, you would be in a U.S. Employment Service office, but it did not happen. But it is happening again.

The Daschle bill contemplated the first thing you do when you arrive at the welfare office is, how are we going to get you a job? But right now, not to see the enormity of this problem, the dimension of this problem, to think we can turn it back, cut it back and turn it back without huge costs to children is baffling to me.

I thank God the Senator from Illinois is here. I hope she will be heard, and if she is not, pray God for the children.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Mr. President, since we have additional time left over, I would like to engage the Senator from New York, who is a world renowned expert in this area. He has spoken to the fundamental issues of, again, how we respond to poverty and, how it is necessary to take this conversation away from the hot buttons and the catchwords and talk a little bit about the demographic data that really underlie the reality of what we are doing here.

There is a social issue and an issue of policy and an issue, really, of the kind of country we are going to have.

So I raise with my colleague, who has studied these data, this issue, just this graph. I know he has seen this before.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Yes.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Percentage of low-income children lifted out of poverty. Our country, America, does so much worse, less well than others.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Time has expired.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for 5 minutes and that Senator MOYNIHAN might respond to the question.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Mr. President, in the Senator's view, will the pending legislation resolve the disparity between the United States response to poverty vis-a-vis the other industrialized nations in the world?

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, to respond to my friend from Illinois, I can only offer a judgment of a better part of a lifetime dealing with these matters, that it would make it hugely worse. We would be off that chart. We would be an anomaly among the developed nations of the world. We would be an object of disdain and disbelief. I can say no more.

I yield the floor.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. I thank the Senator very much. I will say a little more in response to that. We have an opportunity to provide a bottom line below which no child in America will be allowed to fall. I, therefore, ask my colleagues' support for the pending child voucher amendment, as well as the worker responsibility amendment.

Mr. HATCH addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I have listened to my friend from New York. I do not think there is anybody on this floor who has a greater background and knowledge in this area. So, naturally, I am very concerned about the statistics and facts that he has brought forward.

So I appreciate the efforts made by the distinguished Senator from Illinois. I would never ignore her remarks or those of my friend from New York, who, like I say, has as much knowledge and background in this area. We have to strengthen our budget and move toward a balanced budget, or no amount of money is going to be worth anything, because we will monetize the debt and, in the end, the dollar will go to zero. That is where we are headed if we do not do some intelligent things now.

These are tough choices. I believe that the approach Senator DOLE is taking is about as good as one as we can take at this time. I wish we could do more. The fact is that we have to find the dollars and be able to do more. We cannot lose sight of the fact that we are working toward a balanced budget.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. I ask unanimous consent that the pending amendment be temporarily laid aside.

AMENDMENT NO. 2473

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. I ask unanimous consent that we proceed to the consideration of amendment No. 2473.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Mr. President, I understand that this amendment has been accepted by the other side.

I urge its adoption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

So the amendment (No. 2473) was agreed to.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I move to lay that on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. GRAMS). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, what is the current parliamentary status of the Senate?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Amendments numbered 2471 and 2472 are currently pending, and all time for debate on those amendments has expired.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, is there unanimous consent for time for disposition of subsequent amendments?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under regular order, time has expired on these two amendments. The next amendment is the Graham-Bumpers amendment, and there is no time limit on that amendment.

Mr. GRAHAM. Thank you, Mr. President.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the two pending amendments be set aside for the purposes of considering amendment No. 2565.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GRAHAM. Thank you, Mr. President.

AMENDMENT NO. 2565

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, amendment No. 2565 has been sent to the desk pursuant to the filing requirement of last week.

Mr. President, this evening with my colleague Senator BUMPERS, we rise to offer an amendment to the pending amendment of Senator DOLE which would dramatically affect the fairness of the funding allocations to the States under this legislation. We describe our amendment as the children's fair share amendment.

Our approach is simple. We believe that the funding to the individual States, and therefore to their children, should be needs based. As a result of our formula, States would receive funding based on the number of poor children within that State in the particular year in which they received funding.

There are two modifications to that basic principle: that funds should be allocated where poor children are in the year of distribution. Recognizing the fact that this legislation imposes some very serious mandates on States, particularly in areas of preparing persons for work, and to be able to meet specific numerical goals for the percentage of welfare beneficiaries who are employed, we believe that there is a minimum amount of funds required for any State in order to meet those obligations. Therefore, we provide that no State will receive less than either 0.6 percent of the national allocation, or twice the actual amount of that State's 1994 expenditure level, whichever is less. That will assure that all States will have a basic amount of funds in order to discharge their responsibility.

The second principal modification from the pure principle of allocating funds where poor children are located is that all States, except those covered by the small State allocation, will be subject to a transitional period by which their increases in funding in any year would be limited to no more than 50-percent of what they had received in fiscal year 1994 for fiscal year 1996, or no more than a 50-percent increase in fiscal year 1997 over what they received in 1996 and so forth. The purpose of this is to provide for a 4-year transition period in order to get to the goal of parity for all poor children in America.

The savings from this allocation of increased ceiling would exceed that for the small State minimum allocation. The net effect of these adjustments would be reallocated among the States which receive less than their 1994 actual expenditure.

Any formula allocation should be guided by some underlying principles and policy justifications. One fundamental principle of the Federal Government allocating money to its citizens through the States should be fairness—fairness to America's children, fairness to the States, and fairness to the Nation.

There is another principle which should be applicable in this legislation; that is, will the distribution of funds allow the fundamental objective of the legislation to be attained? The objective of this legislation is to facilitate the movement of welfare beneficiaries from dependency to independence through work. Will the funds as allocated to the 50 States, and available to them in order to meet that objective, be equitable? If we are going to a block grant, welfare we must be very careful that these principles, particularly the principle of fairness, fairness to children, is met.

The General Accounting Office noted in its report of February 1995 entitled "Block Grants: Characteristics, Experience, and Lessons Learned," that "because initial funding allocations used in current block grants were based on prior categorical grants, they were not necessarily equitable."

Senator BUMPERS and I propose a funding formula that would clearly meet the following principles: block grant funding should reflect need or the number of persons in the individual States who require assistance. The principle No. 1 of a block grant program should be to reflect need or the number of persons in the individual States requiring assistance.

A second principle of block grants should be that a State's access to Federal funding should increase if the number of persons in need of assistance increases and decrease if the number of persons requiring assistance declines.

Third, States should not be permanently disadvantaged based upon policy choices and circumstances which were prevalent in years prior to the block grant.

And fourth, if requirements and penalties and public ridicule are to be imposed upon States, as I envisage will be the case with the bill of Senator DOLE, then fairness dictates that all States have an equitable and reasonable chance of reaching those goals.

If I might comment about public ridicule, one of the provisions in the original version of this legislation—and I believe that it is retained in the modified version—is that there will be periodic evaluations of how the 50 States are conducting their business under a reformed welfare.

States will be ranked assumedly from 1 to 50 as to how well they are doing in terms of achieving the objectives of moving people from dependence to independence. Yet, we are going to be saying to some States you start this process, as with Mississippi, with $331 per year per poor child in your State, another State will start this process with $3,248 per poor child per year. And yet we are going to publish a report analogous to an Associated Press rating of football teams how well each State did in meeting the directives, the mandates, the goals of this legislation. It would be as if one State was able to field a fully professional team and another State had to find a group of junior high school beginners to play this game. Yet, they are both going to be subject to the same evaluation. That is the public ridicule I suggest is going to be a consequence of this inequitable funding formula.

The test by which States should be evaluated would seem reasonable. In sharp contrast, the amendment as offered by Senator DOLE fails to meet any and every test of fairness of a block grant. In fact, the formula used in the Dole amendment would perpetuate the inequities of the status quo.

What are some of the problems with the amendment that is before us as offered by Senator DOLE? The authors of the leadership proposal have failed to learn the lessons cited by the General Accounting Office and other experts who have examined block grants. They have chosen to distribute welfare funds to States well into the future based on fiscal year 1994 allocations.

Ironically, in the name of change and in the name of reform, we are locking in past inequities in distribution of Federal funds. We are repackaging them as block grants. We are punting welfare to the States and failing to take into account future population or economic changes among the States and failing to give the States an opportunity within a reasonable period of time to achieve parity and equity in the treatment of the poor children within those States.

By allocating future spending on the basis of 1994 allocation, the Dole bill fails to distribute money based on any measure of current or future need. It fails to account for population growth and economic changes. It would permanently disadvantage States well into the future based on choices and circumstances made in the past. And it would unfairly impose penalties on States. The Dole allocation is essentially based on the status quo.

How was the status quo arrived at? How did we end up with a system in which one State gets $3,248 per year per poor child and another State gets $331?

The answer is that we had a system which had as one of its principal objectives to encourage those States that were able, capable and willing to invest substantial amounts of funds in their cash assistance to welfare beneficiary programs. Since we are in a nation which, unfortunately, has huge disparities in capability as well as in political will from State to State, we have ended up with huge disparities in terms of Federal funds for poor children. The basic formula has been that for every dollar a State would put up, there would be a Federal match.

For the most affluent States, the matching rate is 50-50—a dollar from the State draws down a dollar from the Federal Government. For States that are less affluent, they have a somewhat richer matching rate, going all the way up to the poorest State being able to get 83 Federal dollars for every 17 State dollars. And based on that formula we have ended up with a situation as it was in 1994 and as it is almost proposed to be continued into the indefinite future.

One other modification has been made to that, however, Mr. President, and that is that a group of some 19

States which had the characteristics of either growing at a rate faster than the Nation as a whole—and there are some 17 States that met that standard—or States which were more than 35 percent below the average of the Nation in terms of funds per poor individual received a bonus and that bonus is 2.5 percent growth beginning in the third year of this 5-year plan.

So beginning in the third year, if you have been receiving $100 million, you got $102.5 million, and a similar 2.5-percent adjustment in the fourth and the fifth year. That adjustment distributes approximately $800 to $900 million over the 5-year period, concentrated in the third, fourth and fifth year of the 5-year period.

The status quo plan, the plan that is based on funds as they were distributed in 1994, will distribute approximately $85 billion over that same 5-year period. So the amount of funds that are intended to represent poverty and growth are a pittance compared to the enormous amount of money that is going to be invested in continuing the status quo as it was in 1994.

The consequence of this allocation is this map that is called "Children's Fair Share Allocations." The States in red on this map benefit by using a formula based on status quo and the modest adjustment which I have indicated. The States in yellow are the loser States in that allocation and, conversely, would benefit if the funds were distributed on the basis of where poor children in America live.

Mr. President, the current proposal before us, the formula of Senator DOLE, would result in extreme disparity between States in Federal funding for poor children. For example, Mississippi would receive $331 per child in 1996 compared to an affluent northeastern State's $2,036 per poor child.

Let me repeat that. Mississippi, $331; an affluent Northeast State, $2,036; an affluent far Northwestern State, $3,248.

In effect, those affluent States would receive six times or more funding per poor child than the poor State of Mississippi. Even under the formula of Senator DOLE, Massachusetts—another affluent Northeastern State—would receive $2,177 per poor child. If you combine the per child total from five other States—you combine the amount that a poor child in Alabama, in Arkansas, in Louisiana, in South Carolina, and in Texas, if you combine what those children would receive in a year—that total would not equal what a poor child, a single poor child in Massachusetts would get in a single year.

To state it another way, the Federal Government effectively values poor children of that affluent State five times more than it does the children of Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, South Carolina, and Texas. There is no justification for poor children to be treated with less or more value by the Federal Government depending on the State in which they happen to live.

The proponents of the Dole formula will argue that some States will qualify for the 2.5 percent adjustment in the bill to address these disparities. However, a sizable number of States that are not treated fairly under the current system would receive zero remedy from the limited, inadequate 2.5 percent adjustment feature. Those States which would get zero remedy from the 2.5 percent adjustment include Kentucky, Oklahoma, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Nebraska, West Virginia, Kansas, and North Dakota. All of those States are well below average Federal funding per poor child, yet would get no benefit from the proposed remedy.

Moreover, even for those who do qualify, the adjustment is marginal and may fail to treat all poor children equally. Let me use as an example again Mississippi. How long will it take under the 2.5 percent formula for Mississippi to come up to the average of the country in terms of funds available per poor child? Will it take 10 years, will it take 20 years, 30 years, 40 years, 50 years, 60 years, 70, 80, 90? No. It will take 100 years for Mississippi to go from its current $331 per poor child to reach the average of the Nation at 2.5 percent a year.

How long will it take for Mississippi to reach the level of an affluent Northeastern State? It happens to come out historically and somewhat ironically that it will take 206 years for Mississippi to reach the same level as the affluent Northeastern State. That happens, Mr. President, to be the same number of years looking backward to the signing of the U.S. Constitution. So Mississippi could look forward to all of the generations and all of the historical changes that have occurred since this great Nation was established. All of that would have to elapse again before Mississippi, under this formula, would reach the parity of an affluent Northeastern State.

In contrast, the amendment as offered by Senator BUMPERS and myself would eliminate these disparities in less than 4 years. Mr. President, if we are going to have a serious debate, let us have a debate over how many years should we allow ourselves to eliminate this unfairness. Is 4 years too hurried a time for equality? Is 100 years adequate time to achieve the equality? I believe that we ought to have as a principle that all poor children in America have equal value and that we should move as expeditiously as possible to put that principle into our law.

These disparities in State-to-State funding have real consequences on the lives of children. These are not just accounting or statistical issues. These 5 and 6 and more to 1 disparities have in the past and will continue to have real human consequences. The State of Washington, for example, received $2,340 per poor child in 1994, $2,340 compared to $393 per poor child in South Carolina, almost a 600 percent difference.

Should we be surprised that there are tremendous outcome differences? The State of Washington's children rank seventh and sixth in rankings of infant mortality and percentage of children in poverty. The State of Washington's children ranked 12th overall in the children's well-being index as established by the Casey Foundation. Meanwhile, South Carolina with one-sixth the funding per poor child ranks 48th among the States in infant mortality, 45th in the percentage of children in poverty, and ranks 46th in the children's well-being index.

It will be the height of irony, if not hypocrisy, to change our welfare system and not address this cruel disparity. When people ask, is the welfare system broken? the answer is almost universally, yes. And what is one of the key elements of a broken system? It is the fact that we have tolerated for too long a system that has resulted in these extreme disparities in the treatment of children and the consequence on the children in their ability to grow up healthy, strong, educable, and productive citizens.

But these are not the end of the list of adverse consequences of the amendment as offered by Senator DOLE in terms of how to allocate funds. Locking in historical spending will also lock into place inefficiencies of the status quo, the very status quo that we are supposedly reforming in this legislation. In 1994, the national average monthly administrative expense per welfare case was $53.42—$53.42. New York and New Jersey, however, had administrative costs exceeding $100 per welfare case, almost twice the national average, eight times the average of West Virginia, which administered its program for $13.24 per welfare case. Those States with higher administrative costs in fiscal year 1994 would receive block grant amounts reflecting their higher fiscal year 1994 costs for the next 5 years, whether or not those costs are justified.

This formula fails to take into account demographic and economic accounts. Initial disparities locked in by the Dole approach would actually intensify as a result of the different rates of anticipated population growth through the end of the decade. Between 1995 and the year 2000, 10 States are projected by the U.S. Census Bureau to grow by at least 8 percent. Eight States are projected to grow less than 1 percent or experience a population decline. Among the fastest growing 25 States, the top half, 17 of those growth States would receive initial welfare allocations below the national per poor child average. Seventeen of the twenty-five fastest growing States start this process at below the national average.

Thirty Senators, including the Senators from Texas and both Senators from my State, raised this issue in a May 23 letter to the Finance Committee chairman, in which we stated: "Block grant funding would be locked in, in spite of rapidly changing patterns of need. This disconnect between need and funding would produce devastating results over a 5-year period."

Proponents of the Dole formula would argue that some States will qualify for the 2.5 percent annual adjustments beginning in the third year to address population growth. However, six growing States—Washington, Alaska, Hawaii, Oregon, California, and Delaware—all fail to qualify for the adjustment despite projected above-average population growth.

Moreover, even with the 2.5 percent adjustment, Texas would only receive $445 per poor child in the year 2000, and 27 percent of the $1,600 per poor child in Connecticut, which that State would receive despite the fact that its population is projected to decline between 1995 and the year 2000.

So a State whose population is going up, a State which entered this process as one of the lowest in terms of funds for poor children, would be even further disadvantaged, while a State which entered the process at a relatively high level with a declining population of poor children would be further advantaged.

Another difficulty with the legislation before us, Mr. President, is that under the proposal, States that receive less than their fair share of funding per poor child are most likely to be penalized with a 5-percent reduction in their funding for failure to meet the bill's work requirement. To meet the work standards in the bill, States would be mandated to spend large chunks of their Federal funds for job training and for child care.

According to estimates by the Department of Health and Human Services, the additional cost of the work program and the associated child care needs would absorb more than $8 out of $10 of Federal allocations to Mississippi, Louisiana, Tennessee, and Texas; that over 80 percent of the Federal funds from those States would go to meet the new Federal mandates in work requirements and child care.

But, again, we see wide disparities. In California, New York, Oregon, and Wisconsin, less than 4 out of 10 Federal welfare dollars would be subject to the Federal mandates under this bill; that is, those States would be able to meet the same mandates by using less than 40 percent of their Federal money, while the poor States would have to use over 80 percent of their Federal funds in order to come into compliance.

Washington would tell the States that they have to spend block grants on job training and child care or face 5-percent penalties for failure to meet the work requirements. For States facing sanctions, the States would receive vastly different amounts of support to reach a common goal. That, Mr. President, is patently unfair.

I might add that some of the States that are treated the most unfairly under this bill are represented by Senators on both sides of the aisle who joined in that letter to the chairman of the Finance Committee.

If I could just put this in the context of my State and in the context of what it is going to mean in the lives of real children, in my State, a family on aid to families with dependent children, which is typically composed of a single female and two children, receives $303 per month; $303 is their current allocation. Fifty-five percent of that comes from the Federal Government; 45 percent, State funds. That means that Federal funds represent approximately $168 or $169 of the $303 that is being required.

Under the proposal, 63 percent of the Federal money in my State of Florida would be required to meet the mandates of job training and child care; 63 percent would be required, which means, Mr. President, that less than 40 percent of that $168 is going to continue to be available to meet the economic needs of children.

It is that 40 percent, plus the $135 that comes from the State, that buys the clothing, that pays the light bill, that pays the rent, that provides whatever transportation costs, that meets their health care needs that are not covered by Medicaid. Think in your own life experiences of meeting all of those needs on $303 a month. You would also qualify for $304 a month in food stamps to cover your food budget. But think of what it would mean to live at that level and then to see your $303 monthly stipend reduced to $198, which is what is going to happen with the mandates on child care and on work training, and that assumes that the State will continue to maintain its current level of effort.

Just a few hours ago, we defeated an amendment that would have required a maintenance-of-State effort. So that is speculative as to whether, in the case of my State or any other State, there will be a continued maintenance of effort, which would keep the level of monthly support at the $198 level, not the $303 level which is currently available.

Another factor, Mr. President, is that a wrong decision made today is not a decision likely to be reversed. The history is that once a funding formula is adopted, there will be great difficulty, if not impossibility, of future change. Example after example can be cited of block grants which are being allocated today because of funding decisions in the past, often decisions which are historic and irrelevant to needs today.

The General Accounting Office notes that, for instance, under the maternal child health block grant, funds continue to be distributed primarily on the basis of funds received in the fiscal year 1981 under the previous categorical program. A program in 1995 is distributing funds based on a preexistent categorical program of 1981.

I am concerned that our successors would be looking back from the perspective of the year 2015 wondering why we are distributing a significant amount of Federal funds for block grants to States to meet the needs of poor children based on a categorical program of 1981.

The General Accounting Office proceeds by saying:

Only when the funding exceeds the amounts appropriated in fiscal year 1983 are additional funds allocated in proportion to the number of persons under the age 18 that are in poverty. We found that economic and demographic changes are not adequately reflected in the current allocation resulting in problems of equity.

As Ronald Reagan might have said: Deja vu, there we go again.

Mr. President, I want to conclude with two final comments. One looks forward and one looks back. The debate that we are having today foreshadows a much larger debate that we are likely to have on Medicaid. More than $4 of every $10 that Washington sends State governments are Medicaid dollars. This is the program that provides medical assistance to the poor, elderly, disabled, and poor children and their families. Medicaid is nearly five times larger in terms of its Federal role than welfare; $81 billion were distributed last year as opposed to $17 billion distributed in welfare reform.

We are already hearing that if the policy is adopted of using essentially the status quo as the basis of distributing welfare funds, that that will establish the precedent for how we should distribute Medicaid funds; that by locking in past spending patterns and inequities in this program, we are setting the precedent for the much larger Medicaid Program.

Again, remember my previous point: Block grants, once established, have proven to be highly resistant to subsequent change.

Finally, Mr. President, to look back. I say this with sadness but also with candor. This Congress has been faced over the past several years with a number of major challenges.

Examples: In the early eighties, we were faced with the challenge of reforming our financial institutions. A number of pieces of legislation were adopted with that as their intention. Unfortunately, less than a decade later, we were back passing further legislation to deal with it with the calamity of our financial institutions which have largely been occasioned by our earlier actions.

In 1986, we passed what was supposed to be major tax reform, intended to simplify the Internal Revenue Code. Today, there is so much public dismay at the complexity of the Internal Revenue Code that we are talking about a complete repeal of the income tax and the substitution of a consumption tax, or a flat tax, or some other basic new approach to domestic revenue procurement.

In the mid-1980's, we passed a catastrophic health care bill that was intended to deal with some of the inadequacies in Medicare. Within less than 2 years, we repealed the bill that we passed, and now we are back looking at Medicare reform again, but no longer looking at legislation to fill the gaps of the program, but rather to add new gaping holes to Medicare and new expense to the beneficiaries.

Mr. President, I suggest that all of those past precedents have something in common; that is, we allowed the theory of how things were going to work to get ahead of common sense and practicality as to how things would work. We, I fear, are about to make the same mistake again.

I will state, with no doubt of the correctness of history in this statement, that a plan which is as fundamentally unfair in the distribution of funds as this which is before us today—a plan which so fundamentally mistreats two-thirds of the States of this Nation, in terms of their ability to achieve the goal of facilitating the movement of welfare-dependent individuals to the independence of work, that a plan that has those kinds of imperfections embedded in its basic allocation of funds to achieve its purpose, will fail. And we will be subjected to more public animosity toward this institution for failure to have carried out our task in a craftsmanlike manner.

The public will continue to be outraged at what it sees as the abuse of people who are living on a public system without contributing to the betterment of the public. We will continue to see poor children start their lives with the extreme disparities that exist today. We will see this institution held in even more public disrespect because of our inability to deal intelligently, thoughtfully, rationally, with an important national chapter. We are dealing here with fundamental fairness. The proposal before us fails to meet that standard.

Senator BUMPERS and I, joined by our other colleague, the Senator from Nevada, have provided to the Senate an alternative which will meet the goal of treating poor children in America as they should be treated—each with equal worth and dignity.

I urge the adoption of the children's fair share amendment.

Thank you, Mr. President.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, it was our informal understanding—we have no time agreement—that we would alternate from one side of the aisle to the other.

Mr. BUMPERS. I have no problem with that. I think the Senator from Texas wishes to speak.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I would be happy to let Senator BUMPERS proceed. I do not mind waiting. I am going to be here anyway.

Mr. BUMPERS. Does the Senator from New York wish to speak at this time?

Mr. MOYNIHAN. No. The Senator from New York is awaiting with great expectation the remarks of the Senator from Arkansas.

Mr. BUMPERS. I am immensely flattered, Mr. President.

Mr. President, when I first came to the Senate we had some great people here: Hubert Humphrey, Abe Ribicoff, Jacob Javits, John Pastore, Scoop Jackson, Ed Muskie—truly great men, great Senators who believed in the theory of enlightened self-interest, who believed in governing.

Hubert Humphrey used to make a great speech, and he said, "This will never be a great place for any of us to live until it is a good place for all of us to live." I agree totally with that statement. As I think of those words and the author, I cannot help but wonder what Hubert Humphrey would think about a bill that said, "If you are rich and affluent, we will make you more affluent; and if you are poor, we will punish you and make sure those in poverty stay in poverty."

Well, even the people in the U.S. Senate would take strong exception to that if they believed that was our philosophy or that was what we were about to do.

Mr. President, that is exactly what this bill does. Senator GRAHAM has covered just about everything that needs to be covered. As Mo Udall used to say, "Everything that needs to be said has been said, but everybody has not said it." So while I know that much of what I have to say will be repetitious of what my good friend, and the real author of this amendment, the Senator from Florida, has said, it bears repeating to make sure that the all Senators understand what they are voting on.

In 1994, the AFDC formula allowed the following: If the States want to add more money to their AFDC program, the Federal Government will match it dollar for dollar. So what is the result? The result is the same as it has been for years under this formula. The "haves," the affluent States, put more money into AFDC, so they get more money. If they add $100 per child per year, the Federal Government gives them another $100. That whole concept is flawed, totally, fatally flawed, because what it says is, "If you are wealthy, we will make you wealthier, and if you are poor, we will make you poorer."

(Ms. SNOWE assumed the Chair.)

Mr. BUMPERS. Madam President, everybody knows that this amendment is a fair proposition. What Senator GRAHAM and I are suggesting is that we divide all the money in the pot by the number of poor children in the country and we allocate it to the States based on the number of poor children each State has. For example, if we had 10 million poor children in the country, we would divide the total pot of money by 10 million and that amount would be paid to each State for every poor child in that State.

Madam President, the problem Senator GRAHAM and I are trying to solve is a result of the formula we've used for the AFDC Program since its inception. Under that formula, the more affluent States have, over a period of years, received the lion's share of the Federal money because they were able to put more State money in the program, and we were matching it.

On the face of it, we should applaud States that have tried to improve and do better for themselves. But we should not penalize those who are not affluent and who could not put more money in.

Think about this for a moment. I want Members to think about this. I have good friends in this body from States who make off like bandits under the Dole bill.

Just take the State of Rhode Island. We have two fine Senators, my dear friends from Rhode Island, but I do not believe either Senator from Rhode Island would say they believe that a poor child in Rhode Island is worth $2,244 a year, but a poor child in my home State of Arkansas is worth only $394. What in the name of all that is good and holy are we thinking about here?

All my life I have had to say I come from a poor State. I hate to say that. But I have always believed that being upfront and candid about your own plight is good for the soul and good for understanding.

I cannot believe that we are about to pass a bill that allows New York, for example, to get $2,036 for every single poor child on AFDC, and my State $394. They get five times more than my State. If this were State money I would not squawk. But it is not. It is Federal money out of the U.S. Treasury, and we are saying that if you come from an affluent State which has been able to put more and more into the program, and we have matched it more and more as you put more in, you will benefit permanently. We are looking at a gross inequity and we are ratifying it. We are institutionalizing it for all time to come. States like New York, the home of my very good friend and ranking member on the Finance Committee, will always do very well under the Dole formula.

The Dole formula claims to correct these inequities over time. For example, if my home State of Arkansas goes below 35 percent of the national average for concentration of poverty, the Dole formula provides a little honey pot from which the State can get a 2.5-percent bonus. How that warms the cockles of my heart.

If my State gets that 2.5-percent bonus it will only take us 84 years to reach the national average. And it will only take us 177 years to catch up to New York. If I thought I would live to see that, I might favor it. Unhappily, I will not be around.

Sometimes as I get steamed up making these speeches on the floor I get to thinking, am I living in a loony bin? Is this actually going on? Is it happening? And often the answer is yes.

If you want to take all this Federal money and give it to every poor child in America on an equal basis under the proposition that a poor child in Mississippi, Alabama, Texas, North Dakota is worth as much as a poor child anywhere, count me in. And then if the State wants to enrich that, let them.

They have a right to do that, even though, Madam President, school districts all over America are being ordered by the Federal courts to equalize their school expenditures among the poor districts as well to bring them up to par with the more affluent districts.

If you come from an affluent school district in my State you get voice, glee club, debate. You get field trips, you get everything, because the people in that district are more affluent and the more affluent they are, the more advantages and opportunities they want their children to have. So they vote for higher taxes to support those programs.

Then you take some poor school in the Mississippi Delta. I do not care how hard they try. I do not care how much they stretch out. I do not care how much they sacrifice. They can never, never reach the affluence of the more prosperous school districts. So the courts are saying nowadays, you cannot do that anymore, you have to equalize these State funds.

This bill says that in the very first year, a State has to get 25 percent of the people on the rolls into the work force. I am going to say women, rather than people, because the adults in this program are almost exclusively single mothers with children. I do not say this to be sexist. I say it because that is the way it is.

This bill says to each State, New York and Arkansas alike, that during the first year, 25 percent of these women must enter the work force, and, if they do not, we are going to penalize them by reducing the amount of their block grant. By how much? Up to 5 percent.

I want you to think about the lunacy of that provision. They say: Get these women into the work force. But there is not enough money in the bill for child care, even if there were jobs available and women wanting to take them. There is not enough money in this bill to provide the kind of child care you would have to have to even come close to getting 25 percent of these women into the work force.

I do not want to stray too far afield, but the Senator from New York was quoted in the paper the other day with a magnificent statement. Ten years from now, more and more thousands of children are going to be sleeping on the grates in this country. This bill is a veritable assault on the children of this country. I wonder where some of these people who purport to have these great family values and Christian beliefs are when we are debating things like this? Why do they not sense the inequities of this? Why do they not understand that millions of children who have little chance now are going to have much less chance in the future when this bill becomes law?

You think about West Virginia, with an administrative cost of $13.34 per caseload per year. I am sorry the senior Senator or junior Senator from West Virginia are not here to hear me laud and commend their State for their very low administrative costs in the present AFDC Program. I did not get a chance to check it in my State, but I know our average is in that vicinity. The national average is $56, and in some States it is as high as $106. Under this bill we are rewarding those States with high administrative costs. We are rewarding States that have a $106 administrative expense and punishing the State of West Virginia for being good stewards over the administration of their funds.

Madam President, every year for 5 years—you have to get 25 percent of the women off the rolls the first year, the next year you have to have 5 percent more, the next year 5 percent more, until, in 5 years, 50 percent of these people are off the rolls. On a point that is not relevant to this amendment, I submit to you that 20 percent of the people on AFDC today are incapable of either finding or holding a job. What happens to them?

One morning one of my sons came home. I have to tell you, all my children are pretty liberal when it comes to poor people. They have good values. I am immensely proud of every one of them. My son, who practices law downtown in Washington, DC, said, "Dad, I wish you would go with me in the morning. Our firm is in charge of feeding the homeless people in the morning."

"Where?"

"A project called SOME. So Others May Eat. I think it will be good for your soul."

It was nearing Christmas. My daughter, who was in school in New York, was home for Christmas. We all went. The temperature was 28 degrees, and 400 men and 2 women were standing outside waiting for the dining room to open. So I flipped pancakes for 3 hours—the best day's work I ever did. Then I went around, just like I would at a political rally, talking to these men. "Where do you come from?"

I found that one-third of them had jobs. About a third of them had a drug habit. And a third of them were essentially dysfunctional, they could not hold a job. And being dysfunctional is not peculiar to men, it is also true of women, and a lot of women on AFDC today cannot and will never take, or be able to hold, a job. What happens to them? If the goal is to get everybody off the rolls, how on Earth are you going to do it?

Senator GRAHAM made a very salient point a moment ago about some States trying to meet their mandates. They have nothing left after they meet the mandates. I think he said in Florida, 63 percent of the funds that Florida will get will go to meet the mandates and what is left will go out in AFDC grants. In my State it is almost 80 percent, which means when we meet the mandates of this bill, we will have $40 a year per child to hand out.

The most cruel among us may say, "Well, you have food stamps on top of that." Food stamps will not pay the electric bill. Food stamps will not pay for a child's medical care, for housing, or for his clothing. I cannot believe how callous and indifferent we are to the least among us.

I started off mentioning de Tocqueville. I never tire of talking about him. He talked about enlightened self-interest. That is a very simple proposition that has governed my entire life. The principles I learned in Sunday school in the Methodist Church and the principle of enlightened self-interest that I learned from reading "Democracy In America" have governed my life, and that is where my values come from.

And what does it mean? It means that when some poor soul is reaching for the first rung on the ladder and you are on the top rung, you do not step on his hands. You reach down and take his hand and you pull him up. You pull him up because it makes him a better citizen, it makes the country a better country, and it makes me a better person.

How could anybody quarrel with those three principles, all of which are unassailable? So that is what is wrong with this bill. We are reaching out and giving a hand to some and we are stepping on the hands of millions who did not have a dog's chance to begin with and will have even less.

