PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 108th CONGRESS, SECOND SESSION

Vol. 150

WASHINGTON, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 2004

No. 11

Senate

The Senate met at 9:45 a.m., and was called to order by the President pro tempore (Mr. STEVENS).

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Spirit of God, who brought creation out of the void, light from darkness, and order from chaos, everything under Heaven belongs to You. Lord, work with us to bring harmony where there is discord. Use our daily experiences of joy and sorrow, pleasure and pain, victory and defeat, for Your glory.

As enemies of liberty seek to create insecurity and fear, remind us that no evil can stop the unfolding of Your purposes and Providence. Thank You for leading us each day with Your merciful hands and for providing for our needs. You prepare tables of peace and confidence for us in the presence of our enemies, causing us to rejoice because of Your faithfulness.

Bless our leaders. Protect them with the shield of Your love. Fill their hearts with Your joy and give them Your peace. We pray this in Your holy Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The PRESIDENT pro tempore led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, there will be a period for the transaction of morning business until 10:30 a.m., with 30 minutes under the control of the Senator from Florida, Mr. GRAHAM, and the remaining time under the control of the majority leader.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, under a previous order, we will be in morning business until 10:30 a.m., as mentioned. At 10:30 we will begin the highway bill. As mentioned yesterday, it will be very important to address this bill and spend the appropriate time this week and through next week with the objective of completing this bill by the end of next week. It is a very important bill in terms of supporting our infrastructure throughout this country, in terms of providing that infrastructure to support our economy, and also to create jobs. It is a very important bill.

The relevant committees met yesterday. Some of those committee meetings will be affected by the closure of the office buildings today, but we will have further announcements on the committee meetings a little bit later this morning.

We will be here today, and I do encourage Members to make their opening statements today. We will have a comment shortly on the policy luncheons today within the next several minutes after I speak with the Democratic leader.

RICIN FINDING

I will comment very quickly—because there are a lot of questions and a lot of news reports—as most people know, in midafternoon yesterday, a powder that was ultimately determined to be ricin was found in my personal office building. Everything was handled in a very appropriate way in terms of the screening tests that have been established, and ultimately, after a series of tests of what are called specificity and sensitivity tests, confirmatory results came back last night at around 9:30 that this was ricin.

There will be a lot of discussion in the news and around here as to what ricin is. As I mentioned last night, it is a type of what we call a toxin or a poison. It is not a virus, and it is not a bacteria, so a lot of people say it is not biological, but it is made from a castor bean. Somebody, in all likelihood, manufactured this with an intent to harm, and this is a criminal investigation that will be underway.

As everyone knows by now—or we hope they know—we made a decision, based on the procedures that are quite thorough and comprehensive, to close the three Senate office buildings today. Meetings have continued through the night and today over the course of this morning thus far. Further decisions will be made about reopening those buildings. The real purpose of that is that the mail be addressed in an appropriate way in those buildings.

Let me also say that all air sampling and all environmental studies today are negative with the exception of what was found in that single office at that site.

With that, I think I will stop to say we will have our activity here on the floor of the Senate. The Capitol Building is open today, and individual committee chairmen will be announcing what the plans are with hearings that were scheduled today in the Senate office buildings. Most of those will be closed.

At this time I will turn to the Democratic leader. We will likely be making other announcements over the course of the morning.

RECOGNITION OF THE MINORITY LEADER

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Democratic leader is recognized.

CONDUCTING SENATE BUSINESS

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, let me first express the sentiment that I know is shared by the entire Senate family in expressing our concern and our admiration for Senator FRIST and his staff. Having been through this ordeal in another form a couple of years ago, I know the difficulty it presents personally to staff and to families of staff, and I know we are probably in a better position to confront these challenges today than we were 2 years ago. But we speak with one voice in expressing our concern for those staff and our optimism about our ability to successfully confront this challenge as we did 2 years ago.

I know this has been a long 24 hours for the majority leader. He had a late night the night before, and then last night it would not surprise me if he got no sleep at all. So he is working on little sleep, and I appreciate his report this morning.

Obviously, we have a number of decisions to make over the course of the day, and I will consult with him. I do hope, to the extent it is practicable, that we use this opportunity to continue the debate on highways. We do not have a lot of time, and I know each day is valuable from that perspective. But we also want to be practical, recognizing if the offices are closed, it will be hard for Senators and their staff to do work related to the highway bill. I look forward to consulting and working with the distinguished majority leader as we deal with the necessity this situation has presented to us.

Mr. President, I know colleagues on both sides of the aisle are interested in the schedule. I know the majority leader had announced that there will be caucus lunches. I want to make sure people understand, we will have our normally scheduled caucus lunch today. Both the Democrats and Republicans will be meeting. They will be held in the same location.

I yield the floor.

PROVISION FOR EMERGENCY AUTHORITY

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate immediately proceed to a resolution at the desk regarding emergency authority; provided, further, that the resolution be agreed to and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 296) was agreed to, as follows:

S. RES. 296

Resolved, That the Presiding Officer of the Senate may suspend any proceeding of the Senate, including a roll call vote or a quorum call, and declare a recess or adjournment of the Senate subject to existing authorities or subject to the call of the Chair, within the limits of article I, section 5, clause 4, of the Constitution, whenever the Presiding Officer has been notified of an imminent threat.

SEC. 2. When the Senate is out of session, the Majority and Minority Leaders, or their designees, may, acting jointly and within the limits of article I, section 5, clause 4, of the Constitution, modify any order for the time or place of the convening of the Senate when, in their opinion, such action is warranted by intervening circumstances.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Vermont.

COMMENDING THE MAJORITY AND MINORITY LEADERS

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I will take a moment.

I commend both the Republican and Democratic leaders for opening the Senate today. I was recollecting, as I came in, we had another majority leader from Tennessee, Howard Baker—the Democrat leader was ROBERT BYRD; both distinguished friends and colleagues—and there had been an explosive device put outside the Capitol one evening, something that could not be done today because there are changes in our security. But the majority leader recessed that evening—it was going to be a late-night session. We adjourned a little earlier than we anticipated because we had worked out something and needed time for drafting and worked out a logjam we had, and there was an explosive device put out—and the distinguished Presiding Officer remembers this time very well because he was also serving here, as I was, at the time—blowing out both the Republican and Democratic cloakrooms. There would have been great casualties had we been there. The next morning, as I recall, nearly 90 Senators were sitting in their seats. We came back in basically to say: Nothing is going to close us down.

So I commend my dear friend from Tennessee and my dear friend from South Dakota for opening up this session. I think this is a symbol of democracy throughout the whole world. Certainly in our country, the most obvious symbol of democracy is this Capitol Building. Every time we stay open, as we have after 9/11 and everything else, it demonstrates the leadership of our two leaders but also of the devotion to democracy we see in this Chamber.

That is all I am going to say. That is why I am here this morning. I wanted to compliment both of the leaders for opening up this session.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader.

SENATE STAFF AND THEIR FAMILIES

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I do want to briefly comment on the families of the individuals who were potentially exposed yesterday. It is an inconvenience because you are waiting for tests and you are doing screening tests that have a certain meaning in terms of sensitivity, specificity. We are waiting for results to get back, and you hear about the potential harm these poisons can do. I express my real sympathies to the families and the individuals affected.

We had a conference call. We were all together last night by telephone until the early hours of this morning. We had another conference call at 8:45 this morning, and we will continue to be in touch with all the people who could have potentially been affected. Again, we think about them and their families.

We will be having our policy lunches today. Both sides of the aisle will conduct their policy lunches in the usual fashion.

With that, Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Who seeks recognition?

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ORDER OF PROCEDURE

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, are we in morning business?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. We are in morning business, with 30 minutes under the control of the Senator from Florida, Mr. GRAHAM.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I would be glad to yield to the Senator from Florida.

Mr. GRAHAM of Florida. I say to the Senator, when I take the floor, I am going to be here for about 30 minutes. If the Senator has something he would like to say prior to that, I will yield.

Mr. DURBIN. I thank the Senator from Florida for the forewarning.

I ask the Chair, the Senator from Florida is going to speak for 30 minutes. How much time would I be allocated in morning business?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. One minute.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, if the Senator from Illinois will yield, I ask unanimous consent that the Senator from Illinois be recognized for up to 10 minutes, and that there be equal time on the other side to match that, if that is necessary.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator is recognized for 10 minutes.

May the Chair inform the Senator from Nevada, under the previous order the remaining time will be under the control of the majority leader. The time for Senator GRAHAM has expired. The Chair suggests the Senate might consider its time.

Mr. REID. I appreciate the counsel of the Presiding Officer. Because of the events of last night, Senator GRAHAM's time was taken.

Mr. President, I think the time of the Senator from Florida starts at 10 o'clock.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Parliamentarian informs me Senator GRAHAM will have to use his time now.

Mr. REID. He would have to use his time now?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Yes.

Mr. REID. I ask unanimous consent that the order now before the Senate be modified to allow the Senator from Illinois to speak for up to 10 minutes in morning business, and that like time be extended to the Republicans.

Mr. DURBIN. Reserving the right to object, I would be happy to yield to the Senator from Florida to go first, and I will follow him. That would be fine with me, 10 minutes after Senator GRAHAM.

Mr. REID. And that Senator GRAHAM be given his 30 minutes. I ask that my consent be modified.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SMITH). Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Florida.

INTELLIGENCE LESSONS

Mr. GRAHAM of Florida. Mr. President, yesterday I spoke to the Senate relative to my assessment of the responsibility for the attacks of September 11, 2001, some of the lessons learned from those attacks, and the status of the implementation of those lessons. I explained that my view was that those terrible events would have been prevented if our national intelligence community had been better organized and more clearly focused on the problem of terrorism. And if the Congress and the President had drawn on those lessons learned from the tragedy of 9/11 and initiated reforms of the intelligence community, we might well have avoided some of the embarrassments of the flawed intelligence on weapons of mass destruction or the misleading use of that intelligence which formed the basis of the war against Iraq. Today I would like to continue my discussion of those lessons that we should have learned and implemented.

As chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence for most of the 107th Congress, I had the honor of cochairing a bipartisan, bicameral committee charged with investigating the events of the intelligence community and their activities before and after the attacks of September 11. We set out to determine whether or not there was anything more we could have done to prevent the attacks and, specifically, if our intelligence community had problems that needed to be corrected.

The importance of our task was well understood. The 9/11 attacks were not the work of a crazed individual but, rather, were the result of a sophisticated plot carried out by a group of 19 terrorists and an undetermined number of facilitators who prepared for the execution of their plot over a period of almost 2 years. We can, we must, improve our ability to detect and disrupt plots of this nature. We can do so by ensuring that our intelligence-gathering networks are operating in an optimal manner and that any flaws in our intelligence community are addressed as quickly and effectively as possible.

Our committee identified a number of problems with our current intelligence-gathering system. We followed up with recommendations on how to fix these problems. By conducting this inquiry, making these recommendations, Congress not only assumed the responsibility for determining what happened before and after September 11 as related to our intelligence community, but it also assumed a responsibility relative to the implementation of the recommendations.

The American people will respond to future terrorist attacks by asking: What did we learn from the previous attack and how has that information been used to give the American people greater protection? They have the right to ask this question and we have an obligation to give them a good answer: What have you done with the information and the lessons learned? How have you implemented those lessons in a way to give me and the American people a greater sense of security?

So far, we have not made acceptable progress toward providing an answer to the American people. In fact, if we had to give it today, it would not be an answer of which we would be proud.

A large number of the problems identified by the joint inquiry and a series of commissions which preceded the joint inquiry have not been addressed. In my previous statement, I discussed those recommendations which related specifically to the issue of counterterrorism. This morning, I would like to address those recommendations which deal with the structure of the intelligence community.

Our national intelligence community is beset by a number of serious problems. There is a lack of leadership at the top and the absence of a coordinated national intelligence policy that gives us agencies with priorities, missions, and resources that do not necessarily complement one another.

As an example, in December of 1998, the Director of Central Intelligence, the man who has the statutory responsibility for the coordination of all of our various intelligence agencies, told senior managers of the CIA that he considered the United States to be at war with al-Qaida and that the intelligence community, all of its agencies, working in a coherent manner, should devote as many resources as possible to combating that terrorist organization.

While this statement might seem to be a positive step, a step in the right direction, our joint inquiry found that the DCI was either unable or unwilling to enlist other intelligence agencies in this effort. The troops either didn't hear or simply ignored the bugle call of war.

The lack of consistent, coordinated priorities is paralleled by a lack of consistent, predictable funding as well as the lack of internal accountability. This shortage of resources meant that the intelligence community simply did not have enough personnel to perform all the functions that were needed. This left the intelligence community ill-prepared to deal with the rapidly changing terrorist threat.

One of the reasons for the unpredictability and decline of funding of the intelligence community was the mistaken belief that the end of the cold war yielded a peace dividend for the American people when it came to defense spending, including a reduced need to spend money on intelligence.

Mr. President, in fact, the change from the single focus on the Soviet Union and its allies to the current world of diverse, constantly changing, emerging threats such as weapons of mass destruction and international terrorist groups has increased demand and, therefore, the cost of intelligence.

The first recommendation made by our commission urges the creation of a Cabinet-level director of national intelligence, appointed by the President and subject to Senate confirmation. We made this our first recommendation because we think it is the most important recommendation and one that can do the most to prevent another 9/11 tragedy. I gratefully recognize the excellent work of Senator FEINSTEIN in championing this issue.

The director of national intelligence would be responsible for establishing consistent priorities for all of our national intelligence agencies and assuring that these agencies work together, rather than independently, by coordinating budgets and resources and managing interagency relationships. We made this recommendation because of the obvious need for strong leadership in our intelligence community.

It is clear that prior to 9/11 our intelligence-gathering agencies had no comprehensive strategy for counterterrorism. Intelligence priorities were inconsistently formulated and applied throughout the various agencies and were not effectively leveraged through interagency coordination. The joint inquiry report offers specific details of FBI supervisors who thought there was no need to pay attention to Saudi citizens in the United States while at the same time the CIA was tracking suspected Saudi terrorists around the world.

The director of the national security agency, which is responsible for our electronic eavesdropping, described the problem of unclear priorities when he said: "We had about 5 number 1 priorities."

Although the Director of Central Intelligence is normally the head of the intelligence community, in practice he has functioned as the head of one of those agencies, the CIA, with limited influence over other organizations. The limited ability of the Director of Central Intelligence to mobilize other intelligence agencies in the war against al-Qaida is a tragic example of this point. Before 9/11, personnel in many intelligence agencies—particularly the FBI—had not even heard his statement on the topic, let alone acted upon it.

The DCI does have some budgetary authority, but it cannot be exercised effectively without the cooperation of the Department of Defense since many intelligence agencies are run through the Department of Defense. It is therefore necessary to appoint a strong director of national intelligence who is not the head of any specific intelligence agency. This is a recommendation which has been consistently made by citizens, commissions, and governmentally appointed commissions which have reviewed the intelligence community in the recent past.

So far, Congress and the administration have not acted on this first recommendation and indeed appear to be moving in the opposite direction. The recent creation of an Under Secretary of Defense for Intelligence will serve to further separate the Defense Department from the civilian intelligence agencies rather than improving cooperation. Legislation has been introduced to accomplish this necessary restructuring, but as of this date it has not had a hearing before the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence.

This is an issue which now sits upon the shoulders of the Congress. If we fail to act, we will be held accountable when the next preventable terrorist act occurs.

Another important recommendation was No. 11, which called for the recruitment and development of greater numbers of quality intelligence personnel. Obviously, the need for more counterterrorism training is a major part of this recommendation, as is the need for more linguists and an expanded intelligence community reserve corps that could provide relevant expertise when special circumstances arise.

The committee also recommends an expansion of education grant programs, such as the national security education program. Included among the suggestions for improving the workforce was one calling for legislation that instills the concept of jointness or interoperability among the various agencies. This is similar to the 1986 Goldwater-Nichols Act, which applied the concept of jointness to the military. One way jointness has been instilled in the military is by having service members serve tours of duty with another service or in a multiservice command. This reform is widely recognized as having substantially improved our military's ability to fight and win wars, as was so dramatically demonstrated in Iraq.

In the intelligence community, there is too much isolation among intelligence agencies and between those agencies and the users of intelligence. As an example, the intelligence community, having examined the likely means of attack by al-Qaida, identified hijacking of commercial airliners to be used as weapons of mass destruction as a particularly significant part of the arsenal of al-Qaida. However, the Federal Aviation Administration was not notified of this new form of threat. Therefore, the training and protocols of flight crews had been to not attempt to resist hijackers but, rather, to succumb until the plane was on the ground and then let other law enforcement and professionals attempt to negotiate with the hijackers, and that was the form of action that was still in place on September 11.

Possibly, had the FAA been aware of this new threat of taking command of a plane not for economic or political purposes but to use it as a weapon, airlines would have been better prepared to deal with this particular generation of hijackers. We need our intelligence community to substantially improve its capability in the same way that the military has.

By working and training on a joint basis, intelligence agencies can conserve resources and help personnel gain an appreciation for a wider variety of intelligence-gathering tactics and techniques. If this recommendation had been implemented earlier, it could have reduced our vulnerability.

Our joint inquiry found that a shortage of staff was a near universal problem for intelligence agencies before 9/11. For instance, at the CIA's counterterrorism center, employees were required to work extremely long hours with no relief. Overworking these critical personnel made them less effective and lowered their morale to the point where retention had become a problem. Problems similar to that of the CIA's counterterrorism center existed at the FBI, the National Security Agency, and the shortage of Arabic linguists at the National Security Agency became especially pronounced. Linguists continue to be in short supply, in part because qualified linguists cannot be trained overnight.

Counterterrorism training has been stepped up in other areas, but raising our capabilities to an adequate level will still require more personnel with enhanced and expanded training.

The Intelligence Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2004 included pilot programs for training students who will form the future of the intelligence community.

No legislation regarding jointness has yet been passed despite the clear, positive results achieved by previous efforts in similar and relevant parts of the Federal Government.

The joint terrorism task forces set up by the FBI have had some success in bringing together officials from different agencies. It was one of these groups which was responsible for the capture of Zaccaria Moussaoui, the so-called 20th hijacker. If more of these task forces had been set up before 2001, and if those that did exist had all the personnel they needed to be effective, we can only imagine what might have been accomplished, what might have been prevented.

Recommendation No. 12 regards our national intelligence budget and suggests several measures to ensure our investments in intelligence provide maximum benefits. It calls for more flexibility in the budget to be accompanied by greater oversight and raises the idea of a cost-benefit analysis by an independent agency.

It also urges the President and the Congress to develop a budget that includes a sustained, long-term investment in counterterrorism to replace the unpredictable funding stream that currently exists. Providing the intelligence community with an adequate level of base funding would obviously increase budget stability and assist in long-term planning.

Contrary to that, for the past several years, counterterrorism programs have been funded primarily through supplemental appropriations which were often in response to a specific event, such as the September 11 tragedy, and therefore the supplemental appropriations varied greatly from one year to the next.

Intelligence officials who were interviewed by our joint inquiry were understandably critical of this system since it makes it more difficult to plan sustainable counterterrorism programs. This dynamic still persists, despite its obvious flaws, despite its obvious contribution to the increased—the unnecessarily increased—vulnerability of the American people.

There have been significant increases in our intelligence budget, but in 2003, a substantial portion of our counterterrorism budget still came from supplemental appropriations.

Another problem with the intelligence budget is the way it is tied to the Defense Department's budget. During the 1990s, we made significant cuts to the Defense Department budget, and the intelligence budget was cut proportionately.

While the end of the cold war meant we could reduce the size of our Armed Forces, intelligence requirements actually increased due to the diversification of the threat. In addition, greater budget stability in our efforts to fight terrorism would be better served by greater budget flexibility. It is currently quite difficult for intelligence officials to shift resources from one priority to the other as circumstances require. Even small adjustments require prolonged formalized approvals.

For instance, a number of CIA officials were aware of the need for more agents in Afghanistan prior to 2001 but were unable to reassign resources away from other priorities. The Director of the National Security Agency has discussed similar problems. The 2004 Intelligence Authorization Act permits the Director of Central Intelligence to authorize the employment of additional civilian personnel if he believes this is necessary.

This is a small step in the right direction, but more flexibility is still needed. This flexibility must be accompanied by increased congressional oversight.

It became apparent during the course of our joint inquiry that the intelligence community does not have a clear idea of how much money it spends on counterterrorism, and accounting methods vary among the different agencies.

In light of this, it seems appropriate that a cost-benefit analysis from an outside agency would be very helpful, but so far no real efforts have been made to undertake such a step.

Recommendation No. 15 suggests that the President and the Congress evaluate and consider revising the intelligence classification process. This task would pursue the twin goals of expanding access to important information and assuring that classified intelligence information is not disclosed inappropriately.

The current system of intelligence classification is not the result of a thoughtful, open debate, but is, rather, the product of a series of Executive orders rooted in cold war mentality and issued with little or no consultation of Congress.

Many people with extensive knowledge of the system have suggested there is a tendency toward too much secrecy and that this has had a predictably negative effect on the flow of information.

