PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 113th CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION

Vol. 159

WASHINGTON, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 2013

No. 165

Senate

The Senate met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the President pro tempore (Mr. LEAHY).

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

Holy God, You make the clouds Your chariot and walk upon the wind. We see Your works in the rising of the sun and in its setting. For the beauty of the Earth and the glory of the skies, we give You praise.

Today, make our lawmakers heirs of peace, demonstrating that they are Your children as they strive to find common ground. May they take pleasure in doing Your will, knowing that by so doing they are fulfilling Your purposes in our world.

Lord, You are never far from us but often we are far from You, so show us Your ways and teach us Your paths. Thank You that Your mercy is from everlasting to everlasting upon those who come to You with reverence. May Your glory endure forever. We pray in Your great Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The President pro tempore led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. REID. Mr. President, following my remarks and those of Senator MCCONNELL, the Senate will be in a period of morning business for 1 hour. The time will be equally divided and controlled between the two leaders or their designees.

Following morning business the Senate will resume consideration of the National Defense Authorization Act.

The Senate will recess today from 12:30 until 2:15 to allow for our weekly caucus meetings.

We will work on amendments to the Defense bill today. Everyone will be notified when votes are scheduled.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT

Mr. REID. Mr. President, today we are going to continue work on the Defense bill. It is really an important measure, and that is an understatement. It safeguards this Nation. It ensures our troops have the resources and training they need. It provides for military families who support our fighting men and women. This is a serious bill, and it deserves serious debate—not to be bogged down by unrelated political issues.

For example, this legislation encompasses a lot of issues, including a pay raise for members of our Armed Forces. It authorizes dozens of special pay rates and bonuses, such as bonus payments for servicemembers who see combat or who are stationed overseas.

This important legislation also includes robust and far-reaching provisions to combat the scourge of sexual assault in the military, including changes that would ensure perpetrators are punished and victims are protected. Senators LEVIN, GILLIBRAND, MCCASKILL, and others have done exceptionally good work to confront this problem. As we build on their work, there are additional amendments concerning military sexual assault the Senate needs to consider.

The Senate must also consider amendments relating to the Guantanamo Bay detention center. Everyone is aware that we cannot complete this bill until we vote on the sexual assault and Guantanamo provisions.

I know this bill has a lot of provisions people would like to change. Frankly, we won't be able to change a lot of it. The committee did really good work in coming up with the bill. The two issues I have just talked about, though, must have votes. I would accept the language in the Defense bill as it relates to Guantanamo; I think it is a significant improvement. But my Republican colleagues want to have an opportunity to change that, and I understand that. That is why I said that should be the first measure we vote on. I have said that more than once, and I say it again.

The matter dealing with sexual assault is a controversial matter, and we have to have a vote on that. We have to do that. That is why I said that is the second most important issue we deal with in this bill.

Why couldn't we get these two important issues out of the way? I am speaking only for myself. If we have votes on those two measures, I think the bill would be ready to go to conference. I know people don't like to hear that, but I think that is, in fact, the case.

The time, effort, and wisdom led by Senator LEVIN to come up with a bill, working with the new ranking member Senator INHOFE has been a labor of love for both of them. But these two issues need to be resolved on the Senate floor. I ask that it be done.

I asked last night by unanimous consent to get these things done, but there was objection from my Republican colleagues. So if we can't vote even on these amendments to these two crucial issues—and I know there are other issues, but no one can in any way disparage what I have just said, that these are two very important issues. Everyone, I think, agrees they have to be considered before we can complete the work on this underlying legislation. So if we can't get these two votes done, how are we going to address any of the other issues we need to work on?

Maybe I shouldn't be optimistic, but I can be hopeful that we will be able to schedule votes on these amendments soon. In the meantime, Senators should not wait to debate these issues. Let's take just these two issues until we schedule votes on these amendments. Senators should come to the floor to speak on the issues now. There is a limited time to complete this bill before the Thanksgiving holiday, and Senators should use that time wisely to engage in meaningful debate.

I am totally aware of the number of Senators who wish to offer amendments on other issues as well, both defense-related and otherwise. So Senators should file their amendments, and I hope we can figure out a way to have a robust amendment process. However, we cannot allow this important legislation to be sidetracked by debates on amendments unrelated to our Nation's defense.

Our Nation's defense is a relative term and some people have different ideas as to what that should mean. But the United States has passed this bill for more than half a century. This is a sign of respect for this institution and for the people this legislation represents—our Nation's Armed Forces. So let's give this bill the respect it deserves.

NOMINATIONS

Mr. REID. Mr. President, it is hard for me to find the words to express my disappointment for our country in yesterday's vote on another person to go to the DC Circuit Court of Appeals.

The last three people have been filibustered, and they are good people. They are qualified. Their records are outstanding for their work in the courts—scholastically brilliant, every one of them. But Republican obstruction has become endemic in the Senate over the last five years, grinding the work of this institution to a halt, threatening the integrity of this institution and damaging our country. No President should have to put up with what President Obama has had to put up with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BOOKER). The Republican leader is recognized.

HEALTH CARE

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, over the past few weeks, we have seen vivid, painful confirmation of the predictions that many of us made about ObamaCare. Most notable among them, perhaps, was the President's often repeated promise: "If you like your plan, you can keep it." "If you like your plan, you can keep it," he said. But we were always doubtful that could possibly be true.

This was always what Democrats thought they had to tell the American people in order to muscle ObamaCare into law. They knew it wouldn't work otherwise. They knew the truth would not sell and, of course, that is all coming out now.

But we are also learning a lot of other very unsettling things about this law, such as the fact that a lot of things that were working well in our health care system are now being thrown out for no good reason by the same people who brought us the ObamaCare Web site.

High-risk pools are a good example. About three dozen States set up these kinds of pools to ensure Americans with serious medical conditions, such as those suffering from diabetes and heart disease, would have a place to turn. High-risk pools have often proved successful and popular among the communities they serve. They currently provide insurance to hundreds of thousands of Americans, including thousands of Kentuckians, nearly all of them with preexisting conditions—the very people the law was supposed to help. These folks benefit from this coverage and many want to keep it. Unfortunately, that would no longer be possible under ObamaCare. Nearly all of them will lose their coverage at the end of the year.

Just as millions of other Americans across the country, folks who like the coverage they have in these high-risk pools—and remember, I am talking about some of the most vulnerable people in our society—are now discovering they won't be able to keep it, either, despite what the President told us again and again. As it turns out, the folks who ran this law through Congress think people in these high-risk pools belong in ObamaCare instead. They don't think it matters whether my constituents want to get dumped into ObamaCare or not; they made that decision for them.

A lot of folks in Kentucky don't think this is right and they are upset, and not just because they are losing their plan and all the hassle and complication that involves. For many of these folks, the plans they are being forced into have more limited hospital and doctor networks than the plans they currently have. As one State official recently put it, "If you're in the middle of chemotherapy, the last thing you want to do is switch oncologists."

We seem to see these kinds of stories just about every day now. There is the North Carolina woman with a severe heart condition who said she didn't know if her cardiologist and her procedures would be covered under ObamaCare. Here is what she said: "It's . . . the uncertainty that gets to me." There is the breast cancer survivor and her husband who have been paying about $800 a month for premiums in a high-risk pool. After that policy was canceled, they expected lower rates under ObamaCare. Instead, they found their premium and deductibles could actually be going up.

This is scary stuff. But these are the real-life consequences of ObamaCare. This is no longer some theoretical policy discussion. I would suggest that as we contemplate the future of this law, our Democratic friends should start paying closer attention to stories such as these because it is not enough to have a messaging strategy and to play the old Washington game by trying to weather the PR storm until folks move on.

These stories we are hearing from our constituents are literally heart-breaking. This is not some hassle to move past. It is a problem to solve. It is what we were sent here for, and it is what health care reform should be about—about helping folks, not hurting them.

We do not need to get past this news cycle, as some of the White House spinners seem to think. What we need to get past is a White House mentality that told us last week that passing a bill to codify the very promise the President made to sell the bill would gut ObamaCare. We need to get past a mentality that caused the President to issue a veto threat on a law that would let him keep his promise to the American people about keeping the health care plans they have and like.

It is almost comical watching the contortions the administration is making trying to explain this fiasco away. Over the weekend we learned through a White House leak to the Washington Post that the President's new definition of success for the ObamaCare Web site is four out of five users making it through the checkout line—four out of five users making it through the checkout line. Who thinks that is acceptable? I certainly do not, and I cannot think of anybody outside the White House compound who will think that is acceptable either.

Frankly, if this is the President's way of restoring credibility on this law, by leaking that the Web site will not even work for one out of five users just a few days after vowing it would soon be up and running like a top, well, he has some work to do. The bar for clarity, honesty, and success under ObamaCare has sunk to new lows.

Look, if you are being treated for cancer and about to be dumped into ObamaCare, the last thing you want to hear is that leaving one out of five people behind is now considered an ObamaCare win. We are talking about people's lives here. This kind of mindset—whether we are talking about a Web site or anything else—is deeply worrying.

But then again this has always been the problem with blind faith in massive government programs. It is the old idea that we should not let the evidence get in the way of a good theory. That is the mindset the supporters of this law are stuck in right now—just blindly adhering to the hope that this program will work against all the evidence. It is pretty distressing. It is going to have to change if we are going to get anywhere.

The real question right now should be obvious: What is the administration's plan to turn all this around? We know they have a press plan. What is the policy plan? What is the policy plan? Does the administration have anything of substance to tell folks who are losing their plans? Does it have anything to tell folks in these high-risk pools who could be losing their doctors? Does anyone over there know—anyone?

I have said this before and I will say it again: These are people's lives we are talking about. So it is time for a reality check. The defenders of ObamaCare have a choice: Stand up for your constituents or defend a law that is falling apart before our very eyes, a law that threatens to drag down the quality and affordability of care for millions—literally millions—of Americans who need it, including those most in need.

I yield the floor.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will be in a period of morning business for debate only for 1 hour, with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each, with the time equally divided and controlled between the two leaders or their designees.

The Senator from Michigan.

ORDER OF PROCEDURE

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I have a very brief statement I will now make, and I thank the Senators from Maryland and Maine for allowing me to do this. I ask unanimous consent that the very brief statement I am going to make not count against morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, later this morning the Senate is going to resume consideration of S. 1197, the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2014. I will have a full statement to make on this legislation later today. However, I would like to take just a moment to talk to my colleagues about where we are on the bill and how we would like to proceed.

Last night, the majority leader asked for unanimous consent to bring up side-by-side amendments on subjects that we know we need to debate and vote on—military detention at Guantánamo and sexual assault and misconduct in the military. Each amendment and side-by-side was to be subject to a 60-vote threshold. Unfortunately, there was an objection to this request. As a result of that objection, the majority leader filled the amendment tree on our bill.

Now we are in a position where we are going to need the cooperation of all Senators to get this important bill passed, as we must, in the limited time available to us before Thanksgiving week in order that we will have time to go to conference, get a conference report, and bring that conference report back to the House and Senate.

It remains our intention to bring up and vote on as many relevant amendments to the bill as possible, and I know the Republican manager, ranking member Senator INHOFE, shares this objective. Toward this end I expect there will be further attempts later in the day to reach a unanimous consent agreement on the first amendments to be brought up, and that will be a repeated unanimous consent request that was offered last night for those first two amendments.

It is also our intention to clear amendments, as we have always done on this bill. I urge our colleagues, if you have amendments, to file them, bring them to us, so we can try to clear them. The majority and minority staffs of the Armed Services Committee are working hard. We hope to have a first package of cleared amendments ready for consideration later today, and we will continue to go through that process during the week.

Finishing this bill is going to be a very difficult task. We have managed to do it for the last 51 years, and I am confident, with the cooperation of all Senators, we will be able to do it again this year. We must for the sake of our troops, their families, and our Nation.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland.

SEXUAL ASSAULT IN THE MILITARY

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, today we, of course, are beginning the debate on the National Defense Authorization Act. Throughout the next hour, and throughout the rest of the day, you will see the women of the Senate take the floor, one, in support of our military but also to express their concern and their ideas on how to deal with sexual violence in the military. You will see in the next hour our ideas—the fact that we have excellent ideas in the bill—and then we will have a robust debate on how to even further enhance this process.

This is a compelling national problem. When you join the military and you face the enemy, you should not have to fear the enemy within. No woman should be a victim of rape by a fellow soldier or seaman or corpsman. No man should face the same sexual attack and call it hazing. There is no place in the U.S. military for violence against one member of the military by another.

I am pretty fed up. I am fed up with lip service and empty promises and zero tolerance policies and task force after task force after task force. I am an old-timer in this institution. I have been here for 25 years, and I have worked on this issue every year. Ever since I first came here there has been some repugnant occurrence—from when I was a brandnew Senator and I had to deal with a situation at the Naval Academy where a female midshipman was chained to a urinal at the Naval Academy and taunted for 3 hours by fellow midshipmen, until she was freed by a visiting Air Force cadet, getting her out of handcuffs at her own Naval Academy. Then there was Tailhook. Then there were other kinds of incidents.

Statistics after statistics. There are 26,000 reasons why we are on the floor today. Mr. President, 26,000 sexual assaults have occurred in our U.S. military this past year.

Then we look at the service academies training the future leaders—15 attacks at the Naval Academy, 15 attacks at West Point, and over 50 attacks at the U.S. Air Force Academy.

Now is the time to do something, to do something bold, to do something strong and something unequivocal, something victims can have confidence in, where the accused can feel the process will be fair and we restore the confidence in the U.S. military to stop this and to deal with their own.

I am proud of the leadership taken by the women in the Senate and the women on the Armed Services Committee. There are now seven women on the Armed Services Committee—five Democrats and two Republicans. Wow, do they work on a bipartisan basis with the leadership of the committee. We appreciate the work of the fine men who have supported us in dealing with this issue. We particularly thank Chairman LEVIN for his leadership, and we acknowledge the role of Senator INHOFE. By the way, all of the women of the Senate wish to express our sincere condolences to Senator INHOFE on the loss of his beloved son, Dr. Perry Inhofe.

This is not just a women-only fight. This is a fight to make sure our military continues to be the best in the world and that when you serve, there is an enemy outside that we will always face, but there is an enemy within that we need to now end.

We, the women of the Senate—all of us—agree on the goals. We want to be able to provide prosecutorial tools for punishment, we want to ensure fairness in the process, and we want to make sure we get help to the victims.

The National Defense Authorization Act has more than 30 reforms in it to accomplish that. Thirteen relate to prosecutorial reforms, 10 are reforms to improve victims' services, 2 reforms are to improve training of first responders, and 5 also deal with various kinds of reporting.

I am so pleased that the bill works to prevent retaliation against someone who reports a crime. So if you feel you have been a victim of sexual assault you are not retaliated against by stepping forward, where you are then doubly victimized, both by the attack and then by those who want to squelch the fact that you want to bring the attack to the surface and to follow some kind of redress and to also get help.

It also eliminates the statute of limitations on courts-martial for sexual crimes. It requires a review of decisions by commanders not to prosecute and requires dishonorable discharge for anyone convicted of a sexual assault.

The bill ensures that every victim gets access to legal counsel and support. This is very important. It is important not only to me and the other women, but it is important to the person who would be injured. First responders must have training in sexual assault. There are others that could be elaborated on.

Sexual assault in the military continues to rise. It is a problem, as I said. I am worried about the men and women every day, to be sure that they are well trained and well protected.

Unfortunately, many of these acts of violence are unreported, unprosecuted, and unpunished. DOD's own annual report gives us a picture of why victims do not report these crimes. Fifty percent do not think anything will be done, 43 percent believe they will not be believed, and 47 percent are afraid of retaliation.

The reforms in this bill deal with those fears and their concerns. We are ready to reform, revise, and standardize how the military deals with these problems. These reforms will change the way the military thinks and how they act.

During the course of this whole process, we have met with victims and heard their stories, we have met with experts and advocates, we have met with the military themselves. Now we are ready to give all concerned in this a voice by using the Defense bill for a vehicle for serious and significant reform. We have been able to do this because we have worked together on both sides of the aisle, working with the leadership of the committee—30 reforms that people can count on for fairness in the process for the accused but also help to those who feel they have been victimized but to be sure they are not victimized by the very system they count on.

I eagerly look forward to hearing from my senior Republican colleague Senator COLLINS.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine.

Ms. COLLINS. First, I wish to commend the senior Senator from Maryland, the dean of the women Senators, for organizing this debate today on an issue that concerns each of us; that is, the growing crisis of sexual assault in the military.

I first raised my concern over the military's inadequate response to the growing crisis of sexual assault nearly 10 years ago. I remember it well. It was a hearing before the Senate Armed Services Committee in 2004, at which I expressed my growing alarm about the number of sexual assaults in the military and the inadequate response by the leaders of the military to provide adequate care for the survivors and to ensure appropriate punishment for the perpetrators of these reprehensible crimes.

In an exchange I had with GEN George Casey, I stated the military needs to be much more responsive to reports of sexual assault, particularly in the field, and to separate these women and, in some cases, the male victims, from their alleged attackers. The Department must also vigorously prosecute offenders and hold commanders accountable for establishing zero tolerance policies.

To say that General Casey's response was disappointing would be an understatement. I am convinced that if the military had heeded the concerns that I and others such as Senator MIKULSKI raised a decade ago, this terrible problem would have been addressed much sooner, saving many individuals from the trauma, the pain, and the injustice they endured.

Back then, sadly, the attitude of the high-ranking officials who were testifying at that 2004 hearing was dismissive, even though these crimes never should have occurred in the first place, traumatized the survivors, and eroded the trust and discipline that are fundamental to every military unit. Thankfully, the attitude I perceive amongst senior military officers today is markedly different from the one I encountered 9 years ago. The work of translating the military's stated policy of zero tolerance into reality, however, remains unfinished business. Fostering a culture of zero tolerance so that the number of assaults is greatly diminished remains a goal, not reality. Ensuring that survivors do not think twice about reporting an assault for fear of retaliation or damage to their careers is still not part of the military culture.

In 2011, I joined our former colleague John Kerry in coauthoring the Defense STRONG Act as an initial step to address this crisis. Provisions of that bill were signed into law as part of the fiscal year 2012 National Defense Authorization Act. They provide survivors of sexual assault the assistance of advocates with genuine confidentiality. They provide guaranteed access to an attorney and expedited consideration to be transferred far away from their assailant.

Earlier this year I introduced the Coast Guard STRONG Act to extend these protections to Coast Guard members. I thank Chairman LEVIN, Ranking Member INHOFE, and Senator McCASKILL for their work to include these provisions in this year's NDAA.

More than anything, survivors need to have the confidence that the legal system in which they report a crime will produce a just and fair result. Based upon data from the Department of Defense's most recent sexual assault prevention and response survey, that view is not held by enough service-members or survivors.

As a result, I have supported and introduced legislation with Senators Gillibrand and McCaskill aimed at reducing the barriers to justice that many survivors of sexual assault currently face in the military.

I commend both Senator GILLIBRAND and Senator McCASKILL for their extraordinary leadership and dedication to resolving this unacceptable problem.

Let me also thank Chairman LEVIN and Ranking Member INHOFE for incorporating significant provisions from both bills into the NDAA.

In fact, there are more than 26 provisions specifically targeting sexual assault in the military in the bill that we are debating today. For example—and there are many, but I wish to highlight one because it was part of a bill Senator McCASKILL and I introduced—the legislation mandates a dishonorable discharge or dismissal for any service-member convicted of sexual assault. This came from a bipartisan, bicameral bill, the BE SAFE Act, that I introduced with Senator McCASKILL, Congresswoman NIKI TSONGAS, and Congressman MIKE TURNER earlier this year.

In addition, the NDAA eliminates the ability of a convening authority to overturn a conviction by a jury post-trial for major offenses.

It permits a commander to relocate an alleged perpetrator of a sexual assault crime rather than relocating the survivor following an attack.

It eliminates certain factors, such as the alleged character of the accused, that a commander can consider in deciding how to dispose of an offense so that these decisions are based on evidence and the law.

Finally, the bill includes a provision I support that requires the military to provide an attorney dedicated to the interests of survivors of sexual assaults who can provide legal advice and assistance when survivors need such assistance the most.

There are many other important provisions that are included in this bill. Our work will not be complete until the Pentagon has demonstrated that it is fully enforcing its stated policy of zero tolerance for sexual assault.

There are strong views in the Pentagon and in Congress on how best to address this issue beyond the 26 provisions in the bill before us. There is much debate on what it means for the military's unique legal system.

One of the criticisms I have heard is that we should wait a few more months for the results of still more studies or perhaps even wait a few more years to see if recently enacted provisions have made a difference. I strongly disagree. How many more victims are required to suffer before we take additional action? How many more lives must be ruined before we act? Rather than waiting for the results of yet more studies, we must debate proposals to increase the confidence of survivors and increase prevention efforts now until we have proved that the military has, indeed, fostered a culture of zero tolerance in which survivors are no longer concerned about retaliation from their peers or even their commanders.

This is why I have decided to support Senator GILLIBRAND's amendment to this bill. This was not an easy decision, as there are valid arguments on both sides. Senator GILLIBRAND's amendment takes aim squarely at the problem of victims failing to report sexual assault. In my judgment, her amendment will encourage more victims to report sexual assaults, and that is absolutely critical.

There can be no question about the Senate's commitment to reducing the instances of sexual assault in the military and to providing appropriate care for survivors. As we debate various proposals, we are united by the need for the serious reforms that are included already in this bill and that will enhance the military's response to sexual assault.

I wish to thank all of those on the Armed Services Committee, particularly the two leaders, Senator McCASKILL and Senator GILLIBRAND, for their excellent work.

I am certain our work on the NDAA will make a real difference in reducing unnecessary suffering, injury, and injustice.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire.

Ms. AYOTTE. I thank my colleagues Senator COLLINS and Senator MIKULSKI for their leadership on this issue and for bringing this important discussion to the floor today.

I also thank Senator MURKOWSKI, who I see in the Chamber as well, who has been a leader. Also, I thank Senator MCCASKILL, who has been a leader in the Armed Services Committee with me.

This has been an issue that has brought people together. It has brought people together for the right reasons. This is an issue that the women of the Senate have really driven, but it is important to understand that this is not a woman's issue. The issue of ending sexual assaults in our military is an issue for everyone. This is an issue about justice. This is an issue about fairness. This is about making sure that victims of crimes, both men and women, get the justice they deserve, the support they deserve in our military, and that they understand and appreciate that we want them to have a climate in the military where if they are a victim, they can come forward and receive the support they need and that they deserve.

Finally, this is also about the character of our military. We are blessed to have the very best military in the world, but when there is a plague of sexual assaults such as we have seen in our military, it undermines the very fabric of our military in terms of our readiness, in terms of our preparedness, and in terms of the cohesiveness of our units.

This is why it is not only important that we address and support the victims of these crimes, that we end sexual assault in our military, but that we have a climate in our military that says: If you are a commander and you do not stop sexual assaults, prevent sexual assaults, have a climate in your unit that says zero tolerance, this is not going to happen; if a victim comes forward in your unit and you don't handle this the right way, do the right thing, support victims, and ensure that perpetrators are held accountable, you will be relieved from command.

That is the climate in which all of the reforms in this Defense authorization are brought forward, where we work together across the aisle with very strong provisions to support victims.

One of those provisions is a special victims counsel. Senator PATTY MURRAY and I introduced a bill, stand-alone, to ensure, based upon a pilot program in the Air Force, that victims of sexual assault will actually now have their own lawyer, someone to represent them and their interests, to know that if they come forward there is someone looking out for them. That is one of the provisions contained in this Defense authorization bill, to ensure that every victim will have someone who stands for them.

In addition to that is retaliation. We have now made retaliation against victims a crime under the Uniform Code of Military Justice. This is to say to victims that if they come forward and for some reason are retaliated against, then whoever does that will be guilty of a crime. This is sending the message to please come forward, we want to support you, and we want to be sure the perpetrators are held accountable.

In addition, I believe that if we want to solve this problem, the provisions in this bill that people have worked together on are very strong. I thank the chairman of the Armed Services Committee and the ranking member for their work together.

We are going to pass in this Chamber unprecedented reforms that ensure that the military understands this is not an issue anymore that can be left in the closet. This is not an issue that can be quietly spoken of where victims feel they can't come forward. The reforms in this bill are very tough. They support victims. They hold commanders accountable, and they make sure we do not see what we have seen in the past, things such as commanders overturning the verdicts. That will be done under this bill. That is not allowed anymore if this bill passes on the floor.

So I simply come to the floor today to say there is so much we have agreed upon that is going to address this issue in the military, and I thank all my colleagues on the floor today for their leadership. We will not let this rest. The one thing I do know, for those of us who serve on the Armed Services Committee and those who are here in the Chamber who do not serve on the Armed Services Committee but serve on other important committees, including the Appropriations Committee, despite the unprecedented reforms I believe we are going to pass on a bipartisan basis to end sexual assault in the military and to ensure victims are supported, we are not going to let this go. This is not going to be something where we pass these reforms and that is the end of the story. Every few months we are going to be asking: What have you done to implement these reforms? Every few months we are going to be expecting a report back to the Senate to ensure that what we all have intended to occur here—that is the right thing for victims of crime, that is the right thing for our military—is getting done.

So while I am very proud of everything we have done and we will do when we pass the Defense authorization bill on a bipartisan basis to stand against sexual assault in our military, this is not the end of the story. We will continue to pursue this to make sure that our military understands they are accountable, that victims of crime understand that while in the military they will be supported, that we will not let this go.

I thank the Chair and my colleagues for their leadership and everything they have done to support victims of crime and to end sexual assault in our military.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Washington.

Ms. CANTWELL. Mr. President, I rise to join my colleagues in highlighting the epidemic of sexual assault in our Nation's armed services, and I am glad to join many of my colleagues here—the Senators from Maine and New Hampshire and our leader, the Senator from Maryland—in making sure the voices of women are heard in this debate.

We know that in May 2013 the Defense Department released a report that showed 26,000 incidents of unwanted sexual contact among service members. That is an increase of 35 percent over 2 years.

In my State, Washingtonians are very proud of the incredible men and women who keep our country safe and defend us, and we are proud of the 10 military installations across our State. There are more than 65,000 men and women serving in military installations in the State of Washington—places such as Joint Base Lewis-McChord, the Puget Sound Naval Shipyard, Naval Station Everett, Naval Base Kitsap, Whidbey Island Naval Air Station, Bangor Naval Submarine

Base, and Fairchild Air Force Base. So we took it seriously when there were 116 reports of sexual assault across all of these installations in the State of Washington in 2010. That number is too high, and that is only the amount that is being reported. We know there may be many assaults that go unreported.

As my colleagues are saying, we need to do everything we can to address this problem. I am pleased that Joint Base Lewis-McChord is developing a sexual assault prevention program, and I urge my colleagues in the Senate to act to address this epidemic problem. The men and women of our Armed Forces are basically defending our country, so why are we leaving them unprotected while they serve?

I have cosponsored legislation authored by my colleague the senior Senator from Washington to provide special victims' counsel to victims of sexual assault. This will ensure that professionals trained in dealing with sexual assault are there to support the victims.

There may be differing opinions on how best to achieve the overall goals of reducing sexual assault in the military, but I believe all my colleagues can agree on one common goal: protecting the victims from further abuse. We need to put an end to an environment that allows sexual assault to occur and that lets the perpetrators go unpunished and discourages victims of sexual assault through fear and intimidation. Again, we may differ on how to best achieve that goal, but we are all here to say the same thing: Enough is enough. We will not tolerate sexual assault in the military and Armed Forces, and we owe it to our servicemembers to come together and act toward a solution today. That is why my colleagues are here—to emphasize this point in a way that speaks volumes about how this tragedy is affecting men and women in the armed services and the fact that this institution needs to come together to address it.

I thank the Chair, and I yield the floor.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alaska.

Ms. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I thank my friends, the good Senator from Maryland, the dean of the women in the Senate, and the Senator from Maine, who have organized this portion of the debate this morning. I acknowledge and thank the other women of the Senate who are here this morning to speak on an issue we would all agree is something that must be addressed and that for far too long has not seen the redress it commands. So we stand together unified in an effort to truly make a difference.

I acknowledge the good work particularly of Senators McCASKILL and GILLIBRAND, who have worked to raise the awareness of sexual assault in the military. They have truly advanced the discussion to the point where for the first time in far too long we will make substantive, meaningful headway when it comes to addressing sexual assault, sexual harassment, and what has been called or referred to as military sexual trauma. Working together I think we do have that momentum, that push to truly address these areas in a meaningful way.

When the Senate passes the National Defense Authorization Act for 2014, it will be evident to all that we have sent a very strong message on these issues—a very united message, clearly bipartisan.

It should be clear to all who have been following the debates—first in the Armed Services Committee and now here on the floor—there are differences of opinion within this body about how we address the crisis. But there is no difference of opinion that we must address the crisis. That means how to create a culture that prevents the kinds of incidents we are talking about from ever occurring; how we work to protect the rights of victims; how to ensure that justice and accountability are achieved in an open and transparent fashion so that victims know there is a system that works for them and so that our constituents know and we here in Congress have that confidence again. Right now that confidence does not exist.

We recognize that there remain differences across the body in how to achieve the elimination of sexual assault, sexual harassment, and military sexual trauma. I believe the amendment offered by our colleague from New York Senator GILLIBRAND is the best medicine for a difficult situation that has been allowed to languish for far too long.

This afternoon I intend to spend a little more time explaining why the amendment of Senator GILLIBRAND, although it is strong medicine and it is disruptive of the status quo, is the right way to go. But my purpose this morning in joining with my female colleagues here in the Senate is not to argue for or against one amendment or another; it is to point out that the NDAA, as reported by the Armed Services Committee, includes many provisions—so many provisions—that truly have a positive impact going forward.

I would also point out that during the course of our debate on the NDAA, the Senate may consider other amendments that enjoy broad support. My colleague, the Senator from California Mrs. BOXER spoke eloquently last night about her amendment that will protect victims' rights in article 32 proceedings. This amendment has drawn good, strong support from those who support the approach of Senator GILLIBRAND as well as those who oppose it. I am proud to cosponsor the amendment of Senator BOXER. It is good legislation, and I hope we can come together to adopt it.

I have submitted amendment No. 2141. This ensures that cadets and midshipmen at our Nation's service academies have access to special victims' counsel and sexual assault nurse examiners. Another of my amendments, No. 2143, requires reports from the heads of our service academies on the services available to victims of military sexual trauma. I would certainly hope these noncontroversial amendments can be offered and accepted at the appropriate time.

I think all of these ideas—those mentioned by my colleague from New Hampshire, those addressed by my colleague from Maine and others—will all help to make a difference, but I think we recognize that this is just the beginning of solving the problem. The Congress of the United States can encourage good behavior and can sanction bad behavior, but what we cannot do is legislate good culture.

Over the next few days we are going to hear a good many words about the importance of the chain of command in maintaining good culture. Some will argue that our efforts to ensure bad behavior is sanctioned will cause the chain of command to abandon this responsibility. I don't accept this proposition. Regardless of how we dispose of the amendment of Senator GILLIBRAND or the amendment of Senator McCASKILL, it is the responsibility of the chain of command to provide for good order and discipline and sound military culture always. This is a nondelegable duty of those who accept positions of leadership and responsibility within our Armed Forces.

Those who wear the uniform reflect the values of this country, and every action they take must uphold those values. Sometimes, though, one has to wonder, does the chain of command get it? To illustrate a point, I want to share a sad story. This is a story Senator GILLIBRAND and I share.

The soldier's name was Danny Chen. He grew up in New York City's Chinatown. He joined the Army, and he was assigned to Fort Wainwright in Fairbanks, AK. From there he was deployed to Afghanistan. He was found dead in Afghanistan of what the Army described as "an apparent self-inflicted gunshot wound."

New York Magazine describes his experience in Afghanistan this way: A group of his superiors allegedly tormented Chen on an almost daily basis over the course of about 6 weeks in Afghanistan. They singled him out. He was their only Chinese-American soldier. They spit racial slurs at him. They forced him to do sprints while carrying a sandbag. They ordered him to crawl along gravel-covered ground while they flung rocks at him. One day, when his unit was assembling a tent, he was forced to wear a hard hat and shout out instructions to his fellow soldiers in Chinese.

Danny Chen's story is not about sexual assault or sexual harassment, but it is about harassment. It is about the kind of extreme behavior that has no place—absolutely no place—in the Armed Forces of this world's greatest democracy, just as sexual harassment and military sexual trauma have no place in our Armed Forces.

This week we have the opportunity to send a strong statement to the chain of command that they need to clean up the culture. Never again should we have to speak of a culture that allows harassment, assault, and trauma generated from within to fester within our military.

So I join with my colleagues this morning in unity for the victims and for a change—a change that will realign the reality that our servicemembers seem to face in the Armed Forces with the values of the greatest democracy on Earth.

I thank the Chair and my colleagues, and I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota.

Ms. KLOBUCHAR. Mr. President, I rise today to speak on the National Defense Authorization Act and how the Senate, and particularly the women of the Senate, are working to address the crisis of military sexual assault.

I thank Senators MIKULSKI and COLLINS for organizing and bringing us together this morning. I thank Senators LEVIN and INHOFE for their leadership, and I thank Senators MCCASKILL and GILLIBRAND for working on this critical legislation over the course of the past year. Of course, I thank all of the women of the Senate. We have heard from many of them this morning and will hear from more because this is an incredible year—a year that I hope will be remembered as a decisive one in the effort to eradicate military sexual assault once and for all.

We are all too well aware that sexual assault continues to plague our Armed Forces. We have all seen the horrifying numbers. In 2012, the Department of Defense received 3,374 reports of sexual assault in the military. But by the DOD's own estimates, 26,000 incidents of unwanted sexual contact actually took place during that period. That means that only 12.9 percent—a small fraction—of all incidents were actually reported. Of the 3,374 reported offenses in 2012, only 880 faced command action for sex crimes. Of those 880, 594 faced court-martial, and 302 of those courts-martial resulted in convictions.

So all in all, we have a situation in which 880 people faced any kind of discipline for a sex crime out of the universe of 26,000 potential incidents. That is only 3.4 percent of total of incidents in which someone was held accountable, and only 302 or 1.1 percent were actually convicted of a crime. That is not a good set of numbers, and it sums up why this problem has been festering and why we need action this year.

But I think we also know that we are not all here because of the statistics. We are here because of real people and because each and every one of the numbers is a personal story of grief, and we know them all too well. Whether it was the sexual assault scandal last year at Lackland Air Force Base in Texas where a dozen or more basic training instructors were accused of sexually assaulting female trainees or the more recent case at the air base in Italy, where an Air Force general decided to reinstate a pilot, without explanation, despite the fact that this pilot had been convicted of sexual assault charges in a court-martial by a jury of his peers.

I think of Kimberley Wellnitz from Mora, MN. She served with the Marines in Iraq. In 2005, she was handcuffed to a bed and assaulted by a fellow Marine—her supervisor. She reported him. The end result? He was demoted in rank.

It is clear we have so much more to do in addressing this problem. It doesn't just hurt our men and women in uniform. It undermines the integrity of our Armed Forces and the integrity of our country, and that is why we can't let it continue.

I know everyone in the Senate—and none more than the women of the Senate—wants action to change this intolerable situation. And action is what we are going to get. This year's National Defense Authorization Act contains more than two dozen unprecedented reforms which will increase reporting of these crimes, provide support to victims, and help rebuild trust in the military's handling of sexual assaults.

As a former prosecutor who ran an office of 400 people, I learned over time that the outcomes are incredibly important. But just as important is how people feel about how they are treated in the system. Every year we did a survey of our victims of domestic abuse and of sexual assault, and one of the aspects that became clear over time: Just as important as how many months someone got in prison was whether or not the crime was explained to them, whether or not the process was explained to the victims, and whether or not the outcome was explained. We actually had people come back and say: I know this case had to be dropped; or I know you couldn't bring charges in this case, but I felt that you treated me with respect, and I understood that my case would still remain so that if another case came forward my record would be there, my report would be there. If the facts were better or if there was more evidence, you could go forward with it. That led me to get involved way before this past year in the issues of record retention in the military on sexual assault reports.

When I first got involved, we learned the shocking fact that many branches of the military were destroying the records sometimes in 1 year, sometimes in 5 years. That is why Senator Olympia Snowe and I got together and proposed changes to that system. We actually changed it so records would be kept for decades. But the problem is that still in the law, despite two changes we have made over the years on this exact authorization act, the victim actually has to sign something and say they want the records retained. That would not happen in a civil court.

Current law only requires retention of restricted reports—and that is when a servicemember chooses not to take legal action—at the request of the affected servicemember. This might seem innocuous, but it is not. It is a loophole allowing for the continued destruction of records, making it harder for service men and women who have been sexually assaulted to get VA benefits for the assault or to seek justice in the future.

I did an event with a former marine whose case couldn't be brought. Because she was a marine, the records at the time were kept for 5 years. So when the perpetrator got out and raped two kids in California, that prosecutor in California was at least able to look at the records. Whether he could use them or not is somewhat immaterial. It simply helps to look at the records to know what happened and if there was a similar modus operandi.

A servicemember who has been through an assault should not be forced to reach a far-reaching decision whether his or her report on such a crime will be retained or not, as is what is happening right now. This bill gets rid of the double standard between restricted and unrestricted reports, ensuring all reports are stored in a secure and private manner for at least 50 years. It also contains a provision from my bill requiring the disposition of substantiated sexual-related offenses be noted in personnel records. This will help ensure that commanders are aware of potential repeat offenders. And it contains the language from my Military Sexual Assault Prevention Act—and I thank Senator MURKOWSKI for her support—which expresses the sense of the Senate that charges of rape, sexual assault or attempts to commit these offenses should be disposed of by court-martial rather than by nonjudicial punishment or administrative action. We want offenders to be convicted and punished, not just given a slap on the wrist by commanders or allowed to slink away without a discharge.

This year's NDAA also includes legislation which I introduced with Senator MCCASKILL to add sexual assault and related charges to the list of protected communications that can be investigated by the DOD inspector general. This is expanded whistleblower protection which will help ensure that servicemembers are able to report sexual assault crimes without facing retaliation.

These are just a few of the provisions addressing sexual assault in this bill. We also know this bill does so much focused on victims' rights and treating our victims with the respect that they deserve.

Our country is fortunate that we have so many selfless service men and women who volunteer to serve their country. When they raise their hands to serve, we take on the responsibility to provide them the means to accomplish their mission and to ensure they don't have to worry about what is going on behind the front line. Sexual assault in the military betrays that responsibility. If in the course of their service our service men and women experience an assault that our military failed to prevent, then we owe them the basic decency of justice.

I look forward to working on and passing this bill with my colleagues so that we can protect our servicemembers once and for all.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, we are seeing something pretty historic, with over half of the women of the Senate speaking on this issue. I know the press isn't covering this, but I hope with C-SPAN they are.

This is a bipartisan effort, with 30 reforms we have agreed to, and it is very impressive that we are all here, speaking up with one voice, and an occasional difference in goals. I hope America is watching because this has never happened before.

I now turn to the Senator from Wisconsin for her remarks, then to the Senator from Missouri, and then to the Senator from Washington.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wisconsin.

Ms. BALDWIN. Mr. President, I rise this morning to speak about this year's national defense authorization legislation and the important reforms that are a part of the underlying bill to improve our military's response to sexual assault within its ranks.

The men and women in our Armed Services serve with courage in defense of our freedom every single day. In my eyes their service needs to be respected by taking decisive action to address the ongoing crisis—in fact, you can call it an epidemic—of sexual assault in the military. We know the system is broken, and it is long past time we fix it.

I wish to share just one story from a remarkable and brave woman named Rachel who lives in LaCrosse, WI.

Rachel joined the Army in 2004. She was sexually assaulted that same year while she was stationed at Fort Meade in Maryland for advanced individual training. After reporting her assault to her commanding officer, Rachel was interrogated for hours over numerous days and ultimately forced to drop the charge. She was written up for fraternization, and her assailant was not charged with any crime.

As you can imagine, Rachel was deeply affected by the trauma of this crime and continues to face struggles with post-traumatic stress disorder. But Rachel is a survivor and a true inspiration. She has turned her pain and courage into a platform for advocacy and service to her community, working through her organization Survivors Empowered Through Art to raise awareness about military sexual assault through the power of art and storytelling.

Rachel's story is a reminder that she is not alone and that we must do everything that we can to make sure that all victims of sexual assault have the support they deserve. That is why I am heartened by the many important reforms included in the 2014 National Defense Authorization Act and very grateful to the bipartisan coalition, in particular of women Senators who have worked so diligently to make this change happen. In particular, Senators GILLIBRAND and MCCASKILL have led the fight to make these improvements. Their efforts will make a real difference in the lives of countless Americans by preventing sexual assault in the military and greatly improving our support to victims.

However, I believe more must be done to help victims of sexual assault. That is why I am a proud cosponsor of Senator GILLIBRAND's amendment, which would improve on these important reforms by removing the prosecution of major crimes from the military chain of command. Instead, military prosecutors would determine whether to move a case forward, which would eliminate inherent bias and conflicts of interest which currently deter victims from reporting sexual assault crimes in the first place.

I am also filing an amendment to ensure we are including ROTC programs in our conversations about military sexual assault. Just like we must ensure our new officers from service academies meet our highest standards, we must do the same of those commissioned in ROTC programs across America.

I think the important improvements in this year's Defense authorization show the great promise of what can be achieved if we work together in a bipartisan way to get work done for the American people.