Madam President, I could not vote for this bill. I will never vote for a bill that includes so many things I deplore in this country. I might also say I would hate to have to go home and explain to my folks why I voted for a bill that uses their tax dollars and sends back to them only $394 for each poor child at the same time it sends the State of California $1,716. You can use all the sophistry in the world. You can use every kind of convoluted argument in the world to try to defend this. It is indefensible.

So, Madam President, I am honored to join my good friends and colleagues, Senator GRAHAM and Senator BRYAN, in trying to bring some sense and sanity to this bill. There are a lot of things about this bill I do not like. I would have a very difficult time voting for this bill even if this amendment was agreed to. I am not terribly worried about that.

But, for the life of me, when you look at that map and you see the States that are helped and the States that are hurt under this amendment—which simply says divide the pot of money by the number of poor children in this country and send it out to them on a per capita basis—you cannot improve on that. So I am hoping when the rollcall is up on this amendment, people will look at that chart and realize we are not talking about State money; we are talking about Federal taxpayers' money. We are distributing it in the most unkind, most unfair way I can imagine.

I yield the floor.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Madam President, I want to talk about the underlying formula, the Dole-Hutchison formula that is in this bill. The key to our formula is balance. When we looked at the monumental problem of welfare reform, the main goal we had was to keep the reform in the bill but not penalize any State too much. So what we did was take the high-payment States, the high-welfare States, and we froze them. That is a big gain in the beginning for those States because we felt that we could not go to a State like New York or California and say next year you are getting a cut. So we freeze them for 5 years.

When you are talking about a 5-year block grant, you have to be very careful. You have to be careful about year 1, but years 3, 4 and 5 are just as important, especially if you are a growth State. And, if you are a low-benefit growth State, you do not have the margin of error that would allow you to absorb growth with a very low benefit in the outyears.

So we took this problem, and we said how can we do a 5-year block grant so we can plan for the budget, so that we can balance our budget responsibly without hurting any State too much? That is what the Dole-Hutchison formula does. It leaves the high benefit States whole. They never lose anything that they had in 1994 and beyond. No State loses anything they had from 1994 on. But we took $887 million and we allocated that for low-benefit high-growth States so that in the outyears, 3, 4, and 5, we knew what the budget would be but we allowed them a modest growth. It is modest. It is 2.5 percent per year for a low-benefit high-growth State.

So our goal is to slowly reach parity. It is slower than many of us would like to see because many States start very low like the Senator from Arkansas who was just speaking. He is one of the States that is going to grow slowly. But, if you put food stamp and AFDC together—and they do go together—most States will eventually reach parity. But they will do it gradually. They will do it without hurting any other States.

What is wrong with the Graham amendment? We have heard Senator GRAHAM and Senator BUMPERS talk about the merits of their formula. If I were the dictator, I would say sure, let us start next year, and let us say everybody is going to be equal in America. What is the problem with that? The problem is this is the United States of America. We have 50 States that have to come together to make collegial decisions. We have to do it in a responsible way so that one State is not such a big loser that it could put that State in severe financial straits from which they really could not recover. That is what is wrong with the Graham-Bumpers amendment.

It is totally fair. There is no question about it. But if you do totally fair on paper and do not take into account that someone has to pay for this, then it is just what you have—something on paper because it will never be a collegial decision that is fair enough that all of us could feel in good conscience that we could adopt it.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Yes.

Mr. SANTORUM. The Senator is saying this is totally fair. I think she is right given this abstract when you say start all over. But as you know, in the bill, I think what we propose is a modification by the leader to the substitute. There is going to be an 80-percent maintenance of effort provision in all 5 years of this bill which means that these States, like New York and California that have high maintenance efforts, are going to require that they continue to contribute 80 percent of the 1994 funding level. If we are going to require 80-percent maintenance of effort, how could there conceivably be a situation where New York, for example, where we are going to require New York with their maintenance of effort provision to actually contribute more on the State level than the Federal Government will under the Graham formula? Could that be a result?

Mrs. HUTCHISON. That is correct. That could be a result. That is exactly correct. You see, there is another point here. When we are talking about the underlying bill, we are talking about redistributing $887 million over a 5-year period. So we are holding everyone harmless. Every State is held harmless. And the low-benefit, high-growth States that need that extra help are going to divide the $887 million. But the Graham-Bumpers amendment does not redistribute $887 million. It redistributes $17 billion. It takes the entire pot of $17 billion, and it says, OK, we are going to put it on a 5-year plan, and at the end of 5 years every person in America is going to have the same amount. When you do that, someone has to pay.

Let us look at what happens. New York loses $4.6 billion. In a $17 billion redistribution, one State loses $4.6 billion to pay for the redistribution to the other States. California is the biggest loser. California would lose $5.4 billion.

So really you are talking about almost half of the entire amount—actually more than half the amount of the entire amount—which is going to come out of two States.

Madam President, we are a country. There is no State that can stand to lose that kind of money and make it.

So that is why it is very important that we look at realism. What do you think is going to happen if this amendment passes? If this amendment passes, there is no welfare reform. The bill comes down. It is over.

So I ask my colleagues as they are looking at this amendment, which I would love to vote for, and 35 States come out better. But the price when the pound of flesh comes straight out of the heart is too high. And I think if we are not serious about welfare reform that we can go blithely along and say, "Oh, sure. Let California sink into the Pacific. Let New York go into the Hudson River. And, sure. We will have welfare reform that everybody can live with." Well, everybody except New York and California, and anyone who has a conscience. It is like the child who is going after the big bubbles. When the child gets the bubbles the child finds that there is only air in its place.

So the difference between the two bills is really the difference in whether we have welfare reform or not.

Let me say that I sympathize with Florida, and I sympathize with Arkansas. The biggest winner in the Graham amendment is Texas. The biggest single winner of any State in the entire Union is my home State of Texas. We gain over $1 billion. But I did not come here to get a big windfall for Texas when I know that if I went for that beautiful bubble what would happen is we would go back to welfare as we know it, which no one in good conscience can say is right for this country.

We must persevere to have welfare reform. All of us must give a little. And the underlying Hutchison-Dole formula does give Florida growth. We worked very hard to make sure that the 19 States that have—actually, it is 20 States—that have low benefits and high growth do not suffer to such a great extent that they would be in jeopardy. And I do sympathize with Florida. Florida is like Texas. We have illegal immigration that costs our States dearly. There is no question about it.

However, the GRAHAM-BUMPERS amendment is not the answer if we care about welfare reform. If we care about welfare reform, we will all give a little so that there is a fairness in the system, and we will all win a lot because the people of America will have welfare reform that is going to allow States to have time limits for able-bodied recipients to have welfare, that is going to provide for child care and job training. But it is going to require work for welfare for able-bodied recipients, and it is going to have caps on spending in welfare so that the hard-working American family will know that someone is not staying on welfare generation after generation having things that the hard-working family is not able to buy for its own children. No longer is that going to be tolerated in this country.

That is what welfare reform does, if we are all willing to give a little for everyone to win. That is why the underlying formula is balanced. It is why no one is completely happy with it and why it is easily subject to attack. But I worked very hard with many other Senators who were concerned about the original Finance Committee bill to try to come up with something that was fair to everyone—not everyone's total liking but fair so that no one would go home saying they did not get something. They either get welfare reform that is good for every taxpaying family in this country, and they get either a benefit in the beginning if they are a big welfare State, or a benefit toward the end if they are a low-benefit, high-growth State.

I think we have accommodated the needs of every State in a reasonable manner, and that is the bottom line. It is balance. It is fairness. It, above all, is keeping the goal of welfare reform so that everyone knows that it is not going to be welfare as we know it. It is not going to be business as usual. It is going to be better for every American if we can persevere and do the right thing.

I thank the Chair. I yield the floor.

Mr. MOYNIHAN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I note that the Senator from Texas has to be elsewhere in a moment, but if she could stay just for a moment I would like to suggest that something exceptional has happened tonight. It may be something that Benjamin Disraeli wrote turns out to be wrong, and this is a new thought to me. But I was going to read a passage from Coningsby published in 1870 when the young Coningsby is having breakfast with the old duke, and the old duke says:

In a couple of years or so you will enter the world; it is a different thing to what you read about. It is a masquerade; a motley, sparkling multitude in which you may mark all forms and colours, and listen to all sentiments and opinions; but where all you see and hear has only one object, plunder.

Now, I think that the Senator from Texas, having said it is clearly the case that she is going to oppose a proposal in which the chief beneficiary in the first instance and on a superficial level perhaps would be the State of Texas, leads me to raise the question: Did Disraeli get it right or was it invariably a rule, or is there a Hutchison exception?

In any event, I thank her for her remarks and do observe if this measure would cost the State of California $5.4 billion and the State of New York $4.6 billion, it hardly would be a promising addition to the legislation, the underlying bill before us.

I would like to talk just a little bit about this subject, Madam President. We are talking about Federalism here. We are talking about some of the complexities, some of which have grown too complex over time. But the first point I would like to make is this: The disparities in AFDC benefits and Federal contributions, sharing contributions, how do they arise? The Senator from Texas happens to be right about them. They arise primarily for one reason which is very little understood and possibly never will be understood, that AFDC is not an entitlement to individuals; it is an entitlement to State governments for a Federal matching share of what the State governments choose to spend on the program.

This goes back to the 1935 Social Security Act. It has been varied somewhat from time to time. But the essential fact is that the States are left to design their own programs or have no program.

It would surprise many today to know that you do not have to have an unemployment insurance program. You do not have to have aid to dependent children or, as it later was, Aid to Families with Dependent Children. If you do, you are guaranteed a Federal match. States may choose to set generous eligibility thresholds and benefit levels, or they may choose not to. If they opt for a larger social safety net, they pay for it. But they also qualify for more matching Federal funds. The incentive is optional but intentional.

Now, that Federal match from the beginning—the beginnings are in the Great Depression—was heavily skewed toward States in the South and West. It is only beginning to be better understood that it was part of a policy of the New Deal, although it comes from New York: a President from New York State, a Secretary of Labor from New York State.

The object of the New Deal was to move resources away from cities such as New York, Wall Street as it would be termed, to the South and West, the Tennessee Valley, for the great water projects to reclaim the arid West. In this particular program, the formula, the matching rate, is borrowed from the Hill-Burton formula which came into effect just after World War II—Lister Hill of Alabama. The formula was used to allocate funding for a great hospital construction program. Our esteemed former colleague, Senator Russell Long of Louisiana, informed me that the Hill-Burton formula is the South's revenge for losing the Civil War.

What it does, Madam President, it writes algebra into our statutes. The States receive a Federal match that is determined by the square of their per capita incomes so that the relative difference in those incomes becomes exaggerated. And so it is such that until very recently some States in the South received an 83 percent match from the Federal Government, other States such as New York, California, and I do believe Maine—we will check that in a moment—get 50 percent; 50 percent is the minimum. Actually, Maine's current Federal match rate is about 63 percent.

It now goes from 50 percent to 79 percent. One of the first proposals I made when I came to the Senate 19 years ago when this was just beginning to be so patently inequitable, simply because costs of living were so different, I said, if we were going to have algebra in our statutes, instead of the square of the difference, why not the square root?

Well, I did not get much support for the idea. But one did begin to study the differences in tax capacity, the differences in costs of living. It makes astounding differences. If you just take that fixed poverty level, you will find you underestimate the true cost-of-living equivalent of the poverty level in a State such as mine by about 30 percent.

A word, if I may about per capita income. In virtually every debate we have on this floor or in committee about the States' relative fiscal capacity, we use per capita income as the proxy. Per capita income is a proxy, but not the only one. States such as Texas, for instance, that are endowed with natural resources may impose a severance tax when those minerals and natural gas and crude oil are severed from the ground. A severance tax is a wonderful way to raise revenue because the end user, usually out of State, ultimately pays it. I would note that Texas does not have a personal income tax. Perhaps one is not needed. After all, the State can export much of its tax burden out of State.

The Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations [ACIR] has looked into this. This is the ACIR established under President Eisenhower in 1959, a nonpartisan, professional group. In 1982, the Advisory Council on Intergovernmental Relations with its long history of research, adopted the following resolution.

It said:

The Commission finds that the use of a single index, resident per capita income, to measure fiscal capacity seriously misrepresents the actual ability of many governments to raise revenue. Because states tax a wide range of economic activities other than the income of their residents, the per capita income measure fails to account for sources of revenue to which income is only related in part. This misrepresentation results in the systematic over and understatement of the ability of many states to raise revenue. In addition, the recent evidence suggests that per capita income has deteriorated as a measure of capacity.

Therefore, the Commission recommends that the federal government utilize a fiscal capacity index, such as the Representative Tax System measure, which more fully reflects the wide diversity of revenue sources which states currently use. * * *

Another problem with viewing income as a proxy for wealth is that it fails to consider differences in the cost of living which, as I said a moment ago, can be quite large. Residents of New York and Connecticut make more than do their neighbors in Mississippi and Alabama. But they need to spend more, too.

The other side of the equation is poverty. We have a national poverty threshold adjusted only by family size and composition. I think we would all agree if you just looked at the simple numbers, the richest people on Earth live in Alaska. Well, no, they do not. They have to pay so much more for what they consume as against the persons in the lower 48, they are probably, relatively speaking, not as well off.

The point about the problem we are dealing with right now is that, for example, a family of four just above the poverty threshold living in New York City is demonstrably worse off than a family of four just below the threshold in rural Mississippi.

Each year for the last 19 years I put out a compilation of the flow of funds between the Federal Government and the 50 States entitled "The Federal Budget and the States." Here, I will display the report for you for the purposes of the Senate.

More recently, the Taubman Center for State and Local Government at the John F. Kennedy School at Harvard has begun computing the actual numbers. I write an introduction. They have come up with an index to subnational poverty statistics. That is, Professor Herman B. Leonard, who is academic dean of the teaching programs, and Baker Professor of Public Finance, and Monica Friar, who is his associate in this matter.

And we just look at the "Friar/Leonard State cost-of-living index," as it is known, we find that—again I use my own State because I have been working at it—New York's poverty rate jumps from the 18th highest in the Nation to the sixth highest. It is no longer the case of the Mississippi Delta. It is no longer the case that poverty is more prevalent in the high plains. It is no longer the case that it is Appalachia. The sixth highest poverty rate in the Nation is in New York State once you adjust for the cost of living, which is obviously what poverty is all about. What does it get you with what you have?

Earlier this year, a National Academy of Sciences [NAS] panel of experts released a congressionally commissioned study on redefining poverty. The study, edited by Constance F. Citro and Robert T. Michael, is entitled "Measuring Poverty: A New Approach." According to a Congressional Research Service review of the NAS report:

The NAS panel (one member among the 12 member panel dissented with the majority recommendations) makes several recommendations which, if fully adopted, could dramatically alter the way poverty in the U.S. is measured, how Federal funds are allotted to States, and how eligibility for many Federal programs is determined. The recommended poverty measure would be based on more items in the family budget, would take major noncash benefits and taxes into account, and would be adjusted for regional differences in living costs.

* * * Under the current measure the share of the poor population living in each region in 1992 was: Northeast: 16.9 percent, Midwest: 21.7 percent, South: 40.0 percent, and West: 21.4 percent. Under the proposed new measure, the estimated share in each region would be: Northeast: 18.9 percent, Midwest: 20.2 percent, South: 36.4 percent, and West: 24.5 percent.

But getting back to Hill-Burton, the fact is that this benefit formula, called the Federal Medical Assistance Percentage, has always been designed to bring more Federal funds to Southern States than to Northern ones. And again, when we talk about these matters, we cannot seem to get past talk about per capita income as a measure of a State's relative capacity.

It is not, Madam President, as I showed just a moment ago. Per capita income disguises the large effects of cost of living.

Madam President, the point here is that we have a set of Federal outlays which have corresponded to two things. First, they have helped compensate States with low per capita income way in the back; 83 percent to Mississippi, but only 50 percent to California, the Federal match. But also, the outlays reflect State spending. And the States that would be injured in this matter are just those States who of their own choice have chosen to provide a higher level of provision for dependent mothers and children.

Per capita disparities exist in the block grant allocations because States are different—vastly different—in their willingness to spend their own money on their own poor people.

Now, if at the moment we end the Federal entitlement, turn this matter back to the States, where it had been indeed as a widow's pension in the early years, in the 1930's, going back to the Depression era, what we shall have done is penalize everything we would have thought to be admirable in American public life. And by admirable we would think of provision for children in a world in which they are so extraordinarily exposed to the dissolution of family and the onset of enormous levels of dependency such as were never seen in the 1930's and we now find ourselves baffled by and troubled by in the 1990's.

Let us take the analysis a bit further. ACIR does marvelous work and issues clearly written reports that too few of us in this Chamber read. Over the years, ACIR has developed and refined a really important index. They now have a measure of State revenue capacity and tax effort, without wishing to make any complaints of one kind or another. Here we go back to 1975, and we bring ourselves back up to 1991. And we look at New York. New York is the black dots. Its tax capacity goes down. And it goes up a bit, then comes down a bit. Just about average for the Nation. It was below average and now at 103. The State of Florida has stayed about average all along, and right now, 1991, its tax capacity is 103 too. The two States—New York and Florida—they are identical. They have the same per capita tax capacity.

But New York, with an older tradition, has a tax effort of 156 as against the national norm of 100. And Florida has a tax effort, rising a bit of late, nothing dramatic, just as we decline a bit, of 86. New York has twice the tax effort of Florida. It is a public choice. Some States will value public goods more than private goods and others private goods more than public goods. Some have higher capacity. Some have less. But the disparities are nothing such as they were thought to be in years past. But if the Senator from Florida wants to know why there are State-by-State funding disparities under the block grant, he need look no further than this chart.

Now, under the logic of the amendment offered by the senior Senator from Florida, we will reward his State's behavior by giving it an additional $1.7 billion over the next three years while we punish New York by taking away $2.7 billion of its block grant; $4.6 billion over the life of the bill.

The practical effect of the Graham amendment is to reallocate money from high tax effort States—States that are willing to spend their own resources on their own poor people—to low tax effort States—States that, for whatever reason, are not willing to make those investments. Even though most of the less generous States benefit from the Hill-Burton formula and States like New York do not. This certainly does not comport with my notion of Federalism.

I suppose the response is that we are talking about Federal funds. Well, why limit ourselves to a discussion of Federal welfare funds? Why not consider all other Federal funds? Perhaps we should block grant NASA spending and allocate the dollars to each State on a per capita basis. Perhaps we should block grant farm price supports. Perhaps, even, defense spending. Why not? Given the prevailing opinion regarding the competence of Washington, maybe New York would be better off if it were to receive block-granted defense funds allocated on a per capita basis. After all, I am sure that New Yorkers are more aware than distant DoD bureaucrats which points along our boundary with Canada are most susceptible to invasion.

Mr. President, I suggest that, in keeping with the spirit of the Graham amendment, we extend it to cover all Federal spending. Let us smooth out the disparities that exist in the per capita allocation of all Federal dollars. Now, if we consider all Federal spending, we discover that it amounts to $5,095 per person in Florida. In New York, the total is a less munificent $4,973. Perhaps the senior Senator from Florida would be amenable to an effort to reallocate some of the Federal funds that flow to his State so that the disadvantage New York suffers can be ameliorated.

Let us extend the analysis and consider not just spending received, but taxes paid, as well. Between fiscal years 1981 and 1994, on a cumulative basis, if New York's percentage share of allocable Federal spending had been equal to its share of taxes paid, the State would have received an additional $142.3 billion. Florida, on the other hand, would have received $38.5 billion less. I think notions of fairness and equity have been turned on their head here.

The same may be said for regions. In the Northeast you find a big imbalance, a shortfall in the balance of payments with the Federal Government. In the South you find a big surplus. In the Midwest, an even bigger shortfall than the Northeast. The greatest—Illinois now ranks 49th in its balance of payments with the Federal Government. The real concentration of balance of payments deficits is in that old Midwest industrial area. And the West is a benefactor, always has been, for a variety of reasons of which defense outlays are probably the most important. This is a zero-sum situation. Combining the regions, we find that the Northeast-Midwest balance of payments deficit totals $690 billion. And that is the exact windfall the South and West have enjoyed over the past 14 years.

Mr. President, the senior Senator from Texas often refers to "people who pull the wagon" and "people who ride in the wagon." Well, we have States that pull the wagon and States that go along for the ride. Make no mistake. I am no fan of the block grant. But I must strenuously resist any attempt to raid my State of $4.6 billion, to decrease an allocation derived in large measure from New York's willingness to "put its money where its mouth is," particularly when the "raiders" represent States that are unwilling to spend their own resources on their own poor people.

Mr. President, in June 1990, during consideration of the housing bill, the senior Senator from Texas—then the junior Senator—offered an amendment to reallocate community development block grants [CDBG's] on the basis of population. I said during the course of that debate, we put at risk the principle of federalism if we ever begin to insist on this floor that any activity which has a disproportionate impact on one State or region as against another cannot be accepted. This floor saw the terrible divisions on regionalism that led to the most awful trauma of our national existence, which we still have not overcome, still not put behind us—the Civil War.

There is a desk on this floor where a man was clubbed insensible, beaten insensible, over regional issues.

All our intelligence says: Respond to need and be thoughtful and be accommodating and try to see that there is some rough balance. I spoke earlier of our having documented the imbalance and that we live with it. So might my colleagues from Sunbelt States.

Mr. President, I was not sure this bill could get any worse. But after the votes on the Feinstein and Breaux amendments earlier today, it has. The race is on. We have dismantled the entitlement status of the AFDC program. States no longer have an incentive to spend their own money on their own poor. Now, we have no real requirement that they spend their own money, either.

The race to which I refer is the race to the bottom. An article in last Wednesday's Washington Post sums up nicely the brave new world we are about to enter. The article, by Barbara Vobejda, is entitled States Worry Generosity May Be Magnet for Welfare Migrants. Taxpayers and State legislators and Governors are determined to prevent their States from becoming welfare magnets. Set your benefits as low as possible to encourage current welfare recipients to move out and discourage welfare migrants from moving in.

The article reports that many welfare recipients now receive one-way bus tickets from their caseworkers out of the States in which they reside. Perhaps, under the proposed block grant, that will become the biggest welfare expenditure: one-way bus tickets out.

Mr. President, I find it interesting and revealing that those Members whose States spend the least on their own poor people clamor the loudest for a more "equitable" distribution of the Federal block grant and resist most vociferously any attempt to impose a serious State maintenance of effort.

In 1981, George Will wrote a column about the anti-Washington sentiment pervasive in public-land States in the West. He pointed out that residents of these States were the beneficiaries of considerable Federal largesse, particularly in the form of water and power subsidies. But these beneficiaries were budget cutters—somebody else's budget, that is—through and through. Borrowing a line from that eminent American historian Bernard DeVoto, he entitled his column Get Out and Give Us More Money. Does that line not wonderfully capture the mentality that has crossed the hundredth meridian heading East and has percolated up from the South? Get out and give us more money. That is the wretched state of debate on this wretched bill.

The Senator from Nevada is here, and the Senator from New York is on the other side. We have been alternating one side of the aisle to the other, although the different sides do not represent different views on this amendment. Mr. President, I yield to the Senator from Nevada.

I wonder if my friend from New York—I believe the Senator from Nevada has been here for an hour and a half and has a rather brief statement and then the Senator from New York, my distinguished friend, will follow.

Mr. D'AMATO. Sure.

Mr. BRYAN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ASHCROFT). The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. BRYAN. Mr. President, let me preface my comments by thanking the ranking member for his courtesy in acknowledging that the Senator from Nevada has been on the floor and to acknowledge the courtesy of his colleague and our friend, the junior Senator from New York.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senators Bob KERREY and HOLLINGS be added as cosponsors to the Graham amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BRYAN. Mr. President, I would like to preface my comments by commending my colleague and friend, the senior Senator from Florida, on what was truly a very thoughtful and very enlightening presentation, in terms of his efforts in developing the formula, the rationale and the cause for which he speaks, and that is to provide some sense of equity and fairness predicated on the basic proposition that children everywhere, irrespective of the States from which they come, are entitled to receive a fair and equitable allocation of Federal tax dollars providing for their benefit.

I enjoy, as I know all of my colleagues do, the erudition that is continually demonstrated on the floor by the senior Senator from New York in explaining the theoretical underpinning and the origin of this very complicated formula that we presently work with.

I say with great respect and deference to him that whatever the merit in its origin that formula may have had certainly can have no continuing validity when the very basis upon which we are changing the law converts an entitlement program to a block grant program that has a cap attached to it with a very, very minimal margin to accommodate the growth of States such as my own and others, whose Senators I am sure will speak in behalf of this amendment, of 2.5 percent a year.

So I come to the floor this evening to strongly endorse and to support the Graham amendment, the children's fair share allocation proposal. This amendment will, in my judgment, ensure a more equitable Federal funding formula based on the number of children in poverty in each State with a small State minimum. The bill before us severely penalizes high-growth States by relying on 1994 funding levels for fiscal year 1996 and into future years.

I make it clear at the outset, Mr. President, that there is no defender of the current welfare system. It serves neither the taxpayer nor the recipient. I want to identify myself as an advocate for change. The welfare system in America has failed and we ought to change it in rather substantial ways.

But in doing so, we should ensure that there is equity in allocating Federal funds to States—Nevada and others—that will have serious welfare problems compounded by the enactment of this piece of legislation.

The Republican welfare proposal uses a block grant approach as a replacement for the current system. As a former Governor, I very much understand the attraction of block grants for Governors in their States. Quite often, block grants can be a better approach. I, for one, as a former Governor, recognize that there are circumstances in which increased flexibility would have been immensely helpful in dealing with the problems of my State, which may very well have differed from the problems of the State of the distinguished occupant of the chair and of the prime sponsor of this amendment, all of whom have served as chief executives of their respective States.

But the notion that somehow block grants are a utopian answer to every problem we have with the current welfare system is, in my opinion, disingenuous, and this is particularly true when high-growth States, such as my own, will be left with much, much less resources to deal with the problem of an expanding population.

If States are deprived of the funding necessary to do the job, all of the block grant flexibility in the world will not matter a single whit because States will not be able to do the job, let alone do it better.

Earlier this year, I joined with nearly 30 of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle in writing to the majority leader to request his support for a bipartisan effort to address the funding formula in an equitable way. Although the Dole bill includes Senator HUTCHISON's Federal funding formula proposal, it is still, in my judgment, a grossly inadequate approach which penalizes high-growth States.

The Republican leader's proposal hurts high-growth States like Nevada by capping Federal funding at the fiscal year 1994 level. High-growth States like Nevada will receive less funding at the very time that their population is exploding. Nevada is one of 19 States under the Dole-Hutchison Federal funding formula proposal which would be eligible to receive a very modest 2.5 percent annual adjustment to Federal funding in the second and subsequent years of the block grant authorization.

But, Mr. President, this adjustment does not come even remotely close to offsetting the damage caused to my State by reason of the fiscal year 1994 funding cap. Nevada is the fastest growing State in America. I invite my colleagues' attention to this chart. It is dramatic. Beyond the comprehension of those of us who have lived in Nevada, as I have, for more than a half a century, if you look at the preceding decade, 1984 to 1994, Nevada's population has grown by 59.1 percent.

If you look at the next fastest State in percentage of growth, that of Arizona, 33.7 percent. When I talk about the horrendous impact and consequences of this formula, I am not speaking in the abstract, I am speaking in the specific, and it will be devastating.

Nevada's population is projected to increase from 1995 to the year 2000 by nearly another 15 percent from approximately 1.47 million to approximately 1.69 million. Again, Nevada leads the Nation in projected population growth for the remaining years of this decade.

Nevada's AFDC caseload increased 8 percent from fiscal year 1993 to fiscal year 1994, the sixth highest increase in the country. The national average was only a 1.4 percent increase. And from fiscal year 1992 to 1994, Nevada's welfare expenditures increased by nearly 22 percent, the fourth highest increase in the country, compared to the national average of only 4 percent.

In the 5 years from 1989 to 1994, Nevada experienced a 35.7 percent increase in the number of children under the age of 18 years, the highest increase of any State in the country. Again, by comparison, the national average is 6.1 percent.

Under the Republican welfare proposal, fast growing States like Nevada will suffer a devastating impact. We cannot expect yesterday's funding levels are going to come anywhere near meeting the needs of Nevada citizens in the years ahead.

Under the Dole-Hutchison formula, Nevada would receive $36 million in fiscal year 1996. Nevada is already in the year of its implementation behind its projected needs. For Nevada, a 2.5 percent growth increase over the preceding year's block grant does not come close to meeting its welfare assistance needs.

As a consequence, Nevada's State treasury and its taxpayers are placed at risk of having to increase the difference occasioned by the cap imposed in this formula.

The children's fair share plan funding formula takes into consideration the substantial population growth projections. It does this by allocating Federal funds to States, based very simply on the number of children who are in poverty in each State.

Mr. President, what could be more fair than to base the allocation on the number of children in poverty in each of the respective States?

Basing welfare allocations on the number of poor children served puts the emphasis on where the priorities should be in this welfare debate, and that is on vulnerable, impoverished children throughout this Nation, irrespective of where they may live.

Traditionally, the main goal of welfare cash assistance programs like AFDC has been to children who are impoverished, have a minimum standard of living. The need to meet that goal continues.

The National Center for Children in Poverty reports that children under the age of 6 living in poverty in America has increased in the 5-year period from 1987 to 1992 by 1 million—from 5 million to 6 million. In the 20-year period from 1972 to 1992, the number of our children living in poverty nearly doubled. This, Mr. President, is a most disturbing trend and one that shows little chance of abeyance.

None of us want poor children in this country to be unable to count on having a meal to eat and a place to sleep. If we cannot continue the current entitlement status for the cash assistance program, we must provide States sufficient funding on an equitable basis.

Nevada, each month, draws thousands of people from surrounding States who come hoping to find jobs. In my own hometown of Las Vegas, 6,000 to 7,000 people each month move into the greater metropolitan area of Las Vegas. This population influx also brings a rapidly increasing number of children. Tragically and unfortunately, many of those children are children in poverty.

The 1995 Kids Count Data Book found that in 1992, Nevada had 6.4 percent of its children in extreme poverty, that they lived in families whose income was below 50 percent of the national poverty level. Additionally, 25 percent of Nevada's children lived in poor and near-poor families.

Rapid growth States, like Nevada, have always been hurt in receiving their appropriate share of Federal funds. Population increases and increases in Federal funds have rarely gone hand-in-hand because of many reasons. Maybe because the Federal Government was not efficient enough to make the sufficient adjustments.

But it is particularly unfair to hold a rapidly growing State, like Nevada, to its 1994 Federal funding level as a baseline for future welfare assistance funding. But this will happen, unless the Graham amendment is adopted.

Think about the absurdity, for a moment, of using population figures from 1994 as the baseline for all future welfare assistance funding increases. From day one, under the Dole bill, Nevada's children in poverty are punished. Under the Dole proposal, Nevada would receive $36 million each year from 1996 through 1998. Under the children's fair share plan, Nevada could receive up to $72 million a year. But understand that the basic overall amount spent on welfare is not the issue here. In my opinion, it is the formula used to allocate that amount.

States like New York and California do better under the Dole bill. Fast-growing States like Nevada are seriously damaged.

The Hutchison "dynamic growth" proposal serves Nevada children no better. Once again, Nevada would be held, in 1996, to its 1994 level of $36 million. In 1997, Nevada would get $1 million more for a total of $37 million. In 1998, Nevada would get an additional $1 million more, again for a total of $38 million. Yes, it is a funding increase. No, it is not based on meeting Nevada's population growth nor its needs.

I genuinely want to achieve a fair and bipartisan solution to this critical issue. The children's fair share proposal, in my judgment, provides that solution. If your State has a high number of children in poverty, your State receives a higher amount of Federal funding. If your State has fewer children in poverty, your State receives a lesser amount of Federal funding. The Federal funding follows the need. What could be fairer than that?

Again, I urge my colleagues to think about the impoverished children in America. Let us work together to ensure that those children, regardless of where they are living, are going to be provided adequate care on an equal basis. They depend upon us to care for them. We must not let them down.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. NICKLES addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, we have had an excellent debate. I know my colleague from New York wishes to address this amendment, as well.

I wish to compliment the parties on both sides of this debate. I think it has been an excellent debate. I note that my friend and colleague from New Mexico is here. He has an amendment. The majority leader has indicated to us that he would like to dispose of that tonight. My guess is that it is a very important amendment dealing with family caps. We will have some good debate on that, as well.

I urge my colleagues to try and conclude debate on the Graham-Bumpers amendment as soon as possible so we can go on to debate the Domenici amendment.

Mr. D'AMATO addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York is recognized.

Mr. D'AMATO. Mr. President, I rise to oppose this amendment. I rise to oppose it on a number of grounds and bases.