There was an interesting column recently in the New York Times talking about one of the core problems within the Government of Saddam Hussein prior to the war, and that was that all parts of that society practiced secrecy and deception; that the army deceived Saddam Hussein as to just what it was doing to prepare for war; scientists deceived Saddam Hussein as to the state of their development of weapons of mass destruction; Saddam Hussein attempted to fool the people of Iraq, and our intelligence agencies were fooled by all of the above.

Allowing an increase in a curtain of secrecy to fall over the information of our United States agencies will have the same effect the veil of secrecy did in Iraq, and that is to make us less secure, more vulnerable because we have not shared information in a way that can increase our security.

By treating so much of this information as treasure to be guarded, intelligence agencies can actually reduce the information's usefulness. By reducing biases toward excessive secrecy, Congress and the President can help make sure more information gets to the people who need it, particularly those such as first responders, local government, law enforcement officials, and Federal agencies, such as the Federal Aviation Agency.

There is a suspicion among many Americans—and I believe it is justified—that classification is being used to shield politically embarrassing information from public scrutiny, as was the case with the information on the role of foreign governments in the September 11 attack.

Unfortunately, little progress has been made so far in the task of reviewing the use of classified information, particularly in the area of intelligence. The Intelligence Authorization Act requires the President to report on the barriers to sharing classified information. Congress has not yet given serious consideration to this important topic.

Another very important recommendation issued by the joint committee, which has also been largely ignored, is recommendation No. 16, which calls for a new standard of accountability in the intelligence community. Given the continued and increasing use of intelligence information in our national policymaking, whether it is to fight terrorism, to determine the true capability of a potential adversary, or to reduce the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, it is critically important that we have accountability mechanisms in place that review intelligence agencies' failures in order to learn from those mistakes. To date, no personnel in intelligence or other affected agencies has been sanctioned as a result of the tragedy of September 11.

It is also true that no one has been sanctioned for the apparently incorrect intelligence assessments upon which the case to go to war in Iraq was predicated. Weapons of mass destruction alleged to exist in Iraq have not been found and, according to David Kay, our lead investigator, it is unlikely they will ever be found. This raises in stark terms the responsibility of the President to determine who is accountable for intelligence failures and what should be the appropriate sanction of those responsible.

It is as though the chairman of the steamship company that owned the Titanic put all of the blame for the tragedy on the iceberg and declared that was the end of it; the captain of the ship would be let off scot-free.

At the same time, it is unclear if any rewards or recognitions have been given for outstanding performance in the intelligence community, outstanding performance such as that of those who contributed to the capture of Saddam Hussein.

If we want our intelligence agencies to be as good as they can be and they must and should be, then we must assure that they have systems in place to reward exceptional performance and to deal with bad performance appropriately. Currently, there are no systems performing this function and all attempts to bring accountability to our intelligence-gathering programs have been made in an ad hoc manner. We must demand that the intelligence community establish standards of accountability since reliable intelligence is critical to our security as citizens and our credibility as a nation.

The last recommendation I would like to address today is No. 17. This calls for the removal of inappropriate and obsolete barriers between intelligence and law enforcement agencies engaged in counterterrorism. It advises the administration to report to Congress regarding the removal of these barriers so that Congress can take whatever legislative actions are appropriate.

Our joint inquiry found that the various agencies engaged in counterterrorism have been surprisingly reluctant to share information with each other. Example: In the months before the September 11 attack, the CIA was aware of two terrorists associated with al-Qaida, Khalid al-Mihdhar and Nawaf al-Hazmi. These two terrorists had attended a planning session in Malaysia, a session at which both the attack on the USS Cole, which was to occur in November of 2000, and the attack on the World Trade Center, the Pentagon, and the failed effort that ended in a field in Pennsylvania had been discussed.

Both of these terrorists attended a planning conference for purposes of proceeding with those two terrorist attacks, and then acquired visas for travel to the United States, because the CIA had not informed law enforcement or border protection agencies of the threat posed by these individuals. The FBI and other agencies did not seem to have received this information which could have helped disrupt the 9/11 attack.

Similarly, the FBI prevented its agents from participating in an effort to track down these terrorists on the grounds that this was not a job for criminal investigators. The FBI was reluctant to share information regarding counterterrorism because of concerns about legal barriers preventing collaboration between intelligence and law enforcement agencies. These concerns sprang partly from an overly restrictive Department of Justice policy and partly from misunderstanding among agents regarding the law. Sharing of intelligence information with law enforcement agencies was seen as particularly difficult, almost taboo. This was a clear contradiction of the law that existed prior to September 11.

Legal considerations also seem to have impaired information sharing by the National Security Agency and the CIA as well. However, these agencies, particularly the CIA, were also motivated by an overly zealous desire to protect sources. While protecting sources and methods is certainly an important goal, these sources and methods are not very useful if we cannot effectively use the information they provide to us.

From a legislative point of view, significant progress has been made in this area. Congress has passed legislation removing legal restrictions regarding the sharing of intelligence information. Agency heads have updated obsolete and inappropriate guidelines. Intelligence community personnel now seem to have a much clearer picture of what methods and actions are available to them.

Unfortunately, while the legislative barriers to information sharing have been removed, the fact is that effective information sharing is still not taking place between intelligence and law enforcement, and this is a special problem between Federal intelligence and law enforcement agencies and State and local law enforcement.

I frequently hear complaints that agency culture, habit, and inertia, have preserved problems that should have been solved, making this yet another area in which the lessons of 9/11 have not been learned and not been applied effectively.

September 11 was a wake-up call. It alerted us to the fact that our intelligence agencies were not performing at the level required during this era of terrorism. We have just received our first report card. The report card is to tell us how well we have done since September 11 in applying lessons learned to the greater protection of the American people. We have received a grade of F. The false assertion of large stockpiles of weapons of mass destruction in Iraq demonstrates that we have not yet made the reforms to our intelligence agencies that are required.

The next report card will come when we have the next intelligence failure. The President and the Congress will both be held accountable if we have not acted on these necessary reforms to protect the safety of the people of America.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Democratic leader.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished Senator from Florida for his extraordinarily enlightening and very helpful discussion in this series of speeches he is giving this week. I think we would all do well not only to listen but to read and to thoughtfully consider much of what he has shared with us. He speaks with experience and extraordinary credibility, and I applaud him for taking the time and making the effort that he has to bring this important issue before us in a meaningful way.

IRAQ INTELLIGENCE COMMISSION

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, the vital interest of our national security is critical to our understanding of the degree to which we can cope with the circumstances involving the intelligence failure we have now experienced over this past year or more. Two important voices have been added to the growing chorus, raising questions about the accuracy and the veracity of the allegations the administration used to take this country to war. Just yesterday Secretary Powell made clear the importance of the prewar claims, suggesting that the case for war was much weaker without the allegations of existing stockpiles of weapons. When asked whether he would have recommended an invasion last year if he knew then what he knows now, Secretary Powell said:

I don't know, because it was the stockpile that presented the final little piece that made it more of a real and present danger and threat to the region and to the world.

A year ago this week, Secretary Powell made a lengthy presentation to the United Nations Security Council about the grave threat posed by Iraq's weapons of mass destruction. The Secretary of State did not speak of "weapons of mass destruction-related program activities," but of existing stockpiles—existing stockpiles of horrendous weapons and the means to deliver them. In large measure because of the alarming assertions by Secretary Powell and similar claims by President Bush, Vice President CHENEY, Secretary of Defense Rumsfeld, National Security Adviser Rice, and many other senior administration officials, a majority of Congress voted to give the President the authority to send troops to wage war against Iraq.

Late last month, Secretary Powell had something decidedly different to say. For the first time since his U.N. presentation he explicitly acknowledged the strong possibility his claims about Iraq's weapons were untrue, telling reporters on his trip to Georgia:

... what the open question is: how many stocks [the Iraqis] had, if any? And if they had any, where did they go? And if they didn't have any, then why wasn't that known beforehand?

A few days later, Dr. David Kay, Chief Weapons Inspector in Iraq until a couple of weeks ago, told the Armed Services Committee here in the Senate the administration's prewar intelligence on Iraq was, in his words, "all wrong." While several nonpartisan experts have reached similar conclusions about our intelligence and raised concerns about the accuracy of the administration statements on this issue, hearing Secretary Powell and Dr. Kay, two of this Nation's most respected and knowledgeable officials, speak in this manner, has raised some questions at home and abroad about the foundation of the administration's case for going to war against Iraq.

Given the significance of these questions, a broad, thorough, nonpartisan review of both the intelligence community's assessment of the threats posed by Iraq and the administration's use of this information is essential to restoring the trust of the American public and the international community in this administration and in the intelligence system itself.

The reason is clear. The most effective means to counterterrorism and the many other national security challenges facing this Nation today is by gaining and maintaining the support of the American people and assembling a international coalition. Accurate, unimpeachable intelligence is one of the most crucial tools the President has at his disposal for rallying the American people and the world. If the President is to successfully convince Americans of the need to send daughters and sons into harm's way and urge our allies to support America's course of action, our intelligence must be seen as absolutely credible and accurate. National security experts of both parties have begun to warn that the lack of any weapons of mass destruction in Iraq after the administration's grave predictions in the runup to the war is undermining America's credibility, not only on Iraq but on other national security challenges as well.

For example, the United States increasingly believes that North Korea has used the last couple of years to create additional nuclear material and weapons. However, officials in South Korea and China have raised questions about these conclusions, in part by pointing to our intelligence community's failures in Iraq. This failure to reach a consensus on the threat posed by North Korea has greatly complicated efforts to effectively confront a nation that already possesses nuclear weapons and has been characterized as the world's greatest weapons proliferator.

Given these stakes, one would think the President would be the first to demand a full and complete accounting of the accuracy and use of Iraq prewar intelligence. Yet up until this past week-end, the President has stubbornly insisted there was nothing wrong with that intelligence or the alarming assertions that he and senior administration officials made in the days leading up to the start of the war in Iraq. In a remarkable about-face this past week, administration officials said publicly that the President will support the establishment of an independent commission, provided he appoints the commissioners and defines the scope of their work. As in other instances, the administration is apparently seeking to both convince the America public it supports a thorough investigation at the same time it stacks the deck against such an investigation effort ever occurring.

Although one of the major questions that needs to be addressed is whether senior administration officials exaggerated the nature of the threat to Iraq, the President is attempting to make the case that actions by these officials are best investigated by a commission whose members are appointed by and report to those very officials in the White House.

There is little reason to believe a commission appointed and controlled by the White House will have the independence and credibility necessary to investigate and bring closure to these crucial issues. Consider this: At the same time the Secretary of State was suggesting that it was an open question whether Iraq had any weapons of mass destruction and the chief weapons inspector in Iraq was concluding that Iraq did not have any stockpiles of weapons before the war, Vice President CHENEY was on national radio still suggesting that it was just a matter of time until such weapons could be found.

If the President's senior advisers are still arguing that the prewar intelligence was right, can the American people be certain that commissioners handpicked by the White House to undertake an investigation defined by the White House will follow the facts wherever they lead?

It would be a shame to have such an important commission start its work under the shadow of such doubt. We can avoid ever having to ask those questions by forming a truly independent commission that can rise above those concerns. I strongly believe the Congress can and should establish a truly independent commission to examine the collection, analysis, dissemination, and use by policymakers of intelligence on Iraq. Twice the Senate has voted to establish just such a commission that would be given access to all relevant information, appointed on a bipartisan basis by the congressional leadership of the House and Senate. I voted for this proposal both times.

Although supporters of this commission fell short both times, I continue to believe that after putting our troops in harm's way we owe it to them to get to the bottom of this question. We owe them a truly independent investigation, conducted in the same way that our Armed Forces carry out their duties every day in Iraq, with honor and with integrity. I fear the process being started by the administration is neither, but it is not too late to establish a commission of which we can all be proud.

I yield the floor.

Mr. KENNEDY. Will the Senator be good enough to yield?

Mr. DASCHLE. I am happy to yield to the Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. First, I thank the Senator for an excellent statement.

Earlier today the Armed Services Committee had meant to meet. We were going to have Secretary Rumsfeld up before the committee. I intended to ask him two or three questions on the issue of intelligence, but since the Senator is on his feet now, I am wondering if he would be willing to respond to a question or two and help clear this up in my mind.

What we have now, as I understand it, is the intelligence agencies saying that they provided the intelligence to the administration and that they were not intimidated. I intended to ask the Secretary whether he was aware of the Defense Intelligence Agency's own intelligence report that stated—and I am quoting. This has been published. It was declassified and published in the news sources—this is the Defense Intelligence Agency:

... there is no reliable information on whether Iraq is producing and stockpiling chemical weapons, or where Iraq has—or will—establish its chemical warfare agent production facilities.

That was in September of 2002. Yet a month later, just as Congress was about to vote, the National Intelligence Estimate stated very precisely that:

Iraq probably has stocked at least 100 metric tons and possibly as much as 500 metric tons of chemical weapon agents—much of it added in the last year.

I was just wondering, if I can raise this point, here we have the Defense Intelligence Agency giving one report. Then, if we look at the State Department Bureau of Intelligence, this is what the State Department Bureau of Intelligence concluded:

The activities we have detected do not . . . add up to a compelling case that Iraq is currently pursuing what INR would consider an integrated and comprehensive approach to get nuclear weapons . . . INR considers the available evidence inadequate to support such a judgment.

The Department of State, Bureau of Intelligence.

Mr. KYL. Could we have regular order?

Mr. KENNEDY. Regular order. I believe I have the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator may yield for a question but not for a statement.

Mr. KENNEDY. I am making the predicate. If the Senator from Arizona is not pleased with it, that is his problem.

The third intelligence report was the Department of Energy disagreed that the famous tubes were for nuclear weapons. The State Department's Intelligence Bureau also concluded that the tubes were "not intended for use in Iraq's nuclear weapons program."

Finally, Greg Thielmann, retired State Department official, who served as director of the Office of Strategic Proliferation and Military Affairs in the Bureau of Intelligence, said last July:

Some of the fault lies with the performance of the intelligence community, but most of it lies with the way senior officials misused the information they are provided.

He said:

They surveyed the data, and picked out what they liked. The whole thing was bizarre. The Secretary of Defense had this huge Defense Intelligence Agency, and he went around it.

I just ask, are these the kinds of questions that we hope an independent kind of commission might be helpful to resolve? When the administration's own Defense Intelligence Agency, the State Department agency, and the Energy Intelligence Agency came up with similar conclusions as Dr. Kay prior to the time the Senate voted on this issue, don't you think the American people are entitled to know what the facts are, not just the intelligence information made available but how it was used by the administration and by the President?

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I appreciate the question, as well as the predicate offered by the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts.

The answer is yes, I am troubled by one fact that is now undeniable. That fact is, we were given bad information, information that now is much clearer than it was 6 months or 12 months ago, information that many of our colleagues have used repeatedly on which to base decisions fundamental to their interpretation of circumstances and ultimately the vote they cast on the resolution committing this country to a course of action.

I was troubled by a report I read just this morning that there are many in the intelligence community who are becoming increasingly angered and frustrated that all of this responsibility has been put on their shoulders. The report by one intelligence officer was: "We did our job. We reported the information. It isn't us."

My question is, If it is not the intelligence community, who is responsible? Why did we get bad information? Was it the collection and analysis or was it the use of that information once it was collected and analyzed? We do not know the answer to that today. But we do know our best opportunity for collecting the answers to the questions posed by the Senator from Massachusetts is an independent counsel.

What does it say of the independence of those potential commissioners when someone is suggesting to them, we want you to take this job to investigate us; we want you to have the authority to investigate us, with the implication that the detrimental consequences of an adverse investigation could weigh heavily on the commission itself.

I don't think there is any doubt about the need for independence, about the need to look at past precedent when we have established commissions of this kind. We need to know beyond a shadow of a doubt that this commission will have the opportunity to go wherever the facts lead them.

The way the President and this administration are proposing this investigation be done flies in the face of past precedent, with that cloud that hangs over any investigation that could not be as open, honest, and ultimately successful as it needs to be.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. It is my understanding that under the previous unanimous consent I am recognized for 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

U.S. INTELLIGENCE

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I thank the minority leader, Senator DASCHLE, as well as my colleague from Massachusetts, Senator KENNEDY, for raising this timely and important question about intelligence. I also salute Senator BOB GRAHAM of Florida, who announced his retirement. His departure will be a great loss to this institution.

I was fortunate enough to serve on the Senate Intelligence Committee which Senator GRAHAM chaired, and I still continue that service. He was an extraordinary leader, not just on that committee but when it came to the policies of protecting America. His has been a clarion voice from the beginning that the war on terrorism continues unabated and should continue despite the diversion of Iraq. We still have a war on terrorism, much broader in scope, that has to be considered on a daily basis.

I come to the floor and want to be careful of the words I say. I do not want to disclose anything I have been told in the Senate Intelligence Committee. That is certainly the policy which should be followed by every member of that committee. We are given a rare opportunity to see the intelligence community and its work from inside. Because we are given that opportunity, we are warned not to share that information. So the points I am about to make relate exclusively to that information which has been made public and declassified. It raises an important issue.

All of this information points in one direction. What happened to the United States of America prior to the invasion of Iraq relative to weapons of mass destruction of that country represents, in my mind, the greatest failure of intelligence in America since the fall of the Soviet Union. Recall, not that long ago, when our intelligence community and those in charge of national defense and security failed to see the collapse of the Soviet Union, a superpower, our premier enemy for decades, until it actually happened. Despite all of the millions of dollars and thousands of people, we missed it.

Here we have a similar situation. Prior to our invasion of Iraq, we were told by the intelligence community they had identified—and this is unclassified, declassified information—they had identified 550 suspected sites within Iraq where we would find weapons of mass destruction. And the level of certainty for each of those sites was different, but for a discrete number of those sites the intelligence community told us: We believe that when we go into Iraq and go directly to this location, we will find weapons of mass destruction, nuclear weapons, chemical and biological weapons.

So I asked Dr. Kay—and others have as well—after you had completed your investigation, after you had looked at those sites, what did you find? And the answer was: Nothing, nothing whatever.

We accumulated this information; we said, through our intelligence sources, we have 550 known locations; and we were wrong in every instance.

How can that be? How can the intelligence community have missed it?

The second element, the unmanned aerial vehicles, flying over locations, mapping different things, viewing different locations, prepared, if necessary, to fire on hostile situations—these unmanned aerial vehicles were identified by the intelligence community and the administration as a threat not only to the Middle East but to the United States of America. We were told these unmanned aerial vehicles would be used to deliver chemical and biological weapons against the United States of America.

I can state now in published reports we know that the UAVs were not designed for this purpose. We missed it completely. Sadly, I can say there is additional information which has not been disclosed which also casts doubt on that conclusion.

Why is it important? Because Members of the Senate were called to the White House, asked to vote for the use-of-force resolution, and told that the reason for the necessity of an invasion was the unmanned aerial vehicles and their threat to the United States of America. They were given partial information—in fact, misleading information—about the danger associated with the unmanned aerial vehicles.

All of this raises serious questions, questions Senator DASCHLE and others have addressed. This is what it comes down to: This should not be a matter of either the Democrats in the Senate or the Republicans in the Senate protecting their President. I will say this: If an open, honest, independent investigation finds anything was done wrong under the Clinton administration leading up to this intelligence failure, so be it. If they find anything wrong in this intelligence operation under President George W. Bush was responsible for this breakdown, so be it.

The American people deserve an honest answer. They are more concerned about the safety and security of America than they are about the political safety and security of any President. And that is exactly the way it should be.

Now, more than ever, intelligence is critical. Since 9/11 we understand the war on terrorism and its success by the United States depends on solid intelligence, acted on responsibly by political leaders. We need to ask these hard questions, and we need the panel of an independent commission that will come up with the answers.

Senator JON CORZINE, my colleague from New Jersey, has been proposing this independent commission for months. I have supported it. Many have resisted it, saying we do not need it. Well, thank goodness, after Dr. Kay's report, even the White House has conceded we need this independent commission. I think, frankly, we need it now more than ever.

We need sound and solid intelligence gathering. We need it to be evaluated in a proper fashion, and we need the political leaders in America to deal with it in a responsible way. We must ask the hard questions, whether this has been done leading up to the invasion of Iraq, and continuing with our war against al-Qaida and terrorism elements all across the United States of America and around the world.

Mrs. BOXER. Will my friend yield for a question?

Mr. DURBIN. I am happy to yield to the Senator from California.

Mrs. BOXER. I thank the Senator very much for his clear, as usual, laying out of this issue. I want to pick up on the word "independent," "independent commission."

Does my friend agree that to get to an independent commission, all the members should not be appointed by the administration that has just been part of this error?

Mr. DURBIN. I say to the Senator from California, it is important that this be viewed as a nonpartisan effort. In order for that to occur, we either need to find those people who are beyond reproach from the political side or make certain there is an appointment on both sides, Democrats and Republicans working together.

Why in the world would we allow this commission to go forward under the shadow of suspicion that it has a partisan agenda? We do not need that. As a country, we do not need that. Once and for all, we need to turn to men and women who have served this country, and served it in terms of our national defense, and who have no political agenda, who are really focused on the defense of our country.

Mrs. BOXER. I would agree with that because otherwise I do not think the American people will trust the commission. If the commission were to be appointed by, say, the majority leader of the Senate—certain Members—and then the Democratic leader of the Senate, that is another example. We could get a couple from the House Democrats, House Republicans, and then the President, and not an artificial date: By the way, you can't come back and talk to us until 2005 after the election. The American people are very wise.