It is a tremendous privilege to be a public servant. It is a special privilege to be the first woman elected from my State to the U.S. Senate. One of the best parts for me is that I get to be a woman in the Senate at a time when there are so many incredible other women in the Senate to work with, to learn from, and to look up to. I expressly thank my Senate colleagues who serve on the Armed Services Committee—Senators MCCASKILL, HAGAN, SHAHEEN, GILLIBRAND, HIRONO, AYOTTE, and FISCHER. I thank them for their work in guiding this process through their committee in such an effective and bipartisan way. And my thanks of course goes as well to Senators LEVIN and INHOFE for their stewardship of these important provisions.

I thank Senators MIKULSKI and COLLINS for organizing today's floor speeches. The cumulative total of those changes represents true progress in eliminating the tragedy and scourge of sexual assault in our military. I once again thank my colleagues for their bipartisan work.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. KAINE). The Senator from Missouri.

Mrs. MCCASKILL. Mr. President, I too thank my colleagues Senator MI-KULSKI and Senator COLLINS for making an effort today to highlight the work that has been done on this important issue. I would be less than candid if I did not say it has been frustrating to have one policy difference dominate the discussion of this issue over the previous few weeks, without anyone even realizing the historic reforms that are contained in this bill. So I welcome the opportunity to come with my colleagues who may disagree on one policy issue but do not disagree on the goal and are taking a moment to recognize the work that has been put into this bill by not just the women of the Armed Services Committee but also the men of the Armed Services Committee.

After the hearings—and some of us have spent literally hundreds of hours pouring over trial transcripts, spending time visiting with prosecutors—I think we have fashioned historic and amazing changes that are going to forever change the successful prosecution of rapists in our military and go further to protect victims.

I come to this issue with a great deal of experience. I think it is not hyperbole or overstating it that I have stood in the courtroom prosecuting sexual predators more than any Member of the Senate. I have handled hundreds and hundreds of cases and dozens and dozens of jury trials. No one in this Chamber has intersected with victims of sexual assault more than I have. I do not think anyone has more of an understanding of the particularly complicated problems that these cases present, especially when there is a "consent" defense.

Keep in mind that the vast majority of these cases in the military are consent offenses. You have two options in a sexual assault case. One is "it wasn't me," and the other is "it was consensual activity." It does not take someone much to understand the principle that in this instance most of these cases are going to be consent defenses.

Why do I emphasize that? I emphasize it because it is relevant. It is particularly relevant to the reforms that we embrace in the underlying bill. The time period in which a victim decides she is going to come forward out of the shadows and hold her perpetrator accountable is invariably very close in time to the time of report. It is how she is treated at that juncture more than anything else, more than whether she has been victimized in the military or whether she has been victimized on the streets of your hometown—she is coming forward with the most personally painful moment of her life. Keep in mind if you are coming forward with the most personally painful moment of your life how complicated that gets if you know the defense is going to be that you wanted it, that it is consensual, and then it is even more difficult.

That is why the vast majority of these crimes in our country are never reported, ever. It doesn't matter whether we are talking military or civilian. So how can we, at that critical moment, make sure that victim gets the help and support she or he needs to do the unthinkable, and that is to lay herself or himself bare to the public about what has happened. The way you do that is through the reforms my colleague Senator MURRAY stressed and that we have incorporated in this bill, and that is that every single victim gets their own lawyer.

I don't think many Members understand how extraordinary that is. That reform alone will make our military the most victim-friendly criminal justice system in the world. In no other criminal justice system anywhere—civilian, military, United States, our allies—does a victim get that kind of support. That is what is underlying in these reforms. We already know it works because it has been a pilot program in the Air Force. Unlike those who say reporting will never go up unless we make another policy change, reporting is spiking in our military, up 50 percent just this year. That is because the victims are getting the word, not only do you not have to report to the chain of command, you are going to begin to get the resources and help and knowledge you need to navigate the choppiest waters, emotionally and personally, you will ever encounter.

Not only have we done that in the underlying bill, we also have done other work such as stripping commanders of their ability to abuse this system by changing the outcome of a trial—very important.

Making the crime of retaliation a reality in the military—it should be actionable in a criminal court within the military if you retaliate against a victim who reports. Now not only will the victim know that retaliation is a crime, not only will the unit know retaliation is a crime, the victim has her own lawyer who can help press those charges if that occurs.

Think of the practical consequences of this reform. You go back into your unit, you are retaliated against, you call your lawyer: You will not believe what they did to me today. Your lawyer helps you bring charges against those who might retaliate.

It requires automatic discharge from the military for rape or assault convictions.

There will be other opportunities to debate the policy difference we have about how these cases are handled in the military, but I cannot say how grateful I am to the dean and to Senator COLLINS for doing this today. It is very important that we not lose sight that this is not about a bumper sticker. It is not about one side versus the other. This is about doing the very best job we can on the policy so we can protect victims, prosecute offenders, and get them the hell out of our military. That is what this is about, and with every fiber of my being I believe we are going to accomplish that with the reforms we are embracing.

I will come back to the floor to talk more about the amendment I will be offering on the floor to go even further with some of these reforms that we think are necessary.

I am so grateful that my colleagues have taken a moment to recognize the obvious; that what we have done is historic; that what we have done we do in agreement; and what we have done is going to make a difference.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, how much time do we have under this morning business agreement?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time in morning business has currently expired.

EXTENSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

Ms. MIKULSKI. We have two more speakers, Senators from Massachusetts and Washington State. I ask unanimous consent morning business be extended for these two for approximately 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Ms. MIKULSKI. I yield to the Senator from Washington State and the Senator from Massachusetts.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Washington.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Maryland and the Senator from Maine for helping to bring so many of us to the floor today to talk about an issue that cuts across partisan lines and has plagued our Nation's military and has gone unaddressed for far too long. Military sexual assault is an epidemic and it has rightly been identified as such by the Pentagon. It is absolutely unconscionable that a fellow servicemember, the person you rely on to have your back and to be there for you, would commit such a terrible crime. It is simply appalling that they could commit such a personal violation of their brother or sister in uniform, but what is worse and what has made change an absolute necessity is the prevalence of these crimes. Recent estimates tell us that 26,000 servicemembers are sexually assaulted each year and just over 3,000 of those assaults are reported. According to the Department of Veterans Affairs, about one in five female veterans treated by VA has suffered from military sexual assault; one in five. That is certainly not the act of a comrade. It is not in keeping with the ethos of any of the services, and it can no longer be tolerated. That is why the women of the Senate have been united in calling for action.

There has been made much of the fact that there are now 20 women in the Senate, a historic number that I think we all agree can still grow. But it is important to remember that the number alone should not be what is historic. Instead, it is what we do with our newfound strength to address the issues that are impacting women across the country.

With this bill, the first Defense authorization of this Congress, we are doing exactly that. We are taking historic action to help servicemembers access the resources they need to seek justice without fear. One way this bill will do just that, help protect our servicemembers and assist victims and punish criminals, is through the inclusion of a bill I introduced across party lines with Senator AYOTTE. Our bill, which is included in the base bill, creates a new category of legal advocates called special victims' counsels. They would be responsible for advocating on behalf of the interests of the victim. These special victims' counsels would advise the victim on the range of legal issues they may face.

For example, when a young private first class is intimidated into not reporting a sexual assault by threatening her with unrelated legal charges such as underage drinking, this new legal advocate would be there to protect her and tell her the truth. Since January, the Air Force has provided these advocates to over 500 victims through an innovative new pilot program. Ten months later, the results are speaking for themselves. Ninety-two percent of victims are extremely satisfied with the advice and support their SVC lent them through the military judicial process, 98 percent would recommend other victims request these advocates, and 93 percent believed these advocates effectively fought on their behalf.

In describing their experience with an advocate, one victim shared that:

Going through this was the hardest thing I ever had to do in my life. Having a Special Victim Counsel helped tremendously. . . . No words could describe how much I appreciate having one of these advocates.

Through our bipartisan effort, the Defense authorization bill will also enhance the responsibility and authority of DOD's sexual assault prevention and response office, known as the SAPRO. This improvement will help provide better oversight of efforts to combat military sexual assault across the Armed Forces. SAPRO would also be required to regularly track and report on a range of MSA statistics, including assault rates and the number of cases brought to trial, and compliance with each of the individual services.

Some of the stat collection is already being done so this requirement is not going to be too burdensome, but it will give the office authority to track and report to us on the extent of the problem.

I believe the great strength of our military is in the character and dedication of our men and women who wear that uniform. It is the courage of these Americans who volunteer to serve our country that are the Pentagon's greatest asset. I know it is said a lot but take a moment to think about that. Our servicemembers volunteered to face danger, put their lives on the line, and protect our country and all its people. When we think of those dangers, we think of IEDs and battles with insurgents.

We should not have to focus on the threats they encounter from their own fellow servicemembers, and we should never allow for a culture in which the fear of reporting a crime allows a problem such as this to fester year after year. These are dangers that can never be accepted and none of our courageous servicemembers should ever have to face them.

Earlier this year I asked Navy Secretary Ray Mabus about the sexual assault epidemic, and I was glad he told me that “concern” was not a strong enough word to describe how he feels about this problem. He said he is angry about it. I know many of us in the Senate are angry as well, particularly our female colleagues who have dedicated so much time to this issue and share this feeling and want to put an end to this epidemic.

I am hopeful we can work quickly to do right by our Nation’s heroes. When our best and brightest put on a uniform and join the U.S. Armed Forces, they do so with the understanding that they will sacrifice much in the name of defending our country and its people. But that sacrifice should never have to come in the form of abuse from their fellow servicemembers.

I am proud the women in this Senate have taken this issue head on, and what should never be lost in the effort to enact the many changes that have been proposed is that for too long this was an issue that was simply swept under the rug. That is no longer the case thanks to bipartisan cooperation, the work of thousands of dedicated advocates, and the voices of countless victims who have bravely spoken.

We are poised to make a difference on an issue that women everywhere have brought out of the shadows, and I am proud of the women who have worked so hard on this issue.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Ms. WARREN. Mr. President, I rise to express my strong support for efforts to stamp out sexual assault in our military, and I wish to begin by thanking the Senator from Maryland and the Senator from Maine for their extraordinary leadership in bringing us here to speak on this issue.

For over 20 years our military has said it has a zero tolerance policy toward sexual violence. Government agencies have put out 20 reports examining the problem and suggesting potential solutions. Yet, shamefully, incidents of sexual assault involving our military personnel continue at staggering rates.

Data from the Department of Defense indicates that thousands of men and women serving in the military are subject to these horrific experiences every year. More than 20 percent of women serving in the military have reported unwanted sexual contact at some point during the course of their military service.

Perhaps most shameful, about half of all female victims in a 2012 DOD survey indicated they did not report these crimes because they believed such reports would simply be ignored.

This is an outrageous situation. We have called on the military over and over to solve this problem, and they have failed. Simply once again calling on the military to reform will be an exercise in futility. Worse, it will be a breach of trust with the men and women who are future victims of sexual predators lurking in the military.

These are important steps forward that we take today. There are a number of extremely strong provisions to address sexual assault included in this year’s National Defense Authorization Act which will move us in the right direction. These provisions are designed to crack down on sexual assaults, to better protect and advocate for victims, and to change the climate within our military to one that ends this despicable conduct.

The bill includes provisions to promote the prosecution of these cases by eliminating the statute of limitations on certain sexual offense cases and by limiting the ability of commanding officers to modify court-martial findings in sexual offense cases.

The bill requires the provision of a special victims’ counsel to provide legal support for servicemembers who are victims of sexual violence at the hands of other members of the military and take steps to limit the potential for victims to be mistreated by defense counsel.

There are other important steps forward in this bill. As the Senate debates the Defense bill, we will consider additional provisions to prosecute and eliminate sexual assault. I support those efforts as well.

The issue of sexual violence within our Armed Forces is very personal to me. All three of my brothers served in the military. My oldest brother was career military and flew 288 combat missions in Vietnam. I know the unbelievable sacrifices our military men and women make for this country and the sacrifices their families make to support them.

Yet, in spite of those sacrifices, we as a nation have consistently refused to take sufficient steps to ensure that our military men and women are protected from sexual violence on the job. Tolerance for sexual assaults demeans the sacrifices that millions of brave men and women have stepped forward to make on our behalf. We owe it to our servicemembers, and to their families, to change the culture in our military that remains far too tolerant of this abuse. We owe it to our servicemembers, and to their families, to do everything in our power to stamp out these incidents.

No matter the outcome of this week’s amendment votes, this year’s Defense Authorization Act will make significant strides toward finally making the military’s zero tolerance policy a reality.

I am proud to support these efforts, and I promise that so long as these crimes continue to occur, so long as victims are fearful to come forward, so long as justice is denied to victims, we will be right back here next year and the year after that and the year after that, doing everything we can to end sexual assault in the military.

The brave men and women serving in our Armed Forces have no intention of giving up on us, and we have no intention of giving up on them.

I yield my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, with the outgoing statement by the Senator from Massachusetts, we have now concluded the time that the women of the Senate have taken, on a bipartisan basis, to speak out against sexual assault in the military and to speak for the 30 reforms we have all agreed upon, on a bipartisan basis, that will enable prosecutorial reform, help to the victims, guarantee that there is fairness with the process, and make sure that if a victim comes forward, that victim will not be retaliated against or ignored, and for anyone who is accused, that person will get a fair process.

I am very proud of the way the seven women on the Armed Services Committee took the lead on this issue and were then joined not only by the rest of us but also social workers, advocates, former Attorneys General. We could not have done it without the very good men on the committee, particularly the chairmanship of Senator LEVIN and the help of Senator INHOFE.

I note the Senator from Rhode Island Mr. REED is on the floor. We want to thank Senator REED for his strong advocacy and advancement for women in the military and also these important reforms.

I would also like to add, as the dean of the women, that what we did this morning was pretty historical. We have 10 women from the Senate across the aisle speaking out on 30 reforms that were agreed to in the underlying bill. This is what the American people wanted—Members of the Senate working together with the chairman of the committee, listening to victims, listening to experts, and listening to the military.

Do you know what was disappointing. There was only one person in the press gallery. If we had been in conflict—and there will be disagreements later on where there are differences in some policies, and that is OK with me. But we don’t make press when we have actually worked together, and worked with such incredible diligence and expertise among ourselves, to solve these egregious and historically intransigent problems.

I say to the press, you know you like conflict, you know you like controversy, and you particularly want to see it among the women. We have a precedent where we have disagreed before on goals. When I led the fight with Lilly Ledbetter, Senator Kay Bailey Hutchison took me on with nine amendments. We had a good debate and a good bill at the end of it.

Senator MURKOWSKI, from the State of Alaska, has also disagreed with me on what should be the best approach on preventive health. We had debates without personal conflict, and we then came up with some good ideas.

I say today, when I listen to our colleagues on the other side of the aisle—who again have great backgrounds—this is pretty historic.

If you are watching on C-SPAN, you saw history being made. There were 10 of us—and there will be more later today—who actually agreed. We are trying to govern the way we were elected to govern. I am proud with what we are going to do with the reforms that are involved. I am proud of the way we have gone about it, and if we disagree on some matters here and there, that is what debate, intellectual rigor, and civility will be all about.

I will conclude this debate for now. Other women will be coming throughout the day to speak, and we know we will be debating some other important policies as well.

I yield the floor.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. MURPHY). Morning business is closed.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2014

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will resume consideration of S. 1197.

The clerk will report the bill by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 1197) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2014 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe military personnel strengths for such fiscal year, and for other purposes.

Pending:

Reid (for Levin-Inhofe) amendment No. 2123, to increase to $5,000,000,000 the ceiling on the general transfer authority of the Department of Defense.

Reid (for Levin-Inhofe) amendment No. 2124 (to Amendment No. 2123), of a perfecting nature.

Reid motion to recommit the bill to the Committee on Armed Services, with instructions, Reid amendment No. 2125, to change the enactment date.

Reid amendment No. 2126 (to (the instructions) amendment No. 2125), of a perfecting nature.

Reid amendment No. 2127 (to amendment No. 2126), of a perfecting nature.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the time until 12:30 p.m. will be for debate only.

The Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. REED. I note the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I think everyone is aware that we have a lot of differences on both sides of the aisle. Quite frankly, I just had a meeting with some of the House people. There are some problems right now. I am anxious for Chairman LEVIN to come back, perhaps after our conferences, and I will do the same thing, and hopefully we will be able to do it. I understand there has already been a statement made about the Ayotte amendment on Guantanamo. She is ready to debate, and I think Senator LEVIN has a side-by-side amendment he is ready to debate as well. So that, in my opinion, is about as far as we have come as far as progress. I will withhold any other comments I will make until the chair has made his comments, which will probably be after lunch.

By the way, I ask our Members to continue to file all amendments they have in anticipation that we will, as we have in the past, ultimately come to that conclusion, that we will have amendments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Dakota is recognized.

Mr. THUNE. I thank the Chair.

(The remarks of Senator THUNE pertaining to the introduction of S. 1724 are printed in today's RECORD under "Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.")

Mr. THUNE. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. HEITKAMP). The Senator from Alabama.

Mr. SESSIONS. Madam President, we need to be moving forward with the Defense bill. It is very important. I am a member of Armed Services Committee, and we had a good bipartisan vote out of committee to bring the bill to the floor. Chairman LEVIN has been fair to us in committee, so we got a good committee process. But there are some disagreements over a number of issues that the full Senate needs to discuss and vote on. They just should be able to do that.

We are drifting into a process that is absolutely contrary to the history of the Senate—the real concept of the U.S. Senate—where we bring matters up and vote on them. Just because it cleared our committee does not mean the full Senate does not get to vote on some of these differing opinions.

I voted in the committee on a number of amendments that did not pass. We had amendments up in committee that we decided not to vote on, and the phrase was: Well, we will carry that to the floor. In other words, it will be brought up and the whole Senate will vote on it, not just the committee. Maybe in the interim something could be worked out. But if not, it would go to the full Senate, and the full Senate would work its will, would have its debate and vote.

We are going days now with nothing happening, no amendments being voted on. They could have already been voted on. So Senator REID has filled the tree, and that means he has complete control over the process. He has the ability to say we will not have a single amendment. In fact, except for, I think, two, all he has agreed to in this process is to have maybe two amendments up, and that is unacceptable. Senator REID ought to know that. You cannot move the Defense bill of the United States of America, spending $500 billion, and not have amendments and Senators actually offering suggestions on how to spend that money better and do better for America. What are we here for?

So I am really worried about this. I am afraid that this whole thing could collapse over the failure of amendments to be offered. I look here at a chart. Back, basically, when Republicans were in charge, we had 27 amendments, 25 amendments, 13 amendments actually voted on. The average number was 11.5 amendments voted on.

We already have well over 100 amendments filed. Over half of them, two-thirds of them, will eventually be withdrawn or the managers of the bill will agree to some form of that suggestion with different language and we would move on. But we should have already started on amendments, and we should recognize that a good Defense bill is going to require an open process where we can actually discuss how to fix it and make it better.

In addition, we are facing, under the Budget Control Act and the sequester, some real financial challenges for the Department of Defense that are historic. It is significant. We need to be able to talk about that and work on that and try to figure out a way to strengthen the ability of the Defense Department to function in a rational way and not do unnecessary damage to them while they work to contain spending. That is a critical thing.

So I would say to Senator REID, who has a tough job—there is no doubt about that—Senator REID, you should not attempt this dramatic reduction in the ability of the Senate to actually have amendments to a bill as large and as important as the Defense bill. You are overreaching, Senator REID.

We cannot agree to that. The loyal opposition, the Republican opposition—I say, the bill that came out of committee was bipartisan, overwhelmingly bipartisan, with a big vote in the committee. But there are things that need to be voted on here, and we are not going to agree to a handful of amendments. So if you try to move forward with this bill without allowing at least a legitimate amendment process, you are not going to go forward because we are not going to agree to go forward when you fill the tree and block amendments and have the power to deny amendments of any significant degree on the floor of the Senate.

I am worried about that. I hope my friend, Senator LEVIN, and Senator

REED, who is here, and others, can talk with the majority leader and reason with him, and let's get on with the business of proceeding with these amendments and some actual debate about the future of America's defense posture because we do have challenges in the years to come—a lot different than we have had—and we need to reconfigure defense, and we need to be asking ourselves honestly and in a bipartisan way, what will we need to do in 15 years, what will we need to be doing in 2025.

I had the honor to be at the Reagan Library this weekend for a national security conference dealing with what our defense structure should be in 2025. Senator LEVIN, along with former Secretary of Defense Gates, was given the first award they give for patriotic service. So our Armed Services chairman, let me note, was honored—our Democratic chairman—was honored at the Ronald Reagan Library for his commitment to national defense.

But I am just saying, ladies and gentlemen, in a bipartisan way we need to be thinking about what our future defense policy should be. We need to be thinking about how to move this bill. But it will not move, and I will not support going to a bill that does not allow this Senate to have a reasonable opportunity to have amendments.

I thank the Presiding Officer and yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Madam President, I have come to the floor today to moderate a colloquy between my colleagues for the next 20 minutes or so regarding a very important amendment that has been filed to the Defense authorization bill we are considering. The colloquy will be between myself, Senator WICKER, Senator WARREN, Senator COCHRAN, Senator HOEVEN, Senator NELSON, and Senator MERKLEY. I ask unanimous consent that we have the next 20 minutes to conduct the colloquy.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

FLOOD INSURANCE

Ms. LANDRIEU. Madam President, I really appreciate the courtesies of the manager of the bill on the floor, Senator REED. I really appreciate his courtesies because those of us who have come to the floor today to speak about this issue are extremely concerned about this problem that has presented itself based on a bill that was passed 2 years ago called Biggert-Waters. With all the best intentions, a bill was passed 2 years ago to try to fix and reform and reauthorize the Nation's Flood Insurance Program, which is a very important program that allows millions of people who live not just along the coast but along our rivers and bayous and streams—from coast to coast, inland and coastal communities—to live safely and to live affordably and to have flood insurance they can count on. That was the intention of the bill, but something went awry through the passage of the bill, and the consequences are devastating.

Now, as we look back 2 years, and we see how FEMA and some of these Federal agencies are implementing the law we passed, we have some very serious concerns not only about how they are implementing it, but about the law itself.

So a group of us have come together to change that law so we can provide opportunities for our families, for our individuals and our businesses, to be able to buy and keep the kind of flood insurance they need to stay in business and to keep their communities intact.

In the last couple of weeks all we have heard about is health care insurance, and that is important, and we have some things to fix and move forward on, providing the country with a health care system they can depend on, but we also have a real challenge in flood insurance and affordability to our communities.

In Louisiana alone we have 400,000 flood insurance policies. Florida—I see my good friend, Senator NELSON from Florida, on the floor. His State has the largest number of policies; followed by Texas, with the second largest number; and, of course, Mississippi has quite a few as well. Senator WICKER joins me on the floor.

I want to start by showing this map I have in the Chamber so everyone who is following this debate—and there are literally millions of people following this debate; not only homeowners, business owners, but bankers, realtors, developers, et cetera—because if we do not get this right, these communities where you see these dots on the map, which are shown in the Mardi Gras colors—purple, gold, and green—these dots represent communities that are being affected by this program that needs to be changed and reformed.

These are flood maps that are being issued. Look how many there are in Oregon, Washington, California, Texas. What really surprised me—because I know the gulf coast well; that is the area, of course, that I represent, Louisiana; and I know Texas and Mississippi and Florida very well—but the area that surprised me was Pennsylvania and Illinois and, of course, New York, New Jersey, and the east coast because of Superstorm Sandy. But this is a national issue. It is not a Louisiana issue. It is not a gulf coast issue. It is a national issue.

You will notice that these flood maps are not just along the coast. Some people say to us who are working on this: Well, I am not concerned because I do not represent a coastal State. Well, heads up, everyone. Even if you do not represent a coastal State, you are having flood maps issued from North Dakota, South Dakota, interior States, Kansas, Arkansas, et cetera, because you have rivers and flood zones.

If we do not change this bill in a significant way—what we are asking for in the Menendez-Isakson bill, which we are here offering as an amendment to the defense authorization bill—many of these communities will be devastated. That is because the Biggert-Waters bill has mandated fairly steep and unsustainable and unaffordable—to the middle class—rate increases that will simply prevent people from being able to stay in their homes.

My friend Senator WICKER is following me in this colloquy. He wants to speak specifically about the hardships that some of our people are experiencing as they are getting these notices about the rate increases. I ask Senator WICKER, what is he hearing in Mississippi? Could the Senator elaborate a minute about the unintended consequences of Biggert-Waters and the increases that some of our people are seeing in their primary homes as well as their businesses.

Mr. WICKER. Madam President, I thank my colleague from Louisiana for asking that question.

What I am hearing from Mississippi, and what I think we are going to be hearing from all across the United States of America, is that this is about to be a disaster for property owners in the United States of America. So I join my colleagues today—and perhaps there will be others besides the three of us on the floor—in saying we need to address the very real problem of increases in flood insurance premiums, which will unfairly hurt homeowners and businesses in my home State of Mississippi and across the United States of America.

I appreciate my colleague presenting the map to show that this is indeed a national problem and not just a regional or coastal problem. The severe onset of unaffordable rates—unaffordable rates—could have a devastating impact on the livelihood of homeowners and communities throughout the Nation and on our economy. Moreover, they could jeopardize the long-term solvency of the National Flood Insurance Program, which covers some 5.6 million Americans.

There is no doubt that NFIP faces enormous challenges. The damages wrought by storms such as Katrina, Rita, and Sandy have left the NFIP in the red for nearly a decade, amounting to nearly $24 billion at the last count.

In the early years of the NFIP, when bad storm years were roughly offset by light storm years, taxpayers effectively carried policyholders through years because of the NFIP's authority to borrow from the Treasury. However, the catastrophic 2004–2005 hurricane seasons put the program more than $20 billion in debt and disproved the notion that the finances would balance out over time.

The principles for NFIP reform are worthy goals. Premiums need to reflect risks more accurately, flood risks must be projected and mapped more accurately, and the purchase of flood insurance needs to be encouraged and enforced in order to enlarge the risk pool.

We cannot expect the NFIP to continue as a viable program without addressing the huge imbalance between premium revenue and payments for losses. At the same time, Congress cannot sit by in the face of these dramatic unaffordable rate increases facing many Americans.

The manner in which these reforms are being implemented is alienating the very people the program is intended to help. The new rates penalize people who have followed the rules, while placing the heaviest burden on those who are only now recovering from recent disasters.

In communities still recovering from recent Mississippi River flooding and in communities along the gulf coast, where the aftermath of Katrina still lingers, a financial burden of this magnitude could force homeowners either to leave their property unprotected or to move away altogether.

Ensuring the long-term success of the NFIP means taking an honest look at how the reforms Congress enacted last year are being implemented and whether they are unfairly hurting citizens—and I contend they are. Allowing rates to go from a few hundred dollars to tens of thousands of dollars is hardly a reasonable approach to reform.

Reform should not be unnecessarily painful, unfair, or counterproductive to the goal of solvency. Premium increases that make the coverage literally unaffordable could lead to a net loss in program revenue. Nobody benefits from that. Nobody benefits, neither the homeowner nor the taxpayer, when NFIP premium increases result in foreclosure.

I am concerned that NFIP may well have overestimated net revenue increases. They may have underestimated the burden of the program going forward. That alone would be a good reason to delay the increases, if a longer phase-in would result in a net increase in revenue to the program, as I suspect it would.

A delay would also allow time to study the effects of premium increases and it would allow us, as policymakers, to look for less harmful approaches to reform. The Federal Emergency Management Agency should be able to complete an affordability study and ensure that its technologies and methodologies accurately assess risk.

I thank my colleague from Louisiana and I thank my colleague from Florida for joining us. I urge all of my colleagues to support action that provides immediate relief to Americans facing these steep rate hikes.

Ms. LANDRIEU. I thank the Senator from Mississippi for his comments and engaging in this exchange on the floor this morning.

The Senator from Florida has been particularly concerned because Florida has a very robust population as one of our largest States. I think the Senator has over 2 million policies in Florida.

Through the Chair, I wish to ask what the Senator is hearing in Florida about this situation.

Mr. NELSON. I thank the Senator from Louisiana for inquiring.

I can say that Federal flood insurance that is not affordable is not Federal flood insurance. To go from a position that one is paying rates at one level and all of a sudden go to a higher position, people are completely priced out of the market and all of the ancillary things that go with it because people can't sell their homes. When one puts that ripple effect through the entire economy, especially in a State such as mine that has more coastline than any State save for Alaska and where we have 40 percent of all the flood insurance policies.

I dealt with this, I would say to the Senator from Louisiana, because in my former life I was the elected insurance commissioner of Florida. Fortunately, I had no jurisdiction over the Federal Flood Insurance Program, but other insurance companies that offered it privately or supplemented the Federal flood insurance we did have jurisdiction to regulate.

People cannot build a house—if they are going to a bank to get a mortgage—unless they have flood insurance. Now that the maps, as the Senator has pointed out, have been expanded showing there are a lot more areas that are inundated by water, by flood, at times of the year, then this becomes, for the engine of commerce, a critical component. One can't be charging one price and suddenly say we are going to be charging people four times as much.

Let us have a little common sense. A little common sense says we want FEMA to do an affordability study and, in the meantime, until we receive that study, we want this put on hold. It does not say it is not going to go up in the future, but availability of insurance is directly proportional to the ability of people to pay for that insurance and to continue the American dream, which home ownership is.

I would ask if the Senator from Louisiana remembers how long we have been trying to get this going. To the great credit of the Senator from Louisiana, who has taken the lead, she saw the problem early before people started complaining in my State and other States. They were complaining in the State of Louisiana. Senator LANDRIEU was on top of it. We have only been doing this for about 8 months. We have a vehicle on the floor that is a must-pass vehicle. It is the Defense authorization bill. We need to get this legislation amended onto it and have it signed into law.

I thank the Senator from Louisiana. Ms. LANDRIEU. I thank the Senator from Florida.

The Senator is correct about urgency. As the Presiding Officer knows, in her own home State, we are hearing from people who are stuck literally between a rock and a hard place because they can't get their insurance renewed. They can't afford the premium increases.

If they were thinking about selling their home, their home basically has become literally worthless, losing what equity they have—temporarily we hope because we intend to fix this—because no one can purchase a home if the flood insurance went from $300 a year to $13,000 or $15,000 a year. It is affecting home ownership.

This is why I am proud to say—I see the Senator from Mississippi on the floor.

I wish to say how grateful I am to the great coalition of Senators who have come together, 24 Senators and 128 House Members. In addition, we have the National Association of Realtors, the National Association of Home Builders, and the Independent Community Bankers of America.

I wish to ask the Senator from Mississippi, through the Chair, does the Senator think we have a better chance of getting attention for our bill with the national strong support of the realtors, the homebuilders, and the bankers?

What is the Senator hearing from them in his State of Mississippi?

Mr. COCHRAN. If the distinguished Senator would yield, I would be pleased to respond.

It is a fact that the Homeowner Flood Insurance Affordability Act, which we are discussing, seeks to protect homeowners from increases in the cost of flood insurance premiums until the administration reviews and reports to the Congress on the flood mapping technologies, methodologies, and insurance affordability that are being issued under the authority of existing laws.

One problem we are concerned about is that the program was supposed to protect taxpayer investments, communicate perceived flood risks to homeowners, and encourage communities to protect themselves against flood risks.

The reform legislation enacted in 2012 made some positive changes in the program. Today some of those changes are now working in opposition to the broader goals of reform; hence, the importance of this legislation. These shortcomings existed in the law and they actually threaten to weaken the National Flood Insurance Program.

The success of flood insurance is so important to many inland and coastal States, such as mine and Louisiana, the State of the distinguished Senator. Communities there continue to work to overcome damages caused by the greatest natural disaster in our Nation's history, the effects of the Deepwater Horizon spill in 2010 and now skyrocketing flood insurance premiums.

Under the Homeowner Flood Insurance Affordability Act, the administration would be required to provide assurances to Congress that it is using sound mapping methods to make flood insurance rate determinations. A study by the National Academy of Science produced in March of this year has called into question some of the engineering practices the government uses to determine rates.

Before allowing unaffordable flood insurance rates to devalue private property and harm local communities and economies, we should be absolutely sure the government's engineering practices and procedures are as sound as possible. It will be very difficult to rebuild communities or restore home equity once they are lost, so we had better get it right.

Our bill does not create new programs to address rising premiums. It simply leaves in place some current practices so we can make sure the re-productive reforms we enacted last year will actually improve the credibility of the program among communities and homeowners.

Our bill would not affect positive reforms related to expanding program participation or the phaseout of subsidized flood insurance premiums for vacation homes and homes that have a history of repeated flooding.

My principal purpose of coming to the floor was to thank the distinguished Senator from Louisiana for her leadership as she continues to be our outfront person in dealing with some of the very challenging facts and decisions that are coming from those who are trying to improve the program at the Federal level but also at the State and local level, which is where the action is. I am pleased to join her in this plea to the Senate.

Ms. LANDRIEU. I thank the distinguished Senator from Mississippi. I appreciate his hard work as well as the staff. It has been a real team effort and without him we wouldn't be where we are today.

The Senator from Massachusetts is scheduled next in this colloquy. She has brought a particularly spectacular view, a different view, and a much needed view from the east coast, not only in light of the devastation from Hurricane Sandy but the ongoing challenges to that region.

I wish to ask unanimous consent, as it is 12:30 p.m., when we were supposed to end, if each of us takes 4 minutes in the order of Senator WARREN, Senator HOEVEN, and Senator MERKLEY, we could then recess for lunch as was required earlier.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Ms. LANDRIEU. What is the Senator hearing at home from the people of Massachusetts about this, and how important does she think it is for us to have the support of the realtors and the homebuilders and other national organizations that understand the dire consequences if we are not able to get some of these fixes in place?

Ms. WARREN. I thank the Senator from Louisiana for the question, but most of all I thank her for her energetic leadership on this issue; she will help us find the right way forward.

I am here today because of what I am hearing from families in Massachusetts. I also thank the Senator from Mississippi. This is something that is hitting us all around the country—this change in the flood maps. So I am here today to support my colleagues' bipartisan efforts to help homeowners across the country who are getting hit with newly revised flood maps and increased flood insurance premiums.

Families purchase flood insurance to prevent the loss of their homes during a natural disaster, but now many of these same families fear that the price of flood insurance could be just as devastating and could actually cost them their homes.

I understand why Congress changed the national flood program to more accurately reflect the true costs and risks of flood damage, and I agree that over time we need to move to a more market-based system for setting flood insurance rates, providing we adequately take into account the affordability concerns for working families. But that is not what is happening right now. These new maps and rate increases are having as big an impact as a big storm.

When FEMA released these flood maps earlier this year and last, they knew they were placing hundreds of thousands of homeowners into a flood zone for the very first time. Yet there was inadequate warning to homeowners. Many have started receiving letters from their mortgage companies and are learning for the first time that they must now purchase flood insurance. We have heard about the costs—$500, $1,000 a month, even more. Most hard-working families and most seniors don't have that kind of extra money on hand to spend on flood insurance premiums they never knew they needed.

One Massachusetts resident wrote to me and said:

I have owned my property for over 33 years. Twelve years ago I built a house according to the codes at the time. Recently, flood maps were redrawn, putting my home in a new flood zone and out of compliance. The implementation of the Biggert-Waters act is going to raise our flood insurance to $10,000 or more per year. I follow the rules, and now the rules are changing, leaving me few options to comply.

The Homeowner Flood Insurance Affordability Act that I have cosponsored along with Senator LANDRIEU and so many others will provide relief to this homeowner and to others who built to code and were later remapped into a higher risk area. This critical bill will delay rate increases until FEMA completes affordability studies mandated by the Biggert-Waters Flood Insurance Reform Act and until subsequent affordability guidelines are enacted.

There is a second problem with FEMA's actions. The reclassifications have taken place in some areas without a careful and complete analysis, but for those who believe they haven't been correctly classified, it is a tough challenge to get their flood zone status changed.

I received another letter from a Massachusetts constituent who lives in Brockton. She was informed that her only way out of this mess was to pay more than $1,000 for an engineer to come and conduct an elevation study of a nearby brook. Now, let's be clear. She had to spend this money even though the city of Brockton and the nearby Army Corps of Engineers have no record of the brook ever flooding. If her appeal is successful, she is still out $1,000 due to FEMA's mistake.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Ms. WARREN. Then I will just say I am pleased to join my colleagues on both sides of the aisle in calling for this commonsense delay which will give FEMA time to get this right. I thank Senator LANDRIEU for her leadership, and I thank Senators MENENDEZ, ISAKSON, COCHRAN, and all the cosponsors of this bill. Time is running out. We need to get this done.

I yield back.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Madam President, I thank the Senator so much.

Senator HOEVEN has joined us, and he has been particularly forceful on the issue of basements in a State that doesn't have an ocean anywhere around it but has some serious flooding challenges. I would hope the Senator would take a minute to explain to everyone what he has been telling us and how important this particular piece of this bill is for the basement situation in his State.

Mr. HOEVEN. Madam President, I thank the good Senator from Louisiana. I am very pleased to join in this colloquy with my cosponsors of this very important piece of legislation.

This is about affordability of home ownership. The American dream is about home ownership. It always has been, and we want to make sure that continues. So it is about affordability, but it is also about getting it right.

Look, if we are going to reset flood insurance rates, we need to get it right. This affects people across this great Nation. It affects their ability to own and continue to own their own home. We need to make sure, as we make this transition, which we are all working on—we are all working on it—that we get it right. So that is why we see this bipartisan legislation, and we urge our colleagues to join us in this effort. This is about home ownership, this is about affordability, and this is about getting it right.

To the point the good Senator from Louisiana just made and as the Chair knows well, in the great State of North Dakota we have the Red River Basin, the Cheyenne River Basin, we have the James River Basin, we have the Missouri River Basin, the Devils Lake Basin, and more. So we know flooding, and we have seen it from year to year.

There are a number of provisions in this bill which the Senator has already identified which are critically important, and I will not repeat those, but I wish to focus for a minute on the basement exemption.

Legislation to preserve the basement exemption was included in the Hoeven-Heitkamp Flood Safe Basements Act, S. 1601. That has been incorporated into this bill. As sponsors, we appreciate that very much because this is a collaborative effort to get it right as we make this transition in flood insurance rates and make sure we protect the affordability on a fair basis as we move to financial viability for the long term for flood insurance rates.

When a homeowner has put the cost into making sure they have a flood-proof basement, if we don't take that into account in the insurance rates, we are penalizing them and we are charging them twice. It makes no sense. It makes no sense at all. That is why we have to have the basement exemption continued in this legislation, and that is why its sponsors, on a bipartisan basis, are not only pursuing this as stand-alone legislation, but we are also introducing it as an amendment to the Defense authorization bill or other legislation that can move, because we need to address it and we need to address it now.

As the Chair well knows, the mayor of a small community in northeast North Dakota, which has seen repeated flooding, contacted our congressional delegation and said: Hey, look. What is going on with FEMA right now is they are changing these flood insurance rates, and we have examples of homeowners who are going from less than $1,000 a year to more than $5,000 a year—a fivefold increase—and it is not a new home. The home has been there a long time and it has never been flooded.

It has never been flooded, and they are going to go from less than $1,000 to $5,000 on a home that has been there for a long time and never been flooded? That is not how this is supposed to work. That is not how it is supposed to work, and that is why we need this legislation.

Again, I thank the good Senator from Louisiana. All of the sponsors—and we have a great bipartisan group going already—urge our colleagues to join us, and we urge them to join us without delay. We seek a common objective: We will adjust the flood insurance rates to make sure the program is viable for the long term, but we need to get it right, and that is what this is all about.

I yield the floor.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Madam President, we have all been extremely helpful, of course, as a team in bringing this issue forward and crafting a bill, but literally we would not be here if it were not for the leadership of the subcommittee chairman who has jurisdiction over this issue—if he had not said yes when we asked him for a hearing in his committee to allow us to present the facts in hopes that we could find a way, as all of us have said, to make this program self-sustainable for the taxpayers but helpful to the people who need it. These are twin goals, both of which must be met or there won't be any program because no one will be able to afford to be in it. I thank the Senator for getting to that so quickly.

He is the last in our colloquy. Again, what is he hearing from home and can he give us, as chair of the subcommittee, some insight into how he thinks this will affect real estate markets if we are not able to fix this.

Mr. MERKLEY. I thank my colleague from Louisiana for her tireless efforts in this regard. We can tell from the commentaries that have just been put forward from the Senator from Massachusetts, the Senator from Mississippi, the Senator from North Dakota, of course our colleague from Louisiana, and now representing Oregon, that these are folks representing blue States and red States and all types of different terrains, and they have the common purpose of addressing the dysfunction of the Biggert-Waters bill that was passed.

Just to give a small feeling for this, the Hay family from Eagle Creek, OR, wanted to sell their home. They had a nice young couple with solid financials who wanted to buy it. It was all approved except for the insurance policy. When the couple found out the insurance policy would not be the $500 the current family has been paying but $5,000 a year, the deal fell apart because for every $1,000 you pay in flood insurance, the value of the home drops by $20,000. So not only is the couple who wanted this home unable to buy it because of the home's value dropping, but the family who owned the home, who had equity in the home, and who hoped to take these funds into retirement to be their nest egg, has lost that nest egg due to these outrageous additional costs, these dramatic increases.

So the point of sale is one particular problem that has a big impact on the real estate market, but we also have the situation of someone who has a policy lapse. Maybe an individual thinks their mortgage company is paying the policy, the mortgage company thinks the owner is paying it, and it defaults for a few days. When everyone finds out no one has paid the bill, suddenly that family might be going, in that situation, from $500 to $5,000. Or perhaps the mortgage company has never enforced the provision requiring flood insurance and now they have checked their records—and they are checking their records because they are now being charged a significant multithousand-dollar fine if they do not check their records—and they find you should have flood insurance under the law but you don't, so they contact you. Well, now you are facing this unsubsidized rate as a new policy.