First of all, Mr. President, I support welfare reform. We need welfare reform. We need sweeping reform. We need workfare. But reform cannot come solely at the expense of New York, or New York and California, or at the expense of New York, California, and Pennsylvania, or at the expense of any of those to whom this amendment does grievous harm. We are not just talking about States; we are talking about harm to the families, to the children that this amendment will devastate.

This amendment is not about reform. It is not about welfare formulas that make sense. It is about taking money from poor children in certain States. In many cases, these are the States that have done the most to help poor people. And now to penalize them as a result of that and to shift those dollars, without regard to the level of resources the States are willing to commit on their own, but simply to say that we are going to grab more money, we are going to enrich certain States. That's wrong and unacceptable. I am going to point out specifically some of those areas that cause concern.

We have tried to be fair in accommodating the concerns of the Senator from Florida. This bill contains an $877 million supplemental growth formula that will benefit Florida and 18 other States anticipating population growth over the life of this bill. And that is fair and that is reasonable. They are going to have additional growth. Let us take care of that.

Under the Dole-Hutchison formula, the State of Florida will receive $150 million more, over the next 5 years, than they would have received under the Finance Committee's initial proposal. But let me tell you, the amendment that is before us now, the amendment of the Senator from Florida, is fundamentally unfair. Let me tell you what the real impact of this amendment would be.

No. 1, the amendment would reallocate more than $2 billion from 14 States; 14 States would lose $2 billion, causing a half-million families to lose welfare benefits. That is not welfare reform. If we want to kill any chance of welfare reform, then adopt this amendment. Indeed maybe that is the basis and the genesis of this amendment—to kill reform. New York would lose $749 million in fiscal year 1996 alone. Let me tell you what it would be over 5 years, Mr. President: $4.5 billion.

That is just simply wrong. It is mean spirited, and we have not even accounted for the State of California. They have people. They have children. They have needs. They have been meeting those needs.

The loss there would be well over $5 billion. Those two States alone, 20 million people in New York and 30 million in California—50 million people—would account for three-quarters of the funds that were redistributed.

That is not what welfare reform should be about. Fairness, yes. But not this kind of attempt to enrich oneself at the expense of others. That is not what this country is about.

When there is a disaster, we all pitch in. We do not say, "What is the population of your State?" We are there. If there is an earthquake, a fire, floods, devastation, we are there.

If it costs $6 billion, $8 billion, $9 billion to help the State of California, we do it. If it cost $4 billion or $5 billion to help a State, and the State was Florida, we were there. The Senators from New York did not say, "Well we did not get that portion. We did not get that kind of disaster relief."

That is what Federalism is about. I did not think it was about looking at how we can enrich certain states, and then throwing in a bunch of additional States so that we can get votes. That is what this bill is about. There are more than a dozen States, 15 I believe, that are rewarded arbitrarily—nothing to do with need per se; just worked into the formula so we can get more money to get more votes. Supposedly this way we will get 30 votes because we have given each of these 15 States more money.

Is that the way we will run this country? Is that what this legislative body has become?

By the way, I have seen these kinds of amendments in the past. They are wrong. I do not care whether they come from the Republican side or the Democratic side.

Today, there was an amendment offered by one of my colleagues. It could have given New York more money. I voted against it. It would have disadvantaged other States.

This is not about trying to be one up on somebody else. That may not be what is intended, but that is what this amendment is. It is one-upmanship.

We can play that role. It does not take a great genius to figure out a formula, and we could come up with such a formula, that would enrich maybe 33 States and disadvantage some others. I do not think that is what we want to be about—arbitrarily rewarding some States.

Let me just make several points, and I am not going to take a great deal more time, but I am going to say if one were to look at this chart which comes from the incredible work of the Northeast-Midwest Coalition, under the stewardship of the senior Senator from New York, Senator MOYNIHAN, who for years and years and years has been a leader in talking about inequities affecting our region. Want to see some inequities? I will show you an inequity. If we want to look at what tax efforts are and take a look at the Northeast and Midwest from 1981 to 1994 over a 14-year period of time, you will see there is a $690 billion inequity relating to Federal allocable dollars spent in our region.

If we want to change things around, if we want to get into who gets more money, then look at the tax efforts, look at the taxes paid by our respective citizens and our respective States and the amount of money that we get back. We would be pretty well enriched.

Let me tell you again, in this work, Senator MOYNIHAN has been a pioneer in this effort. He has talked about this issue over the years, but it bears repetition right here.

If we are going to get into the business of crafting formulas to enrich our particular State, fine. But it is a nasty business, and it destroys what Federalism is about.

Why, then, we think we have an argument. Between fiscal year 1981 and 1994 on a cumulative basis, if New York's percentage of fair, allocable Federal spending is equal to the Federal share of taxes paid, the State of New York would have received an additional $142 billion. Where is our money? We want $142 billion.

I did not know we were going to get into this business of saying, "Oh, no, we sent $142 billion down, more than what we got back." That is what this kind of amendment is doing. It is mischief-making.

Take a look at the State of Florida. On the other hand, if we had said, "You get as much as you put in," the State of Florida would have received $38.5 billion less. In other words, it has done better. It got $38.5 billion more than it sent down to Washington.

Not bad. But now we are going to find a way to get more money for the State of Florida. Where do we take it from? We take it from New York, its taxpayers and, more importantly, the poor kids, the poor children, the poor families. That is absolutely wrong. It is not acceptable.

Now, as I have said, we want meaningful welfare reform. And, by the way, reasonable people can disagree on the basis of reform. My distinguished colleague and I agree that there has to be welfare reform. We may not agree on every part of this, but I tell you one thing: We all recognize when formulas or propositions—whether they come from the Republican side or the Democratic side—are basically not fair.

You do not just enrich States so that you can get Senators from those States, so you can say, "Look, under my formula I will get the $20 million a year more with no rational basis."

By the way, that is another concern, and I will speak to that when I get 2 minutes tomorrow morning, whereby if you have an 80 percent maintenance of effort, and if the Graham amendment were enacted, New York would be forced to contribute $500 million in welfare spending than would get in its grant from the Federal Government. Incredible.

We had better protect our citizens. If there are areas where the formulas are inequitable and we can make them work better, we should attempt to do that, and we have attempted to do that. But we should not get into the business of advancing one's own interest for one's own State at the expense of another. I do not think that is what we should be about. I do not think that is what this debate should be about.

I have to say there is a tremendous imbalance here, $690 billion over 14 years, if we look at how much our region paid and how much it got back.

I want to thank my senior colleague and Senator, the distinguished Senator from New York, Senator MOYNIHAN, who has made possible the gathering of so much of this information that we could present tonight.

Mr. DOMENICI. Would the Senator from New York yield for a clarification.

Mr. D'AMATO. Certainly.

Mr. DOMENICI. You mentioned under the 80 percent maintenance of effort, New York would lose $500 million.

I think what you meant, Senator, was if this amendment passes.

Mr. D'AMATO. Exactly. I thank my colleague.

Under this amendment, if this amendment were adopted—the irony would be that it would wind up that we would have to spend $1.84 billion and we would only be getting $1.32 billion from the Federal side. In other words, New York would have to contribute roughly $500 million more it would receive from the Federal Government if Senator GRAHAM's amendment were to pass.

It would be devastating. We are not talking about devastating to a State, or to some organization, some institution. We are talking about over 300,000 families that would be impacted—people, live human beings, who, in most cases, would have tremendous problems.

We are trying to find out how to mainstream them. Mainstreaming is one thing. Workfare is one thing, and I support it wholeheartedly. But to impose a radical reallocation of dollars that will deny shelter or a meal to people in my state is not what welfare reform should be about.

Again, I want to thank Senator DOMENICI for pointing out what this impact of this amendment would be, and I certainly want to add my support to the efforts of Senator MOYNIHAN, my distinguished colleague, the senior Senator from New York, in his opposition, to this amendment.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, may I simply thank my distinguished friend and colleague for the forcefulness with which he has made an unmistakably accurate point.

I thank him for his generous personal references.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I thank both our colleagues from New York for their statements. I note the Senator from Florida, Senator GRAHAM, wishes to make a statement. I will just mention to my colleague, Senator DOMENICI, has an important amendment he is prepared to discuss. And we have several other amendments we are supposed to, basically, debate tonight and hopefully have for consideration and vote tomorrow.

So it is my hope we can conclude Senator GRAHAM's debate with this amendment, take up Senator DOMENICI's amendment, and then I know Senator DASCHLE has two amendments, Senator DEWINE has an amendment, Senator MIKULSKI, Senator FAIRCLOTH, and Senator BOXER, that we would also like discuss this evening and have ready for a vote tomorrow.

We still have a lot of work to do tonight and it is my hope maybe we can move forward with this debate as expeditiously as possible.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Florida.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, if no one seeks recognition to speak on the amendment, I would like to make a few comments in closing, recognizing that there is some time reserved tomorrow morning for final comments on this matter.

My comments this evening will be, first, to express my appreciation to all of the Senators who have participated in the debate on this amendment on both sides of the aisle and on both sides of this issue. I recognize that, whenever you are attempting to allocate not only a zero sum, a fixed amount of money, but what actually is a declining amount of money because of the decision to freeze 1994 allocations in place until the year 2000 with no adjustment for inflation, no adjustment for demographic changes, no adjustment for economic changes, you are dealing with, effectively, a declining amount of dollars to attempt to allocate. That makes the issues of fairness even more difficult, but I suggest even more urgent.

I would like to respond to some of the comments that were made. Before doing so, Mr. President, I send to the desk a series of tables and other materials which were referenced in my comments, or comments of Senator BUMPERS or Senator BRYAN, in behalf of this amendment. I ask unanimous consent they be printed in the RECORD at the conclusion of my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 1.)

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, the junior Senator from New York, Senator D'AMATO, said he opposed this amendment because it had no relationship to need, that it was arbitrary and capricious. That is exactly the point. What is more related to need than to allocate funds for poor children based on where poor children are in the year you are going to distribute the money?

What this amendment states is that the fundamental basis for allocating funds will be where poor children are in the year of distribution. If the State of Missouri represents 3 percent of the poor children in America in 1996, it will get 3 percent of the money. If it represents 2.9 percent of the poor children in 1997, it will get 2.9 percent of the money. That, to me, is a principle which is fundamentally as fair and straightforward as the reputation is of Missouri for a State that wants you to "show me" why you are proposing to do what you are proposing to do.

There has been a theme through some of the comments that have been made that we are holding the world constant, and therefore we can continue to hold constant the way in which we have distributed money in the past for the support of poor children. The fact is, we are engaged in reform—some people would say in revolution—of the welfare system. Could it be more paradoxical that we are fundamentally changing the objectives of the system, the structure and administration of the system, the relationship of the States, the Federal Government, and the individuals affected, yet we are going to continue to distribute the Federal money, 99 percent of it, based on the old allocation formula? I think that belies our real commitment to reform.

What are some of the changes in this revolution in welfare? Those changes include massive new mandates to the States to undertake job training and preparation, including placement services where necessary, transportation services, and child care services for those persons who are trying to collect up the necessary personal capabilities to become independent, employed persons in our society.

Those mandates have very serious implications to the States. The State of Texas is going to have to spend 84 percent of the Federal money that it will receive under this program in order to meet those mandates. Yet we are going to continue to distribute money to the State of Texas as if those mandates did not exist because, in fact, those mandates did not exist when this basis of allocation of funds was developed.

We are going to distribute, over the next 5 years, $85 billion of Federal money—this is not State money, this is not money to which any locality has a particular claim, this is money that belonged to all the people of the United States and is paid by all the people of the United States—we are going to distribute $85 billion to a status quo program, how things were in 1994. We are going to distribute a shade less than $900 million based on a formula which will commence 3 years from now, that will provide an increase to a handful of States based on growth and extreme poverty in terms of how far they fall below the national average in their support for poor children.

It has been suggested that there is an unfairness in this adjustment, that we are overly imposing on some States. Let me just look at this chart. The garnet bar represents what is in the amendment that is the basis of this legislation, the Dole proposal. The gold bar represents the modification in funding if the Graham-Bumpers amendment were adopted. Let us just look at New York and Arkansas. Under the Dole bill, New York will receive over $2,000 per poor child in 1996—over $2,000. Arkansas will receive less than $400 per poor child.

If this amendment, that has been described as overreaching and unfair, is adopted, what will happen? What will happen is that in 1996, New York will have approximately $1,400 for every poor child, and Arkansas, that egregious, greedy State of Arkansas, will jump up to approximately $550 per poor child. That is what happens when greed takes over the system and Arkansas begins to move somewhat toward parity.

It will take another 3 years before Arkansas finally reaches New York in parity. Under the proposal that is in the current bill, it will take Arkansas 177 years—177 years before Arkansas would be in parity with New York, under the bill as proposed by the majority leader. Yet we are being accused of being overreaching.

It has been suggested that our amendment is inappropriate because of the maintenance of effort provision that was in this bill. When we wrote this amendment there was zero maintenance of effort in this bill. The maintenance of effort—that is what will be required of States in order to be eligible to participate—has been a work-in-progress over the last several weeks.

We submit this, what we think is the fundamentally appropriate manner in which to allocate $85 billion of Federal funds over the next 5 years for poor children, which is the radical idea. Let us put the money where the poor children are. When the Senate in its wisdom adopts this amendment, then we will come back and look at the issue of what that says in terms of appropriate modifications to a maintenance-of-effort provision.

It has been suggested that there is some Machiavellian plot here, that we are trying to defeat welfare reform. I want to state in the strongest possible terms that I am a strong supporter of welfare reform. My State has two of the most successful welfare work projects in the country.

I spent a day recently working at the project in Pensacola which has put almost 600 people into productive work, which will have half of the welfare population of Pensacola involved in a transition program in the next few months, which already has approximately 25 to 30 percent involved, is serious about the business, and has learned what it is going to take in order to be successful.

So I take second place to no one in my commitment to seeing that there is real welfare reform. But I would suggest that, first, in terms of what is in the interest of the vast number of States in America as seen on this map where all of the States in yellow will be better equipped to meet their responsibilities when the money is distributed based on where poor children are, that we have a better chance of achieving real welfare reform under that allocation of funds than under one which continues to impoverish a large number of States in America.

I believe that on this Senate floor it is going to be difficult—it must be difficult for many Senators who are here tonight; they can read the charts; they know what the implications of this are to their State—to vote for a bill, even one which has many provisions that they support which contains at its heart, at its core, such a cancerous unfairness in terms of how the Federal money will be distributed in terms of where the poor children, the poor children in their State, the poor children in America, live.

Finally, in terms of, is this a plot to sink welfare reform? In my judgment, this is not the plot. The plot is there, Mr. President. It is there in the bill as authored by the majority leader. And it is there because there are not the resources available in that formula, in that bill, in order to meet the objective of having 25 percent of the welfare beneficiaries in meaningful employment in 1996 and 50 percent in meaningful employment in the year 2000.

That is not Senator GRAHAM's assessment. That is, among others, the assessment of the Congressional Budget Office, which has estimated that upwards of 40-plus States will not be able to meet the work requirements in the legislation offered by the majority leader, in large part because they do not have the resources to pay for those things that will be necessary to prepare people for work, including the appropriate child care for their dependent children while they are preparing themselves to work and during those initial weeks of employment.

So there may be a plot here to sink welfare reform and to show that, in fact, it is unattainable, but that plot is contained in the legislation which is the underlying proposal of the majority leader, not in this proposal, which in fact would give all States an equal opportunity to use their creativity, imagination, and unleash what the presiding officer as a former Governor and I as a former Governor know to be the energy of States to meet a very serious national problem at the local level.

So, Mr. President, I urge the close attention of all of my colleagues to the implication of this amendment and urge tomorrow, when this is before us for a vote, their favorable consideration.

Thank you, Mr. President.

HHS/ASPE analysis. State work and child care costs are based on national averages. This analysis assumes that there will be no operating cost in the work program for those combining work and welfare, those sanctioned and those leaving welfare for work. Likewise, the analysis assumes no cost of related child care for those leaving welfare for work and those sanctioned.

GRAHAM-BUMPERS CHILDREN'S FAIR SHARE AMENDMENT

Principles: A formula based on fairness should be guided by the following principles:

(1) Block grant funding should reflect need or the number of persons in the individual states who need assistance;

(2) A state's access to federal funding should increase if the number of people in need of assistance increases;

(3) States should not be permanently disadvantaged based upon their policy choices and circumstances in 1994; and

(4) If requirements and penalties are to be imposed on states, fairness dictates that all states have an equitable and reasonable chance of reaching those goals.

S. 1120 fails to meet each and every test of fairness.

GRAHAM-BUMPERS CHILDREN'S FAIR SHARE PROPOSAL

The Graham-Bumpers Children's Fair Share proposal allocates funding based on the number of poor children in each state. In sharp contrast to S. 1120, the Graham-Bumpers amendment meets all the principles of an improved and much more equitable formula allocation.

The amendments is needs-based, adjusts for population and demographic changes, treats all poor children equitably, does not permanently disadvantage states based on previous year's spending in a system that is being dismantled, and allows all states a more equitable chance at achieving the work requirements in S. 1120. The Graham-Bumpers Children's Fair Share measure would establish a fair, equitable and level playing field for poor children in America, regardless of where they live.

Disparities in funding would be narrowed in the short-run and eliminated over time—in sharp contrast to S. 1120.

Children's Fair Share Allocation Formula: The Children's Fair Share formula would allocate funding based on a three-year average of the number of children in poverty. This information would come from the Bureau of the Census in its annual estimate through sampling data. With the latest data available, the Secretary would determine the state-by-state allocations and publish the data in the Federal Register on January 15 of every year.

Small State Minimum Allocation: For any State whose allocation was less than 0.6%, the minimum allocation would be set at the lesser of 0.6% of the total allocation or twice the actual FY 1994 expenditure level.

Allocation Increase Ceiling: For all states except those covered by the small state minimum allocation, the amount of the allocation would be restricted to increase not more than 50% over FY 1994 expenditure levels in the first year and to 50% increases for every subsequent year.

Final Adjustment to Minimize Adverse Impact: The savings from the "allocation increase ceiling" would exceed that for "small state minimum allocation". The net effect of these adjustments would be reallocated among the states who receive less than their FY 1994 actual expenditures.

Implications for the Medicaid Debate: The importance of a fair funding formula to states cannot be overstated.

With similar proposals to change the Medicaid program expected later this year, how these block grants are allocated among the states is absolutely critical. More than four out of every 10 dollars that Washington sends to state governments are Medicaid dollars. Medicaid is nearly five times bigger than the federal role in welfare: $81 billion a year versus $17 billion. If Congress "reforms" welfare by locking in past spending patterns and inequities, that would set a dangerous precedent for Medicaid.

THE UNFAIRNESS AND INEQUITY CAUSED BY THE S. 1120 FORMULA

Under S. 1120, most states will receive a block grant amount frozen at fiscal year 1994 levels through fiscal year 2000. Past inequities would be locked into place and future demographic or economic changes would not be adjusted for by S. 1120's funding formula.

A small number of states would qualify for an extremely limited 2.5% annual adjustment in the second and subsequent years of the block grant authorization. To qualify, states must meet either of two tests:

Federal spending per poor person in the state must be below the national average and population growth in the state is above the national average; or,

Federal spending per poor person in the state in fiscal year 1994 is below 35% of the national average.

S. 1120 Exacerbates and Makes Permanent Enormous Disparities: A formula based largely on shares of 1994 federal spending would result in large disparities between states in federal funding per poor child. For example, under S. 1120, Mississippi would receive $331 per poor child per year while New York would receive $2,036 or over six times more per poor child than Mississippi. Massachusetts would receive $2,177 or at least five times more per poor child than the states of Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, South Carolina and Texas. There is no justification for poor children to be treated with less or more value by the federal government.

Proponents of the bill will argue that some states will qualify for 2.5% annual adjustments to address this disparity. However, the bill fails to provide aid to nine states

(Kentucky, Oklahoma, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Nebraska, West Virginia, Kansas and North Dakota) with below average federal funding per poor child.

Moreover, even for those who do qualify, the adjustment is glacial and may fail to ever achieve parity. For example, it is estimated that it will take Mississippi over 50 years to reach parity.

No Policy Justification: There is no justification for allocating future federal funds based on 1994 state spending. The needs of states in the future, both in terms of demographic and economic changes, will have no bearing on spending in 1994. States should not be permanently disadvantaged based upon their policy choices and circumstances in 1994.

Penalizes Efficiency: Basing all future funding on 1994 spending locks in historical inequities and inefficiencies. In 1994, the national average monthly administrative expense per case was $53.42, but New York and New Jersey had costs, respectively, of $106.68 and $105.26, almost eight times as high as West Virginia's cost of $13.34. Those states with higher administrative costs in fiscal year 1994 would receive block grant amounts reflecting their higher fiscal year 1994 costs for the next five years.

Fails to Account for Population Growth: Initial disparities would be further exacerbated by different rates of population growth. Between 1995-2000, ten states are projected to grow at least 8% while eight are projected to grow less than 1% or experience a population decline. Among the 25 states projected to have higher population growth, 17 would receive initial allocations below the national average.

The initial disparities locked in by the Dole approach would actually intensify as a result of these different rates of anticipated population growth through the end of the decade.

Proponents of the bill will argue that some states will qualify for 2.5% annual adjustments to address this disparity. However, the bill fails to provide six states (Washington, Alaska, Hawaii, Oregon, California and Delaware) with projected above-average population growth with aid.

Loser States Double Disadvantaged: States that receive less than their fair share of funding per poor child are the least likely to meet the work requirements under S. 1120, which leads to further funding sanctions. The additional cost of the work program and associated child care in S. 1120 would take up virtually all of the funding for those receiving less than the national average funding per poor child.

The additional costs to Mississippi, Louisiana, Tennessee and Texas are estimated to exceed 80% of federal funding to those states in the year 2000 compared to less than 40% of the cost in states such as California and New York, Oregon and Wisconsin. Ironically, those states receiving less than their fair share of funding will most likely fail to meet the work requirements, and thus, be subject to the 5% penalty in S. 1120.

Growth States Often Double Disadvantaged: Most growth states will be double disadvantaged. While population growth will fail to be adequately accounted for in the federal funding formula, growth states will have rapidly increasing numbers of people needed to meet the participation requirements. States such as Arizona, Arkansas, Florida, Hawaii, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Texas will need to have three or four times the number of people participating in work program by 2000 than they do in 1994, despite no or very little increasing in funding over the period.

Block Grant Formula Are "Forever": If the Dole formula is adopted, we are creating something that will be difficult, if not impossible, to change for a very long time. Example after example can be cited of block grants that are being allocated today based on funding levels to states over a decade ago.

No Lesson Learned: The General Accounting Office in a report issued in February 1995 report entitled "Block Grants Characteristics, Experience and Lessons Learned" wrote, "...because initial funding allocations [used in current block grants] were based on prior categorical grants, they were not necessarily equitable." The Dole approach would once again fail to address these concerns.

WESTERN GOVERNORS' ASSOCIATION: RESOLUTION 95-001, PASSED UNANIMOUSLY ON JUNE 25, 1995

In formulating the block grant proposals for welfare and Medicaid the Western Governors' Association strongly urges Congress to account for [these] realities in order to implement block grant funding in an equitable fashion:

(1) State population levels are growing at different rates, and differences must be recognized in any block grant formula.

(2) States have different benefit levels for both welfare and Medicaid and the block grant should not reward states that have been operating less efficiently and penalize states that have been operating more efficiently.

(3) The need for welfare and Medicaid are related to the business cycle, and the federal government should offer assistance to states during down cycles that is timely and responsive.

After selecting a block grant approach, the next logical question is, "How should the block grant be divided among the states?" The compromise reached by your committee was to prorate funds based on historical patterns. In a static world, that would be a perfect solution. However, as you know, Texas has been and will likely continue to be a high growth state. In the interest of fairness, I would urge you to add a significant growth factor to the block grant that is tied to population needs.—Gov. George W. Bush of Texas, April 25, 1995.

This debate is about fairness and real change versus the status quo Incredibly, the "new and improved" formulas approved by the U.S. House do nothing to address the migration of people within the United States and, in fact, simply set arbitrary spending patterns in stone for the foreseeable future.—Comptroller John Sharp of Texas, April 25, 1995.

It seems to me any welfare proposal should have a basic principle to treat all poor children equitably, and not favor any state's children at the expense of another's. . . . If Congress is going to radically redesign its welfare laws and block grant the money to the states, it needs to allocate that money fairly. States shouldn't be penalized in 1996, or rewarded for that matter, for spending practices of previous years in a system being discarded. That borders on the absurd and it contradicts the very intent of Congress doing away with the system and all of its inherent flaws.—Gov. Lawton Chiles of Florida, May 1, 1995.

If it's done strictly on previous year's experience, that is going to disproportionately punish the Southern States. . . . Distributing the funds based on the percentage of population in poverty, with some consideration of the state's tax base would be much more equitable.—Gwen Williams, Medicaid Commissioner for Alabama (quoted on May 22, 1995).

A poor child in Michigan would get twice as much as a child in my state. That's not right. It's not fair. . . . Let's make equal protection of children the foundation for reform.—Gov. Lawton Chiles of Florida, May 11, 1995.

When a lump sum distribution is made to the states, what fraction of the total should each state receive? The best approach is to base each state's share on the proportion of that nation's poor who reside in the state. A much less desirable approach is currently favored by the Republican leadership in Congress and is reflected in the House bill. This approach would block-grant funds based on current federal spending, rewarding the states that currently spend the most, instead of assisting those with the greatest need.—Dr. John C. Goodman (Goldwater Institute, paper dated July 1995).

If federal block grants to the states are based on current federal outlays, the effect will be to permanently entrench failed welfare policies in some states. . . . Equally important, the philosophically inclined among us. . . . should wonder why the Congress would enact a block grant system which rewards and continues profligate spending at the expense of states which have done far better at keeping costs down.—Gov. Fife Symington of Arizona, April 26, 1995.

Block grant funding would be locked in, in spite of rapidly changing patterns of need. This dissonance between need and funding would produce devastating results over a five year period.—Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison and 39 other senators (in a letter to Sens. Robert Packwood and Daniel Patrick Moynihan on May 23, 1995).

Under the [Maternal Child Health Block Grant], funds continue to be distributed primarily on the basis of funds received in fiscal year 1981 under the previous categorical programs. . . . We found that economic and demographic changes are not adequately reflected in the current allocation, resulting in problems of equity.—General Accounting Office, February 1995.

Mr. PRYOR. Mr. President, I wish to add my voice to the debate over the amendment to redistribute the limited funds in this block grant based on the number of poor children in each State.

First let me say that I am pleased by the bipartisan nature of this amendment. There are many areas in the debate where both Democrats and Republicans can agree. We all agree that the current system does not work. It does not put people to work. It does not give States enough flexibility to craft a system that will keep them working. We can agree on what is wrong with the current system. What is much more difficult is finding some common ground on the best way to fix it.

President Clinton called on Congress to end welfare as we know it. Yet here we are building a new system on the rotting foundations of a system that we all agree has failed.

Mr. President, welfare reform should be about protecting children and putting their parents to work. This bill is a step in the right direction, but it uses a formula to distribute block grant funds that fails to give States the resources they need to accomplish these goals. The children's fair share amendment gives States with high populations of poor children the resources they need to serve those children. It bases the funds a State receives on the number of needy people the State will be asked to serve. It is fair.

In Arkansas, 25 percent of children live in poverty. One in every four children in my State lives below the poverty line.

Under the formula in this bill, Arkansas would get $375 per poor child, while the national average is over $1,000 and some States receive over $2,000 per poor child. This block grant is to be used for cash benefits, but it also pays for work programs and for child care so parents who find work can afford to keep working. It pays for administrative costs. Arkansas needs to pay a program director and to buy pens and paper just like every other state. Why should the Federal Government pay over $2,000 for each poor child in New York and Massachusetts and less than $400 per child in Arkansas and South Carolina?

I support this amendment, but I recognize that it still leaves large disparities in spending per poor child between States. Under this amendment, spending in Arkansas per poor child will rise from $375 to $563. In Massachusetts it will fall from $1,761 to $1,341. In New York, it will fall from $2,036 to $1,375. States that are getting more money per poor child now will still get more money per poor child should this amendment pass. This formula doesn't call for complete equity, but it does move us a little closer to a distribution of Federal funds that is fair.

This debate is not about benefit levels. We should not lock States into the policy decisions they made in years past. I applaud States that can afford to spend more money on welfare. But, the Federal Government has a responsibility to treat children equally, regardless of where they live.

This formula is based on what is really at the heart of the debate on welfare reform—poor children. And I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting it.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Florida as well as the Senator from Arkansas for their eloquent debate and the Senator from New York for giving the counter view. I think we have had excellent debate on this amendment. I know my friend and colleague from New Mexico, Senator DOMENICI, has an amendment that he wishes to discuss.

If no one else wishes to speak on the Graham amendment, Mr. President, I hope that we will have debate on the Domenici amendment, and I ask my other colleagues who have requested time to discuss their amendments tonight. Senator DOMENICI has mentioned that he will not be on the floor too long on this amendment. Other Senators that have amendments listed in the unanimous-consent order, if they wish to debate those tonight, I hope they will come to the floor in the near future.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, might I add that, if they think they wish not to do so, they would let us know.

Several Senators addressed the Chair.

Mr. BUMPERS. Mr. President, I wonder if the distinguished floor manager would yield for a question. We are going to vote tomorrow, as I understand it. We are going to stack the votes on these amendments. I just wondered if there had been any kind of consent agreement about allowing the proponents and opponents 2 or 3 minutes before each vote to sort of recapitulate the amendment.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, to respond to our colleague from Arkansas, part of the unanimous-consent agreement would allow 10 minutes of debate to be equally divided between the Senators on this amendment, and actually on the Graham amendment there will be 20 minutes equally divided.

Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Smith). The Senator from New Mexico is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 2575

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I call up my printed amendment No. 2575 and ask for its consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, that will be the pending question.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senators MOYNIHAN, NUNN, BREAUX, and KASSEBAUM be added as original cosponsors of the Domenici amendment on a family cap.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, this is a very serious issue. I do not think we are going to take a lot of time tonight because I think the issue has been thoroughly discussed in various meetings, in conferences, and in caucuses, and clearly among various groups in our country, pro-life groups, pro-choice groups, proabortion groups, welfare reform groups, and so on.

So I am probably only going to take 15 or 20 minutes at the most. I do not want anyone to think that brevity has anything to do with the seriousness of this issue.

I want to talk a little bit about what I am trying to do and give the Senate my best perception of why I think it is the best thing we can do in a welfare reform bill that is attempting to experiment, innovate, and send a program that has failed back to the States so that they might consider handling it differently and tailoring it to the needs of their States within the amount of money that is going to be allowed in whatever formula we end up adopting.

So, as currently amended, the bill in front of us contains a provision requiring States to impose a so-called family cap. This provision says that, if a mother has a child while on welfare, the State cannot increase cash benefits to that mother for that child.

I want to stress that what we are saying to the States is, even if you consider it to be the best thing to do, and even if you have some evidence that, working within a proposal that provides additional cash benefits, you might prevent more teenagers from having children or welfare mothers from having children, you cannot do it because, while we are busy here saying let us send these programs to the States, we are busy in this bill saying, but we know best, the U.S. Congress knows best.

The Governors came to us and said, let us run the programs. We have now said, Governors, you have to run it with State legislators. We voted that in recently.

So out in the country Republicans have been acknowledging that we want to send programs closer to home where those who are close to the people can carry out the laws as they see them best for their people.

Why do we decide then, with all of that excellent rhetoric about sending programs closer to home, to Governors and legislators, why do we think we are so wise that we say with reference to one of the most serious problems around—teenage pregnancies and welfare mothers that have children—we know the way to fix that is to say if you are a welfare mother and have a child, the State cannot give you any cash assistance? Mr. President, I am not wise enough to know whether they should or whether they should not.

So my amendment is a very simple amendment. In fact, I think I could call it after one of the most distinguished Republican Governors around, for I could call it the Engler amendment. It happens that he is not a Senator, so we are going to call it the Domenici-Moynihan amendment. It could be the Engler amendment, Governor Engler, because he said without any question, testifying before the Budget Committee, which I happen to chair, that "conservative strings are no better than liberal strings." Got it? He said, "Conservative strings are no better than liberal strings."

For what was he arguing? He was arguing for his State to have the authority to determine whether there should be a family cap or not and that they ought to be able to put a plan together on a yearly basis. They do not even have to get that plan on for 5 years. We are sending them a 5-year State entitlement, I say to my friend from New York. Each year they are going to get for 5 years a State entitlement.