So I am really glad the President, as you said, has come around to say we need to take a look at this. But I think the way he is approaching this does not pass the smell test for a lot of my folks back home.

Mr. DURBIN. I say to the Senator from California, there is another element, and that is this matter involving former Ambassador Joe Wilson, and his wife, who was serving this country in an intelligence capacity and whose identity was disclosed to columnist Robert Novak as part of political retribution.

I can tell you, having spoken to people who have given their lives to the intelligence community, and risked their lives for America on a regular basis, they were angry and demoralized by this leak from the White House.

I think in order to get the proper answers to the important questions about the role of the intelligence community, we should try to make it as nonpartisan as possible, try to bring in the professionals who are viewed by both political parties as people of respect and people who ask the right questions, so the intelligence community will come forward with honest and objective answers.

The bottom line is not who wins this political battle in the hearts and minds of the American people. The bottom line is, who will win in terms of America's national security and defense. We need sound and solid intelligence now more than ever. The President's admission last week that there was a failure of intelligence leading up to the invasion of Iraq has really called on all of us to rise above party.

I think the Senator from California and the Senator from South Dakota are moving in the right direction toward an independent, bipartisan, and nonpartisan approach. I hope we do get this done quickly.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Under the previous order, there are 10 minutes allocated to the majority.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the majority be given an extra 5 minutes in morning business; 5 minutes for Senator KYL, 5 minutes for Senator LOTT, 5 minutes for Senator CHAMBLISS.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I express my appreciation to the assistant minority leader for that request.

INTELLIGENCE INVESTIGATION

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I think we need to respond to some of what has been said here this morning because the implication is very disturbing. It is not just that some of the intelligence of the United States—and by the way, all of the other intelligence agencies around the world might not have been totally accurate—but that somebody might have been misleading us. That is the charge. That is the implication. It leads to this notion we could not trust the President to look into what might have been wrong with the intelligence, that there is a "shadow of suspicion" here.

Well, the shadow of suspicion is being cast by our colleagues on the other side by the innuendo that is throughout the comments they have been making here this morning and that we have read elsewhere. I think that is a very bad thing. Especially when our troops are fighting abroad trying to win this war on terror, to suggest that not only is the intelligence we are gathering not entirely accurate but that there were deliberate attempts by people in the administration to mislead the American people, and to mislead the Congress, that, I think, is what is very disturbing.

What are some of the strains of that? I heard one of them on the radio this morning: Well, Vice President CHENEY went down to the CIA and talked to them. He must have been trying to intimidate them to come up with some preordained conclusion to sort of cook the books a little bit.

There is no evidence of that whatsoever. David Kay has discounted that as a possibility. Nobody from the intelligence agencies, under questioning, has suggested that was the case.

Indeed, the question is, if the Vice President had not gone down to the intelligence agencies and asked the tough questions of the CIA people, and said, are you sure you are correct about this, then our friends on the other side would be complaining the administration did not even bother to doublecheck the information. So when politics are involved, you cannot win. But I do not think we should allow these suspicions from the political side of things to dictate the kind of action we take.

Another question: Secretary Powell went to the CIA. I think he spent something like 3 days with them, with these people going over and over and over the evidence, saying: Are you absolutely certain of this? And remember, before he made his presentation to the United Nations, he took some of the material out, some of the material he did not think was verifiable, that they could not nail down well enough. He wanted to make sure what he took to the United Nations was solid.

The Vice President and the Secretary of State are not the only people who have been involved. We have intelligence from other countries, such as the Israelis, the British. We have the United Nations itself, and the inspectors who came back with their reports.

At the end of the day, the reason why the international community passed resolutions asking for Saddam Hussein to comply with his commitment to come clean on what he had was because the whole world thought he had these weapons of mass destruction.

Now, since then, we have not been able to find everything. We have found some things. But one of the things we have not found are the chemical artillery shell warheads. We thought those were going to be used against our troops. Every day the war occurred, we were briefed on the so-called red line, the point at which we thought the Iraqis were going to shoot artillery shells with chemical weapons at our troops. Our troops had to put on all the heavy equipment in order to try to fight through that if, in fact, the attack occurred, and there was some surprise when it did not occur. We had to, of course, bomb the warehouses we thought it was in. We bombed the artillery pieces. We sent millions of leaflets to the commanders saying: Don't you dare fire chemical weapons at our troops or we will take you before the criminal court when this is all done. We disrupted their command and control, and we thought that is what prevented them from firing those artillery shells. But the point is, we thought they had them. We thought they were going to be used against our troops.

This was not a matter of the President or the Vice President or anybody in the administration trying to mislead anybody. Maybe the intelligence was not entirely accurate, but I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle, in conducting this debate, to try to do it from the higher plain, not from the suspicion that the President of the United States is trying to deliberately mislead the American people, but to acknowledge maybe there was something wrong with part of our intelligence and that is worth looking into.

That is precisely what the President has said he wants to have done because obviously he is just as concerned about this as anybody else is. It is for that reason he has asked for an investigation into the intelligence to find out whether it was correct, if it wasn't, why not, and what can we do about that in the future.

I urge my colleagues, in conducting this debate, let's do so from a higher plain than one in which we sow the seeds of politics and blame and suspicion, as has been done around here. We can conduct this debate on a much higher plain than that.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Mississippi.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I believe I have 5 minutes under the unanimous consent agreement.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. LOTT. I thank Senator KYL and Senator REID for making sure we have this time. I, too, think we need to sober up a little bit and look at the facts of what is involved.

First, it is an election year. Politics will come into play in everything we do. I don't mean that necessarily critically of us or either side. It is a fact. I suspect that it is having a hand in what we are seeing now.

Secondly, the fact is, we do have some problems with our intelligence community. It is not new. It didn't come up over the last 10 months or the last 10 years. It probably goes back to the mid-1970s when we had the Pike and the Church commissions that forced changes in the intelligence community from which we have never quite recovered. That is when we started getting away from human intelligence and relying on satellites and computers and technology. That is a big problem.

We can go back and point to things we didn't know or information we should have had back in the 1980s and 1990s that we didn't have. For us to take a look at our intelligence community and ask questions about why they have not done some things or they have gotten some things wrong is perfectly legitimate. The most important question should be, what are we going to do about it? Instead of pointing the finger of blame, trying to put some scalp on the wall and say: We nailed somebody because this information may not have been completely accurate, we should ask: What did we know? Did we need to know more? Were there inaccuracies? If so, what were they, and what are we going to do about it? Do we need to completely reconstruct our intelligence community?

Do we need to make some changes at the head of some of these agencies? I don't know yet. But that should be our approach because we are going to need our intelligence community. We need it this very day.

Senator KYL was making the point. Our troops are in the field today all over the world, particularly in Iraq and Afghanistan. They are working with the intelligence community today to try to make sure they know what is going on and what is happening, what the threats are. We don't want to undermine them. At the same time, if we are going to make improvements or changes, the sooner we can do it, the better.

The other thing is, what did we know. It is almost as if there were no weapons of mass destruction. We knew they had weapons of mass destruction—chemical, biological. They tried to get nuclear capability. We know they killed their own people. They used chemical weapons on the Iranians. I was talking to a constituent this morning who was in Bazra back in the early 1990s, who talked about how simple it was to produce chlorine gas. Yet if you looked at the plant, you could be told, this is just a plastics plant. But it is very simple to make chlorine gas. It is very toxic, and that was what was used, I believe, against the Iranians. So we know they had these weapons of mass destruction.

Did they dismantle them, destroy them? Where did they destroy them? Why did Saddam Hussein give out bad information? Was he being lied to? Yes. Was he lying to the world community? Yes. There are all kinds of problems or questions such as that.

Did they move these weapons to Syria, Iran? We know they had them. That is a fact. We still don't know exactly what happened to them, and that is a danger.

What are we going to do about it? Let's become a government of commissions. It is really easy. Pass it off to a commission—the base-closure procedure, the 9/11 investigation, Social Security, intelligence. Let the Congress just say: We know nothing; we see nothing; we hear nothing. Let's let somebody else do it.

By the way, I have watched these commissions. Just because you have Republicans and Democrats, are you going to call them independent? How about an independent commission set up by the President that might have people who weren't clearly Republican or Democrat? How about experts on intelligence, people who have been at the CIA and the FBI, people who are not identified in the political area? If you want a real independent commission, that might be the way to do it.

I have another question: Why don't we do our own work? What do we have the intelligence committee for? The more I am on there, the more I think maybe we should not have it the way it is presently constituted. We are not going to wait for the Senate Intelligence Committee to put out its report. We are not going to wait on the House, bipartisan, Select Intelligence Committee to put out its report. No, we are going to rush pellmell and create a commission before we even see the report.

I suspect the report from the Senate Intelligence Committee is going to be more aggressive than a lot of people might think. I think we are going to ask a lot of legitimate questions. How about letting the Iraqi survey team, the group that is out there still looking, do their work. But, no, it is a political year. We are going to use this to question all kinds of people.

The President got information on which he relied. The Senate got information it relied on. If there was inaccurate information, we ought to find out why and determine what we are going to do about it. We need to back off a little bit because we are dealing with people's lives. How we act in the intelligence area is going to be very important in the next few months.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Georgia.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. I thank the Senator from Arizona and the Senator from Mississippi for including me in this time because this is the most critical issue, obviously, facing not just the administration but the American public today. It is an issue which has already been adequately addressed, but it is not a new issue.

The fact of failures within the intelligence community is not something newly discovered. We knew following 9/11 that there were deficiencies within our intelligence community that probably allowed September 11 to happen. What have we done since that time?

As the Senator from Mississippi said: It was time to step up to the plate after 9/11, fix the problems. That is what we did in a bipartisan way, and we have done that since that point in time.

Now we are moving into an election year, and we are seeing sniping for political reasons and not solving problems for the right reasons. The problem continues to be out there, the problem of deficiencies within the intelligence community. It is not new. It is the same problem. It is a little bit different area.

We, as Members of this body and as Members of the House of Representatives, have an obligation to the American people to find out what went wrong. But let's not politicize it. Let's figure out what was wrong. By the way, when you look at the deficiencies in our intelligence community and you try to point the finger at them, you can't stop there. If you are going to point it at our intelligence community, what about the French intelligence community that believed exactly the same thing as our intel community? What about the German community, the British community? Every intelligence agency in the world had the same information and the same facts that we had.

Our President was presented with the facts that every other head of state was presented, but it was the Americans who were the target of the bad guys around the world. It was the Americans who were the victims on September 11 and were the potential victims thereafter. Our President exercised good, sound judgment based upon the information that he had and based upon the information that every other head of state had.

We can talk about the fact that we ought not to politicize the commission but we have, in fact, politicized the issue. There is a major, fundamental difference in trying to say that intelligence was faulty and at the same time trying to intimate that this administration exercised misleading acts. That is something entirely different, and that is an issue that we can debate long and hard. But it is simply not a fact substantiated by any of the evidence. Whereas the fact that Saddam Hussein possessed weapons of mass destruction had been substantiated time and time again since 1992, as the Senator from Mississippi delineated. It has been substantiated by intelligence communities from every other country in the world up until the time the Iraqi conflict began. There was no misleading on the part of this administration based upon the facts with which they were presented.

Let me address one item in particular that the Senator from Illinois stated. He and I both serve on the Intelligence Committee. This issue relative to the UAVs and the possible—I emphasize “possible”—use by Saddam Hussein of UAVs to distribute biological weapons being an issue:

He knows good and well that we received information that indicated it was a possibility. We don't know for sure that was their intention, but we know good and well that it was a possibility.

So we could go down the line item by item with each of the statements that have been made. I will go back and conclude with what the Senator from Mississippi said. We can argue and take 10 minutes on each side to discuss this, but what the American people expect is leadership. What this administration is exhibiting is leadership. This body ought to do the same. We ought to exercise leadership to the American people because that is what we were sent here to do. We could come together and say we know what happened; now let's find the answer; let's figure out what the solution is to the problem at hand within our intelligence community in a bipartisan way, and nobody disputes that is the way we ought to act.

I say what we need to do is quit debating the issue and move forward now with finding out what the problem was, and let's do what is in the best interest of the American people, and that is continue to work hard to make America a safe place.

I yield the floor.

“(1) STATE RESPONSIBILITIES.—To receive funds under this section, each State shall have a process in place that identifies and analyzes highway safety problems and opportunities and will produce a program of projects for funding under this section based on this analysis. Such process and program of projects shall be known as the Highway Safety Improvement Program. The statewide program shall identify hazardous locations, sections, and elements including roadside obstacles, railway-highway crossing needs, and unmarked or poorly marked roads that may constitute a danger to motorists, bicyclists, pedestrians, and other highway users. States shall also have crash data systems and the ability to perform safety problem identification and countermeasure analysis.

“(2) PROGRAM ADMINISTRATION.—The Secretary shall establish implementing guidelines for this program, which shall include at a minimum the following components:

“(A) STRATEGIC APPROACH TO HIGHWAY SAFETY.—Each State shall, as appropriate, adopt strategic and performance-based goals for its Highway Safety Improvement Program. This statewide program shall address safety problems and opportunities on all roadways within the State, focus resources on areas of greatest need, and be complementary to the programs developed in response to section 402 of this title.

“(B) DATA IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM.—Each State shall, as appropriate, advance its capabilities for traffic records data collection, analysis, and integration with other sources of safety data such as roadway inventories. Such a data improvement program shall be complementary to the programs supported by sections 402 and 412 of this title; include all public roads; and contain provisions to identify hazardous locations, sections, and elements on these public roads that constitute a danger to motorists, bicyclists, and pedestrians.

[(C) PROGRAM OF IMPROVEMENTS.—Each State shall determine priorities for the correction of hazardous roadway locations, sections, and elements, including railway-highway crossing improvements, as identified through crash data analysis; identify opportunities for preventing the development of such hazardous conditions; and establish and implement a schedule of safety improvement projects for hazard correction and hazard prevention.

[(D) EVALUATION.—Each State shall, as appropriate, establish an evaluation process to analyze and assess results achieved by safety improvement projects carried out in accordance with procedures and criteria established by this section, and such information shall be used in setting priorities for safety improvement projects.

[(c) REPORTS.—Each State shall report to the Secretary on progress being made to implement safety improvement projects under this section and the effectiveness of such improvements. The Secretary shall establish the content and schedule for such reports.

[(d) ELIGIBLE PROJECTS.—

[(1) IN GENERAL.—A State may obligate funds apportioned to it under this section for any safety improvement project on any public road or publicly-owned bicycle or pedestrian pathway or trail.

[(2) SAFETY IMPROVEMENT PROJECT.—For purposes of this section the term 'safety improvement project' means a project that corrects or improves a hazardous roadway location or feature, or proactively addresses highway safety problems, including: intersection improvements, pavement and shoulder widening, installation of rumble strips and other warning devices, improving skid resistance, improvements for pedestrian or bicyclist safety, railway-highway crossing safety, traffic calming, elimination of roadside obstacles, improving highway signage and pavement marking, installing priority control systems for emergency vehicles at signalized intersections, installing traffic control or warning devices at locations with high accident potential, safety conscious planning, and improving crash data collection and analysis.

[(e) FUNDING.—Sums authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section shall be apportioned in accordance with section 104(b)(5).

[(f) FEDERAL SHARE.—The Federal share payable on account of any project carried out under this section shall be 90 percent of the cost thereof.

[(g) USE OF FUNDS.—Beginning in fiscal year 2005 and for each fiscal year thereafter, 10 percent of the funds available to a State to carry out the highway safety improvement program established in accordance with this section shall be obligated for projects under section 402 of this title, unless by October 1 of the fiscal year in which funds become available to a State the State has enacted a primary safety belt law or the State demonstrates that the safety belt use rate in that State meets or exceeds 90 percent. A State subject to the provisions of this subsection must have in place or adopt a strategic highway safety plan in accordance with section 151 of this title. Activities funded under this subsection shall be consistent with such a plan.

[(h) USE OF OTHER FUNDING FOR SAFETY.—Nothing in this section shall be interpreted to prohibit the use of funds made available under other sections of this title for highway safety improvement projects, and States are to be encouraged to address the full scope of their safety needs and opportunities by using other funds unless provisions exist that prohibit such use."

[(b) APPORTIONMENT OF HIGHWAY SAFETY IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM FUNDS.—Section 104 of such title is amended—

[(1) by inserting in subsection (a) "the Highway Safety Improvement Program under section 150," after "section 204,";

[(2) by inserting in subsection (b) "the Highway Safety Improvement Program," after "Improvement Program,"; and [(i) 25 percent of the apportionments in the ratio that—

[(I) the total lane miles of Federal-aid highways in each State; bears to [(II) the total lane miles of Federal-aid highways in all States.

[(ii) 40 percent of the apportionments in the ratio that—

[(I) the total vehicle miles traveled on lanes on Federal-aid highways in each State; bears to [(II) the total vehicle miles traveled on lanes on Federal-aid highways in all States.

ISEC. 1602. EFFICIENT ENVIRONMENTAL REVIEWS FOR PROJECT DECISION-MAKING.

[(a) POLICY AND PURPOSE.—

[(1) POLICY.—The Enlibra principles, as initially developed by the Western Governors Association and adopted by the National Governors Association, represent a sound basis for interaction among the Federal, State, local governments, and tribes on environmental matters and should be followed to the maximum extent practicable in the development of highway construction and public transit improvements. These principles are:

[(A) Assign responsibilities at the right level.

[(B) Use collaborative processes to break down barriers and find solutions.

[(C) Move to a performance-based system.

[(D) Separate subjective choices from objective data gathering.

[(E) Pursue economic incentives whenever appropriate.

[(F) Ensure environmental understanding.

[(G) Make sure environmental decisions are fully informed.

[(H) Use appropriate geographic boundaries for environmental problems.

[(2) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this section is to reduce delays in the delivery of highway construction and public transit projects arising from the environmental review process, while continuing to ensure the protection of the human and natural environment.

[(b) COORDINATED ENVIRONMENTAL REVIEW PROCESS.—

[(1) DEVELOPMENT AND IMPLEMENTATION.—The Secretary shall develop and implement a coordinated environmental review process for highway construction and public transit projects that require—

[(A) the preparation of an environmental impact statement or environmental assessment under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4321 et seq.), except that the Secretary may decide not to apply this section to the preparation of an environmental assessment under such Act; or [(B) the conduct of any other environmental review or analysis, rendering of an opinion, or issuance of an environmental permit, license, or approval under Federal law.

[(2) MEMORANDUM OF UNDERSTANDING.—

[(A) IN GENERAL.—The coordinated environmental review process may be specified for a particular project, class of projects, or program and shall ensure that, whenever practicable (as specified in this section), all environmental reviews, analyses, opinions, and any permits, licenses, or approvals that must be issued or made by any Federal agency for the project concerned shall be conducted concurrently and completed within a cooperatively determined time period. Such process for a project, class of projects, or program may be incorporated into a memorandum of understanding between the Department of Transportation and affected Federal agencies (and, where appropriate, State and local agencies and federally recognized tribes).

[(B) ESTABLISHMENT OF TIME PERIODS.—In establishing the time period referred to in subparagraph (A), and any time periods for review within such period, the Department and all such agencies shall take into account their respective resources and statutory commitments.

[(c) ELEMENTS OF COORDINATED ENVIRONMENTAL REVIEW PROCESS.—For each project, the coordinated environmental review process established under this section shall provide, at a minimum, for the following elements:

[(1) FEDERAL AGENCY IDENTIFICATION.—The Secretary shall, at the earliest possible time, identify all potential Federal agencies that—

[(A) have jurisdiction by law over or special expertise related to environmental-related issues that may be affected by the project and the analysis of which would be part of any environmental document required by the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4321 et seq.); or

[(B) may be required by Federal law to independently—

[(i) conduct an environmental-related review or analysis for the project;

[(ii) determine whether to issue a permit, license, or approval for the project; or

[(iii) render an opinion on the environmental impact of the project.

[(2) TIME LIMITATIONS AND CONCURRENT REVIEW.—If requested by the project sponsor, the Secretary and the head of each Federal agency identified under paragraph (1)—

[(A)(i) shall jointly develop and establish time periods for review for—

[(I) all Federal agency comments with respect to any environmental documents required by the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4321 et seq.) for the project; and

[(II) all other independent Federal agency environmental analyses, reviews, opinions, and decisions on any permits, licenses, and approvals that must be issued or made for the project; such that each such Federal agency's review shall be undertaken and completed within such established time periods for review; or

[(ii) may enter into an agreement to establish such time periods for review with respect to a class of projects or programs; and

[(B) shall ensure, in establishing such time periods for review, that the conduct of any such analysis or review, rendering of such opinion, and the issuance of such decision is undertaken concurrently with all other environmental reviews for the project, including the reviews required by the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4321 et seq.); except that such review may not be concurrent if the affected Federal agency can demonstrate that such concurrent review would result in a significant adverse impact to the environment or substantively alter the operation of Federal law or would not be possible without information developed as part of the environmental review process.

[(3) FACTORS TO BE CONSIDERED.—Time periods for review established under this section shall be consistent with the time periods established by the Council on Environmental Quality under sections 1501.8 and 1506.10 of title 40, Code of Federal Regulations.