So we have all of this, and then layered on top of that is the fact that across the Nation the flood zones are being remapped. So folks who were outside of the 100 years and have been outside and have had their homes for 15 years are suddenly getting notified that they are inside the flood zone and required by their mortgage company to get a policy.

They may say: But wait, I looked at the map, and only the corner of my property is in the flood zone and my house isn't.

Well, the mortgage company says: We are sorry. You have to get this, and you have to then prove you are not in the flood zone.

It may cost those homeowners thousands of dollars to get an elevation survey and be able to demonstrate they are outside the flood zone. The homeowner carries this burden of proof.

So this is a big challenge, and we should recognize how uncertain and what an art form it is to establish these 100-year zones because a company comes in and does a model, and they say: Well, a 100-year flood will look like this, and they will point out what tributary, what watershed that contributes to the confluence of creeks is going to end up flooding that particular town.

Based on their model, the flood zone might look as though it is in the eastern section of the town or the western section of the town, and so on and so forth, that uncertainty where just inches can change whether you are inside a 100-year or outside a 100-year. Some of these areas are very flat. A few inches water rise can cover many additional square miles, and this can have a huge impact on our business districts, because what business wants to reinvest in a business district when now they feel that any improvements they make are going to be in an area where no one else is going to want to buy their company because they are in a situation where they have unaffordable flood insurance.

This is why we have come together—Democrats and Republicans, States from the North, South, East, and West coming together—to say we must change this situation which is creating so much unfairness and economic damage. I am delighted, as the chair of the subcommittee, to be fully engaged in partnering this. A special thanks to my colleague, the Senator from Louisiana, who is doing such a fine job of championing this issue.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Our time has come to an end. In conclusion, I thank the Senator from Oregon again, the subcommittee chair, for his leadership. I also particularly thank Senator MENENDEZ and Senator ISAKSON, the two lead sponsors of this bill, who have come together to provide the leadership to move this bill forward. They will be looking for a vehicle. We filed it on this bill in the event we have an opportunity for an amendment on the Defense bill. If not, we will be looking for the next possible opportunity.

I thank the Presiding Officer for her cosponsorship and her leadership for North Dakota.

This is a map of all the counties which have levees. I was surprised when I saw this map. I am very familiar with the levees in Louisiana. I helped to build a lot of them. I am very familiar with the Mississippi River generally because we have so much commerce along the Mississippi. I am generally familiar with Missouri, Illinois, and Arkansas. But what really stood out for me was the levee systems in Montana, Arizona, and California. A lot of these are levees, dikes, and dams that are different from the river levees that we see. But look at Pittsburgh, New York, North Dakota, Montana, Washington. There is not a place in this country—not on the coast, not on the interior—that doesn't have a threat of flooding. Either a levee can break, a dam can break, a river can overflow, or there can be flash flooding because of droughts. Even in Texas where there is a lot of flash flooding. So not only on the coast, but inland as well, in Kansas.

The conclusion is this is a real challenge for our whole Nation. We have a bill led by Senator MENENDEZ and Senator ISAKSON that costs and scores zero. We have written this bill in a way that just postpones these draconian rate increases so we can take a little more time to study it, do some modeling, and get it right. This bill was passed with very good intentions, but prematurely, without the data we need to make smart decisions for our communities. This is giving us time to get it right. There is zero cost the way this bill is structured.

Again, I appreciate the courtesies of our leader managing this bill on the floor.

I yield back the remainder of my time.

RECESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate stands in recess until 2:15 p.m.

Thereupon, the Senate, at 12:48 p.m., recessed until 2:15 p.m. and reassembled when called to order by the Presiding Officer (Ms. BALDWIN).

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2014—Continued

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent the time until 4 p.m. be for debate only, with the time being equally divided and controlled between the two leaders or their designees.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I hope Members will now come down and debate, particularly if we can start off again with the legislation on Guantanamo. There will be two amendments here. One will be an amendment by Senator AYOTTE and the other one would be an amendment by myself, with Senator MCCAIN. It will be a Levin-McCain amendment. I hope those who are interested in this subject particularly would come down between now and then and we can perhaps even reach a vote on Guantanamo, the two amendments, side-by-side, even later this afternoon. That is the goal. It is not part of the unanimous consent proposal, but that would be a goal.

I know my friend from Oklahoma and I are able to work things out most often, and we will try to figure out a way to hopefully get to a vote on two amendments which I think everybody agrees, not on the outcome of the vote, but agrees need to be debated and resolved.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. INHOFE. Madam President, first of all, let me say I appreciate all the help the chairman has given us during the course of this very difficult time. I also suggest we have gone through this same thing other years in the past.

One of the things is there are so many people demanding or wanting to have a system where we could have more amendments. I encourage anyone who has amendments to go ahead and send them to the floor. It doesn't do any good to talk about them unless you have them down here and in front of us. Then I hope the chairman and I could get together and we could have, actually, more amendments. Those people who want to be heard on this, we have adopted this timing, so we encourage you to come down and be heard.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I thank my friend from Oklahoma because he has said what needs to be said here, which is that we welcome amendments being brought to the floor. We will do our best to try to clear those amendments, which means obviously consulting with not just the sponsors but potential opponents to try to see if we can work things out. On this bill we have always been able to work out amendments, sometimes as many as 100. We need to have votes on this bill, but we also can clear amendments. We work together on a bipartisan basis to do that.

I join in his request that Senators who have amendments get them to us to see if we can possibly work them out. We simply must finish this bill this week. The timetable is such that if we are going to finish this bill, as we have for 51 straight years, we have to get this bill to conference. That, in and of itself, will take a week. Then we have to bring the conference report back, if we can reach an agreement on it, to both Houses, and that will take as much as a week as well under the rules, so we really need the cooperation of every Member of this body.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Mississippi.

Mr. WICKER. Madam President, I rise at this point to discuss Wicker amendment No. 2185. This is an important amendment. I hope the leadership of this committee is paying attention. My amendment would prohibit foreign governments from constructing, on U.S. soil, satellite positioning and ground monitoring stations. I think many Americans were surprised when, on November 16, the New York Times published an article by Michael Schmidt and Eric Schmitt entitled "A Russian GPS Using U.S. Soil Stirs Spy Fears."

I ask unanimous consent a copy of this article be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the New York Times, Nov. 16, 2013]

A RUSSIAN GPS USING U.S. SOIL STIRS SPY FEARS

(By Michael S. Schmidt and Eric Schmitt)

WASHINGTON.—In the view of America's spy services, the next potential threat from Russia may not come from a nefarious cyberweapon or secrets gleaned from the files of Edward J. Snowden, the former National Security Agency contractor now in Moscow.

Instead, this menace may come in the form of a seemingly innocuous dome-topped antenna perched atop an electronics-packed building surrounded by a security fence somewhere in the United States.

In recent months, the Central Intelligence Agency and the Pentagon have been quietly waging a campaign to stop the State Department from allowing Roscosmos, the Russian space agency, to build about half a dozen of these structures, known as monitor stations, on United States soil, several American officials said.

They fear that these structures could help Russia spy on the United States and improve the precision of Russian weaponry, the officials said. These monitor stations, the Russians contend, would significantly improve the accuracy and reliability of Moscow's version of the Global Positioning System, the American satellite network that steers guided missiles to their targets and thirsty smartphone users to the nearest Starbucks.

"They don't want to be reliant on the American system and believe that their systems, like GPS, will spawn other industries and applications," said a former senior official in the State Department's Office of Space and Advanced Technology. "They feel as though they are losing a technological edge to us in an important market. Look at everything GPS has done on things like your phone and the movement of planes and ships."

The Russian effort is part of a larger global race by several countries—including China and European Union nations—to perfect their own global positioning systems and challenge the dominance of the American GPS.

For the State Department, permitting Russia to build the stations would help mend the Obama administration's relationship with the government of President Vladimir V. Putin, now at a nadir because of Moscow's granting asylum to Mr. Snowden and its backing of President Bashar al-Assad of Syria.

But the C.I.A. and other American spy agencies, as well as the Pentagon, suspect that the monitor stations would give the Russians a foothold on American territory that would sharpen the accuracy of Moscow's satellite-steered weapons. The stations, they believe, could also give the Russians an opening to snoop on the United States within its borders.

The squabble is serious enough that administration officials have delayed a final decision until the Russians provide more information and until the American agencies sort out their differences, State Department and White House officials said.

Russia's efforts have also stirred concerns on Capitol Hill, where members of the intelligence and armed services committees view Moscow's global positioning network—known as Glonass, for Global Navigation Satellite System—with deep suspicion and are demanding answers from the administration.

"I would like to understand why the United States would be interested in enabling a GPS competitor, like Russian Glonass, when the world's reliance on GPS is a clear advantage to the United States on multiple levels," said Representative Mike D. Rogers, Republican of Alabama, the chairman of a House Armed Services subcommittee.

Mr. Rogers last week asked the Pentagon to provide an assessment of the proposal's impact on national security. The request was made in a letter sent to Defense Secretary Chuck Hagel, Secretary of State John Kerry and the director of national intelligence, James R. Clapper, Jr.

The monitor stations have been a high priority of Mr. Putin for several years as a means to improve Glonass not only to benefit the Russian military and civilian sectors but also to compete globally with GPS.

Earlier this year, Russia positioned a station in Brazil, and agreements with Spain, Indonesia and Australia are expected soon, according to Russian news reports. The United States has stations around the world, but none in Russia.

Russian and American negotiators last met on April 25 to weigh "general requirements for possible Glonass monitoring stations in U.S. territory and the scope of planned future discussions," said a State Department spokeswoman, Marie Harf, who said no final decision had been made.

Ms. Harf and other administration officials declined to provide additional information. The C.I.A. declined to comment.

The Russian government offered few details about the program. In a statement, a spokesman for the Russian Embassy in Washington, Yevgeniy Khorishko, said that the stations were deployed "only to ensure calibration and precision of signals for the Glonass system." Mr. Khorishko referred all questions to Roscosmos, which did not respond to a request for comment last week.

Although the Cold War is long over, the Russians do not want to rely on the American GPS infrastructure because they remain suspicious of the United States' military capabilities, security analysts say. That is why they have insisted on pressing ahead with their own system despite the high costs.

Accepting the dominance of GPS, Russians fear, would give the United States some serious strategic advantages militarily. In Russians' worst fears, analysts said, Americans could potentially manipulate signals and send erroneous information to Russian armed forces.

Monitor stations are essential to maintaining the accuracy of a global positioning system, according to Bradford W. Parkinson, a professor emeritus of aeronautics and astronautics at Stanford University, who was the original chief architect of GPS. As a satellite's orbit slowly diverges from its earlier prediction, these small deviations are measured by the reference stations on the ground and sent to a central control station for updating, he said. That prediction is sent to the satellite every 12 hours for subsequent broadcast to users. Having monitor stations all around the earth yields improved accuracy over having them only in one hemisphere.

Washington and Moscow have been discussing for nearly a decade how and when to cooperate on civilian satellite-based navigation signals, particularly to ensure that the systems do not interfere with each other. Indeed, many smartphones and other consumer navigation systems sold in the United States today use data from both countries' satellites.

In May 2012, Moscow requested that the United States allow the ground-monitoring stations on American soil. American technical and diplomatic officials have met several times to discuss the issue and have asked Russian officials for more information, said Ms. Harf, the State Department spokeswoman.

In the meantime, C.I.A. analysts reviewed the proposal and concluded in a classified report this fall that allowing the Russian monitor stations here would raise counterintelligence and other security issues.

The State Department does not think that is a strong argument, said an administration official. "It doesn't see them as a threat."

Mr. WICKER. This article elaborates on a proposal under review by our own State Department to allow the Russian space agency to construct half a dozen satellite ground monitoring stations on U.S. soil. The article describes these potential sites as "seemingly innocuous, dome-topped antenna perched atop an electronics-packed building surrounded by a security fence somewhere in the United States." Taken at face value, these Russian ground monitoring stations are supposed to improve the accuracy and reliability of Russia's version of the global positioning system.

According to the Times article, the Obama administration is actively considering this request by Moscow in an attempt to reset once again the administration's failed reset policy which the President once hailed as the beginning of better U.S.-Russian relations. We have every reason to be skeptical of Russia's intentions to utilize GPS monitoring stations on U.S. soil. Let me repeat this: GPS monitoring stations controlled by Russia on U.S. soil.

Time and again, President Putin has shown he is unwilling to cooperate with America. The list of grievances continues to grow. Let's not forget that Russia has granted asylum to Edward Snowden, who is charged with espionage and theft of U.S. government property after releasing up to 200,000 classified documents to the press.

Let's not forget that Russia has defended the brutal regime of Syrian President Bashar al-Assad and helped perpetuate the dictator's grip on power with military aid.

Let's not forget that Russia, the same Russia that wants to put GPS stations on U.S. soil, has denied Russian orphans a chance at a better life in the United States, with a ban on U.S. adoptions, ultimately victimizing the most vulnerable, in a desperate attempt to distract the world from Russia's human rights failings.

It is clear Russia's interests are not often aligned with those of the United States. Accordingly, I am deeply concerned and people within the intelligence community are deeply concerned and people within the Defense Department are deeply concerned about the Russian proposal to use U.S.

soil to strengthen Russia's GPS capabilities. These ground monitoring stations could be used for the purpose of gathering intelligence. Even more troubling, these stations could actually improve the accuracy of foreign missiles targeted at the United States.

Our national security and foreign policy apparatus is large and widespread. I do not question anyone's patriotism or the intentions of the State Department. But it is clear that there are other parts of the administration that are very concerned about this.

This morning I had the opportunity to review a classified report by DOD. I encourage all Members of the Senate to review this classified document and, to me, I think it will reaffirm the need for increased transparency on this very serious matter. Senators LEE, FISCHER, and CORNYN so far have joined me in filing an amendment to the Defense authorization bill that would fully inform the American people about the implications of the Russian proposal.

My amendment would prohibit the construction of GPS monitoring stations by any foreign government on U.S. soil until the Secretary of Defense and the Director of National Intelligence jointly certify to the Congress that these stations do not have the capability to gather intelligence or improve foreign weapons systems. My amendment would also require a report to Congress on the use of satellite positioning ground monitoring stations by foreign governments.

This amendment is simple and straightforward, and I urge my colleagues to support its inclusion in the Defense authorization bill. I encourage cosponsors from both sides of the aisle.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, on behalf of the Senate Armed Services Committee, we are pleased to bring S. 1197, the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2014, to the Senate floor. The Armed Services Committee approved the bill by a 23-3 vote on June 13, making this the 52nd consecutive year our committee has reported the Defense Authorization Act.

The strong bipartisan vote for this bill in the Armed Services Committee continues the tradition of our committee, where our Members have continued to come together to support the national defense and our men and women in uniform. I thank Senator INHOFE for the major contribution he has made to this process in his first year as the ranking Republican on the committee.

This year's bill would authorize $625.1 billion for national defense programs, the same amount as the President's budget request. Unless the Congress acts to modify or eliminate the sequestration required by the Budget Control Act, however, this amount will automatically be reduced by $50 billion, leaving the Department of Defense with far less than it needs to meet the requirements of our national military strategy.

U.S. forces are drawing down in Afghanistan and are no longer deployed in Iraq. However, the real threats to our national security remain and our forces are deployed throughout the globe. Over the course of the last year, the civil war in Syria has become increasingly destructive, North Korea has engaged in a series of provocative acts, Iran has moved forward with its nuclear program, and Al Qaeda affiliates have continued to seek safe havens in Yemen, Somalia, North Africa, and elsewhere.

It is particularly important that we do what we can to sustain the compensation and quality of life our service men and women and their families deserve as they face the hardships imposed by continuing military operations around the world. Toward this end, our bill, No. 1, authorizes a 1-percent across-the-board pay raise for all members of the uniformed services, consistent with the President's request; it reauthorizes over 30 types of bonuses and special pays aimed at encouraging enlistment, reenlistment, and continued service by Active-Duty and Reserve component military personnel. It does not include Department of Defense proposals to establish or increase health care fees, deductibles, and copayments that would primarily affect working-age military retirees and their families. It authorizes $25 million in supplemental impact aid to local educational agencies with military dependent children and $5 million in impact aid for schools with military dependent children with severe disabilities, and provides funding for the Department of Defense STARBASE Program. It enhances the Department of Defense programs to assist veterans in their transition to civilian life by improving access to credentialing programs for civilian occupational specialties.

The bill also includes funding needed to provide our troops the equipment and support they need for ongoing combat, counterinsurgency, and stability operations around the world. For example, the bill funds the President's request for $80.7 billion for overseas contingency operations. It authorizes $9.9 billion for U.S. special operations command, including both base budget funding and OCO funding. It authorizes nearly $1 billion for counter-IED efforts, beginning to ramp down expenditures in this area while ensuring that we make investments needed to protect our forces from roadside bombs.

The bill fully funds the President's request for the Afghan Security Forces Fund to train and equip the Afghan National Army and Afghan police, growing their capabilities so we can complete the transition of security responsibility as planned by the end of 2014.

It reauthorizes the use of DOD funds to support a program to reintegrate insurgent fighters into the Afghan forces and into Afghanistan. It authorizes the Secretary of Defense—upon a determination from the President that it is in the national security interest of the United States—to use up to $150 million of amounts authorized for the Coalition Support Fund account in fiscal years 2013 and 2014 to support the border security operations of the Jordanian Armed Forces, and it extends global train-and-equip authority, section 1206, through 2018 to help build the capacity of foreign force partners to conduct counterterrorism and stability operations.

The bill before us addresses major issues that are of particular importance to the Department of Defense, relative to the detention facility at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, and the problem of sexual assault and misconduct in the military.

As to Guantanamo, this bill would provide our military with needed flexibility to determine how long we need to detain individuals now held in the Gitmo detention facility and where else we might hold them. For a number of years now Congress has enacted legislation eliminating this flexibility and requiring that we continue to hold all Gitmo detainees regardless of costs and whether it is needed in our national security interest. The existing legislation has made it more difficult to try detainees for their crimes and nearly impossible to return them to their home countries.

For example, even if we have a strong case that a detainee has committed crimes for which he could be indicted and convicted in a Federal court, the existing law makes it impossible to try him there. Even if we have determined that a detainee poses no ongoing security threat to the United States, we cannot send them back to his home country unless the Secretary of Defense certifies to six stringent conditions. Even if the individual is likely to die without advanced medical treatment, we cannot remove him from Gitmo for the purpose of receiving such treatment.

As a result, the legislation we have on the books has reinforced the impression held by many around the world that Guantanamo is a legal black hole where we hold detainees without recourse. This perception has been used by our enemies to recruit jihadists to attack us, and it has made our friends less willing to cooperate with us in our efforts to fight terrorism around the world.

The Gitmo detention facility is not only a recruiting tool for our enemies, but it has become an obsolete white elephant that costs hundreds of millions of dollars a year. It can no longer be justified based on the rationale for creating Gitmo in the first place.

One dozen years ago, the Bush administration started sending detainees to Gitmo in large part out of a desire to avoid the jurisdiction of the U.S. courts and ensure that detainees would have no legal avenue to appeal their convictions. Whether one supported that approach, that argument all but disappeared in 2008 when the Supreme Court ruled in the Boumediene case that Gitmo detainees would be treated as being inside the United States for the purpose of habeas corpus appeals.

Instead of recognizing that the Gitmo detention facility is no longer needed, however, we have enacted legislation which makes it virtually impossible to move detainees anywhere else, ensuring that the facility will remain open whether it is needed for particular detainees or not. The current law prohibits the transfer of any detainee to the United States for detention under the law of armed conflict or trial before a military commission or in civilian court and includes unduly burdensome certification requirements that make it extremely difficult to transfer detainees back to their home countries.

The basis for these legislative obstacles appears to be the fear that returning Gitmo detainees to their home countries or transferring them to the United States would pose an unacceptable threat to our national security. However, we have brought numerous terrorists to the United States for trial and incarceration without adverse effect to our national security.

In just the last 3 years, for example, we have brought three foreign terrorists into the United States for trial. The first is Abu Ghaith, Osama bin Laden's son-in-law, who has been convicted in Federal court and remains in Federal custody without incident. The second is Ahmed Abdulkadir Warsame, who pled guilty in Federal court and remains in Federal custody without incident. The third is Ahmed Ghailani, a Gitmo detainee who was convicted in Federal court, received a life sentence, and remains in Federal custody without incident.

Moreover, our military has routinely detained individuals on the battlefield in Afghanistan and then exercised the discretion to transfer them to local jurisdiction or to release them. If we can trust our military to make these determinations on a day-to-day basis, we should be able to trust them to make the same determinations at Gitmo.

The risk that any of these detainees could once again engage in activities hostile to our interests around the world has been substantially reduced by the rigorous procedures our military has instituted to review individual cases and ensure that appropriate protections are in place before transferring any detainee back to his home country.

These procedures have resulted in a dramatic decline in the so-called recidivism rate over the last 5 years. While more than 160 Gitmo detainees released by the Bush administration are known or suspected to have engaged in activities hostile to our interest after their transfer or release, only 7 detainees released by the Obama administration—less than 10 percent of the total—are known or suspected to have engaged in such activities.

This rigorous review process would be codified by the provision in our bill which would require that the Secretary of Defense determine, prior to transferring a Gitmo detainee, that the transfer is in our national security interest and that actions have been taken to mitigate any risks that the detainee could again engage in any activity that threatens U.S. persons or interest.

It is time for us to move past the fear that our country somehow lacks the capacity to handle Gitmo detainees and allow our military to address the transfer of detainees in a rational manner based on the facts of each case.

As to sexual misconduct, this bill includes the most comprehensive legislation targeting sexual misconduct and assault in the military ever considered by Congress. Our committee adopted more than two dozen separate provisions and a host of historic, significant reforms addressing sexual assault and prevention. In particular, the bill makes it a crime under the Uniform Code of Military Justice to retaliate against a victim who reports a sexual assault, and it requires the DOD IG to review and investigate any allegation of such retaliation.

Our bill establishes the expectation that commanders will be relieved of their command if they fail to maintain a climate in which victims can come forward without fear.

Our bill requires service Secretaries to provide a special victims' counsel to provide legal advice and assistance to servicemembers who are victims of a sexual assault committed by a member of the Armed Forces.

Our bill amends article 60 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice to limit the authority of a commander to overturn a verdict for rape, sexual assault, forcible sodomy, and other serious offenses.

Our bill eliminates the element of the character of the accused from the factors to be considered in deciding how to proceed with the case.

Our bill requires commanding officers to immediately refer any allegation of a sexual misconduct offense involving service members to the appropriate investigative agency.

Our bill requires that the sentence for service members convicted of rape, sexual assault, forcible sodomy or an attempt to commit one of those offenses, include, at a minimum, a dismissal or dishonorable discharge.

Our bill requires that all substantiated complaints of sexual-related offenses be noted in the service record of the offender.

Our bill eliminates the 5-year statute of limitations on trial by court-martial for certain sexual-related offenses.

Our bill codifies a prohibition on military service by individuals convicted of sexual offenses.

Some have argued we should also change the military justice system by removing commanders from their current role in deciding what cases should be prosecuted and instead place that authority in the hands of military lawyers. However, the testimony before our committee showed that commanders, far from being reluctant to prosecute sexual offenses, are more likely to prosecute those offenses than civilian or military lawyers.

Further, removing authority from commanding officers would distance them from these cases and make them less accountable, making it more difficult for them to take the steps needed to protect victims from peer pressure, ostracism, and retaliation. While taking authority away from the chain of command would indeed be a dramatic change, this change would actually afford the victims of sexual assault less protection and make it less likely that sexual assaults will be prosecuted than the current system.

For this reason, we adopted an alternative approach that will better protect victims. Our approach is to require a commander who receives an allegation of sexual assault to either prosecute it or have it automatically reviewed by his or her commander—almost a general or flag officer—and if a commander chooses not to prosecute against the advice of legal counsel, the case receives automatic review by a service Secretary. This approach will enable commanders to continue an aggressive approach to prosecuting sexual offenses while ensuring against the unusual case in which a commander might decide not to pursue a case that could be successfully prosecuted.

An important part of this problem is the underreporting and inadequate investigation of sexual assaults. There is still inadequate reports for victims of sexual assaults. There is also a problem with retaliation, ostracism, and peer pressure from victims. Underneath it all remains a culture that has taken inadequate steps to correct this situation. In the end, getting this right will require sustained leadership by commanders who can be held accountable for conduct in their units. It is more difficult to hold someone accountable for failure to act if we reduce his or her authority to act.

We want commanders fully engaged in the resolution of this problem and not divorced from it. Throughout our deliberations on this issue, we were guided by a single goal: passing the strongest, most effective measures to combat sexual assault by holding perpetrators accountable and protecting and supporting victims. We believe our bill does that.

Our country relies on the men and women of our military and the civilians who support them to keep us safe and to help us meet U.S. national security objectives around the world. We expect them to put their lives on the line every day, and in return we tell them we will stand by them and their families, that we will provide them with the best training, the best equipment, and the best support available to any military anywhere in the world.

As of today, we have roughly 1.4 million U.S. soldiers, sailors, airmen, and marines serving on Active Duty—with tens of thousands engaged in combat in Afghanistan and stationed in other regional hotspots around the globe.

While there are issues on which Members may disagree, we all know we must provide our troops the support they need. Senate action on the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2014 will improve the quality of life for our men and women in uniform and their families. It will give them the tools they need to remain the most effective fighting force in the world, and most important of all, it will send an important message that we as a nation stand behind them and appreciate their service.

I look forward to working with all of our colleagues to pass this vital legislation and again would urge all of our colleagues who have amendments to bring them to our attention so we can try very hard to clear amendments which can get support on both sides of the aisle and which have no strong objection.

This has been a process which has worked for as many years as I have been here, and it is the only way we are going to be able to get a bill passed this week. Again, it is critically important that this bill pass this week or else there seems to be very little hope we could actually get a bill to conference and back to both Houses.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. MANCHIN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent to speak for up to 5 minutes, and that after I conclude my remarks, Senator CHAMBLISS be recognized, followed by Senator AYOTTE.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MANCHIN. Madam President, I rise to highlight for Senators the important work of the Airland Subcommittee in the fiscal year 2014 National Defense Authorization Act as reported by the Committee on Armed Services. I am very proud to be the chairman of the Airland Subcommittee and for the close working relationship I have with Senator WICKER, the ranking member of the subcommittee.

The Airland Subcommittee has broad responsibilities for substantial parts of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force budgets. The Airland Subcommittee also has responsibility for National Guard and Reserve equipment and readiness. As a former governor, I know firsthand how effective the National Guard is, and they provide a great value for all Americans.

Throughout this process the goal of the Airland Subcommittee has been to promote and improve current and future readiness of our military, all while ensuring the most efficient and effective use of taxpayer dollars. This year the Airland Subcommittee has jurisdiction over $49 billion of the Defense Department's base and overseas contingency budget. This includes $37.1 billion for procurement and $11.9 billion for research and development.

In this regard the Airland Subcommittee's recommendation fully supports the Department's budget request for Overseas Contingency Operations and would support most of the major weapons and equipment programs in the base as requested. However, sequestration presents many challenges. We can no longer spend billions of dollars buying equipment the military does not need or want. Just a few days ago, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of staff, General Dempsey, provided me with a list of programs the Department of Defense no longer needs and they want to retire.

This much is clear: We can no longer conduct business as usual. In fact, the Bowles-Simpson Commission recommended the Department of Defense and Congress establish a commission that would review major weapons programs unneeded by the Department. This is something we should take a look at. I look forward to working with my colleagues on this important issue, and the National Commission on the Structure of the Air Force is already reviewing and will make recommendations on the retirements and divestiture of aircraft the military no longer needs.

In future subcommittee work I will be reviewing General Dempsey's list and will be working with my colleagues on the programs the Department no longer needs.

Congress must debate this important issue so that we spend every dollar we have wisely and keep our military the strongest in the world.

I wish to compliment Senator WICKER again on how well we have worked together this year, and I thank Chairman LEVIN, Ranking Member INHOFE, and the wonderful committee staff who have worked so closely with my staff and me on this bill.

Madam President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Georgia.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Madam President, first of all, let me say to my friend from West Virginia—I happen to serve on that subcommittee and I was in the hearing the other day when he asked a question of General Dempsey, a very appropriate question. We thought a very strong answer was going to be given by Senator Dempsey to the question of the Senator from West Virginia regarding weapons systems and other expenditures that are mandated by Congress that the chiefs and other folks at the Pentagon have said they don't need. As he and I were just discussing, we finally got that letter yesterday, and it was somewhat of a very tepid response rather than the strong response we had hoped for.

In any event, the Senator from West Virginia, along with Senator COBURN and myself, are going to work together to develop a list of expenditures that are either unwanted by the Pentagon that Congress has mandated or expenditures that ought to be spent in some other agency but, unfortunately, are being charged to the Pentagon. So I look forward to working with the chairman on that issue, and I thank him and Senator WICKER for their leadership on the subcommittee.

I rise principally today in support of the Ayotte-Chambliss-Inhofe amendment No. 2255, which would restore many of the legislative limits and requirements Congress has placed in recent years on the transfer of Guantanamo Bay detainees and prevent medical-related transfers to the United States. I believe these legislative safeguards are vital to our national security and essential to good intelligence collection.

For several years now we have been debating the status of Guantanamo Bay and the detainees who remain there. Time and time again, during the course of these debates, I have asked this administration to come up with a viable, long-term detention and interrogation policy. Frankly, they have failed to do so because of a stubborn commitment to a poorly thought out campaign promise to close Guantanamo.

The call to close Guantanamo may sound like a good campaign sound bite to some people but, frankly, in the real world of national security it undermines good intelligence collection and increases the risks that dangerous detainees will be back on the streets where they can continue, as they have, to kill and harm Americans. These are not abstract theories; they are facts. The recidivism rate is nearly 29 percent and has been climbing steadily since detainees began being released from Guantanamo. This includes nearly 10 percent of detainees who have returned to the fight after being transferred by the current administration following the administration's extensive review of each detainee.

Al Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula counts former Guantanamo detainees not just among its members but among its leaders. A former Guantanamo detainee is believed to have been involved in last year's Benghazi attacks that killed our ambassador and three other Americans.

The administration's stubborn refusal to add even one more terrorist to the Gitmo detainee population has forced the executive branch back into the pre-9/11 mindset of treating terrorists as ordinary criminals—a mindset we know doesn't work. A lot of people will come to this floor on the other side of the aisle and say: Well, we have tried all of these terrorists in article III courts in the United States and it has worked. For the most part, they have been convicted, and they are now serving time. That is a fairly accurate statement. However, what they fail to say is that these article III trials of terrorists who have been arrested inside the United States are nowhere near the caliber of those who planned and carried out the attacks of 9/11 as well as those who were captured on the battlefield seeking to kill and harm

Americans and, in a lot of instances, did kill Americans and maim Americans, and they are now housed at Guantanamo. That is a very, very distinct difference, and those prisoners should not be treated the same as an ordinary common burglar is treated in an article III court here in the United States.

In response to criticisms of the approach that the mindset of 9/11 is being returned to, the administration now seems to favor interrogations on board naval vessels. The end result, however, has been no different. At the end of these brief interrogations, those individuals have been transferred to Federal courts here in the United States where they are unlikely to provide any more intelligence information because they have been Mirandized and are now awaiting trial.

From the Christmas Day bomber to the Boston bomber to the East Africa embassies bomber, this preference for criminal prosecution at the expense of intelligence collection has become the administration's standard operating procedure. This is no way to defend our Nation, and it sends a message of weakness to terrorists and our allies alike.

This amendment Senator AYOTTE, Senator INHOFE, and I are putting forward sends the right message to the American people. It ensures that our detention practices have clarity for the next year and that on a permanent basis no detainee will be transferred overseas unless there is a clear certification that the transfer is in the best interests of the United States. This also sends a very clear message to the terrorists at Guantanamo Bay: You are not coming to the United States where you will have the advantage of article III courts.

This amendment includes five provisions.

No. 1, it imposes a 1-year ban on transfers to the United States of Guantanamo detainees, except in cases after the date of enactment where the detainee is sent to Guantanamo for purposes of interrogation.

No. 2, it imposes a 1-year ban on transfers of detainees to Yemen—and I will speak more about that in a minute.

No. 3, it imposes a 1-year ban on building or modifying facilities inside the U.S. to house Guantanamo detainees.

No. 4, it makes permanent the certification requirements needed before any transfer of a detainee overseas.

Lastly, it strikes the provision in the bill that allows transfers of detainees to the United States purely for medical care.

Let me address each provision very briefly. First, I have yet to hear why it is a good idea to bring Guantanamo detainees to the United States. While the President made a promise to close Guantanamo, the American people seem unified against bringing these detainees to the U.S. for any reason, and I believe we should listen to the American people.

It is clear that giving the Secretary of Defense the authority to decide to bring detainees here for detention, trial, and incarceration will have the same impact as Congress lifting the prohibition outright. But the same issues we have been talking about for several years and that GAO identified in its 2012 report on detention options inside of the United States still exists. These include cost considerations, questions about the legal status of the detainees, and concerns about protecting the general public and personnel at these facilities or during trial.

Let's look at who these 164 individuals are that remain at Guantanamo. We started out with about 860-something, as I recall, give or take a few. So we have already released both to other countries and, in some cases where we frankly made a mistake, individuals who should not have been there, or it has been determined by the appropriate reviewing committees that these detainees were OK to be sent back to their country of origin or to some other host country that was willing to take them and supervise them or keep them in detention but to get them out of Guantanamo. Now, the 164 who are remaining are the meanest, nastiest terrorists in the world, frankly. They are the ones nobody is going to want. So if nobody else wants them, why should we allow them to come to the United States?

These are the individuals who either planned and masterminded the attack on the United States on September 11, 2001, such as Khalid Shaikh Mohammed, or they are individuals we picked up on the battlefield who were actively engaged in fighting and killing Americans, as well as engaged in building bombs that were intended to—and in a lot of instances did—explode and kill or injure Americans.

Some of these folks range from KSM to the USS Cole bomber who are awaiting trial and, frankly, should be tried at Guantanamo. In other words, they are dangerous detainees who should not and cannot be sent, as I said, to any other country.

Many of us have been calling on the administration to send new detainees to Guantanamo simply for interrogation. Detainees such as al-Shabaab leader Ahmed Abdulkadir Warsame, East Africa Embassies bombing suspect Abu Anas al-Libi, who was arrested in Libya recently, and suspects in the Benghazi attacks all belong at Guantanamo where they can be interrogated for a long time under the rules and articles of war, without Miranda rights or criminal defense lawyers.

But this administration has consistently refused to even consider Guantanamo for interrogation of the meanest folks who still remain at large. It is off the table, as they tell us. Some have used the excuse that it is off the table because of this restriction in previous Defense authorization acts. In other words, the administration could not put any new detainees at Guantanamo for interrogation because they could not send them to Federal court for trial.

If this administration had made any effort at all, even just once, over the past 4 years to interrogate detainees at Guantanamo rather than holding them on a ship, this excuse would have much more merit. But to make sure there are no excuses anymore, our amendment makes clear that detainees who are sent to Guantanamo specifically for the purposes of interrogation after the date of enactment may still be transferred to the United States for trial in article III courts or before military tribunals. That means there is absolutely no need to hold another detainee on board a ship just to interrogate him. And there is absolutely no excuse for not putting new detainees at Guantanamo Bay. This provision makes sense for the security of this country, and it makes sense for good intelligence collection.

The ban on transfers to Yemen is a very critical aspect of this amendment. The amendment bans any detainee transfers to Yemen until December 31, 2014. It has been 4 years since the President imposed a moratorium on transfers to Yemen from Guantanamo following the failed airplane bombing attempt on Christmas Day 2009 by Umar Farouk Abdulmutallab. At that time, Yemen was viewed as a hotspot for terrorists, especially with the rise of Al Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula. Now, 4 years later, not much has really changed except for the rising recidivism rate. We know that former detainees have rejoined AQAP both as leaders and as members. We know Yemen continues to struggle with terrorist groups who are trying to make sure it remains an AQAP stronghold. And we know AQAP continues to look for ways, like the 2009 failed Christmas Day bombing, to attack this country.

We have all seen the reports that the administration wants to transfer detainees to Yemen and is working with the Yemeni Government to set up a detention or rehabilitation facility inside Yemen to house these prisoners. We learned from the Saudi rehabilitation program that rehabilitating hardened terrorists simply does not always work. The recidivism rate for the Saudi program is at least 20 percent. Many of these detainees, such as AQAP leader Said al-Shihri, ended up in Yemen fighting as terrorists again. Yemen, as one senior administration official described it, is like the Wild West. It is the last place we should send dangerous detainees. In other words, now is not the time to experiment with our national security.

Our amendment ensures that no detainee can be sent to Yemen over the next year. I recognize that there are Yemeni detainees who have been cleared for transfer, so we do not permanently prohibit those transfers. But just because a detainee is eligible for transfer from Guantanamo does not mean he no longer poses any threat at all. We have to remember that the easiest transfers have already been done, and even among those easy transfers, over a quarter of them have been known to be reengaged in the fight against Americans.

So our amendment imposes a reasonable time period on this prohibition: No transfers can occur until at least December 31, 2014. Over the next year we should have a better sense of how well the Yemeni Government is combating terrorists within its borders. Once we see their track record, we can decide whether it makes sense to send them any new detainees.

In the past, under the previous Government of Yemen, the detainees who were transferred from Guantanamo to Yemen simply were allowed to wander around in Yemen with no supervision whatsoever, and I daresay that we now do not have any idea where most of those detainees are inside of Yemen or, more significantly, whether they are still in Yemen, whether they are re-engaged in the fight, whether they are in Syria fighting on one side or the other, or what has gone on with those detainees.

Al Qaeda and its affiliates look up to Guantanamo detainees. They have immediate street credibility among terrorists, which makes it more tempting for them to rejoin the fight. We should not make it easier to transfer detainees anywhere, much less places where there are confirmed recidivists or a real threat from AQAP. The detainees, including many of the Yemenis, who remain at Guantanamo are among the worst offenders.

We should want all future transfers to be done wisely and fully in line with our national security interests. This amendment accomplishes those objectives.

Third, this amendment continues the ban on building or modifying facilities inside the United States to hold those detainees. It does not prohibit any changes to the facilities at Guantanamo Bay, so those facilities will continue to be state-of-the-art.

I understand that this administration wants to close Guantanamo and that the Justice Department has already purchased the correctional facility in Thomson, IL, to house them. But there is still overwhelming consensus here in Congress and among the American people that Guantanamo detainees should never set foot inside the United States. We need to listen to that consensus.

With that in mind, our amendment ensures that not one penny of American taxpayer dollars will be spent on the Thomson facility or to build or modify any other facility inside the United States to house Guantanamo detainees. Our amendment applies not just to Defense Department funding but to all U.S. Government funds. That way, no other Department, including the Justice Department, can try to circumvent the will of the American people and bring Guantanamo detainees to our homeland.

Many of us have been to Guantanamo. I have been there several times to see for myself how the detainees live and are treated. It is a first-rate prison facility. I have been to many prison facilities in my State as well as other parts of the country. It is one that would probably make most inmates at prisons here inside the United States very envious.

We should not forget that many of the detainees at Guantanamo are some of the most dangerous terrorists in the world. If they cannot be transferred to other countries, they do not belong in the United States.

This amendment also makes permanent the certification requirements that are needed before any detainee can be transferred outside of Guantanamo Bay. As I mentioned, the recidivism rate today is almost 29 percent and growing, so we should not make it easier to transfer detainees anywhere, much less to places where there are recidivists or real terrorist threats. The certification requirements and the ban on transfer if there is a confirmed recidivist in a host country were designed to lessen the likelihood that detainees would reengage.

I understand that some people want Guantanamo closed, but eliminating commonsense measures that are there to protect American citizens is not the way to do it. These measures give Congress and the American people confidence that the Defense Secretary has fully considered all aspects of the transfer, especially the host country's past record and current capabilities.

As the rising recidivism rate tells us, even detainees who have been cleared for transfer—through a very rigorous process, I might add—can still pose a threat. We have to remember that the easiest transfers have already been done, and even among those over a quarter have reengaged. The detainees who remain are among the worst offenders. We should want all future transfers to be done wisely and fully in line with our national security interests.

I do not find persuasive the argument that these certification requirements are so burdensome that detainees cannot be transferred. In fact, this year alone detainees have been transferred to Algeria, and we continue to get notices of other proposed transfers.

Not every detainee needs to stay at Guantanamo Bay. I recognize that, as do the other authors of this amendment. But not one should be released until we are absolutely certain that everything is being done to prevent new terrorist activity on the part of those individuals who are, in fact, released. These certification requirements give us that certainty. Making these requirements permanent is the only sure way to guarantee that each and every transfer is best for the national security of the United States.

Finally, this amendment restores the status quo by striking section 1032 in the bill, which allows the transfer of detainees into the United States for medical care. We need to remember that Guantanamo is a first-class facility, operated by dedicated military personnel who put up with an awful lot from detainees. I remember the first time I went to Guantanamo, they were housed in a facility that is not the facility they are in today. It was much more of an open facility where the guards simply would walk back and forth in very close range to the actual prisoners themselves. Those guards were subjected to being spit upon, having human waste thrown at them as well as food or anything the detainees could get their hands on. Needless to say, it was not a very nice place to be.

But we need to remember also that Guantanamo possesses not only first-class medical facilities but also first-class judicial facilities for the trial of these individuals. There is a state-of-the-art courtroom down there, which is being virtually unused today, that ought to be used to try these individuals before a military tribunal.