What Governor Engler was saying is, let us every year decide on a plan to use that money in the best interests of those who need welfare assistance. And, mind you, everyone should know that the Senator from New Mexico is here arguing about this aspect of a growing disagreement in the Senate, but I want welfare reform. And I want it to be a 5-year program, not a program that people can have forever. And we are on the road to doing that. It should not have been a lifestyle. It should have been a stopover point to get some assistance and training and get on with trying to do for yourself.

So make no bones about that. That is what I want. And I believe the States are apt to do a better job than we have done. Why? Because I think they can experiment and innovate, and, frankly,

I cannot understand, since that is the basis of all of this, why in the world we would say that to them, but when it comes to one of the most serious problems with reference to society today—unwed mothers and teenage pregnancies—we know best. We know best. And we think in our wisdom that if we say no cash benefits, I say to the distinguished Senator from New Hampshire in the chair, that somehow or another it will reduce the number of children born to teenagers or mothers who happen to be on welfare. And there is no empirical evidence that that is true.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. None.

Mr. DOMENICI. None. There is a bit, a smattering of evidence that came out of the State of New Jersey because they tried this, and that smattering of evidence was soon refuted by an in-depth study by Rutgers University which ended up suggesting that probably it had no effect at all with reference to the numbers of pregnancies. As a matter of fact, I do not know why it took so long and two studies, one they did at the State level and one by Rutgers.

Can we really believe, with the problems teenagers are having and the societal mixup that they find themselves in, that cash benefits are going to keep them from getting pregnant? I cannot believe it. Frankly, there is no evidence of that.

Let me tell you, there is a smattering of evidence—not a lot, I say to my friend from New York, but a little bit—that abortions have increased, that abortions have increased.

Frankly, that is not too illogical either. If one is going to stand up and argue that by denying $284 or $320, just that notion out there will keep them from getting pregnant and having babies out of wedlock or as welfare mothers, why would it not be logical to assume that if they are pregnant somebody would say, "You are not going to get any help. Why don't you have an abortion."

If one might work, the other might work. I do not want the second one. I do not want to be for a welfare program that I have to vote for and have on my conscience that I was part of a program to do some good and at the same time said to teenagers, "Maybe you ought to get an abortion." I do not want to vote for that.

So some people ask me: Why do you offer this amendment? After all, the bill before us says there can be some noncash—there can be; it is permissive—some noncash benefits that can be provided. Well, I want them to be able to provide noncash benefits, but I want them to be able to provide cash benefits, not mandatory but that they can.

Now, Mr. President, from what I can tell, clearly we do not know what we are talking about in terms of impact when we say, tell the States what to do and tell them not to give one penny to a welfare mother, teenager or otherwise, who has another child, when we stand up and say, we do not want any more teenage pregnancies, we do not want any more welfare mothers who have another child, and then to say, and if we just do not give them any money, it will all stop.

Frankly, that is the state of the debate we are in, as I see it. I would almost think that we would have been within our rights to say they have to continue to support them. But I do not choose to do that.

My amendment is very simple and very neutral. If Governor Engler, who has designed one of the best welfare programs in America—and, incidentally, one of the best Medicaid block grant programs on waivers and otherwise—if he chooses to say I have a program and I want some cash benefits to the second child of one of these situations that we really pray to God would not be around, but if he says I would like to try that for 2 or 3 years, why should we say no? Why should we say no? Under the guise of what authority, what wisdom, what prerogative other than we know best and it might sound good? It might sound good to say we are not going to let them have any cash. That may really resonate out there very well. But I am not sure in the end that we would not be better off, since we are trying a program for 5 years and giving an entitlement, to decide that conservative strings are no better than liberal strings, to quote the distinguished Governor, Governor Engler, from the State of Michigan.

I know my friend—and he is my friend. I just saw him arrive in the Chamber. The first time he started sitting at committee hearings I sat right by him in Banking, and I have great respect for him—and I just happen on this one to disagree. I think we are going to have to vote on it, and then obviously the House has different opinions yet from what we have.

I wish to just once again say that in New Jersey, the State that pioneered the family cap, originally claimed through officials that there was a reduction in out-of-wedlock births. Subsequent studies from Rutgers University indicates that that cap had no significant effect on birth rates among welfare mothers. More ominously, in May, New Jersey's welfare officials announced that the abortion rate actually increased 3.6 percent in 8 months after the New Jersey statutes barred additional payments to women on welfare.

Now, I am not vouching for these statistics. That is a small percentage and a short period of time. But it surely points up, Mr. President and fellow Senators, that we really do not know. If we really do not know, it would seem to me we ought to err on the side of giving the Governors and legislatures who have to otherwise put the program together this option.

If they want to put the family caps on, let them vote it in. If they do not want to, let them have a plan that provides otherwise. And it would seem to me that we will end up having done a far better job under the circumstances for the poor people in this country, poor in many ways, not only poor financially but poor of spirit, clearly, though many of them do not like the situation they are in.

We ought to continue pushing for job training and employment opportunities and employment because that will build a better society for them and that spirit that is so down might be lifted up and they might have a chance.

Now, I urge that my colleagues resist putting strings back into this block grant. And, finally, I point out there is no budgetary impact, no budgetary savings attributed to the family cap provision. So I am not here arguing for more money. I am merely arguing that with whatever money the States get, let them be able to pass judgment on this aspect of their program, which is very, very difficult for us to comprehend in terms of the human aspects of it.

And I hope I am not, by doing this, causing this bill any harm, this welfare bill, because anybody that listened to me here tonight knows I want to try this welfare reform. And I think there is room for the Domenici-Moynihan amendment as a part of this program as we send it back to the States to see if we cannot do better than the last 2 or 3 years.

I yield the floor.

Mr. MOYNIHAN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I could not have stated this case more emphatically, with more clarity and more charity than the Senator from New Mexico. We are talking about children who do not have any control over when they come into the world or in what circumstances.

I would want to make one point. It need not be made in the Senate Chamber, but just for the record. There is a notion that somehow welfare families are large. They are not. They are smaller than the average, husband-and-wife family. The average number of children is 1.9. They begin too early. They begin without the arrangements that need to accompany, ought to accompany, the beginning of a family, a stable husband-wife relationship. Children born to these single women in poverty do poorly the rest of their lives, by and large. We know so little about why all this has happened.

There are efforts abroad to change this culture of dependency, to get the mothers on welfare off the rolls and into work. We have heard one Senator after another describing the programs in place in their States—Iowa, California, Georgia, Michigan—under the Family Support Act, in which States do what they think best and experiment.

But do not put the lives of children at risk in this way. Or at least do not do it because the Federal Government says you have to. That would be unpardonable. I fear that we are making a grave mistake by prohibiting benefits to children born into welfare families, but if it is to be done, far better that the Federal Government not impose the requirement upon States which do not desire it. Therefore I very much hope that this amendment is approved tomorrow. I have every confidence that it will be. Ask any of us—any of us—ask what if one of our children was in this situation? That could happen. We know what we would say. These other children are our children, too.

I hope that the Senator's amendment will be adopted when it is debated tomorrow morning. And, again, I note that there will be 10 minutes equally divided at that time. I thank the Chair.

I see the Senator from North Carolina is on the floor. He has an amendment, as I believe.

Mr. FAIRCLOTH addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Carolina.

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. I do rise in opposition to the amendment offered by my friend and colleague from New Mexico. I do strongly disagree with the approach we have taken on welfare. And I strongly believe that it has been a total failure and it is time we do something about it.

We have to do something firm and strong. I have been saying, ever since Congress began to debate the issue of welfare reform, that unless we address illegitimacy, which is the root cause of welfare dependency, we will not truly reform welfare. Only by taking away the perverse cash incentive to have children out of wedlock can we hope to slow the increase in out-of-wedlock births and ultimately end welfare dependency.

I am pleased that the bill before us today has been strict, since it was reported out of the Finance Committee, by the inclusion of a family cap provision. This prohibits the use of Federal funds to give higher welfare benefits to women who have more children while already receiving welfare. This is a sensible, commonsense step towards encouraging personal responsibility on the part of welfare recipients. And it is time that they accept personal responsibility. It would establish the principle that it is irresponsible for unmarried women, already on welfare, to have additional children and to expect the taxpayers to pay for them.

Middle-class American families who want to have children plan, prepare, and save money because they understand the serious responsibility involved in bringing children into this world. I think it is grossly unfair to ask these same people to send their hard-earned tax dollars—and tax dollars are earned—to support the reckless, irresponsible behavior of a woman who has children out of wedlock, continues to have them, and is expecting the American taxpayers to pay for them. It is time they become responsible.

The State of New Jersey is the only State in the Nation which has instituted a family cap policy denying an increase in cash welfare benefits to mothers who have additional children while already receiving welfare benefits. The evidence now available from New Jersey, I say to the Senator from New Mexico, as of this morning, shows that the family cap resulted in a decline in births to women on aid to families with dependent children by a 10-percent drop, but did not result in any significant increase—0.2 percent maybe—in the abortion rate.

Information presented yesterday in Washington by Rudy Meyers of the New Jersey Department of Human Services indicates that in the 16 months after the cap was initiated, there was a 10-percent decrease in the rate of out-of-wedlock births. Clearly, the family cap was responsible for this significant decline.

Critics claim that the policy has not caused a reduction in the number of illegitimate births. They claim that there is merely a delay in welfare mothers reporting births to the welfare office. This is not the case. Under the family cap, AFDC mothers still have a strong financial incentive to notify the welfare bureaucracy of any additional births. The family cap limits only AFDC benefits. They still receive increased food stamps and Medicaid benefits for each additional child born. So AFDC mothers still have a monetary incentive to notify the welfare bureaucracy of an additional child.

There has been concern that the family cap would reduce out-of-wedlock births by increasing abortions. However, the current data from New Jersey indicates that it did not result in any significant increase in the rate of abortions among these women, but did result in fewer children being conceived.

The New Jersey family cap was based on the principle that the welfare system should reward responsible rather than irresponsible behavior. Few expected the modest limits on benefits to result in a significant drop in births to welfare mothers.

The fact that New Jersey's limited experiment has surprisingly caused a drop in illegitimate births and hence in welfare dependency, merely enhances the case for the policy that is now in this welfare bill.

Nevertheless, it is clear that this country must begin to address the crisis of illegitimacy. Today, over one-third of all American children are born out of wedlock.

According to Senator MOYNIHAN, the illegitimate birth rate will reach 50 percent by 2003, if not much sooner. The rise of illegitimacy and the collapse of marriage has a devastating effect on children and society. Even President Clinton has declared that the collapse of the family is a major factor driving up America's crime rate.

Halting the rapid rise of illegitimacy must be the paramount goal of welfare reform. It is essential that any welfare reform legislation enacted by Congress send out a loud and very clear message that society does not condone the growth of out-of-wedlock childbearing and that taxpayers will not continue to open-endedly fund subsidies for illegitimacy which has characterized welfare in the past. The New Jersey family cap policy shows that welfare mothers will respond to this message.

I support such a policy at the Federal level, and I strongly urge my colleagues to vote against the pending amendment.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. NICKLES addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, with some reluctance, I rise in opposition to the amendment of my friend and colleague, Senator DOMENICI. First, let me make sure everyone is clear in what we have in the Dole amendment. The Dole language does not tie the hands of Governors to spend their own dollars. They can give cash benefits using their own money. If the states want to give additional cash assistance to welfare recipients who have additional children while on welfare, they could do so. In addition, the state can even use Federal dollars to provide vouchers or noncash assistance. So I think maybe there might have been some understanding as to what is actually in the proposal before us.

The Dole amendment says that there will be no additional Federal cash benefits given to welfare mothers if they have additional children. In other words, we want to take the financial cash incentive away from welfare mothers for having additional children.

Senator FAIRCLOTH mentioned, I think, the only real experiment we have had on the family cap is in New Jersey. Let us just look at the New Jersey experiment. I am not an expert on this case, but there has been significant homework done on New Jersey in a recent report by the Heritage Foundation: "The Impact of New Jersey's Family Cap on Out-of-Wedlock Births and Abortions."

First, let me mention, I compliment my friend and colleague from North Carolina, Senator FAIRCLOTH, because he has mentioned repeatedly that illegitimacy and out-of-wedlock births are a big part of our welfare problem, and he is right.

I want to compliment my friend and colleague from New Mexico, because he also decried the facts of family break-up and the fact that so many kids are born out of wedlock. I happen to agree with him. It is a staggering statistic when you find out that over one-third of America's babies today are born in a single-parent home. They do not have the luxury of having a father and a mother. Those kids, those newborn babies are starting life at a significant disadvantage. The probability that they end up in welfare, the probability that they end up in crime or some other environment is much, much greater than those babies who are fortunate enough to be born into a family with both a father and a mother.

So we need to reduce the incidence of children born out of wedlock. I do not think there is any doubt and I do not think anyone would contest that fact. If one looks at the crime statistics clearly that is true.

Would we make a difference if we say under this legislation we are going to take away the cash incentive for welfare mothers who have additional children? New Jersey tried it. What have been the results? I will read from the Heritage Foundation's report. It is dated September 6, 1995:

New Jersey is the only State in the Nation that instituted a family cap policy: denying an increase in cash welfare benefits to mothers having additional children while already receiving welfare. The evidence currently available from New Jersey indicates that the family cap has resulted in a decline in births to women on AFDC but not an increase in the abortion rate.

I will highlight a couple of other points that are in the report. It says:

The cap appears to have caused an average decrease of 134 births per month, or 10 percent.

So it has reduced the number of children born to welfare mothers.

Has that caused a corresponding increase in abortion? I happen to agree with my colleague from New Mexico, I do not want that to happen. I think that would be a terrible result if it does.

I will read from the report:

There has been a concern that family cap in national welfare reform legislation would reduce out-of-wedlock births by increasing abortions. However, the data currently available from New Jersey indicate that while the establishment of the family cap was followed by a clear and significant decrease in the number of births to welfare mothers, it did not result in any significant increase in the rate of abortions among these women.

I will just read one additional line:

The difference between pre- and post-cap abortion rate is extremely small and not statistically significant. Overall, the available data indicate the family cap did not cause an increase in either the abortion rate or the number of abortions.

Again, I am not an expert in that. I do have confidence in the Heritage Foundation. I think they are a very reputable group. I read portions of this study into the RECORD for my colleagues' information.

Again, let me repeat what we have in the underlying Dole bill. It says that no Federal cash benefits would be given to welfare mothers if they have additional children. It does not prohibit States from giving additional cash if they want to do so with their own money. The States can do so if they want to do it.

States are given a block grant. With that Federal money, they can use some of that money to provide noncash benefits. Maybe those benefits would be in the form of food supplements, maybe in the form of additional medical care, maybe in the form of day care assistance, whatever. The State would have the option to do what they want with the vouchers but not cash; in other words, trying to take the additional cash incentive out of welfare.

I think the Dole compromise is a good one. Again, I want to compliment my friend and colleague from North Carolina and also Senator DOLE for this provision and compliment as well my friend and colleague from New Mexico, because I understand his sincerity. I understand his conviction about not wanting to increase the number of abortions, and I appreciate that. But I hope, in the final analysis, that his amendment will not be agreed to.

Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico is recognized.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, might I ask Senator NICKLES, who I assume is managing the bill, does he know whether the other amendments that people were going to offer are ready?

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I will just respond to my colleague, I know Senator DEWINE wishes to discuss his amendment. He also wishes to discuss the amendment of the Senator from New Mexico briefly. I am not sure if Senator FAIRCLOTH wanted to discuss his amendment tonight.

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. Yes, I do.

Mr. NICKLES. And I think Senator DASCHLE has two amendments, and he may wish to discuss his briefly as well.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I yield myself 4 minutes. I do not want to exceed that.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Time is not controlled.

Mr. DOMENICI. I understand, but will the Chair advise me of that so I will not waste too much time?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair will do so.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, just so we make it clear, the Senator from New Mexico is not telling anybody, any State, any program or putting together a State program, any legislator, individually or collectively anywhere in America that they have to continue cash benefits to a mother who is on welfare who has another child.

All I am suggesting is that while we are busy structuring a new program, we ought to take advice from people like Governor Engler, who has led the way in terms of Medicaid reform at the local level, and welfare reform, when he suggests that we ought to leave this up to the States.

So all I am doing is adding to the voucher system—substituting for that voucher system a permissive payment of cash benefits by the States, if they choose that as part of their plan, and if they think that is better in the overall prevention and assistance to welfare mothers who have another child.

I believe the argument is on the side of prudence, on the side of using some rationale. Let us give the program a chance to work, and let us not dictate up here, as we are prone to do when we do not know the results.

I have great confidence in the Heritage Foundation. But I have in my hands the summary of a study done by Rutgers University. I believe it is right, and I believe it is the official study on the State of New Jersey. It was a controlled case study, Mr. President, whereby for a period from August of 1993 through July of 1994, 2,999 AFDC mothers that were subject to the family cap were evaluated, and the percentage of birth rate was 6.9 percent. And the AFDC mothers not subject to a family cap was 1,429, and the difference was two-tenths of 1 percent, which is not sufficient for any conclusion to be drawn.

Frankly, I am not surprised at that. But I think it clearly points out that there is some serious doubt about its efficacy with reference to this aspect of the results of the program. I am merely saying, once again, why not give the States a chance? I would assume that New Jersey tried this and some other States want to try it—that is, putting the family cap on. I would assume that if it is so right, and so right for our country, and for the taxpayers, that most States would try it. I just would like to give them the option to do otherwise, if they choose.

I also want to point out that this amendment is supported by the National Council of Bishops, the National Conference of State Legislators, the U.S. Catholic Conference, the National Governors Association, the Women's Defense League Fund, and many others, conservative and liberal. I believe this is not a conservative or liberal issue. This is an issue of how are we going to be most wise and prudent as we deliver up for use this block grant money in an area that is strewn with heartache and problems and misery and waste. I believe this is a better way.

I yield the floor.

Mr. DEWINE addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio is recognized.

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, I rise in strong support of Senator DOMENICI's amendment. I think, as we debate welfare reform tonight and as we debate the amendment of my friend from New Mexico, we need to step back a little bit from this whole welfare debate. We are a number of days into this now. It is rather late in the evening. But I think we need to look at this from the big picture.

Mr. President, one of the main reasons that we are on the floor tonight debating meaningful, true welfare reform is because our current welfare system simply does not work. We have decades of experience. We have decades of experience and examples of what does not work. Quite frankly, what we do not know is what does work. We are just now, in the last several years, beginning to see more experimentation at the State level. And while some of the early returns are in, frankly, it is still very difficult to see what works and what does not work.

I support this bill because I believe that all wisdom does not reside in this Capitol Building, in this U.S. Senate, in the House of Representatives. And I am convinced that the only way we are going to genuinely reform welfare is to allow the States to truly be the laboratories of democracy, and to allow them to experiment, and to make it so that no longer will they have to come, hat in hand, on bended knee, to a bureaucrat in Washington, DC, to see whether they can get a waiver or an exemption, or if they can try something different—something that might even work, Mr. President. That is the background by which I approach this amendment.

Both sides of this particular debate on this amendment, I think, would agree—and do agree—about the tremendous problem, the tragedy that we have in this country today with the growing rate of illegitimacy. Senator MOYNIHAN, who was on the floor a few minutes ago speaking in favor of the Domenici amendment, is probably the foremost experiment in the country on this issue. He forecasted, long before anyone else understood, the importance and significance of what the trend lines really meant.

The tragedy today, Mr. President, is that in some of our major cities, two out of every three births are, in fact, illegitimate. On the national average, we are approaching one out of three. None of us know what the long-term consequences of this will be. But neither do we know what to do about it. We have heard already, just in the short amount of time we have debated this tonight, several different studies that have been cited. I will cite one in a moment. But the fact is that we do not have enough years of experience in New Jersey, or in any other State, to know what effect this family cap has. Does it increase abortions? Does it, in fact, cut down on the illegitimacy rate, without increasing abortions? We have two studies, with contradictory results. The jury—as we used to say when I was a county prosecutor in Greene County—is still out, deliberating. We do not know.

What kind of arrogance is it for this Congress and this Senate—I use the word “arrogance”—how arrogant would we be—when we do not know what works and what does not work, when we really do not know how to get at the issue of illegitimacy, certainly not from the Government's point of view, if the Government can do anything about it—to then turn around and tell every State in the Union that this is what you have to do; we now know best. And to put it on maybe a partisan point of view, now that this side of the aisle is in control, we do not like your mandates, but we like our mandates. Arrogance.

I have been on this floor before talking about things where I thought there should be Federal mandates and where I thought there should be uniformity.

But I did so only when I felt, at least, the evidence was overwhelming that we knew what worked and what did not work and the statistics just did not lie. In this case, we do not know what the statistics show. We just do not know.

So this is one U.S. Senator who is not going to take a chance that this action by this body of telling every single State of the Union what they have to do—I am not going to take the chance that it might just increase abortions, or it might not work at all. It might not have any impact. So I am voting with my friend and colleague from New Mexico, and I think it is proper, as he has very well stated, to restate what his amendment does.

It does not tell any of the States what to do. A State can impose a cap. A State can impose a very tough cap if they want to. They can impose a cap as New Jersey has.

However, under Senator DOMENICI's amendment, we would simply say we are not going to tell you that you have to do that.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to be added as a cosponsor to the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DEWINE. Let me close by reading from an article of the Sunday, July 2, 1995, Baltimore Sun. This references the Rutgers study that my friend from New Mexico has already mentioned.

Let me directly quote from the article. “A recent Rutgers University study indicates that New Jersey's family cap has had no impact on welfare mothers.”

Later on in the story, this quote appears, again reading from the same article: “However, the 4 percent increase in the abortion rate occurred over a relatively short period of time.”

So the article points out you still cannot tell what the statistics really mean.

I think we should err on the side of States. I think we should err on the side of caution. I think we should err on the side of allowing the States to truly be the laboratories of democracy.

I am convinced that this is the only way that we are going to in any way begin to deal with our welfare problem. Nobody knows all the answers. We have suspicions about what we think might work.

In this bill, Mr. President, we should encourage more creativity, more diversity, more taking of chances. Quite frankly, trying to run welfare from this body and the other body and the bureaucrats in Washington, DC, has not worked. We ought to try something else, and support for the Domenici amendment really, when you strip everything else away, is a statement that we want to turn this responsibility and the creativity, opportunities, back to the individual States.

I thank the Chair. I yield the floor.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, might I thank my good friend for his eloquent statement and for his support of the amendment. I yield the floor.

AMENDMENT NO. 2672

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to call up amendment No. 2672.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I know that other Senators are waiting to offer amendments and so I will not take a long period of time, but I want to talk about two amendments on which I hope we could find some resolution prior to the time of final passage.

The first has to do with the need for a State contingency fund. As I have talked to our Governors, Republican and Democratic alike, the concern they have expressed to me with unanimity is the issue of what happens when circumstances beyond their control affect their own situation within the State.

Perhaps the most illustrative example of their concern occurred earlier this decade during the recession that began in the late 1980's and went into the early 1990's. During that time, the AFDC caseload grew by 1 million families. That represented, Mr. President, a 26 percent increase in the level of AFDC cases with which States had to contend.

The level of monthly benefits increased by $337 million. That was a 22 percent increase. The cumulative increase in the total benefit payments was $7.1 billion during the 36-month period between 1990 and 1992.

Unfortunately, under the pending legislation, the Dole bill, there is no opportunity for States to deal with circumstances like that. The Dole bill does provide a loan fund of $1.7 billion from which States can borrow to deal with contingencies of this kind. But if the level of monthly benefits rose $337 million, as it did in the early 90's, that would amount to only 5 months of benefits. In a 36 month recession like the one in the early 90's, you would have 31 months of recession for which States would have absolutely no resources at all.

Unfortunately, many Members are very concerned about the consequences of a situation like that. States could be facing economic downturns, dramatically increased unemployment levels, natural disasters, plant closings—that is why there has to be a realization that States themselves cannot be required to shoulder this entire burden. We have to ensure that families in similar circumstances, regardless of where they may be, will receive some assistance.

What I am offering tonight with this amendment is a couple of things. First of all, we would change the amendment from a loan to a grant. We simply recognize that in cases like this, a loan may not provide States with the help they truly need.

So the grant, something I understand Governors on both sides of the aisle feel they need, is much more prudent and much more practical in responding to the circumstances we know will be faced by States at some point in the future.

The difference between this amendment and what is currently found in the Dole bill is that in our amendment, we recognize that States cannot be held 100 percent accountable for circumstances beyond their control, not only circumstances like natural disasters but the circumstances that come once they borrow the money.

What happens if States are unable to repay a loan within the 3-year-period of time? Certainly in many recessions circumstances would not allow a State with very limited resources—that would be especially true in a State like South Dakota, where resources are not available—to repay the loan with interest in the period of time required.

So this recognizes, Mr. President, that there has to be a partnership. We recognize that because of recessions, huge natural disasters, or other unanticipated circumstances, no matter what level of funding we provide to States for welfare in the future, there are going to be times when that level of funding simply is not going to be enough to cope with the extraordinary circumstances that these States may have to deal with.

We require that States maintain at least a minimal effort—the level they spent in 1994—if they are going to be eligible for the contingency fund. In other words, they have to make a good-faith effort to deal with their own set of circumstances.

So, in essence, this is simply attempting to deal with the problem in a much more meaningful way. We recognize the need for a partnership. We recognize the responsibility of the Federal Government and States to work together to ensure that we do not exacerbate the problem when we get into an unforeseen situation of some kind. We recognize that, in many cases, smaller States in particular simply are not going to have the means by which to borrow the money and pay it back with interest in a very short timeframe.

So this assists States in a much more meaningful way. I hope our colleagues recognize the need and recognize that, as Governors and State legislators have talked to us about their biggest concern regarding the transition that we will be undertaking as a result of the passage of this legislation, should it pass—the biggest concern they have is how they are going to cope with unforeseen circumstances, and how they are going to deal with all of the financial and economic ramifications of this plan when, in cases of dire need such as a recession, they do not have the resources or the ability to deal with them.

So, this is a realistic approach to trying to deal with the problem in a better way, and I hope our colleagues see fit to support it tomorrow. I will have a lot more to say about it prior to the time we vote. I will return to this issue tomorrow morning.

Mr. President, on the other amendment, I now ask unanimous consent that amendment No. 2672 be set aside and we call up amendment No. 2671. I am reading the top of my note here.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair advises the Senator that amendment No. 2672 is the pending question.

Mr. DASCHLE. I ask that be laid aside and we call up amendment No. 2671.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, with regard to this amendment, let me simply say there is a realization, I think on both sides of the aisle, that we have a special relationship with our tribal governments, and that special relationship requires a special arrangement as situations like this are addressed. It is very important that we recognize the issue of tribal sovereignty, and also the need for tribes to take responsibility for addressing the serious problems that they face, both socially and economically.

The Dole bill would require that funding be provided to tribes out of the allocation given to each State. This amendment simply says we are going to set aside 3 percent of the resources allocated nationally before the money is given to the States. The allotment formula for distributing money from the set-aside would be determined by the Secretary, but it would be based on the need for services and on data common to all tribes, to the extent that is possible.

We also allow tribes to borrow from the contingency loan fund. Tribes would be able to borrow up to 10 percent of their grant allocation, and the Secretary may waive the interest requirement or extend the time repayment period at times when circumstances would warrant.

I do not know that there is any place in the country more deserving and more in need of special attention than reservations. The poverty rate for Indian children on reservations is three times the national average, 60.3 percent. Per capita U.S. income is about $14,420. Per capita income on the reservations is a mere $4,478. Mr. President, 36 percent of Indian children under 6 live in homes today without even a telephone. In South Dakota, over half of all Indian children live in poverty. Mr. President, 63.8 percent of all children on AFDC in South Dakota are Native American.

Shannon County, the location of Pine Ridge Reservation, is the poorest county in the country. Todd County, the location of the Rosebud Reservation, is the fourth poorest county in the country.

Unemployment on reservations is four to seven times the national average. In South Dakota, unemployment rates on the reservations range from 29 percent to 89 percent. There are a lot of reasons for that, no different in South Dakota, perhaps, than other States. But the barriers to work are there. Serious problems that we have to address, problems having to do with the lack of skills, the lack of education—these are problems that I hope we can begin to resolve much more effectively with meaningful welfare reform.

States have been running these programs for many years; tribes have not. In many places tribes have attempted to work with States to create an infrastructure for running these programs. Frankly, in many places it does not exist yet. This is something in which tribes will need to invest. Tribal programs run on a smaller level and, this will take some overhead. Additionally, we have not always had a proportionate level of assistance from the private sector. Less than one-tenth of 1 percent of Combined Federal Campaign contributions go to Indian programs. Less than two-tenths of 1 percent of foundation grant money goes to support tribal human services.

So, Mr. President, we need to ensure that we get an adequate level of assistance from States and the Federal Government. And I am not talking necessarily about only resources. We are talking about an infrastructure. We are talking about ways with which to make the money that we already spend work better, providing job skills and providing good education, providing help, providing a workfare opportunity. Certainly there is a need for that.

There is ample precedent in current law for earmarking funds for native Americans. I believe a set-aside under this legislation is appropriate.

We need to set this money aside for tribal governments. The Federal Government has a trust responsibility to assure appropriate funding. I believe this amendment will do it.

I yield the floor.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I appreciate my friend and colleague, Senator DASCHLE, for sending his two amendments. I know Senator DEWINE has an amendment. Let me make a couple of brief comments concerning both Daschle amendments.

One concerning the 3-percent set aside for Indian tribes—I might mention that for Indian welfare programs under the Dole bill we have a provision but it would be allocated strictly on the ratio of AFDC numbers. I am not sure exactly what the number is. I think it is something like not 3 percent but more like 1.7 percent. I will have that figure more accurately in the morning. So we are talking about a lot of money.

I will certainly concur with the gist of my colleague's amendment, that we have a lot of Indian welfare programs that are not working. I am not sure that money is necessarily the answer. My State happens to have more Indian population than any State in the Nation. I have seen a lot of Indian welfare programs that have not worked, again not necessarily because of a lack of money. But I will try to have those facts and statistics for tomorrow for debate.

Also, I would like to make a brief comment concerning the first amendment. That is the amendment calling for setting aside and appropriating money for contingency funds, that contingency fund being in the form of a grant, not in the form of a loan. Under the Dole provision, we have over $1 billion set aside for loans that the States could borrow from but they would have to pay it back within 3 years. Under the Daschle amendment it would appropriate $5 billion over 7 years for a contingency fund that says to States, if you have a higher unemployment rate than you did in 1994, you could qualify, and, if you have more children receiving food stamps than you did in 1994, you could qualify, and, if you are spending at least as much money as you are spending in 1994. In other words, a 100-percent maintenance of effort. Then you could qualify.

So it is kind of an idea that here is more money for more welfare. I do not see that as reform. I understand the States might have some problem.

It was also said that there would be distributed in the same formula that we do with Medicaid, match their rates; therefore, for every dollar they spent the State would spend three. They would have an additional dollar grant from the Federal Government, almost an incentive for the State to spend more money on welfare. I am afraid that might increase our dependency on welfare, and maintain welfare as a life cycle, not reverse it. Many of us are trying to reverse that. We are trying to break the welfare cycle, and reduce welfare dependency.

Mr. President, I know my friend and colleague from Ohio is supposed to preside over the floor, and I also know that he has an amendment that he wishes to discuss briefly. Looking at the list, I also see that Senator FAIRCLOTH is on the floor and he has an amendment. I believe Senator BOXER has an amendment; all of which we are trying to have discussed this evening so we can have them voted on tomorrow.

So I will yield the floor in anticipation of the Senator from Ohio who will bring up his amendment.

Mr. DEWINE addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio is recognized.

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, I inquire of the Chair what the pending business is.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. When the Senator from Ohio calls his amendment up, it will be the pending business.

Mr. DEWINE. Thank you, Mr. President.

AMENDMENT NO. 2518

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, I call up my amendment No. 2518, the caseload diversion amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will report the amendment.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Ohio [Mr. DEWINE] proposes an amendment numbered 2518.

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The text of the amendment is printed in the Friday, September 8, 1995, edition of the RECORD.)

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to add the name of Senator KOHL as a cosponsor of this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, the purpose of our amendment was to make sure the States tackle the underlying problem of the welfare system. Too often, welfare ends up being quicksand for people—quicksand instead of a ladder of opportunity. The underlying legislation before us will help change this by creating a real work requirement that will help boost welfare clients into the economic mainstream of work and opportunity.

Mr. President, we need to help people get off of welfare. One very important way we can do this is by helping them avoid getting on welfare in the first place. That brings me to the specific proposal contained in my amendment.