[(4) EXTENSIONS.—The Secretary shall extend any time periods for review under this section if, upon good cause shown, the Secretary and any Federal agency concerned determine that additional time for analysis and review is needed. Any memorandum of understanding shall be modified to incorporate any mutually agreed-upon extensions.

[(d) CLARIFICATION REGARDING ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT STATEMENTS PREPARED BY STATE AND LOCAL TRANSPORTATION AGENCIES.—Any project sponsor that is a State or local governmental entity eligible to receive funds under this Act, chapter I of title 23, United States Code; or chapter 53 of title 49, United States Code, may, at the discretion of the Secretary, serve as a joint lead agency with the Department for purposes of preparing any environmental document under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969, as amended (42 U.S.C. 4321, et seq.), and may prepare any such environmental documents required in support of any action or approval by the Secretary, provided that the Department furnishes guidance in such preparation and independently evaluates such document, and provided that the document is approved and adopted by the Secretary prior to the Secretary taking any subsequent action or making any approval based on such document, whether or not the Secretary's action or approval results in Federal funding. The Secretary shall ensure that the project sponsor complies with all design and mitigation commitments made jointly by the Secretary and the project sponsor in such environmental document, or that the document is appropriately supplemented if project changes become necessary. Any such environmental document prepared in accordance with this subsection may be adopted or used by any Federal agency making any approval to the same extent that such Federal agency could adopt or use a document prepared by another Federal agency.

[(e) DISPUTE RESOLUTION.—When the Secretary determines that a Federal agency which is subject to a time period under this section for its environmental review has failed to complete its review, analysis, opinion, or decision on issuing any permit, license, or approval within the established time period or within any agreed-upon extension to such time period, the Secretary may, after notice and consultation with such agency, close the record on the matter before the Secretary. If the Secretary finds, after timely compliance with this section, that an environmental issue related to the project over which an affected Federal agency has jurisdiction under Federal law has not been resolved, the Secretary and the head of the Federal agency shall resolve the matter not later than 30 days after the date of the finding by the Secretary. The dispute resolution procedures established pursuant to this subsection may be initiated by the Secretary or by the Governor of any State in which a highway construction or public transit project is located, or by the head of any Federal agency subject to the time period under this subsection.

[(f) PARTICIPATION OF STATE AGENCIES.—For any project eligible for assistance under chapter I of title 23, United States Code, a State, under State law, may require that all State agencies that have jurisdiction by State or Federal law over environmental-related issues that may be affected by the project, or that are required to issue any environmental-related reviews, analyses, opinions, or determinations on issuing any permits, licenses, or approvals for the project, be subject to the coordinated environmental review process established under this section unless the Secretary determines that a State agency's participation would not be in the public interest. If a State wishes to participate in the review process, the State must require all such State agencies with jurisdiction by law to be subject to and comply with the review process to the same extent as a Federal agency.

[(g) ASSISTANCE TO AFFECTED STATE AND FEDERAL AGENCIES.—

Such determinations shall be made by a State pursuant to criteria established by the Secretary and only for types of activities specifically designated by the Secretary. Such criteria shall include provision for public availability of information consistent with the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552).

["(b) OTHER APPLICABLE FEDERAL LAWS.—Upon mutual agreement, the Secretary may assign and the State may assume some or all of the Department's responsibilities for environmental review, consultation, or other related actions required under any Federal law applicable to activities that are classified by the Secretary as categorical exclusions, with the exception of government-to-government consultation with Indian tribes, if the State also assumes decision-making authority under this section. The State shall assume this responsibility subject to the same procedural and substantive requirements as would be required if that responsibility was carried out by the Department. When a State assumes such responsibility under a Federal law, it shall be solely responsible and solely liable for complying with and carrying out that law in lieu of the Department.

["(c) AGREEMENTS.—The Secretary and the State shall enter into a memorandum of understanding setting forth the responsibilities to be assigned under this section and the terms and conditions under which such assignments are to be made. Such memorandums of understanding shall be established for periods of no more than three years. In the memorandum of understanding the State shall consent to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal courts for the compliance, discharge, and enforcement of any responsibility of the Secretary it may assume. The Secretary shall monitor the State department of transportation's compliance with the memorandum of understanding as well as the effectiveness of the delegation, and will take into account the State's performance in deciding whether and under what conditions to renew a memorandum of understanding.

["(d) TERMINATION.—The Secretary may terminate any assumption of responsibility under this section upon a determination that a State is not adequately carrying out its assigned responsibilities.

["(e) STATE SUBJECT TO FEDERAL LAWS.—For purposes of assuming the Secretary's responsibilities under this section, the State agency signing the agreement in subsection (c) is deemed to be a Federal agency to the extent the State is carrying out the Secretary's responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act, under this title, and under any other Federal law."

["(A) there is no feasible and prudent alternative to using that land, and

["(B) the program or project includes all possible planning to minimize harm to the park, recreation area, wildlife and waterfowl refuge, or historic site resulting from the use.

["(2) In making approvals under this subsection, the Secretary shall apply the following standards:

["(2) The Secretary shall encourage States to provide such funding to State historic preservation officers, tribal historic preservation officers or the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation where the investment of such funds will accelerate completion of a project or classes of projects or programs by reducing delays in historic preservation review and consultation.

["(3) Such requests under paragraph (1) shall be approved only for the additional amounts that the Secretary determines are necessary for a State historic preservation office, tribal historic preservation office, or the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation to expedite the review and consultation process and only where the Secretary determines that such additional amounts will permit completion of the historic preservation process in less than the time customarily required for such process."

[(B) OPERATION OF HOV FACILITY OR SYSTEM.—Responsible agencies shall limit or discontinue permitting any of the exceptions specified in paragraph (a)(2), if the presence of any of these specific types of allowed vehicles seriously degrades the operation of individual HOV facilities or the entire HOV system. For purposes of this section, "seriously degraded" means that an HOV facility located on a freeway, or similar type of roadway, fails to maintain a minimum average operating speed of at least 45 miles per hour 90 percent of the time over a consecutive six-month period during weekday peak travel periods. The Secretary of such Department shall have a period of up to four months to review the proposed appropriation and to designate reasonable mitigation measures necessary to protect the adjacent federal lands from adverse environmental impacts, or to certify that the proposed appropriation is contrary to the purposes for which such lands or materials have been reserved. If no such certification is received, the Secretary may appropriate and transfer such lands or interests in lands to the State transportation department, or its nominee, subject to such reasonable mitigation measures designated above. If at any time the need for such lands or materials for transportation purposes shall no longer exist, notice of the fact shall be given by the State transportation department to the Secretary and the Secretary of the Department from which they had been appropriated. Such lands or materials may, at the discretion of the Secretary of the Department from which they had been appropriated or its designee, revert to the United States, under the control of such Secretary, or its designee. [(2) there is a continuing need for PM-2.5 air quality monitoring data;

[(3) with three years of PM-2.5 air quality monitoring data for all areas expected to be available by 2003 it is important to move forward to designate areas as attainment or nonattainment and proceed with implementation of these standards;

[(4) it will be beneficial to States to develop and submit implementation plans for the PM-2.5 standards and the regional haze program at the same time; and

[(5) Western States that participated in the Grand Canyon Visibility Transport Commission should be permitted to submit plans in 2003 to implement recommendations set forth in the Commission’s report.

Only data from the monitoring network designated in subsection (a) and other Federal reference method PM-2.5 monitors shall be considered for such designations. Nothing in the previous sentence shall be construed as affecting the Governor’s authority to designate an area initially as nonattainment, and the Administrator’s authority to promulgate the designation of an area as nonattainment, under section 107(d)(1) of the Clean Air Act, based on its contribution to ambient air quality in a nearby nonattainment area.

[(2)(A) Each State shall submit, for the entire State, the State implementation plan revisions to meet the requirements promulgated by the Administrator under section 169B(e)(1) of the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7492(e)(1)) (hereinafter in this paragraph referred to as “the regional haze requirements”) by 3 years after the date the Administrator promulgates the designations referred to in subsection (d) for such State.

[(B) The provisions of subparagraph (A) of this paragraph shall not preclude the implementation of the agreements and recommendations set forth in the Grand Canyon Visibility Transport Commission Report dated June 1996. These provisions shall not preclude the submission of State implementation plan revisions by the States of Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, or Wyoming by December 31, 2003, for implementation of the regional haze requirements as they apply to such States. [SEC. 1801. SURFACE TRANSPORTATION SYSTEM PERFORMANCE PILOT PROGRAM.]

[(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—

[(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish and implement a Surface Transportation System Performance Pilot Program. Subject to this section, a State may assume some or all, as the Secretary and State may agree, of the Secretary's responsibilities under title 23, United States Code, or assume all or some, as they may agree, of the Secretary's responsibilities under any Federal law, for projects constructed with Federal funds under this pilot program.

[(2) OBLIGATION OF FUNDS.—States participating in this pilot program may obligate funds under sections 104(b)(1), 104(b)(3), 104(b)(4), 104(b)(5), 105, and 144(e) of title 23, United States Code, for any purpose for which Federal funds may be obligated by a State under title 23. However, the State shall reserve 10 percent of the funds apportioned under section 104(b)(3) in each fiscal year for transportation enhancement activities as specified in section 133(d)(1), as amended by this Act.

[(3) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this performance pilot program is to demonstrate the benefits of performance-based management and to determine how such an approach can be best incorporated into an effective Federally-assisted, State administered Federal-aid highway program. The Secretary shall work closely with potential pilot States to determine ways to build into program-level oversight performance measures that reflect both State and national interests and to apply them with specific measurement of program effectiveness.

[(b) STATE PARTICIPATION.—

[(1) NUMBER OF PARTICIPATING STATES.—The Secretary may permit up to five States to participate in the performance pilot program established under subsection (a).

[(2) APPLICATION.—To participate in the performance pilot program, a State shall submit an application to the Secretary that contains, at a minimum, the following:

[(A) A description of the State's long-term and short-term transportation goals.

[(B) A description of how the State will address any areas of national strategic importance, as may be determined by the Secretary, in reaching its goals. The areas of national strategic importance must include the following: national security, interstate commerce, mobility, safety, and environmental stewardship.

[(C) A description of the performance measures under which the State's progress and success toward reaching its goals would be measured.

[(D) A description of how funding will be distributed equitably across the State, including to urbanized areas with populations in excess of 200,000. This would include addressing how local units of government would be consulted in the process of program development and implementation.

[(E) Evidence of the State's notice and solicitation of public comment and copies of comments received from such solicitation.

[(F) Such other information as the Secretary may require.

[(3) PUBLIC NOTICE.—Each State that submits an application under this subsection, shall give public notice of its intent to participate in the pilot program at least 20 days prior to submitting its application to the Secretary. The State shall provide notice and solicit public comment by publishing the entire application in accordance with the State's public notice law.

[(4) SELECTION CRITERIA.—The Secretary may approve the application of a State under this section only if the application demonstrates how the State plans to address the areas of national strategic importance as identified in subsection (b)(2)(B). The Secretary will prioritize the selection of applications based on the degree to which the applicant's proposed goals address the areas of national strategic importance, the State's ability to manage and monitor its programs on a performance basis, the State's commitment to conduct the required evaluations, and the degree to which the application otherwise proposes to achieve the purposes of this section.

[(c) PROGRAM ELEMENTS.—

[(1) STATE AGREEMENT TO ASSUME SECRETARY'S RESPONSIBILITIES.—

[(A) ASSIGNMENT AND ASSUMPTION OF RESPONSIBILITIES.—The Secretary and a State may agree, as provided in this section, that the Secretary will assign and the State will assume some or all of the responsibilities of the Secretary under any Federal law or requirement, except for the responsibilities relating to Federally recognized tribes, with respect to any project constructed with federal funds under this pilot program. The State shall assume these responsibilities subject to the same procedural and substantive requirements as would be required if such responsibilities were carried out by the Secretary. When a State assumes such responsibilities under a Federal law, the State shall be solely responsible and solely liable for complying with and carrying out that law in lieu of the Secretary and shall submit a certification as provided in subsection (f)(1).

[(B) FEDERAL ROLE OF STATE.—For purposes of assuming the Secretary's responsibilities under a Surface Transportation System Performance Pilot Program, to the extent the State is carrying out the Secretary's responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act, title 23, United States Code, or any other Federal law, the State shall be deemed to be a Federal agency under such laws, and shall agree that its transportation department, or any other State agency carrying out a responsibility of the Secretary under this section, shall be subject to such Federal laws to the same extent that a Federal agency would be subject to such laws.

[(C) STATE CERTIFICATION OF ASSUMPTION OF RESPONSIBILITIES.—Whenever a State assumes any of the Secretary's responsibilities under a Federal law, the State shall certify that it has laws and regulations that—

[(i) authorize the State to take the actions necessary to carry out the responsibilities being assumed; and

[(ii) are comparable to the Federal Freedom of Information Act and that any decision regarding the public availability of a document under those laws is reviewable by a court of competent authority.

[(2) OTHER FEDERAL AGENCY VIEWS.—If a State assumes a responsibility of the Secretary under paragraph (1) of this subsection that would have required the Secretary to consult with another Federal agency, the Secretary shall solicit the views of such Federal agency prior to entering into or renewing any program agreement.

[(3) MAINTENANCE OF EFFORT.—The Secretary shall not make any apportionment to a State participating in this performance pilot program in any fiscal year under sections 104(b)(1), 104(b)(3), 104(b)(4), 104(b)(5), 105, and 144(e) of title 23, United States Code, unless the State enters into such agreements with the Secretary as the Secretary may require to ensure that the State will maintain its non-Federal transportation capital expenditures in any fiscal year at or above the average level of such expenditures for the preceding three fiscal years.

[(4) FEDERAL SHARE PAYABLE.—The Federal share payable under this performance pilot program for a project funded with apportionments under sections 104(b)(1), 104(b)(3), 104(b)(4), 104(b)(5), 105, and 144(e) of title 23, United States Code, may be up to 100 percent; except that, the Federal share payable for transportation enhancements under section 133(d)(1), shall be determined in accordance with title 23, United States Code.

The program agreement between the Secretary and the State shall specify management responsibilities, including the role of the State in relation to other Federal agencies.

[(3) GOALS.—The Secretary and participating State shall agree, based on the State's priorities and the areas of national strategic importance as determined by the Secretary, on the long-term and short-term goals to be achieved using the State's apportionments under the program.

[(4) PERFORMANCE MEASURES.—The Secretary and the State shall mutually establish the performance measures that the State must meet relating to the goals identified in paragraph (3) of this subsection. Continued participation in the pilot program is contingent on the State meeting these performance measures. If a State fails to meet the agreed upon performance measures in two consecutive years, the Secretary shall terminate a State's participation in the pilot program.

[(5) COMPLIANCE.—If a participating State fails to comply with any provision of this section, the Secretary shall take such actions as necessary to ensure compliance. Corrective actions may include termination of the State's participation in the pilot program.

[(e) LIMITATIONS ON AGREEMENTS.—

[(A) is in a form acceptable to the Secretary;

[(E) expressly consents on behalf of the State and himself or herself to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal courts for the compliance, discharge, and enforcement of any responsibility of the Secretary it may assume.

[(2) END OF FISCAL YEAR STATE CERTIFICATION.—At the end of each fiscal year in which a State obligates funds under this pilot program, the State shall certify that it obligated such funds only for projects that would otherwise be eligible for assistance under title 23. Such certification shall also specify that the State reserved for obligation the amounts specified in section 133(d)(1) of such title as amended by this Act.

[SEC. 3012. MAJOR CAPITAL INVESTMENT PROGRAM.]

["(a) MAJOR CAPITAL INVESTMENT PROGRAM.—Section 5309 is amended to read as follows:

["§ 5309. Major capital investment grants

["(a) GENERAL AUTHORITY.—

["(1) The Secretary of Transportation may make grants under this section to State and local governmental authorities to assist them and their subrecipients in financing capital projects for—

["(A) new fixed guideway systems, extensions to existing fixed guideway systems, and related project activities;

["(B) the capital costs of coordinating public transportation with other transportation;

["(C) the introduction of new technology, through innovative or improved products, into public transportation; or ["(D) the development of corridors to support public transportation, including protecting rights of way through acquisition, construction of dedicated bus and high occupancy vehicle lanes or park and ride lots, or other capital improvements that the Secretary may decide would result in increased public transportation usage in the corridor.

["(2) The Secretary shall require that a grant under this subsection be subject to the terms, conditions, requirements, and provisions the Secretary decides are necessary or appropriate for the purposes of this section, including requirements for the disposition of net increases in value of real property resulting from the project assisted under this section.

["(b) PROJECT AS PART OF APPROVED PROGRAM OF PROJECTS.—

["(1) The Secretary may not approve a grant for a project under this section unless the Secretary finds that the project is part of an approved transportation plan and program of projects required under sections 5303-5306 of this title, and that the applicant has or will have the legal, financial, and technical capacity to carry out the project (including safety and security aspects of the project), satisfactory continuing control over the use of the equipment or facilities, and the capability and willingness to maintain the equipment or facilities.

["(2) An applicant that has submitted a certification required by section 5307(d)(1)(A)-(C) and (H) of this title shall provide sufficient information upon which the Secretary can make the findings required by this subsection.

["(c) CRITERIA FOR MAJOR CAPITAL INVESTMENT GRANTS OF $75,000,000 OR MORE.—

["(1) A project financed under this subsection shall be carried out through a full funding grant agreement. The Secretary shall enter into a full funding grant agreement based on the evaluations and ratings required under this subsection. The Secretary shall not enter into a full funding grant agreement for a project unless that project is authorized for final design and construction and has been rated as 'medium,' 'medium-high,' or 'high,' as defined in this subsection.

["(2) The Secretary may approve a grant under this section for a major capital project only if the Secretary makes the following determinations, based upon evaluations and considerations as set forth below:

["(A) The Secretary may approve a grant under this section for a major capital project only if the Secretary determines that the proposed project is—

["(i) based on the results of an alternatives analysis and preliminary engineering;

["(ii) justified based on a comprehensive review of its mobility improvements, environmental benefits, cost effectiveness, operating efficiencies, transit supportive policies and existing land use; and

["(iii) supported by an acceptable degree of local financial commitment, including evidence of stable and dependable financing sources to construct the project, and maintain, and operate the entire public transportation system.

["(B) Before making the determinations required by paragraph (2)(A), the Secretary shall first analyze, evaluate, and consider the following factors:

["(i) In evaluating a project for purposes of making the finding required by paragraph (2)(A)(i), the Secretary shall analyze and consider the results of the alternatives analysis and preliminary engineering for the project.

["(ii) In evaluating a project for purposes of making the finding required by paragraph (2)(A)(ii), the Secretary shall—

["(I) consider the direct and indirect costs of relevant alternatives;

["(II) consider factors such as congestion relief, improved mobility, air pollution, noise pollution, energy consumption, and all associated ancillary and mitigation costs necessary to carry out each alternative analyzed, and recognize reductions in local infrastructure costs achieved through compact land use development;

["(III) identify and consider public transportation supportive existing land use policies and future patterns, and the cost of suburban sprawl;

["(IV) consider the degree to which the project increases the mobility of the public transportation dependent population or promotes economic development;

["(V) consider population density and current transit ridership in the corridor;

["(VI) consider the technical capability of the grant recipient to construct the project;

["(VII) adjust the project justification to reflect differences in local land, construction, and operating costs; and ["(VIII) consider other factors that the Secretary determines appropriate to carry out this chapter.

["(iii) In evaluating a project under paragraph (2)(A)(iii), the Secretary shall require that—

["(I) the proposed project plan provides for the availability of contingency amounts that the Secretary determines to be reasonable to cover unanticipated cost increases;

["(II) each proposed local source of capital and operating financing is stable, reliable, and available within the proposed project timetable; and

["(III) local resources are available to operate the overall proposed public transportation system (including essential feeder bus and other services necessary to achieve the projected ridership levels) without requiring a reduction in existing public transportation services to operate the proposed project.

["(iv) In assessing the stability, reliability, and availability of proposed sources of local financing under paragraph (2)(A)(iii), the Secretary shall consider—

["(I) existing grant commitments;

["(II) the degree to which financing sources are dedicated to the purposes proposed;

["(III) any debt obligation that exists or is proposed by the recipient for the proposed project or other public transportation purpose; and ["(IV) the extent to which the project has a local financial commitment that exceeds the required non-Federal share of the cost of the project.

["(3) A proposed project may advance from alternatives analysis to preliminary engineering, and may advance from preliminary engineering to final design and construction, only if the Secretary finds that the project meets the requirements of this section and there is a reasonable likelihood that the project will continue to meet such requirements. In making the findings, the Secretary shall evaluate and rate the project as 'high,' 'medium-high,' 'medium,' 'low-medium,' or 'low,' based on the results of alternatives analysis, the project justification criteria, and the degree of local financial commitment, as required under this subsection. In rating the projects, the Secretary shall provide, in addition to the overall project rating, individual ratings for each of the criteria established by regulation.

["(d) CRITERIA FOR MAJOR CAPITAL INVESTMENT GRANTS LESS THAN $75,000,000.—If the assistance provided under this section is less than $75,000,000, the project shall be subject to the requirements set forth in subsection (c) of this section only to the extent the Secretary determines appropriate.