Section 1032 seems to be a solution in search of a problem. Guantanamo Bay has the facilities from a medical standpoint and the doctors within the military to treat these prisoners. And I am not aware of any instance in which a detainee has died or suffered further injury because of our inability to treat them at Guantanamo.

Aside from being unnecessary, this provision does not make good policy. Over the past several years detainees at Guantanamo have waged repeated hunger strikes in an effort to gain sympathy so the United States will release them from prison. When inmates in our prisons here engage in such tactics, we do not reward them, but that is exactly what section 1032 would do. If we give detainees the ability to be brought to the United States even for what is supposed to be temporary treatment, that is a powerful incentive for a detainee to injure himself or go on a hunger strike.

I am also concerned about how this provision would even be implemented. It is unclear whether we will have to modify military hospitals so they can handle high-value terrorist detainees. At what cost and at what risk to the safety of others, including the towns in which these facilities are located?

I appreciate that the provision tries to limit the rights of detainees when they are brought here, but we have been down this road before with habeas corpus rights. Once a detainee is physically inside the United States, it becomes much more difficult to argue against any change in immigration or legal status.

In my view, section 1032 is simply in this bill to further reduce the population at Guantanamo. This is not a goal I can support. Our amendment keeps the status quo and keeps these terrorist detainees where they belong—at Guantanamo Bay.

It is time for this administration to provide real leadership on detention and interrogation issues instead of trying to keep ill-conceived campaign promises that run contrary to the established facts and known threats to our national security. Keeping this country safe demands real-time intelligence—the kind we have gotten in the past from interrogating detainees for long periods of time, including those detainees at Guantanamo. It is time for us to end this dangerous practice of treating terrorists first and foremost like criminals who deserve Miranda warnings, attorneys, and court appearances.

It is time for us to stop pretending that the detainees at Guantanamo are no different from common ordinary criminals. Our amendment ensures that the balance remains on the side of our national security and good intelligence collection. It ensures that common sense, not politics, will determine the future of Guantanamo detainees and the effectiveness of our intelligence collection.

I am pleased to turn to the Senator from New Hampshire, Senator AYOTTE, who has been such a champion on this issue. She and I have worked very closely, as well as any number of other national security issues, since she came to the Senate. She has been a tremendous asset. As a former prosecutor, she understands how serious these individuals are from a criminal standpoint.

I commend her for the great work she has done, and I certainly look forward to hearing her comments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. MANCHIN). The Senator from New Hampshire.

Ms. AYOTTE. I wish to thank my colleague from Georgia, who is the Republican ranking member on the Senate Intelligence Committee. Senator CHAMBLISS has seen so much in terms of the real threats that we face from terrorists in this country. I appreciate his leadership on ensuring that America remains safe and his leadership on this issue of ensuring that the Guantanamo detainees are not released to get back in the fight against us, to attack not only our soldiers but us and our allies.

I would start with the Defense authorization, as it stands, and even the side-by-side offered by Chairman LEVIN, is a dramatic change from current policy of where we are now with regard to Guantanamo and the transfer of Guantanamo detainees internationally and to the United States of America between last year's Defense authorization and this year's Defense authorization.

What has changed? The only thing that has changed is the fact that the reengagement rate of those who are suspected of having been released—who have been released from Guantanamo and are suspected or actually have reengaged in the fight against us—has increased, not decreased.

Yet the status quo of where we stand now, if our amendment just described by Senator CHAMBLISS is not adopted, amendment No. 2255—is that we would weaken what is required to be certified from people who are released from Guantanamo.

In other words, the Defense authorization and the proposal offered by Chairman LEVIN would weaken the national security requirements that are currently in place; the standards which we have to meet before someone is transferred from Guantanamo to another country, even though the re-engagement rate has actually increased.

What else would it do? It would now allow the potential for transferring Guantanamo detainees to the United States of America. This would include Guantanamo detainees potentially such as Khalid Shaikh Mohammed whom Senator CHAMBLISS has referenced. He is the mastermind of September 11. He is the key player behind the attacks on our country on September 11, and so we are going to allow the potential that he could be transferred to the United States of America.

In addition, there is allowance for a potential transfer to the country of Yemen. As Senator CHAMBLISS has talked about, the country of Yemen is the place where the head of Al Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula is centered. Not only that, in Yemen, there have actually been instances where we have seen prison breaks in Yemen. In fact, it is a very destabilized place.

In June I asked the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff about Yemen, and he assessed it to be the most dangerous. Al Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula, which is located in Yemen, is the most dangerous Al Qaeda affiliate. Again, when we look at Yemen, there have been breaks from detention facilities there.

Senator CHAMBLISS has described the 2009 Christmas Day Bomber who received his training in Yemen.

We have Guantanamo detainees who have actually been captured—whom we have let out previously—captured, killed or spotted in Yemen. These included Al Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula's former second in command, Said al-Shihri and Ibrahim Suleiman al Rubaish, alleged to be one of Al Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula's main religious leaders. We have instances where in Yemen there actually been have Al Qaeda terrorists, some who have returned to the leadership of Al Qaeda after we released them from Guantanamo and have gone back in.

I ask, why are we lifting the prohibition of transfers to Yemen when there still is not a certification that can be made that they will not reengage and that Yemen even can detain these individuals or account for them in a place which is the head of Al Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula?

Where we are now is very important in terms of the protection of our country. As Senator CHAMBLISS mentioned, the administration has been so caught up in not wanting to transfer anyone into Guantanamo that we are left with a situation where we are potentially losing valuable intelligence to protect our country.

I wish to speak about that. If we captured tomorrow the current head of Al Qaeda, Zawahiri, what would we do with him? Are we going to bring him to the United States or should we bring him to a secure detention facility at Guantanamo?

The legal questions that are raised by this in terms of if we bring him to the United States, are we going to tell him you have the right to remain silent, even though he is the current head of Al Qaeda? Shouldn't the first priority be to collect information to protect our country, to know what they are planning, to know what they are doing, to know what could happen next?

We now have the example that was given of Warsame, who was a terrorist captured overseas. Instead of being brought to Guantanamo, he was put on a ship for approximately 60 days and then brought to the United States, where he was told you have the right to remain silent.

Worse, recently, there was the capture of a man named al-Libi, and al-Libi actually had been involved in the beginning—in fact, the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation recently said before the Homeland Security Committee that he was a founder of Al Qaeda with Osama bin Laden—and recaptured in Libya. Rather than bring him to Guantanamo Bay, he was put on a ship for only 1 week, 1 week.

Then he was transferred to New York City and read his Miranda rights. This is someone who was alleged to have committed the bombing against the embassies in Africa in 1998 and someone who has decades of involvement in Al Qaeda and who was only interrogated on a ship for 1 week, rather than being brought to Guantanamo and fully interrogated to make sure we maximize the gathering of intelligence to protect our country.

Now the administration wants to close Guantanamo. The alternative offered by Chairman LEVIN is that they should come up with a plan of where we would put these detainees in the United States of America.

The question is why have we had to wait this long, first, to even have some information of what the plan would be and what to do. Second, why would we want the most dangerous terrorists in the world, some of them, to come to the United States of America, when we have a secure detention facility at Guantanamo? Why would we risk the legal questions that will be raised if we bring them to the United States? Do we have to read them Miranda? If we capture Zawahiri and we have no Guantanamo to take him to, do we have to read him Miranda because he is in the United States of America and we can't gather intelligence to protect our country?

How much does it cost to make sure people are secure in the area where these terrorists are being brought? We don't even know where they will be brought because the alternative amendment, all it says is that they have to come up with a plan of where to put these terrorists rather than at Guantanamo. We don't know—the amendment does not provide for us as Congress to approve this plan. It only says the Secretary of Defense has to come up with a plan, and then he may take action to transfer the detainees, allowing them to be transferred to the United States of America.

Stay tuned if the Guantanamo detainees are coming to your neighborhood because we don't know. This is why it is important that the prohibitions stay in place in the absence of any plan. Why should we bring them to the United States of America, given the dangerous nature of who they are? Also, why wouldn't we want to have a secure facility to ensure that we have a place to interrogate terrorists, to make sure we can maximize the information and understand what they know to prevent attacks against our country. Otherwise, we will continue to have a situation where terrorists such as al-Libi are only interrogated for 1 week and then they are told you have the right to remain silent. No terrorist should hear that right.

I wish to say that what this provision does is it puts back in place the requirements that the administration has to meet a strong set of criteria before they can transfer to third-party countries.

What was taken out? What was taken out, which is important, is the way they have weakened the requirements for transferring people, the requirements the administration must meet before transferring from Guantanamo to third-party countries. They have taken out language that requires the Secretary of Defense currently to certify that a country is not a state sponsor of terrorism or foreign terrorist organization.

Now there is no longer a requirement that we even have to certify that. If our amendment is not passed and the alternative is passed, if there is a country or an entity that is a state sponsor of terrorism or a foreign terrorist organization, then they can transfer there.

They have also taken out the provision that would consider whether we have previously transferred a detainee to the country and yet the detainee has gone back into the fight, has re-engaged. In other words, if we made a mistake in the past and transferred someone out of Guantanamo to a country such as Yemen, they weren't able to secure that individual and that individual gets back into the fight, that was a consideration they had to take into account before they could transfer to that country.

That is now being removed from the national security criteria, making it much weaker and easier to transfer to countries that are not only potential sponsors of terrorism but are also countries where we have already had a history of transferring detainees who have gotten back in the fight against us and our soldiers. We have seen some of these detainees show up in places such as Afghanistan against our soldiers. We have seen these detainees attempt to attack us and our allies. We cannot risk weakening the provisions to say we are going to transfer them and take our risks that they can do that again.

We should keep the current law in place. The administration has been able to meet the current law. They have transferred six detainees under the current provisions. They do not have an excuse to say that we can't transfer anyone because they have already been able to transfer people.

I ask unanimous consent to ask my colleague, the Senator from Georgia, a question about these provisions.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Ms. AYOTTE. I ask Senator CHAMBLISS, if we eliminate Guantanamo—in other words, under this proposal they would be permitted to transfer people to the United States of America or that new captures be brought to the United States of America instead of to a facility such as Guantanamo, what are the risks we face in terms of losing valuable intelligence that we need to protect our country?

Mr. CHAMBLISS. The very best tool we have been able to utilize from an intelligence-gathering standpoint is the information we gather from individuals who were involved in the crime or involved in the planning of the crime. That is the case whether it is an ordinary burglary, bank robbery or in the case that we are talking about today, the planning and the scheming of the carrying out of what happened on September 11, as well as terrorist activity prior to that, such as the USS Cole bombing and others, as well as terrorist activity against the United States subsequent to September 11, as well as the detainees who are at Guantanamo today who were captured on the battlefield in Afghanistan.

We have gone through each one of the detainees who were involved in specific incidents or who are battlefield-captured detainees and we have been able to gather intelligence from them that we simply would not have been able to get from anyone else. Many times what we have when we interrogate the detainees, we will know the answer to the question we are going to ask them. Sometimes it is information that was gleaned from detainee X, who was with detainee Y whom we are now interrogating. By virtue of the fact that we know information that we have already gleaned from detainee X, we can ask terrorist Y about it or detainee Y. And you are going to get not only verification of what the first interrogated detainee tells you, but all of a sudden you are going to have an expanded story because this guy says, well, he knows this, and that is the case, so I may as well go ahead and tell him the rest of this.

That is kind of the way the interrogation process goes. What has happened at Guantanamo is that it has been there for a number of years now. September 11 is now 12 years behind us, but we are still gathering information from detainees at Guantanamo who have been there from the very first day it opened. We are gathering information on acts of violence that have occurred, but more significantly on the makeup of Al Qaeda, on who the members are, where they are located, where their headquarters were versus where they think the headquarters might be. There is such a valuable source of information to be gleaned from individuals one on one in the interrogation process that we simply can't get otherwise.

Let me refer a question to the Senator from New Hampshire. She was a prosecutor. She was the attorney general of New Hampshire and she prosecuted any number of criminal cases over the years as attorney general, including some very violent cases. She is familiar with the criminal process, obviously. She is familiar with individuals who have been convicted of crimes, and who, in some instances, were let out of jail when their time was up or whatever and those individuals reengaged in criminal activity, much like what we are seeing at Guantanamo today. The Senator and I have both talked about the recidivism rate being very high.

What is the Senator's opinion, as a long-time prosecutor, relative to these 164 individuals who remain at Guantanamo Bay today with regard to what she thinks is the possibility or the probability of their reengaging in the fight because of their long-term detention at Guantanamo?

Ms. AYOTTE. I would say we have to go from the evidence we have before us, where we have a 29-percent reengagement rate. And let's face it. The easier decisions were made first, in terms of who should be released. Now we have some very hardcore individuals who are there. We already have a 29-percent reengagement rate of them getting back in the fight against us as terrorists, and so we face a grave risk of some of the most hardened individuals if we transfer them or we lessen the standard for transfer, which is what this is doing. It is taking away the issues I talked about—the consideration of countries we have already transferred to but people have gotten back in it—and making it easier to transfer and weaker in terms of the national security requirements that have to be met, and I am worried they will get back in and then harm us and our interests because we already have a history of that.

I want to ask the Senator from Georgia an additional question. Some have cited the cost issue as the reason we should close Guantanamo. But to the Senator's knowledge, has anyone done the cost estimate of all the considerations that would have to be taken into account in the United States and also the security interests of the people of this country of transferring these terrorists to the United States?

Finally, I would also say there are risks we face in losing intelligence if they have to be Mirandized, and things such as that. That is a huge cost in terms of protecting our country, is it not?

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Well, it certainly is. I think the Senator and I need to be very clear with our colleagues here as well as the American public. When it comes to the cost of detaining terrorists who carried out the horrific attacks of September 11, I think the American people are well prepared to use their taxpayer dollars to house guys such as Khalid Shaikh Mohammed, who has admitted to planning the September 11 attacks. If we house him in a prison here inside the United States and he gets Mirandized, I am sure the first thing he is going to do is to get a lawyer. The Senator and I are both lawyers, and we would be foolish not to tell our client to hush up, don't talk anymore. And that is exactly what he would do.

So the cost of detaining individuals who ripped this country apart on September 11, 2001, is not a consideration, in my mind, from the standpoint of whether we should house those folks for the rest of their lives.

Ms. AYOTTE. If we were to lose, for example, valuable intelligence, if we were to get Zawahiri tomorrow, or if we had captured Osama bin Laden instead of killing him, and were able to interrogate him, that is a value that cannot be placed on that in terms of preventing future attacks and understanding how Al Qaeda is planning things in order to prevent future harm to Americans; isn't that right?

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Absolutely. No question about it. And if you do bring them to the United States, I guarantee that is the last bit of interrogation of any of those individuals that we will ever see.

The Senator mentioned bin Laden. I remember at a hearing in the Senate Armed Services Committee where the issue of bin Laden came up during a presentation by the current administration's Secretary of Defense. I asked the question with regard to Guantanamo Bay, and said: If you captured bin Laden tomorrow, what would you do with him? And to his credit, the Secretary of Defense looked me straight in the eye and said: Gee, Senator, I guess we would have to send him to Guantanamo. And he was right. There is nowhere in America where bin Laden would have been welcomed in the county jail or some Federal institution. I don't think there is any question about that. The 164 who are there today, in my mind, fit in that same category. Some of these individuals have never said one word to an interrogator since they have been there. Some of them—most of them, in fact—have been very open, and we still are gathering intelligence from them. But if we transfer them to the United States, that is the last we will hear from them.

Ms. AYOTTE. I thank my colleague.

Mr. INHOFE. Will the Senator yield? The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. INHOFE. I have been listening to the discussion. I agree wholeheartedly with everything that has been said. The amendment we are going to be voting on is part of three different amendments. I had one of them, as do my two colleagues. One thing that hasn't been said is the part I put in where I constructed a provision to prohibit transferring of detainees for emergency medical treatment, which is just another way of getting them there.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time has expired.

Mr. INHOFE. I ask unanimous consent to speak for 2 more minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. INHOFE. The other thing is, when you transfer someone here for incarceration purposes, is it not true these are not criminals, these are terrorists, and what terrorists do for a living is train other people to be terrorists? To commingle them in our prison system is something that would be of great danger to this country. That is something my colleagues would agree is one of the major reasons we want to keep them from the United States.

Ms. AYOTTE. I would agree with Ranking Member INHOFE, and I want to thank him for his leadership. Absolutely, these are not common criminals. These are not people who have robbed a bank. These are people who have attacked our country and who seek to get other people to attack our country. That is the reason why we wouldn't want to mingle them with criminals or bring them to the United States so they can be told they have the right to remain silent. We have to protect our country by knowing what they know.

Mr. INHOFE. Parliamentary inquiry: The Chair has said the time on our side has expired. Of course, I know—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. INHOFE. I know the chairman wants to use some time here too.

I ask unanimous consent that at the conclusion of his remarks, if all time has not been consumed, I be given a few minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I understand the situation is as follows: that the time between now and 4 o'clock is under majority control, and then between 4 o'clock and 5 o'clock we have not resolved that issue as to who would control time; am I correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. LEVIN. So there may be more time available between 4 o'clock and 5 o'clock.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Would the Senator repeat that?

Mr. LEVIN. Under the existing UC, the time between now and 4 o'clock is under the control of the majority, because the minority has used their time. At 4 o'clock, we have to enter into another UC—or we can do it now—deciding what the situation will be for the hour between 4 o'clock and the time of the vote.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. I thank the Senator.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I support the provisions in this bill relating to the Guantanamo detention facility, or Gitmo, and oppose the amendment to strike those provisions and to reinstate existing restrictions on the transfer of Gitmo detainees.

Gitmo is expensive, inefficient, damaging to U.S. international standing, harmful to our allies' ability to cooperate with us, and serves as a recruiting tool for extremists. It is not needed to secure people who should be detained and should be tried. There are other places for detention and for trial in front of a military tribunal. We don't need Gitmo to stay open at a huge expense in order to do that.

The bill before us makes long overdue fixes to our ability to transfer detainees out of Gitmo, provide our military with needed flexibility to determine how long we need to detain individuals now held at the Guantanamo facility, and where we should hold them.

For a number of years now, Congress has enacted legislation eliminating that flexibility and requiring we continue to hold all Gitmo detainees at Guantanamo whether or not it is in our national security interests to do so. The current law establishes an absolute ban on bringing any Gitmo detainee to the United States for any purpose, including detention, trial, incarceration, or even medical treatment. And it replaces the best judgment of our military and intelligence experts on the risk posed by an additional Gitmo detainee with a cumbersome checklist of requirements that must be certified before any detainee may be transferred overseas.

The current law makes it more difficult to try detainees for their crimes and nearly impossible to return them to their home countries. For example, even if we have a strong case that a detainee has committed crimes for which he could be indicted, convicted in Federal Court, the current law makes it impossible to try him. This is true even in cases where similar charges are not available before a military commission, making it impossible to try the detainee at Guantanamo. And it is true even in cases where the security risks in bringing the detainee to the United States would be nonexistent.

In 2010, the Guantanamo Detainee Review Task Force recommended 44 Gitmo detainees for possible prosecution.

As a result in significant part of the legislated restrictions on transferring detainees to the United States for trial, however, we have had only 4 of the 44 plea bargains and no other successful prosecutions of those detainees.

Similarly, even if we have determined that a detainee poses no ongoing security threat to the United States, we cannot send them back to their home country unless the Secretary of Defense certifies to six conditions addressing issues such as the country's control over its own territory and its detention facilities and so forth. And even if the individual is likely to die without advanced medical treatment, we cannot remove him from Gitmo for the purpose of receiving such treatment.

In 2010, the Guantanamo Detainee Review Task Force conducted a rigorous interagency review and determined that more than half of the Gitmo population, including 84 of the 164 detainees currently at Gitmo, could be safely transferred overseas without posing a significant security threat. However, only two Gitmo detainees have actually been transferred using the certification provision since it was enacted at the end of 2010.

Under the current law, even if a detainee has been convicted or pled guilty and served his sentence, even if he has cooperated with us and provided us with useful intelligence, even if he has renounced all ties to Al Qaeda or the Taliban, even if he has been determined to no longer pose a threat to our national security, it is still extremely difficult to transfer or release a Gitmo detainee. That is why we still have detainees sitting in Guantanamo who have been cleared for transfer or release on multiple occasions by two different administrations over a period of almost a decade.

The current law has reinforced, as a result, the impression held by many around the world that Guantanamo is a legal black hole where we hold detainees without recourse. This perception has been used by our enemies to recruit jihadists to attack us, and it has made our friends less willing to cooperate with us in our efforts to fight terrorism around the world. For this reason, many of our top national security leaders spanning the Bush and Obama administrations have repeatedly told us of the harm that Gitmo causes to our national security.

First, with respect to transfers of Gitmo detainees overseas to their home countries or other countries, the bill would streamline the onerous certification procedures imposed by Congress and restore the ability of our military leaders to exercise their best judgment in determining whether detainees could be transferred abroad consistent with our national security. This provision would enable the Department of Defense to handle Gitmo detainees in the same way that it has handled other detainees in the course of the conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan—by making case-by-case determinations whether it is in our national security interest to continue holding an individual.

Second, with respect to transfers of Gitmo detainees into the United States, the bill would reverse the one-size-fits-all ban that Congress has imposed on such transfers and permit case-by-case determinations of whether it is in our national security interest to transfer Gitmo detainees into custody inside the United States for detention and trial. This provision would restore our Nation's ability to use a key tool in the fight against the terrorist threat. That tool is prosecution of Gitmo detainees in Federal courts.

I have offered a side-by-side amendment with Senator McCAIN which requires the administration to develop a comprehensive plan and submit it to Congress before it could transfer any detainees to the United States under this provision. This plan would include a case-by-case determination of each individual held at Guantanamo where the individual is intended to be held, including the specific facility or facilities inside the United States that would be used and the estimated costs of any modification that may be needed at those facilities.

The side-by-side amendment would also clarify that Gitmo detainees would not gain any additional legal rights as a result of their transfer to the United States for detention and trial. In particular, detainees who are transferred to the United States would not gain any additional rights; would not be permitted to be released inside the United States; would not lose their status as unprivileged enemy belligerents eligible for detention and trial under the law of war; and would not gain any additional right to challenge his or her detention beyond the right to habeas corpus—which they already have at Guantanamo, as the Supreme Court has decided.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senator FEINSTEIN be added as a cosponsor to our side-by-side amendment, the Levin-McCain amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LEVIN. Guantanamo continues to be a damaging reminder of a failed U.S. strategy that sought to put captured terrorists beyond the reach of the law and the U.S. courts. A dozen years ago the Bush administration started sending detainees to Gitmo in large part out of a desire to avoid the jurisdiction of the United States courts and ensure that detainees would have no legal avenue to appeal their convictions. Now, whether or not one supported that approach, that argument ended in 2008, when the Supreme Court ruled in the Boumediene case that Gitmo detainees would be treated as being inside the United States for the purpose of habeas corpus appeals.

Instead of recognizing the problems with maintaining the Gitmo facility—the problems of extreme costs, and that it adds no additional security to what exists if these people are brought to the United States for military trial, as being held as prisoners under the laws of war, or for Federal court trial, even though all of that is still possible inside the United States—we have enacted legislation which makes it virtually impossible to move detainees anywhere else, ensuring that the facility is going to remain open whether we need it or not.

The result is that we are stuck with an expensive facility. And make no mistake, the costs of the Guantanamo detention facility are exorbitant. The Department of Defense has put the costs associated with Gitmo at over $400 million a year. That is more than $2.5 million per detainee. If we had any additional security as a result, it would be worth it. But we don't need Gitmo for additional security. These detainees can be held in the United States. They can be held for trial, they can be held according to the rule of law, and they can be held under the military as military detainees.

Now, $2.5 million per detainee is, by some estimates, 35 times the annual cost of housing a prisoner at a supermax security prison inside the United States. That does not include the more than $200 million in additional military construction requests that the Department believes it needs to spend to keep Guantanamo running in the coming years. I repeat: If this added to our security, it would be worth it. But it doesn't. We can bring these same people to the United States to be held as prisoners of war the way we did Italians and others during World War II. I had hundreds in my home State. If we added to our security by keeping Guantanamo open instead of just having a place which is used as a training ground and used as an argument for Jihad—but we can keep these people in the United States just as safely as Guantanamo in maximum security prisons or under the military jurisdiction with the same amount of security for the people of the United States at far less cost.

We are all facing sequestration. It is undermining the readiness of our Armed Forces, requires risky reductions in force structure, and makes it likely we are going to have to cancel or severely curtail vital modernization programs. We cannot afford to spend $500 million a year on a program that doesn't make us more safe.

The basis for the legislative obstacles to moving detainees out of Guantanamo appears to be the fear that returning Gitmo detainees to their home countries or transferring them to the United States would pose an unacceptable threat to our national security. But history has shown that we bring numerous terrorists to the United States for trial or incarceration. It has had no adverse effect on our national security. These prosecutions have resulted in hundreds of convictions on terrorism-related charges without apparent adverse effect to our national security. As the Attorney General wrote to Judiciary Committee Chairman LEAHY last week, terrorist prosecutions in Federal courts have been “an essential element of our counterterrorism efforts” and “a powerful tool of proven effectiveness.”

In the last 3 years, we have brought three foreign terrorists into the United States for trial. We brought Abu Ghaith, Osama bin Laden's son-in-law, who has been convicted in Federal court and remains in Federal custody without incident. The second is Ahmed Warsame, who pled guilty in Federal court and remains in Federal custody without incident. The third is Ahmed Ghailani, who was convicted in Federal court, received a life sentence, and remains in Federal custody without incident. Again, there have been hundreds of convictions in this country of persons connected to terrorism in Federal courts.

Our military has routinely detained individuals on the battlefield in Afghanistan and then exercised their discretion to transfer them to local jurisdiction or to release them. If we can trust our military to make these determinations on a day-to-day basis for detainees in Afghanistan, we should be able to trust our military to make the same determination for detainees at Gitmo.

The rigorous review process which is codified by our bill's provisions requires the Secretary of Defense to determine, prior to transferring a Gitmo detainee, that the transfer is in our national security interest and that actions have been taken to mitigate any risk that the detainee could again engage in any activity that threatens United States persons or interests.

The provisions in this bill will get us past our fear that we cannot securely handle Gitmo detainees in this country. It would allow the Secretary of Defense to authorize Gitmo transfers to the United States for detention and trial if doing so is in the United States' security interests. This bill will restore the President's ability to choose the most effective tool—whether that is military commissions or Federal courts—to bring these Gitmo detainees to justice.

In conclusion, I urge our colleagues to support the Guantanamo provisions in the bill, vote for the Levin-McCain-Feinstein side-by-side amendment, and oppose the effort to reinstate the counterproductive and costly restrictions in current law.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, it is my understanding that at 4:00 there might be a unanimous consent which will lead us to a vote at 5:00. Is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair has no knowledge about a vote at 5:00.

The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I yield the time between now and 4:00 to the Senator from Oklahoma.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, it seems we are going to have an opportunity a little later on to discuss this tonight. In the capacity of the ranking member of the Armed Services Committee, I have to say that I can't imagine having a chairman with whom I cooperate and agree with on almost every issue like Chairman LEVIN. I really appreciate the work we have done together. We both recognize this is the most important piece of legislation each year, and we both recognize that, for 51 consecutive years, we have had this legislation. Nothing has come up to obstruct it. We also realize Republicans would prefer to have more opportunities to have amendments, and Chairman LEVIN has been very helpful in helping us to get that.

The area on which I don't agree is in the area of Gitmo and how it should be used. Every time I go to Gitmo, I shake my head and I say: Why in the world would we not use this resource? We don't have another resource like it. We heard the Senator from Georgia make the statement that he asked the chairman: If we don't have Gitmo to send these people, where are we going to send them? I believe it was Secretary of Defense Panetta who said: We don't know. There is not another place. We have used it successfully since 1904.

I often have said, and said yesterday, that we don't have many good deals in government. This is one that is. Since 1904, our rent on that territory has been $4,000 a year. I don't think anyone can come up with a better deal, and besides Castro doesn't collect it about half the time.

It is argued that we can use it for interrogation. The information we received which led to Osama bin Laden's demise was received from interrogation which took place at Gitmo.

When we talk about the treatment of people, the one thing that I discover every time I go down there is one of the chief problems they have in Gitmo is obesity because they are eating better than they have ever eaten at any other time in their lives. A primary care provider is there for every 450 detainees. They have never had that kind of treatment at any other time in their lives. The detainees receive age-appropriate colon cancer screening, TB screening, annual dental procedures, physical therapy, and all these things.

The idea that we would not be able to bring them to the United States for some more serious personal care I can't buy because we have the U.S. Naval Hospital at Guantanamo Bay. I have been there. They have approximately 250 personnel there who support the base's population of over 6,000.

When I look at this and I think of the options they have and this obsession the President seems to have to bring these terrorists into the United States,

I have to share this one story. I know there is going to be a request here in just a moment. I can remember back 4½ years ago when this President first came in office—I am going from memory now—he had 17 places in the United States where he could put these terrorists. One happened to be in my State of Oklahoma, Fort Sill. He went down to look at the facility. The major who was in charge of it told me she had several tours of duty at Guantanamo. She said: Go back and tell those people in Washington we do not need to be spreading these terrorists throughout the continental United States when we have that great facility. She said she had been there twice and it is state-of-the-art.

I have a great fear, and that is that once we get a different administration here that realizes the value of Guantanamo Bay, it will be too late to go back and get it again. That is the reason we have been holding on to it with white knuckles.

The amendment we are going to be voting on in another hour or so, whenever it is set in, is going to be an amendment that will allow us to continue to use what I consider to be one of the most valuable assets we have in the system.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I am going to make a unanimous consent proposal which I understand has been cleared.

I ask unanimous consent that the pending motion to recommit be withdrawn; that the pending Levin amendment, No. 2123, be set aside for Senator AYOTTE or designee to offer amendment No. 2255 relative to Guantanamo; that the amendment be subject to a relevant side-by-side amendment, which is No. 2175, from Senators LEVIN, MCCAIN, and FEINSTEIN; that no second-degree amendments be in order to either of these Guantanamo amendments; that each of these amendments be subject to a 60-affirmative-vote threshold; that the time until 5 p.m. be equally divided between the two leaders or their designees; that at 5 p.m. the Senate proceed to vote in relation to the Ayotte amendment No. 2255; that upon disposition of the Ayotte amendment, the Senate proceed to vote in relation to the Levin-McCain-Feinstein amendment No. 2175; and that there be 2 minutes equally divided in between the votes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LEVIN. I was going to say the time between now and 5 o'clock is equally divided, as I understand it, between the Senator from Oklahoma and myself.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

AMENDMENT NO. 2255

Mr. INHOFE. On behalf of Senator AYOTTE, myself, and others, I call up amendment No. 2255 and ask the clerk to report by number.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. INHOFE], for Ms. AYOTTE, for herself, Mr. CHAMBLISS, Mr. INHOFE, Mrs. FISCHER, Mr. ENZI, and Mr. RUBIO, proposes an amendment numbered 2255.

The text of the amendment is printed in today's RECORD under "Text of amendments."

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I call up amendment No. 2175.

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subsections (b), (c), (d), (e), and (f) shall take effect on the date that is 60 days after the date on which the Secretary of Defense submits to the appropriate committees of Congress a detailed plan to close the detention facility at United States Naval Station, Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

(2) ELEMENTS.—The report required by paragraph (1) shall contain the following:

(A) A case-by-case determination made for each individual detained at Guantanamo of whether such individual is intended to be transferred to a foreign country, transferred to the United States for the purpose of civilian or military trial, or transferred to the United States or another country for continued detention under the law of armed conflict.

(E) A detailed description and assessment, made in consultation with the Secretary of State and the Director of National Intelligence, of the actions that would be taken prior to the transfer to a foreign country of an individual detained at Guantanamo that would substantially mitigate the risk of such individual engaging or reengaging in any terrorist or other hostile activity that threatens the United States or United States persons or interests.

(F) What additional authorities, if any, may be necessary to detain an individual detained at Guantanamo inside the United States as an unprivileged enemy belligerent pursuant to the Authorization for Use of Military Force (Public Law 107-40), pending the end of hostilities or a future determination by the Secretary of Defense that such individual no longer poses a threat to the United States or United States persons or interests.

(3) FORM.—The report required by paragraph (1) shall be submitted in unclassified form, but may include a classified annex.

(i) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) The term “appropriate committees of Congress” means—

(A) the Committee on Armed Services, the Committee on Appropriations, and the Select Committee on Intelligence of the Senate; and

(B) the Committee on Armed Services, the Committee on Appropriations, and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence of the House of Representatives.

(2) The term “individual detained at Guantanamo” has the meaning given that term in section 1031(e)(2).

Mr. LEVIN. I understand we have a Senator on the way. I suggest the absence of a quorum unless someone else wishes to be recognized. I ask that the time on the quorum call be equally divided unless someone else seeks to be recognized at this time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, during this pause, if someone comes down to talk about the two amendments that will be voted on at 5 o'clock, I will be happy to defer to them. But I think it is important that we understand we are finally making some headway in getting into this Defense authorization bill. It seems as if every year for 51 years now we have been able to get it through. While other bills become controversial, get to a point where they cannot go any further, that does not happen with the Defense authorization bill. It is one that has to take place.

As the Republican ranking member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, let me say, as I have said before, I thank my friend and colleague the chairman CARL LEVIN for his leadership in marking up this bill. It has always been difficult. In most cases we agree with each other. We happen to be looking at an amendment now where we disagree. But I always consider the NDAA bill as the most important piece of legislation in Congress every year. It contains authorizations that support our men and women serving in harm's way, all the way in Afghanistan and around the world. It supports the training of our servicemembers and maintenance and modernization of their equipment. It authorizes research and development; that is, R&D efforts that will ensure that we maintain technological superiority over our enemies and can defeat the threats of tomorrow. Most important, it provides for the pay and benefits for the brave men and women who have made their sacrifices and are putting their lives at risk for our benefit. However, it is important to note this year—and this has not happened before, in my memory—the bill provides all of these vitally important efforts only as the reduced spending levels would allow.

In an era increasingly defined by bipartisan gridlock, the NDAA is one of the rare occasions where Members of both parties can come together. This enduring commitment was exemplified again this year by the overwhelming bipartisan support we had for the bill that came out of our committee—bipartisan support. We want, of course, to have that same bipartisan support here on the floor. Hopefully we will be able to get this done by the end of this week.

Consideration of this year's NDAA comes at a time in our national security when we face more volatile and dangerous times than we ever have in the history of this country. Chaos and violence are on the rise in the Middle East and north Africa. Al Qaeda is growing and establishing new safe havens from which to plan and launch attacks against the United States. We have rogue nations, such as Iran and North Korea. It is not the way it was in the old days—I have often said the good old days—of the Cold War where we had an enemy and that enemy was predictable. We knew that enemy.

Remember, we used to have this thing called mutual assured destruction. That meant something then, but it doesn't mean anything now because our potential enemies out there want to be destroyed. They have a different mentality than they used to.

Iran and North Korea are developing their nuclear capability and delivery systems. Our intelligence has told us that Iran will have a weapon and a delivery system. All the way back in 2007 they said they would have it by 2015. That is a year and a half from right now. I tell the Chair that they are going to have that capability. The threats are much more serious to us now.

When I say this is the first time we have faced the crisis we are facing now, it is not just because the enemy is out there. I am talking about an enemy who will have the capability of sending a weapon over and delivering it to the United States, but at the same time over the last 5 years of this administration the military has already endured a $487 billion cut. That is $487 billion out of the defense budget. That is before sequestration.

Now we have sequestration—an outcome once thought to be so egregious, I can remember that as recently as less than a year ago, we thought: We are not going to have this. After $487 billion being pulled out of the military, we cannot also have sequestration, which will be the $½ trillion that will come out in the next period of time. So we didn't think it would happen, but it did happen.

We are now into what, our seventh or eighth month of sequestration. In total, our military men and women stand to endure over a $1 trillion slash from their budget. These cuts are forcing a dramatic decline in military readiness and capabilities.

I talked to General Odierno yesterday. He is Chief of Staff of the Army. He recently said that his forces are at the—I am going to quote now—"lowest readiness levels I have seen within our Army since I've been serving for the last 37 years" and that only two brigades are ready for combat. That is our U.S. Army. We have never had that confession made. It is a level of desperation where they are willing to come out and talk of it. We cannot sustain another $½ trillion in cuts.

Admiral Greenert, Chief of Naval Operations, said that "because of fiscal limitations and the situation we're in, we don't have another strike group trained and ready to respond on short notice in case of emergencies. We're tapped out." That is the CNO of the Navy.

Our top military leaders now warn of being unable to protect America's interests around the world. Keep in mind, Admiral Winnefeld is the No. 2 person in line. He is the Vice Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Admiral Winnefeld, who has been there nearly 40 years, stated earlier this year that "there could be, for the first time in my career, instances where we may be asked to respond to a crisis and we will have to say we cannot."

General Dempsey, the No. 1 guy, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has warned that continued national security cuts will "severely limit our ability to implement our defense strategy. It will put the nation at greater risk of coercion, and it will break faith with men and women in uniform."

This is why I am so troubled by the disastrous path we are on. In the face of mounting threats to America, we are crippling the very people who are vital to our security—the men and women in uniform.

To be clear, our military was facing readiness shortfalls even before sequestration took effect. Nearly 12 years of sustained combat operations have really worn down our forces and their equipment. In order to meet the spending caps mandated by sequestration, the military services are being forced to starve the accounts necessary to repair and reset their forces.

Rather than rebuilding the ability of our military to defend the country, we are digging ourselves deeper into a hole. The longer we allow military readiness and capabilities to decline, the more money and time it will take to rebuild.

We already know this is the case based on what happened in fiscal year 2013. For example, General Welsh, Chief of Staff of the Air Force, said that because of the first round of sequestration cuts he was "forced to ground 33 squadrons"—he's talking about fighter squadrons—"including 13 combat-coded squadrons and an additional seven squadrons were reduced to basic 'take-off and land' training. It will now cost a minimum of 10 percent more flying hours to fully retrain the grounded squadrons . . ." What he is saying is that when it was mandated that he take down 33 squadrons—which happened around April—then in July, 3 months later, they said, you can start working the squadrons again—he is saying that it costs more to retrain and bring these people back up in these proficiencies than it saved during that 3-month period of time.

He specifically said that it will now cost a minimum of 10 percent more flying hours to fully retrain the grounded squadrons than it would have to simply keep them trained all along. We heard that from several other top people as well.

I talked to General Amos yesterday. He is with the Marine Corps. He said he has approximately $800 million in critical military construction funding that they will be unable to execute under sequestration—assuming they go through with sequestration. By the way, I have not given up on stopping the military sequestration that is damaging our ability to defend ourselves.

General Amos said that the military construction funding will be unable to execute under sequestration and will need to be deferred. Further, it will cost over $6.5 billion to buy back orders of the V-22s, joint strike fighters, Hughes, and Cobras. Those are four platforms we would have to bring back at the additional cost of $6.5 billion that we otherwise would not have spent.

On Monday Admiral Greenert told me that under the current budget environment he will be forced to defer much-needed ship maintenance, costing a 15- to 20-percent increase in total costs.

In other words, the things they are doing now to meet these line-by-line mandates of reductions are not saving money but costing money. Under sequestration, we will lose one Virginia-class submarine, one littoral combat ship, one afloat forward staging base, development of an Ohio-class replacement submarine program. They will all be delayed, which again will result in an increased price.

So not only is sequestration gutting our military capabilities, it ends up costing American taxpayers more than it will save. We are falling victim to the misguided belief that as the wars of today wind down, we can afford to gut investments in our Nation's defenses. It is irresponsible and makes America less safe.

I remember going through the same thing back in the 1990s when the chant at that time was the cold war is over, so we no longer need that strong of a defense. We heard it from both sides, and now we are going through the same thing. History reminds us we cannot dictate when and where the next conflict is going to arise. Instead, if we allow the continued dismantling of our military, we will be less safe and less prepared to defend our country. If our military men and women are called upon, their ability to accomplish the mission will be undermined, and tragically, more will lose their lives unnecessarily.

We had the top military people in our Armed Services Committee, and I asked them about this issue. They talked about the loss of readiness—risk equals lives. When you take on more risks, you lose more American lives.

General Amos, Commandant of the Marine Corps, testified that if he is tasked to respond to a contingency in the current budget environment:

We would have fewer forces, arriving less trained, arriving later to the fight. This would delay the build-up of combat power, allow the enemy more time to build up their defenses, and likely prolong combat operations altogether. This is a formula for more U.S. casualties.

Such an outcome would be immoral and a dereliction of duty. If we expect the men and women in our military to go in harm's way to protect America, we have an obligation to provide them with the training, technology, and capabilities that is required to decisively overwhelm any adversary at any time and return safely to home and their loved ones.

I can remember when they used to use a different term than they use today. Today they call it nature of military operations. It used to be defending America on how many fronts. Since World War II, there were always two fronts, and now we are down to where it would be hard to do it on one front, and that is why this bill is so important and why protecting the readiness of our military men and women remains my top priority. However, something has to be done to mitigate any devastating impact of readiness, so we must find long-term solutions. Every day that goes by without action will only increase the damage.

I do have an amendment that would phase sequester in a way that would allow our senior military leaders to enact reforms without disproportionately degrading our military so we can continue to train and prepare our military women and men.

My good friend the Senator from Alabama and I are joining forces. We have an amendment that is going to allow some degree of latitude and flexibility.

So while we are living under the same budget constraints we are under today, they can make some decisions where it is not just an online reduction. I have just finished talking about how much more that will end up costing us.