This amendment will give States credit for making real reductions in their welfare caseload—not illusory reductions based on ordinary regular turnover, nor, for that matter, reductions based on changes in the eligibility requirements. No. What we are talking about is real reduction in caseload.

Let me cite a statistic, Mr. President. Since 1988, over 14 million Americans have left the AFDC rolls. That is the good news. Now for the bad news. Over the same period there has not been a reduction in the welfare caseload. In fact, there has been a 30 percent increase in the net welfare caseload. More people are coming on welfare every day than are getting off.

So it is clear that our problem is not just a problem of getting people off welfare. We also have to slow the rate of those going on welfare.

We have to make sure, Mr. President, that we keep our eye on the ball, and the ball in this case is keeping people out of the culture of welfare dependency and off welfare.

Under the bill, States will have to meet a very specific work requirement, and that is good. But I think this policy will have an unintended side effect—a side effect that none of us will want. It is a side effect I believe my amendment will cure.

Mr. President, if there is a work requirement, States obviously have an incentive to meet that requirement. If States face the threat of losing Federal funding for failing to meet the work requirement, they could easily fall into the trap of judging their welfare policies solely by the criterion of whether or not they help meet the specific work requirement.

What we have to remember is that the work requirement is not an end in and of itself. Our goal rather is to break the cycle of welfare dependency. We have found that helping people before they ever get on AFDC—through job training, job search assistance, rent subsidies, transportation assistance, and other similar measures—all of these things are cheaper to do. There are cheaper ways of doing this than simply waiting for the person to fall off the economic cliff and become a full-fledged welfare client.

One positive measure, Mr. President, some States have taken, a measure that we should encourage, is remedial action, early intervention to help people before they go on the welfare rolls. In the health care field we call this prevention. In welfare, as in health care, it is both cost effective and the right thing to do.

Mr. President, the last thing we want to do in welfare reform is to discourage this kind of prevention program. Just the contrary. We in this Congress through this bill should try to encourage the States to do this. But under the current bill, as currently written, States are given no incentive to make these efforts to help people. If anything, there is a disincentive.

If a State makes an active, aggressive, successful effort to help people stay off welfare, then the really tough welfare cases will make up an increasing larger and larger portion of the remaining welfare caseload. That will in turn make the work requirement every year tougher and tougher to meet.

Under the bill, as currently written, without my amendment, there is an incentive to wait to help people—to wait until they are on welfare. Then the States can take action, get them off welfare, and get credit for getting people off welfare.

Mr. President, if the States divert people from the welfare system, keep them off, stop them from ever going on by helping them, the people who stay on welfare will tend to be more hard-to-reach welfare clients. And that will make it more difficult for the States to meet the work requirement.

That really is exactly the opposite, Mr. President, of what we should be trying to do. My amendment would eliminate this purely perverse incentive.

My amendment would give States credit, credit toward meeting the work requirement if they take steps to help before they go on welfare—and, in doing so, keep those people from falling into the welfare trap.

Helping citizens stay off welfare is just as important as making welfare clients work, and just as important as getting people off welfare. Indeed, the reason we want to make welfare clients work, of course, in the first place is to help them off of welfare. But—there is a very important provision in my amendment—we cannot allow this new incentive for caseload reduction to become an incentive for the States to ignore poverty, and to ignore the problem.

Under my amendment, a State will not—let me repeat—will not get credit toward fulfilling the work requirement if that State reduces the caseload by changing the eligibility standard. They get no credit for that. A State will get credit toward a work requirement by reducing caseloads through prevention and early intervention programs that help people stay off welfare in the first place.

Ignoring the problem of poverty will not make it go away. Arbitrarily kicking people off of relief is not a solution to welfare dependency. States should not—let me repeat—not get credit under the work requirement of this bill for changing their eligibility requirements.

Welfare reform block grants are designed to give States the flexibility they need to meet their responsibilities. They must not become an opportunity for the States to ignore their responsibilities. States need to be rewarded for solving problems. Giving States credit for real reductions in caseload will provide this reward.

I believe my amendment will yield another benefit. It will enable the States to target their resources on the most difficult welfare cases, the at-risk people who need very intensive training and counseling if they are ever, ever going to get off welfare.

It will not do us any good as a society to pat ourselves on the back because people are leaving AFDC if at the very same time an even greater number of people are getting on the welfare rolls and if the ones getting on are an even tougher group to help than the ones who are getting off.

The American people demand a much more fundamental and far-reaching solution. They demand real reductions in the number of people who need welfare. Two States, Mr. President, Wisconsin and Utah, have really led the way with the kind of prevention programs that I have been talking about. Other States, including my home State of Ohio, are starting to implement this type of program, a prevention program, to help people before they literally drop off the cliff and go down into the abyss of welfare, some of them never ever to climb out. As part of this welfare reform legislation, I believe we have to encourage States to take this type of remedial action, to take this type of action that will in fact make a difference in people's lives.

Reducing the number of people who need welfare in this country is going to be a very tough task, but it is absolutely necessary that we do it. The issue must be faced. I believe it will be faced with all the creativity at the disposal of the 50 States, the 50 laboratories of democracy.

How are States going to do it? There are probably as many ways of doing it as there are States. There is no single best answer. That is the key reason why we need to give the States flexibility to experiment.

In Wisconsin, for example, the Work First Program, with its tough work requirement, has reduced applications to the welfare system. That is a promising approach, reducing the number of out-of-wedlock births and getting rid of the disincentives to marriage.

The bottom line is simply this: We have to solve the problem and not ignore it. States should be encouraged to take action and to take action early to keep people off welfare, to help them before they drop down into that welfare pit.

This is the compassionate thing to do. It is also the cost-effective thing to do. That is why I am urging the adoption of this amendment.

I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who seeks recognition?

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I believe the Senator from North Carolina will be next in line according to the unanimous-consent agreement.

AMENDMENT NO. 2608

Mr. FAIRCLOTH addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Carolina is recognized.

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. I call up my amendment 2608.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows: The Senator from North Carolina [Mr. FAIRCLOTH] proposes an amendment numbered 2608.

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. I thank the Chair.

I rise to offer an amendment to provide funding for abstinence education.

It is a sad fact that our society is being destroyed by soaring out-of-wedlock birth rates. As Senator MOYNIHAN has pointed out, in areas of some cities, illegitimacy rates are approaching 80 percent. President Clinton has warned us of the close link between family collapse and crime, and he has warned us of the link between welfare and illegitimacy.

What we need is a policy which promotes responsible parenthood, a policy which says to our children: Do not have a child until you are married; do not have a child until you and your husband have enough education, work experience, and will be able to support that child yourself and not expect the taxpayers and the Federal Government to do so; do not have a child until you are old enough and mature enough to be the best parent you are capable of being.

What my amendment would do is take a tiny portion of the enormous amount of money that this bill spends on job training programs and put it toward a program which would actively and deliberately educate children to abstain from premarital sex.

Most liberal welfare programs funded by the Congress through the years have tried to pick up the pieces after the child has already been born, and they have failed miserably. Does it not make common sense to prevent out-of-wedlock births from occurring in the first place, those that taxpayers are expected to support?

The fact is abstinence education programs work. This is a proven fact. Imagine if we saw nationwide the success we have seen in Atlanta with abstinence education—a real miracle. In Atlanta, abstinence education has reduced sexual activity among young teenagers by over 75 percent. The program in Atlanta is called Preventing Sexual Involvement, and it is specifically targeted to inner-city children. The results have been a reason for optimism and a new belief in what we can do to change this whole sad subject of illegitimacy and social decay in our inner cities.

The bottom line is that only 1 percent of the inner-city girls who participated in the program became sexually active compared to 15 percent of the same girls, the same communities not involved in the program. This kind of result, multiplied nationwide, literally could turn the country around, and that is not an exaggeration. It does work.

Senator after Senator has come to the floor and talked about the shame and failure of our welfare programs. Time and time again we hear everyone agree that welfare is broken. This is an opportunity and a chance to literally turn the issue around and vote to discourage the activities which have caused the problem.

As currently written, the Dole bill will spend over $35 billion in the next 5 years on job training and vocational education, but not one single penny to promote abstinence education. We will spend a fortune trying to reduce welfare dependency, but not one penny trying to prevent the out-of-wedlock births that cause welfare dependency in the first place.

Again, the amendment that I have is simple. It provides $200 million per year for abstinence education. That amounts to about 3 cents out of every dollar that this bill will spend on job training and vocational education. We take that 3 cents and spend it on abstinence.

We have all talked about the crisis of illegitimacy and the collapse of the family. Here is an opportunity to do something about it with this small amount of money that could make a difference, that could turn the problem around.

Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on my amendment in accordance with the previous order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. NICKLES addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I appreciate the Senator from North Carolina for his amendment and also for his bringing it at this late hour, as well as the Presiding Officer of the Senate for his offering his amendment. I congratulate both Senators for the work they are doing and compliment them for their initiatives.

I believe that the last amendment that will be discussed tonight in the Senate is the amendment to be offered by the Senator from California, Senator BOXER.

Mrs. BOXER addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. DEWINE). The Senator from California.

AMENDMENT NO. 2592

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the pending amendment be laid aside and we take up amendment No. 2592.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. BOXER. Thank you very much, Mr. President.

I hope we will have bipartisan support for this amendment. Right now in the Dole bill we keep a separate federally means-tested program for abused, neglected and abandoned children. The title IV-E foster care system provides a refuge for children in abusive families, and the Dole bill continues this Federal policy. And I strongly agree with that. I am glad we do not put that into a block grant and leave these kids to fend for themselves because, Mr. President, I know how much you care about kids. If we have to get a child out of an abusive home situation, we want to give a little assistance to the foster family or the adopting parents.

Now, there is one group of children left out in the cold in the current Dole bill. And that is legal immigrant children who have been brought into this country completely in accordance with all the laws. Unfortunately, the way that the bill is now drawn, they would be ineligible for Federal foster care and adoption assistance. Now, we know that the Dole bill restricts benefits to legal immigrants, and there are certain exemptions to that. Such things as immunizations, emergency medical care, and emergency disaster relief are exempted. I believe we should exempt foster care and adoption assistance.

Now, Mr. President, we know that children are placed into foster care because a judge determines that there is a serious risk of the child being hurt in the current home. So I know that my colleagues on both sides of the aisle do not want to single out legal immigrant children and say that we are going to walk away from them. Under the current bill—and I hope it is just an oversight, Mr. President—legal immigrant children would be made ineligible for title IV-E foster care or adoption assistance due to the fact that there is no exemption for it.

We know that title IV-E foster care and adoption assistance helps at-risk children get placed in the homes where they will be safe from abuse and neglect. The adoption assistance is used to help families pay for special needs that the children have. The payments assist adopting families meet the cost incurred due to their new child's physical or emotional disability. Often, the child's disability is a direct result of abuse. Title IV-E foster care assistance helps pay for a child's room and board whether it is in a group home or a family.

So, to sum up the point of my amendment, what we are saying is, those of us who support my amendment, we are very pleased that the Dole bill does keep a separate program for foster care and adoption assistance but we need to make sure it goes to these legal immigrant children.

Mr. President, in the interest of time, let me say this to you. Just because we do not have the money available for these legal immigrant children who are abused and neglected and sometimes abandoned does not mean the problem will go away. I think you and I know what will happen. We both come from local government. And the local people who are compassionate, the local governments, will move in. And that could be a very large unfunded mandate. For example, in Los Angeles, Los Angeles County there are an estimated 1,500 legal immigrant children currently in their system. And if they had to pick up the tab for all of those children, it would be very, very difficult. And you would find that, I am sure in your cities as well. So, again, I hope there will be strong bipartisan support to correct what I hope was a legislative oversight.

I feel very strongly the Senate should show its support for protecting abused and neglected children by supporting this amendment. And I think we ought to think about it. A lot of our parents were legal immigrants. And a lot of the people we know today are legal immigrants who waited in line, were very patient, and came to this country. It seems to me since Senator DOLE did find in his heart his other exemptions such as the ones I have mentioned—emergency medical services, emergency disaster relief, school lunch, and child nutrition—I hope this was just an oversight. And that these young children would be able to go into a foster home, be adopted by a loving family and that those families could get the benefit of the program that all other families get when they adopt children or take children into foster homes.

I do not know, Mr. President, if it is necessary to ask for the yeas and nays now.

I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mrs. BOXER. Thank you very much, Mr. President.

In the interest of time, I will see you in the morning and have another 5 minutes to explain this amendment.

I yield floor.

AMENDMENT NO. 2542

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, the welfare reform bill imposes upon the States a 6-month time limitation for any individual to participate in a food stamp work supplementation program. This amendment would replace the 6-month limit with a 1-year limit. It would continue to allow an extension of this time limitation at the discretion of the Secretary.

Arizona's current cash-out of food stamps under its EMPOWER welfare program allows individuals to participate in subsidized employment for 9-months with an option for a 3-month extension. There is no reason that the State should have to make another special request to the Secretary in order to maintain this policy. This amendment would allow States with such policies to continue their programs without disruption.

Ideally, I would prefer that the States be able to plan their work supplementation programs without being constrained by requirements imposed by the Federal Government. The States know best how to structure their programs to help their citizens become employable. Thus, my preference would be to eliminate the time limitation altogether.

However, I recognize that many of my colleagues are insisting upon a time limitation for individuals under the program, and I am pleased that we were able to come to an agreement that meets the needs of Arizona and other States that wish to pursue similar policies. In the future, I plan to revisit this issue to allow States maximum flexibility to plan their work supplementation programs.

Mr. President, a primary objective of this bill is to encourage the States to innovate. The best way to achieve this is to get out of their way. We should not impose requirements limiting the States' flexibility unless there is a compelling reason to do so. This amendment will give States additional leeway to innovate in their work supplementation programs and will thereby help them achieve their employment objectives.

Mrs. HUTCHISON addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas.

AMENDMENTS NOS. 2511, 2674, 2675, 2574, 2585, 2555, 2570, 2480

Mrs. HUTCHISON. I ask unanimous consent to call up and adopt the following amendments, en bloc. These amendments have been cleared by both the majority and the Democratic managers of the bill.

I further ask consent that any statements accompanying these amendments be inserted at the appropriate place as if read. Those amendments are as follows: Abraham amendment No. 2511; McConnell amendments Nos. 2674 and 2675; Domenici amendment No. 2574; Stevens amendment No. 2585; Bryan amendment No. 2555; Leahy amendment No. 2570; and Feingold amendment No. 2480.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

So, the amendments Nos. 2511, 2674, 2675, 2574, 2585, 2555, 2570, and 2480, en bloc, were agreed to.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. I move to reconsider the vote by which the amendments were agreed to, en bloc, and I move to lay that motion on the table.

So, the motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 2511

Mr. ABRAHAM. Mr. President, I rise today to offer a sense-of-the-Senate resolution, amendment No. 2511. This resolution would state our commitment to passing enterprise zone legislation in this session of Congress. I believe this commitment is crucial because, as we debate welfare reform, we also must find ways to create the jobs necessary to rescue people from the welfare trap.

Enterprise zones are a crucial part of our effort to help poor people in this country. Too many Americans far too long have been trapped in lives of desperation. They have been left without the support of their communities, without meaningful lives and without hope of good jobs and economic advancement.

Many of our urban centers in particular are saddled with high levels of poverty, high rates of welfare dependency, high crime rates, poor schools and joblessness. Indeed, Mr. President, half of the people who reside in our distressed urban areas live below the poverty line.

All of these factors add to the sense of hopelessness in distressed areas. All of them have been made worse by ill-conceived Federal policies, including taxes that discourage investment, regulations that punish innovation and a welfare system that punishes work and fosters dependency.

One step toward restoring hope to our distressed areas, Mr. President, is the welfare reform measure we are debating today. But, as we work to end welfare as we know it, we must give careful thought to what we want to have replace it. We must institute policies that will further our fundamental goal of providing Americans with the opportunity to get off of welfare and into decent jobs.

This requires pro-growth policies that will spawn greater economic activity and job creation. This requires enterprise zones.

The concept of enterprise zones has been with us for some time. Former Congressman Jack Kemp introduced legislation on the subject in 1978. The Senate has endorsed and enacted the concept in one form or another over the years.

We have endorsed the concept because it is clear that enterprise zones will spur investment, entrepreneurship, public spirit and the development of skills necessary for participation in our market economy.

To give credit where it is due, President Clinton has instituted an enterprise zone program in an attempt to help distressed areas.

The Clinton plan sets up nine empowerment zones in which businesses qualify for an employment tax credit and an increase in expensing, and 95 enterprise communities that qualify for $280 million social services block grants.

But the plan in my judgment provides for no significant tax incentives to spur investment entrepreneurship and job creation. And its social services block grants are based on the failed notion that Government can help create jobs and prosperity in America's inner cities.

We have spent over $5 trillion on social services, and our distressed areas have only grown worse. Why? Because Government cannot create wealth. The best it can do is unleash our citizens' drive and initiative to succeed in the market economy.

The last time we freed up capital and the entrepreneurial spirit minority business—and the American economy—greatly benefitted. Under Ronald Reagan's progrowth policies, from 1982 to 1987 the number of black-owned firms increased by nearly 38 percent to a total of 425,000. During the same period Hispanic-owned firms surged by 83 percent, according to the Wall Street Journal. Economically distressed areas contain disproportionate numbers of minorities. Thus these figures show an undeniable increase in economic opportunity in those areas.

Unfortunately, in 1986 the capital gains tax rate was increased by 65 percent. And that huge increase brought us 4 straight years in which Americans started fewer businesses each year than the year before. The result, of course, was less job creation and less economic opportunity, particularly among minorities in our distressed areas.

To reverse this dynamic, Senator LIEBERMAN and I have coauthored the Enhanced Enterprise Zone Act of 1995. This act contains provisions, called for in the sense-of-the-Senate resolution, designed to help distressed areas.

It provides Federal tax incentives that expand access to capital, increase the formation and expansion of small businesses and promote commercial revitalization.

It includes regulatory reforms that allow localities to petition Federal agencies for waivers or modifications of regulations to improve job creation, community development and economic revitalization.

It includes home ownership incentives and grants to encourage resident management and ownership of public housing.

Finally, it includes a school reform pilot project to provide low income parents with options for improved elementary and secondary schooling in the designated zones.

The bill recognizes that private enterprise, not Government, is the source of economic and social development.

We know the program will work because 35 States and the District of Columbia already have enterprise zones that have produced over 663,000 new jobs and $40 billion in capital investment. And the concept has been endorsed by the National Governors' Association, the Conference of Black Mayors, the Council of Black State Legislators and the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

Taken together, these incentives for investment, entrepreneurship, home ownership and skill development will bring the economies in distressed areas back to life. They will encourage full participation in our market economy and public interest in the local neighborhood. The result will be economic growth and, more important, new jobs.

It is my hope that a positive vote on this resolution will put this Senate on record in favor of creating jobs and opportunity. The sense-of-the-Senate resolution I, with Senator LIEBERMAN, am proposing will in my view spur us to enact legislation to strengthen enterprise zones. In this way it will increase the chances for people in distressed areas to get off of welfare and into decent jobs. Strengthened enterprise zones will add to the hopes of our people, the vitality of our cities and the proper functioning of our economy.

I urge your support for this resolution.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that an excellent article on the Abraham-Lieberman enterprise zone bill by Mr. Stuart Anderson of the Alexis de Tocqueville Institution appear in the RECORD following my remarks.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

LIEBERMAN BILL TAKES RIGHT APPROACH TO HELPING OUR CITIES

(By Stuart Anderson)

"Poverty is the open-mouthed, relentless hell which yawns beneath civilized society." Henry George wrote these words in 1879 and they remain true today. Unfortunately, many of the techniques we have tried to alleviate suffering and break the cycle of poverty have fallen far short of their goals. These programs—the core of the Great Society—not only have failed to revitalize cities, they have likely made the situation worse.

A new, more comprehensive approach is needed to renew the blighted portions of America's cities. Past programs have relied on cash payments to the poor, government job training, and even government-provided jobs. The key, however, is to create wealth in the inner city, and to understand that wealth cannot be created by government but only by the private sector.

This understanding of wealth creation is at the core of a promising new bill introduced by Connecticut U.S. Sen. Joseph I. Lieberman and Sen. Spencer Abraham, R-Mich. The Enhanced Enterprise Zone Act of 1995 would establish a host of incentives and reforms that would be added to those Congress approved in the nine Empowerment Zones and 95 Enterprise Communities in 1993. That legislation got bogged down in details and without reform cannot achieve the goals that so many of us have for improving life in the inner cities.

The reforms in Abraham and Lieberman's bill fall into three categories: tax incentives, regulatory reform and educational initiatives.

First, on tax incentives, the bill would establish a zero capital gains rate on the sale of any qualified investment held five years or longer in the zone. It would allow additional income deductions to purchase qualified stock in companies located in an enterprise zone. The bill would double what small business owners in these zones could expense and would provide a limited tax credit for renovations of low-income properties. These are the types of incentives to encourage entrepreneurs to plant roots for the long haul.

Second, the senators realize that regulations, not just high tax burdens, inhibit job creation in the inner city. The bill would allow local governments to request waivers and modifications of environmental and other regulations that a mayor finds to be counterproductive and hindering job growth. Federal agencies could disapprove requests at their discretion but powerful political pressure could be brought to bear on the bureaucracy that might create fascinating experiments at the local level. Another reform of federal regulations, based upon Jack Kemp from his stay at the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development, would provide both incentives and grants for homeownership and resident management of public housing, vacant and foreclosed properties, and financially-distressed properties.

Third, the bill recognizes that lack of educational opportunity can subject children to a life without a real economic future. The legislation therefore would create in the nine Empowerment Zones, two supplemental empowerment zones, and in Washington, D.C., a pilot school choice program. This would allow parents with a low income to send their children to public or private schools of their choosing. Such parents would receive a certificate that could be used to pay a portion of tuition and transportation costs for elementary and high school children.

Already the debate over affirmative action has grown divisive, especially because many African-Americans believe that what few opportunities are available in the inner cities will be snatched away from them by changed federal policies or new court rulings. But as the Democratic Leadership Council's Progressive Policy Institute report on affirmative action notes, "For blacks trapped at the bottom of the economic pyramid, the main obstacle is not vestigial discrimination but the breakdown of critical social and public institutions, chiefly family and schools. Can anyone doubt that dramatically lifting their academic and occupational skills would have a greater impact on their life prospects than maintaining preferences that mostly benefit middle-class blacks, Hispanics, and women?"

Let's get beyond the divisiveness of affirmative action, which courts are already ruling to be unconstitutional. Instead, we should look toward constructive solutions that are more appropriately premised on a commitment to limited government, personal responsibility, and a free market economy. The tax incentives, regulatory reform, and school choice initiatives in the Abraham-Lieberman bill will help unleash the power of countless individuals. And while in the past we have ignored this truism at our peril, it should be remembered that only individuals and businesses, not governments, can create the wealth that will lift people out of poverty.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I am pleased to join with the Senator from Michigan in proposing this important statement of Senate support for an enhanced enterprise zone effort.

From the time I came to the Senate in 1989, I have been proud to work with people like Jack Kemp in advocating enterprise zones for America's troubled neighborhoods. He has been a true visionary, not only on the subject of enterprise zones, but on the whole question of what America must do to redeem the promise of economic opportunity for all Americans.

We made progress on the road toward empowering poor Americans and revitalizing impoverished communities in 1993 when we passed legislation creating empowerment zones and enterprise communities in more than 100 neighborhoods across this country. While a handful of empowerment zones received fairly substantial incentives through the 1993 legislation the enterprise zones received very little in the way of incentives. Still, when all is said and done, enactment of this legislation was a fundamental change in urban policy. It was a recognition that Government did not have all the answers to the ills of poverty in this country. It recognized that American businesses can and must play a role in revitalizing poor neighborhoods. Indeed, American business involvement is essential if we are to break the cycle of poverty, drug abuse, illiteracy, and unemployment.

The 1993 breakthrough was a good start but it did not go far enough. That is why I have joined with the Senator from Michigan in announcing an Enhanced Enterprise Zone Act of 1995. The sense-of-the-Senate we are considering today recognizes the need for this Senate to consider an enhanced enterprise zone package.

I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

TREATMENT OF MUNICIPAL BONDS UNDER S. 722, THE UNLIMITED SAVINGS ALLOWANCE TAX ACT

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I have noted in recent weeks commentary from some analysts and in some publications that the proposals for treatment of municipal bond interest in the USA tax plan which I have coauthored with Senator NUNN would possibly, severely penalize participants in the municipal bond market. As I have explicitly stated before, it is not, repeat not, the intention of this Senator that participants in the municipal bond markets—whether investors, issuers, or other people—be penalized by the USA tax concept.

In my judgment, the questions raised by analysts about reducing the savings deduction by the amount of tax-exempt income can be resolved when the actual writing of tax reform legislation occurs in the future. It is my intention during those deliberations to make sure that municipal bonds retain a preference.

It is important to recognize that if the USA tax plan were to be enacted it would include significant incentives for savings and investment—the unlimited savings allowance—which defers Federal income taxes on any income saved or invested. As individuals change their behavior to save and invest more, the national savings pool will increase. In addition, the USA tax removes the bias for companies to use debt financing instead of equity financing. More companies may choose equity financing. These changes in the business Tax Code may lower the demand for borrowing. Increasing the savings pool will lower interest rates and the cost of capital. Lower interest rates will benefit all Americans who have to borrow. Since States and municipalities are big borrowers because they issue large quantities of bonds, lower interest rates should significantly benefit them, separate and apart from the specific USA tax provisions dealing with the tax treatment of municipal bonds.

I hope that this statement clarifies matters for participants in the municipal bond market who may fear that either the USA tax plan would penalize them, or will make issuance of municipal bonds for legitimate governmental purpose more expensive in the future. Neither of those outcomes is the intent of this Senator and I will do all I can to insure that neither occurs.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I would like to join my good friend from New Mexico in trying to alleviate the fears of those concerned about the USA tax proposal's treatment of municipal bonds. In crafting our proposal, we explicitly elected to retain a preference for investments in municipal bonds, and we did so primarily to preserve the ability of State and local governments to obtain capital for needed infrastructure improvements. It was never our intention to undermine our country's municipal bond market.

As Senator DOMENICI pointed out, some analysts believe the manner in which our proposal is crafted could erode substantially the current tax preference for municipal bond investments. Others, including an editorial at the Bond buyer, take a much more optimistic view and equate our proposal as being far too generous in its treatment of municipal bonds. I believe the truth falls somewhere in between these two analyses.

In the USA proposal, we have essentially equalized the tax treatment of all investments, including those investments in municipal bonds. All investments under the USA proposal are tax-deferred. However, the USA proposal makes an important distinction about the tax treatment of the returns from these investments. The returns from investments other than municipal bonds would not be tax exempt unless the returns are reinvested in their entirety. On the other hand, returns from municipal bonds would be tax exempt and could be spent or reinvested without future income tax consequences. I believe this is an equitable outcome regarding the tax treatment of municipal bonds. If another approach, consistent with the overall goals of the USA proposal, especially revenue neutrality, can be found in this area, I am more than willing to consider such proposals.

Mr. President, before yielding the floor, I would like to raise a final point. I find it very interesting about the absence of any concern about the elimination of any, I repeat any, preference for municipal bonds under either the flat tax or the national sales tax proposals. I do not mind the criticism of our proposal. Constructive criticism is useful and can work to improve our proposal, but it would be refreshing to have an informed, factual comparison of all the tax replacement proposals and their tax treatment of municipal bonds, rather than a Chicken Little approach often evident today.

MATCHING AWARDS FOR EDUCATION GRANTS TO AMERICORPS GRADUATES

Mr. PELL. Mr. President, I want to share with my colleagues an extremely exciting and momentous development in regard to the AmeriCorps Program. Today, eight of Rhode Island's colleges and universities are announcing that they have each agreed to match the $4,725 education grant for every Rhode Island AmeriCorps participant who successfully completes AmeriCorps service and attends one of the participating Rhode Island institutions. As a result of this commitment, the education benefit for successful AmeriCorps participation will be at least $9,450.

As one of the first proponents of national service and of linking successful completion of service to an education benefit, I believe this is a remarkable and praiseworthy commitment to the concept of community service.

I take special pride in commending each of those institutions for this superb commitment. They include: the University of Rhode Island, the Community College of Rhode Island, Brown University, Bryant College, Johnson and Wales University, Salve Regina University, the Rhode Island School of Design, and Providence College. I might add that several other institutions in Rhode Island are currently exploring this idea, and the number may well grow.

I also want to pay special tribute to Mr. Lawrence Fish, chief executive officer of Citizens Financial Group in Providence, RI, who, as chair of the Rhode Island Commission on National Service, spearheaded the effort that resulted in this truly historic achievement.

FEDERAL EXPRESS HUB AT SUBIC BAY

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I rise today to congratulate Federal Express Corp. on the opening last week of its new cargo hub at Subic Bay in the Philippines. This is a very favorable development for consumers of shipping services on both sides of the Pacific.

As many will remember, Federal Express had intended that its Subic Bay hub be fully operational in July. Unfortunately, even though the United States/Japan bilateral aviation agreement clearly authorized Federal Express to do so, the Government of Japan refused to permit Federal Express to operate several flights from Japan which were integral to its hub operation. In late July, Japan reversed its position and thereby enabled the Subic Bay hub, the cornerstone of Federal Express' intra-Asian network, to become fully operational.

As a result of the Subic Bay hub operation, consumers will be able to rely on expanded intra-Asian and trans-Pacific service. However, consumer choice will not be the only benefit. A recent article from the Journal of Commerce predicts this expanded service will come at a reduced cost to consumers. One economist estimates the price of intra-Asian shipping may drop by as much as 25 percent as a result of competition from Federal Express' intra-Asian network. I am confident the Federal Express experience in Subic Bay will again prove U.S. air carriers can compete effectively in any international market they have a chance to serve.

With respect to the widespread benefits of the Subic Bay hub, the Journal of Commerce article points out a very interesting irony. By violating the United States/Japan bilateral aviation agreement, the Government of Japan tried to prevent the Subic Bay hub from opening. Yet, Japanese companies are among the first flocking to the Subic Bay area to set up operations so they can benefit from Federal Express' superior air delivery services. For example, the Japan International Development Organization is planning a 450-acre industrial park in the area which will serve as a research and manufacturing center for 10 Japanese companies.

I ask unanimous consent that the article from the Journal of Commerce to which I have referred be printed in the RECORD at the end of my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 1.)

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, on several occasions during the pendency of the United States/Japan cargo aviation dispute I cautioned that the economic stakes in that dispute were very significant. A recent study by the Boeing Co. emphasizes the critical importance of our firm stand during that dispute.

Boeing Company's recently released annual world cargo forecast predicts the highest air freight market growth over the next 20 years will occur on Asian routes. Moreover, the study found international express delivery service grew 25 percent last year and it predicts the market will grow 18 percent a year for the next 20 years. That is why it was of critical importance that we safeguarded Federal Express' beyond rights. Now, Federal Express is well-positioned to earn its fair share of expanding Pacific rim business opportunities.

Later this month in Tokyo, our negotiators will attempt to secure a United States/Japan open skies agreement on cargo. I hope these talks result in the fullest liberalization of cargo shipping rights possible. I am confident our cargo carriers can effectively compete with their Japanese counterparts if protectionist regulations are eliminated and market forces are allowed to work.

FEDEX HUB TO GIVE LIFT TO SHIPPERS, PHILIPPINES

(By William Armbruster and P.T. Bangsberg)

Subic Bay, once the jumping off point for the U.S. military's cold war efforts in Asia, becomes key to Federal Express Corp.'s expansion plans on Monday, providing a major boost for the company, the local Philippine economy and both Asian and North American shippers.

AsiaOne, FedEx's intra-Asian network, opens its new Asia hub Sept. 4 at the former naval base. The operation, which nearly sparked a trade war with Japan, is shaking up the Asian market, making both regional and trans-Pacific shipments easier, quicker and cheaper while spurring foreign investment in the Philippines.

"It's really going to expand opportunities for investment in the Philippines," said Levi Richardson, director of the U.S.-Philippine Business Committee in Washington.

AsiaOne, FedEx's intra-Asia network, "will make the Philippines very attractive as a regional hub for other companies," Mr. Richardson said. "A lot of small and medium companies are looking at countries with a good infrastructure. FedEx's investment is going to provide them an opportunity to grow their business."

Joseph Schwieterman, a transportation economist at DePaul University in Chicago, said the new FedEx service will lead to intense price competition.

"I think you're going to see the price of intra-Asia shipments drop as much as 25% as competition heats up," he said, adding that AsiaOne also will provide overnight service on some routes for the first time.