["(e) PREVIOUSLY ISSUED LETTER OF INTENT OR FULL FUNDING GRANT AGREEMENT.—Subsections (c) and (d) of this section do not apply to projects for which the Secretary has issued a letter of intent or entered into a full funding grant agreement before the date of enactment of the Federal Public Transportation Act of 2003.

["(f) LETTERS OF INTENT, FULL FUNDING GRANT AGREEMENTS, AND EARLY SYSTEMS WORK AGREEMENTS.—

["(1)(A) The Secretary may issue a letter of intent to an applicant announcing an intention to obligate, for a major capital project under this section, an amount from future available budget authority specified in law that is not more than the amount stipulated as the financial participation of the Secretary in the project. When a letter is issued for fixed guideway projects, the amount shall be sufficient to complete at least an operable segment.

["(B) At least 30 days before issuing a letter under subparagraph (A) of this paragraph or entering into a full funding grant agreement, the Secretary shall notify in writing the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate and the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations of the proposed letter or agreement. The Secretary shall include with the notification a copy of the proposed letter or agreement as well as the evaluations and ratings for the project.

["(C) The issuance of a letter is deemed not to be an obligation under sections 1108(c) and (d), 1501, and 1502(a) of title 31, U.S.C., or an administrative commitment.

["(D) An obligation or administrative commitment may be made only when amounts are appropriated.

["(2)(A) The Secretary may make a full funding grant agreement with an applicant. The agreement shall—

["(i) establish the terms of participation by the United States Government in a project under this section;

["(ii) establish the maximum amount of Government financial assistance for the project;

["(iii) cover the period of time for completing the project, including a period extending beyond the period of an authorization; and

["(iv) make timely and efficient management of the project easier according to the law of the United States.

["(B) An agreement under this paragraph obligates an amount of available budget authority specified in law and may include a commitment, contingent on amounts to be specified in law in advance for commitments under this paragraph, to obligate an additional amount from future available budget authority specified in law. The agreement shall state that the contingent commitment is not an obligation of the Government. Interest and other financing costs of efficiently carrying out a part of the project within a reasonable time are a cost of carrying out the project under a full funding grant agreement, except that eligible costs may not be more than the cost of the most favorable financing terms reasonably available for the project at the time of borrowing. The applicant shall certify, in a way satisfactory to the Secretary, that the applicant has shown reasonable diligence in seeking the most favorable financing terms. The amount stipulated in an agreement under this paragraph for a fixed guideway project shall be sufficient to complete at least an operable segment.

["(3)(A) The Secretary may make an early systems work agreement with an applicant if a record of decision under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4321 et seq.) has been issued on the project and the Secretary finds there is reason to believe—

["(i) a full funding grant agreement for the project will be made; and

["(ii) the terms of the work agreement will promote ultimate completion of the project more rapidly and at less cost.

["(B) A work agreement under this paragraph obligates an amount of available budget authority specified in law and shall provide for reimbursement of preliminary costs of carrying out the project, including land acquisition, timely procurement of system elements for which specifications are decided, and other activities the Secretary decides are appropriate to make efficient, long-term project management easier. A work agreement shall cover the period of time the Secretary considers appropriate. The period may extend beyond the period of current authorization. Interest and other financing costs of efficiently carrying out the work agreement within a reasonable time are a cost of carrying out the agreement, except that eligible costs may not be more than the cost of the most favorable financing terms reasonably available for the project at the time of borrowing. The applicant shall certify, in a way satisfactory to the Secretary, that the applicant has shown reasonable diligence in seeking the most favorable financing terms. If an applicant does not carry out the project for reasons within the control of the applicant, the applicant shall repay all Government payments made under the work agreement plus reasonable interest and penalty charges the Secretary establishes in the agreement.

["(4)(A) The total estimated amount of future obligations of the Government and contingent commitments to incur obligations covered by all outstanding letters of intent, full funding grant agreements, and early systems work agreements may be not more than the greater of the amount authorized under section 5338(b) of this title for major capital investment projects or an amount equivalent to the last 3 fiscal years of funding authorized under section 5338(b)(3)(C) for major capital investment projects, less an amount the Secretary reasonably estimates is necessary for grants under this section not covered by a letter. The total amount covered by new letters and contingent commitments included in full funding grant agreements and early systems work agreements may be not more than a limitation specified in law.

["(B) Future obligations of the Government and contingent commitments made against the contingent commitment authority under section 3032(g)(2) of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991, Public Law 102-240, as amended, for the San Francisco BART to the Airport project for fiscal years 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005 and 2006 shall be charged against section 3032(g)(2) of that Act.

["(g) GOVERNMENT'S SHARE OF NET PROJECT COST.—

["(1) Based on engineering studies, studies of economic feasibility, and information on the expected use of equipment or facilities, the Secretary shall estimate the net project cost. A grant for the project shall be for 50 percent of the net capital project cost, unless the grant recipient requests a lower grant percentage.

["(2) The remainder—

["(A) shall be from an undistributed cash surplus, a replacement or depreciation cash fund or reserve, or new capital; and

["(B) may include up to 30 percent from amounts appropriated to or made available to a department or agency of the Federal Government that are eligible to be expended for transportation.

["(3) In addition to amounts allowed pursuant to paragraph (1) of this subsection, a planned extension to a fixed guideway system may include the cost of rolling stock previously purchased if the applicant satisfies the Secretary that only amounts other than amounts of the Government were used and that the purchase was made for use on the extension. A refund or reduction of the remainder may be made only if a refund of a proportional amount of the grant of the Government is made at the same time.

["(4) The prohibitions on the use of funds for matching requirements under section 403(a)(5)(C)(vii) of the Social Security Act shall not apply to amounts allowed pursuant to paragraph (2) of this subsection.

“(5) This subsection does not apply to projects for which the Secretary of Transportation has issued a letter of intent or entered into a full funding grant agreement before the date of enactment of the Federal Public Transportation Act of 2003.

“(h) FISCAL CAPACITY CONSIDERATIONS.—If the Secretary gives priority consideration to financing projects that include more than the non-Government share required under subsection (g) of this section, the Secretary may also give consideration to ‘high,’ ‘medium-high,’ or ‘medium’ projects sponsored by grant applicants and State and local governments of constrained fiscal capacity in selecting projects for full funding grant agreements.

“(i) PRELIMINARY ENGINEERING.—Not more than 8 percent of the amounts made available in each fiscal year to carry out this section may be available for preliminary engineering.

“(j) UNDERTAKING PROJECTS IN ADVANCE.—

“(l) The Secretary may pay the Government's share of the net capital project cost to a State or local governmental authority that carries out any part of a project described in this section without the aid of amounts of the Government and according to all applicable procedures and requirements if—

“(A) the State or local governmental authority applies for the payment;

“(B) the Secretary approves the payment; and

“(C) before carrying out the part of the project, the Secretary approves the plans and specifications for the part in the same way as other projects under this section.

“(2) The cost of carrying out part of a project includes the amount of interest earned and payable on bonds issued by the State or local governmental authority to the extent proceeds of the bonds are expended in carrying out the part. However, the amount of interest under this paragraph may not be more than the most favorable interest terms reasonably available for the project at the time of borrowing. The applicant shall certify, in a manner satisfactory to the Secretary, that the applicant has shown reasonable diligence in seeking the most favorable financial terms.

“(3) The Secretary shall consider changes in capital project cost indices when determining the estimated cost under paragraph (2) of this subsection.

“(k) USE OF DEOBLIGATED AMOUNTS.—An amount available under this section that is deobligated may be used for any purpose under this section.

“(1) Not later than the first Monday in February of each year, the Secretary shall submit to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate, as well as the Subcommittee on Transportation of the Committees on Appropriations of both Houses, a report that may include—

“(A) an allocation of amounts to be available to finance grants for capital investment projects among applicants for these amounts;

“(B) an assessment of projects for funding based on the evaluations and ratings and on existing commitments and anticipated funding levels for the next 3 fiscal years; and

“(C) detailed ratings and evaluations on each project listed.

“(2) The Secretary shall submit a report to Congress on the first Monday in February, the first Monday in June, and the first Monday in October each year that includes—

“(A) a summary of the ratings of all applicant's capital investment projects;

“(B) detailed ratings and evaluations on each applicant project with significant changes to the finance or project proposal or has completed alternatives or preliminary engineering since the date of the last report; and “(C) all relevant information that support the evaluation and rating of each updated project, including a summary of each updated project's financial plan.

“(m) PROJECT DEFINED.—In this section, the term ‘major capital investment project’ with respect to a new fixed guideway system or extension to an existing fixed guideway system, means a minimum operable segment of the project.”

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, with the agreement of both sides, we will recognize the Senator from Florida, Mr. NELSON, for 10 minutes on a subject other than the highway bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Florida is recognized.

(The remarks of Mr. NELSON of Florida are printed in today's RECORD under “Morning Business.”)

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, we have been yielding to Members on other subjects. I was glad to do so, but we were supposed to be on the highway bill for discussion about an hour ago. It is my wish not to recognize anyone, so long as we have speakers on the highway bill. I understand I get primary recognition, and I can't do this as managed time, but it is my desire to recognize the ranking member of the Environment and Public Works Committee for whatever time he should take, and immediately following that, the Senator from Ohio, Mr. VOINOVICH.

Before Senator JEFFORDS talks, let me say, again, as I did several times yesterday, how much I appreciate his cooperation in working together on this very difficult bill and coming to the point where we are today.

Mr. JEFFORDS. I thank the Senator. I echo those words with respect to the chairman's cooperation as well. It has been a pleasure to work with him and his staff. I am glad we are where we are now.

I wish to speak briefly on yesterday's incident that apparently involved ricin. First, I thank Majority Leader FRIST for his calm and professional approach to this matter. I also thank the Capitol Police, the Attending Physician, and everyone who assisted in responding to this incident.

As many of my colleagues know, my personal office is adjacent to Senator FRIST's office on the first floor, and my committee staff is located across the hall from Senator FRIST, so we were hit twice as hard on this episode.

Nearly a dozen of my staff members were quarantined last night and later decontaminated. They did not get home until after 2 in the morning. I would like to say a special thank you to them. Thankfully, everyone is feeling fine, and they don't appear to have any ill effects.

We should not have to go through this type of episode as we go about our business every day, but, unfortunately, these are the times we are living in.

I am hopeful we will get to the bottom of who is responsible, close this chapter, and return to our normal routines as soon as possible. Incidentally—and I may be getting a little paranoid—we are the only office to have also been involved in the other episode because we moved from Hart to Dirksen this year. I want to warn everyone, watch where I am. You may save yourself some problems.

Some 2½ years ago when I assumed the leadership of the Committee on Environment and Public Works, I set my sights on reauthorization of the Nation's Surface Transportation Program. I recognized this to be the most challenging task confronting the committee.

I have spent these last 2 years working with my colleagues, meeting with Americans, and studying the Nation's transportation needs. I have traveled the country visiting local communities and seeing firsthand our many national transportation challenges.

My observations on the road were reinforced by our committee's hearing process. The committee and our Transportation Subcommittee held 11 public hearings and sponsored three roundtable discussions to prepare for renewal of the Nation's Surface Transportation Program. We heard from over 100 witnesses from 30 States, representing over 60 organizations. The process generated a hearing record of over 1,500 pages.

What I heard is our current national program is working well; that we should refine it and not replace it. Our national transportation policy must serve the public good. In my view, the outcomes we seek are a strong economy, safe and healthy communities, and a clean environment. A balanced transportation system is necessary for us to attain these goals.

The success of our Surface Transportation Program will rest on four fundamental pillars.

Asset management is the first pillar. We must maintain and preserve our infrastructure investment. We cannot allow highways and bridges to deteriorate.

Access and mobility is the second pillar. Most Americans now live in metro areas, and most metro areas are congested and getting worse. We need to focus on these problems.

The third pillar is freight and trade. The value of trade and tonnage of goods moved in this country is enormous and growing. We need new facilities to accommodate this growth.

The fourth pillar is safety. We must continue the progress we have made over the last 10 years reducing the rate of highway fatalities and work now to reduce the actual number of lives lost on our roadways.

In partnership with our chairman, Senator INHOFE, and with the leaders of our subcommittee, Senators BOND and REID, we have helped construct a bill, SAFETEA, on these pillars. SAFETEA retains the strengths of our current national transportation program while enhancing its effectiveness to deal with the challenges facing our States and communities.

The bill meets highway system needs for strong growth in a manner that increases assistance to every State and every region. It is funded at a level of $255 billion that will enable the States to improve road and bridge conditions.

The bill will generate millions of well-paying jobs since every billion dollars spent on the highway program can generate up to 47,500 jobs. These jobs come at a time of great economic need in our communities.

A well-funded safety title is also included. It features a new program—Safe Routes to Schools—to protect children as they walk or ride their bikes to school.

Significant growth in congestion mitigation and air quality funding will help States improve air quality, reduce pollution, and address congestion. The bill makes it easier for States to mitigate project effects on habitat and wetlands, and retains and expands popular programs such as enhancements, recreational trails, and scenic byways. The increased intermodal flexibility set forth in the bill will allow States, if they wish, to improve freight handling and movement. But fundamentally, this massive transportation bill is about people.

It is about making it easier to commute to work; making roads safer for our families; preserving scenic beauty for future generations; helping our children get to school safely; moving freight efficiently and cheaply; and making America better.

Working with my colleagues, I have done my level best to write a bill that is fair to all States and regions of our country. I am committed to maintaining the legacy I inherited from my dear friends and former colleagues, Pat Moynihan and John Chafee. I look forward to completing this job, working with Chairman INHOFE, with the leaders of the other authorizing committees, and with all my fellow Members to produce legislation that will build a strong America.

I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio.

Mr. VOINOVICH. Mr. President, I rise to support S. 1072, the Safe, Accountable, Flexible, and Efficient Transportation Equity Act of 2003.

First, I congratulate Senators INHOFE, BOND, JEFFORDS, and REID, and their staffs on the impressive work they have done to put together a bipartisan bill. The fact this is a bipartisan product means we can actually get something done. It is a process of which I am glad to be a part as a member of the Environment and Public Works Committee.

Lately, all I have heard in the media and even from some of my colleagues is this is going to be a very difficult year to get anything done. I hope this bill and bipartisan spirit is an indication of the progress we can make this year for the American people. To borrow from one of my mottos as Governor: Together we can do it. And the other motto is the Ohio motto: With God, all things are possible.

This is one of the most important pieces of legislation Congress will consider this year. Although recent economic reports indicate positive job growth in the Nation as a whole, manufacturing jobs, including in Ohio, continue to experience slow growth and prolonged unemployment.

In recent months, I have met with workers, small business owners and manufacturers throughout Ohio. They all have the same thing to say: Good, high-paying manufacturing jobs are leaving Ohio. Many of these displaced workers would be productively employed on construction projects.

We have an opportunity with the highway bill not only to improve and repair our crumbling highways and bridges but to create and to let folks know that we know they are hurting. I will never forget when I was mayor of the city of Cleveland back in 1983. President Reagan and Congress realized the pain the people in this country were experiencing and Congress passed the emergency jobs bill, including an increase in the gas tax which stimulated tremendous highway construction jobs during 1983 and into 1984.

According to the American Road and Transportation Builders Association, ARTBA, employment in the transportation construction industry was down in July of 2003, during the peak of the construction season, compared to July 2002. Specifically, there were 12,100 fewer workers on project sites over the last year, a decrease of 3.7 percent.

In Ohio, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, heavy construction jobs were up slightly from last year. However, there were still on average 3,500 fewer jobs in 2003 than in 2000 when they were at their peak. Investing in our Nation's transportation infrastructure through a 6-year reauthorization bill will create hundreds of thousands of jobs and move our sluggish economy down the road to recovery.

The transportation construction industry generates more than $200 billion in economic activity and helps sustain 2.5 million jobs in the United States each year. According to the U.S. Department of Transportation, every $1 billion invested in highway construction creates 47,500 jobs and generates more than $2 billion in economic activity. It is also estimated that every dollar invested in the Nation's highway system generates $5.70 in economic benefits, including reduced delays, improved safety and reduced vehicle operating costs. This is a 6-to-1 return on investment. This has to be one of the best investments that the Federal Government can make.

We also need to ensure that we are investing adequate resources into our transportation infrastructure. According to the Federal Highway Administration's 2002 Conditions and Performance Report, the average annual investment level needed to make improvements to highways and bridges is projected to be $106.9 billion through 2020. This amount is 65 percent higher than the $64 billion of total capital investments spent by all levels of government in 2000. There is just no question that the need is there.

The average annual investment level necessary to maintain the current condition and performance of highways and bridges is projected to be $75.9 billion to 2020. This amount is 17.5 percent higher than capital spending in 2000. Nationwide, 162,000 bridges are structurally deficient or functionally obsolete, and 160,000 miles of highway pavement are in poor or mediocre condition. Americans pay approximately $49 billion a year in extra vehicle repairs and operating costs due to road conditions. That is $255 a driver in this country. In addition, the average urban rush hour driver spends almost 62 additional hours a year stuck in traffic. Congestion is responsible for 5.7 billion gallons of wasted gasoline each year. Wasted fuel and low productivity due to traffic congestion costs the U.S. economy nearly $70 billion annually. In other words, this legislation will help reduce our reliance on oil, improve our environment, and relieve the stress and road rage that we see so often throughout our country.

Nearly 43,000 people were killed on America's roads in 2002. Poor road conditions were a factor in one-third of those fatalities. The Federal Government predicts highway fatalities will grow to nearly 52,000 by 2009, absent any new Federal investment in highway safety. Studies report that every $1 billion invested in road improvements since 1950 has helped prevent 1,400 premature deaths and nearly 50,000 injuries, as well as help save over $2 billion in health care, insurance, lost wages, and productivity costs.

If we continue to ignore the upkeep and allow the deterioration of our infrastructure, we risk disruptions in commerce and reduced protection for public safety, health, and the environment. In my view, it is the responsibility of Congress to ensure that funding levels are adequate and efficiently allocated to the Nation's priority needs.

In 1998, Congress recognized the importance of the Nation's transportation system through the enactment of TEA-21, a 6-year bill that increased Federal investment in highways and transit by nearly 40 percent to $218 billion. Under TEA-21, my State received a 23 percent increase in transportation funding. Ohio's share of highway funding also increased under TEA-21 to 90.5 percent of its share of contributions to the trust fund. When I took office as Governor in 1991, Ohio's share was less than 80 percent. ISTEA took us to 85 and TEA-21 to 90.5.

As chairman of the National Governors Association, I was involved in negotiating TEA-21 and lobbied Congress and worked with BUD SHUSTER to ensure that all highway trust fund revenues were spent on transportation.

TEA-21 dedicated nearly all highway gas taxes to transportation funding and guarantees that States will receive at least 90.5 percent of their share of contributions to the fund.

I also fought to even out highway funding fluctuations and assure a predictable flow of funding to eliminate the peaks and valleys that we experienced on the State and local level under ISTEA. TEA-21 achieved this role with record guaranteed levels of funding, and I am glad to be in the Senate at this time to work on reauthorizing this important legislation.

The administration's 6-year surface transportation reauthorization proposal, the Safe, Flexible, and Efficient Transportation Equity Act, would provide $247 billion, including $201 billion for highway and safety programs and $46 billion to transit programs. On November 12, 2003, the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee approved $255 billion in contract authority for highways over the next 6 years, or an average of $42.5 billion annually.

Again, one of my top priorities for reauthorization is to increase the minimum rate of return for donor States from 90.5 percent to at least 95 percent. In May 2003, Senator CARL LEVIN and I, along with House Majority Leader TOM DELAY and Congressman BARON HILL, introduced legislation, the Highway Funding Equity Act of 2003, to increase donor States' minimum rate of return to 95 percent.

Currently, there are 144 sponsors of this bill in the House and 22 cosponsors in the Senate. It has been a pleasure to lead this effort on behalf of the SHARE, States' Highway Alliance for Real Equity, coalition in the Senate. SHARE believes all States have highway infrastructure needs that surpass available resources. For this reason, each donor State seeks to get back as much of the taxes paid by its motorists as possible. SHARE's objectives are to increase the size of the guarantee to 95 percent and to apply the scope of the guarantee to all dollars being distributed to the States.

I commend Chairman INHOFE, Senator BOND, Senator JEFFORDS, and others not only for their hard work in writing this bill but also for increasing the guaranteed share of all donor States to 95 percent by 2009, while balancing limited resources and the needs of the States. It is a very difficult job, but if one really looks at what has been done, it was a Solomon-like job and they should be congratulated for it. I hope other Members of the Senate are respectful of the fact that it was an intellectually honest effort on our part to try to remedy a problem that we have had for too long around this country.

Specifically, my State is going to receive $2.2 billion, which is a 38 percent increase over the 6-year period, compared to the last 6 years under TEA-21. We lost billions of dollars compared to other States, because we are a donor State—over the last number of years.

The total amount of funding Ohio will receive over the next 6 years is more than $8 billion. Much of this additional funding is due to Ohio's increased share of the highway trust fund dollars.