I see now we have someone else who has come to the floor to be heard. I want to repeat how much I appreciate the chairman of the committee CARL LEVIN for his cooperation with our side. He is trying to get this to become a reality and get this bill passed hopefully this week.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I yield 15 minutes to the senior Senator from California.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from California.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I rise to support the Levin-McCain amendment, and I have added my name as a cosponsor. I would also like to speak in support of provisions authored by Chairman LEVIN that are in this year's National Defense Authorization Act, which provides more flexibility that the President and Secretary of Defense need in order to move detainees from Guantanamo.

I strongly support the Levin-McCain-Feinstein amendment. Here is what it would do: It would clarify that Guantanamo detainees transferred to the United States for law of war detention do not have any additional rights or benefits such as the right to claim asylum. So it limits it.

It would clarify that Gitmo detainees transferred to the United States may not be released from law of war detention into the United States.

Finally, it would require a detailed plan to be submitted to Congress on how to close Guantanamo, including the specific facilities intended to be used to hold detainees inside the United States.

I have heard Senator MCCAIN talk about this, request it, and I believe it is a very valid need.

It has been 12 years since the attacks of 9/11 and the United States invasion of Afghanistan. In the ensuing years 779 people were brought to Guantanamo without charge, and for many of them, simply for being at the wrong place at the wrong time. Most of the 164 left have been held for more than 10 years. Those transferred to Guantanamo from CIA custody in black sites have been there now for 7 years. Unfortunately, we still have not figured out a way to close Guantanamo.

President George W. Bush called for it to be closed. So did former Secretaries of State Condoleezza Rice and Collin Powell, as well as former Secretaries of Defense Bob Gates and Leon Panetta, among others.

In fact, here is what President Bush wrote on pages 179 and 180 of his memoir Decision Points:

... there are things I wish had come out differently. I am frustrated that the military tribunals moved so slowly. Even after the Military Commissions Act was passed, another lawsuit delayed the process again. By the time I left office, we held only two trials. The difficulty of conducting trials made it harder to meet a goal I had set in my second term: closing the prison at Guantanamo in a responsible way. While I believe opening Guantanamo after 9/11 was necessary, the detention facility had become a propaganda tool for our enemies and a distraction for our allies.

While I would like to go much further and close the facility immediately, the provisions in this bill will ease the transfer restrictions so that detainees can be held in other countries or tried, convicted, and put in a proper maximum security facility in the United States.

There are three categories of detainees left at Guantanamo:

First, 46 detainees will continue to be held on preventive detention, meaning they are being held under international law until the end of hostilities—when ever that may be. It could be years; it could be decades.

Second, 34 detainees have been slated for prosecution, and of those three detainees have already been convicted in a military commission and are still serving their time at Guantanamo. But most of these 34 detainees have not even been charged, and there is no indication when they will be.

The final category is the largest—84 of the 164 detainees currently at Guantanamo were cleared for transfer by a 2010—that's 3 years ago—interagency process carried out by our national security and intelligence agencies. But current law needlessly complicates efforts to transfer those 84 men.

President Bush transferred over 530 detainees from Guantanamo during his time in office and, unfortunately, many went on to commit terrorist acts because there were no individual assessments done on each detainee. But these individual assessments have been carried out by the Obama administration.

Despite his commitment to close Guantanamo, President Obama has been able to transfer only 67 detainees during his first term, and only two recommended for transfer have been successfully sent home under the burdensome procedures now in place. More are on the way, but this is an unacceptable delay because the government cleared these detainees for transfer years ago.

Sections 1031, 1032, and 1033 of this bill will give the President more flexibility to transfer these detainees out of Guantanamo. It is long overdue. I thank the chairman, who is sitting in front of me, and the ranking member for these provisions. But even under these provisions, the Secretary of Defense would still have to certify that the transfer is in our Nation's security interests and that appropriate steps have been taken to address the risk of recidivism. Congress would have to continue to be notified of such transfers.

In March of this year, Lt. Gen. John F. Kelly, the head of the U.S. Southern Command which has military responsibility for Guantanamo, testified to Congress about the massive hunger strikes that were going on at the time and said the detainees were devastated at the lack of transfers and the government's failure to execute plans to close it as the President has promised.

In June of this year, I traveled to Guantanamo with Senator MCCAIN and the President's Chief of Staff to see this devastation for myself. On our trip, we saw the process that is used to retain the detainees as they are forced from their cells and brought in to be force fed. We did not see a detainee being force fed, but we saw the tube that is forced up their nose and down their throat into their stomach. It is coated with olive oil or Lanacane, if necessary, and it is done daily. We saw the restraints—at the legs, the arms, and the head where detainees are held—not too different from the image of a death row convict in an electric chair.

I said at the time and I will say it again today, the military and civilian personnel at work on Guantanamo are carrying out their duties with dedication, skill, and honor. My opposition to continued detention at Guantanamo is not an indictment against them; it is with a failed and bankrupt policy, including here in Congress, and now is the time to change it.

Another thing that struck me is the enormous costs we are sinking into this isolated facility each year. Detention operations at Guantanamo now total approximately $5 billion since the facility opened in January of 2002. According to the most recent estimates provided by the Department of Defense, the total cost for fiscal year 2013 is estimated to be $454.1 million, which equals approximately $2.8 million per detainee. That works out to be more than 35 times the cost to hold the prisoner in a supermax facility in Florence, CO. This supermax facility currently houses a number of Al Qaeda terrorists, including Zacarias Moussaoui, Shoe Bomber Richard Reid, and the would-be Christmas Day Bomber Umar Farouk Abdulmutallab.

In this era of sequestration and furloughs, how can we justify spending approximately $2.8 million per Guantanamo detainee?

Now, even with near unanimous support across the current and past administration to close the structure, some appear to question whether there still is a national security need to shutter the facility. I believe it is clear that Guantanamo is still a symbol that motivates our enemies and draws more and more young Muslims to fight against the United States.

This is not just my determination but also the finding of our intelligence community. Last week, Director of National Intelligence James Clapper wrote to the Senate Intelligence Committee noting his support for the closure of Guantanamo in which he offered the following examples of how Al Qaeda and its affiliates continue to reference Guantanamo in furtherance of their global jihadist goals.

Al Qaeda leader Ayman al-Zawahiri, in an audio statement in July of this year, cited the detention without trial of Gitmo prisoners as one indication of American hypocrisy and indiscriminate persecution of innocent Muslims. An article about the Boston Marathon bombings, in the most recent edition of Al Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula's "Inspire" magazine—this is kind of a diabolical magazine that Al Qaeda puts out and this is one published in June—highlighted the ongoing detention of prisoners at Gitmo as one of the purported justifications of terrorist attacks such as 9/11 and the Boston Marathon bombings.

Here is what the article said:

If we note down all that has been and is still being carried out by America against Muslim nations, we will run out of pages. . . . There is also the secret prisons and black sites file, we could not miss out Guantanamo Bay detention camp. The American Nation should have a good grasp of all of these and other historic facts so that they can comprehend the background and the context of the Boston Marathon operation, Detroit, September 11 and other operations which are barely a wave of anger; vengeance.

Furthermore, Guantanamo is referenced 20 times in the previous 10 issues of "Inspire" magazine.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD the letter from the DNI dated November 12, 2013.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

DIRECTOR OF NATIONAL INTELLIGENCE
Washington, DC.

Hon. DIANNE FEINSTEIN,
Chairman, Select Committee on Intelligence,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Hon. SAXBY CHAMBLISS,
Vice Chairman, Select Committee on Intelligence,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR MADAM CHAIRMAN AND VICE CHAIRMAN CHAMBLISS: As the Senate considers provisions of the FY14 National Defense Authorization bill that would lift Guantanamo detainee transfer restrictions, I would like to provide the Intelligence Community's views of the national security implications in maintaining the Guantanamo Bay detention facility (GTMO).

Al-Qa'ida, its affiliates, and its allies this year continued to reference the detention and purported mistreatment of the detainees at GTMO in furtherance of their global jihadist narratives. The references to GTMO by al-Qa'ida and affiliated organizations include:

Al-Qa'ida leader Ayman al-Zawahiri in an audio statement in July 2013 citing the detention without trial of GTMO prisoners as one indication of American hypocrisy and indiscriminate persecution of innocent Muslims and calling for all al-Qa'ida prisoners at GTMO to be released.

An article about the Boston marathon bombings in the most recent edition of AQAP's Inspire magazine in June highlighting the ongoing detention of prisoners at GTMO as one of the purported justifications to engage in jihad.

As these examples illustrate, closing the Guantanamo Bay detention facility would deprive al-Qa'ida leaders of the ability to use alleged ongoing mistreatment of detainees to further their global jihadist narrative. In an effort to disrupt the narrative used by terrorists, I support the President's priority of closing the detention facility.

Sincerely,

JAMES R. CLAPPER.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I just visited the 9/11 memorial this past Saturday and was extraordinarily moved by that memorial. It is an amazing place. It really brings to one's heart the gravity of what that situation was. We then went down to the museum and I saw exactly where the plane went through the steel superstructure and the staircase where hundreds of our people fled with smoke following them down those stairs. We must prevent another 9/11.

I note there is a letter from certain members of the September 11th Families for Peaceful Tomorrows that has been sent to us in favor of this bill and the detainee transfer provisions in the bill. I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD the letter from the September 11th Families for Peaceful Tomorrows.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

PEACEFUL TOMORROWS,
New York, NY, November 18, 2013.

DEAR SENATOR: We are writing to ask you to support the Guantanamo detainee transfer provisions included in the National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) for Fiscal Year 2014, as reported out of the Senate Armed Services Committee (SASC). We are all family members of those killed in the 9/11/2001 terrorist attacks. Since that tragic event, we have worked together as members of September 11th Families for Peaceful Tomorrows [<http://www.peacefultomorrow.org>] for long-lasting solutions to the violence that claimed our loved ones' lives.

In recent years, Guantanamo prison and the on-going Military Commission hearings for the 9/11 suspects at Guantanamo have been a particular focus of our concern and action. We believe closing Guantanamo is good human rights policy and good national security policy. The Guantanamo provisions in the Senate NDAA provide the necessary flexibility to execute that policy responsibly. We urge your support of the Guantanamo provisions in the Senate NDAA and urge you to vote "no" on any amendments that would further restrict transfers.

When Peaceful Tomorrows first organized, we committed to working together to promote U.S. foreign policy that places a priority on internationally-recognized principles of human rights and to calling attention to threats to human rights that might result from U.S. responses to 9/11. Guantanamo has become a stain on our national reputation. Today, it is simply no longer sustainable—ethically, strategically, or financially.

We are keenly aware of the continuing injustice of holding the 164 prisoners now at Guantanamo prison without trial for these many years. These prisoners have been denied the justice which Americans take pride in as a source of national strength. At the same time, our 9/11 family members continue to be denied justice by the seemingly imperceptible progress of trying those prisoners under the current military commissions. We advocate the immediate release of those who have been cleared for release, and the transfer of the remaining prisoners to be tried in US federal courts, which have successfully tried and convicted scores of terrorists in the past decade.

More than half of the Guantanamo detainees have long been cleared for transfer by our own national security and intelligence agencies. Current law has needlessly complicated moving these cleared detainees. This law must be revised. The SASC foreign transfer provisions will do that while ensuring that any risks are far outweighed by the dangers of continuing the status quo. Major General Paul Eaton (Ret.) has cautioned that unless we institute change, Guantanamo will serve as "a recruiting tool of the first order" for those who wish us harm, while damaging cooperation with our allies on counterterrorism that will result in lost intelligence opportunities. Worse yet is the effect it has had on Americans, corrupting their faith in American values that has taken centuries to build.

To continue to spend nearly $2.7 million per detainee, per year makes no sense at a time when Congress is wrestling with deep budget cuts. We can institute an intelligent, factor-based system that will allow the Secretary of Defense to explain to Congress whether a transfer is in America's national security interests, and the steps that will be taken to mitigate any risk of a detainee engaging in terrorist activities after release.

In his May speech at the National Defense University, President Obama recommitted his administration to closing Guantanamo. Since that time, the administration has appointed envoys at the Departments of Defense and State to oversee the closure of Guantanamo. This is absolutely the right thing to do now, but Congress must also do its part.

The Guantanamo provisions in the Senate NDAA clarify and modify the President's authority to transfer detainees to foreign countries and provide important additional flexibility to close Guantanamo responsibly. They replace a cumbersome certification and waiver regime with sensible, factor-based standards designed to minimize risks. They lift the ban on transfers to the United States for criminal prosecution, which is critical now that we see how federal criminal courts offer a more experienced and less costly way to try terrorism suspects than the flawed, costly, inefficient, and perhaps unconstitutional, military commissions system at Guantanamo Bay. The experiment of the military commissions of the 21st century has proven inadequate to its promises of justice, transparency, fairness and speed.

It is more than twelve years after the heinous attacks in which our loved ones died. During that time some of our fellow 9/11 family members have died waiting to see justice done. Enough is enough! It is time for the U.S. to demonstrate its commitment to the rule of law by moving detainees cleared for release out of Guantanamo, by making federal trials for those who are accused of terrorist crimes possible, and by taking steps to close the Guantanamo facilities that have earned the U.S. the enmity of the world. We exhort you to pass the NDAA without transfer restrictions on Guantanamo prisoners, and help to bring this horrible chapter to a close in our lifetimes.

Our relatives died on 9/11; they would never have wanted the U.S. to compromise its principles in their names, nor do we.

Sincerely,

THE MEMBERS OF SEPTEMBER 11TH
FAMILIES FOR PEACEFUL TOMORROWS.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, by the end of President Obama's term in office, some detainees will have been held at Guantanamo without charge or trial for 15 years—15 years. We need to change this outcome, and we can do so with no threat to our Nation's security.

For one detainee, Ibrahim Idris, his physical and mental problems at Guantanamo have gone on for so long that the government decided to finally drop its opposition to his legal argument that he is far too sick to stay locked up. There are others at Guantanamo who are desperate and in need of medical treatment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, if I may finish this paragraph.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I yield an additional 2 minutes to the time of the Senator from California.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. I thank the chairman.

That is why section 32 of this Defense bill will allow the Department of Defense to temporarily transfer Guantanamo detainees to the United States for emergency or critical medical treatment. No one is talking about releasing these detainees into the United States. The section is about providing medical care to people in our custody.

The other Guantanamo provisions in this year's defense bill clarify and improve the existing authority to transfer detainees out of Guantanamo, to other nations, responsibly. Specifically, Section 1031 replaces a cumbersome six-part certification requirement and partial waiver regime in current law with a more sensible, factor-based standard designed to mitigate any risks, but allow transfers to foreign countries and into the U.S. for criminal prosecution.

Let me be clear about this last point: Al Qaeda terrorists should be transferred to the U.S. for prosecution in Federal criminal courts because for some of them, Federal criminal court is the only option left besides indefinite detention or release.

I regret to say this, but the military commission system at Guantanamo has failed. Although the issue is being appealed, under current law, the military commission system cannot be used to prosecute the terrorists at Gitmo for the crimes of material support and conspiracy, which are two crimes commonly charged in federal criminal court. That restriction has complicated the efforts of the military prosecutors to convict terrorists.

Don't we want the chance to bring these terrorists to justice instead of releasing them or holding them forever without charge? Wasn't the reason we passed these criminal penalties into law so that they could be used against terrorists such as those Al Qaeda members who conspired against the United States, or aided the terrorists involved in the attacks of September 11?

Now that we have been able to observe the different iterations of the military commission system over the years, it is clear that it does not provide swift justice for either the detainees or the victims who want to see these accused terrorists brought to justice. Consider the following information about the military commission system.

Military commission prosecutions have led to short sentences and zero death penalty convictions.

Three of seven individuals convicted in military commissions are already out of prison living freely in their home countries of Yemen, Australia, and Sudan. A fourth detainee who was convicted could be released from Guantanamo later this year, a fifth is serving his sentence in Canada, and a sixth now has his case on appeal.

Military Commissions at Guantanamo have cost the U.S. $600 million since 2007. That's $600 million to prosecute seven people.

By comparison, Federal criminal courts offer a more experienced and less constitutionally risky venue. There have been 533 terrorism-related convictions in Federal criminal courts since 9/11.

The President should have the option to add some of the detainees currently at Guantanamo to that conviction list. Section 1033 of this year's defense authorization bill will allow the Secretary of Defense to transfer Gitmo detainees to the U.S. for detention and trial if the Secretary of Defense determines that, No. 1, doing so is in the U.S. national security interest, and No. 2, that public safety issues have been addressed.

Allowing detainees to be brought to the U.S. and charged in Federal court will work to put an end to the delay of justice and the extreme cost of the experimental justice system at Guantanamo Bay. It is the quickest and best way to ensure detainees will answer for their terrorist crimes and serve out long prison sentences.

For those relatively few detainees who can't be tried but instead have been slated for continued detention until the end of hostilities, bringing them to the United States presents a more cost-effective and less controversial option. Facilities in the United States are up to the task. I don't believe there is any more risk of a Guantanamo detainee escaping from a maximum security facility than there is from a prisoner getting out of Supermax. It has never been done.

I know transferring Guantanamo detainees out of the facility where they have been for 10 or more years is not politically popular. These are not easy decisions, but we have to consider the alternatives.

Do we want 84 detainees who have been cleared for transfer to other countries to languish in our prison any longer? Again, "cleared for transfer," doesn't mean these detainees will automatically go free. "Cleared for transfer" means they could still be detained by foreign governments after they are transferred.

Do we want detainees who could be prosecuted quickly and serve long prison sentences to avoid being brought to justice any longer?

Isn't it time to close Guantanamo once and for all? I believe Guantanamo is, has been, and always will be a dark spot on our history, so the sooner we get rid of it, the better.

I support the Guantanamo language included in this bill by Chairman LEVIN and ask my colleagues to support the Levin-McCain Amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I yield 5 minutes to the Senator from Colorado.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. I thank the chairman of the Armed Services Committee.

Mr. President, I rise, as the Senator from California did, in support of a tough, adaptable, and smart national security policy. What do I mean by that? In this case, that means we ought to support provisions that provide the Department of Defense and the President with the flexibility necessary to transfer certain detainees from the detention facility at Guantanamo to face justice in other venues. In that context, I am proud to join Chairman LEVIN and Senator MCCAIN and Senator FEINSTEIN in sponsoring this important bipartisan amendment. For a number of reasons, I strongly believe its passage would strengthen our national security and is in the best interests of our country.

I am joined in that assessment by the Director of National Intelligence, the Secretary of Defense, and many other senior national security leaders, including at least 38 retired generals and admirals who helped to prosecute the war against Islamic extremists.

This amendment does not close Guantanamo. It doesn't require the release of detainees into the United States or force the transfer of suspected terrorists to foreign countries. This amendment simply provides the administration with the flexibility to bring justice to Gitmo detainees in the most effective, efficient means possible.

The fact is that civilian courts have convicted over 400 suspected terrorists since 2001. The conviction rate for terrorist suspects in article III courts; that is, civilian courts, is nearly 90 percent. During the same period, a grand total of seven detainees at Guantanamo have been convicted by military commissions, and of those seven, two convictions were overturned.

There are circumstances in which military commissions are appropriate. I would agree with some of my colleagues that there are detainees held at Guantanamo who should face trial in a military commission. But the fact is that in many cases the civilian court system is faster, it is more efficient and more effective at bringing terrorists to justice than military commissions. So why would we handcuff ourselves and limit our options to bring accused terrorists to justice?

Our enemy already knows we are tough. We have pursued them all over the globe. We have eliminated their leaders and we have killed or captured many of their followers. But we can be tough and we can be smart at the same time. Handcuffing our military and Justice Department in their efforts to bring our enemies to justice is simply shortsighted and counterproductive. Doing so only impedes justice, erodes the image of the United States, and serves as a recruiting tool for a new generation of terrorists.

According to the Defense Department, we are spending about $450 million a year to keep Gitmo open. And the DOD is going to need hundreds of millions more for upgrades and repairs if the facility stays open. That situation is unsustainable, especially at a time of sequestration and rising budget deficits. Without action by Congress, those costs will continue to climb as detainees get older and sicker, and our moral standing will suffer the longer we hold people without trial.

Based on evidence, I have faith in our justice system to secure convictions in terrorist cases. We have a system of justice second to none and prisons that already hold some of the most dangerous criminals in the world. There is no question that these individuals who have been convicted and sentenced will be detained for the rest of their lives with no risk to our citizens.

We have proven it time and time again. As a member of the Armed Services and Intelligence Committees, I receive frequent briefings and reports on our counterterrorism efforts around the world. I know this: I know this amendment will let us continue to prove it again and again in the future.

In sum, the Levin-McCain-Feinstein-Udall amendment benefits our national security and should be passed by the Senate without delay.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, how much time remains on our side?

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. There is 4 minutes 15 seconds.

Mr. LEVIN. I ask unanimous consent that I be able to yield an additional 5 minutes above the 4½ minutes to Senator DURBIN. I understand if that means there is less time left than allotted to the other side, I would ask unanimous consent that additional time be used at 5 o'clock and the vote would then occur a few minutes after 5.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I do not object, but specifically we have a request by the prime author of this amendment to be under consideration at 5 o'clock to have 5 minutes. So I assume the thrust of the Senator's UC request is to give her 5 minutes, even if it happens to fall starting at 5 o'clock.

Mr. LEVIN. Is the Senator from New Hampshire available at 5 minutes to 5? If that is true, I ask unanimous consent that I be allowed to modify that previous UC request to provide 10 minutes to the Senator from Illinois and the last 5 minutes to the Senator from New Hampshire.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, first, let me thank my colleague and friend from the State of Oklahoma for yielding time and the Senator from Michigan for manufacturing this close so both sides will be heard as we come to this important vote.

For 11 years now—for 11 years—I have been coming to the Senate floor giving speeches about closing Guantanamo. This is my 66th speech calling for the closure of Guantanamo. This year I held a hearing in the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on the Constitution, Civil Rights and Human Rights. I brought in military experts, and I asked them: Do we need Guantanamo? Here is what they said. In fact, here is what we heard from Retired MG Paul Eaton, who served for 30 years in the Army and was the commanding general of the Coalition Military Assistance Training Team in Iraq. He said:

Guantanamo is a terrorist creating institution and is a direct facilitator in filling out the ranks of Al Qaeda and other terror organizations that would attack the U.S. or our interests.

General Eaton said:

Guantanamo, in military terms, is a recruitment tool of the first order.

Then I went down to the Southern Command in Miami, FL, and I met with the generals there who have the responsibility of running Guantanamo. When I asked them about Guantanamo, there was a sadness that came over the conversation, and they talked about how difficult it was—with about 160 or 165 detainees remaining down there—how difficult and how expensive it was for them to maintain that facility. They accepted it. It was part of their responsibility being in our military. But they basically said to me: When is Congress going to accept its responsibility?

The Levin-McCain amendment before us accepts our responsibility.

Let's get down to the bottom line. Whether you think these terrorists should be at Guantanamo or not in Guantanamo, let's talk about something very basic and very simple. How much does it cost for us to keep in prison one person in Guantanamo for 1 year? It is $2.7 million—$2.7 million per prisoner per year.

How much does it cost the Federal taxpayers to take the most dangerous, blood-thirsty, deadly individual we convict in our criminal courts and put them in the Florence supermax facility in Colorado, where no prisoner has ever escaped? Mr. President, $70,000 a year.

What are we trying to prove? Are we trying to prove in Guantanamo how much money we can spend—let me add waste—on a facility that is totally unnecessary?

I asked the Director of the U.S. Bureau of Prisons a very basic question: If we sent the most dangerous terrorist at Guantanamo to Florence, CO, what is the likelihood that person would escape? He said: Zero. They do not escape from our supermax facilities.

So we are not keeping America safe by wasting—wasting—$450 million a year in Guantanamo. We know that roughly half of those who are being held at Guantanamo should be released. They are not going to be tried for a crime at this point. They should be released. What the Levin-McCain amendment does is to set up an orderly, thoughtful, sensible way for the transfer of these prisoners.

Why do we keep this Guantanamo open? What is the point? It is as if some lobbyist has us enthralled that we have to keep Guantanamo open. It is not about national security anymore. It is not about the cost of incarceration anymore. It is about something else that I cannot even define.

So what we need to do is to take those remaining in Guantanamo who can be charged, charge them, try them, incarcerate them. Those who are going to be a danger to the United States should never see the light of day. But why would we continue to waste $2.7 million per year per prisoner to keep Guantanamo open?

Throughout its history, Guantanamo has had a checkered past. It is part of Cuba. We send the Cuban Government each year a rental check for the Guantanamo facility. They never cash it. They may tear them up. They do maintain the minefield between Guantanamo and the rest of the Island of Cuba to make sure there is no travel between the two, not that anyone would try. That is it. We maintain this facility because in the earliest days of our fight against terrorism after 9/11, there were legal counsels in the White House, such as John Yoo, who said that Guantanamo Bay was the "legal equivalent of outer space." We could put people there. They will have no rights and no one will ever know. How wrong he was.

Guantanamo has become such a sad symbol that it is time for it to be closed, and it is time for us to do it in a thoughtful, sensible, honorable way, as every great nation should. To maintain Guantanamo for some bragging right that I cannot even describe on the floor is simply unacceptable.

I am going to be opposing the amendment that is offered by the Senator from New Hampshire and supporting the Levin-McCain bipartisan amendment, which I think deals with this issue in a thoughtful and reasonable way.

Do you want to keep America safe? Take those prisoners, those convicted terrorists, and put them in a supermax facility. If you say to yourself, oh, we don't put known terrorists and convicted terrorists in our Federal prison system, how wrong you are. They are all over our Federal prison system. We have convicted terrorists who are incarcerated in Marion, IL. Drive down to southern Illinois and no one even knows it because they will never see the light of day—never.

So in terms of safety in America, we know how to keep America safe. We also know when we are wasting money. At this point in time, we are wasting money with this Guantanamo facility.

Let's transfer those for detention and trial into the appropriate places and have them tried successfully. I think we have had perhaps six or seven tried by military commissions—only six or seven—since 9/11, and two of those were reversed. Most of them go into our court system. Even when they read them Miranda rights, it does not stop the convictions. The convictions come through regularly because our people know how to convict those who would threaten the United States and make it dangerous.

It is worth taking a moment to recall the history of Guantanamo Bay.

After 9/11, the Bush administration decided to set aside the Geneva Conventions, which have served us well in past conflicts, and set up an offshore prison in Guantanamo in order to evade the requirements of our Constitution.

General Colin Powell, who was then the Secretary of State, objected. He said disregarding our treaty obligations, "will undermine the protections of the law of war for our own troops . . . It will undermine public support among critical allies, making military cooperation more difficult to sustain."

At the hearing that I held in the Constitution Subcommittee, we received testimony from Retired MG Michael Lehnert, who served in the Marine Corps for 37 years. General Lehnert led the first Joint Task Force Guantanamo, which established the detention facility in 2002. General Lehnert testified that he tried to comply with the Geneva Conventions, but he was rebuked by civilian political appointees in the Bush administration. General Lehnert testified:

"We squandered the good will of the world after we were attacked by our actions in Guantanamo. . . . Our decision to keep Guantanamo open has actually helped our enemies because it validated every negative perception of the United States. . . . To argue that we cannot transfer detainees to a secure facility in the United States because it would be a threat to public security is ludicrous.

Instead of taking the advice of General Powell and General Lehnert, Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld approved the use of abusive interrogation techniques at Guantanamo.

Guantanamo became an international embarrassment, and the Supreme Court repeatedly struck down the Bush administration's detention policies.

Let's be clear, conditions at Guantanamo Bay have improved dramatically since the detainee abuses of the previous administration.

But we cannot continue the indefinite detention of dozens of detainees in an offshore island prison. Gen. Paul

Eaton said it well when he testified to my subcommittee:

Guantanamo cannot be buffed enough to shine again after the sins of the past. . . . Guantanamo's reputation for torture and lack of due process of law cannot be rectified.

Every day, the soldiers and sailors serving at Guantanamo Bay are doing a magnificent job under difficult circumstances.

But these fine young men and women are being asked to carry out an unsustainable policy of indefinite detention because we—their political leaders—have failed to close Guantanamo prison.

The President's authority has been limited by Congress. We have enacted restrictions on detainee transfers that make it nearly impossible to close the facility.

During his two terms in office, Congress never once restricted President Bush's authority to transfer Guantanamo detainees.

Congress did not start micromanaging the Commander in Chief's authority to transfer detainees until 2009, after President Obama took office.

The Obama administration believes that Congress should completely lift the restrictions on the President's authority to close Guantanamo detention facility. I agree.

But I will support the Levin-McCain amendment, which is a constructive step in the right direction. The Levin-McCain amendment would give the President more flexibility to move forward with closing Guantanamo, while still imposing significant restrictions on the administration's authority to transfer detainees.

Under the Levin-McCain amendment, the Secretary of Defense may transfer a Guantanamo detainee to the United States, but only for the purpose of detention, trial, and incarceration. The Secretary of Defense must "determine that the transfer is in the national security interest of the United States." And he must ensure that appropriate steps have been taken to eliminate any risk to public safety while the detainee is in the United States. The McCain-Levin amendment also specifically prohibits any detainee who is transferred to the U.S. for detention or trial from applying for asylum or from being released into the United States.

Before the administration would be permitted to transfer any detainees to the U.S., they would have to produce a detailed report on the plans for each and every detainee who is currently held at Guantanamo Bay.

The Defense Authorization Act also would allow the Secretary of Defense to temporarily transfer a detainee to a military medical facility in the United States, if the detainee needs critical, emergency care in order to prevent death or an imminent significant injury.

The Secretary of Defense would only be authorized to make such transfers if the required medical care cannot be provided at Guantanamo Bay "without incurring excessive and unreasonable costs."

Moreover, the Defense Department would have complete responsibility for the custody and control of any detainee during their transfer and temporary hospitalization at a military medical facility.

Detainees receiving temporary emergency medical care would not remain in the United States. The bill specifically requires that they be returned to Guantanamo as soon as they are medically cleared to travel.

Under the Defense authorization bill, the administration could only transfer detainees to foreign countries in limited circumstances. Specifically, first, the Secretary of Defense must determine that it is in the national security interest of the United States to transfer a particular detainee to a given country. Second, the Secretary of Defense must determine that sufficient steps have been taken that will substantially mitigate the risk of recidivism.

But that is not all. The bill requires the Secretary to consider six factors when determining whether a transfer is in the national security interest of the United States, including: No. 1, actions taken by the United States or the host country to reduce the risk of recidivism; No. 2, the host country's control over any facility where the detainee may be held; No. 3, an assessment of the capacity and willingness of the host country to meet its assurances to help mitigate recidivism; and No. 4, the detainee's cooperation with U.S. intelligence and law enforcement forces.

These provisions would ensure that—before any detainee is transferred to a foreign country—the administration would conduct a thorough review of all relevant factors, with a primary focus on preserving our national security.

In contrast to the McCain-Levin amendment, the Ayotte amendment would continue and expand the existing detainee transfer restrictions, which would micromanage the Commander in Chief's national security decisions and make it impossible to close Guantanamo.

It is time to move forward with shutting down Guantanamo prison. We can transfer most of the detainees to foreign countries. And we can bring the others to the United States for detention and trial.

Look at the track record. Since 9/11, nearly 500 terrorists have been tried and convicted in Federal courts and are now being safely held in Federal prisons. And no one has ever escaped from a Federal supermax prison or a military prison.

In contrast, only six individuals have been convicted by military commissions, and two of these convictions have been overturned by the courts. And today, nearly 12 years after the 9/11 attacks, the architects of the 9/11 attacks are still awaiting trial at Guantanamo.

During his confirmation hearing, I discussed this with FBI Director Jim Comey, who was Deputy Attorney General in the Bush administration. Mr. Comey told me:

We have about a 20-year track record in handling particularly Al Qaeda cases in federal courts. . . the federal courts and federal prosecutors are effective at accomplishing two goals in every one of these situations: getting information and incapacitating the terrorists.

I have heard some of my Republican colleagues argue that we cannot close Guantanamo because of the risk that some detainees may engage in terrorist activities.

The irony is that due to steps taken by President Obama, recidivism rates for the detainees transferred during the Obama administration are far lower than they were during the Bush administration.

Only 4.2 percent of former detainees transferred since January 22, 2009, when President Obama took office, are confirmed recidivists. In contrast, 18.2 percent of the detainees released during the Bush administration are confirmed recidivists.

That is because the Obama administration put in place a strict process for detainee transfers. According to the Director of National Intelligence, of the 174 former detainees who are confirmed or suspected recidivists, only 7 have been transferred during the Obama administration.

No one is suggesting that closing Guantanamo is risk free or that no detainees will ever engage in terrorist activities if they are transferred.

But our national security and military leaders have concluded that the risk of keeping Guantanamo open far outweighs the risk of closing it because the facility continues to harm our alliances and serve as a recruitment tool for terrorists.

And before any detainees are transferred, they are extensively screened, steps are taken to mitigate any risks, and then detainees are monitored after they are transferred. Detainees who pose a risk that cannot be mitigated will not be transferred.

Detainees who pose a risk that cannot be mitigated will not be transferred. And if a former detainee does return to terrorism, he will likely meet the fate of Said al-Shihri, No. 2 official in Al Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula, who was recently killed in a drone strike.

I stand with Gen. Colin Powell, Gen. Paul Eaton, Gen. Michael Lehnert and countless other national security and military leaders.

It is time to end this sad chapter of our history. Eleven years is far too long. We need to close Guantanamo.

I thank Senator LEVIN and Senator MCCAIN for bringing this issue before us. We can no longer ignore it. We cannot afford to ignore it. As General Eaton says, we cannot afford to keep this recruiting tool open for Al Qaeda. We cannot afford to continue to tell American taxpayers they need to pay $2.7 million a year for every prisoner in Guantanamo. Transfer them to a supermax prison for $70,000. America will be just as safe. It will have money in the bank to use to fight terrorism in more effective ways.

I urge my colleagues to support the Levin-McCain amendment and oppose the Ayotte amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire.

Ms. AYOTTE. Mr. President, I rise in support of amendment No. 2255. Let me just say what we cannot afford. What we cannot afford is to read terrorists Miranda rights and tell them they have the right to remain silent.

Why can't we afford that? Because if we lose the opportunity to gather valuable information to protect our Nation, then we cannot prevent future attacks against the country.

Here is the problem we face. Here, shown in this picture I have in the Chamber, is the current head of Al Qaeda, Ayman al-Zawahiri. If we capture him tomorrow, I ask my colleagues this: Do you want to send him to a secure detention facility where he can be fully interrogated under the laws of war and held there in detention under law of war authority or do you want to send him to a prison in the United States where we cannot know—the legal questions are many—where there is a real risk that he will not be able to be held in law of war detention and will be told you have the right to remain silent, and we will lose opportunities to gather intelligence to protect our country.

My colleague from Illinois talked about the worst criminals whom we put in prison. I am a former murder prosecutor, and I put some of the worst murderers in prison. There is a difference. We are not dealing with criminals; we are dealing with terrorists. The priority has to be to gather information and protect our country. If we catch Zawahiri tomorrow, bring him to a prison near you, give him a lawyer, tell him he has the right to remain silent, those legal questions are not dealt with if we adopt the alternative amendment that allows the administration to transfer people such as Khalid Shaikh Mohammed, the mastermind of 9/11, to the United States.

What do we do with future captures, such as Zawahiri? How do we ensure we can gather information? By the way, that is priceless. If we can stop a terrorist attack by interrogating someone—the price we can save for America, we cannot put a number on that.

If you believe, with a rising reengagement rate of 29 percent—which is higher than last year in terms of people we have had at Guantanamo, we have let go but have gotten back in the fight against us—that we should weaken the standards this administration has to meet to transfer people from Guantanamo to third-party countries, then that is essentially what is done in the Defense authorization.

My amendment will restore existing law to ensure that there are strong national security waivers the administration must meet before they transfer prisoners to countries where they are getting back in the fight against us, where they are getting out and getting back in the fight, including against our troops.

So this is a fundamental question. We cannot afford right now, with what is happening around the world, to close the one secure detention facility we have, and it is clear we can conduct law of war detentions there. We still remain in a fight against terrorists. We cannot treat them like common criminals. That is what is at stake.

If you believe this man shown in this picture should come to a prison near you, that is not what I have heard from my constituents or the American people. That is why my amendment will prohibit the transfer of the mastermind of 9/11 to U.S. soil and keep him in Guantanamo, a top-rate detention facility that keeps terrorists, as opposed to common criminals, secure.

Finally, I would say, as we look at the prohibition on Yemen, my amendment, which is also cosponsored by the ranking member of the Intelligence Committee and many other Members in this Chamber, would prevent transfers to the country of Yemen. Without my amendment, the administration could transfer terrorists to Yemen. What does that mean? Yemen is where Al Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula is centered. We have actually had terrorists who have been released from Guantanamo and gone back into Al Qaeda leadership and been found in Yemen and there have been prison breaks in Yemen. Yet if my amendment is not adopted to prohibit transfers to Yemen, the administration can transfer detainees from Guantanamo to countries such as Yemen, and the security requirements are weakened.

The world is not a safer place from last year to this year, unfortunately. The reengagement rate of Guantanamo prisoners has increased from last year to this year.

Why are we weakening the national security provisions? Let's keep existing law in place. Why do we want to send Khalid Shaikh Mohammed to the United States of America when we have a secure facility at Guantanamo? Why do we want to take any risk that if we are blessed enough to have our men and women in uniform—who do a fantastic job—capture Zawahiri tomorrow, that he may have to be told "you have the right to remain silent" because there are legal ambiguities when he is brought to this country, as opposed to law-of-war detention and interrogation in Guantanamo? This is what is at stake.

We cannot afford to think we are no longer fighting a war against terrorists. We cannot afford to treat people like him as common criminals. As much as I believe in our criminal justice system, it was not created to gather intelligence, which is what we need to do to make sure America remains safe.

I ask my colleagues to support amendment No. 2255, which is cosponsored also by Senator CHAMBLISS, the ranking Republican on the Intelligence Committee; Senator INHOFE, the ranking Republican on the Armed Services Committee; as well as Senator FISCHER, Senator RUBIO, and Senator BARASSO.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired.

The Senator from Michigan.

MR. LEVIN. I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD letters from Secretary Hagel, Secretary Kerry, Attorney General Holder, and the Director of National Intelligence, James R. Clapper.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SECRETARY OF DEFENSE
Washington, DC, Nov 19, 2013.

Hon. CARL LEVIN,
Chairman, Committee on Armed Services, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: I write regarding the President's goal of closing the Guantanamo Bay Detention Facility and to note the importance of lifting the restrictions on detainee transfers that prevent us from achieving that goal. These restrictions make it difficult to transfer detainees and to close Guantanamo. They are also unnecessary. Before transferring a detainee, this Administration will always ensure the receiving country commits to taking necessary measures to ensure that the detainee's threat is mitigated and the detainee will not be mistreated.

As you know, I recently appointed Mr. Paul Lewis as the Department's Special Envoy for Guantanamo transfers. Special Envoy Lewis will work closely with the State Department's Special Envoy, Mr. Cliff Sloan, to meet with foreign governments and negotiate these assurances. Eliminating or easing the congressionally mandated transfer restrictions would help facilitate our ongoing efforts to transfer detainees once those assurances have been obtained.

The President's proposal to transfer some individuals to the United States for detention or trial, where appropriate, would also help facilitate our efforts to close the facility at Guantanamo, potentially saving U.S. taxpayers millions of dollars each year.

As always, the Department is prepared to provide additional briefings on the closing of the Guantanamo Bay Detention Facility. A similar letter has been sent to the other congressional defense committees.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

CHUCK HAGEL.

THE SECRETARY OF STATE,
Washington, DC, November 13, 2013.

Hon. ROBERT MENENDEZ,
Chairman, Committee on Foreign Relations, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The continued operation of the Guantanamo Bay detention facility undermines U.S. national security and foreign policy interests. I seek your support for the provisions in the Senate Fiscal Year 2014 National Defense Authorization Act that would provide flexibility for detainee transfers and strike unmanageable provisions that currently hinder our efforts to close the facility.

tions and our standing in the world. It undermines America's indispensable leadership on human rights and other critical foreign policy and national security matters. In particular, the Guantanamo detention facility consistently impedes joint counterterrorism efforts with friends and allies. Provisions in the Senate bill would provide an effective, yet judicious, transfer authority which would provide critical support and flexibility in ongoing negotiations with foreign governments on repatriation and resettlement issues.

With increasing fiscal challenges, we must bear in mind that, aside from its incalculable diplomatic costs, detention operations at Guantanamo cost U.S. taxpayers more than $2.7 million per detainee each year—far more than our super maximum security prisons that safely and securely hold the most dangerous inmates in the world, including convicted terrorists. As both detainees and facilities age, these costs will sharply increase.

I hope I can count on your support for the Guantanamo provisions in the Senate Defense Authorization bill to provide us the flexibility we need to close the Guantanamo Bay detention facility. Until this flexibility is restored, our efforts to close the facility are hampered and our national security and foreign policy interests continue to be impeded.

Sincerely,

JOHN F. KERRY.

OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL
Washington, DC, November 14 2013.

Hon. PATRICK J. LEAHY,
Chairman, Committee on the Judiciary, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Hon. CHARLES E. GRASSLEY,
Ranking Member, Committee on the Judiciary, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN LEAHY AND RANKING MEMBER GRASSLEY: As the Senate prepares to consider the National Defense Authorization Act for FY2014, I write to reiterate the longstanding objections of the Department of Justice to any provisions that would continue to restrict the transfer of detainees from Guantanamo, limit the ability of the Executive Branch to determine when and where to prosecute terrorist suspects, and otherwise prevent the President from taking steps to bring about the orderly closure of the facility. Such restrictions encroach on the ability of the Executive Branch to make foreign policy and national security decisions and would, in certain circumstances, violate separation of powers principles.