Much of the foreign investment thus far at Subic Bay, a former U.S. naval base, has come from Taiwanese companies, such as Acer Inc., ranked the world's seventh-largest brand name personal computer vendor in 1994 by International Data Corp. in Framingham, Mass.

"The new FedEx service will be a great benefit for us by cutting lead time inbound and speeding shipments outbound," said Kenny Wang, manager at Acer Information Products (Philippines) Inc.

"Having a direct flight into Subic from Taipei will cut the time for delivery of components to one or two days from two or three days when routed via Manila, and 10 days by sea," Mr. Wang told The Journal of Commerce.

Cliff Deeds, a FedEx spokesman, said the carrier will have a single cutoff time for pickups in the Asian markets served by the new network, whereas shippers in the past faced different cutoffs depending on where they were shipping their goods. For those in Penang, a high-tech manufacturing center off the northwest coast, they might have a 1 p.m. deadline for shipments to Seoul, but a 2 p.m. cutoff for packages going to Taipei.

Under the new FedEx network, the cutoff in Singapore will be 4 p.m., for example, but at Subic Bay, it will be 10 p.m., Mr. Deeds said.

"I see FedEx being instrumental in bringing Asian markets closer to the U.S.," said Raul Rabe, the Philippines' ambassador to the United States.

The Subic Bay flights, connecting 11 Asian business centers, will hook up with the carrier's expanded trans-Pacific operation. Acer's Mr. Wang said he looks forward to the new flight starting Sept. 4 from Osaka to Oakland, Calif., where FedEx has a regional hub serving Silicon Valley. "We've been promised one-day service on that run," he said.

Subic is Acer's first manufacturing site outside Taiwan. It has earmarked $35 million over the next two years for expansion, with officials expecting to double capacity of its existing complex to 200,000 units by next year.

Acer will also add a global repair center at Subic "to take advantage of the abundant availability of high-quality local engineering talent," said Managing Director Harvey Chang.

TEXAS INSTRUMENTS GREET'S MOVE

Larry Horton, manager of logistics carrier management for Texas Instruments, welcomed the new FedEx operation. "It will give us a lot more cargo flights," he said. "We used to have to rely on commercial carriers for intra-Asia shipments."

The semiconductor manufacturer has a large operation in the Philippine city of Baguio and hopes FedEx will set up a small feeder service linking it with Subic Bay, he said, adding that the new hub will enable the company to feed its plants in Taiwan, Malaysia and Singapore.

"It should help us. Cycle time should be improved. Inventory reduction should take place," Mr. Horton said.

ANOTHER MEMPHIS

Joseph C. McCarty, FedEx's vice president for Asia, told a conference in Washington this summer that the Subic Bay operation will do for the Philippines what the carrier's main hub in Memphis has done for that city, where more than 100 companies have set up manufacturing operations to take advantage of the carrier's overnight network.

Japanese companies are starting to move in. The Japan International Development Organization is planning a 450-acre industrial park that will serve as a research and manufacturing center for 10 Japanese companies.

Subic, meanwhile, is promoting itself as an alternative printing and distribution center in Asia, a field now dominated by Hong Kong and Singapore.

Eric Montandon, manager at New Age Publications in Subic, said the new FedEx service could help his firm. New Age is essentially a printer, but also distributes newsletters, advertising and other material within the region.

"We were spun off and set up at Subic in anticipation of good air connections," he told The Journal of Commerce. "We need the overnight service to Southeast Asia FedEx is now promising."

Current movement to Singapore can be two or even four days, he said.

DHL Worldwide Express plans to set up its own intra-Asia hub later this fall in Manila, but has had difficulty putting all the pieces together. Nonetheless, spokesman Dave Fonkalsrud said its traffic within the region was up 48% in the first half of this year, reflecting the tremendous potential in the world's fastest-growing area.

THE BAD DEBT BOXSCORE

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, on that evening in 1972 when I first was elected to the Senate, I made a commitment that I would never fail to see a young person, or a group of young people, who wanted to see me.

It has proved enormously beneficial to me because I have been inspired by the estimated 60,000 young people with whom I have visited during the nearly 23 years I have been in the Senate.

Mr. President, most of them have been concerned about the enormity of the Federal debt that Congress has run up for the coming generations to pay. The young people and I almost always discuss the fact that under the U.S. Constitution, no President can spend a dime of Federal money that has not first been authorized and appropriated by both the House and Senate of the United States.

That is why I began making these daily reports to the Senate on February 22, 1992. I wanted to make a matter of daily record of the precise size of the Federal debt which as of yesterday, Monday, September 11, stood at $4,962,944,077,933.57 or $18,839.42 for every man, woman, and child in America on a per capita basis.

MICKELSON WETLAND MEMORIAL

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, nearly 2½ years have passed since South Dakota Gov. George S. Mickelson and eight distinguished South Dakota businessmen were killed tragically when their small aircraft crashed near Dubuque, IA. During this time, South Dakotans have grieved together over the loss of the crash victims. They are greatly missed.

Dealing with the loss of these prominent citizens has not been easy. Yet, the people of South Dakota have been strong. They have channeled their sorrow into great displays of respect and affection for the crash victims. Memorials have been built, statues erected, scholarships funded, and schools renamed—all in honor of the nine who perished in the fiery crash. I am proud of South Dakotans.

Last Saturday, September 9, a marsh near Estelline, SD, was dedicated in memory of Governor Mickelson, an avid geese hunter. Commissioned to paint an image of the Mickelson Wetland Memorial, Mark Anderson, a South Dakota wildlife artist, created a poignant image of the late Governor and the marsh. These tributes are powerful. They are reminders of the admiration and respect South Dakotans hold for the crash victims. They are reminders of the lives—not the deaths—of nine fellow South Dakotans. They are reminders of how their lives gave our lives and our State meaning and fulfillment.

Kevin Woster of the Sioux Falls, SD, Argus Leader, recently wrote an article describing the painting Mark Anderson completed of the wetland memorial. I ask unanimous consent that this article be printed in the RECORD at the conclusion of my remarks. It is unfortunate that my schedule prevented my wife Harriet and me from being at last Saturday's dedication. Our thoughts and prayers certainly were with Linda Mickelson and the families and friends of George Mickelson on that special day. The dedication of the marsh and Mark Anderson's work are a fitting tribute to a great South Dakotan who dedicated his life to a State and a people he loved.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

MICKELSON MARSH'S DEDICATION TODAY
(By Kevin Woster)

Sioux Falls wildlife artist Mark Anderson will leave his mark today on dedication ceremonies for a wetland memorial to the late Gov. George Mickelson.

Anderson, 37, was commissioned by Mickelson friends to do a painting of the wetland, including an image of Mickelson.

The painting shows the marsh 3 miles west of Estelline with a flock of Canada geese hovering above the water.

That was the easy part for Anderson, who has been painting wildlife for 15 years. But he struggled with Mickelson's image.

"It was really challenging, because this was the first time I ever attempted a portrait," the self-taught artist said.

"And I wanted this one to be right."

It turned out it wasn't right the first time around. When Anderson showed the painting to Mickelson's wife, Linda, and son, Mark, they thought the marsh and geese were perfect.

But the image of Mickelson wasn't quite right.

"You hate to tell somebody that, but I was honest with him and so was Mom," Mark Mickelson said.

"He didn't have a very good print of Dad to work with in the first place."

So Linda Mickelson provided photographs that helped Anderson more clearly capture her husband. And he finally produced an almost-ghostly image of the late governor wearing a baseball cap that reads "Top Gov."

Mickelson wore the hat at his annual governor's hunt and other outdoor events.

"When I brought it back, Mark said, 'That's Dad.' And I knew I had it," Anderson said.

Mark Mickelson agreed.

"He nailed it the second time. It's quite a tribute to a wildlife artist to do such a good job on a portrait."

A small version of the painting is included in the brochure for today's dedication.

And the Mickelson Wetland Memorial Committee paid for 175 prints, which will be signed by Anderson and given to major donors to the wetland project.

Committee members gave the original painting to Linda Mickelson, Friday night.

Mark Mickelson said the painting reflects the essence of the memorial.

"He captured the spirit of the marsh," mark Mickelson said.

"And he captured the spirit of Dad's friends, who really were the impetus behind the project."

Subtitle C—Missile Defense

SEC. 231. SHORT TITLE.

This subtitle may be cited as the “Missile Defense Act of 1995”.

SEC. 232. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The threat that is posed to the national security of the United States by the proliferation of ballistic and cruise missiles is significant and growing, both quantitatively and qualitatively.

(2) The deployment of effective Theater Missile Defense systems can deny potential adversaries the option of escalating a conflict by threatening or attacking United States forces, coalition partners of the United States, or allies of the United States with ballistic missiles armed with weapons of mass destruction to offset the operational and technical advantages of the United States and its coalition partners and allies.

(3) The intelligence community of the United States has estimated that (A) the missile proliferation trend is toward longer range and more sophisticated ballistic missiles, (B) North Korea may deploy an intercontinental ballistic missile capable of reaching Alaska or beyond within 5 years, and (C) although a new indigenously developed ballistic missile threat to the continental United States is not forecast within the next 10 years there is a danger that determined countries will acquire intercontinental ballistic missiles in the near future and with little warning by means other than indigenous development.

(4) The deployment by the United States and its allies of effective defenses against ballistic missiles of all ranges, as well as against cruise missiles, can reduce the incentives for countries to acquire such missiles or to augment existing missile capabilities.

(5) The Cold War distinction between strategic ballistic missiles and nonstrategic ballistic missiles and, therefore, the ABM Treaty's distinction between strategic defense and nonstrategic defense, has changed because of technological advancements and should be reviewed.

(6) The concept of mutual assured destruction, which was one of the major philosophical rationales for the ABM Treaty, is now questionable as a basis for stability in a multipolar world in which the United States and the states of the former Soviet Union are seeking to normalize relations and eliminate Cold War attitudes and arrangements.

(7) Theater and national missile defenses can contribute to the maintenance of stability as missile threats proliferate and as the United States and the former Soviet Union significantly reduce the number of strategic nuclear forces in their respective inventories.

(8) Although technology control regimes and other forms of international arms control can contribute to nonproliferation, such measures alone are inadequate for dealing with missile proliferation, and should not be viewed as alternatives to missile defenses and other active and passive defenses.

(9) Due to limitations in the ABM Treaty which preclude deployment of more than 100 ground-based ABM interceptors at a single site, the United States is currently prohibited from deploying a national missile defense system capable of defending the continental United States, Alaska, and Hawaii against even the most limited ballistic missile attacks.

SEC. 233. MISSILE DEFENSE POLICY.

It is the policy of the United States to—

(1) deploy as soon as possible affordable and operationally effective theater missile defenses capable of countering existing and emerging theater ballistic missiles;

(2)(A) develop for deployment a multiple-site national missile defense system that: (i) is affordable and operationally effective against limited, accidental, and unauthorized ballistic missile attacks on the territory of the United States, and (ii) can be augmented over time as the threat changes to provide a layered defense against limited, accidental, or unauthorized ballistic missile threats;

(B) initiate negotiations with the Russian Federation as necessary to provide for the national missile defense systems specified in section 235; and

(C) consider, if those negotiations fail, the option of withdrawing from the ABM Treaty in accordance with the provisions of Article XV of the Treaty, subject to consultations between the President and the Senate;

(3) ensure congressional review, prior to a decision to deploy the system developed for deployment under paragraph (2), of: (A) the affordability and operational effectiveness of such a system; (B) the threat to be countered by such a system; and (C) ABM Treaty considerations with respect to such a system.

(4) improve existing cruise missile defenses and deploy as soon as practical defenses that are affordable and operationally effective against advanced cruise missiles;

(5) pursue a focused research and development program to provide follow-on ballistic missile defense options;

(6) employ streamlined acquisition procedures to lower the cost and accelerate the pace of developing and deploying theater missile defenses, cruise missile defenses, and national missile defenses;

(7) seek a cooperative transition to a regime that does not feature mutual assured destruction and an offense-only form of deterrence as the basis for strategic stability; and

(8) carry out the policies, programs, and requirements of subtitle C of title II of this Act through processes specified within, or consistent with, the ABM Treaty, which anticipates the need and provides the means for amendment to the Treaty.

SEC. 234. THEATER MISSILE DEFENSE ARCHITECTURE.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT OF CORE PROGRAM.—To implement the policy established in section 233, the Secretary of Defense shall establish a top priority core theater missile defense program consisting of the following systems:

(1) The Patriot PAC-3 system, with a first unit equipped (FUE) in fiscal year 1998.

(2) The Navy Lower Tier (Area) system, with a user operational evaluation system (UOES) capability in fiscal year 1997 and an initial operational capability (IOC) in fiscal year 1999.

(3) The Theater High-Altitude Area Defense (THAAD) system, with a user operational evaluation system (UOES) capability in fiscal year 1997 and an initial operational capability (IOC) no later than fiscal year 2002.

(4) The Navy Upper Tier (Theater Wide) system, with a user operational evaluation system (UOES) capability in fiscal year 1999 and an initial operational capability (IOC) in fiscal year 2001.

(b) INTEROPERABILITY AND SUPPORT OF CORE SYSTEMS.—To maximize effectiveness and flexibility, the Secretary of Defense shall ensure that core theater missile defense systems are interoperable and fully capable of exploiting external sensor and battle management support from systems such as the Navy's Cooperative Engagement Capability (CEC), the Army's Battlefield Integration Center (BIC), air and space-based sensors including, in particular, the Space and Missile Tracking System (SMTS).

(c) TERMINATION OF PROGRAMS.—The Secretary of Defense shall terminate the Boost Phase Interceptor (BPI) program.

(d) FOLLOW-ON SYSTEMS.—(1) The Secretary of Defense shall develop an affordable development plan for follow-on theater missile defense systems which leverages existing systems, technologies, and programs, and focuses investments to satisfy military requirements not met by the core program.

(2) Before adding new theater missile defense systems to the core program from among the follow-on activities, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report describing—

(A) the requirements for the program and the specific threats to be countered;

(B) how the new program will relate to, support, and leverage off existing core programs;

(C) the planned acquisition strategy; and

(D) a preliminary estimate of total program cost and budgetary impact.

(e) REPORT.—(1) Not later than the date on which the President submits the budget for fiscal year 1997 under section 1105 of title 31, United States Code, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report detailing the Secretary's plans for implementing the guidance specified in this section.

(2) For each deployment date for each system described in subsection (a), the report required by paragraph (1) of this subsection shall include the funding required for research, development, testing, evaluation, and deployment for each fiscal year beginning with fiscal year 1997 through the end of the fiscal year in which deployment is projected under subsection (a).

SEC. 235. NATIONAL MISSILE DEFENSE SYSTEM ARCHITECTURE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—To implement the policy established in section 233, the Secretary of Defense shall develop an affordable and operationally effective national missile defense system to counter a limited, accidental, or unauthorized ballistic missile attack, and which is capable of attaining initial operational capability (IOC) by the end of 2003. Such system shall include the following:

(1) Ground-based interceptors capable of being deployed at multiple sites, the locations and numbers of which are to be determined so as to optimize the defensive coverage of the continental United States, Alaska, and Hawaii against limited, accidental, or unauthorized ballistic missile attacks.

(2) Fixed ground-based radars and space-based sensors, including the Space and Missile Tracking system, the mix, siting and numbers of which are to be determined so as to optimize sensor support and minimize total system cost.

(3) Battle management, command, control, and communications (BM/C3).

(b) INTERIM OPERATIONAL CAPABILITY.—To provide a hedge against the emergence of near-term ballistic missile threats against the United States and to support the development and deployment of the objective system specified in subsection (a), the Secretary of Defense shall develop an interim national missile defense plan that would give the United States the ability to field a limited operational capability by the end of 1999 if required by the threat. In developing this plan the Secretary shall make use of—

(1) developmental, or user operational evaluation system (UOES) interceptors, radars, and battle management, command, control, and communications (BM/C3), to the extent that such use directly supports, and does not significantly increase the cost of, the objective system specified in subsection (a);

(2) one or more of the sites that will be used as deployment locations for the objective system specified in subsection (a);

(3) upgraded early warning radars; and

(4) space-based sensors.

(c) USE OF STREAMLINED ACQUISITION PROCEDURES.—The Secretary of Defense shall prescribe and use streamlined acquisition procedures to—

(1) reduce the cost and increase the efficiency of developing the national missile defense system specified in subsection (a); and

(2) ensure that any interim national missile defense capabilities developed pursuant to subsection (b) are operationally effective and on a path to fulfill the technical requirements and schedule of the objective system.

(d) ADDITIONAL COST SAVING MEASURES.—In addition to the procedures prescribed pursuant to subsection (c), the Secretary of Defense shall employ cost saving measures that do not decrease the operational effectiveness of the systems specified in subsections (a) and (b), and which do not pose unacceptable technical risk. The cost saving measures should include the following:

(1) The use of existing facilities and infrastructure.

(2) The use, where appropriate, of existing or upgraded systems and technologies, except that Minuteman boosters may not be used as part of a National Missile Defense architecture.

(3) Development of systems and components that do not rely on a large and permanent infrastructure and are easily transported, emplaced, and moved.

(e) REPORT ON PLAN FOR DEPLOYMENT.—Not later than the date on which the President submits the budget for fiscal year 1997 under section 1105 of title 31, United States Code, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report containing the following matters:

(1) The Secretary's plan for carrying out this section.

(2) For each deployment date in subsections (a) and (b), the report shall include the funding required for research, development, testing, evaluation, and deployment for each fiscal year beginning with fiscal year 1997 through the end of the fiscal year in which deployment is projected under subsection (a) or (b). The report shall also describe the specific threat to be countered and provide the Secretary's assessment as to whether deployment is affordable and operationally effective.

(3) An analysis of options for supplementing or modifying the national missile defense architecture specified in subsection (a) before attaining initial operational capability, or evolving such architecture in a building block manner after attaining initial operational capability, to improve the cost-effectiveness or the operational effectiveness of such system by adding one or a combination of the following:

(A) Additional ground-based interceptors at existing or new sites.

(B) Sea-based missile defense systems.

(C) Space-based kinetic energy interceptors.

(D) Space-based directed energy systems.

SEC. 236. CRUISE MISSILE DEFENSE INITIATIVE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Defense shall undertake an initiative to coordinate and strengthen the cruise missile defense programs, projects, and activities of the military departments, the Advanced Research Projects Agency and the Ballistic Missile Defense Organization to ensure that the United States develops and deploys affordable and operationally effective defenses against existing and future cruise missile threats.

(b) ACTIONS OF THE SECRETARY OF DEFENSE.—In carrying out subsection (a), the Secretary of Defense shall ensure that—

(1) to the extent practicable, the ballistic missile defense and cruise missile defense efforts of the Department of Defense are coordinated and mutually reinforcing;

(2) existing air defense systems are adequately upgraded to provide an affordable and operationally effective defense against existing and near-term cruise missile threats; and

(3) the Department of Defense undertakes a high priority and well coordinated technology development program to support the future deployment of systems that are affordable and operationally effective against advanced cruise missiles, including cruise missiles with low observable features.

(c) IMPLEMENTATION PLAN.—Not later than the date on which the President submits the budget for fiscal year 1997 under section 1105 of title 31, United States Code, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the congressional defense committees a detailed plan, in unclassified and classified forms, as necessary, for carrying out this section. The plan shall include an assessment of—

(1) the systems that currently have cruise missile defense capabilities, and existing programs to improve these capabilities;

(2) the technologies that could be deployed in the near- to mid-term to provide significant advances over existing cruise missile defense capabilities, and the investments that would be required to ready the technologies for deployment;

(3) the cost and operational tradeoffs, if any, between upgrading existing air and missile defense systems and accelerating follow-on systems with significantly improved capabilities against advanced cruise missiles; and

(4) the organizational and management changes that would strengthen and further coordinate the cruise missile defense efforts of the Department of Defense, including the disadvantages, if any, of implementing such changes.

SEC. 237. POLICY REGARDING THE ABM TREATY.

(a) Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Article XIII of the ABM Treaty envisions "possible changes in the strategic situation which have a bearing on the provisions of this treaty".

(2) Articles XIII and XIV of the ABM Treaty establish means for the Parties to amend the Treaty, and the Parties have employed these means to amend the Treaty.

(3) Article XV of the ABM Treaty establishes the means for a party to withdraw from the Treaty, upon 6 months notice, "if it decides that extraordinary events related to the subject matter of this treaty have jeopardized its supreme interests".

(4) The policies, programs, and requirements of subtitle C of title II of this Act can be accomplished through processes specified within, or consistent with, the ABM Treaty, which anticipates the need and provides the means for amendment to the Treaty.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—In light of the findings and policies provided in this subtitle, it is the sense of Congress that—

(1) Given the fundamental responsibility of the Government of the United States to protect the security of the United States, the increasingly serious threat posed to the United States by the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and ballistic missile technology, and the effect this threat could have on the options of the United States to act in a time of crisis—

(A) it is in the vital national security interest of the United States to defend itself from the threat of a limited, accidental, or unauthorized ballistic missile attack, whatever its source; and

(B) the deployment of a national missile defense system, in accord with section 233, to protect the territory of the United States against a limited, accidental, or unauthorized missile attack can strengthen strategic stability and deterrence; and

(2)(A) the Senate should undertake a comprehensive review of the continuing value and validity of the ABM Treaty with the intent of providing additional policy guidance on the future of the ABM Treaty during the second session of the One Hundred Fourth Congress; and

(B) upon completion of the review, the Committee on Foreign Relations, in consultation with the Committee on Armed Services and other appropriate committees, should report its findings to the Senate.

SEC. 238. PROHIBITION ON FUNDS TO IMPLEMENT AN INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENT CONCERNING THEATER MISSILE DEFENSE SYSTEMS.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Section 234 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1994 provides that the ABM Treaty does not apply to or limit research, development, testing, or deployment of missile defense systems, system upgrades, or system components that are designed to counter modern theater ballistic missiles, regardless of the capabilities of such missiles, unless those systems, system upgrades, or system components are tested against or have demonstrated capabilities to counter modern strategic ballistic missiles.

(2) Section 232 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1995 provides that the United States shall not be bound by any international agreement that would substantially modify the ABM Treaty unless the agreement is entered into pursuant to the treaty making power of the President under the Constitution.

(3) the demarcation standard described in subsection (b)(1) is based upon current technology.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) unless a missile defense system, system upgrade, or system component, including one that exploits data from space-based or other external sensors, is flight tested against a ballistic missile target that exceeds a range of 3,500 kilometers or a velocity of 5 kilometers per second, such missile defense system, system upgrade, or system component has not been tested in an ABM mode nor deemed to have been given capabilities to counter strategic ballistic missiles, and

(2) any international agreement that would limit the research, development, testing, or deployment of missile defense systems, system upgrades, or system components that are designed to counter modern theater ballistic missiles in a manner that would be more restrictive than the criteria in paragraph (1) should be entered into only pursuant to the treaty making powers of the President under the Constitution.

(c) PROHIBITION ON FUNDING.—Funds appropriated or otherwise made available to the Department of Defense for fiscal year 1996 may not be obligated or expended to implement an agreement with any of the independent states of the former Soviet Union entered into after January 1, 1995 that would establish a demarcation between theater missile defense systems and anti-ballistic missile systems for purposes of the ABM Treaty or that would restrict the performance, operation, or deployment of United States theater missile defense systems except: (1) to the extent provided in an Act enacted subsequent to this Act; (2) to implement that portion of any such agreement that implements the criteria in subsection (b)(1); or (3) to implement any such agreement that is entered into pursuant to the treaty making power of the President under the Constitution.

SEC. 242. SENSE OF SENATE ON THE DIRECTOR OF OPERATIONAL TEST AND EVALUATION.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate makes the following findings:

(1) The Office of the Director of Operational Test and Evaluation of the Department of Defense was created by Congress to provide an independent validation and verification on the suitability and effectiveness of new weapons, and to ensure that the United States military departments acquire weapons that are proven in an operational environment before they are produced and used in combat.

(2) The office is currently making significant contributions to the process by which the Department of Defense acquires new weapons by providing vital insights on operational weapons tests to be used in this acquisition process.

(3) The office provides vital services to Congress in providing an independent certification on the performance of new weapons that have been operationally tested.

(4) A provision of H.R.1530, an Act entitled "An Act to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 1996 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes", agreed to by the House of Representatives on June 15, 1995, contains a provision that could substantially diminish the authority and responsibilities of the office and perhaps cause the elimination of the office and its functions.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that—

(1) the authority and responsibilities of the Office of the Director of Operational Test and Evaluation of the Department of Defense should not be diminished or eliminated; and

(2) the conferees on H.R.1530, an Act entitled "An Act to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 1996 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes" should not propose to Congress a conference report on that Act that would either diminish or eliminate the Office of the Director of Operational Test and Evaluation or its functions.

SEC. 243. BALLISTIC MISSILE DEFENSE TECHNOLOGY CENTER.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Director of the Ballistic Missile Defense Organization shall establish a Ballistic Missile Defense Technology Center within the Space and Strategic Defense Command of the Army.

(b) MISSION.—The missions of the Center are as follows:

(1) To maximize common application of ballistic missile defense component technology programs, target test programs, functional analysis and phenomenology investigations.

(2) To store data from the missile defense technology programs of the Armed Forces using computer facilities of the Missile Defense Data Center.

(c) TECHNOLOGY PROGRAM COORDINATION WITH CENTER.—The Secretary of Defense, acting through the Director of the Ballistic Missile Defense Organization, shall require the head of each element or activity of the Department of Defense beginning a new missile defense program referred to in subsection (b)(1) to first coordinate the program with the Ballistic Missile Defense Technology Center in order to prevent duplication of effort.

"(n) UNIFORM NATIONAL DISCHARGE STANDARDS FOR VESSELS OF THE ARMED FORCES.—

"(1) APPLICABILITY.—This subsection shall apply to vessels of the Armed Forces and discharges, other than sewage, incidental to the normal operation of a vessel of the Armed Forces, unless the Secretary of Defense finds that compliance with this subsection would not be in the national security interests of the United States.

"(2) DETERMINATION OF DISCHARGES REQUIRED TO BE CONTROLLED BY MARINE POLLUTION CONTROL DEVICES.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator and the Secretary of Defense, after consultation with the Secretary of the department in which the Coast Guard is operating, the Secretary of Commerce, and interested States, shall jointly determine the discharges incidental to the normal operation of a vessel of the Armed Forces for which it is reasonable and practicable to require use of a marine pollution control device to mitigate adverse impacts on the marine environment. Notwithstanding subsection (a)(1) of section 553 of title 5, United States Code, the Administrator and the Secretary of Defense shall promulgate the determinations in accordance with the section.

"(B) CONSIDERATIONS.—In making a determination under subparagraph (A), the Administrator and the Secretary of Defense shall take into consideration—

"(i) the nature of the discharge;

"(ii) the environmental effects of the discharge;

"(iii) the practicability of using the marine pollution control device;

"(iv) the effect that installation or use of the marine pollution control device would have on the operation or operational capability of the vessel;

"(v) applicable United States law;

"(vi) applicable international standards; and

"(vii) the economic costs of the installation and use of the marine pollution control device.

"(3) PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR MARINE POLLUTION CONTROL DEVICES.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—For each discharge for which a marine pollution control device is determined to be required under paragraph (2), the Administrator and the Secretary of Defense, in consultation with the Secretary of the department in which the Coast Guard is operating, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of Commerce, other interested Federal agencies, and interested States, shall jointly promulgate Federal standards of performance for each marine pollution control device required with respect to the discharge. Notwithstanding subsection (a)(I) of section 553 of title 5, United States Code, the Administrator and the Secretary of Defense shall promulgate the standards in accordance with the section.

“(B) CONSIDERATIONS.—In promulgating standards under this paragraph, the Administrator and the Secretary of Defense shall take into consideration the matters set forth in paragraph (2)(B).

“(C) CLASSES, TYPES, AND SIZES OF VESSELS.—The standards promulgated under this paragraph may—

“(i) distinguish among classes, types, and sizes of vessels;

“(ii) distinguish between new and existing vessels; and

“(iii) provide for a waiver of the applicability of the standards as necessary or appropriate to a particular class, type, age, or size of vessel.

“(4) REGULATIONS FOR USE OF MARINE POLLUTION CONTROL DEVICES.—The Secretary of Defense, after consultation with the Administrator and the Secretary of the department in which the Coast Guard is operating, shall promulgate such regulations governing the design, construction, installation, and use of marine pollution control devices on board vessels of the Armed Forces as are necessary to achieve the standards promulgated under paragraph (3).

“(5) DEADLINES; EFFECTIVE DATE.—

“(A) DETERMINATIONS.—The Administrator and the Secretary of Defense shall—

“(i) make the initial determinations under paragraph (2) not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this subsection; and

“(ii) every 5 years—

“(I) review the determinations; and “(II) if necessary, revise the determinations based on significant new information.

“(B) STANDARDS.—The Administrator and the Secretary of Defense shall—

“(i) promulgate standards of performance for a marine pollution control device under paragraph (3) not later than 2 years after the date of a determination under paragraph (2) that the marine pollution control device is required; and

“(ii) every 5 years—

“(I) review the standards; and “(II) if necessary, revise the standards, consistent with paragraph (3)(B) and based on significant new information.

“(C) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary of Defense shall promulgate regulations with respect to a marine pollution control device under paragraph (4) as soon as practicable after the Administrator and the Secretary of Defense promulgate standards with respect to the device under paragraph (3), but not later than 1 year after the Administrator and the Secretary of Defense promulgate the standards. The regulations promulgated by the Secretary of Defense under paragraph (4) shall become effective upon promulgation unless another effective date is specified in the regulations.

“(D) PETITION FOR REVIEW.—The Governor of any State may submit a petition requesting that the Secretary of Defense and the Administrator review a determination under paragraph (2) or a standard under paragraph (3), if there is significant new information, not considered previously, that could reasonably result in a change to the particular determination or standard after consideration of the matters set forth in paragraph (2)(B). The petition shall be accompanied by the scientific and technical information on which the petition is based. The Administrator and the Secretary of Defense shall grant or deny the petition not later than 2 years after the date of receipt of the petition.

“(6) EFFECT ON OTHER LAWS.—

“(A) PROHIBITION ON REGULATION BY STATES OR POLITICAL SUBDIVISIONS OF STATES.—Beginning on the effective date of—

“(i) a determination under paragraph (2) that it is not reasonable and practicable to require use of a marine pollution control device regarding a particular discharge incidental to the normal operation of a vessel of the Armed Forces; or

“(ii) regulations promulgated by the Secretary of Defense under paragraph (4); except as provided in paragraph (7), neither a State nor a political subdivision of a State may adopt or enforce any statute or regulation of the State or political subdivision with respect to the discharge or the design, construction, installation, or use of any marine pollution control device required to control the discharge.

“(B) FEDERAL LAWS.—This subsection shall not affect the application of section 311 to discharges incidental to the normal operation of a vessel.

“(7) ESTABLISHMENT OF STATE NO-DISCHARGE ZONES.—

“(A) STATE PROHIBITION.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—After the effective date of—

“(I) a determination under paragraph (2) that it is not reasonable and practicable to require use of a marine pollution control device regarding a particular discharge incidental to the normal operation of a vessel of the Armed Forces; or if a State determines that the protection and enhancement of the quality of some or all of the waters within the State require greater environmental protection, the State may prohibit 1 or more discharges incidental to the normal operation of a vessel, whether treated or not treated, into the waters. No prohibition shall apply until the Administrator makes the determinations described in subclauses (II) and (III) of subparagraph (B)(i).

“(ii) DOCUMENTATION.—To the extent that a prohibition under this paragraph would apply to vessels of the Armed Forces and not to other types of vessels, the State shall document the technical or environmental basis for the distinction.

“(B) PROHIBITION BY THE ADMINISTRATOR.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—Upon application of a State, the Administrator shall by regulation prohibit the discharge from a vessel of 1 or more discharges incidental to the normal operation of a vessel, whether treated or not treated, into the waters covered by the application if the Administrator determines that—

“(I) the protection and enhancement of the quality of the specified waters within the State require a prohibition of the discharge into the waters;

“(II) adequate facilities for the safe and sanitary removal of the discharge incidental to the normal operation of a vessel are reasonably available for the waters to which the prohibition would apply; and

“(III) the prohibition will not have the effect of discriminating against a vessel of the Armed Forces by reason of the ownership or operation by the Federal Government, or the military function, of the vessel.

“(ii) APPROVAL OR DISAPPROVAL.—The Administrator shall approve or disapprove an application submitted under clause (i) not later than 90 days after the date on which the application is submitted to the Administrator. Notwithstanding clause (i)(II), the Administrator shall not disapprove an application for the sole reason that there are not adequate facilities to remove any discharge incidental to the normal operation of a vessel from vessels of the Armed Forces.