Another of my priorities for increasing highway funding and improving equity is to no longer penalize States that consume ethanol-blended fuel to help reduce our national dependence on imported oil. Last year, I cosponsored language written by Senator GRASSLEY and reported out of the Finance Committee that would transfer 2.5 cents of the Federal tax on ethanol-blended fuel from the general fund of the Treasury to the highway account of the highway trust fund and replace the 5.2-cents-per-gallon reduced tax rate for ethanol-blended fuel with a tax credit. This was also in the Senate-passed energy bill.

As a result, the same Federal tax will be collected and deposited into the highway trust fund, regardless of whether a gallon of fuel contains ethanol. The Ohio Department of Transportation estimates that enactment of this legislation will restore up to $170 million annually to the State of Ohio.

I congratulate the Finance Committee for coming up with the revenue offsets to reach the outlays of $231 billion to pay for highways over the next 6 years. I urge the Senate to support the committee's recommendations.

This morning I congratulated Senator GRASSLEY, the chairman of the Finance Committee, for getting in there and finding the dollars and the offsets so we can talk to our colleagues about supporting this legislation as something fiscally responsible.

When gasohol contributions are included, Ohio's highway funding over the next 6 years will increase more than $3.1 billion, 54.2 percent over TEA-21 for a total of $8.9 billion. The surface transportation reauthorization bill is extremely important to Ohio, which has one of the largest surface transportation networks in the country. Ohio has the 10th largest highway network, the 5th largest volume of traffic, the 4th largest interstate highway network, and the 2nd largest inventory of bridges in the country.

There are also 62 public transit systems serving 59 of Ohio's 88 counties. In 2002, these systems made approximately 138.6 million trips. Ohio has the Nation's 4th largest rural transportation program, the 5th largest bus fleet, the 9th most transit vehicle miles traveled, and the 10th overall highest ridership in the country.

This bill, if enacted, will meet the essential needs of the entire surface transportation system of my State. It will also create thousands of jobs and provide a significant boost to Ohio's economy. I am very proud that Ohio approved a motor fuel tax increase in 2003 that will ensure an annual $250 million new construction program for the next 10 years, while maintaining bridge and highway conditions. With additional Federal funds, the Ohio Department of Transportation has set a goal of having a $5 billion, 10-year Ohio construction program entitled Jobs and Progress Plan, dedicated to addressing Ohio's most pressing congestion, safety, and rural access needs.

The plan is predicated on Congress enacting legislation to correct the ethanol penalty which reduces Ohio's transportation revenue and increases donor States' minimum rate of return to 95 percent, and provides an increased level of investment in the Nation's highways and bridges. This highway bill achieves all of those goals. It is a bill that is very important to my State and its economy.

As a result, a half billion dollar a year new construction program in our State would employ approximately 4,000 construction workers directly and create another almost 10,000 indirect highway jobs.

Ohio's Jobs and Progress Plan would help finance several major projects throughout the State, including a $350 million project to rebuild I-75 in Dayton, a $400 million project to begin rebuilding the Central Viaduct, or as we call it in Cleveland, the Dead Man's Curve, and a $600 million project to improve I-70 and I-71 in Columbus. The plan also calls for $60 million annual investment to address high-crash locations, as well as funding to address freight corridors such as U.S. 24 and U.S. 30 in northwest Ohio. Too many people have died on these highways.

This is a jobs bill. In addition, the Ohio Department of Transportation has $164.3 million worth of projects that are ready to go. These are projects ready to go if the money were there. The 128 projects on the shelf include major reconstruction, resurfacing, bridge replacement and repair, traffic signals, signs, culvert construction, guardrail rebuilding, pavement marking, and preventive maintenance. If this funding were made available, approximately 1,300 direct and some almost 3,500 indirect jobs would be created in the State.

Finally, I have several comments about the environmental, planning, and project delivery provisions of the bill. As chairman of the Clean Air Subcommittee and the past chairman of the Transportation Subcommittee, I understand full well the importance and significance of the overlap between highway planning and air quality.

When I began my term as Governor, 28 Ohio counties were in nonattainment for ozone. I spent considerable effort to get them into attainment. In addition to working with utilities to reduce their emissions, I implemented an automobile emissions testing program called E-check to help bring Ohio's counties into compliance. At that time, Ohio was one of only a few States to have an enhanced auto emissions test in its urban areas.

That all came about because we were trying to comply with the Clean Air Act. This program was a success. According to the 1997 EPA report, volatile organic compounds and nitrogen oxides, which are a major component in the formation of ozone and are emitted by cars and trucks, have been dramatically reduced from 1970 to 1996. Emissions of VOCs were reduced by 49 percent, NO_x by 26 percent. Additionally, air toxins in Ohio were reduced from approximately 381 million pounds in 1987 to 144 million pounds in 1996.

Due to these reductions, all 88 counties have met the national air quality standards. But this has not been an easy battle. The E-Check program has been criticized because it required vehicle owners in smoggy areas to pay for annual emissions testing and to make the necessary repairs. Due to its unpopularity, Ohio's General Assembly passed a bill revoking the program. However, I stood up for the program and vetoed the bill because I believed it was an important and necessary step to cleaning up Ohio's air. That veto, by the way, was not overridden.

I believe hard choices such as these are important. The conformity program has helped encourage cleaner air, and transportation planning has benefited from coordination with the air quality planners. As requested by Federal, State, and local officials, this bill makes important improvements in the conformity process by synchronizing planning and conformity timelines and requirements. So I congratulate the chief sponsors again.

I am also pleased that this bill modifies the Congestion Mitigation and Air Quality Improvement Program, called CMAQ, to include the nonattainment areas for the fine particulate matter standard—PM_{2.5}—and the 8-hour ozone standard. EPA will make designations for both these standards this year, and these areas will need all the help they can get to attain the new standards.

While these are two areas in which I believe we have made progress, I am a little disappointed with the metropolitan and statewide planning and transportation project delivery process in this bill. I don't think these provisions will do much to expedite the project delivery process and, quite frankly, actually create a more burdensome process than under current law.

As a former Governor, I was frustrated at how long it took to do a highway project from beginning to end. As Senator, I have wanted to do something meaningful on this issue, since I was chairman of the Subcommittee on Transportation and Infrastructure and, in fact, we held a number of oversight hearings on the implementation of the streamlining provisions included in TEA-21. One of my top priorities for this reauthorization is to enact efficient transportation project delivery that will actually expedite the project delivery process.

Regulations implementing these provisions were disappointing and later scrapped. I regret that we have wasted an opportunity to realize the benefits of the expedited process that was envisioned 6 years ago, the 1309 process. In other words, we talked 6 years ago, in the TEA-21, that we were going to streamline the process and put a provision in the law that said we should do it. After 6 years, fundamentally nothing has happened—after 6 years.

The transportation project delivery process provisions in this bill that we are going to consider, as I say, are disappointing because I think they are going to do little to expedite the project delivery process, given that the bill requires State and local planning agencies to meet process burdens that are even more burdensome than in the current law.

Do you hear me? They are more burdensome than in the current law, which we were trying to change and improve during the last 6 years.

I hope we can fix these provisions on the floor with the support of AASHTO, ARTBA, AGC, and the American Highway Users, and many State and local government organizations.

Furthermore, one more thing I am concerned about is one of the most significant elements of environmental streamlining missing from this bill, and that is to reform the process known as section 4(f). This process causes more delay in my State than any other planning or environment review requirement. I will bring that situation to the attention of my colleagues during debate on this bill.

This is a good bill. I urge my colleagues to support S. 1072. The current surface transportation authorization expires at the end of this month. People are waiting. They want it passed. They want to see the jobs. The time to act is now.

Nationwide, this bill would create 2.8 million new jobs, including 106,000 new jobs in Ohio. This is important job-creation legislation that will put hard-working Americans back to work and jump-start our sluggish economy, especially States like Ohio, where our economy is still struggling.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I see the minority leader. I certainly defer to the minority leader.

Mr. DASCHLE. I thank the distinguished Senator from Oklahoma. I am happy to accommodate the order at whatever time someone may come to the floor. I have a few comments to make as we begin this debate.

Let me express our gratitude to the two managers of the bill and other Members of the Senate who have put so much effort into this legislation. We have come a long way. I am grateful to them for producing a bill that merits strong bipartisan support.

The debate on this bill is long overdue. We have already lost 90,000 jobs by our inability to pass the bill last October. At a time when we have lost 3 million jobs over the last several years, we cannot afford to keep losing jobs. We had the first meager job increase just last month with 1,000 jobs across the entire Nation. The importance we can put on job creation with this legislation should not be underestimated.

Now that the Senate has begun the debate on the bill, we need to ensure it goes forward in a bipartisan fashion—the way this institution has worked on legislation similar to this over its long history.

If we ultimately pass a transportation bill into law, it is expected to create 830,000 jobs over the next 6 years. These would be good jobs for Americans, jobs in engineering, in the environment, in construction—good jobs in all States.

In addition to jobs, there is another critical reason to be moving forward on this bill. Yesterday, there was a lot of talk about the $520 billion Federal budget deficit, a very troubling figure. But there is another deficit we have not talked much about yet and that is in our Nation's infrastructure. Our Nation's transportation infrastructure—our roads, highways, transit, ports, and rail lines—is a thread that holds our Nation together to make it possible to have a free and open society, which is suffering a remarkable deficit, one that can be addressed with the passage of this legislation.

Our transportation infrastructure impacts what we do every single day, and most of the time it is simply taken for granted and unrecognized.

Over 30 percent of our roads and highways are now considered in poor or in substandard condition. Over 30,000 of our Nation's bridges are functionally obsolete or structurally deficient. The transportation bill reported out of the Environment and Public Works Committee will address this infrastructure deficit.

Likewise, we need to ensure this transportation bill is intermodal and includes provisions to improve the conditions of rails and ports. Rail lines in the United States alone require $7 billion each and every year just to maintain them. Our Nation's transit programs are a critical and interconnected portion of our transportation infrastructure.

I am particularly pleased Finance Chairman GRASSLEY and Ranking Member BAUCUS included as a part of the financing provisions reported from the committee yesterday a provision which treats transit in a similar manner to highways. It was the right decision to go forward with some symmetry on transit and highways. Both receive funds from the highway trust funds. I applaud Senators GRASSLEY and BAUCUS for doing so.

I am pleased we are finally working on this bill in the Senate. As I said, Senators INHOFE and JEFFORDS need to be complimented, along with Senators BOND and REID, for the hard work and leadership they have shown in getting us to this point. I look forward to moving ahead in a bipartisan fashion to do not only what is needed but what is required to address our transportation infrastructure deficit.

If we go forward in that fashion with that goal, we will not only improve the condition of our infrastructure but create hundreds of thousands of needed jobs and improve the condition of our country, as well.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ENZI). The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I thank the minority leader for the excellent statement. We have a new chart on job opportunities which talks about the cumulative effect when a job is offered—say a construction job on a bridge or highway—and what that does to the rest of the economy. It is about 2.8 million jobs as opposed to some of the figures we have been using, one-fourth of that number. It is very significant.

The Senator from Ohio gave an excellent statement also. The State of Ohio, in terms of new job opportunities, is No. 5 in the Nation under this bill. The Senator has done an excellent job. I am sure the people of Ohio are very appreciative of the job opportunities that will be there as a result of the legislation we hope to pass in the next few days.

The Senator from Ohio, who has vast experience in clean air, was a breath of fresh air when he came in, someone who really has the answers. He was the chairman of the Clean Air Committee of the National Association of Governors. His expertise is very much appreciated.

Senator JEFFORDS and others have already mentioned the difficulties in putting together a formula, considering the fast-growing States, with a ceiling there. We have some of the small States, such as that of the Presiding Officer, in terms of population, which have to be considered because even though it is a small population there are a lot of roads that have to be cared for. Taking into consideration all of these considerations was not easy.

However, when we compare what we have done with what has been done in the past, I am very proud of it. The equity bonus program replaces the minimum guarantees.

Now, I have been criticized for the way I simplify my explanation of minimum guarantees, but it is pretty accurate; that is, we took a percentage of the total amount of money and gave it to each State until we got 60 votes, not caring too much what happened after that. We took into consideration all the issues we have been talking about.

The bill does four things, essentially. It takes care of the donor States. I have been part of a donor State for as long as I can remember, certainly as long as I have been in the Senate. We were down below 80 percent, and as mentioned by the Senator from Ohio, ISTEA, then TEA-21, and now with this bill, we are up to 95 percent.

Streamlining provisions is very important. It is important we have money to spend on road construction, but also we can get the maximum out of the dollars we do spend. We go a long way to making this a reality.

The third major area is that of safety. We have talked about the number of deaths on the highways. It has to be addressed. That is why we named this SAFETEA, with many safety provisions, at the same time allowing the States to come, recognizing they know more about their States than we do in Washington.

And lastly, the area of freight movement.

With that, it is my desire throughout the day today when there are not speakers to be heard on the highway bill to go through this, section by section, and see specifically how these things are handled.

If any Members who come to the floor want to be heard on the highway bill, I will suspend. Of course, we will break in 20 minutes for our policy luncheon.

I start with section 1101, the authorization of appropriations. We are talking about $255 billion in contract authority over the next 6 years. This was difficult to come up with. At the same time, we have $56.5 billion contract authority in transit, for a total of $311 billion, considerably more than the Budget Committee originally came up with, considerably more than in the President's budget.

And we have received, only yesterday, the President's budget message. I think, however—and I did talk to the President yesterday—when he realizes fully the great work the Finance Committee did—the fact that we now have the offsets necessary to do this without increasing the deficit—the President is going to be more supportive than he has been in the past.

So this represents an overall increase of 31 percent over TEA-21. The link between a robust economy and a strong transportation infrastructure is undeniable. The movement of people and goods is one of the foremost indicators of a growing economy and job creation.

The President recommended a funding level of $200 billion for reauthorization. Given the critical infrastructure and safety needs of the program, we thought it imperative to authorize a higher level of funding for the coming 6 years.

I recall a study that was made—and I do not have the exact figures, but the amount of money even that we are suggesting right now merely maintains where we are today. It was discussed by the minority leader that we have a bridge crisis, and I was wanting to interrupt him to say that my State has the distinction of having the largest percentage of functionally obsolete bridges. We are hoping to correct that with this bill.

On the other end of the spectrum, the House Transportation and Infrastructure Committee has introduced a bill funding highways and transit at $375 billion, which is considerably over our $311 billion. However, achieving this astronomical figure would require raising gas taxes by 13.5 cents per gallon during the next 6 years, in addition to utilizing a number of other costly new financing measures.

The vote before you today recognizes the realities of available revenues without the need for increasing gas taxes, and, I might add, or increasing the deficit. It is designed to make the most of every available dollar to produce better and safer roads by creating thousands of new jobs every year and stimulating the national economy.

In that regard, the Department of Transportation estimates that every $1 billion of Federal transportation funds translates into 47,500 jobs. By the way, that is not a fictitious number. We have had several studies that were done. We realize it is accurate. However, when you say new job opportunities, it is about four times that. If someone takes a construction job, that person is buying more goods and services, and that means manufacturing is going to go up and there are going to be many other jobs. So this figure is a very conservative figure.

We estimate that the SAFETEA will increase the size of the job market by 700,000 but create over 2 million new employment opportunities. I think that is what we need to be talking about.

Section 1102 is an obligation ceiling. The principle that was used to develop obligation limitations was to minimize the gap between the OBLIM or obligation limitations in contract authority levels. This empowers the States to utilize as much available contract authority as possible while still providing them maximum flexibility.

We were able to achieve a total obligation limitation of $238 billion. This is what was recommended in the Reid-Bond amendment that carried this Chamber with 79 votes. This is consistent with that amendment to the budget resolution. So there was a lot of hard work from the Finance Committee and the leadership of Chairman GRASSLEY and Ranking Member BAUCUS, and I thank them for the great work they did.

Section 1103 is the apportionment section. In addition to the overall increases experienced by all programs, the bill makes important changes to the apportionment of a few specific programs. Under TEA-21, the administrative expenses of the Federal Highway Administration were funded as a takedown from the various core programs. This bill recognizes the separate importance of costs associated with the administration of the overall highway program. Therefore, the bill funds Federal highway administrative expenses as its own separate apportionment protecting the authority of the individual core programs or the autonomy of the individual core programs and the administrative fund itself.

Of the amount designated for program administration, the Secretary of Transportation is also given the authority to transfer an appropriate amount for the administrative expenses of the Appalachian Highway Development System.

As a result of the 2000 census, 46 new metropolitan planning organizations or MPOs have been established throughout the country and are now eligible for Federal transportation planning funding.

We have devoted a lot of time and a lot of attention in this bill to planning as well as to assisting States in doing what they do best, also, which we will get to in a later section. To respond to this expanded need, we have increased the program set-aside for MPOs from 1 percent under ISTEA to 1.5 percent, along with the overall increase in program funds which will help to address the growing transportation planning needs.

TEA-21 used a minimum guarantee. I have been talking about this, and that really constituted a percentage. And it is just not the way this should be done. We wanted it in our formulas, and we wanted it in an attempt to get our donor States up to 90.5 percent. We used a minimum guarantee calculation to guarantee that States received back at least 90.5 percent—that is what they did in TEA-21—90.5 percent of their percentage contribution to the highway trust fund.

The Minimum Guarantee Program was driven by the political distribution known as the 1104 table. I will not go into that because this is somewhat redundant. We have talked about this in the past. It was purely politically driven.

To contrast that, the new Equity Bonus Program does away with the table in TEA-21 which determined each State's percentage share of the total highway fund, the political table to which I have been referring. Rather than have a State's return be set by a politically driven table, the Equity Bonus Program determines each State's return by first relying on the program distribution formulas. The equity bonus calculation identifies a justifiable nexus in equity between the underlying formulas and responsible balanced growth for donor and donee States alike.

If a State fails to reach the minimum return in any year based on the formulas, that State would receive an equity bonus award in addition to their formula. It should bring them up to the required level. I cannot think of a better and more equitable way of doing this.

While we allow the formulas to work under the new Equity Bonus Program, we also recognized that there would be some inequities if we allowed the formulas to be the sole factor in distributing dollars to the States. In order to increase the minimum rate of return for donor States, while ensuring an equitable transition for donee States, rates of return are subject to an annual growth ceiling to smooth out the phase-in of the increased minimum returns.

This accomplishes two goals: It keeps the cost of the Equity Bonus Program affordable; secondly, it ensures that donee States are still able to grow so that there are no States with growth less than 10 percent in dollars. I repeat that. Of all 50 States, every State gets at least an increase of 10 percent.

Now, I have heard from a lot of the people whose State falls into the different categories. One is the category of a fast-growing State, and, obviously, they would prefer that the ceilings not be there so they would bump into them. But if you do not do that, then you would hear equally from some of the older States, such as New York and Pennsylvania, that would have to pay the price if we did not have some type of a ceiling.

For donor States, the effect of the growth ceiling is that a State with a rate of return above 90.5 percent in 2003 will reach a 95 percent return sooner than a State that received only a 90.5 percent return, or below, in 2003. The closer a State was to 95 percent in 2003, the sooner it will reach 95 percent.

Conversely, those States at 90.5 percent in 2003, such as my State of Oklahoma, would likely take longer to reach 95 percent. The time it takes a State to reach 95 percent depends on how much equity bonus funding the State receives and how much faster than the national average that State is increasing its contributions to the highway trust fund. That is taken into consideration as a part of this formula.

Recognizing that States with a lower tax basis due to low population, such as the State of Wyoming and others, or low income face an added challenge of maintaining the transportation infrastructure, the bill sets their TEA-21 rate of return as a minimum for future years.

Section 1105 is the revenue aligned budget authority, or RABA, as we have referred to it. The huge 2003 negative adjustment in the revenue aligned budget authority made it clear that some changes were needed in the RABA calculation in order to provide greater stability and more accurate predictions and less fluctuation in coming years. This is true. The States can get so much more for their dollars if they can predict into the future how they are going to use those dollars and what those dollars are going to amount to.

As I have indicated before, I believe the underlying principle of RABA is an important fiscal policy that highway expenditures should be tied to highway trust fund revenues.

The bill modifies the RABA calculations so that annual funding level adjustments are less dependent on future anticipated receipts and more dependent upon actual receipts to the highway trust fund. If the RABA adjustment in any fiscal year is negative, the amount of contract authority apportioned to the State for that year will be reduced by an amount equal to the negative RABA. However, if the balance of the highway trust fund is greater than $6 billion, then there will be no negative RABA adjustments.

Section 1201 is the infrastructure performance and maintenance program, or IPAM. There is a lot of interest in this program, obviously. The IPAM program is intended for ready-to-go projects that States can undertake and complete within a relatively short timeframe. As a result, States are given 6 months to obligate IPAM funds. We designed this discretionary program to promote projects that resulted in immediate benefits for the highway system's condition and performance while avoiding long-term commitments of funds. The program also provides further economic stimulus to the economy and provides a way to aid in spending down balances in the highway trust fund.

That is very important right now. We are very sensitive to the somewhat job crisis. We have seen our economy on its way up again. However, there is a lag between economic recovery and the jobs. IPAM is going to give more construction sooner, provide more jobs and more jobs sooner. Then, of course, when you put the new job opportunities factor to that, that is going to be very meaningful to job recovery in America.