The unwarranted restrictions on the Executive branch's authority to transfer detainees to a foreign country should be eliminated. Detainees were designated for transfer based on an interagency consensus after a thorough review of all available information. Restricting the ability of the Executive Branch to implement appropriate transfers weakens our national security by wasting resources, damaging our relationships with key allies, and strengthening our enemies.

I also continue to object strongly to the restrictions on transferring Guantanamo detainees to the United States for any purpose. The prosecution of terrorists in Federal court has long been an essential element of our counterterrorism efforts and has been a powerful tool of proven effectiveness. Since 9/11, hundreds of convictions have been obtained on terrorism or terrorism-related charges in our Federal courts, including the convictions of over 165 defendants since 2009. The effectiveness of this system was underscored again on October 24, 2013 when the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit affirmed the conviction and life sentence of Ahmed Ghailani, who was transferred from Guantanamo and then convicted in federal district court of conspiracy in connection with his role in the 1998 East Africa embassy bombings. There is no justification for prohibiting the Federal prosecution of Guantanamo detainees in appropriate cases. As you are aware, the viability of conspiracy and material support prosecutions in military commissions is unresolved in light of adverse D.C. Circuit decisions that currently are under review by the full court. Particularly in view of these rulings, Congress should restore the option to prosecute detainees in Federal court in circumstances where the Executive Branch determines that a Federal prosecution is the surest way to protect our national security. Our federal prisons are fully capable of housing Guantanamo detainees safely, securely, and humanely, just as they have done for the hundreds of defendants serving sentences for terrorism-related offenses since September 11, 2001.

If we are to safeguard the American people, we must be in a position to employ every lawful instrument of national power—including both courts and military commissions—to ensure that terrorists are brought to justice and can no longer threaten American lives. Moreover, if we are to protect our national security and advance our foreign policy objectives, the President must have the ability to transfer detainees when doing so serves our national interests. I urge you to reject any legislative proposals that would compromise our ability to carry out that solemn responsibility.

Sincerely yours,

ERIC H. HOLDER, Jr.
Attorney General.

DIRECTOR OF NATIONAL INTELLIGENCE
Washington, DC.

Hon. DIANNE FEINSTEIN,
Chairman, Select Committee on Intelligence U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.
Hon. SAXBY CHAMBLISS,
Vice Chairman, Select Committee on Intelligence U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR MADAM CHAIRMAN AND VICE CHAIRMAN CHAMBLISS: As the Senate considers provisions of the FY14 National Defense Authorization bill that would lift Guantanamo detainee transfer restrictions, I would like to provide the Intelligence Community's views of the national security implications in maintaining the Guantanamo Bay detention facility (GTMO).

Al-Qa'ida, its affiliates, and its allies this year continued to reference the detention and purported mistreatment of the detainees at GTMO in furtherance of their global jihadist narratives. The references to GTMO by al-Qa'ida and affiliated organizations include:

Al-Qaida leader Ayman al-Zawahiri in an audio statement in July 2013 citing the detention without trial of GTMO prisoners as one indication of American hypocrisy and indiscriminate persecution of innocent Muslims and calling for all al-Qa'ida prisoners at GTMO to be released.

An article about the Boston marathon bombings in the most recent edition of AQAP's Inspire magazine in June highlighting the ongoing detention of prisoners at GTMO as one of the purported justifications to engage in jihad.

As these examples illustrate, closing the Guantanamo Bay detention facility would deprive al-Qa'ida leaders of the ability to use alleged ongoing mistreatment of detainees to further their global jihadist narrative. In an effort to disrupt the narrative used by terrorists, I support the President's priority of closing the detention facility.

Sincerely,

JAMES R. CLAPPER.

AMENDMENT NO. 2175

Under the previous order, there will be 2 minutes equally divided prior to a vote on the Levin-McCain amendment No. 2175.

The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, this amendment is a Levin-McCain-Feinstein-Udall amendment. It clarifies that Gitmo detainees would not gain any additional legal rights as a result of their transfer to the United States for detention. Any Gitmo detainee who is transferred to the United States gains no additional legal rights. They also are not permitted to be released inside the United States. They do not lose their status as unprivileged enemy belligerents eligible for detention and trial under the law of war. If they are transferred to the United States, they gain no additional right to challenge their detention beyond the habeas corpus that has been affirmed by the Supreme Court.

I would hope this could be broadly supported.

Senator McCain.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arizona.

Mr. MCCAIN. Madam President, I have a letter from 38 retired flag and general officers of the U.S. military, and I quote from their letter:

As retired flag and general officers, we believe it is imperative for Congress to address Guantanamo now. We have always believed that our detention policies should adhere to the rule of law, and that we as a Nation are more secure when we do. Guantanamo is a betrayal of American values. The prison is a symbol of torture and justice delayed. More than a decade after it opened, Guantanamo remains a recruiting poster for terrorists which makes us all less safe.

I would also point out for my colleagues that Guantanamo has cost more than $400 million in the last two fiscal years, and the Department of Defense estimates that is $2.7 million per detainee per year.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD the letter from which I just quoted.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

NOVEMBER 13, 2013.

Hon. JOHN MCCAIN,
*U.S. Senate, Russell Senate Office Building,
Washington, DC.*

DEAR SENATOR MCCAIN: As retired flag and general officers, we believe it is imperative for Congress to address Guantanamo now. We have always believed that our detention policies should adhere to the rule of law, and that we as a nation are more secure when we do. Guantanamo is a betrayal of American values. The prison is a symbol of torture and justice delayed. More than a decade after it opened, Guantanamo remains a recruiting poster for terrorists which makes us all less safe. As the United States ends the war in Afghanistan in 2014, the government must find a lawful disposition for all detainees captured as part of that war. Spending $2.7 million per detainee annually at Guantanamo, when a comparable facility in the United States costs taxpayers only $34,000–$78,000, is fiscally irresponsible, especially as our military must make significant budget cuts under sequestration.

The Senate National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) as reported out of the Senate Armed Services Committee would provide a meaningful step towards responsibly closing Guantanamo. It authorizes the transfer of detainees cleared for transfer by the U.S. intelligence and defense agencies for purposes of resettlement or repatriation, and it permits transfers to the U.S. for purposes of prosecution, incarceration and medical treatment. We support these provisions, and oppose any efforts to impose more stringent restrictions on the transfer of detainees out of Guantanamo.

Sincerely,

Sagsveen, USA (Ret.); Brigadier General Anthony Verrengia, USAF (Ret.); Brigadier General Stephen N. Xenakis, USA (Ret.).

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire.

Ms. AYOTTE. Madam President, I urge my colleagues to vote against amendment No. 2175. If you want to bring the 164 Gitmo detainees to the United States, that is what this amendment will allow the administration to do. The plan they are going to submit requires no congressional oversight, no approval, and though the chairman said they will not get any additional legal rights, he does not answer the question what about constitutional rights if they are brought to our soil. Will they have to be told they have the right to remain silent?

If we catch Zawahiri, the current head of Al Qaeda, tomorrow, will he have to be read Miranda rights? Because that is what is happening when we bring them to U.S. soil now. That is the real question.

That is not required to be answered by their plan the administration wants sent, and we have no oversight over that plan. I urge my colleagues to vote no on this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent for 15 seconds.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LEVIN. There are no additional rights for people brought to military detention in the United States than they have in Guantanamo. Nothing changes. There are no more Miranda rights here than in Guantanamo. If they are in military detention, they are in military detention wherever it is.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time has expired.

NOT VOTING—2

Blunt	Isakson
-------	---------

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order requiring 60 votes for the adoption of this amendment, the amendment is rejected.

The majority leader.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I am going to announce a consent agreement, and I will read through it in just a minute. It seems to me this debate we had today was extremely important. As I said last night, one of the issues in this bill is Guantanamo. I felt it was appropriate—even though I agree with the language in the bill—that the Republicans have an opportunity to see if they could change it. That is what this was all about this afternoon.

On the sexual assault issue, there is language in the bill that Senator GILLIBRAND and others want to change. Senator LEVIN and especially Senator MCCASKILL have come up with a side-by-side, just like we had today, and that deserves a full debate. That is an issue which has been in all the papers over the last several months.

The Senate deserves and the American public deserves this debate. I hope we can get this done.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the pending Levin amendment No. 2123 be set aside for Senator GILLIBRAND or designee to offer amendment No. 2099 relative to sexual assault; that the amendment be subject to a relevant side-by-side amendment from Senators MCCASKILL and AYOTTE, amendment No. 2170; that no second-degree amendments be in order to either of the sexual assault amendments; that each of these amendments be subject to a 60-affirmative-vote threshold; that when the Senate resumes consideration of the bill on Wednesday, November 20, the time until 5 p.m. be equally divided between the proponents and opponents of the Gillibrand amendments; that at 5 p.m. the Senate proceed to a vote in relation to the Gillibrand amendment No. 2099; that upon disposition of the Gillibrand amendment, the Senate proceed to vote in relation to the McCaskill-Ayotte amendment No. 2170; that there be 2 minutes equally divided in between the votes; and that no motions to recommit be in order during the consideration of the sexual assault amendments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. INHOFE. Madam President, reserving the right to object, will the Senator amend his request and add the following language: following the disposition of the McCaskill-Ayotte amendment, all pending amendments be withdrawn and the Republican manager or his designee be recognized to offer the next amendment in order, followed by an amendment offered by the majority side, and that the two sides continue offering amendments in alternating fashion until all amendments are disposed of.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the leader so modify his request?

Mr. REID. Madam President, with the deepest respect to my friend the senior Senator from Oklahoma, we are not in a position to have a bunch of amendments on this bill. It took us weeks to get the drug compounding bill done—weeks, plural. What we should do is get this very contentious amendment out of the way and move on to other amendments. There is no reason why we can't agree on going from one amendment to another amendment. Everyone has to understand that this is not going to be an open amendment process. It is not going to happen. We have tried that. Remember? People said, we haven't done anything on energy for 5 years. That pretty well says it all. But we said, OK, what we are going to do is work on something that is bipartisan in nature led by Senator SHAHEEN. Senator PORTMAN was heavily involved. We never got off first base. We never even got headed toward first base. So we can't do that.

There is going to have to be a change of atmosphere around here where we agree to do legislation. We talk about remembering the good old days when we had unlimited amendments. I remember those too. I also remember the good old days where the majority would have a few amendments, the minority would have a number of amendments, and we would move forward and pass legislation. But no one is willing to do that anymore. We are, but they are not.

So I know how well-intentioned my friend is, but that was then and this is now. I object. I don't accept his modification to my request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the original request?

Mr. INHOFE. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. REID. Thank you very much.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT WITH AMENDMENT NO. 2305

Mr. REID. I have a motion to recommit S. 1197 with instructions at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the motion.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Nevada [Mr. REID] moves to recommit the bill to the Committee on Armed Services with instructions to report back forthwith with the following amendment No. 2305.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end, add the following:

This Act shall become effective 3 days after enactment.

Mr. REID. I ask for the yeas and nays on that motion.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 2306

Mr. REID. I have an amendment to the instructions at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Nevada [Mr. REID] proposes an amendment numbered 2306 to the instructions on the motion to recommit.

The amendment is as follows:

In the amendment, strike "3 days" and insert "2 days."

Mr. REID. I ask for the yeas and nays on this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be a sufficient second.

AMENDMENT NO. 2307 TO AMENDMENT NO. 2306

Mr. REID. I am so sorry. I have a second-degree amendment at the desk that I totally forgot about.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Nevada [Mr. REID] proposes an amendment numbered 2307 to amendment No. 2306.

The amendment is as follows:

In the amendment, strike "2 days" and insert "1 day."

Mr. REID. Madam President, what I hope we can do tomorrow, as we did today—I know people feel strongly about this sexual assault issue—is people will come and talk about that. It is so important. We were able to do that today on this amendment we had, and by the time 5 o'clock came, there had been a full discussion of the amendment. No one was crying for more time. So I hope in the morning people who feel strongly about this issue will come and talk about it. We did have some people who came and talked about this issue and that was important. So there are very strong feelings about this amendment. It is a difficult issue. It is sexual assault in the military. It wasn't long ago we wouldn't even be discussing such a thing on the Senate floor. We have to now, because it is an issue the military has, and we are trying to work through this. People have different views on how to proceed, but everyone agrees it needs to change. It is a question of how we change it, and that is what this debate is all about.

So I hope Senators will come in the morning and start talking about this issue; tee it up for a vote sometime tomorrow afternoon.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that we now proceed to a period of morning business with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each, and we can do that until 7:30 tonight; and during that period of time, it will be for debate only.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Iowa.

ATTACKING BIOFUELS

Mr. GRASSLEY. Madam President, I wish to address another round of attacks that have been spearheaded by Big Oil against America's biofuels producers.

As its market share for Big Oil dips, Big Oil is doubling down to swat down its perennial pinata. This time around, petroleum producers and food conglomerates are using environmental groups as political cover to gain traction on efforts to pull the plug on the renewable fuel standard that we often refer to as RFS.

This is a ridiculously transparent and very much self-serving assault by these special-interest groups. Their relentless campaign to discredit ethanol undermines America's longstanding efforts to diversify its energy landscape, fuel the economy, and, most importantly, strengthen our national security.

The predictable efforts to smear ethanol's reputation ignore the renewable fuel's valuable contribution to clean energy, rural development, job creation, and U.S. energy independence. The latest round of misguided untruths disregards the plain truth. The plain truth is ethanol is renewable, it is sustainable, it is a clean-burning fuel, and all this helps run the Nation's transportation fleet with less pollution and less imported oil.

Let me remind my colleagues, most of that imported oil comes from countries that hate us and use our money to potentially kill Americans. Yet critics continue to hide behind distortions that claim ethanol is bad for the environment, and those distortions I wish to discuss.

I wish to separate fact from fiction regarding ethanol's impact on the environment. Critics say farmers are putting fragile land into production to cash in on higher corn prices at the expense of soil erosion and clean water.

That argument is not good under any respects. It may have been better last year and the year before when corn was $7, but corn is about $4 a bushel now—hardly making ends meet. They point out that 5 million Conservation Reserve Program acres are no longer enrolled in the conservation program since 2008. They want to pin the blame on ethanol. But the facts are, first of all, fewer acres enrolled in CRP has more to do with Federal belt-tightening, meaning spending less money here in Congress, than land stewardship decisions made by corn farmers.

The 2008 farm bill had a lot to do with it. That farm bill built upon other stewardship incentives for American farmers and ranchers administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, including the Environmental Quality Incentives Program, wetland restoration, and wildlife habitat programs. So land put into these programs under the 2008 farm bill takes land out of crop production, but it is not the ethanol industry that has done it. It is Federal policy.

For instance, a Wetlands Reserve Program in 2012 had a record-breaking enrollment of 2.65 million acres. The Wetlands Reserve Program lands cannot be farmed for 30 years, so they aren't going to be raising corn on that land to produce ethanol.

According to the Environmental Protection Agency, no new grassland has been converted to cropland since 2005. Farmers must make marketing, planting, and stewardship decisions that keep their operations financially sound and productive from crop year to crop year.

Even more importantly, these decisions must be environmentally sustainable for the long haul, both from the standpoint of the farmer's economic well-being as well as meeting certain laws that require that.

So let me be clear: Farmers simply can't afford to not take scrupulous care of the land that sustains their livelihoods.

Fertilizer use is on the decline. Compare application per bushel in 1980 versus 2010: Nitrogen is down 43 percent, phosphate is down 58 percent, and potash is down 64 percent.

Ethanol burns cleaner than gasoline. According to the Oregon National Laboratory, corn ethanol reduces greenhouse gas emissions by 34 percent compared to gasoline. If the oil industry wants to talk about the environment, we should not forget—and I will remind them and the people behind this move—about the 1989 Exxon Valdez oil spill or the 2010 Deepwater Horizon oil spills in the Mexican gulf. Critics also say that the renewable fuel standard is driving more acres into corn production. Well, the fact is, if facts mean anything, the RFS is driving significant investment in higher yielding, drought-resistant seed technology that very much enhances production per acre. This is a win-win scenario, to cultivate good-paying jobs, mostly in rural America, and to harvest better yields on less land.

The total cropland planted to corn in the United States is decreasing. Let's compare this year's crop year when U.S. farmers planted 97 million acres of corn—97 million corn acres. In the 1930s, farmers planted 103 million acres of corn. Farmers have increased corn harvests through higher yields, not more acres.

Critics contend the Nation's corn crop is diverted for fuel use at the expense of feed for livestock and higher prices at the grocery store. But what are the facts? In reality, one-third of the corn processed to make ethanol re-enters the marketplace as high-value animal feed called dried distillers grain. Livestock feed remains the largest end user of corn.

I get so darn tired of hearing people from Big Oil or these environmental groups or these big supermarket conglomerates say that 40 percent of the corn produced goes into ethanol when they don't give credit for the 18 pounds of every 56-pound bushel of corn, 18 pounds, or one-third of it, is used for animal feed. So when coproducts such as the dried distillers grain are factored in, then ethanol consumes only about 27 percent of the whole corn grain by volume. Livestock feed uses 50 percent.

Critics have also pursued the false accusation that the increased production of biofuels increases grocery prices. Again, nothing could be further from the truth. The facts are that the U.S. Department of Agriculture Secretary has said farmers receive about 14 cents of every food dollar spent in the grocery stores, and the farmers share of a $4 box of corn flakes is only 10 cents.

So what is at stake when a coalition of special interests tag-teams to pull the rug out from underneath the Nation's ethanol policy? Well, there is a lot at stake. Unfortunately, these flawed attacks on ethanol and next-generation biofuels undermine America's effort to move forward with an aggressive, diversified energy policy that takes into account global demand, geopolitics, and U.S. economic growth.

It has resulted in an EPA that has wholeheartedly adopted this false narrative promoted by Big Oil and Big Oil allies. On Friday, then, the EPA released its proposed rule for the required volumes under the renewable fuel standard for next year. The EPA in this proposal chose to reduce the overall biofuels mandate. Rather than increase the amount of biofuel to be blended as the law requires, the EPA has chosen to waive the mandate and suggest that we use less homegrown renewable biofuel in our fuel supply; hence, more dependence upon foreign sources of energy.

It is terribly disappointing that the U.S. biofuels industry is now under attack from President Obama's EPA. This action, which was vigorously pursued by Big Oil, is a slap in the face of our domestic energy producers. Who would have believed that Big Oil found an ally in President Obama's EPA since he has been such a defender of biofuels and all green energy.

Who would have expected the Obama EPA to be more harmful to our domestic biofuels effort than President Bush ever was? President Bush was demagogued as an oil man from Texas. But he never undermined biofuels to the extent that this proposal from this EPA would.

In making this announcement, the EPA said the challenges to supplying more ethanol to the market are too great because of the so-called blend wall. The fact is the blend wall is a creation of Big Oil. The primary reason ethanol is not blended at levels higher than 10 percent today is because Big Oil has stood in the way.

Congress knew in 2007 that the RFS, renewable fuel standard, would require biofuels to be blended at levels higher than 10 percent. But the petroleum companies fought that every step of the way, going back 4 or 5 years, and finally last Friday they were successful.

Friday's announcement, by the way, by EPA rewarded them for their temper tantrums. The EPA's proposal puts Big Oil in charge of how we implement the renewable fuel standard. It has rewarded Big Oil for its intransigence.

While EPA says its intention is to put the RFS Program on a manageable trajectory that will support continued growth, I want to tell you the exact opposite is true. This proposal is a step back, not a step forward. It undercuts all segments of biofuel—including biodiesel, ethanol, and the advanced biofuels that go by the name of cellulosic ethanol.

While this administration claims to have an energy strategy of "all of the above," this decision by EPA proves it is in favor of "none of the above." Ironically, biofuel producers now know what it is like for traditional energy producers with a bureaucracy that impedes domestic energy production at every turn.

I find this decision baffling. I hope President Obama will see the harmful impacts of the EPA proposal and fix this mistake during the 60-day period EPA must take to consider opinions on this issue.

So there are 60 days to turn this around. I hope we can do that.

PATENT TRANSPARENCY AND IMPROVEMENTS ACT

Mr. LEAHY. Madam President, the American patent system has long been the envy of the world. Two years ago, Congress took important action to update and modernize this system for the 21st century by passing the Leahy-Smith America Invents Act. The Leahy-Smith act has made key improvements to the patent system, strengthening it for the long term. Unfortunately, there are bad actors who are misusing the system by unfairly targeting small businesses and others with lawsuits that are often based on low-quality patents. That is why I joined on Monday with Senator LEE, Senator WHITEHOUSE, and Senator KLOBUCHAR to introduce legislation that will build upon the success of the Leahy-Smith act and curb abuses by so-called patent trolls.

The Patent Transparency and Improvements Act will take important steps to rein in the most egregious abuses of the patent system. It will improve transparency of patent ownership so that trolls cannot hide behind shell corporations and obscure the true owner of the patents that are being asserted. It will help customers who are sued simply for using a product that they purchased by allowing the case against them to be stayed while the product's manufacturer litigates the suit. The Patent Transparency and Improvements Act will also take steps to crack down on abuses of demand letters that are all too often sent to small businesses simply to extort monetary settlements.

When small businesses in Vermont are threatened with lawsuits simply for using document scanners in their offices or offering wi-fi service to their customers, we can all agree that the patent system is not being used as intended. I thank Senator LEE and our cosponsors for joining me in this important effort and applaud Chairman GOODLATTE for the work he is doing in the House to address this problem. I look forward to working with all members of the Judiciary Committee, as well as with the House, to pass bipartisan and bicameral legislation that will crack down on these abuses while at the same time preserving the parts of the patent system that have made it the greatest in the world and an engine for job creation.

ATTACK ON PRO-BÚSQUEDA

Mr. LEAHY. Madam President, on November 15, according to information I have received, three armed men attacked the offices of the Asociación Pro-Búsqueda de Niñas y Niños Desaparecidos in El Salvador, dousing computers, archives, and confidential documents with gasoline and then lighting them on fire.

For Senators who may not be aware, Pro-Búsqueda is a small organization devoted to locating Salvadorans who, as children during the civil war, were forcibly taken from their parents, some of whom were killed by Salvadoran military officers, and either "adopted" by those officers or sold to other families including foreigners. Pro-Búsqueda works to support the Salvadoran birth parents who lost their children to these forced adoptions, and uses DNA technology to help family members find each other. Years ago, a member of my staff visited Pro-Búsqueda's office in San Salvador, met the courageous staff and observed the research they were doing.

This deplorable attack on Pro-Búsqueda followed the abrupt decision by San Salvador's Archdiocese to close Tutela Legal, the highly respected human rights office of the Roman Catholic Church which played an indispensable role in investigating and documenting violations of human rights during the war, including the assassination of Archbishop Romero. The office collected key testimony and other documentary evidence, and there is more of that work to be done.

The attack on Pro-Búsqueda also followed the welcome but controversial decision by the Salvadoran Supreme Court to accept a case challenging the Amnesty Law, which has provided immunity from prosecution to former Salvadoran military officers implicated in atrocities during the war.

I join those who have expressed condolences to the staff of Pro-Búsqueda, and urge the Salvadoran Government to conduct a thorough investigation and to punish those responsible. It is tragic that two decades after the signing of the peace accords that ended the war, attempts to determine the fate of kidnapped children elicits this kind of hateful, violent response. It illustrates how much remains to be done to fulfill the promise of the accords and overcome the painful and divisive legacy of that war.

80TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE UKRAINIAN FAMINE

Mr. CARDIN. Madam President, this year we commemorate the 80th anniversary of the Holodomor, the genocidal Ukrainian Famine of 1932-1933. Eighty years ago, an engineered famine in Soviet-dominated Ukraine and bordering ethnically-Ukrainian territory resulted in the horrific deaths of millions of innocent men, women, and children.

I visited the Holodomor monument in central Kyiv, a poignant reminder of the suffering perpetrated by Soviet dictator Stalin's deliberate and inhumane policy to suppress the Ukrainian people and destroy their human, cultural, and political rights. Requisition brigades, acting on Stalin's orders to fulfill impossibly high grain quotas, took away the last scraps of food from starving families and children. Eyewitness accounts describing the despair of the starving are almost unfathomable. Millions of rural Ukrainians slowly starved—an excruciatingly painful form of death—amid some of the world's most fertile farmland, while stockpiles of expropriated grain rotted by the ton, often nearby. Meanwhile, Ukraine's borders were sealed to prevent the starving from leaving to less-affected areas. International offers of help were rejected, with Stalin's henchmen denying a famine was taking place. At the same time, Soviet grain was being exported to the West.

The final report of the congressionally created Commission on the Ukraine Famine concluded in 1988 that "Joseph Stalin and those around him committed genocide against Ukrainians in 1932-33." No less than Rafael Lemkin, the Polish-Jewish-American lawyer who coined the term "genocide" and was instrumental in the adoption of the 1948 U.N. Genocide Convention, described the "destruction of the Ukrainian nation" as the "classic example of Soviet genocide."

We must never forget the victims of the Holodomor or those of other republics in the Soviet Union, notably Kazakhstan, that witnessed cruel, mass starvation as a result of Stalin's barbarism, and we must redouble our efforts to protect human rights and democracy, ensuring that 20th-century genocides such as the Holocaust, Armenians in the Ottoman Empire, Ukraine, Bosnia, Cambodia, and Rwanda become impossible to imagine in the future.

SESQUICENTENNIAL OF THE GETTYSBURG ADDRESS

Mr. CARDIN. Madam President, 150 years ago today, President Abraham Lincoln gave one of the greatest speeches not just in U.S. history but in human history. In under 3 minutes and using just 10 sentences, President Lincoln spanned the past, present, and future of the American experiment and spoke to the aspirations, rights, and responsibilities not just of Americans but of humankind.

It is astounding for us to realize that President Lincoln was invited to the dedication of the Nation's first national military cemetery almost as an afterthought. The event was organized around the schedule of former Harvard president Edward Everett, who was thought to be one of the Nation's greatest orators of the time.

Everett was the featured speaker and, in the custom of that era, addressed the crowd for over 2 hours.

President Lincoln, who had been invited to say "a few appropriate words," followed Everett.

President Lincoln wrote for the ear; he recited words and phrases as he committed them to paper. When he gave speeches, he spoke deliberately. His great speeches, including the Gettysburg Address, were as much theological in nature as they were political arguments.

Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

President Lincoln borrowed a method of referring to time from the Psalms of the King James Bible, Psalm 90:10. It seems idiosyncratic to our ears today, but his listeners would have immediately grasped that he was going back not to 1789, when the first Congress convened in New York City and George Washington was inaugurated as our Nation's first President. He was not going back to 1788 when the Constitution was ratified or back to 1787 when the Constitutional Convention met. He was going back 87 years, to 1776 and the Declaration of Independence, citing the proclamation of our Founding Fathers who were from the North and South alike—of the universal truth "that all men are created equal."

In the very next sentence, President Lincoln pivoted to the present and proceeded to explain the purpose of the Civil War: to determine whether the United States of America or any other nation "conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal" could succeed and last:

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field, as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

And then President Lincoln, with characteristic humility, paid homage to those who had fought and died at Gettysburg before pivoting again, to the future and to laying out the responsibilities of his and future generations of Americans:

But, in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it, far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion—that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain—that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom—and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

As historian Ronald C. White, Jr., has written, "Lincoln was finished. He had not spoken the word 'I' even once. It was as if Lincoln disappeared so Americans could focus unhindered upon his transcendent truths." Those "transcendent truths" are apparent to us today but things weren't so clear 150 years ago, in the midst of the horrific brutality and death of the Civil War. On November 20, 1863, the New York Times reported that President Lincoln's address was interrupted by applause five times and followed by sustained applause, but historian Shelby Foote said that the reaction to the speech was delayed and "barely polite." On November 23, 1863, the Chicago Times—an anti-Lincoln paper—editorialized that President Lincoln's address "was an offensive exhibition of boorishness and vulgarity" and "a perversion of history so flagrant that the most extended charity cannot regard it as otherwise than willful."

Initially, President Lincoln believed that the Civil War was being fought simply to preserve the Union. But his thinking evolved to the point where the war was about the abolition of slavery. It became the testing ground of whether the United States of America—or any other nation dedicated to human liberty and equality—could endure.

There is a popular legend that President Lincoln jotted down a few notes on his way to Gettysburg or that he spoke extemporaneously. That isn't true. He prepared the speech beforehand and there was one improvisation only: He added the words "under God." As White noted, "'Under God' pointed backward and forward: back to 'this nation,' which drew its breath from both political and religious sources, but also forward to a 'new birth.' Lincoln had come to see the Civil War as a ritual of purification. The old Union had to die . . . Death became a transition to a new Union and a new humanity."

And so President Lincoln—in theological as well as constitutional language—laid out for his listeners, for us, and for our grandchildren "the unfinished work" and "the great task remaining": namely, to promote "a new birth of freedom." As the American poet Archibald MacLeish wrote, "There are those who will say that the liberation of humanity, the freedom of man and mind, is nothing but a dream. They are right. It is the American dream." We Americans are singularly fortunate and privileged to hail from the first Nation in history "conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal." It is our solemn responsibility not only to protect and expand freedom here but to promote and nurture it abroad so that "government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

TRIBUTE TO REVEREND THEODORE JUDSON JEMISON

Ms. LANDRIEU. Madam President, today I wish to ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing one of Louisiana's courageous civil rights leaders, the Reverend Theodore Judson "T.J." Jemison, who passed on November 15, 2013, at the age of 95 in Baton Rouge, LA. Reverend Jemison, the youngest of six children, was born in Selma, AL in 1918.

Reverend Jemison attended Alabama State College for his undergraduate degree and received a master's of divinity degree from Virginia Union University. He became a heroic leader in the civil rights movement, served as pastor of Mount Zion First Baptist Church for nearly a half century, and was president of the National Baptist Convention for 12 years.

Reverend Jemison orchestrated the Baton Rouge bus boycott of 1953—a model that would later be adopted by Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., in Montgomery, AL. Reverend Jemison actively pressured the Baton Rouge City Council to ensure equal treatment for African-American passengers who were barred from seating in areas designated White-only. Through this work Reverend Jemison helped expand the civil rights to many of the citizens of Louisiana.

Reverend Jemison served as president of the National Baptist Convention, the largest Black Baptist organization in the United States, from 1982–1994. As the organization's president, Reverend Jemison worked to promote the principles of the social gospel. He also oversaw the construction of the Baptist World Center in Nashville, TN. Reverend Jemison worked tirelessly to fight for equality, education, and opportunity not only for African Americans in Louisiana but across the country as well.

Reverend Jemison was a true inspiration to all that had the great privilege to know him. I am grateful and honored to have known him. My deepest condolences go out to his family and all of those whose lives he touched. My deepest condolences go out to his family and all of those whose lives he touched. He will be greatly missed.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

ABRAMSON CANCER CENTER

• Mr. CASEY. Madam President, today I wish to recognize the 40th anniversary of the Abramson Cancer Center of the University of Pennsylvania.

Since its founding, the University of Pennsylvania has been at the forefront of education. It is one of the oldest universities in the United States, founded in 1740 by Benjamin Franklin who later went out on to found the Nation's first hospital, Pennsylvania Hospital. From its inception the university was a leader in medical care and research which culminated in the creation of the Nation's first school of medicine in 1765 and then the first teaching hospital, the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania in 1874. Today, the Perelman School of Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania is ranked in the top 5 best medical schools in the country and the hospital is ranked in the top 15 best hospitals.

With the growing diagnoses of cancer throughout the world, in 1973 a dedicated team of specialists established a center that would bring together all cancer research at the university, which one year later was designated a comprehensive cancer center by National Cancer Institute, NCI, one of only 41 in the country. In 2002, the center changed its name to the Abramson Cancer Center after the generous donation from Leonard and Madlyn Abramson. This gift allowed the center to conduct innovative cancer research and improve the quality of care for patients.

The Abramson Cancer Center is composed of 318 faculty members from 37 departments and 8 schools within the University of Pennsylvania. In 2010, the NCI described the quality of care at the center as "exceptional." One of the reasons the Abramson Cancer Center is ranked among the top 15 cancer centers in the country is because of its outstanding faculty collaboration. Healthcare professionals including medical and radiation oncologists, counselors, dietitians, and rehabilitation specialists work together to ensure that patients receive the most comprehensive care possible.

Having the Madlyn and Leonard Abramson Family Cancer Research Institute as a part of the university research facilities ensures that the transition between the laboratory and the clinical care setting is expedited. This guarantees that patients are able to receive the cutting-edge treatment and prevention options they need.

Since its establishment, the Abramson Cancer Center has been essential in the fight to cure cancer. The center works to achieve this through extensive research, innovative clinical trials and exceptional cancer care.

I am proud that the Abramson Cancer Center is located in the great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and wish to congratulate and recognize them on their 40th anniversary. •

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. THUNE (for himself, Mr. ALEXANDER, Mr. HATCH, Mr. INHOFE, Mr. VITTER, Mr. ENZI, Mr. JOHNSON of Wisconsin, Mr. BARRASSO, Mr. SCOTT, Mr. CHAMBLISS, Mr. COBURN, Mr. BOOZMAN, and Mr. ROBERTS):

S. 1724. A bill to provide that the reinsurance fee for the transitional reinsurance program under the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act be applied equally to all health insurance issuers and group health plans; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. THUNE. Mr. President, I come to the floor to discuss again how ObamaCare is negatively impacting American families.

NBC News is reporting that 5 million Americans have received cancellation notices from health insurers. In my home State of South Dakota, the Sioux Falls Argus Leader is reporting that nearly 3,000 people have lost the plan they had. Yet this administration is merely pursuing political band-aids for the problem created by the President's health care law. The President is trying to fix this problem of canceled plans, but his solution is a politically motivated bandaid in response to pressure from Members of his own party who are nervous about the next election. The unfortunate reality of his bandaid is that it won't work.

Instead of taking responsibility for his failed policies and broken promises, he is changing his mind about how he wants his law to work at the eleventh hour. He is kicking the can to State insurance regulators to determine whether, in 48 days—which is from the date of his announcement on Thursday—they can reverse a train wreck that has been barreling down the tracks for nearly 4 years.

The President's health care law told the entire country that compliance with the President's law must occur on January 1, 2014. In response, industry and State regulators complied. Now, after relentlessly pushing a law that is fundamentally flawed, the President is changing his mind. He is expecting the State insurance commissioners to bail him out, to allow Americans to keep the plans they were promised they could keep.

Since passage of his health care law, the President has continued to tout his law and has continued to make promises to the American people that he knowingly cannot keep. While I agree that Americans should be able to keep the plans they have and like, this eleventh-hour attempt at a fix is an indication that the underpinnings of this law are irreversibly flawed.

The administration is now trying to live up to a promise it made despite the fact that they knew the promise wasn't true. In fact, the President repeated and reiterated that promise as recently as September 26 despite the fact that the administration knew it wasn't true. In 2010 the administration knew that up to 93 million Americans in the private market were in danger of losing their current health care plan. But the deeper problem with the President's fix is that it is merely a bandaid. By this time next year Americans will be in this exact same situation all over again.

The President is not focused on finding a good permanent solution but a good political solution. Putting this bandaid on the problem now may get him and his party past next year's elections. He seems more interested in preserving that power than creating real solutions to the underlying issues. In fact, the President is so concerned about the politics of his actions that he is considering yet again a way to bail out his union friends. As part of the health care law, unions agree to pay a tax to help pay for the cost of expanding coverage. This tax, known as the reinsurance tax, is scheduled to be paid by self-insured plans, including plans administered by unions and many of the largest businesses in America. But the unions are unhappy that they have to pay money into a fund to help fund a benefit for someone other than their dues-paying members. They took their complaints to the administration, and, buried in a regulation issued last month, the administration announced they intend to exempt unions from paying this tax.

Yesterday the Wall Street Journal editorial page articulated exactly why the unions should not be exempt from this tax. The editorial, called "ObamaCare's Union Favor," argues that "the unions ought to consider this tax a civic obligation in solidarity with the (uninsured) working folk they claim to support." It further states that "there's no conceivable rationale—other than politics—for releasing union-only plans from a tax." As the editorial pointed out, exempting unions from this tax will only mean increased taxes on nonunionized Americans in self-insured plans since the tax is structured in a way that it must raise a total of $25 billion and isn't structured as a straight percentage like most taxes.

Granting this political deal to unions is why I am introducing the Union Tax Fairness Act. This bill would ensure that unions live up to the commitments they made when they put their political weight behind the health care law. It is political deals such as this that highlight how this law is failing the average American.

This reinsurance fee exemption isn't the only backroom deal the administration is trying to grant unions. Earlier this fall the administration tried to find a way to provide ObamaCare subsidies to ineligible union employees. I introduced a bill called the Union Bailout Prevention Act which was aimed at ensuring the administration could not make that special deal either.

It is clear that this President—President Obama—is trying to fix problems in his health care law by making decisions and exemptions based on favors to his political allies.

Democrats are on the run from the law they once championed. They recognize this law is sagging under its own weight. Last week there were 39 House Democrats who voted against the Obama administration by supporting the Upton bill that provides a better solution to allowing Americans to keep plans they like than what the President proposed. Even former President Bill Clinton said President Obama should keep his word when it comes to allowing Americans to keep the plans they have and like. In this Chamber, several Senate Democrats are running for the exits and looking for a legislative escape hatch of their own.

Unfortunately, the solutions proposed by this administration to fix problems in the health care law are only temporary solutions. Their solutions to problems are either temporary delays—as they did with the employer mandate and the 1-year extension of 2013 plans—or political favors to their friends and allies. Instead, this administration should agree to delay this entire law for all Americans.

Americans are deeply skeptical of the Affordable Care Act. According to last week's Gallup poll, 55 percent of Americans now disapprove of the health care law. There is a more recent poll this morning in which ABC News and the Washington Post have that number at 57 percent disapproving.

The time to act is now to ensure Americans can keep the plans they have and like. This "fix" won't prevent Americans from losing their coverage, facing sticker shock and premium increases, or losing their doctors. This law is fundamentally broken, and we need to start over and enact real reforms that decrease costs and improve access to care.

As do so many of us in this Chamber, I hear on a daily basis from my constituents in South Dakota about the very real impact this is having on middle-income Americans. This is an email I received last week:

My wife just received our health care insurance policy renewals for 2014 and we are in shock!

Our monthly premiums increased from $400 per month to $1,000, or over $7,000 more per year. My wife age 59 and me age 60 now receive maternity benefits and some other very limited coverage. We lost our prescription drug co-pay and doctor visits co-pay. These expenses will now be included in our $6,300 deductible. I will have no option for any subsidy to offset these increases in premiums.

He goes on to say:

Please, please push for a reversal of this horrible health care plan.

My wife and I are physically ill after receiving this letter from our insurance carrier. Again, the government is destroying our lives and we need you to stop this madness.

This is just one example of many that I have heard from my State of South Dakota and many that my colleagues here in the Senate are hearing from all across this country. It is clear this program, this health insurance law, is not ready for prime time. It is time for us to take a timeout and to go back to the drawing board and construct a plan, an insurance program for this country, legislation that will help reduce the costs for working-class Americans, give them access to better quality of care, and allow them to keep the doctor they choose, which is very much in jeopardy as well as a result of this takeover, literally, of one-sixth of our economy.

There is a better way, as I think countless—millions—Americans are finding out through canceled coverages, sticker shock from skyrocketing premiums, and the new knowledge that they may not be able to keep not only their health insurance plan but also the doctors they like. This is a grim reality for way too many Americans, and it is time for us to step forward and do something about it.

The President's proposal is a band-aid. It is a political solution. It is not a permanent solution; it is temporary. We need long-term fixes put in place that will address the health care concerns people have. The way to do that isn't to have the Federal Government literally assume control of one-sixth of the American economy and all the decisionmaking that takes out of the hands of ordinary, middle-class families—people across this country who are working hard to take care of their families.

By Ms. COLLINS:

S. 1730. A bill to reform the regulatory process to ensure that small businesses are free to compete and to create jobs, to clear unnecessary regulatory burdens, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Clearing Unnecessary Regulatory Burdens Act of 2013, or the “CURB Act.” This legislation is designed to help relieve the onerous regulatory burden on our Nation’s job creators.

When I ask employers in Maine what we need to do to help them add jobs, they tell me that Washington must reduce the cost and complexity of the regulations imposed on them. And this is not just a concern voiced by Maine businesses. Earlier this year, a Gallup poll of small business owners found that the vast majority are not hiring new workers right now, and more than half pointed to government regulations as one of the reasons why. The National Federation of Independent Business found the same when it polled its members last year.

No business owner I know questions the legitimate role of regulation in protecting the health, safety, and well-being of employees and the public. But the public is not well-served by regulations that bury small businesses under a mountain of paperwork, driving up costs unnecessarily, and impeding growth and job creation. Proper regulation should be as efficient and simple as possible. At the very least, the benefits of a regulation should exceed its costs.

Unfortunately, the burden of Federal regulations continues to grow. Right now, Federal agencies are at work on nearly 2,500 new rules, at least 229 of which affect small businesses. One hundred thirty-nine are major rules, costing more than $100 million each. These rules will go on top of a pile of regulations now measured in the millions of pages.

Year-by-year, this pile of pages gets ever deeper. In the 1970s, the Federal Register, the compilation of Federal regulations, added some 450,000 pages. In the first decade of the 21st Century, more than 730,000 pages were added—a rate of 73,000 pages per year. The pace continues to accelerate. On average since 2010, the Federal Government has added more than 80,000 pages to the Federal Register each year. This cannot continue.