“(C) APPLICABILITY TO FOREIGN FLAGGED VESSELS.—A prohibition under this paragraph—

“(i) shall not impose any design, construction, manning, or equipment standard on a foreign flagged vessel engaged in innocent passage unless the prohibition implements a generally accepted international rule or standard; and

“(ii) that relates to the prevention, reduction, and control of pollution shall not apply to a foreign flagged vessel engaged in transit passage unless the prohibition implements an applicable international regulation regarding the discharge of oil, oily waste, or any other noxious substance into the waters.

“(8) PROHIBITION RELATING TO VESSELS OF THE ARMED FORCES.—After the effective date of the regulations promulgated by the Secretary of Defense under paragraph (4), it shall be unlawful for any vessel of the Armed Forces subject to the regulations to—

“(A) operate in the navigable waters of the United States or the waters of the contiguous zone, if the vessel is not equipped with any required marine pollution control device meeting standards established under this subsection; or

“(B) discharge overboard any discharge incidental to the normal operation of a vessel in waters with respect to which a prohibition on the discharge has been established under paragraph (7).

"(c) AMOUNT FOR PARTIAL MONTH.—The amount of insurance payable to an insured member for any period of covered service that is less than one month shall be determined by multiplying $\frac{1}{30}$ of the monthly benefit rate for the member by the number of days of the covered service served by the member during such period.

"(d) ADJUSTMENT OF AMOUNTS.—(1) The Secretary shall determine annually the effect of inflation on benefits and shall adjust the amounts set forth in subsections (a) and (b)(2) to maintain the constant dollar value of the benefit.

"(2) If the amount of a benefit as adjusted under paragraph (1) is not evenly divisible by $10, the amount shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $10, except that an amount evenly divisible by $5 but not by $10 shall be rounded to the next lower amount that is evenly divisible by $10.

"(a) ESTABLISHMENT OF RATES.—(1) The Secretary, in consultation with the Board of Actuaries, shall prescribe the premium rates for insurance under the insurance program.

"(2) The Secretary shall prescribe a fixed premium rate for each $1,000 of monthly insurance benefit. The premium amount shall be equal to the share of the cost attributable to insuring the member and shall be the same for all members of the Ready Reserve who are insured under the insurance program for the same benefit amount. The Secretary shall prescribe the rate on the basis of the best available estimate of risk and financial exposure, levels of subscription by members, and other relevant factors.

“(b) LEVEL PREMIUMS.—The premium rate prescribed for the first year of insurance coverage of an insured member shall be continued without change for subsequent years of insurance coverage, except that the Secretary, after consultation with the Board of Actuaries, may adjust the premium rate in order to fund inflation-adjusted benefit increases on an actuarially sound basis.

“§ 12527. Payment of premiums

“(a) METHODS OF PAYMENT.—(1) The monthly premium for coverage of a member under the insurance program shall be deducted and withheld from the insured member's basic pay for inactive duty training each month.

“(2) An insured member who does not receive pay on a monthly basis shall pay the Secretary directly the premium amount applicable for the level of benefits for which the member is insured.

“(b) ADVANCE PAY FOR PREMIUM.—The Secretary concerned may advance to an insured member the amount equal to the first insurance premium payment due under this chapter. The advance may be paid out of appropriations for military pay. An advance to a member shall be collected from the member either by deducting and withholding the amount from basic pay payable for the member or by collecting it from the member directly. No disbursing or certifying officer shall be responsible for any loss resulting from an advance under this subsection.

“(c) PREMIUMS TO BE DEPOSITED IN FUND.—Premium amounts deducted and withheld from the basic pay of insured members and premium amounts paid directly to the Secretary shall be credited to the Fund.

“§ 12528. Department of Defense Ready Reserve Income Insurance Fund

“(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is established on the books of the Treasury a fund to be known as the ‘Department of Defense Ready Reserve Income Insurance Fund’, which shall be administered by the Secretary of the Treasury. The Fund shall be used for the accumulation of funds in order to finance the liabilities of the insurance program on an actuarially sound basis.

“(b) ASSETS OF FUND.—There shall be deposited into the Fund the following:

“(1) Premiums paid under section 12527 of this title.

“(2) Any amount appropriated to the Fund.

“(3) Any return on investment of the assets of the Fund.

“(c) AVAILABILITY.—Amounts in the Fund shall be available for paying insurance benefits under the insurance program.

“(d) INVESTMENT OF ASSETS OF FUND.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall invest such portion of the Fund as is not in the judgment of the Secretary of Defense required to meet current liabilities. Such investments shall be in public debt securities with maturities suitable to the needs of the Fund, as determined by the Secretary of Defense, and bearing interest at rates determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration current market yields on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States of comparable maturities. The income on such investments shall be credited to the Fund.

“(e) ANNUAL ACCOUNTING.—At the beginning of each fiscal year, the Secretary, in consultation with the Board of Actuaries and the Secretary of the Treasury, shall determine the following:

“(1) The projected amount of the premiums to be collected, investment earnings to be received, and any transfers or appropriations to be made for the Fund for that fiscal year.

“(2) The amount for that fiscal year of any cumulative unfunded liability (including any negative amount or any gain to the Fund) resulting from payments of benefits.

“(3) The amount for that fiscal year (including any negative amount) of any cumulative actuarial gain or loss to the Fund.

“§ 12529. Board of Actuaries

“(a) ACTUARIAL RESPONSIBILITY.—The Board of Actuaries shall have the actuarial responsibility for the insurance program.

“(b) VALUATIONS AND PREMIUM RECOMMENDATIONS.—The Board of Actuaries shall carry out periodic actuarial valuations of the benefits under the insurance program and determine a premium rate methodology for the Secretary to use in setting premium rates for the insurance program. The Board shall conduct the first valuation and determine a premium rate methodology not later than six months after the insurance program is established.

“(c) EFFECTS OF CHANGED BENEFITS.—If at the time of any actuarial valuation under subsection (b) there has been a change in benefits under the insurance program that has been made since the last such valuation and such change in benefits increases or decreases the present value of amounts payable from the Fund, the Board of Actuaries shall determine a premium rate methodology, and recommend to the Secretary a premium schedule, for the liquidation of any liability (or actuarial gain to the Fund) resulting from such change and any previous such changes so that the present value of the sum of the scheduled premium payments (or reduction in payments that would otherwise be made) equals the cumulative increase (or decrease) in the present value of such benefits.

“(d) ACTUARIAL GAINS OR LOSSES.—If at the time of any such valuation the Board of Actuaries determines that there has been an actuarial gain or loss to the Fund as a result of changes in actuarial assumptions since the last valuation or as a result of any differences, between actual and expected experience since the last valuation, the Board shall recommend to the Secretary a premium rate schedule for the amortization of the cumulative gain or loss to the Fund resulting from such changes in assumptions and any previous such changes in assumptions or from the differences in actual and expected experience, respectively, through an increase or decrease in the payments that would otherwise be made to the Fund.

“(e) INSUFFICIENT ASSETS.—If at any time liabilities of the Fund exceed assets of the Fund as a result of members of the Ready Reserve being ordered to active duty as described in section 12521(2) of this title, and funds are unavailable to pay benefits completely, the Secretary shall request the President to submit to Congress a request for a special appropriation to cover the unfunded liability. If appropriations are not made to cover an unfunded liability in any fiscal year, the Secretary shall reduce the amount of the benefits paid under the insurance program to a total amount that does not exceed the assets of the Fund expected to accrue by the end of such fiscal year. Benefits that cannot be paid because of such a reduction shall be deferred and may be paid only after and to the extent that additional funds become available.

“(f) DEFINITION OF PRESENT VALUE.—The Board of Actuaries shall define the term ‘present value’ for purposes of this subsection.

“§ 12530. Payment of benefits

“(a) COMMENCEMENT OF PAYMENT.—An insured member who serves in excess of 30 days of covered service shall be paid the amount to which such member is entitled on a monthly basis beginning not later than one month after the 30th day of covered service.

“(b) METHOD OF PAYMENT.—The Secretary shall prescribe in the regulations the manner in which payments shall be made to the member or to a person designated in accordance with subsection (c).

“(c) DESIGNATED RECIPIENTS.—(1) A member may designate in writing another person (including a spouse, parent, or other person with an insurable interest, as determined in accordance with the regulations prescribed by the Secretary) to receive payments of insurance benefits under the insurance program.

“(2) A member may direct that payments of insurance benefits for a person designated under paragraph (1) be deposited with a bank or other financial institution to the credit of the designated person.

“(d) RECIPIENTS IN EVENT OF DEATH OF INSURED MEMBER.—Any insurance payable under the insurance program on account of a deceased member's period of covered service shall be paid, upon the establishment of a valid claim, to the beneficiary or beneficiaries which the deceased member designated in writing. If no such designation has been made, the amount shall be payable in accordance with the laws of the State of the member's domicile.

“§ 12531. Purchase of insurance

“(a) PURCHASE AUTHORIZED.—The Secretary may, instead of or in addition to underwriting the insurance program through the Fund, purchase from one or more insurance companies a policy or policies of group insurance in order to provide the benefits required under this chapter. The Secretary may waive any requirement for full and open competition in order to purchase an insurance policy under this subsection.

“(d) REINSURANCE.—The Secretary shall arrange with each insurance company issuing any policy for purposes of subsection (a) to reinsure, under conditions approved by the Secretary, portions of the total amount of the insurance under such policy or policies with such other insurance companies (which meet qualifying criteria prescribed by the Secretary) as may elect to participate in such reinsurance.

“(e) TERMINATION.—The Secretary may at any time terminate any policy purchased under this section.

“§ 12532. Termination for nonpayment of premiums; forfeiture

SEC. 542. MERITORIOUS AND VALOROUS SERVICE DURING VIETNAM ERA: REVIEW AND AWARDS.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The Ia Drang Valley (Pleiku) campaign, carried out by the Armed Forces of the United States in the Ia Drang Valley of Vietnam from October 23, 1965, to November 26, 1965, is illustrative of the many battles which pitted forces of the United States against North Vietnamese Army regulars and Viet Cong in vicious fighting in which many members of the Armed Forces displayed extraordinary heroism, sacrifice, and bravery which has not yet been officially recognized through award of appropriate decorations.

(2) Accounts of these battles published since the war ended authoritatively document repeated acts of extraordinary heroism, sacrifice, and bravery on the part of many members of the Armed Forces who were engaged in these battles, many of whom have never been officially recognized for those acts.

(3) In some of the battles United States military units suffered substantial losses, in some cases a majority of the strength of the units.

(4) The incidence of heavy casualties throughout the war inhibited the timely collection of comprehensive and detailed information to support recommendations for awards for the acts of heroism, sacrifice, and bravery performed.

(5) Requests to the Secretaries of the military departments for review of award recommendations for those acts have been denied because of restrictions in law and regulations that require timely filing of recommendations and documented justification.

(6) Acts of heroism, sacrifice, and bravery performed in combat by members of the Armed Forces of the United States deserve appropriate and timely recognition by the people of the United States.

(7) It is appropriate to recognize military personnel for acts of extraordinary heroism, sacrifice, or bravery that are belatedly, but properly, documented by persons who witnessed those acts.

(b) WAIVER OF RESTRICTIONS ON AWARDS.—(1) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of Defense or the Secretary of the military department concerned may award or upgrade a decoration to any person for an act, an achievement, or service that the person performed in a campaign while serving on active duty during the Vietnam era.

department concerned to be awarded to a person for an act, an achievement, or service performed by that person while serving on active duty.

(c) REVIEW OF AWARD RECOMMENDATIONS.—(1) The Secretary of each military department shall review all recommendations for awards for acts, achievements, or service described in subsection (b)(1) that have been received by the Secretary during the period of the review.

(2) The Secretaries shall begin the review within 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act and shall complete the review within one year after such date.

(3) The Secretary may use the same process for carrying out the review as the Secretary uses for reviewing other recommendations for awarding decorations to members of the armed force or armed forces under the Secretary's jurisdiction for acts, achievements, or service.

(4)(A) Upon completing the review, the Secretary shall submit a report on the review to the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate and the Committee on National Security of the House of Representatives.

(B) The report shall contain the following information on each recommendation for award reviewed:

(i) A summary of the recommendation.

(ii) The findings resulting from the review.

(iii) The final action taken on the recommendation.

(2) Paragraph (1) applies to any decoration (including any device in lieu of a decoration) that, during or after the period described in paragraph (1) and before the date of the enactment of this Act, was authorized by law or under the regulations of the Department of Defense or the military department concerned to be awarded to a person for an act, achievement, or service performed by that person while serving on active duty.

(b) REVIEW OF AWARD RECOMMENDATIONS.—(1) The Secretary of each military department shall review all recommendations for awards of decorations for acts, achievements, or service described in subsection (a)(1) that have been received by the Secretary during the period of the review.

(2) The Secretary shall begin the review within 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act and shall complete the review within one year after such date.

(3) The Secretary may use the same process for carrying out the review as the Secretary uses for reviewing other recommendations for awarding decorations to members of the armed force or armed forces under the Secretary's jurisdiction for acts, achievements, or service.

(4) The Secretary may reject a recommendation if the Secretary determines that there is a justifiable basis for concluding that the recommendation is specious.

(5) The Secretary shall take reasonable actions to publicize widely the opportunity to recommend awards of decorations under this section.

(6)(A) Upon completing the review, the Secretary shall submit a report on the review to the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate and the Committee on National Security of the House of Representatives.

(b) WAIVER OF TIME LIMITATIONS.—The President is authorized to award a Medal of Honor to any person referred to in subsection (a) in accordance with a recommendation of the Secretary of the Army submitted under that subsection. The following restrictions do not apply in the case of any such person:

(2) The Secretary of Defense, in consultation with the Secretary of State and the intelligence community, shall periodically inform the Secretary of Commerce as to the countries known or suspected to have an offensive biological weapons program.

(3) In order to facilitate the review of an application for an export license by appropriate elements of the intelligence committee under paragraph (1), the Secretary of Defense shall submit a copy of the application to such appropriate elements.

(4) The Secretary of Defense shall carry out the review of an application under this subsection not later than 30 days after the date on which the Secretary of Commerce forwards a copy of the application to the Secretary of Defense for review.

"(c) AUTHORITY SUBJECT TO PROVISIONS OF APPROPRIATIONS.—The Secretary may guarantee a loan under this subchapter only as provided in appropriations Acts.

"§2540a. Transferability

"A guarantee issued under this subchapter shall be fully and freely transferable.

"§2540b. Limitations

"(a) TERMS AND CONDITIONS OF LOAN GUARANTEES.—In issuing a guarantee under this subchapter for a medium-term or long-term loan, the Secretary may not offer terms and conditions more beneficial than those that would be provided to the recipient by the Export-Import Bank of the United States under similar circumstances in conjunction with the provision of guarantees for nondefense articles and services.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Defense shall charge a fee (known as 'exposure fee') for each guarantee issued under this subchapter.

"(b) AMOUNT.—To the extent that the cost of the loan guarantees under this subchapter is not otherwise provided for in appropriations Acts, the fee imposed under this section with respect to a loan guarantee shall be fixed in an amount determined by the Secretary to be sufficient to meet potential liabilities of the United States under the loan guarantee.

"(c) PAYMENT TERMS.—The fee for each guarantee shall become due as the guarantee is issued. In the case of a guarantee for a loan which is disbursed incrementally, and for which the guarantee is correspondingly issued incrementally as portions of the loan are disbursed, the fee shall be paid incrementally in proportion to the amount of the guarantee that is issued.

“§2540d. Definitions

SEC. 1055. STRATEGIC COOPERATION BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND ISRAEL.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The President and Congress have repeatedly declared the long-standing United States commitment to maintaining the qualitative superiority of the Israel Defense Forces over any combination of potential adversaries.

(2) Congress continues to recognize the many benefits to the United States from its strategic relationship with Israel, including that of enhanced regional stability and technical cooperation.

(3) Despite the historic peace effort in which Israel and its neighbors are engaged, Israel continues to face severe potential threats to its national security that are compounded by terrorism and by the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and ballistic missiles.

(4) Congress supports enhanced United States cooperation with Israel in all fields and, especially, in finding new ways to deter or counter mutual threats.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the President should ensure that any conventional defense system or technology offered by the United States for sale to any member nation of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) or to any major non-NATO ally is concurrently made available for purchase by Israel unless the President determines that it would not be in the national security interests of the United States to do so; and

(2) the President should make available to Israel, within existing technology transfer laws, regulations, and policies, advanced United States technology necessary for achieving continued progress in cooperative United States-Israel research and development of theater missile defenses.

SEC. 1056. SUPPORT SERVICES FOR THE NAVY AT THE PORT OF HAIFA, ISRAEL.

It is the sense of Congress that the Secretary of the Navy should promptly undertake such actions as are necessary—

(1) to improve the services available to the Navy at the Port of Haifa, Israel; and

(2) to ensure that the continuing increase in commercial activities at the Port of Haifa does not adversely affect the availability to the Navy of the services required by the Navy at the port.

(a) PROHIBITION.—Subchapter I of chapter 134 of title 10, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(2) any country identified in the latest report submitted to Congress under section 140 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1988 and 1989 (22 U.S.C. 2656f), as providing significant support for international terrorism; or

“(3) any other country that, as determined by the President—

“(A) grants sanctuary from prosecution to any individual or group that has committed an act of international terrorism; or

“(B) otherwise supports international terrorism.

“(b) WAIVER.—(1) The President may waive the application of subsection (a) to a country if the President determines that it is in the national security interests of the United States to do so or that the waiver should be granted for humanitarian reasons.

“(2) The President shall—

“(A) notify the Committees on Armed Services and Foreign Relations of the Senate and the Committees on National Security and on International Relations of the House of Representatives at least 15 days before the waiver takes effect; and “2249a. Prohibition on assistance to terrorist countries.”

SEC. 1058. INTERNATIONAL MILITARY EDUCATION AND TRAINING.

(a) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) it is in the national security interest of the United States to promote military professionalism (including an understanding of and respect for the proper role of the military in a civilian-led democratic society), the effective management of defense resources, the recognition of internationally recognized human rights, and an effective military justice system within the armed forces of allies of the United States and of countries friendly to the United States;

(2) it is in the national security interest of the United States to foster rapport, understanding, and cooperation between the Armed Forces of the United States and the armed forces of allies of the United States and of countries friendly to the United States;

(3) the international military education and training program is a low-cost method of promoting military professionalism within the armed forces of allies of the United States and of countries friendly to the United States and fostering better relations between the Armed Forces of the United States and those armed forces;

(4) the dissolution of the Soviet Union and the Warsaw Pact alliance and the spread of democracy in the Western Hemisphere have created an opportunity to promote the military professionalism of the armed forces of the affected nations;

(5) funding for the international military education and training program of the United States has decreased dramatically in recent years;

(6) the decrease in funding for the international military education and training program has resulted in a major decrease in the participation of personnel from Asia, Latin America, and Africa in the program;

(7) the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the commanders in chief of the regional combatant commands have consistently testified before congressional committees that the international military education and training program fosters cooperation with and improves military management, civilian control over the military forces, and respect for human rights within foreign military forces; and

(8) the delegation by the President to the Secretary of Defense of authority to perform functions relating to the international military education and training program is appropriate and should be continued.

(b) ACTIVITIES AUTHORIZED.—(1) Part I of subtitle A of title 10, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“CHAPTER 23—CONTACTS UNDER PROGRAMS IN SUPPORT OF FOREIGN MILITARY FORCES

“Sec.

“(b) RELATIONSHIP TO OTHER FUNDING.—Any amount provided pursuant to subsection (a) shall be in addition to amounts otherwise available for international military education and training for that fiscal year.”.

(2) Section 168 of title 10, United States Code, is redesignated as section 461, is transferred to chapter 23 (as added by paragraph (1)), and is inserted after the table of sections at the beginning of such chapter.

(c) FISCAL YEAR 1996 FUNDING.—Of the amount authorized to be appropriated under section 301(5), $20,000,000 shall be available to the Secretary of Defense for the purposes of carrying out activities under section 462 of title 10, United States Code, as added by subsection (b).

(d) RELATIONSHIP TO AUTHORITY OF SECRETARY OF STATE.—Nothing in this section or section 462 of title 10, United States Code (as added by subsection (b)(1)), shall impair the authority or ability of the Secretary of State to coordinate policy regarding international military education and training programs.

SEC. 1059. REPEAL OF LIMITATION REGARDING AMERICAN DIPLOMATIC FACILITIES IN GERMANY.

Section 1432 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1994 (Public Law 103-160; 107 Stat. 1833) is repealed.

SEC. 1060. IMPLEMENTATION OF ARMS CONTROL AGREEMENTS.

(a) FUNDING.—Of the amounts authorized to be appropriated under sections 102, 103, 104, 201, and 301, $228,900,000 shall be available for implementing arms control agreements to which the United States is a party.

(b) LIMITATION.—(1) Except as provided in paragraph (2), none of the funds authorized to be appropriated under subsection (a) for the costs of implementing an arms control agreement may be used to reimburse expenses incurred by any other party to the agreement for which, without regard to any executive agreement or any policy not part of an arms control agreement—

(A) the other party is responsible under the terms of the arms control agreement; and

(B) the United States has no responsibility under the agreement.

(2) The limitation in paragraph (1) does not apply to a use of funds to fulfill a policy of the United States to reimburse expenses incurred by another party to an arms control agreement if—

(A) the policy does not modify any obligation imposed by the arms control agreement;

(B) the President—

(i) issued or approved the policy before the date of the enactment of this Act; or

(ii) has entered into an agreement on the policy with the government of another country or has approved an agreement on the policy entered into by an official of the United States and the government of another country; and

(C) the President has notified the congressional defense committees, the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate, and the Committee on International Relations of the House of Representatives of the policy or the policy agreement (as the case may be), in writing, at least 30 days before the date on which the President issued or approved the policy or has entered into or approved the policy agreement.

(c) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) The term “arms control agreement” means an arms control treaty or other form of international arms control agreement.

(2) The term “executive agreement” is an international agreement entered into by the President that is not authorized by statute or approved by the Senate under Article II, section 2, clause 2 of the Constitution.

SEC. 1061. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON LIMITING THE PLACING OF UNITED STATES FORCES UNDER UNITED NATIONS COMMAND OR CONTROL.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) the President has made United Nations peace operations a major component of the foreign and security policies of the United States;

(2) the President has committed United States military personnel under United Nations operational control to missions in Haiti, Croatia, and Macedonia that could endanger those personnel;

(3) the President has committed the United States to deploy as many as 25,000 military personnel to Bosnia-Herzegovina as peacekeepers under United Nations command and control in the event that the parties to that conflict reach a peace agreement;

(4) although the President has insisted that he will retain command of United States forces at all times, in the past this has meant administrative control of United States forces only, while operational control has been ceded to United Nations commanders, some of whom were foreign nationals;

(5) the experience of United States forces participating in combined United States-United Nations operations in Somalia, and in combined United Nations-NATO operations in the former Yugoslavia, demonstrate that prerequisites for effective military operations such as unity of command and clarity of mission have not been met by United Nations command and control arrangements; and

(6) despite the many deficiencies in the conduct of United Nations peace operations, there may be occasions when it is in the national security interests of the United States to participate in such operations.

(b) POLICY.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the President should consult closely with Congress regarding any United Nations peace operation that could involve United States combat forces, and that such consultations should continue throughout the duration of such activities;

(2) the President should consult with Congress prior to a vote within the United Nations Security Council on any resolution which would authorize, extend, or revise the mandates for such activities;

(3) in view of the complexity of United Nations peace operations and the difficulty of achieving unity of command and expeditious decisionmaking, the United States should participate in such operations only when it is clearly in the national security interest to do so;

(4) United States combat forces should be under the operational control of qualified commanders and should have clear and effective command and control arrangements and rules of engagement (which do not restrict their self-defense in any way) and clear and unambiguous mission statements; and

(5) none of the Armed Forces of the United States should be under the operational control of foreign nationals in United Nations peace enforcement operations except in the most extraordinary circumstances.

(c) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section—

(1) the term “United Nations peace enforcement operations” means any international peace enforcement or similar activity that is authorized by the United Nations Security Council under chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations; and

(2) the term “United Nations peace operations” means any international peacekeeping, peacemaking, peace enforcement, or similar activity that is authorized by the United Nations Security Council under chapter VI or VII of the Charter of the United Nations.

SEC. 1062. SENSE OF SENATE ON PROTECTION OF UNITED STATES FROM BALLISTIC MISSILE ATTACK.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate makes the following findings:

(1) The proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and ballistic missiles presents a threat to the entire World.

(2) This threat was recognized by Secretary of Defense William J. Perry in February 1995 in the Annual Report to the President and the Congress which states that “[b]eyond the five declared nuclear weapons states, at least 20 other nations have acquired or are attempting to acquire weapons of mass destruction—nuclear, biological, or chemical weapons—and the means to deliver them. In fact, in most areas where United States forces could potentially be engaged on a large scale, many of the most likely adversaries already possess chemical and biological weapons. Moreover, some of these same states appear determined to acquire nuclear weapons.”.

(3) At a summit in Moscow in May 1995, President Clinton and President Yeltsin commented on this threat in a Joint Statement which recognizes “. . . the threat posed by worldwide proliferation of missiles and missile technology and the necessity of counteracting this threat . . .”.

(4) At least 25 countries may be developing weapons of mass destruction and the delivery systems for such weapons.

(5) At least 24 countries have chemical weapons programs in various stages of research and development.

(6) Approximately 10 countries are believed to have biological weapons programs in various stages of development.

(7) At least 10 countries are reportedly interested in the development of nuclear weapons.

(8) Several countries recognize that weapons of mass destruction and missiles increase their ability to deter, coerce, or otherwise threaten the United States. Saddam Hussein recognized this when he stated, on May 8, 1990, that “[o]ur missiles cannot reach Washington. If they could reach Washington, we would strike it if the need arose.”.

(9) International regimes like the Non-Proliferation Treaty, the Biological Weapons Convention, and the Missile Technology Control Regime, while effective, cannot by themselves halt the spread of weapons and technology. On January 10, 1995, Director of Central Intelligence, James Woolsey, said with regard to Russia that “. . . we are particularly concerned with the safety of nuclear, chemical, and biological materials as well as highly enriched uranium or plutonium, although I want to stress that this is a global problem. For example, highly enriched uranium was recently stolen from South Africa, and last month Czech authorities recovered three kilograms of 87.8 percent-enriched HEU in the Czech Republic—the largest seizure of near-weapons grade material to date outside the Former Soviet Union.”

(10) The possession of weapons of mass destruction and missiles by developing countries threatens our friends, allies, and forces abroad and will ultimately threaten the United States directly. On August 11, 1994, Deputy Secretary of Defense John Deutch said that “[i]f the North Koreans field the Taepo Dong 2 missile, Guam, Alaska, and parts of Hawaii would potentially be at risk.”

(11) The end of the Cold War has changed the strategic environment facing and between the United States and Russia. That the Clinton Administration believes the environment to have changed was made clear by Secretary of Defense William J. Perry on September 20, 1994, when he stated that “[w]e now have the opportunity to create a new relationship, based not on MAD, not on Mutual Assured Destruction, but rather on another acronym, MAS, or Mutual Assured Safety.”

(12) The United States and Russia have the opportunity to create a relationship based on trust rather than fear.

(b) SENSE OF SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that all Americans should be protected from accidental, intentional, or limited ballistic missile attack. It is the further sense of the Senate that front-line troops of the United States Armed Forces should be protected from missile attacks.

(c) FUNDING FOR CORPS SAM AND BOOST-PHASE INTERCEPTOR PROGRAMS.—

(1) Notwithstanding any other provision in this Act, of the funds authorized to be appropriated by section 201(4), $35,000,000 shall be available for the Corps SAM/MEADS program.

(2) With a portion of the funds authorized in paragraph (1) for the Corps SAM/MEADS program, the Secretary of Defense shall conduct a study to determine whether a Theater Missile Defense system derived from Patriot technologies could fulfill the Corps SAM/MEADS requirements at a lower estimated life-cycle cost than is estimated for the cost of the United States portion of the Corps SAM/MEADS program.

(3) The Secretary shall provide a report on the study required under paragraph (2) to the congressional defense committees not later than March 1, 1996.

(4) Of the funds authorized to be appropriated by section 201(4), not more than $3,403,413,000 shall be available for missile defense programs within the Ballistic Missile Defense Organization.

(d) OBLIGATION OF FUNDS.—Of the amounts referred to in section (c)(1), $10,000,000 may not be obligated until the report referred to in subsection (c)(2) is submitted to the congressional defense committees.

(A) engage in the exportation of potentially sensitive or dual-use technologies; and
(B) have been identified or tracked by similar systems maintained by the Department of Defense, Department of Commerce, or the United States Customs Service; and

(2) further measures to be taken to strengthen United States export-control mechanisms.

(b) REPORTS BY INSPECTOR GENERAL.—(1) Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act and 1 year thereafter, the Inspector General of the Department of State and the Foreign Service shall submit to Congress a report on the evaluation by the Inspector General of the effectiveness of the watch-list screening process at the Department of State during the preceding year. (C) assess the screening process used by the Department in granting a license when an applicant is on a watch-list; and

(D) assess the extent to which the watch-list contains all relevant information and parties required by statute or regulation.

(c) ANNUAL MILITARY ASSISTANCE REPORT.—The Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2151 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 654 the following new section:

“SEC. 655 ANNUAL MILITARY ASSISTANCE REPORT.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than February 1 of 1996 and 1997, the President shall transmit to Congress an annual report for the fiscal year ending the previous September 30, showing the aggregate dollar value and quantity of defense articles (including excess defense articles) and defense services, and of military education and training, furnished by the United States to each foreign country and international organization, by category, specifying whether they were furnished by grant under chapter 2 or chapter 5 of part II of this Act or by sale under chapter 2 of the Arms Control Export Control Act or authorized by commercial sale license under section 38 of that Act.

“(b) ADDITIONAL CONTENTS OF REPORTS.—Each report shall also include the total amount of military items of non-United States manufacture being imported into the United States. The report should contain the country of origin, the type of item being imported, and the total amount of items.”.

SEC. 1099. LANDMINE USE MORATORIUM.
(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress makes the following findings:

(2) On December 15, 1994, the United Nations General Assembly adopted a resolution sponsored by the United States which called for international efforts to eliminate antipersonnel landmines.

(3) According to the Department of State, there are an estimated 80,000,000 to 110,000,000 unexploded landmines in 62 countries.

(4) Antipersonnel landmines are routinely used against civilian populations and kill and maim an estimated 70 people each day, or 26,000 people each year.

(5) The Secretary of State has noted that landmines are "slow-motion weapons of mass destruction".

(6) There are hundreds of varieties of antipersonnel landmines, from a simple type available at a cost of only two dollars to the more complex self-destructing type, and all landmines of whatever variety kill and maim civilians, as well as combatants, indiscriminately.

(b) CONVENTIONAL WEAPONS CONVENTION REVIEW.—It is the sense of Congress that, at the United Nations conference to review the 1980 Conventional Weapons Convention, including Protocol II on landmines, that is to be held from September 25 to October 13, 1995, the President should actively support proposals to modify Protocol II that would implement as rapidly as possible the United States goal of eventually eliminating antipersonnel landmines.

(c) MORATORIUM ON USE OF ANTIPERSONNEL LANDMINES.—

(1) UNITED STATES MORATORIUM.—(A) For a period of one year beginning three years after the date of the enactment of this Act, the United States shall not use antipersonnel landmines except along internationally recognized national borders or in demilitarized zones within a perimeter marked area that is monitored by military personnel and protected by adequate means to ensure the exclusion of civilians.

(B) If the President determines, before the end of the period of the United States moratorium under subparagraph (A), that the governments of other nations are implementing moratoria on use of antipersonnel landmines similar to the United States moratorium, the President may extend the period of the United States moratorium for such additional period as the President considers appropriate.

(2) OTHER NATIONS.—It is the sense of Congress that the President should actively encourage the governments of other nations to join the United States in solving the global landmine crisis by implementing moratoria on use of antipersonnel landmines similar to the United States moratorium as a step toward the elimination of antipersonnel landmines.

(d) ANTIPERSONNEL LANDMINE EXPORTS.—It is the sense of Congress that, consistent with the United States moratorium on exports of antipersonnel landmines and in order to further discourage the global proliferation of antipersonnel landmines, the United States Government should not sell, license for export, or otherwise transfer defense articles and services to any foreign government which, as determined by the President, sells, exports, or otherwise transfers antipersonnel landmines.

(3) The START II Treaty negotiated and signed by President Bush would help reduce the danger of potential proliferators, including terrorists, acquiring nuclear warheads and materials, and would contribute to United States-Russian bilateral efforts to secure and dismantle nuclear warheads, if ratified and fully implemented as signed by both parties.