The States may obligate funds for projects eligible under Interstate Maintenance, National Highway System, Surface Transportation System, Highway Safety Improvements Program, Congestion Mitigation and Air Quality Improvement, or CMAC, and the Highway Bridge Program. Eligible projects under IPAM include the preservation, maintenance, or improvement of existing highway infrastructure and operational improvements to address recurring highway congestion.

Section 1202 is the future of the surface transportation system title. In order to be prepared for future reauthorizations of this legislation, we require the Secretary of Transportation to perform a long-term investigation into the surface transportation infrastructure needs of the Nation.

Specifically, the bill directs the Secretary to look at: the current condition and performance of the interstate system; the future of the interstate system in 15 years or 30 years or 50 years; expected demographics and business uses that impact the surface transportation system; the effect of changing vehicle types, modes of transportation, traffic volumes, and fleet size and weights—we have seen such a dramatic change in the types of vehicles that we drive that we never could have anticipated back when we were putting together ISTEA or one of the previous programs—possible design changes; rural, urban, interregional, and national needs; improvements in emergency preparedness; real-time performance data collection; and future funding needs and potential approaches to collect those funds.

What we are saying is, we are trying to prepare for the future. It is important what we do for the next 6 years, as we go through this reauthorization. I think we have done a good job with that. But things will happen 6 years from now that we cannot anticipate.

That is what the Secretary of Transportation will be looking at and coming back with, so we will be able to anticipate some of the things we will be looking at 6 years from now.

A very important section is 1203. That is the freight transportation gateways, freight intermodal connections. Freight movement in America is expected to grow dramatically in volume and value over the coming decades. Throughout the reauthorization hearings, the Environment and Public Works Committee heard concerns about inadequate freight facilities, insufficient capacity, and insufficient connections.

The GAO recently released a report, dated October 2003, a little over a month ago, regarding freight transportation, recommending strategies needed to address planning and financing limitations. The report noted that the major challenges to freight mobility all shared a common theme—congestion, including overcrowded highways, freight specific check points.

Additionally, the GAO reported two main limitations that stakeholders encounter in addressing these challenges. The first related to the limited visibility that freight projects receive in the planning and prioritization process. S. 1072 directly addresses this problem by creating a freight transportation coordinator at the State level to facilitate public and private collaboration in developing solutions to freight transportation and freight gateway problems. This is one more area where we will have an increased emphasis on States.

The bill also ensures that intermodal freight transportation needs are integrated into project development and planning processes. The second limitation that the GAO found was inhibiting stakeholders was that Federal funding programs tend to dedicate funds to a single mode of transportation or non-freight purpose, thus limiting freight project eligibility among some programs. S. 1072 deals with this problem as well as making intermodal projects eligible for STP and NHS funding.

The Freight Gateways program found in this bill promotes intermodal improvements for freight movement through significant trade gateways, ports and hubs, and intermodal connections to the national highway system. States and localities are encouraged to adopt new financing strategies to leverage State, local, and private investments in freight transportation gateways, thus maximizing the impact of each Federal dollar.

The Freight Gateways program is funded from a set-aside of 2 percent of each State's NHS apportionment. However, in the spirit of State flexibility and ensuring that funds go to the areas of greatest need, a State is not required to spend the 2 percent of their NHS apportionment if they can certify to the Secretary that their intermodal connections are adequate. I think this is a recognition that the States do know more about their needs than the Federal Government. That is one of the trends of this.

I know we are ready to recess. I yield to my colleague Senator JEFFORDS for the remainder of the time.

Mr. JEFFORDS. I will take very little time. I commend the chairman again and all the staffs, his and mine, for the incredible amount of work they have put into this effort.

Mr. INHOFE. They are even talking to each other now.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Yes, right. It is fantastic. We know also that we have a long way to go. The work you have done and my staff has done, all of us, has placed us in a great position to start. But now it is the opportunity for all the Members to check carefully to see how their States are doing and maybe make some improvements. We know we will have a number of amendments. We have a long way to go, but I think we are off to a great start. I expect we will have a great finish.

Mr. INHOFE. I would agree with those comments. However, I think we have the basic formula, and this is something for which I am going to be fighting because once you break into this and change the formula, that is going to change every State. That is something we have spent over a year now working out to get as much equity as possible. We look forward to the input from Members who are not on the committee.

Mr. JEFFORDS. They should all have the opportunity, and I know we will provide it. I think we have done a great job, so there should not be too much problem.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, 12:30 has arrived and we are planning to break.

RECESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the hour of 12:30 having arrived, the Senate stands in recess until the hour of 2:15 p.m.

Thereupon, at 12:30 p.m., the Senate recessed until 2:19 p.m. and reassembled when called to order by the Presiding Officer (Mr. VOINOVICH).

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I know this is a day when we are having discussions about the highway bill, the transportation measure, and the highway portion of it. I appreciate the opportunity to share with my colleagues some of my thoughts on the work that has gone on. As I indicated yesterday, there will be a number of very important amendments. We hope to overcome the technical difficulties which make it impossible for Members to get to their offices so that they can present the amendments.

We have heard from a number of Members who are concerned because they are not getting enough in the bill, but, frankly, this bill has much in it to commend, and we are looking forward to working in a cooperative manner to get this bill passed.

We have lost valuable time, obviously, as we had to get cloture yesterday and we are working under the constraints of the ricin presence today. So we are a bit delayed.

I reiterate, I appreciate and commend the great work of Senator INHOFE, chairman of the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee, the ranking member, Senator JEFFORDS, and my partner on the Transportation Subcommittee, my ranking member, Senator HARRY REID of Nevada. They have done an excellent job.

I believe the committee reported out a bill, S. 1072, the Safe, Accountable, Flexible, and Efficient Transportation Equity Act of 2003, which we know as SAFETEA, which accomplishes several very important goals.

First, safety. Safety in this authorization is for the first time given a prominent position, being elevated to a core program. Our bill mirrors the administration's proposal continuing our commitment to our motoring public's safety. This is accomplished by providing much needed funding to reduce highway injuries and fatalities, all without the use of mandates.

A key component of the bill before us will go a long way to saving lives by providing funds to States to address safety needs at hazardous locations, sections, and elements. This includes roadside obstacles and unmarked or poorly marked roads that may constitute a danger to motorists, bicyclists, pedestrians, and other highway users.

We know in my own home State of Missouri that inadequate roads delay, deny, and derail economic development opportunities. But most important, inadequate highways kill people. We have more than three deaths a day on Missouri's highways. I think a large number—at least a third and perhaps more—of those are attributed to inadequate infrastructure.

When there is traffic of 10,000, 15,000 to 20,000 cars a day on a narrow two-lane road, there are going to be people passing when they should not and they run into other people head on.

I have lost friends. I know too many families who grieve the loss of loved ones. I can point out roads in Missouri where one can drive not very far and see white cross after white cross put up as a reminder that some lost their lives on those roads. They lost their lives because the traffic was heavy. Very often, someone not from the area or even not from the State has come in and is not familiar with the road and they pass where they should not. They meet someone else head on, and that is a tragedy. Several weeks ago, I attended the funeral of the husband of a former staffer of mine who has been incapacitated. He was killed on a two-lane road. It was a terrible tragedy and an unspeakable loss.

We heard numerous testimony from the administration that nearly 42,000 people are killed on our roads and highways each year. I think the bill reflects a continued commitment to making not only investments in our infrastructure but also to the general safety and welfare of our constituents.

The second feature of this bill which is very important is equity. While previous authorizations have talked about equity, our bill carefully balances the needs of the donor States while also recognizing the needs of the donee States.

For those who may not be familiar with the terminology, donor States such as Missouri and Oklahoma are ones that get less than a dollar back for every dollar they put in. Donee States are ones that get back more than a dollar for every dollar they put in. We are seeking to get a better return on our money, realizing that in this bill we cannot overcome the inequities between the donor and donee States.

There are many sections in the bill I am proud of supporting. One of the most important facts is all donor States will receive a 95 percent rate of return at least by the end of the authorization. These States include Arizona, California, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, New Jersey, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, and Washington. There are 24 States in total. These have been getting less than 95 cents in the past and will be getting up to 95 cents.

My home State of Missouri, like many of the donor States mentioned, has some of the worst roads in the Nation. According to a survey, Missouri has the third worst roads. Fifty-nine percent of its roads are either in poor or mediocre condition, requiring immediate repair or reconstruction. Missouri also has the second worst bridges in the Nation.

I guess I ought to remind people the one State that ranks even worse than Missouri is our neighboring State, Oklahoma, the State of the chairman of our committee. So obviously we have an interest in bringing about some repair and some safety improvements.

During the reauthorization of TEA-21, the previous currently extended highway authorization, donor States did not think it was possible to achieve a 95 percent rate of return. Under our proposal, we are able to get them there—get all of us there. However, I am aware some of the donor States are concerned that they hit the growth caps and they do not achieve a 95 percent return in the first year. We were unable to bring all donor States up as early as we might have wished due to budgetary constraints and balancing the needs of the donor States with the needs of donee States. For this reason, as the donor States grow, the donee States see a gradual decline to bring greater equity between the States.

I am proud to tell all Senators from all States, however, that every State will grow at least 10 percent over the funding provided in the current bill TEA-21. This new bill, SAFETEA, also addresses several environmental issues such as the need to ease the transition under the new air quality standards. The conformity process is better aligned with air quality planning, as well as streamlining the project delivery process by providing the necessary tools to reduce or eliminate unnecessary delays during the environmental review stage.

The third aspect of the bill which I think is very important is there is a sufficient level of growth. The administration proposed, in my view, an insufficient level of growth for our Nation's aging infrastructure. The reason for offering the Bond-Reid amendment, which was adopted on the budget amendment in this body with 79 votes last year, was because the administration's SAFETEA proposal came in at only $200 billion for highways. During the last year's budget debate, I, along with Senator REID, offered an amendment to fund highways at $255 billion over 6 years, and that was supported by a vote of 79 to 21. I am pleased to report that the bill we have before us follows the Bond-Reid amendment providing a 31 percent increase in funding over TEA-21. While this is not as high as some might have wanted, we are able to achieve this goal without raising fuel taxes.

Last, I think it is important to note that this is a jobs bill. The Department of Transportation estimates that every $1 billion in new Federal investment creates 47,500 jobs, or more. Accordingly, in 2009 our comprehensive 6-year bill at $255 billion will sustain over 2 million jobs.

According to the Associated General Contractors, the same $1 billion investment yields $500 million in new orders from manufacturing and $500 million spread through other sectors of the economy. Construction pay averages, at $19 per hour, 23 percent higher than the private sector average. Failure to enact a 6-year bill will deprive us of the 90,000 jobs that would be created.

Another accomplishment of our package is it will ensure that transportation projects are built more quickly because environmental stakeholders will be brought to the table sooner, environmental issues will be raised earlier, and the public will have better opportunities to shape the projects. Projects more sensitive to environmental concerns will move through a more structured environmental review process more efficiently and with fewer delays. The bill also ensures transportation projects will not make air worse in areas with poor air quality while giving local transportation planners more tools and elbow room to meet their Federal air quality requirements.

This bill will put transportation planning on a regular 4-year cycle, require air quality checks for projects large enough to be regionally significant, and reduce the requirements for other projects.

In addition to the benefits of this bill, I want to discuss a couple of specific items. I think these benefits are clear, and I think they commend the bill to anyone who is interested in good highways, safety, and jobs.

There is an amendment that was adopted in the committee which I find troubling. It was adopted in the committee without my support. The Highway Stormwater Discharge Mitigation Program requires 2 percent set-asides from highways. That is about $1 billion. It is a mandate that tells States what they have to do with their highway money.

I was hoping we would not get into mandates such as that. It is a massive environmental program. As the occupant of the chair knows, there are tremendous needs for environmental investment, particularly in clean water, safe drinking water, and other water needs. But this is a highway bill and I do not think it makes sense to tell all the States that they are going to have to set aside 2 percent of the funds apportioned to each State under the surface transportation program for use only on storm water mitigation activities in a new section 176.

I think the bill as introduced more than adequately addresses the issue of contaminated runoff from highways while also protecting States' flexibility to manage their programs to meet their individual needs. The bill as introduced increases State flexibilities and opportunities to address storm water pollution in two ways.

First, it makes storm water projects eligible under the National Highway System program, whereas under current law these projects are only eligible under the STP program.

Second, the underlying bill extends eligibility to storm water mitigation projects that are not tied to ongoing reconstruction, rehabilitation, resurfacing or restoration, only to an existing Federal aid highway. Therefore, the States have the flexibility. The States with storm water problems will know they have those problems and they will have the flexibility to direct the money to storm water. They have much greater flexibility. The bill as introduced allows those States that choose to do so to use their highway money for storm water. The States that have other means for addressing storm water and need the money for roads can use it for roads.

I think we ought to address the problems on water issues, clean water and safe drinking water, but let's stay with the highway bill and not try to shoe-horn a new environmental program into it.

While roads certainly contribute to contaminated runoff, the appropriate place to address storm water runoff is in the context of other clean water programs through the water infrastructure bill. If gas receipts increase, it could exceed the amount we provide EPA to address all other clean water programs combined without ever assessing if this is the best place to devote funds.

To me, this could be a serious problem for States where there is not storm water. We have storm water problems in Missouri. We just need the flexibility. We don't need a mandate. There are other States that do not have storm water problems and they should not have to deal with it.

Another item that is important: Many of my colleagues will recall that in 1974, specific Federal money for grade crossing safety was first established, the Rail/Highway Grade Crossing Safety Program. A determination was made by Congress that at least one-half of the funds provided for the crossing program should be utilized for the installation of protective devices—flashing lights, gates, bells, and the circuitry that operates these devices.

The rationale for these provisions was to assure that the constrained funds made available by Congress would not just be “saved” to install costly grade separations. Instead, Congress wanted to assure that the funds would enhance safety in the broadest possible way through the installation and upgrade of crossing warning devices at many more locations would be possible if the funds were reserved mostly for crossing separations, particularly in rural areas of the country.

The committee adopted an amendment in markup that did three things. It increased funding for the section 130 program from $100 million to $200 million. It included specific funding for other hazards and grade separations. But it also eliminated the current law provision that requires at least one-half of the section 130 funds be available for protective devices.

In an effort to assure that the maximum level of safety be realized at the highest number of grade crossings throughout the United States, the current law provision of section 130 that says at least one-half the programs be used for protective devices I think should be restored to the program.

The section 130 program has a very credible safety performance record. When measured as a percentage of reduction in accident fatalities since its inception, the grade crossing program has been the most effective highway safety program. This record of accomplishment certainly justifies maintaining the existing programmatic structure of the program. I hope the Senate will be willing to restore the current law requirement for one-half of the section 130 program for grade crossing protective devices.

Let me just tell you my experience in Missouri. There are 3,879 public highway/rail crossings and 3,011 private highway/rail crossings. Only 1,629 of the public highway/rail crossings in Missouri are equipped with active warning devices, flashing light signals and/or gates—about 42 percent. The remaining 58 percent are referred to as passive crossings and are equipped with crossbuck signs only.

Missouri installed 212 active warning devices between 1997 and 2003 and spent nearly $24 million on these projects from section 130 funds.

Currently, the Highway/Rail Crossing Safety Program in Missouri is required by the Federal Highway Administration to spend $1,999,000 annually for protective devices and the same amount for hazard elimination. The protective device money can only be used to install lights, gates, signs, and/or pavement markings at highway/rail crossings. The highway hazard funds have more flexibility to them and can be used to build a grade separation, close a crossing, improve the roadway at or near a crossing closure in order to reroute traffic.

It is important to maintain funds in the hazard elimination category so our Department of Transportation and departments of transportation around the country can continue to work with local communities on crossing closure projects and corridor projects.

Mr. President, I thank the Chair for giving me the opportunity to address these vitally important programs. I see our other members, leadership members of the EPW committee, are here to address these issues.

With that, I will yield the floor and thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, it is my understanding we do not have anyone to speak on the highway bill. There are several people who desire to speak on other matters. We will have no objection, although if we get back on the bill we would like to enjoy some type of priority.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, actually my intention was to speak in favor of the highway bill and compliment our colleagues for the construction of this legislation, but I did also want to comment on several other issues. I will be relatively brief. If others present themselves to the Senate who wish to speak at length on the highway bill, I will accommodate that.

At a time when our economy has had a pretty tough time, the one certain way to produce jobs is through a highway bill. This is the kind of legislation that invests in the infrastructure of our country, and we know exactly its consequences. It produces jobs and it produces them very quickly all across this country. The construction and the maintenance of roads and bridges and the basic investment in infrastructure in this country is a certain way not only to expand the economy but to expand our job base.

In recent years, we have had a slowdown in the economy. Now we see what is called a “recovery,” but the recovery does not include a recovery of U.S. jobs. That is a major deficiency and a serious problem. I believe the legislation brought to the Senate today that will be debated for some while dealing with a new highway bill is important legislation for this country.

At a time when we have record budget deficits, if we were really producing an accounting system that worked the way it should work, most Members of the Senate would recognize this bill is funded by money that is put in a trust fund. When people drive up to the gas pumps and fill their tank, they are paying an excise tax. There is a specific purpose for this excise tax, and that is to improve the roads, bridges, and infrastructure of the country. It is important to understand we raised the money for this, by and large, through an excise tax.

I know there is debate about formulas and other issues, but, in my judgment, Senator INHOFE and Senator JEFFORDS have done extraordinary work in bringing this bill to the Senate. I like the bill and intend to support the basic construct of what they have done.

While I mention this bill is largely paid for with excise taxes, the tax on gasoline and other similar excise taxes—when you fill up your tank you are paying a tax and expect that to be invested in America's roads and infrastructure—we have in the rest of Government, in a budget released yesterday by the President, serious deficiencies.

THE PRESIDENT'S BUDGET

Let me mention in the construct of discussing various spending issues, the budget released yesterday is a roadmap and a series of choices by the President. I heard the President say last week before he released this budget that, with respect to Federal budget deficits, he needed action by Congress. It is important to note that the budget deficit requested by the President in his own submission yesterday was the largest deficit in this country's history of budgets submitted by Presidents. This fiscal year, we are now told by the President and by his own budget in this fiscal year, the budget deficit will be over $520 billion. That, clearly, is a failure of fiscal policy and a failure of choices.

I have said repeatedly the President's construct of fiscal policy just does not add up. I come from a small town and a small school, but mathematics works the same way in a small school or big school as in a big town or a small town: Two and two equals four. In budgets where we talk about trillions, two and two still equals four. We cannot increase defense spending substantially, increase spending on homeland security substantially, cut taxes again and again and again, and tell the American people it will all work out; that we will just grow sufficiently; and it will all be just fine.

It is not all just fine. In the middle of all of this we ran into a recession, an attack against this country on 9/11, the requirement to wage a war against terrorism. But then at the same time the President is saying, let's increase spending and let's cut our revenue.

The slowest member of my high school class would have understood where that ends up. It ends up in the largest deficits in history. The $520-plus billion deficit is, actually, by the way, a faulty number as well because that is taking all the Social Security trust funds and using them to show that number. The Social Security trust funds also belong over here. They are required to pay for Social Security benefits in the future and they are being saved for that purpose, and we ought not include them in this operating budget. For that reason, the current budget deficit is somewhere around $660 billion this year. That is the amount of money that our children and their children will be obligated to pay in the future.

There is an urgency and a seriousness that I don't see represented in the budget the President sent to us yesterday. In his budget, he proposes a very large Federal budget deficit. But his budget also says, I will request zero spending for operations in Iraq and Afghanistan. At the moment, we know we spend $5 billion a month for operations in Iraq and Afghanistan, a little over $1.25 billion a week. Five billion a month is $60 billion a year. And what does the President say it will cost in this budget? Zero. So this budget is not an honest reflection of what he is going to spend, either.

Frankly, I don't understand that. I don't understand why a budget comes with no plan to fix the serious and urgent problems and, in fact, will miss the mark on what we will actually spend by well over $200 to $300 billion.

Last year at this time the President said he thought the Federal budget deficit for the year we are in would be $307 billion. Well, it is not. It is well over $200 billion more than that 1 year later.

My point is, this is off the track and out of kilter. It needs leadership from the President and the Congress to fix it. It starts with the first step, which is a budget document that honestly reflects what is going to happen to the best of our ability. The budget document sent to us, regrettably, is a political budget, not a budget document. We need to do better than that.

On the issue of spending, I also want to discuss the February 2, Wall Street Journal article, page 1, "Halliburton Hits Snafu in Billing on Kuwait." It says that as a contractor for the Federal Government, where the taxpayers pay the bill, Halliburton, was billing the taxpayers for 42,042 meals every day but they were only serving 14,000 meals a day. What is it called? A "snafu." They are overbilling us by $16 million and it is called a snafu.

I am sorry, not in my hometown. This is either the sloppiest accounting in the world by a contractor that should not be doing the work or it is cheating. One or the other. It is not a snafu.

The fact is, we are throwing money at these problems. We are contracting with companies without bids, and the result is the American people are being overcharged. This, too, is contributing to overspending and an increase in Federal budget deficits.

Let me make one more point about overspending and budgets. The one area in which the President recommended an increase in funding—I was surprised, as I was looking through the small details, cuts in funding and things that affect Indian children's health, for example, or Indian children's education—the one area where the President recommended some increased funding was in the wild horses and burros program. He actually put a few million extra in that program.