We are not in the fifth year of an economic “recovery” that has produced tepid economic growth and stubbornly high unemployment. The red-tape that is strangling our job creators is one of the chief reasons our economy has not fully recovered, and why millions of Americans still cannot find jobs. If we want to get our economy moving again and get Americans back to work, we must get serious about streamlining and reforming our regulatory system.

The CURB Act is designed to do that by requiring Federal agencies to take into account the impacts to small businesses and job growth before imposing new rules and regulations. It does this in four ways: first, by requiring Federal agencies to analyze the indirect costs of regulations, such as the impact on job creation, the cost of energy, and consumer prices; second, by requiring agencies to follow “good guidance” practices; third, by helping small businesses avoid unnecessary penalties for first-time, non-harmful paperwork violations; and fourth, by implementing reforms to the Regulatory Flexibility Act proposed by our former colleague, Senator Olympia Snowe. Let me explain each of these provisions in further detail.

First, as a general rule, Federal agencies are not required by statute to analyze the indirect costs regulations can have on the public, such as higher energy costs, higher prices, and the impact on job creation. However, Executive Order 12866, issued by President Clinton in 1993, obligates agencies to provide the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, OIRA, with an assessment of the indirect costs of proposed regulations. The CURB Act would essentially codify this provision of President Clinton’s Executive Order.

Second, our bill obligates Federal agencies to comply with public notice and comment requirements and prohibits them from circumventing these requirements by issuing unofficial rules as “guidance documents.” Let me explain why this is necessary:

After President Clinton issued Executive Order 12866, Federal agencies found it easier to issue so-called “guidance documents,” rather than formal rules. Although these guidance documents are merely an agency’s interpretation of how the public can comply with a particular rule, and are not enforceable in court, as a practical matter they operate as if they are legally binding. Thus, they have been used by agencies to circumvent OIRA regulatory review and public notice and comment requirements.

In 2007, OMB issued a Bulletin which contained a provision closing this loophole by imposing “Good Guidance Practices” on Federal agencies. This requires agencies to provide public notice and comment for significant guidance documents. The CURB Act would essentially codify this OMB Bulletin.

Third, the CURB Act helps out the “little guy” trying to navigate our incredibly complex and burdensome regulatory environment. So many small businesses do not have a lot of capital on hand. When a small business inadvertently runs afoul of a Federal regulation for the first time, that first penalty could sink the business and the jobs it supports. The CURB Act directs agencies to search their files to determine whether a small business is facing a paperwork violation for the first time, and to offer to waive the penalty for that violation if no harm has come of it. It simply does not make sense to me to punish small businesses the first time they accidentally fail to comply with paperwork requirements, so long as no harm comes from that failure.

Fourth, as I mentioned, my bill also includes reforms to the Regulatory Flexibility Act, RFA. These reforms would build on the RFA by expanding its requirements to include guidance documents and indirect costs, in a manner consistent with what I have already described. In addition, the reforms to the RFA would allow small businesses to challenge burdensome rules when they are proposed, instead of when the rules have become final, which is often too late.

Finally, these proposed reforms would put teeth into the RFA’s requirement that agencies review their rules for possible savings at least once a decade. The bill directs each agency’s Inspector General to notify the head of the agency if a rule has not been reviewed in the time required. Once this notification is received, the agency has 6 months to conduct the required review. If it fails to do so, the bill directs the IG to notify Congress, triggering the rescission of one percent of the offending agency’s personnel budget unless Congress intervenes.

Before I close, I want to note that many Members of this body, on both sides of the aisle, have offered serious regulatory reform proposals for our consideration in recent years. Indeed, even the President’s own “Jobs Council”—before it was disbanded—stressed the need for regulatory reform, and put forward ideas consistent with many of the proposals I and other Members of this body have submitted as legislation. Last session, the Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee, under the leadership of then-Chairman Lieberman and myself, held a series of hearings on regulatory reform. But the Senate as a whole did not act on these proposals last session, or dedicate any time whatsoever to their consideration. I am hopeful this session will be different, and room will be made on the Senate’s agenda to consider regulatory reform. As we do so, I would ask my colleagues to consider the approach I have proposed in the CURB Act.

Whereas when the JDC was founded in 1914, the organization initiated relief projects in communities primarily in Eastern Europe and the Middle East, and, as of November 2013, the JDC works in 70 countries worldwide and touches more than 1,000,000 lives each year;

Whereas the JDC has pioneered high-impact programs that provide access to education, health care, food, shelter, and assistance with job training and placement for governments and other organizations to utilize;

Whereas the JDC has developed and implemented initiatives in Israeli society aimed at meeting the needs of the most disadvantaged citizens in the State of Israel, including children and youth at risk, the chronically unemployed (including ultra-Orthodox Jews, people with disabilities, and Israeli Arabs), and the elderly;

Whereas the JDC received the Israel Prize in 2007 for its lifetime achievements and special contributions to society and the State of Israel for developing innovative, scalable solutions to meet the needs of the most disadvantaged citizens in the State of Israel;

Whereas the JDC has helped transform the lives of women and girls throughout the world, through initiatives that provide access to health care and education to girls, encouraging them to overcome gender barriers, receive an education, and become community leaders;

Whereas the JDC is engaging many young individuals in the United States to participate in rescue, renewal, and revitalization work through service and volunteer programs around the world;

Whereas the JDC and the United States Government have a historic and enduring relationship that has evolved from cooperating in life-saving work in Europe through the American Relief Administration following World War I and the War Refugee Board during World War II to the more recent partnerships between the JDC and the Department of Agriculture, the Department of State, and the United States Agency for International Development;

Whereas the JDC mobilizes its expert professionals and network of local, United States, Israeli, and global partners, including the Jewish Coalition for Disaster Relief, to provide immediate relief and long-term assistance in the aftermath of natural disasters, such as by providing emergency supplies and medical assistance following the earthquake and tsunami in Japan in 2011 and the earthquake in Haiti in 2010; and

Whereas the JDC creates programs and solutions that benefit the neediest populations in communities around the world and confronts the most difficult challenges, such as natural disasters, extreme poverty, political instability, and genocide: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) recognizes and celebrates the 100th anniversary of the founding of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee; and

(2) commends the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee on its valuable work around the world and wishes the organization success in its future efforts.

SENATE RESOLUTION 300—TO AUTHORIZE THE PRODUCTION OF RECORDS BY THE PERMANENT SUBCOMMITTEE ON INVESTIGATIONS OF THE COMMITTEE ON HOMELAND SECURITY AND GOVERNMENTAL AFFAIRS

Mr. REID (for himself and Mr. MCCONNELL) submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. RES. 300

Whereas, the Subcommittee has received a request from a federal law enforcement agency for access to records of the Subcommittee’s investigation;

Whereas, by the privileges of the Senate of the United States and Rule XI of the Standing Rules of the Senate, no evidence under the control or in the possession of the Senate can, by administrative or judicial process, be taken from such control or possession but by permission of the Senate;

Whereas, when it appears that evidence under the control or in the possession of the Senate is needed for the promotion of justice, the Senate will take such action as will promote the ends of justice consistent with the privilege of the Senate: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Chairman and Ranking Minority Member of the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations of the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs, acting jointly, are authorized to provide to law enforcement officials, regulatory agencies, and other entities or individuals duly authorized by federal, state, or foreign governments, records of the Subcommittee's investigation into JP Morgan Chase's "whale trades" and risks and abuses of derivatives.

SENATE RESOLUTION 301—RECOGNIZING AND SUPPORTING THE GOALS AND IMPLEMENTATION OF THE NATIONAL ALZHEIMER'S PROJECT ACT AND THE NATIONAL PLAN TO ADDRESS ALZHEIMER'S DISEASE

Mr. DURBIN (for himself, Ms. COLLINS, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota, Mr. MENENDEZ, Mr. WICKER, Mr. MORAN, and Mr. MARKEY) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions:

S. RES. 301

Whereas more than 5,000,000 individuals in the United States live with Alzheimer's disease, and, based on current projections, as many as 16,000,000 individuals in the United States will have Alzheimer's disease by 2050;

Whereas 1 in every 9 individuals in the United States over the age of 65 lives with Alzheimer's disease;

Whereas another individual in the United States develops Alzheimer's disease every 68 seconds, and, by 2050, another individual in the United States will develop the disease every 33 seconds;

Whereas, in 2013, an estimated 450,000 people in the United States will die from Alzheimer's disease, making it the sixth-leading cause of death in the United States;

Whereas, between 2000 and 2010, deaths attributed to Alzheimer's disease increased by 68 percent;

Whereas Alzheimer's disease is devastating physically, emotionally, and financially;

Whereas Alzheimer's disease creates an enormous financial strain on the health care system, families, and Federal and State budgets;

Whereas, according to an independent study supported by the National Institutes of Health, Alzheimer's disease is already the costliest disease in the United States and is expected to become even more costly in the future;

Whereas, in 2013, the total direct cost of caring for individuals in the United States with Alzheimer's disease is estimated to be $203,000,000,000, including $107,000,000,000 in costs to Medicare and $35,000,000,000 to Medicaid;

Whereas, if nothing is done to change the trajectory of the disease, the total direct cost of caring for individuals in the United States with Alzheimer's disease is expected to rise to $1,200,000,000,000 by 2050;

Whereas the average cost to Medicare for beneficiaries with Alzheimer's disease is 3 times higher than for those without the condition;

Whereas a Federal commitment to fighting Alzheimer's disease can lower costs and improve health outcomes for people living with the disease today and in the future;

Whereas, by making Alzheimer's disease a national priority, we can replicate the successes that have been achieved in fighting other diseases;

Whereas leadership from the Federal Government has helped lower the number of deaths from other major diseases and health problems such as HIV/AIDS, cancer, heart disease, and stroke;

Whereas, in 2010, Congress unanimously passed the National Alzheimer's Project Act;

Whereas the National Alzheimer's Project Act requires the Secretary of Health and Human Services to create and annually update a National Plan to Address Alzheimer's Disease;

Whereas the National Plan to Address Alzheimer's Disease establishes goals and action steps to combat the disease in the areas of research, care, support, and public awareness; and

Whereas the National Plan to Address Alzheimer's Disease has resulted in some notable accomplishments, including the creation of a blueprint for Alzheimer's research by the National Institutes of Health: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) recognizes that additional focus, research, and resources are needed to overcome Alzheimer's disease;

(2) acknowledges the impact that Alzheimer's disease has on individuals with the disease, their caregivers and loved ones, and the United States as a whole; and

(3) supports the goals and implementation of the National Alzheimer's Project Act and the National Plan to Address Alzheimer's Disease.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, we all know someone who has been affected by Alzheimer's disease or someone else who has.

Everyone has occasional memory lapses, and it's normal to forget names of an acquaintance or forget where you put your keys.

But Alzheimer's is so much more than just memory loss.

It is a debilitating disease that only gets worse as it progresses.

People living with the disease often forget conversations, appointments, and eventually forget the names of close friends and may no longer recognize their spouse or their children.

They struggle to recall the words to identify objects, and eventually lose the ability to read and write.

Alzheimer's makes everyday activities like keeping track of bills and cooking a meal extremely challenging and frustrating.

Although the disease develops differently for every individual, it eventually leads to loss of memory, thinking and reasoning skills.

This year, approximately 450,000 people in the United States will die from Alzheimer's disease.

Currently, more than 5 million Americans are living with the disease, including 210,000 people in Illinois.

But with a new person being diagnosed with Alzheimer's every 68 seconds, the number of people with Alzheimer's will rise to 16 million by 2050.

If nothing is done to change the trajectory of the disease, more people and families will suffer and federal spending linked to the disease will soar.

In 2013, the cost of caring for those with Alzheimer's disease will total an estimated $203 billion for Medicaid and Medicare.

If we stay on this path, the total cost of caring for individuals with Alzheimer's disease is expected to rise to 1.2 trillion by 2050—an increase of more than 500 percent.

But this is a problem that we can solve.

In 2010, Congress recognized the need for additional resources and research to overcome Alzheimer's disease and unanimously passed the National Alzheimer's Project Act.

The National Alzheimer's Project Act created a national strategic plan, which establishes goals and action steps to combat the disease in the areas of research, care, support, and public awareness.

The plan has already resulted in some notable achievements.

In 2012, the National Institutes of Health dedicated an additional $50 million for Alzheimer's research.

The Health Resources and Services Administration invested $2 million to improve the quality of care for people with Alzheimer's.

But more needs to be done and the success of the National Alzheimer's Plan requires continued federal investments for biomedical research and resources for people with Alzheimer's.

President Obama's fiscal year 2014 budget proposed $100 million in new NIH funding for Alzheimer's research.

The Senate Labor, Health, and Human Services appropriations bill which passed the Appropriations Committee adds $84 million to the NIH's National Institute of Aging for Alzheimer's research.

The bill also provides $40 million for the new Brain Initiative, which will help us better understand the brain and Alzheimer's.

These federal investments to fight Alzheimer's disease can lower costs and improve health outcomes for people living with the disease.

People like Janet Dever.

Janet Dever, 73 years old, was diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease five years ago.

She does her best to not dwell on the negatives or sink into depression.

But she says that the hardest part of the disease is watching her family and friends suffer along with her.

The part of the disease that upsets her the most is that many people don't know how to interact with her anymore, so they have stayed away.

But Janet and her husband Bill aren't giving up. And we shouldn't give up either.

To reinforce the initial steps toward greater investment in finding answers,

I am submitting this resolution, along with Senators COLLINS, MIKULSKI, TIM JOHNSON, MENENDEZ, WICKER, MORAN, and MARKEY, supporting the goals and implementation of the National Alzheimer's Project Act and the National Plan to Address Alzheimer's Disease.

But to achieve these goals, the Plan needs federal funding to be fully implemented.

I urge my colleagues to support this Resolution and reinforce our national commitment to turning around the seeming inevitability of this terrible brain disease.

I look forward to working with my colleagues to ensure investments are made in Alzheimer's research and to make the goal of preventing and effectively treating Alzheimer's disease by 2050 a reality.

TITLE XVI—AUDIT OF THE DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE

SEC. 1601. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the “Audit the Pentagon Act of 2013”.

SEC. 1602. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Section 9 of Article I of the Constitution of the United States requires all agencies of the Federal Government, including the Department of Defense, to publish “a regular statement and account of the receipts and expenditures of all public money”.

(2) Section 3515 of title 31, United States Code, requires the agencies of the Federal Government, including the Department of Defense, to present auditable financial statements beginning not later than March 1, 1997. The Department has not complied with this law.

(3) The Federal Financial Management Improvement Act of 1996 (31 U.S.C. 3512 note) requires financial systems acquired by the Federal Government, including the Department of Defense, to be able to provide information to leaders to manage and control the cost of Government. The Department has not complied with this law.

(4) The financial management of the Department of Defense has been on the “High-Risk” list of the Government Accountability Office, which means that the Department is not consistently able to “control costs; ensure basic accountability; anticipate future costs and claims on the budget; measure performance; maintain funds control; [and] prevent and detect fraud, waste, and abuse”.

(5) The National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2002 (Public Law 107-107) requires the Secretary of Defense to report to Congress annually on the reliability of the financial statements of the Department of Defense, to minimize resources spent on producing unreliable financial statements, and to use resources saved to improve financial management policies, procedures, and internal controls.

(6) In 2005, the Department of Defense created a Financial Improvement and Audit Readiness (FIAR) Plan, overseen by a directorate within the office of the Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller), to improve Department business processes with the goal of producing timely, reliable, and accurate financial information that could generate an audit-ready annual financial statement. In December 2005, that directorate, known as the FIAR Directorate, issued the first of a series of semiannual reports on the status of the Financial Improvement and Audit Readiness Plan.

(7) The National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2010 (Public Law 111-84) requires regular status reports on the Financial Improvement and Audit Readiness Plan described in paragraph (6), and codified as a statutory requirement the goal of the Plan in ensuring that Department of Defense financial statements are validated as ready for audit not later than September 30, 2017. In addition, the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2013 (Public Law 112-239) requires that the statement of budgetary resources of the Department of Defense be validated as ready for audit by not later than September 30, 2014.

(8) At a September 2010 hearing of the Senate, the Government Accountability Office stated that past expenditures by the Department of Defense of $5,800,000,000 to improve financial information, and billions of dollars more of anticipated expenditures on new information technology systems for that purpose, may not suffice to achieve full audit readiness of the financial statement of the Department. At that hearing, the Government Accountability Office could not predict when the Department would achieve full audit readiness of such statements.

(9) At a 2013 hearing of the Senate, Secretary of Defense Chuck Hagel affirmed his commitment to audit-ready budget statements for the Department of Defense by the end of 2014, and stated that he “will do everything he can to fulfill this commitment”. At that hearing, Secretary Hagel noted that auditable financial statements were essential to the Department not only for improving the quality of its financial information, but also for reassuring the public and Congress that it is a good steward of public funds.

SA 2172. Mr. CASEY (for himself, Ms. AYOTTE, Mr. WARNER, and Mrs. SHAHEEN) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1197, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2014 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe military personnel strengths for such fiscal year, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the end of subtitle B of title XII, add the following:

SEC. 1220. SECURITY SUPPORT FOR AFGHAN WOMEN AND GIRLS.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) In January 2013, President Barack Obama stated, “The Afghan constitution protects the rights of Afghan women. And the United States strongly believes that Afghanistan cannot succeed unless it gives opportunity to its women. . . And we think that a failure to provide that protection not only will make reconciliation impossible to achieve, but also would make Afghanistan’s long-term development impossible to achieve.”

(2) As stated in the Department of Defense’s July 2013 1230 Report on Progress Toward Security and Stability in Afghanistan (in this section, the “1230 Report”), the United States Government “recognizes that promoting security for Afghan women and girls must remain a top foreign policy priority”. The November 2013 1230 Report also highlights this priority and further states, “A major focus of DoD and others working to improve the conditions of women in Afghanistan is now to maintain the gains made in the last twelve years after the ISAF mission ends.”

(3) According to the United Nations Assistance Mission in Afghanistan (UNAMA) Mid-Year Report 2013: Protection of Civilians in Armed Conflict, the conflict “increasingly harmed women and children. In the first six months of 2013, conflict related violence killed 106 women and injured 241 (347 casualties), a 61 percent increase from the same period in 2012.”

(4) Women still face significant barriers to full participation in the Afghan National Army (ANA) and Afghan National Police (ANP), including a discriminatory or hostile work environment. As stated in the July and November 1230 Report, other barriers include “family-related issues. . . lack of challenging assignments upon graduation, accounts of sexual harassment and violence, and difficulties concerning separate housing and bathing facilities” for female personnel.

(5) According to the November 1230 Report, female recruitment and retention rates for the Afghan National Security Forces fell short of the Ministry of Defense (MoD) and Ministry of the Interior (MoI) female recruitment goals of 10 percent of the ANA and AAF and 5,000 for the ANP. In regards to women serving in the ANP, the November 1230 report also states, “Low female recruitment is due in part to the MoI’s passive female recruitment efforts, which has no specific female recruitment strategy or plan.” At the time of the November 1230 Report, only 1,557 women were serving in the ANP (847 officers and NCOs and 710 patrolmen). This represents an increase of 36 women from the last reporting period.

(6) According to the Special Inspector General for Afghan Reconstruction (SIGAR) October 2013 report, despite more women showing an interest in joining the security forces, only 0.3 percent of ANA and AAF and 1 percent of police in Afghanistan are women. According to the November 1230 Report, “The MOD has failed to capitalize on this interest and organize the necessary initial training, such as Female Officer Candidate and NCO courses. ISAF advisors continue to mentor the MOD to reduce their emphasis on ethnic balancing in order to accelerate ANA gender integration.”

(7) According to the International Crisis Group, there are not enough female police officers to staff all provincial Family Response Units (FRUs). United Nations Assistance Mission in Afghanistan and the Office of the High Commissioner for Refugees found that “in the absence of Family Response Units or visible women police officers, women victims almost never approach police stations willingly, fearing they will be arrested, their reputations stained or worse”.

(8) Fair, free, and inclusive presidential elections in Afghanistan in April 2014 will be critical for the country’s future security and stability. Afghan women in particular are often prevented from meaningful participation in the electoral process due to the threat of violence, security environment, the scarcity of female poll workers, and lack of awareness of women’s political rights and opportunities, according to the Free and Fair Election Foundation of Afghanistan.

(9) According to the Independent Election Commission of Afghanistan, Afghanistan needs 12,000 female police officers to search women at polling stations. The Afghan National Police has about 1,570 women for this duty. According to the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), without female searchers at polling stations, security threats will increase as men can dress in burkhas attempting to enter the female areas of the polling station while concealing firearms, knives, or explosives.

(10) According to the July 1230 Report, “U.S. Embassy engagement on security preparations for the 2014 election with the MoI and Independent Elections Commission has focused on the need for increased temporary female security personnel, which would provide an environment where women can access polling stations while also ensuring the safety and security of the polling stations, and highlighting the role women can play in ensuring security overall.”

(11) According to the November 1230 Report, “The lack of female ANSF for both routine security operations and the 2014 Afghan elections makes the ANSF gender gap an operational and political risk for the Government of the Islamic Republic of Afghanistan (GIROA).” Further, the November 1230 Report highlights the significant risk to the credibility of the April 2014 elections and to the ANSF, stating, “Failure to recruit more women could deter female voter turnout, harming the legitimacy of the ANSF and those elected to office in 2014.”

(b) THE SENSE OF CONGRESS ON PROMOTION OF SECURITY OF AFGHAN WOMEN.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the United States Government should regularly press the Government of the Islamic Republic of Afghanistan to commit to the meaningful inclusion of women in any peace process and to ensure that women’s concerns are fully reflected in relevant negotiations; and

(2) the United States Government and the Government of Afghanistan should “reaffirm the role of Afghan civil society, particularly women’s organizations, in advocating for and supporting human rights, good governance, and sustainable social, economic, and democratic development of Afghanistan through a sustained dialogue”, as agreed to during the meeting between the International Community and the Government of Afghanistan on the Tokyo Mutual Accountability Framework (TMAF) in July 2013.

(c) STRATEGY TO PROMOTE SECURITY OF AFGHAN WOMEN.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Defense shall support the efforts of the Government of Afghanistan to ensure the security of Afghan women and girls during and after the security transition process through implementation of an Afghan-led strategy to increase awareness and responsiveness among Afghan National Army and Afghan National Police personnel regarding the unique challenges women confront when serving in those forces.

(2) TRAINING.—The Secretary of Defense, working with the International Security Force (ISAF) and NATO Training Mission-Afghanistan (NTM-A), should encourage the Government of Afghanistan to include in the strategy developed under paragraph (1) the following elements:

(A) An evaluation of the effectiveness of existing training for Afghan National Security Forces on this issue.

(B) A plan to increase the number of female security officers, including those serving in Family Response Units, specifically trained to address cases of gender-based violence.

(C) A plan to address the development of accountability mechanisms for ANA and ANP personnel who violate codes of conduct related to the human rights of women and girls.

(3) ENROLLMENT AND TREATMENT.—The Secretary of Defense, in cooperation with the Afghan Ministries of Defense and Interior, shall assist the Government of Afghanistan in including as part of the strategy developed under paragraph (1) the development and implementation of a strategy to increase the number of female members of the ANA and ANP and to ensure their equal treatment, including the following actions:

(A) Submission of status reports to the Secretary of Defense, not later than 120 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, on the plans of the MOD and MOI for the recruitment and retention of female officers, non-commissioned officers, and soldiers, including efforts to—

(i) provide appropriate equipment for female security and police forces;

At the end of subtitle C of title XII, add the following:

SEC. 1237. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON IRANIAN NUCLEAR PROGRAM.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Diplomats from the Islamic Republic of Iran, the European Union, the United States, the United Kingdom, Germany, France, China, and Russia continue to discuss the Government of Iran's illicit nuclear weapons program.

(2) President of Iran Hasan Rouhani has in the past bragged about his success in buying time for Iran to make nuclear advances.

(3) Iranian Supreme Leader Ayatollah Khamenei, who retains control over Iran's nuclear program, recently claimed that Iran did not desire nuclear weapons but said that if Iran "intended to possess nuclear weapons, no power could stop us".

(4) The Government of Iran continues to expand Iran's nuclear and missile programs in violation of multiple United Nations Security Council resolutions.

(5) The Government of Iran has a decades-long track record of cheating on and violating commitments regarding its nuclear program and has used more than 10 years of diplomatic negotiations to buy more time to expand its nuclear weapons program.

(6) Iran remains the world's number one exporter of terrorism and as recently as 2011 was plotting to assassinate a foreign official on United States soil.

(7) Over the last three decades, the Government of Iran and its terrorist proxies have been responsible for the deaths of Americans.

(8) The Government of Iran and its terrorist proxies continue to provide military and financial support to the regime of Bashar al-Assad in Syria, aiding his regime's mass killing of civilians.

(9) The Government of Iran continues to sow instability in its region and to threaten its neighbors, including United States allies such as Israel.

(10) The Government of Iran denies its people their fundamental freedoms, including freedom of the press, freedom of assembly, freedom of religion, and freedom of conscience.

(11) International and United States sanctions imposed on Iran have assisted in bringing Iran to the negotiating table.

(12) Other countries, such as North Korea, have used diplomatic talks regarding their nuclear programs to allow time for the development of nuclear weapons.

(13) Based on the Government of Iran's stockpile of low enriched uranium and its plan to continue installing advanced centrifuges, the Government of Iran could agree to suspend all enrichment above 3.5 percent and still be in a position to produce weapons-grade uranium without detection by the middle of next year.

(14) If the Government of Iran starts up its heavy water reactor in Arak, it could establish an alternate pathway to a nuclear weapon, producing enough plutonium each year for one or two nuclear weapons.

(15) Nineteen other nations currently access peaceful nuclear energy without any enrichment or reprocessing activities on their soil.

(16) The Government of Iran could likewise achieve access to peaceful nuclear energy without enrichment or reprocessing activities on its own soil.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) it shall be the policy of the United States that the Government of Iran will not be allowed to develop a nuclear weapon and that all instruments of United States power and influence remain on the table to prevent this outcome;

(2) the Government of Iran does not have an absolute or inherent right to enrichment and reprocessing technologies under the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, done at Washington, London, and Moscow July 1, 1968, and entered into force

March 5, 1970 (commonly known as the “Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty”);

(3) relief of sanctions related to Iran’s nuclear program imposed upon Iran by the United States should only be provided once Iran has completely abandoned its nuclear weapons program, including any enrichment or reprocessing capability, and has provided complete transparency to the International Atomic Energy Agency regarding its work on weaponization of a nuclear device; and

(4) until the Government of Iran has taken the actions set forth in paragraph (3), Congress should move to pass a new round of additional sanctions without delay.

SA 2235. Mrs. GILLIBRAND submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by her to the bill S. 1197, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2014 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe military personnel strengths for such fiscal year, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the end of subtitle C of title II, add the following:

SEC. 237. UNITED STATES-ISRAEL MISSILE DEFENSE COOPERATION.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The State of Israel remains under the threat of continuing attack from missiles, rockets, and mortars fired at Israel by militants from terrorist organizations on its southern border and by Hezbollah on its northern border, which have killed and wounded many innocent Israeli civilians. Israel also faces significant ballistic missile threats from Iran and Syria.

(2) The National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2008 (Public Law 110-181) expressed the sense of Congress that the United States should have an active program of ballistic missile defense cooperation with Israel, and should take steps to improve the coordination, interoperability, and integration of United States and Israeli missile defense capabilities, and to enhance the capability of both nations to defend against ballistic missile threats present in the Middle East region.

(3) The United States-Israel Enhanced Security Cooperation Act of 2012 (22 U.S.C. 8601 et seq.) states the policy of the United States to support the inherent right of Israel to self-defense and expresses the sense of Congress that the United States Government should provide the Government of Israel such support as may be necessary to increase development and production of joint missile defense systems, particularly such systems that defend against the urgent threat posed to Israel and United States forces in the region.

(4) It is central to the national security interests of the United States to support Israel's ability to defend itself against missiles and rockets, including through joint cooperation on the Arrow Weapon System (with Arrow-2 and Arrow-3 interceptors) and the David's Sling Weapons System, along with continued support for the Iron Dome short-range rocket defense system.

(5) The Arrow Weapon System, deployed with the Arrow-2 interceptor jointly developed by Israel and the United States, has been operational since 2000 and defends Israel against medium-range ballistic missiles.

(6) The Arrow-3 interceptor, being jointly developed by the United States and Israel, is designed to intercept ballistic missiles with nuclear or chemical warheads at high altitude. The Arrow-3 interceptor completed a successful fly-out test in February 2013.

(7) The David's Sling Weapon System, being jointly developed by the United States and Israel, is designed to intercept short-range ballistic missiles, medium-range and long-range rockets, and cruise missiles. The David's Sling Weapon System successfully intercepted an inert medium-range rocket target in a November 2012 test.

(8) The Israeli Defense Forces report that, during Operation Pillar of Defense in November 2012, the Iron Dome short-range rocket defense system achieved a success rate of about 85 percent against rockets bound for Israeli population centers and infrastructure, thus averting large-scale casualties in Israel and enhancing Israel's operational flexibility during the conflict.

(9) Continued missile defense cooperation between the United States and Israel will further develop and enhance the missile defense capability, and thus the security, of both the United States and Israel.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—Congress—

(1) reaffirms its commitment to the security of our strategic partner Israel;

(2) supports maintenance of an active program of ballistic missile defense cooperation with Israel;

(3) supports efforts to enhance the capability of both the United States and Israel to defend against ballistic missile threats present in the Middle East region; and

(4) urges the Department of Defense to take all appropriate steps as may be necessary to improve the coordination, interoperability, and integration of United States and Israeli missile defense capabilities.

(c) REPORT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report on the status of missile defense cooperation between the United States and Israel.

(2) ELEMENTS.—The report under this subsection shall include the following:

(A) A description of the current program of ballistic missile defense cooperation between the United States and Israel, including its objectives and results to date.

(B) A description of the actions taken within the previous year to improve the coordination, interoperability, and integration of the missile defense capabilities of the United States and Israel.

(C) A description of the actions planned to be taken by the Government of the United States and the Government of Israel over the next year to improve the coordination, interoperability, and integration of their missile defense capabilities.

(D) A description of the joint efforts of the United States and Israel to develop ballistic missile defense technologies and capabilities.

(E) A description of the joint missile defense exercises and training that have been conducted by the United States and Israel, and the lessons learned from those exercises.

(F) A description of the cooperation by the United States and Israel in sharing ballistic missile threat assessments.

(G) Any other matters the Secretary considers appropriate.

(2) Nearly all veterans who are separated on the basis of a personality or adjustment disorder are prohibited from accessing service-connected disability compensation, disability severance pay, and disability retirement pay.

(3) Many veterans who are separated on the basis of a personality or adjustment disorder are unable to find employment because of the “personality disorder” or “adjustment disorder” label on their Certificate of Release or Discharge from Active Duty.

(4) The Government Accountability Office has found that the regulatory compliance of the Department of Defense in separating members of the Armed Forces on the basis of a personality or adjustment disorder was as low as 40 percent between 2001 and 2007.

(5) Expansion of the authority of the Physical Disability Board of Review to include review of the separation of members of the Armed Forces on the basis of a mental condition not amounting to disability, including separation on the basis of a personality or adjustment disorder, is warranted in order to ensure that any veteran wrongly separated on such basis will have the ability to access disability benefits and employment opportunities available to veterans.

“(2) before December 31, 2014, are separated from the armed forces due to unfitness for duty because of a mental condition not amounting to disability, including separation on the basis of a personality disorder or adjustment disorder.”

In addition, the Physical Disability Board of Review may review, upon its own motion, the findings and decisions of the Physical Evaluation Board with respect to a covered individual described in such paragraph.

“(2) Whenever a review is conducted under paragraph (1), the members of the Physical Disability Board of Review shall include at least one licensed psychologist and one licensed psychiatrist who has not had any fiduciary responsibility to the Department of Defense since December 31, 2001.

“(3) In conducting the review under paragraph (1), the Physical Disability Board of Review shall consider—

“(A) the findings of the psychologist or psychiatrist of the Department of Defense who diagnosed the mental condition;

“(B) the findings and decisions of the separation authority with respect to the covered individual; and

“(C) whether the separation authority correctly followed the process for separation as set forth in law, including Department of Defense regulations, directives, and policies.

The Board shall consider any and all evidence to be considered, including private mental health records submitted by the covered individual in support of the claim.

“(5) If the Physical Disability Board of Review proposes, upon its own motion, to conduct a review under paragraph (1) with respect to a covered individual, the Board shall notify the covered individual, or a surviving spouse, next of kin, or legal representative of the covered individual, of the proposed review and obtain the consent of the covered individual or a surviving spouse, next of kin, or legal representative of the covered individual before proceeding with the review.

“(6) After the Physical Disability Board of Review has completed the review under this subsection with respect to the separation of a covered individual, the Board shall provide the claimant with a statement of reasons concerning the Board’s decision. The covered individual has the right to raise with the Board a motion for reconsideration if—

“(A) new evidence can be presented that would address the issues raised in the Board’s statement of reasons; or

“(B) the Board has made a plain error in making its recommendation.”

(d) CORRECTION OF MILITARY RECORDS.—Subsection (f) of such section, as redesignated by subsection (c)(1), is amended to read as follows:

“(f) CORRECTION OF MILITARY RECORDS.—(1) The Secretary of the military department concerned shall correct the military records of a covered individual in accordance with the recommendation made by the Physical Disability Board of Review under subsection (e) unless the Secretary determines that the Board has made a clearly erroneous recommendation. Any such correction shall be made effective as of the date of the separation of the covered individual.

“(2) In the case of a covered individual previously separated with a lump-sum or other payment of back pay and allowances at separation, the amount of pay or other monetary benefits to which such individual would be entitled based on the individual’s military record as corrected shall be adjusted to take into account receipt of such lump-sum or other payment in such manner as the Secretary of the military department concerned considers appropriate.

“(3) If the Physical Disability Board of Review makes a recommendation not to correct the military records of a covered individual, the action taken on the report of the Physical Evaluation Board to which such recommendation relates shall be treated as final as of the date of such action.”

(C) in the case of a waiver of subsection (c), the Secretary has considered any confirmed case in which an individual who was transferred to the country subsequently engaged in terrorist activity, and the actions to be taken under subparagraph (A) will substantially mitigate the risk of recidivism with regard to the individual to be transferred; and

At the end of subtitle B of title XXVIII, add the following:

SEC. 2815. COMPREHENSIVE ALASKA INSTALLATION ENERGY REPORT.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) According to a 2012 Total Energy Cost Analysis conducted by the Alaska Command Energy Steering Group, there exists a significant disparity between the costs of power at all military installations in Alaska.

(2) Military installations differ in energy sources and operating entities by utilizing both public and private means and methods of operation: three interior installations, Clear Air Force Station, Eielson Air Force Base, and Fort Wainwright use coal cogeneration heat and electric plants; fuel oil heat and commercial electric power is used to power Fort Greely; and natural gas heat and commercial electric power is used at Joint Base Elmendorf-Richardson.

(3) Electricity infrastructure in Alaska differs from other States because most consumers in Alaska are not interconnected to large grids through transmission and distribution lines.

(4) Alaska has more fossil and renewable energy resources than any other State.

(5) Alaska has the potential for long-term sustainable energy production through development of its natural gas, coal, oil, hydropower, tidal, geothermal and wind resources to meet the energy needs of the State and beyond.

(6) Renewable energy, when combined with advanced micro-grid and storage technologies, can significantly reduce the energy costs at military installations.

(7) The Department of the Air Force has successfully partnered with the municipality of Anchorage and a local utility company on a renewable energy project converting methane gas into fuel useable for a military installation.

(8) Over the past three years, the Department of the Air Force has invested over $25,000,000 in renewable energy projects at Alaska military installations.

(9) The Department of Defense prepares an Annual Energy Management Report in accordance with section 2925 of title 10, United States Code.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) energy security is critical to United States national security;

(2) cost-saving opportunities exist at Alaska military installations if energy efficiency solutions are sought after and implemented;

(3) evaluating energy efficiency measures at Alaska military installations is essential in order to determine enduring cost-effective energy production and consumption solutions and ensure mission effectiveness; and

(4) a comprehensive and detailed study of energy efficiency options at military installations in the state of Alaska is needed due to its complex and challenging geography, distance from the lower 48 states, resource availability, and lack of energy infrastructure.

(c) REPORT.—

(1) REPORT REQUIRED.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Deputy Under Secretary of Defense for Installations and Environment, in conjunction with the Service Assistant Secretaries responsible for Installations and Environment for the military services, shall submit a report to the congressional defense committees detailing the current cost and sources of energy at each military installation in Alaska, and viable and feasible options for achieving energy efficiency and cost savings at Alaska military installations.

(2) ELEMENTS.—The report required by paragraph (1) shall include the following elements:

(A) A comprehensive, installation specific assessment of feasible and mission appropriate energy initiatives supporting energy production and consumption at military installations.

(B) An assessment of current sources of energy in Alaska and potential future sources that are technologically feasible, cost effective, and mission appropriate.

(C) A comprehensive implementation strategy to include required investment for feasible energy efficiency options determined to be the most beneficial and cost effective where appropriate and consistent with department priorities.

(D) An explanation on how military services are working collaboratively in order to leverage lessons learned on potential energy efficiency solutions.

(E) An assessment of State and local partnership opportunities that would achieve efficiency and cost savings, and any legislative authorities required to carry out such partnerships or agreements.

(3) UTILIZATION OF OTHER EFFORTS.—In preparing the report required under paragraph (1), the Under Secretary shall take into consideration completed and ongoing efforts by agencies of the Federal Government to analyze and develop energy efficient solutions in the state of Alaska, including the Department of Defense information available in the Annual Energy Management Report.

(4) COORDINATION WITH STATE AND LOCAL AND OTHER ENTITIES.—In preparing the report required under paragraph (1), the Under Secretary is encouraged to work in conjunction and coordinate with the State of Alaska, local communities, and other Federal departments and agencies.

(d) DEFINITIONS.—In this section, the term “Alaska military installation” includes Clear Air Force Station, Eielson Air Force Base, Fort Wainwright, Joint Base Elmendorf-Richardson, Fort Greely, and Eareckson Air Station.

SEC. 126. LIMITATION ON AVAILABILITY OF FUNDS FOR LITTORAL COMBAT SHIP.

(1) The report required by section 125(a).

(2) A coordinated determination by the Director of Operational Test and Evaluation and the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition, Technology, and Logistics that successful completion of the test evaluation master plan for both seaframes and each mission module will demonstrate operational effectiveness and operational suitability.

(3) A certification that the Joint Requirements Oversight Council—

(A) has reviewed the capabilities of the legacy systems that the Littoral Combat Ship is planned to replace and has compared these capabilities to those to be provided by the Littoral Combat Ship;

(B) has assessed the adequacy of the current Capabilities Development Document (CDD) for the Littoral Combat Ship to meet combatant command requirements and to address future threats as reflected in the latest assessment by the defense intelligence community; and

(C) has either validated the current Capabilities Development Document or directed the Secretary to update the current Capabilities Development Document based on the performance of the Littoral Combat Ship and mission modules to date.

(4) A report on the expected performance of each seaframe variant and mission module against the current or updated Capabilities Development Document.

(5) Certification that a Capability Production Document (CPD) for the seaframes has been completed.

(6) Certification that a Capability Production Document will be completed for each mission module before operational testing.

(1) the Secretary determines, and certifies to the congressional defense committees, that such requirement was not known before the date of the submittal to Congress of the budget for fiscal year 2014 (as submitted pursuant to section 1105 of title 31, United States Code);

(2) the Secretary determines, and certifies to the congressional defense committees, that waiting on an action by Congress to raise the cost cap specified in such section 122(a)(1) to account for such requirement will result in a delay in the delivery of that ship or a delay in the date of initial operating capability of that ship; and

(3) the Secretary submits to Congress a report setting forth a description of such requirement before the obligation of additional funds pursuant to such authority.

SEC. 662. PREVENTION OF VETERANS HOMELESSNESS THROUGH IMPROVED FINANCIAL EDUCATION FOR MEMBERS OF THE ARMED FORCES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The veterans population, as a percentage of total homeless population, is still extraordinarily high, and higher than the percentage of veterans in the general population.

(2) The Department of Veterans Affairs goal of eliminating homelessness among veterans by 2015 is a laudable goal.

(3) The Department of Veterans Affairs has made significant progress toward reaching the goal of eliminating homelessness among veterans.

(4) Even if the Department of Veterans Affairs reaches the goal of eliminating homelessness among veterans, both the Department of Veterans Affairs and the Department of Defense will need to embrace long-term efforts to prevent future veterans from becoming homeless.

(5) In addition to triggers of homelessness such as lack of employment, Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD), substance use and abuse, and a poor support system, veterans who lack basic financial skills may be at a higher risk of becoming homeless.

(6) According to a study by the American Journal of Public Health, many members of the Armed Forces lack basic financial skills such as how to make a household budget.

(7) The lack of basic financial skills puts veterans at higher risk of making poor financial decisions, becoming victims of predatory lenders, and losing housing as a result of these and other financial decisions.

(8) The Department and Defense and the Department of Veterans Affairs have made strides to educate members separating from the Armed Forces through the Transition Assistance Program, but more can be done to educate members about basic financial decision making.

(b) TRAINING FOR ENLISTED ON MEMBERS ON BASIC FINANCIAL SKILLS.—

(1) PLAN FOR TRAINING.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the Committees on Armed Services of the Senate and the House of Representatives a report setting forth a plan for providing improved training on basic financial skills to all enlisted members of the Armed Forces in grade E-3 and above during their military service. The plan shall be based on the reviews required by subsections (c) and (d).