In making their assessments, the independent experts shall consider (among other factors) all equipment and facilities to be included in the sale, the estimated quantity of petroleum and natural gas in the reserve, and the net present value of the anticipated revenue stream that the Secretary and the Director of the Office of Management and Budget jointly determine the Treasury would receive from the reserve if the reserve were not sold, adjusted for any anticipated increases in tax revenues that would result if the reserve were sold. The independent experts shall complete their assessments within six months after the effective date.

“(B) The independent experts shall also determine and submit to the Secretary the estimated total amount of the cost of any environmental restoration and remediation necessary at the reserve. The Secretary shall report the estimate to the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, the Secretary of the Treasury, and Congress.

“(C) The Secretary, in consultation with the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, shall set the minimum acceptable price for the reserve. The Secretary may not set the minimum acceptable price below the average of three of the assessments (after excluding the high and low assessments) made under subparagraph (A).

“(3) Not later than two months after the effective date, the Secretary shall retain the services of an investment banker to independently administer, in a manner consistent with commercial practices and in a manner that maximizes sale proceeds to the Government, the sale of Naval Petroleum Reserve Numbered 1 under this section. Notwithstanding section 7433(b) of this title, costs and fees of retaining the investment banker shall be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of the reserve.

“(4)(A) Not later than six months after the effective date, the investment banker serving as the sales administrator under paragraph (3) shall complete a draft contract or contracts for the sale of Naval Petroleum Reserve Numbered 1, which shall accompany the invitation for bids and describe the terms and provisions of the sale of the interest of the United States in the reserve.

“(B) The draft contract or contracts shall identify—

“(i) all equipment and facilities to be included in the sale; and

“(ii) any potential claim or liability (including liability for environmental restoration and remediation), and the extent of any such claim or liability, for which the United States is responsible under subsection (d).

“(C) The draft contract or contracts, including the terms and provisions of the sale of the interest of the United States in the reserve, shall be subject to review and approval by the Secretary, the Secretary of the Treasury, and the Director of the Office of Management and Budget. Each of those officials shall complete the review of, and approve or disapprove, the draft contract or contracts not later than seven months after the effective date.

“(5) Not later than seven months after the effective date, the Secretary shall publish an invitation for bids for the purchase of the reserve.

“(6) Not later than 10 months after the effective date, the Secretary shall identify the highest responsible offer or offers for purchase of the interest of the United States in Naval Petroleum Reserve Numbered 1 that, in total, meet or exceed the minimum acceptable price determined under paragraph (2).

“(7) The Secretary shall take such action immediately after the effective date as is necessary to obtain from an independent petroleum engineer within six months after that date a certification regarding the quantity of the content of the reserve. The Secretary shall use the certification in support of the preparation of the invitation for bids.

“(d) FUTURE LIABILITIES.—The United States shall hold harmless and fully indemnify the purchaser or purchasers (as the case may be) of the interest of the United States in Naval Petroleum Reserve Numbered 1 from and against any claim or liability as a result of ownership in the reserve by the United States, including any claim referred to in subsection (e).

“(e) TREATMENT OF STATE OF CALIFORNIA CLAIM.—After the costs incurred in the conduct of the sale of Naval Petroleum Reserve Numbered 1 under this section are deducted, seven percent of the remaining proceeds from the sale of the reserve shall be reserved in a contingent fund in the Treasury (for a period not to exceed 10 years after the effective date) for payment to the State of California in the event that, and to the extent that, the claims of the State against the United States regarding production and proceeds of sale from Naval Petroleum Reserve Numbered 1 are resolved in favor of the State by a court of competent jurisdiction. Funds in the contingent fund shall be available for paying any such claim to the extent provided in appropriation Acts. After final disposition of the claims, any unobligated balance in the contingent fund shall be credited to the general fund of the Treasury.

“(f) MAINTAINING ELK HILLS UNIT PRODUCTION.—Until the sale of Naval Petroleum Reserve Numbered 1 is completed under this section, the Secretary shall continue to produce the reserve at the maximum daily oil or gas rate from a reservoir, which will permit maximum economic development of the reservoir consistent with sound oil field engineering practices in accordance with section 3 of the unit plan contract. The definition of maximum efficient rate in section 7420(6) of this title shall not apply to the reserve.

“(g) EFFECT ON EXISTING CONTRACTS.—(1) In the case of any contract, in effect on the effective date, for the purchase of production from any part of the United States' share of Naval Petroleum Reserve Numbered 1, the sale of the interest of the United States in the reserve shall be subject to the contract for a period of three months after the closing date of the sale or until termination of the contract, whichever occurs first. The term of any contract entered into after the effective date for the purchase of such production shall not exceed the anticipated closing date for the sale of the reserve.

"(2) The Secretary shall exercise the termination procedures provided in the contract between the United States and Bechtel Petroleum Operation, Inc., Contract Number DE-AC01-85FE60520 so that the contract terminates not later than the date of closing of the sale of Naval Petroleum Reserve Numbered 1 under subsection (c).

"(3) The Secretary shall exercise the termination procedures provided in the unit plan contract so that the unit plan contract terminates not later than the date of closing of the sale of reserve.

"(h) EFFECT ON ANTITRUST LAWS.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to alter the application of the antitrust laws of the United States to the purchaser or purchasers (as the case may be) of Naval Petroleum Reserve Numbered 1 or to the lands in the reserve subject to sale under this section upon the completion of the sale.

"(i) PRESERVATION OF PRIVATE RIGHT, TITLE, AND INTEREST.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to adversely affect the ownership interest of any other entity having any right, title, and interest in and to lands within the boundaries of Naval Petroleum Reserve Numbered 1 and which are subject to the unit plan contract.

"(j) NOTICE TO CONGRESS.—(1) Subject to paragraph (2), the Secretary may not enter into any contract for the sale of the reserve until the end of the 31-day period beginning on the date on which the Secretary notifies the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate and the Committee on National Security and the Committee on Commerce of the House of Representatives of the conditions of the proposed sale.

"(2) If the Secretary receives only one offer for purchase of the reserve or any subcomponent thereof, the Secretary may not enter into a contract for the sale of the reserve unless—

"(A) the Secretary submits to Congress a notification of the receipt of only one offer together with the conditions of the proposed sale of the reserve or parcel to the offeror; and

"(B) a joint resolution of approval described in subsection (k) is enacted within 45 days after the date of the notification.

"(k) JOINT RESOLUTION OF APPROVAL.—(1) For the purpose of paragraph (2)(B) of subsection (j), 'joint resolution of approval' means only a joint resolution that is introduced after the date on which the notification referred to in that paragraph is received by Congress, and—

"(A) that does not have a preamble;

"(B) the matter after the resolving clause of which reads only as follows: 'That Congress approves the proposed sale of Naval Petroleum Reserve Numbered 1 reported in the notification submitted to Congress by the Secretary of Energy on _____' (the blank space being filled in with the appropriate date); and

"(C) the title of which is as follows: 'Joint resolution approving the sale of Naval Petroleum Reserve Numbered 1'.

"(2) A resolution described in paragraph (1) introduced in the House of Representatives shall be referred to the Committee on National Security of the House of Representatives. A resolution described in paragraph (1) introduced in the Senate shall be referred to the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate. Such a resolution may not be reported before the 8th day after its introduction.

"(3) If the committee to which is referred a resolution described in paragraph (1) has not reported such resolution (or an identical resolution) at the end of 15 calendar days after its introduction, such committee shall be deemed to be discharged from further consideration of such resolution and such resolution shall be placed on the appropriate calendar of the House involved.

"(4)(A) When the committee to which a resolution is referred has reported, or has been deemed to be discharged (under paragraph (3)) from further consideration of, a resolution described in paragraph (1), it is at any time thereafter in order (even though a previous motion to the same effect has been disagreed to) for any Member of the respective House to move to proceed to the consideration of the resolution, and all points of order against the resolution (and against consideration of the resolution) are waived. The motion is highly privileged in the House of Representatives and is privileged in the Senate and is not debatable. The motion is not subject to amendment, or to a motion to postpone, or to a motion to proceed to the consideration of other business. A motion to reconsider the vote by which the motion is agreed to or disagreed to shall not be in order. If a motion to proceed to the consideration of the resolution is agreed to, the resolution shall remain the unfinished business of the respective House until disposed of.

"(B) Debate on the resolution, and on all debatable motions and appeals in connection therewith, shall be limited to not more than 10 hours, which shall be divided equally between those favoring and those opposing the resolution. A motion further to limit debate is in order and not debatable. An amendment to, or a motion to postpone, or a motion to proceed to the consideration of other business, or a motion to recommit the resolution is not in order. A motion to reconsider the vote by which the resolution is agreed to or disagreed to is not in order.

"(C) Immediately following the conclusion of the debate on a resolution described in paragraph (2), and a single quorum call at the conclusion of the debate if requested in accordance with the rules of the appropriate House, the vote on final passage of the resolution shall occur.

"(D) Appeals from the decisions of the Chair relating to the application of the rules of the Senate or the House of Representatives, as the case may be, to the procedure relating to a resolution described in paragraph (1) shall be decided without debate.

"(5) If, before the passage by one House of a resolution of that House described in paragraph (1), that House receives from the other House a resolution described in paragraph (1), then the following procedures shall apply:

"(A) The resolution of the other House shall not be referred to a committee.

"(B) With respect to a resolution described in paragraph (2) of the House receiving the resolution—

"(i) the procedure in that House shall be the same as if no resolution had been received from the other House; but

"(ii) the vote on final passage shall be on the resolution of the other House.

"(6) This subsection is enacted by Congress—

"(A) as an exercise of the rulemaking power of the Senate and House of Representatives, respectively, and as such it is deemed a part of the rules of each House, respectively, but applicable only with respect to the procedure to be followed in that House in the case of a resolution described in paragraph (1), and it supersedes other rules only to the extent that it is inconsistent with such rules; and

"(B) with full recognition of the constitutional right of either House to change the rules (so far as relating to the procedure of that House) at any time, in the same manner, and to the same extent as in the case of any other rule of that House.

"(l) NONCOMPLIANCE WITH DEADLINES.—If, at any time during the one-year period beginning on the effective date, the Secretary determines that the actions necessary to complete the sale of the reserve within that period are not being taken or timely completed, the Secretary shall transmit to the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate and the Committees on National Security and on Commerce of the House of Representatives a notification of that determination together with a plan setting forth the actions that will be taken to ensure that the sale of the reserve will be completed within that period. The Secretary shall consult with the Director of the Office of Management and Budget in preparing the plan for submission to the committees.

"(m) OVERSIGHT.—The Comptroller General shall monitor the actions of the Secretary relating to the sale of the reserve and report to the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate and the Committee on National Security of the House of Representatives any findings on such actions that the Comptroller General considers appropriate to report to such committees.

"(n) ACQUISITION OF SERVICES.—The Secretary may enter into contracts for the acquisition of services required under this section under the authority of paragraph (7) of section 303(c) of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (41 U.S.C. 253(c)), except that the notification required under subparagraph (B) of such paragraph for each contract shall be submitted to Congress not less than 7 days before the award of the contract.

"(o) RECONSIDERATION OF PROCESS OF SALE.—(1) If during the course of the sale of the reserve the Secretary of Energy and the Director of the Office of Management and Budget jointly determine that—

"(A) the sale is proceeding in a manner inconsistent with achievement of a sale price that reflects the full value of the reserve, or

"(B) a course of action other than the immediate sale of the reserve is in the best interests of the United States, the Secretary shall submit a notification of the determination to the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate and the Committees on National Security and on Commerce of the House of Representatives.

"(2) After the Secretary submits a notification under paragraph (1), the Secretary may not complete the sale of the reserve under this section unless there is enacted a joint resolution—

"(A) that is introduced after the date on which the notification is received by the committees referred to in such paragraph;

"(B) that does not have a preamble;

"(C) the matter after the resolving clause of which reads only as follows: 'That the Secretary of Energy shall proceed with activities to sell Naval Petroleum Reserve Numbered 1 in accordance with section 7421a of title 10, United States Code, notwithstanding the determination set forth in the notification submitted to Congress by the Secretary of Energy on _____' (the blank space being filled in with the appropriate date); and

"(D) the title of which is as follows: 'Joint resolution approving continuation of actions to sell Naval Petroleum Reserve Numbered 1'.

"(3) Subsection (k), except for paragraph (1) of such subsection, shall apply to the joint resolution described in paragraph (2)."

(2) The table of sections at the beginning of such chapter is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 7421 the following new item:

"7421a. Sale of Naval Petroleum Reserve Numbered 1 (Elk Hills)."

(b) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Funds are authorized to be appropriated for fiscal year 1996 for carrying out section 7421a of title 10, United States Code (as added by subsection (a)), in the total amount of $7,000,000.

(A) Transfer of all or a part of the naval petroleum reserves to the jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior for leasing in accordance with the Mineral Leasing Act (30 U.S.C. 181 et seq.) and surface management in accordance with the Federal Land Policy and Management Act (43 U.S.C. 1701 et seq.).

(B) Lease of the naval petroleum reserves consistent with the provisions of such Acts.

(C) Sale of the interest of the United States in the naval petroleum reserves.

of the interest of the United States in the naval petroleum reserves.

(4) Not later than December 31, 1995, the Secretary shall submit to Congress and make available to the public a report describing the results of the study and containing such recommendations as the Secretary considers appropriate to implement the option, or combination of options, identified in the study that would maximize the value of the naval petroleum reserves to or for the United States.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. D'AMATO:

S. 1232. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to exclude length of service awards to volunteers performing fire fighting or prevention services, emergency medical services, or ambulance services from the limitations applicable to certain deferred compensation plans, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

VOLUNTEER FIREFIGHTERS LEGISLATION

• Mr. D'AMATO. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation to exclude Length of Service Award Programs [LOSAP's] for volunteers performing firefighting or prevention services, emergency medical services, or ambulance services from section 457 of the Internal Revenue Code. In addition, the legislation would exempt LOSAP's from FICA and Medicare taxation. This corrective legislation would support the vital role that volunteer firefighters and rescue personnel play in small towns and rural areas across America.

I am very proud to say that I am a volunteer firefighter, and have been for about 30 years. And I was never more proud than to witness the efforts of the 1,500 or so volunteers who vigorously fought the recent fire we had on Long Island. There are approximately 150,000 volunteer firefighters in about 37 States who receive nominal awards, averaging $250 per year, under LOSAP's from their governmental or tax-exempt fire districts. Volunteers earn awards under a LOSAP, on the basis of years of service, while performing volunteer services. However, not until after retiring from volunteer service are volunteers actually disbursed cash from the LOSAP's. There are similar award programs for volunteers performing other emergency medical services, such as rescue personnel and ambulance drivers.

These nonqualified plans are covered under Internal Revenue Code section 457. Participants in these plans normally report for tax purposes any compensation deferred and any income attributable to the amounts when it is actually received, similar to qualified pension plans. Under section 457, one requirement to delay taxation is to limit such deferred amounts to a percentage of compensation paid. Generally, most volunteer firefighters and rescue personnel receive no regular pay, or only nominal amounts to cover expenses. Section 457 is in the code to prevent governmental and tax-exempt entities from setting aside excessive amounts of tax-deferred income for highly compensated employees, while at the same time being able to avoid the nondiscrimination rules that are applicable to qualified plans. Volunteers are far from being highly compensated, so the legislation does not undermine this policy.

However, applying the current limitations, on the amounts set aside as LOSAP's for retirement, may result in a tax liability for volunteers with zero or minimal pay at the time the amounts vest with the volunteer. This could result even though it may be years before the volunteer will actually receive any funds.

This proposal would provide that the LOSAP's are excluded from the provisions of section 457. The result would be deferral of taxation until the LOSAP awards are paid. It would also exempt the amounts awarded under LOSAP's from FICA and Medicare payroll taxes. The latter provision is similar to other payroll tax exclusions permitted in the tax law, such as exempting Peace Corps allowances paid to volunteers, as well as other plans established by the Government for deferral of compensation.

Mr. President, the proposal would foster volunteerism in the United States. This is especially important because in many parts of the country it is not economically or geographically feasible to provide fire protection and emergency medical services through paid career personnel.

I urge my colleagues to support this sensible legislation.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of my bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1232

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. TREATMENT OF LENGTH OF SERVICE AWARDS TO VOLUNTEERS PERFORMING FIRE FIGHTING OR PREVENTION SERVICES, EMERGENCY MEDICAL SERVICES, OR AMBULANCE SERVICES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Paragraph (11) of section 457(e) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to deferred compensation plans of State and local governments and tax-exempt organizations) is amended to read as follows:

“(11) CERTAIN PLANS EXCLUDED.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The following plans shall be treated as not providing for the deferral of compensation:

“(i) Any bona fide vacation leave, sick leave, compensatory time, severance pay, disability pay, or death benefit plan.

By Ms. MIKULSKI:

S. 1233. A bill to assure equitable coverage and treatment of emergency services under health plans; to the Committee on Labor and Human Resources.

THE ACCESS TO EMERGENCY MEDICAL SERVICES ACT OF 1995

● Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, today, I am introducing the Access to Emergency Medical Services Act of 1995. This bill prohibits health plans from denying coverage and payment for emergency room visits.

Currently, payment for emergency room services may be denied because a patient does not have pre-authorization for treatment; the diagnosis after reaching the emergency room determined the condition was not an emergency; or the health plan may not have a contract with the hospital rendering the emergency service. Denial of payment places a significant burden on the patient, who now has higher health care costs and is more cautious about seeking medical treatment. This is a significant health risk. A patient thinks twice about going to an emergency room and receiving emergency medical treatment for conditions that really pose a serious health problem.

Federal law requires physicians and hospitals to render emergency services immediately for an injury or sudden illness. The law also requires that emergency services not be delayed until the health insurance status of a patient has been determined. However, too often patients are not receiving treatment until their health plan has given authorization for services. This bill would prohibit health plans from denying coverage and payment for services because of a lack of authorization from the health plan. The bill also requires health plans to pay emergency physicians and hospital emergency departments for emergency services rendered in compliance with Federal law.

Most importantly, the Access to Emergency Medical Services Act provides a uniform definition of emergency. This definition would base payment upon a patient's symptoms and not upon the doctor's diagnosis. Therefore, health plans could not deny coverage and payment for medical services after a diagnosis is given. The State of Maryland has established a uniform definition of emergency, as have Virginia and Arkansas. The Maryland law giving a uniform definition of emergency was enacted in 1993. Since the enactment of the bill, complaints to the Maryland Insurance Administration have decreased by 90 percent. In addition, patients are able to have urgent symptoms treated in the emergency rooms without any problems regarding pre-authorization from the health plan. There has not been a denial of coverage or payment for services even if the final diagnosis is different from the symptoms.

The Maryland law has proven to be cost-effective to patients and to the health plans. Providing a uniform definition of emergency allows persons to be treated for their symptoms even if the final diagnosis determines the medical problem causing the symptoms was not an emergency. This policy is able to prevent much more serious health problems. By not denying coverage and prohibiting persons from receiving treatment in the emergency department, more serious illnesses are prevented or detected sooner. This will allow for medical treatment for existing conditions that prevent the onset of a life threatening illness for which a person may have to be hospitalized. Let me give an example. A person has chest pains but believes he is having a heart attack. The emergency room diagnosis determines that the person is not having a heart attack. However, if the person had not received treatment for the chest pains, he could have later had a heart attack requiring hospital admission. The cost for treatment in the emergency department is less than if the person had to be admitted to the hospital for any length of time. The Access to Emergency Medical Services Act of 1995 saves money for patients and for health plans.

Health plans that deny emergency care coverage are taking a deadly toll on American families. We, as lawmakers, have an obligation to protect our constituents and end this very real problem. I urge my colleagues to support the Access to Emergency Medical Service Act of 1995. •

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

BUDGET SCOREKEEPING REPORT

• Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I hereby submit to the Senate the budget scorekeeping report prepared by the Congressional Budget Office under section 308(b) and in aid of section 311 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, as amended. This report meets the requirements for Senate scorekeeping of section 5 of Senate Concurrent Resolution 32, the first concurrent resolution on the budget for 1996.

This report shows the effects of congressional action on the budget through September 8, 1995. The estimates of budget authority, outlays, and revenues, which are consistent with the technical and economic assumptions of the concurrent resolution on the budget (H. Con. Res. 218), show that current level spending is below the budget resolution by $20.9 billion in budget authority and $2.0 billion in outlays. Current level is $0.5 billion over the revenue floor in 1995 and below by $9.5 billion over the 5 years 1995-99. The current estimate of the deficit for purposes of calculating the maximum deficit amount is $237.4 billion, $3.7 billion below the maximum deficit amount for 1995 of $241 billion.

Since my last report, dated August 8, 1995, there has been no action to change the current level of budget authority, outlays, or revenues.

This submission also includes my first report for fiscal year 1996.

The material follows:

THE IMPORTANCE OF AN INDEPENDENT U.S. INFORMATION AGENCY

• Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, I firmly support the continuation of a strong, independent U.S. Information Agency. The USIA serves a vital purpose in telling America's story to the rest of the world. It serves the critical function of advancing public diplomacy, broadcasting through its radios and Worldnet, enabling educational and cultural exchange programs, distributing information, and promoting a sense of shared cultural values. These programs not only serve our national security interests. They also provide direct economic benefits and foster a climate where American businesses can develop overseas markets, producing jobs, and providing wages for American workers.

We must remember the important distinctions between the official type of diplomacy conducted by our State Department and what is known as public diplomacy. The State Department conducts a quiet, often secret, dialog between countries with an emphasis placed on accommodation, negotiation, and compromise. These are all important, since they nurture relationships between countries to achieve broader goals. Public diplomacy such as that conducted by USIA seeks to foster direct economic relationships, engages in democratic institution-building, and encourages mutual understanding and a shared sense of values.

A classic illustration of the parallel nature of the two types of diplomacy occurred during the period when martial law was declared in Poland. At a time when private organizations, including the AFL-CIO, were engaged in a massive effort to assist the Polish trade union Solidarnosc, the Reagan administration was taking steps to ease economic sanctions that had been imposed on the Jaruzelski government. Because of the arms-length distance between the government and the private sector, both could pursue their goals. This was true also in Russia, South Africa, the Philippines, and Chile. If this bill passes without the Lieberman amendment, such distance will disappear, and this type of dual diplomacy will prove impossible. If USIA is folded into the State Department, its public diplomacy functions will be severely diminished, particularly in areas where democracy needs them the most in order to survive.

Another major reason for my support of a continued independent USIA stems from its programs of exchanges for emerging foreign and American political leaders. Over the years, these programs have brought young local and Federal officials to America for a firsthand look at our Government and how it works. More than 30 current heads of state had their first exposure to the people and institutions of the United States through the USIA Exchange Program. Hundreds of cabinet ministers, mayors, governors, and Members of Parliament around the world formed their first opinions of America by coming here and meeting people where they work and live.

Hundreds of other leading political figures both here and abroad have gained valuable international experience through USIA's support for programs like that of the American Council of Young Political Leaders. Twenty-five Members of Congress and countless State and local officials around the Nation are alumni of these programs. All will testify to the positive impact of these programs.

The USIA's rule of law program is an example of its efforts in assisting developing democracies worldwide. This particular program has been actively engaged in the area of judicial reform in Romania, perhaps once the most oppressive of the former Communist regimes. Through the posting of American judges at the Ministry of Justice for long-term projects, programs to strengthen the Magistrates' Training Institute, and ongoing support for the newly founded Magistrates' Training Association, USIA has established itself as a leader in assisting Romania in its attempts to establish an independent judiciary. American judges and academics have traveled to Romania under the auspices of USIA's Fulbright Program and have been posted to law schools throughout the country to teach and develop curricula and to work with the judiciary on numerous issues of importance. Romanian judges have also visited the United States under the Agency's International Visitor Program for 30-day observation and consultation trips to witness first hand the American judiciary and to gather information to assist in their judicial reform efforts.

The USIA also supports such projects as the American People Ambassador Program, a program of people to people international. This program arranges face-to-face professional, scientific, technical, and community exchanges between Americans and their counterparts around the world. Each one explores a different topic, but all share the personal exchange of information, ideas, goals, and experiences with leading public and provide sector citizens of foreign countries.

One such program in my State is the torch of Birmingham Award Program, which seeks to honor Russian companies and those in the Newly Independent States who are succeeding despite difficult economic conditions. In September, over 400 Russian business and government leaders will be coming to Birmingham to participate in this event. They will represent every imaginable segment of the Russian economy, and will network with leading Alabama business, political, and community leaders. The USIA and its resources are essential to organizations like the American People Ambassador Program which operate exchanges around the world.

All of us are keenly aware of the budgetary constraints we face. But we must not be short sighted by eliminating investments in our Nation's future and security. Who can say whether or not educational and cultural exchange programs will be maintained if they are placed in a department with a significantly different mission, set of priorities, and official purpose?

The world remains just as dangerous as it has ever been. New threats have replaced some of those which ended with the cold war. But they are just as real and threatening to international peace and stability. The world looks to us for leadership—leadership with a strong voice. I applaud Senator LIEBERMAN's efforts to ensure that America continues to have that strong voice through an independent USIA, and look forward to working with him on this issue when the State Department reauthorization bill is again brought before the Senate.●

THE INCREASING AND IMPORTANT ROLE OF PRIVATE TRAINING FACILITIES IN WORK FORCE TRAINING

● Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, today I bring to the attention of my colleagues an industry that is growing almost unnoticed in this country, an industry that demonstrates the ability of the private sector to meet the challenges posed by our expanding and technologically advanced economy. I am speaking of the hundreds of private professional firms across the Nation that provide job training to American workers. Since the early 1980's, a new breed of high-quality private sector training providers have proliferated in response to the need of business and industry for highly skilled workers. This is especially true of providers who train people who train people in the information-technology sector of the American economy.

Each year, American employers wisely spend billions of dollars to train and educate their employees. This training enhances the skills of those workers and often enables them to assume new, more challenging positions. The training market in information technology alone—which is one of the fastest growing and most promising sectors of our economy—totaled $2 billion in 1994, and almost all of this need was met with private sector resources. Private professional firms have developed extensive programs and nationwide networks to serve the huge and growing needs of large and small businesses in this field. Many of these firms, although often small enterprises, work in partnerships with large employers who demand that they provide only the highest quality training and who require that they teach skills that conform to industry-based benchmarks and standards.

Today, training providers, which include both public education institutions and private training companies, are using skill standards as benchmarks to develop their courses and to prepare professional workers for exams that will certify them as qualified to perform certain high-skill jobs. Skill standards in this context are not rigid definitions of "jobs," but rather a large comprehensive set of well articulated, competency-based skill statements that are industry driven and nationally recognized. By reflecting the true and detailed needs of the workplace, and by being used in the hiring, promotion, and training of the work force, these become de facto standards at the national level, and they transcend national borders as do businesses in today's global economy. In short, private sector training providers in the information-technology field reflect developments in the marketplace and prepare individuals to handle the jobs of the future.

According to Training magazine, U.S. organizations with 100 employees or more spent $48 billion on training in 1993, and it is likely that the total increased in 1994 and will again in 1995. Employers are recognizing the need to train the individuals they hire in order to keep pace with rapidly evolving technology and to remain competitive in the global economy. Nowhere is training more important than in the information-technology industries, where technological innovations and product upgrades that require new or enhanced skills are coming to market everyday.

Within the information-technology industry it is clear that private sector training providers are one of the main resources to turn to for training. For example, most of the large American software companies use what is known as a leveraged training mode, wherein independent training providers develop courses that teach individuals how to operate the application or systems of a given software company. In turn, the software company will denote the training provider as one that is authorized to award certification in the operation or maintenance of that company's products. This is just one of many examples of how corporations and smaller businesses are using the resources of private training providers.

Whether individuals are updating their skills to improve performance on the job or are unemployed and seeking new skills, by completing training and receiving an industry recognized credential they are improving their own career prospects as well as keeping the American work force competitive.

These training centers must meet the demands of industry and of the market that will eventually employ their students; therefore they must provide only the highest quality training. And while the information-technology market demands quality, it also demands more and more qualified individuals each year. For example, the software and computing industry grew at an annual rate of over 28 percent between 1980 and 1992, while the GDP for that time averaged 2.4-percent growth. Not only is the number of jobs in this field increasing, but those jobs pay wages that are significantly higher than wages in many other industries. In addition, given that the information-technology companies have no geographic-specific resource requirements, they contribute to the economy of virtually every State in the country.

Mr. President, it is quite apparent that the individuals with high-technology skills are in great demand throughout the Nation, and it is apparent that the demand will only increase. Private training providers have been rising to this challenge, and they have done so with entrepreneurial vigor and a commitment to quality. As the number of people in need of training increases, and as the number of people that organizations intend to train outstrips their capability to train them in house, private sector providers of training services will become an ever more important part of the American economy.

It has been my pleasure today to recognize and share with my colleagues the merits of this growing American industry.●

UNLV'S WOMEN'S SOFTBALL TEAM

● Mr. BRYAN. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize the achievements of the women's softball team at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas. This outstanding group of women and their coaching staff have set a standard of excellence in 1995 which is worthy of merit.

The team results for the 1995 season are the best in the history of the university. UNLV softball finished their season ranked fourth in the Nation by both a USA Today poll and the NCAA.

This is the second straight year that the Rebels have finished in the top five. They were the champions of various regional conferences and tournaments as well.

Individual players also received special awards for their performances on the field. Five of the women were voted All-Americans, and others were selected for special recognition teams. Individual players were recognized by the Big West Conference for their athletic talent in their respective positions.

Off the field, the players also achieved academically; six of the women were named Scholar-Athletes by UNLV, and four were given the same honor by the Big West Conference. The women's softball coach, Shan McDonald, was selected Big West Conference Coach of the Year; she is assisted by Carol Spanks and Jenny Conden.

The team will be honored at a tea hosted by UNLV President Carol Harter on Sunday, September 17 at 2 p.m. in the Tam Alumni Center. I am pleased to congratulate the women's softball team for their outstanding accomplishments in the 1995 season.●

PBS' "THE AMERICAN PROMISE" AND THE WOMEN SELF-EMPLOYMENT PROJECT

● Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Mr. President, I call on all my colleagues to congratulate the producers of the new PBS documentary, "The American Promise."

"The American Promise" chronicles the fact that grassroots democracy is still alive and well in this country.

I am particularly pleased that the producers have chosen to highlight the Chicago Women Self-Employment Project [WSEP] which acts as a lending circle for microenterprises. This highly successful program helps women through rotating access to capital.

Specifically designed to provide access to capital for low and moderate income women in America's cities, WSEP has helped thousands. In addition to its revolving loan fund, responsible for short-term loans of $100 to $25,000, WSEP provides entrepreneurial training and technical assistance. The training has proven indispensable as many participants come to WSEP with little or no formal business background.

WSEP participates as an intermediary in the Small Business Administration's [SBA] Microloan Program. By doing so, it receives loan funds to be re-lent to micro-businesses. In addition, it receives SBA grants to provide technical assistance to its borrowers.

The results have been impressive. WSEP has helped start over 500 businesses. Of these, over 85 percent are still operating. Time and time again WSEP has proven that access to capital and access to training is a formula for success.

More important than the numbers, however, is the impact WSEP has had on women's lives. In one case, a woman who used to live on oatmeal and barter for her rent now designs and sells upscale jewelry in Chicago, New York and St. Louis.

Everyday WSEP makes a difference in the lives of its participants. But that's only part of the story. Because WSEP stimulates private investment in America's cities, local economies benefit. As program participants succeed, they give back to the program, and back to the community. Often, this comes in the form of new jobs. As many as 20 percent of WSEP businesses report hiring additional paid employees. This, at a time when some urban neighborhoods have less than 1 percent private sector employment.

The United States Senate is currently poised to make widespread changes in our welfare system. As we examine reform and what does and does not work, I think we could all benefit by studying the WSEP example. It is a program that gets results. The project has been so successful, I invited organizers to serve on my welfare reform advisory panel and authored an amendment which made permanent the Job Opportunities for Low Income individuals [JOLI] program. JOLI helps create job opportunities for welfare recipients and low income individuals by giving federal grants to private non-profit corporations to make investments in local business enterprises that will result in the creation of new jobs. SEP is positive proof that JOLI works.

The Women Self-Employment Project's approach is distinctly grassroots success story. There is an old saying, give a man a fish, and he can eat for a day, teach a man to fish and he can eat for a lifetime. WSEP provides the fishing pole and the training. It makes success and self sufficiency possible.

The American Promise reminds us that positive efforts are not only possible, but successful. In so doing, it provides a beacon of hope for us all.●