(2) COMMENCEMENT OF TRAINING.—The Secretary shall commence provision of the training described in paragraph (1) in accordance with the plan required by that paragraph by not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(c) REVIEWS OF CERTAIN TRAINING.—

(1) TRAINING FOR OFFICER CANDIDATES.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Defense shall conduct a review of the training on financial and economic matters provided to candidates for commissioning as officers in the Armed Forces to determine whether additional training on such matters should be provided to such candidates before commissioning.

(2) TRAINING WITHIN TAP.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall conduct a review of the training provided through the Transition Assistance Program (TAP) to determine whether training on financial skills provided through that Program is adequate for preparing members for civilian life.

(d) PROVISION OF BASIC FINANCIAL SKILLS TRAINING.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Defense shall—

(A) review the effectiveness of the initial training on basic financial skills that is provided to enlisted members of the Armed Forces;

(B) assess whether yearly training refreshers should be required for members of the Armed Forces in order to build on the initial training described in subparagraph (A);

(C) review the qualifications required of individuals for the provision of training on basic financial skills to members of the Armed Forces; and

(D) in light of the reviews and assessment under this paragraph, establish a revised curriculum to be followed in the provision of training on basic financial skills for both trainees and trainers.

(2) CONSULTATION.—The Secretary of Defense shall carry out paragraph (1) in consultation with the Secretary of Veterans Affairs, the Secretary of Education, the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, and such public and private organizations dedicated to financial skills education as the Secretary of Defense considers appropriate.

“(C)(i) In prescribing the evaluation factors to be included in each solicitation for competitive proposals for covered contracts, an agency shall include the effects on employment within the United States of the contract as an evaluation factor that must be considered in the evaluation of proposals.

“(I) a contract in excess of $1,000,000 for the procurement of manufactured goods;

“(II) a contract in excess of $1,000,000 for the procurement of goods or services listed in the report of industrial base capabilities required by section 2504 of title 10; and

“(v) The contracting officer may consider, and in the case of a covered contract will consider, the information in the jobs impact statement in the evaluation of the offer and may request further information from the offeror in order to verify the accuracy of any such information submitted.

“(vi) In the case of a contract awarded to an offeror that submitted a jobs impact statement with the offer for the contract, the agency shall, not later than one year after the award of the contract and annually thereafter for the duration of the contract or contract extension, assess the accuracy of the jobs impact statement.

“(vii) The Secretary of Defense shall submit to Congress an annual report on the frequency of use within the Department of Defense of jobs impact statements in the evaluation of competitive proposals.

“(viii)(I) In any contract awarded to an offeror that submitted a jobs impact statement with its offer in response to the solicitation for proposals for the contract, the agency shall track the number of jobs created or retained during the performance of the contract.

“(II) If the number of jobs that the agency estimates will be created (by using the jobs impact statement) significantly exceeds the number of jobs created or retained, then the agency may consider this as a factor that affects a contractor's past performance in the award of future contracts.

“(III) Contractors shall be provided an opportunity to explain any differences between their original jobs impact statement and the actual amount of jobs created or retained before the discrepancy affects the agency's assessment of the contractor's past performance.”

At the end of subtitle C of title II, add the following:

SEC. 237. UNITED STATES-ISRAEL MISSILE DEFENSE COOPERATION.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The State of Israel remains under the threat of continuing attack from missiles, rockets, and mortars fired at Israel by militants from terrorist organizations on its southern border and by Hezbollah on its northern border, which have killed and wounded many innocent Israeli civilians. Israel also faces significant ballistic missile threats from Iran and Syria.

(2) The National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2008 (Public Law 110-181) expressed the sense of Congress that the United States should have an active program of ballistic missile defense cooperation with Israel, and should take steps to improve the coordination, interoperability, and integration of United States and Israeli missile defense capabilities, and to enhance the capability of both nations to defend against ballistic missile threats present in the Middle East region.

(3) The United States-Israel Enhanced Security Cooperation Act of 2012 (22 U.S.C. 8601 et seq.) states the policy of the United States to support the inherent right of Israel to self-defense and expresses the sense of Congress that the United States Government should provide the Government of Israel such support as may be necessary to increase development and production of joint missile defense systems, particularly such systems that defend against the urgent threat posed to Israel and United States forces in the region.

(4) It is central to the national security interests of the United States to support Israel's ability to defend itself against missiles and rockets, including through joint cooperation on the Arrow Weapon System (with Arrow-2 and Arrow-3 interceptors) and the David's Sling Weapons System, along with continued support for the Iron Dome short-range rocket defense system.

(5) The Arrow Weapon System, deployed with the Arrow-2 interceptor jointly developed by Israel and the United States, has been operational since 2000 and defends Israel against medium-range ballistic missiles.

(6) The Arrow-3 interceptor, being jointly developed by the United States and Israel, is designed to intercept ballistic missiles with nuclear or chemical warheads at high altitude. The Arrow-3 interceptor completed a successful fly-out test in February 2013.

(7) The David's Sling Weapon System, being jointly developed by the United States and Israel, is designed to intercept short-range ballistic missiles, medium-range and long-range rockets, and cruise missiles. The David's Sling Weapon System successfully intercepted an inert medium-range rocket target in a November 2012 test.

(8) The Israeli Defense Forces report that, during Operation Pillar of Defense in November 2012, the Iron Dome short-range rocket defense system achieved a success rate of about 85 percent against rockets bound for Israeli population centers and infrastructure, thus averting large-scale casualties in Israel and enhancing Israel's operational flexibility during the conflict.

(9) Continued missile defense cooperation between the United States and Israel will further develop and enhance the missile defense capability, and thus the security, of both the United States and Israel.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—Congress—

(1) reaffirms its commitment to the security of our strategic partner Israel;

(2) supports maintenance of an active program of ballistic missile defense cooperation with Israel;

(3) supports efforts to enhance the capability of both the United States and Israel to defend against ballistic missile threats present in the Middle East region; and

(4) urges the Department of Defense to take all appropriate steps as may be necessary to improve the coordination, interoperability, and integration of United States and Israeli missile defense capabilities.

(c) REPORT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report on the status of missile defense cooperation between the United States and Israel.

(2) ELEMENTS.—The report under this subsection shall include the following:

(A) A description of the current program of ballistic missile defense cooperation between the United States and Israel, including its objectives and results to date.

(B) A description of the actions taken within the previous year to improve the coordination, interoperability, and integration of the missile defense capabilities of the United States and Israel.

(C) A description of the actions planned to be taken by the Government of the United States and the Government of Israel over the next year to improve the coordination, interoperability, and integration of their missile defense capabilities.

(D) A description of the joint efforts of the United States and Israel to develop ballistic missile defense technologies and capabilities.

(E) A description of the joint missile defense exercises and training that have been conducted by the United States and Israel, and the lessons learned from those exercises.

(F) A description of the cooperation by the United States and Israel in sharing ballistic missile threat assessments.

(G) Any other matters the Secretary considers appropriate.

SEC. 1054. PROHIBITION RELATING TO TOBACCO PRODUCTS.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Tobacco use by military personnel has two major economic effects on the Department of Defense, the cost of health care for military personnel (active-duty, retired, and dependents), and the cost of lost productivity.

(2) The Department of Defense spends over $1,600,000,000 a year on tobacco-related medical care, increased hospitalization, and lost days of work (according to Department of Defense figures for 2008).

(3) Over the next 10 years, the net present value of preventable smoking-attributable health-care expenditures is $19,685,000,000 for the entire population of veterans, an average of $21,444 for each current veteran smoker.

(4) The cost of treating individuals for tobacco-related diseases in the TRICARE system is estimated to be over $500,000,000 per year (or 4 percent of the total TRICARE budget) for medical care and $346,000,000 in lost productivity. These expenses are primarily for care of individuals who had cardiovascular disease or respiratory problems. Other tobacco related costs included treatment of cancer, cerebrovascular diseases, and newborn health complications.

(5) In 2008, the Department of Veterans Affairs spent over $5,000,000,000 to treat chronic obstructive pulmonary disease. More than 80 percent of chronic obstructive pulmonary disease is attributed to smoking.

(6) The Department of Veterans Affairs spent an additional 1,300,000,000 in 2008 on arteriosclerosis, another smoking-related disease.

(7) Tobacco use has been implicated in higher dropout rates during and after basic training, poorer visual acuity, and a higher rate of absenteeism in active-duty military personnel in addition to a multitude of health problems.

(8) Military retirees and their dependents incur greater tobacco-related health costs than do active-duty members of the military or their dependents.

(9) Over 9,200 hospital-bed days for active-duty personnel were attributed to tobacco-related diseases, or about 10 percent of the total Department of Defense hospital-bed days and 1.5 percent of all active-duty hospital-bed days (Helyer et al., 1998).

(10) Tobacco-related medical costs amounted to $20,000,000 in a 1997 Centers for Disease Control and Prevention study of smoking in active-duty Air Force personnel, or 6 percent of total Air Force medical system expenditures (2000).

(11) A 2007 study (Dall et al) calculated that moderate to heavy smoking was associated with greater absenteeism in the TRICARE Prime enrolled population, 356,000 full time equivalent days were lost per year, and 30,000 full time equivalent days were lost as a result of below-normal work performance.

(12) The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has determined the following mortality rates:

(A) Cigarette smoking is associated with about one of every five deaths in the United States each year.

(B) Cigarette smoking is associated with more than 440,000 deaths annually (including deaths from secondhand smoke).

(C) Life expectancy for smokers is at least 10 years shorter than for nonsmokers.

(b) PROHIBITION.—The Secretary of Defense shall promulgate regulations to prohibit the sale of discounted tobacco products in any commissary store or exchange store under the commissary system and the exchange system operated under chapter 147 of title 10, United States Code.

At the end of subtitle A of title V, add the following:

SEC. 502. DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM ON ACCESSION OF CANDIDATES WITH AUDITORY IMPAIRMENTS AS AIR FORCE OFFICERS.

(a) DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM REQUIRED.—Beginning not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of the Air Force shall carry out a demonstration program to assess the feasibility and advisability of permitting individuals with auditory impairments (including

Subtitle D—Iran Sanctions

SEC. 1241. FINDINGS; SENSE OF CONGRESS; STATEMENT OF POLICY.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The Government of Iran continues to expand the nuclear and missile programs of Iran in violation of multiple United Nations Security Council resolutions.

(2) The Government of Iran has a decades-long track record of cheating on and violating commitments regarding the nuclear program of Iran and has used more than 10 years of diplomatic negotiations to allow more time to expand its nuclear weapons program.

(3) Iran remains the number one exporter of terrorism in the world and as recently as 2011 was plotting to assassinate a foreign official in the United States.

(4) Over the last 30 years, the Government of Iran and its terrorist proxies have been responsible for the deaths of citizens of the United States.

(5) The Government of Iran and its terrorist proxies continue to provide military and financial support to the regime of Bashar al-Assad in Syria, aiding that regime in the mass killing of the people of Syria.

(6) The Government of Iran continues to sow instability in the Middle East and threaten its neighbors, including allies of the United States such as Israel.

(7) The Government of Iran denies its people fundamental freedoms, including freedom of the press, freedom of assembly, freedom of religion, and freedom of conscience.

(8) Sanctions imposed with respect to Iran by the United States and the international community have assisted in bringing Iran to the negotiating table, but other countries, such as North Korea, have used diplomatic talks regarding their nuclear programs to allow time for the development of nuclear weapons.

(9) President Hasan Rouhani of Iran has in the past bragged about his success in buying time for Iran to make nuclear advances.

(10) Based on the stockpile of low enriched uranium held by the Government of Iran and its plan to continue installing advanced centrifuges, the Government of Iran could agree to suspend all enrichment of uranium to greater than 3.5 percent and still be in a position to produce weapons-grade uranium without detection by the middle of 2014.

(11) If the Government of Iran commences the operation of its heavy water reactor in Arak, it could establish an alternate pathway to a nuclear weapon, producing enough plutonium each year for one or 2 nuclear weapons.

(12) As of the date of the enactment of this Act, 19 countries access nuclear energy for peaceful purposes without conducting any enrichment or reprocessing activities within that country.

(13) The Government of Iran could likewise access nuclear energy for peaceful purposes without conducting any enrichment or reprocessing activities within Iran.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the Government of Iran must not be allowed to develop nuclear weapons capabilities;

(2) all instruments of power and influence of the United States should remain on the table to prevent the Government of Iran from developing nuclear weapons capabilities;

(3) the Government of Iran does not have an absolute or inherent right to enrichment and reprocessing capabilities and technologies under the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, done at Washington, London, and Moscow July 1, 1968, and entered into force March 5, 1970 (commonly known as the “Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty”);

(4) any interim agreement with Iran regarding its nuclear program must require that Iran comply with all United Nations Security Council resolutions concerning the nuclear program of Iran, including by—

(A) suspending enrichment at all facilities;

(B) suspending construction of a heavy water nuclear reactor in Arak; and

(C) ceasing all work related to nuclear weaponization and providing full transparency with respect to the cessation of that work;

(5) given the decades-long history of deception by the Government of Iran with respect to the nuclear program of Iran, and violations by that government of its obligations under the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, any final agreement with Iran regarding its nuclear program must—

(A) prevent that government from possessing any enrichment or reprocessing capabilities;

(B) provide for the continuous monitoring of the nuclear program of Iran under a strict verification regime, including inspections at any time or place;

(C) result in Iran surrendering its supply of enriched material to the International Atomic Energy Agency;

(D) prevent any operation of the reactor in Arak; and

(E) require that Iran sign and abide by the Protocol Additional to the Agreement Between Iran and the International Atomic Energy Agency for the Application of Safeguards in Connection with the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, done at Vienna December 18, 2003 (commonly referred to as the “Additional Protocol”);

(6) a violation by Iran of any interim or final agreement with respect to the nuclear program of Iran should result in the immediate imposition of comprehensive economic sanctions, including on all petroleum-related exports and additional restrictions on financial and commercial activity by Iran; and

(7) if the Government of Israel is compelled to take military action against Iran in self-defense, the Government of the United States should provide diplomatic, military, and economic support to the Government of Israel in its defense of its territory, people, and existence.

(c) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States—

(1) to prevent the proliferation of nuclear weapons and material related to nuclear weapons because of the significant negative impact of that proliferation, particularly to countries that do not possess nuclear weapons, including Iran, on the national security and economic interests of the United States and other countries;

(2) to ensure that the proliferation of nuclear weapons and material related to nuclear weapons be strictly restricted;

(3) to ensure that countries that do not possess nuclear weapons, including Iran, do not obtain nuclear weapons;

(4) to take such actions as may be necessary to implement the policy described in paragraph (3);

(5) to ensure that Iran ceases all domestic uranium enrichment and reprocessing technology development, installation, and operation;

(6) to ensure that Iran ceases all plutonium-related activities and dismantles all plutonium-related facilities; and

(7) that any negotiated agreement with the Government of Iran regarding its nuclear program, whether interim or otherwise, must—

(A) include clear, measurable, and verifiable requirements for the Government of Iran to substantially and effectively terminate any activities that may be related to the development of a nuclear weapons capability before any existing sanctions or other measures with respect to Iran are modified, whether temporarily or otherwise; and

(B) because of the significant impact of such an agreement on the national security and economic interests of the United States, including the impact on commerce, trade, and sanctions policy, be submitted to Congress and be subject to a congressional resolution of disapproval.

SEC. 1082. CONSOLIDATED AND COORDINATED FEDERAL GOVERNMENT INTERNET PORTAL TO CONNECT CURRENT AND FORMER MEMBERS OF THE ARMED FORCES WITH EMPLOYERS SEEKING EMPLOYEES WITH SKILLS AND EXPERIENCE DEVELOPED THROUGH MILITARY SERVICE.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Although significant progress has been made, unemployment among veterans remains stubbornly high.

(2) The unemployment rate among younger veterans, ages 18 to 24, remains well above the national average.

(3) This problem impacts the Department of Defense budget. Over the past 10 years, the Federal Government has expended more than $9,600,000,000 on unemployment compensation benefits for former members of the Armed Forces.

(4) The Department makes significant investments in members of the Armed Forces including specialized technical training in skills that are easily transferrable to civilian career fields.

(5) Beyond specific technical training, veterans gain unique leadership, organizational, and other skills that make them valued employees in the private sector.

(6) Government agencies, private sector entities, and nonprofit organizations are responding to the issue of unemployment among veterans.

(7) There are now so many programs to assist veterans in finding employment, many within the Government, that veterans may not know where to seek assistance in finding employment. While these programs are well intentioned, many are duplicative in nature, and compete for scarce resources.

(8) The Department of Labor, the Department of Veterans Affairs, the Department of Defense, and the Office of Personnel Management are currently working to consolidate the veterans employment initiatives of the Government into a single, consolidated Internet portal with the goal of connecting veterans who are seeking employment with employers who want to employ them.

(9) The consolidated portal will prevent Federal Government agencies from competing with each other to accomplish the same goal, and will save the Federal Government money while providing a comprehensive, coordinated tool for employers and veterans seeking employment.

(10) The Federal Government can accomplish this by leveraging the best practices of current programs.

(11) While progress has been made, there is no statutory requirement to streamline these Government programs and coordinate the resources that are all intended to achieve the same goal.

(b) CONSOLIDATED INTERNET PORTAL REQUIRED.—Commencing not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Labor shall, in conjunction with the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of Veterans Affairs, and organizations concerned with veterans resources, consolidate Internet portals of the Federal Government on employment for current and former members of the Armed Forces into a comprehensive consolidated Internet portal within a single existing platform or system for the purposes of connecting current and former members of the Armed Forces who are seeking employment with employers who want to employ them.

(c) ELEMENTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The consolidated Internet portal under subsection (b) should include the following:

(A) A means through which current and former members of the Armed Forces may connect for employment purposes with employers seeking the experience and skills developed during service in the Armed Forces, including a means of presenting a profile of each member or former member to employers that includes, at a minimum—

(i) the skills obtained by such member or former member during service in the Armed Forces and additional skills such member or former member is interested in pursuing; and

(ii) the current or intended residence of such member or former member (including an option for members or former members who are willing to reside in various locations).

(B) A means of permitting qualified prospective employers to post employment openings and seek contact with members or former members based on their profile for the purposes of requesting the initiation of arrangements or negotiations concerning potential employment.

(C) A means of presenting other employment resources, including resume preparation, to members or former members seeking employment.

(2) MATTERS CONSIDERED.—In developing the consolidated Internet portal, the Secretaries referred to in subsection (b) should consider, at a minimum, the following:

(A) Public and private sector resources on matters relating to the portal.

(B) Opportunities to incorporate local employment networks into the portal.

(C) Methodologies to determine the most effective employment resources and programs to be incorporated into the portal.

(D) Means for streamlining processes through the portal for employers to find and employ former members of the Armed Forces.

(d) MEMBER PARTICIPATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Participation in the consolidated Internet portal under subsection (b) shall be limited to members of the National Guard and Reserves, members of the Armed Forces on active duty who are transitioning from military service to civilian life, former members of the Armed Forces, and veterans.

(2) Ensuring competition in the Federal acquisition process is of vital importance to United States taxpayers.

(3) Section 811 was intended to further this objective.

(4) Government contracting officers may inadvertently be deterred from awarding contracts over $20,000,000 under section 8(a) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 637(a)) as a result of confusion over the proper interpretation of section 811.

(5) Section 811 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2010 should be repealed and replaced in order to ensure that the objective of the section is properly implemented and not misconstrued to prohibit or limit the award of sole source contracts of over $20,000,000 to those businesses which qualify for such awards under the small business 8(a) program.

(b) MODIFIED JUSTIFICATION AND APPROVAL REQUIREMENTS RELATED TO SOLE SOURCE CONTRACTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Defense shall modify the Department of Defense Supplement to the Federal Acquisition Regulation to provide that the head of an agency (as that term is defined in section 2302(1) of title 10, United States Code) may not award a sole-source contract for an amount exceeding $20,000,000 unless—

(B) the justification is approved by an official designated in section 2304(f)(1)(B) of title 10, United States Code, to approve contract awards for dollar amounts that are comparable to the amount of the sole-source contract.

(2) ELEMENTS OF JUSTIFICATION.—The justification of a sole-source contract required pursuant to subsection (a) shall include the following:

(A) A description of the needs of the agency concerned for the matters covered by the contract.

(B) A specification of the statutory provision providing the exception from the requirement to use competitive procedures in entering into the contract.

(C) A determination that the use of a sole source contract is in the best interest of the Department of Defense.

(D) A determination that the anticipated cost of the contract will be fair and reasonable.

(E) Such other matters as the official referenced in paragraph (1)(B) shall specify for purposes of this subsection.

(3) TREATMENT OF OTHER JUSTIFICATION AND APPROVAL ACTIONS.—In the case of any contract for which a justification and approval is required under section 2304(f) of title 10, United States Code, a justification and approval meeting the requirements of such section may be treated as meeting the requirements of this section for purposes of the award of a sole-source contract.

(4) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed as—

(A) prohibiting or limiting a contract exceeding $20,000,000 in compliance with paragraphs (1) and (2) from being awarded for a procurement described in section 2304(f)(2)(D)(ii) of title 10, United States Code; or

(B) eliminating, reducing, or otherwise modifying obligations of the Department of Defense under section 15(g)(1) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 644(g)(1)).

(c) REPEAL OF SUPERSEDED PROVISION.—Section 811 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2010 (Public Law 111-84; 123 Stat. 2405) is hereby repealed.

(d) REGULATIONS.—The Federal Acquisition Regulatory Council shall amend the Federal Acquisition Regulation to implement this section and the repeal of section 811 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2010 (Public Law 111-84; 123 Stat. 2405).

(2) the person has been prosecuted appropriately for the activity in which the person engaged; or

(3) the person has credibly demonstrated a significant change in behavior, has paid an appropriate consequence for the activities in which the person engaged, and has credibly committed to not engage in an activity described in paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (a).

(e) REQUESTS BY CHAIRPERSON AND RANKING MEMBER OF APPROPRIATE CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 120 days after receiving a written request from the chairperson and ranking member of one of the appropriate congressional committees with respect to whether a foreign person meets the criteria for being added to the list required by subsection (a), the President shall submit a response to that chairperson and ranking member of the committee with respect to the status of the person.

SEC. 1243. INADMISSIBILITY OF CERTAIN INDIVIDUALS.

(c) WAIVER FOR NATIONAL SECURITY INTERESTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of State may waive the application of subsection (a) or (b) in the case of an individual if—

(A) the Secretary determines that such a waiver—

(1) the actions taken to carry out this subtitle, including—

(A) the number of foreign persons added to or removed from the list required by section 1242(a) during the year preceding the report, the dates on which those persons were added or removed, and the reasons for adding or removing those persons; and

(B) if few or no persons have been added to that list during that year, the reasons for not adding more persons to the list; and

(2) efforts by the executive branch to encourage the governments of other countries to impose sanctions that are similar to the sanctions imposed under this subtitle.

SA 2338. Mr. CORKER submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1197, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2014 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe military personnel strengths for such fiscal year, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

SEC. 1046. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON B61-12 LIFE EXTENSION PROGRAM.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) During the debate in the Senate on the ratification of the Treaty on Measures for the Further Reduction and Limitation of Strategic Offensive Arms, signed on April 8, 2010, and entered into force on February 5, 2011, between the United States and the Russian Federation (commonly known as the “New START Treaty”), leaders in both Congress and the executive branch acknowledged the critical linkage between the modernization of the nuclear arsenal and the ability to safely reduce the number of warheads in the nuclear stockpile of the United States.

(2) As proposed by the President, successfully executing the B61-12 life extension program would generate an 53 percent reduction in the total number of air-delivered gravity weapons in the active and inactive nuclear stockpile of the United States and an 87 percent reduction in the total amount of nuclear material utilized by air-delivered gravity weapons in the nuclear stockpile of the United States.

(3) The B61-12 life extension program has already been delayed by fluctuating appropriations and further delays in appropriations threaten the viability and credibility of the nuclear deterrent of the United States and the nuclear assurances provided to allies of the United States in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and in the Pacific region.

(4) Alternative proposals to refurbish B61 nuclear weapons do not meet the military requirements of the United States Strategic Command and fail to address all of the concerns relating to aging faced by the existing B61 series of air-delivered gravity weapons.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the Sense of Congress that—

(1) further delays to the B61-12 life extension program would have unacceptable effects on the reliability and credibility of the nuclear deterrent of the United States; and

(2) it is critical that the United States ensure that there are no further delays in successfully executing the ongoing B61-12 life extension program, development of the associated tail-kit assembly, and development of a nuclear-capable F-35 Block 4 aircraft.

SA 2339. Mr. CORKER submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1197, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2014 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe military personnel strengths for such fiscal year, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the end of subtitle C of title I, add the following:

SEC. 125. SENSE OF SENATE ON THE LITTORAL COMBAT SHIP PROGRAM.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate makes the following findings:

(1) Despite early problems with the Littoral Combat Ship (LCS) program, the Navy has made substantial progress in getting production on schedule and costs under control. As a result, the Navy is now purchasing LCS below the congressionally mandated cost cap. According to congressional testimony provided by Assistant Secretary of the Navy (Research, Development and Acquisition) Sean Stackley on July 25, 2013 before the Subcommittee on Seapower and Projection Forces of the House Armed Services Committee, “The average cost of both LCS variants—including basic construction, government-furnished equipment (GFE), and change orders—across the 10-seaframe procurement over the five year period falls under the Congressionally-mandated cost cap of $480 million per seaframe (FY 2009 dollars)”. This testimony is consistent with the findings in the Congressional Budget Office’s October 2013 report entitled “An Analysis of the Navy’s Fiscal Year 2014 Shipbuilding Plan” which states: “In the 2014 Future Years Defense Program, the Navy estimated the average cost of the LCS at about $420 million per ship over the next five years, including the 6 ships (2 per year) to be bought in 2016 through 2018, after the end of the two 10-ship contracts. That figure is well below the Congressionally mandated cost cap for the LCS program of $515 million per ship (adjusted for inflation). Overall, the Navy estimated that the 36 LCSs to be purchased by 2026 would cost about $446 million per ship, on average”. Finally, according to the Department of the Navy, LCS is “the only shipbuilding program wherein the unit cost in production is on a marked steady decline”.

(2) LCS is vital to the Navy and our national security. According to Secretary of the Navy, Ray Mabus, it is “the future of the Navy and the future of how we fight”. Similarly, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Stackley, in his written testimony for Congress observed: “[T]he LCS program is of critical importance to our Navy. With its great speed and interchangeable modules, the ship will provide unprecedented warfighting flexibility. LCS is one of the cornerstones of the future Navy, and provides critical capability to the fleet. This fast, agile, focused-mission platform is designed for operation in near-shore environments, yet is capable of open-ocean operation”.

(3) The LCS program is an essential element of the Navy’s long-term shipbuilding strategy which directly supports warfighting and presence requirements articulated by the combatant commanders. The planned buy of 52 LCS supports strategic and operational requirements validated in the Navy’s 2012 Force Structure Assessment (FSA) pursuant to the January 2012 defense strategic guidance document entitled “Sustaining U.S. Global Leadership: Priorities for 21st Century Defense”. According to the Department of the Navy, “LCS and associated mission modules replace the capabilities of frigates (FFGs), mine countermeasure (MCM) ships, and patrol craft (PCs) which are reaching [the end of their] expected service life”. Additionally, according to the Navy, “delaying procurement of these ships would slow both the delivery of this critical capability to the fleet [and] progress toward the 300-ship target in FY 2019 and the ultimate goal of meeting a 306 ship force structure required to support validated . . . warfighting and presence requirements”. Similarly, as noted in congressional testimony provided by Ronald O’Rourke of the Congressional Research Service (CRS), “If the LCS program were truncated to 24 ships or some other number well short of 52, a potential key issue [for Congress] would be the operational implications for the Navy of potentially not having sufficient capacity to fully perform the LCS’s three core missions of countering mines, small boats, and diesel submarines, particularly in littoral waters”.

(4) The cost for all LCS seaframes under contract (FY 10-13 ships) will increase if the current block buy contracts are disrupted. According to the Department of the Navy, costs will increase “due to the impact of lost workload, inefficiencies, and breakage to the vendor base”. Additionally, negotiated ship construction prices will be lost for FY 14 and FY 15 ships. Moreover, FY 15 competitive prices will be required to be renegotiated in a sole source environment which will likely result in significant increases to FY 15 ship pricing. Slowing or pausing the program will also likely result in additional costs to future ships as a result of lost learning in the shipyards, increased overhead, vendor pricing, and concerns about contract stability. Finally, disrupting the current block buy contracts could potentially cause extreme damage to the shipbuilding industrial base.

(5) Many first-of-class ships experience unanticipated challenges, setbacks, and, as a result, intense scrutiny and sometimes harsh criticism. According to the Secretary of the Navy, Ray Mabus, “the first of every single class in our Navy has faced similar issues and has been strengthened by dealing with them”. Similarly, according to congressional testimony provided on October 23, 2013 by CRS analyst Ronald O’Rourke, “In the midst of criticisms of certain Navy surface ship acquisition programs in the 30-year shipbuilding plan, [such as the LCS program], on issues such as cost growth, ship capabilities, construction-quality, and testing of combat system equipment, it can be helpful to recall, as a matter of providing some historical context, that a number of earlier Navy surface combatant acquisition programs—including some, like the DDG-51 program, that are today considered acquisition success stories—were themselves criticized on one or more of these grounds”. For example, in January 1990, the Government Accountability Office (GAO) criticized the DDG-51 Arleigh Burke destroyer program in their report to the Secretary of Defense, “Navy Shipbuilding: Cost and Schedule Problems on the DDG-51 AEGIS Destroyer Program”, noting that the shipyard had originally “encountered problems in designing and constructing the lead ship. The contract costs have increased substantially, and the ship will be about 17 months late. Since the lead ship is only 50 percent complete, additional problems could surface and delay the follow ships.” Additionally, the GAO recommended “that the Secretary of Defense ensure sufficient information exists to justify the award of contracts for follow ships beyond the seven now under contract”. Nevertheless, the Navy went on to successfully build a total of 62 of these destroyers since the program’s inception with an additional 13 ships planned (under construction, on contract, or covered by awarded contracts).

(6) The Government Accountability Office’s July 2013 report, “Navy Shipbuilding: Significant Investments in the Littoral Combat Ship Continue Amid Substantial Unknowns about Capabilities, Use, and Cost”, overstates the significance of design changes to follow-on ships. As noted by Assistant Navy Secretary Stackley in his July 2013 testimony before Congress, “No changes to LCS seaframe requirements are envisioned in the near term as both LCS classes meet Navy requirements”. Further, as the Department of the Navy has stated, “The issues and corrective efforts discussed [in the GAO report] are consistent with all lead ships of any new class of surface combatants, or any lead ship of a new class. Other ‘new, potentially significant seaframe design changes’ mentioned [in the GAO report] as under consideration by the Navy would—if accepted by the Navy—be incorporated into the next procurement (LCS 25 and follow), as is standard practice in all shipbuilding programs”.

(7) The GAO’s concern with concurrency in the development and fielding of LCS mission modules is misplaced. As Assistant Navy Secretary Stackley has explained in his congressional testimony before the House Armed Services Committee, “The modular strategy for mission packages is a breakthrough concept for delivering cost effective capability by employing mature technologies to meet today's warfighting requirements while also providing tremendous flexibility to rapidly employ developing technologies to counter emerging threats or otherwise close gaps today, and in the future. . . In order to deliver these capabilities in the capacity needed, and with an eye on controlling cost and risk, the Navy is employing an incremental fielding strategy wherein the first increment leverages mature technologies and existing programs of record to provide a level of performance exceeding that available in the fleet today". Moreover, Assistant Secretary Stackley made clear that "[t]his incremental approach minimizes concurrency risk while allowing the flexibility which the modular concept provides. . . This time-phased fielding of capability is fundamental as it allows the Navy to rapidly field systems as they are matured instead of waiting for the final capability delivery. The major systems that comprise mission packages are already established as individual programs, with their own Acquisition Program Baselines (APBs) including cost, schedule and performance objectives and thresholds".

(b) SENSE OF SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that—

(1) chief among the mandates of the Navy is forward presence;

(2) operating forward overseas is critical to United States national security and the preservation of United States national interests;

(3) to achieve this forward presence, the size of the Navy fleet matters;

(4) the Littoral Combat Ship (LCS) will be a critical component of the overall size of the Navy fleet and, without it, the Navy will not be able to provide the capabilities or capacity that operational commanders require;

(5) the capabilities of the Littoral Combat Ship remain essential to operational commanders;

(6) Littoral Combat Ship vessels, together with their mission modules, form a key part of the long-range shipbuilding strategy of the Navy to meet force structure requirements in support of the January 2012 defense strategic guidance document entitled "Sustaining U.S. Global Leadership: Priorities for 21st Century Defense";

(7) the Navy should continue to plan on procuring 52 Littoral Combat Ship seaframes in accordance with its most recent long-range shipbuilding plan, while balancing available funding with achieving the lowest possible pricing to the Government;

(8) the progress of the Navy in answering the concerns of the July 2013 report of the Government Accountability Office, entitled "Navy Shipbuilding: Significant Investments in the Littoral Combat Ship Continue Amid Substantial Unknowns about Capabilities, Use, and Cost", has been noteworthy and adequate;

(9) the report on the Littoral Combat Ship referred to in paragraph (8), while detailed and substantive, contains recommendations that do not reflect a full and thorough understanding of the Littoral Combat Ship program;

(10) the Navy should be applauded for its decision to deploy U.S.S. Freedom (LCS 1), a research and development funded platform, early and with a surface warfare (SUW) mission package to gather helpful information and lessons learned in order to better inform the development of operational, manning, maintenance, and logistics support concepts;

(11) the Navy should be commended for the ongoing and rigorous testing of the mine countermeasures (MCM) mission module being conducted by U.S.S. Independence (LCS 2)—another research and development funded platform—and the recent successful completion of the second phase of developmental testing of the SUW mission package by U.S.S. Fort Worth (LCS 3);

(12) the Navy must continue to endeavor to drive overall Littoral Combat Ship program costs down;

(13) the Navy must inform the future procurement strategy with thorough assessments, which are based on validated requirements and independent cost estimates and which include program thresholds and objectives for cost, schedule, and performance;

(14) future acquisition decisions on the Littoral Combat Ship should be informed with an up-to-date service cost position and "should cost" assessment;

(15) the Defense Acquisition Executive should determine whether a new Office of the Secretary of Defense (OSD) Cost Analysis and Program Evaluation (CAPE) independent cost estimate (ICE) will be needed to inform future Littoral Combat Ship program decisions; and

(16) the Navy, along with the Joint Staff, should conduct a requirements assessment study to serve as a revalidation of the Littoral Combat Ship capabilities definition document.

SA 2341. Mr. SESSIONS submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 1197, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2014 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe military personnel strengths for such fiscal year, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the end of subtitle A of title XII, add the following:

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Georgia is a highly valued partner of the United States and has repeatedly demonstrated its commitment to advancing the mutual interests of both countries, including through the deployment of Georgian forces as part of the NATO-led International Security Assistance Force in Afghanistan, currently serving as the largest non-NATO contributor and without caveats in Helmand Province, and as part of the Multi-National Force in Iraq.

(2) Contrary to international law and the 2008 ceasefire agreement between Russia and Georgia, Russian forces have constructed barriers, including barbed wire and fences, along the administrative boundary line for the South Ossetia region of Georgia. This "borderization" is inconsistent with Russia's international commitments under the August 2008 ceasefire agreement, is contrary to Georgia's sovereignty and territorial integrity, creates hardship and significant negative impacts for populations on both sides of these barriers, and is detrimental to long-term conflict resolution.

(3) The peaceful transfer of power as the result of the October 2012 parliamentary elections in Georgia represents a major accomplishment toward the Georgian people's creation of a free society and full democracy.

(4) The presidential election of October 2013 marks another major step in this transition to a free and open democracy. International election observers from the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE) concluded that the election "was efficiently administered, transparent and took place in an amicable and constructive environment [ . . . ]. Fundamental freedoms of expression, movement and assembly were respected, and candidates were able to campaign without restriction. [ . . . ] A wide range of views and information was made available to voters through the media, providing candidates with a platform to present their programmes and opinions freely." This is consistent with significant progress toward a mature and free democracy.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—Congress—

(1) declares that the United States supports Georgia's sovereignty, independence, territorial integrity, and the inviolability of its internationally recognized borders and expresses concerns over the continued occupation of the Georgian regions of Abkhazia and South Ossetia by the Russian Federation;

(2) encourages the President to enhance defense cooperation efforts with Georgia and supports the efforts of the Government of Georgia to provide for the defense of its government, people, and sovereignty and territorial integrity within its internationally recognized borders;

(3) reaffirms its support for Georgia's NATO membership aspirations and congratulates Georgia on the steps it has taken to further its integration with NATO;

(4) remains committed to assisting the people of Georgia in establishing a free and democratic society in their country; and

(5) congratulates the Government and people of Georgia on the presidential election of October 27, 2013, and commends the Government and people of Georgia on a peaceful and democratic transfer of power and its continued movement toward a free and democratic society.

SEC. 1220. REPORTING ON DEVELOPMENT AND INFRASTRUCTURE PROJECTS IN AFGHANISTAN.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Defense, in cooperation with the Secretary of State and the Administrator of the United States Agency for International Development, shall develop and submit to the appropriate congressional committees a plan to enter into the Afghanistan development assistance database of the United States Agency for International Development relevant information related to development and infrastructure projects in Afghanistan planned or implemented under the Commanders Emergency Response Program, Afghanistan Infrastructure Fund, and the Task Force for Business and Stability Operations.

(b) CONTENT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The plan developed under subsection (a) shall include the following:

(A) Appropriate thresholds and timeframes for Department of Defense development or infrastructure projects to be included in the database so as to maximize the usefulness of the database for the monitoring and assessment of prior, ongoing, and future United States Government assistance to Afghanistan.

(B) Rationales for the establishment of such thresholds and timetables as well as an estimated cost and timeframe required to complete the data entry process.

(C) Measures to protect from public disclosure information that if released would potentially threaten the lives or livelihoods of United States citizens, third-country nationals, or citizens of Afghanistan associated with United States Government development projects.

(2) DIRECT SUPPORT FOR ANSF EXCLUDED.—The information included in the development assistance database pursuant to the plan shall not include projects designed to directly support the Afghan National Security Forces (ANSF).

(C) APPROPRIATE CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEES DEFINED.—In this section, the term “appropriate congressional committees” means—

(1) the congressional defense committees; and

(2) the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate and the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives.

S. 381

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. FINDINGS.

Congress finds that—

(1) on April 18, 1942, the brave men of the 17th Bombardment Group (Medium) became known as the "Doolittle Tokyo Raiders" for outstanding heroism, valor, skill, and service to the United States in conducting the bombings of Tokyo;

(2) 80 brave American aircraft crewmen, led by Lieutenant Colonel James Doolittle, volunteered for an "extremely hazardous mission", without knowing the target, location, or assignment, and willingly put their lives in harm's way, risking death, capture, and torture;

(3) the conduct of medium bomber operations from a Navy aircraft carrier under combat conditions had never before been attempted;

(4) after the discovery of the USS Hornet by Japanese picket ships 170 miles further away from the prearranged launch point, the Doolittle Tokyo Raiders proceeded to take off 670 miles from the coast of Japan;

(5) by launching more than 100 miles beyond the distance considered to be minimally safe for the mission, the Doolittle Tokyo Raiders deliberately accepted the risk that the B-25s might not have enough fuel to reach the designated air-fields in China on return;

(6) the additional launch distance greatly increased the risk of crash landing in Japanese occupied China, exposing the crews to higher probability of death, injury, or capture;

(7) because of that deliberate choice, after bombing their targets in Japan, low on fuel and in setting night and deteriorating weather, none of the 16 airplanes reached the prearranged Chinese airfields;

(8) of the 80 Doolittle Tokyo Raiders who launched on the raid, 8 were captured, 2 died in the crash, and 70 returned to the United States;

(9) of the 8 captured Doolittle Tokyo Raiders, 3 were executed and 1 died of disease; and

(10) there were only 5 surviving members of the Doolittle Tokyo Raiders as of February 2013.

SEC. 2. CONGRESSIONAL GOLD MEDAL.

(a) PRESENTATION AUTHORIZED.—The President pro tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives shall make appropriate arrangements for the award, on behalf of Congress, of 6 gold medals of appropriate design in honor of the World War II members of the 17th Bombardment Group (Medium) who became known as the "Doolittle Tokyo Raiders", in recognition of their military service during World War II.

(b) DESIGN AND STRIKING.—For the purposes of the award referred to in subsection (a), the Secretary of the Treasury shall strike the gold medals with suitable emblems, devices, and inscriptions, to be determined by the Secretary.

(c) FOLLOWING AWARD OF MEDALS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Following the award of the gold medals referred to in subsection (a), 5 of the gold medals shall be given to the 5 surviving members of the mission as of February 2013 or their next of kin, with a sixth medal to be given to the National Museum of the United States Air Force, where it shall be displayed with the Doolittle Tokyo Raiders Goblets, as appropriate, and made available for research.

(2) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that the National Museum of the United States Air Force should make the gold medal received under paragraph (1) available for display elsewhere, particularly at other locations and events associated with the Doolittle Tokyo Raiders.

SEC. 3. DUPLICATIVE MEDALS.

Under such regulations as the Secretary may prescribe, the Secretary may strike and sell duplicates in bronze of the gold medal struck under this Act, at a price sufficient to cover the costs of the medals, including labor, materials, dyes, use of machinery, and overhead expenses.