I was looking at that. We have 39,000 wild horses and burros, and I like horses—by the way, I grew up raising horses—39,000 wild horses and burros. Do you know how much the program costs to maintain wild horses and burros? Forty-one million dollars requested by the President. That is over $1,000 per horse or burro. They could have their own apartment in my hometown for that.

I don't understand. This is all about choices and priorities. I just pulled one little issue where increased spending exists, wild horses and burros.

THE FOOD AND DRUG ADMINISTRATION AND THE COST OF PRESCRIPTION DRUGS

Mr. President, let me finally make a point about something that was announced in the last 2 days by the Food and Drug Administration. While this does not relate to the Federal budget, it relates to the budget of every American dealing with the cost of the price of prescription drugs.

The Food and Drug Administration campaign to warn against Canadian drugs. It says: "Next week the FDA will begin a campaign saying it is dangerous to import drugs from Canada."

I am sorry, this is the Food and Drug Administration which is supposed to be a regulatory agency. It is supposed to regulate, not represent, the pharmaceutical industry. Yet here we have the FDA doing all it can to try to tell the American people that importing prescription drugs from Canada is unsafe. It is total nonsense.

The Canadians have the same chain of custody as we do. The same pill, put in the same bottle, made by the same company, is sent to a pharmacy in Winnipeg and is sent to a pharmacy in Pembina, ND. The pills are not different because they are identical, both FDA approved; the difference is price. And often the American is paying double, triple, or 10 times the price that is charged in Canada.

We pay the highest prices in the world, and it is unfair. Those of us who are developing plans by which we would have our pharmacists or our consumers access the identical prescription drug for a much lower price from Canada are now confronting the FDA, which seems to be working full time for the pharmaceutical industry.

I wish Mr. McClellan would take a look at his job description because there is not any way on Earth he can describe a system in which—for example, in the one I propose, North Dakota pharmacists, in a pilot project, buying from licensed pharmacists in Canada FDA-approved drugs—there is not any way the FDA can credibly suggest there is a safety issue. There is no way they can credibly suggest that. Now, they may try, but if they do, they are not being honest with the American people.

THE 9/11 COMMISSION AND AN INDEPENDENT COMMISSION TO EVALUATE INTELLIGENCE WITH REGARD TO IRAQ

Finally—I know my colleagues are waiting to speak—I want to mention two things about commissions. The 9/11 commission is now meeting. It has a May deadline. That needs to be extended. It has had to issue subpoenas to this administration to get information from the administration about events prior to 9/11. What on Earth could people in the administration be thinking about requiring the issuance of subpoenas to get them to cooperate?

Besides the issue of subpoenas, they still have not gotten adequate cooperation from the White House for interviews and information they want. I believe the time for the commission ought to be extended. I also believe the administration ought to comply fully with all the requests for information immediately. I do not, for the life of me, understand why an independent commission investigating 9/11 and the information that led up to it should have any problem getting any information from anyone in this Government. It makes no sense to me.

And finally, the issue of an independent commission to evaluate the intelligence with respect to Iraq. Mr. Kay, the former chief weapons inspector, says our intelligence community failed, failed the President. He should have said failed the Senate, failed the Congress, failed the American people. What happened?

The President is suggesting an independent commission that he appoints. I do not support that. I do not think the executive branch should or could investigate itself, even with a commission they determined independent, especially when they select the commission.

There should be an independent commission as a matter of Federal law, and this Congress ought to pass legislation that authorizes it and funds it. And we ought to do so soon. The safety and security of this country depends on good intelligence.

We are told by Mr. Kay that the intelligence community has failed this country. We need to urgently get to the bottom of it.

Mr. President, I will have more to say later. The Senate, I believe, is on an abbreviated schedule today for a number of reasons. I know my colleague, Senator KENNEDY, wishes to speak, so I yield the floor.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from North Dakota.

EDUCATION AND HEALTH CARE

Mr. President, I want to make a brief comment about the impact of the budget in two important areas; that is, how it relates to the education of the children in this country and, secondly, how it relates to the issues of health care and health care coverage.

Just about every age group will be hurt by this budget. This budget hurts children, hurts our economy, and I believe, it hurts our democracy.

The latest Bush budget does not help young children start school ready to learn. It does not fund public school reform and improvement. It does not extend college opportunity. It does not train workers for new jobs that are needed because of the Bush Administration's poor stewardship of this economy.

For young children and parents, the President's budget cuts the very sound Even Start literacy program. This program helps not only children learn to read but it helps their parents learn to read. By helping previously illiterate or barely literate parents and children learn to read at the same time, you see a quantum increase in both groups' academic achievement and accomplishment. It has been one of the most successful programs we have in terms of expanding literacy in this country. That program is eliminated by the Bush budget.

Over 1 million children and parents will not get Even Start literacy training under the Bush budget. For children in grade school, once again, the President has reneged on his pledge to leave no child behind. This budget leaves over 4.6 million children behind. They will not get better teachers or smaller classes or after-school help they were promised.

In fact, every year President Bush has been in office, he has shortchanged by greater and greater amounts his promise to fund the No Child Left Behind Act.

In 2002, President Bush shortchanged No Child Left Behind by $4.2 billion; in 2003, $5.4 billion; in 2004 by $7.6 billion; and this year by $9.4 billion. In total, President Bush has broken his No Child Left Behind promise by over $26 billion since the day it was signed into law.

That law provided reform in the education of our K through 12th grades. But what we understood when we passed the law was that if we were going to have reform in our education system we had to fund it. That was what was at the heart of the No Child Left Behind Act, the concept of resources for school reform and improvement, and why it had very broad bipartisan support.

If we had reform, in terms of better trained teachers and after-school programs that provided supplementary services, curriculum reforms, and the range of different types of parental involvement, and the kind of help and assistance for those needy schools that needed help and assistance, it was going to require resources to bring the 9 million children, who are the children who are basically the target of No Child Left Behind, up to proficiency over a 12-year period, and all of them had to be included.

That was the agreement. That is why we spent a good deal of time in those negotiations working out what was going to be actually the authorization, because we knew those funds were going to be necessary to be able to achieve those kinds of reforms. We find out now it has been $26 billion short since the time that law was signed.

This budget eliminates 38 different education programs. It eliminates the gifted and talented education. It eliminates the dropout prevention programs. We have schools in this country where they have 30 or 40 or even 50 percent of their children who drop out between the 8th grade and the 12th grade. It is even higher in a number of different schools that I know about. We have about 540,000 children who drop out every single year.

The attempt in terms of No Child Left Behind Act was to try to reach out and find these children and move them back into the education system. When you eliminate any of the dropout prevention programs, you are basically giving up on hundreds of thousands of children. We know what happens to these children if they are not challenged or helped or assisted or given a helping hand to get back into the education system.

One of the most successful new ideas in education has been in the areas where you have very large schools, to try and break those schools down to create smaller schools within the larger schools. It has been extraordinarily successful.

I visited those schools myself in a number of cities in this country. I can remember visiting them in Chicago, as well as in my own city of Boston. We have seen the difference that has made in terms of moving into what we call the "smaller schools," which get smaller class sizes, more intensive kinds of relationships between the teachers and these children. We have seen it has demonstrated to have a marked improvement in terms of academic achievement and accomplishment. Despite all the research on the value of small schools, President Bush wants to eliminate support for smaller learning communities. It just doesn't make sense.

Another program which has had a very significant success has been the Star Schools Program. What we recognized in many States, even including my own, when the State budget is cramped, it is difficult enough to get a well-trained teacher in physics or in the more advanced science areas. Nonetheless, you will have some very gifted and talented children in that school who have an aptitude for math or for science, and the Star Schools Program basically said, with the establishment in the school of what it costs—approximately $1,500 for a receptor—you have a very highly trained educator who teaches those children by distance learning.

They can teach 2,000 or 3,000 children and provide help to maybe a handful of children in a particular school district who have a great aptitude in math and science but do not have the kind of academic teacher who can help them. The Star Schools Program has been invaluable in many different parts of the country. The technology reviews have shown that these children can learn almost as well with this kind of instruction as they can with a teacher in front of them. That program has effectively been eliminated.

For the college students, I refer to the Department of Education Fiscal Year 2005 Budget Summary. Since this President took office, public college tuition is up 26 percent, according to the College Board. Yet the Bush budget provides zero increase for Pell Grant student aid. On page 52 of the Administration's Education Budget Summary, it says, Pell grants: 2003, $4,050; 2004, $4,050; 2005, $4,050. That zero increase in the face of rising tuition. No help. The average income of a Pell recipient is $15,000. These are gifted, talented, hard-working young people who can get into any school, any college in the country, who have to struggle by nature and by circumstances. That Pell grant has been a lifeline to them in terms of their ability to go on to school and to college. And what is the answer of the administration to these young people: Go out and borrow more. See what you can do with your repayments to the banks.

That is bad education policy, and it makes very little sense.

For those out of work or in jobs but seeking to upgrade their skills, this budget adds $250 million for community college, but at the same time the Bush administration has cut $900 million in job training programs over the past three years. For similar programs, they are going to get $250 million, but with the other hand we're going to try to take $900 million. It just doesn't make sense.

So whether it is the very young children, whether it is the children who are going K-12, whether it is the children who are going to college, or whether it is the men and women trying to get new job training, these programs, which I believe are a national priority, have been reduced.

If any one of my colleagues at any time went to any hall anywhere in America and asked the American people how much out of a dollar of Federal money is being spent for education and what would they like it to be—I have done that several times—they will find out, after national security, which is No. 1, they talk about Medicare and Social Security—that is right up there—and right after that comes education. They hope it is 20 percent, 15 percent, 18 percent. Then when they find out that it is about 2 percent, less than 2 percent and declining, they are absolutely appalled. Not that money answers everything, but the money is a reflection of a national priority.

This business about making choices, $2.4 trillion in this budget and short-changing the investment in education of our children, that is what this is. I would be glad to debate it in very considerable detail with any of my colleagues and will at any time.

I want to add a word with regard to the health care situation, the general concerns that I find in traveling around my own State. People are concerned primarily by two issues. One is the cost of health care and the other is whether they can find affordable coverage in health care insurance.

There is virtually nothing in this budget in terms of controlling cost. We gave up a great opportunity when we passed the alleged Medicare reform bill to permit the Secretary of Health and Human Services to actually negotiate with the drug companies like the Veterans' Administration can to bring lower costs to our seniors. But that proposal was rejected by the administration and by the Republican majority. As a result, we have seen the continued escalation of cost, and costs will continue to rise. There is virtually nothing in this legislation to do anything about getting a handle on health care costs.

And with regard to health insurance coverage, we see we have cut Medicaid. A million people who qualify for Medicaid are going to be off Medicaid. Half of those are going to be children, the poorest of the poor. A half a million are going to be without the Medicaid coverage that provides very good coverage for the children. National priorities? There are close to a trillion dollars in tax breaks in this budget, but denying Medicaid coverage to 500,000 children, the neediest of the children, that is a matter of choice.

We will have a chance to debate it. We are now just talking about what is in the President's proposal.

The insurance industry and the trade associations did very well in the budget. Health savings accounts will benefit, which are products of the insurance companies. Health savings accounts get about $24 billion over a 10-year period with the initiative in this budget. Association health plans will do very well for the trade associations, even though those plans will mean an increase in the cost of premiums for health insurance for others. Then we have the proposal for tax credits for health insurance. That is really some proposal. The budget includes a proposal to give a $1,000 tax credit for health insurance to an individual—but the coverage actually costs $4,000. The budget also proposes giving families a $3,000 credit, but a family policy costs nearly $10,000. That is like throwing someone who is in the river needing help a 4-foot line, when they need a 10-foot line to save them. Just try to find a family health insurance policy that is worthy of its name for $3,000 in this country. We know that is completely unrealistic.

Finally, when we talk about fighting disease, take AIDS or TB, there is a cut of some $356 million for CDC. Two major bioterrorism programs have been cut $144 million. These programs provide the assistance to contain a bioterrorist attack locally. You need the initial help to the primary responders, who are police and firefighters and nurses. Then you need to contain a disease outbreak. For that, we need to help our hospitals and our other health clinics in order to contain disease outbreaks so they do not spread. That is particularly important, as anybody who has listened to the experts on bioterrorism will tell you. Those programs have been seriously cut.

Then the most amazing reduction is the CDC cut, $364 million, when we are confronting the danger of SARS, Ebola, other dangers that come from countries all over the world.

Under Dr. Gerberding, who has been an outstanding public servant at the Centers for Disease Control, CDC has been extraordinary in protecting the American people and people all over the world. The budget provides a reduction in support for the CDC. We are having a hearing in our committee on mad cow disease, in the HELP Committee this week. You name it, there is another disease that comes from overseas every day, and our front line of defense is the CDC. They have some of the most talented experts in the world in that agency, and the budget undermines it in a significant way. It makes no sense.

We will have a chance to debate these issues later as we consider the full budget. For the average American, who is concerned about their job—and they are concerned about their jobs because they find out, with all of the uncertainty about our economy, that they lose their job and they know if they are able to find another job, they will be paid about 22 percent less, average, nationwide than the job they are holding—if they are able to find one. They are uncertain about their jobs, and they are uncertain about what is happening in schools with their children. This budget does little about that uncertainty. They are uncertain whether they will be able to save enough to send their children to college. That is because of the proposals of the administration to eliminate overtime.

We have to understand the amount that is earned on overtime has been used day in and day out to pay tuition for working families for their children who go to college, or to pay a mortgage. So people are worried about the economy. They are worried, if they are unemployed, that their unemployment insurance has been lost. They are worried about that. If they are among the 1 in 7 Americans who are making the minimum wage, they realize they haven't gotten any increase in the last

7 years. Where is anything about that, or anything about education, or anything about health care for the children? It has been missing in that budget. But the trillion dollar tax break for the wealthy is included. It is the wrong priority.

The American people are going to reflect on these misguided priorities as they watch our votes when we debate the budget in the Senate. If they don't do it then, they will do it in November.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CRAPO). The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I spoke earlier to the Senator from Oklahoma and he indicated one of his colleagues, the Senator from Pennsylvania, may be coming to the floor, and perhaps also the Senator from Arizona. I wanted to defer to them because we want to go back and forth.

Mr. INHOFE. He is in the cloakroom. May I inquire about how much time the Senator from Illinois would like to have?

Mr. DURBIN. About 20 minutes.

Mr. INHOFE. We will go back into a quorum call, then, until the Senator from Pennsylvania arrives.

Mr. DURBIN. That is fine. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I have sought recognition to comment on the pending highway bill, and also to offer legislation on the Abandoned Mine Reclamation Program Extension Reform Act of 2004.

The highway bill is pending, and tomorrow Secretary of the Interior Norton will be in Harrisburg to announce the President's program. The administration has made available this statute for introduction which should be done on a timely basis this afternoon since there will not be morning business tomorrow because of the Joint Meeting of Congress.

First, my comments are directed toward the highway bill. Yesterday, I voted against cloture—that is, voted against cutting off debate—because of my view that there ought to be more consideration to the bill before we proceed to take up the bill itself.

I am concerned about the total cost of the bill in light of the position of President Bush's administration where there have been concerns raised about the total cost because we are facing such a large deficit this year. I do believe that infrastructure—highway construction, mass transit, and bridge repairs—is indispensable for economic growth and economic development, but in the very complex Federal budget all of these matters have to be prioritized.

We are looking at a budget next year of $2.4 trillion, where there is a projected increase of close to 10 percent—9.7 percent—for homeland defense, 7 percent for the Department of Defense, and less than 1 percent for discretionary spending.

I am concerned about where we are heading on all of those lines, with very heavy emphasis of concern about a deficit which is projected in excess of $500 billion.

We faced these problems in the past. I am in my 24th year in the Senate, and it is not unusual for us to be facing very difficult problems. Two years ago, we did not even have a budget resolution, a matter of some considerable concern on the political scales where the Democrats were in control and we did not have a budget. Last year, we had major problems in the appropriations process. As it is well known, we did not pass the omnibus bill until last month. So we are not unaccustomed to having major problems as we look forward to the budget.

I am comforted by the famous words of Winston Churchill that somehow we always muddle through and that democracy—paraphrasing Churchill again—is a terrible system except compared to all others. I believe we will be able to work through the budget problems we have.

Notwithstanding the economic problems, we now see an upturn, and I think we are heading for better days on the economy. I think that will have a very profound effect on the deficit in the long run. It is difficult to realize, or surprising, perhaps I should say, that less than 3 years ago we were projecting a $5.6 trillion surplus in 10 years and we were talking about paying off the national debt. Then an economic downturn, facing two wars—one against al-Qaida and one in Iraq—we have had very substantial problems. But we have a very productive country, we have a great work ethic, and I think we will have an economic rebound. I think that will have a very profound effect on easing the difficulties of the deficit.

Notwithstanding those factors, we are looking at a tough deficit, and I think more consideration needs to be given on this bill as to how we are going to face the overall problems and establish priorities.

With respect to the allocations in this bill, I believe that my State, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, is not being dealt with appropriately, not being dealt with fairly. My colleague, Senator SANTORUM, and I wrote to the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Environment and Public Works on January 28 listing the concerns we have. I realize there has not been sufficient time for the chairman to respond to this letter, but that is part of the concern.

Senator SANTORUM and I wrote this letter as soon as we could after we knew what was in the highway bill and knew how Pennsylvania was going to be treated. Again, I am not unaware that it is a very difficult matter to make allocations among 50 States and it is not possible to satisfy everyone. I have heard quite a number of my colleagues express concerns that their States were not being appropriately treated. But I believe that when the facts are analyzed, Pennsylvania ought to have more of a share of this highway bill, or even more of a share of a reduced highway bill, if the bill were to be pared down to come within the confines of what the President has in mind for the highway bill.

The allocation that Pennsylvania has is the fourth lowest increase, an increase of 19.54 percent over the 6 years. With that limited increase, Pennsylvania will not even be able to keep up with inflation.

Pennsylvania has a very extensive highway system. It is the fourth largest highway system among the 50 States. It has some 40,500 miles of State highway, totaling more highway miles than New York and New England combined. It has some 25,000 bridges, and the highway system in Pennsylvania—a frost belt State, an older State by contrast with the expansion of the South and the West—has found the highways very heavily used and subject to very difficult weather conditions.

Eighty-eight percent of the nearly $300 billion worth of goods delivered from inside Pennsylvania each year arrive on the State's highways. Pennsylvania's highways are the prime routes for delivering goods imported from ports across the mid-Atlantic region.

We have many interstate highways. When calculating the appropriate share of highway funding, due consideration ought to be given to the usage of the highways. If you take some States and areas—Florida, for example, or Maine, or the State of Washington, or southern California—those areas are not as heavily transited. But Pennsylvania has major interstates both east-west and north-south: Routes 80 and 90, Route 480, Routes 95, 81, 79, 83, in addition to a vast complex of highways across the State.

It is my view that Pennsylvania ought to have a higher allocation and ought not to be limited to an allocation which will be less than the inflation rate over 6 years.

There has been some justification offered on the basis of the contention that Pennsylvania had a very large share in the past when Congressman Bud Shuster was the Chairman of the House Transportation and Infrastructure Committee. It is certainly true that the ways of the House and the ways of the Senate accord some special consideration for people who are chairmen, who can establish the mark, but I do not think that Chairman Shuster's departure from the House of Representatives ought to be used as the basis for saying Pennsylvania ought to be reduced in its share.

When one takes a look at the allocation for Pennsylvania, the rate of increase is the fourth lowest among the 50 States. Nobody can deny that Pennsylvania ranks very high among the States which service the country. Traffic coming from the west coast goes through Pennsylvania; some of it on the Pennsylvania Turnpike but a great deal of it on Interstate 80, some on Interstate 90. There is tremendous traffic north to south on Interstate 81, and I-95 is a major highway transiting the east coast.

It is my hope that before this bill is finished we can have an adjustment. I know other Senators are equally concerned as am I. The vote I cast against cloture to cut off debate yesterday was in the nature of a protest vote. I had no illusions in casting the vote. I did so late in the proceeding when the requisite 60 votes had already been achieved for cloture, so there was no doubt that my vote was not going to be determinative or influential. The cloture was going to be imposed.

I have heard many complaints from my constituents who are very dissatisfied with the allocation both as to highways, which affects bridges as well, and transit. I cast that protest vote. I still think we ought to be considering both of those factors. One factor is what is the appropriate priority taking into account the views of President Bush on the increase in expenditures on this bill over what had been allocated or what has been considered appropriate by the President and factoring in the priorities we have on the budget which we are now considering. I hope yet to be able to support this bill, but I am not going to support a bill which does not treat my State fairly.

My vote and the votes of others who have similar views may not be dispositive because there is great public interest in this bill as a jobs bill, very important on the infrastructure to facilitate transit both on the rail lines and on the highways. But fair is fair and I think there have to be some significant modifications to the total amount of this bill, the priorities established, and how Pennsylvania is treated.

Mr. President, I believe I have already asked unanimous consent that the text of the letter from Senator SANTORUM, Senator INHOFE, and myself, dated January 28, be printed in the RECORD at the conclusion of the comments I made on the highway bill.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

U.S. SENATE,

Washington, DC, January 28, 2004.

Hon. JAMES M. INHOFE,
Chairman, Committee on Environment and Public Works, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

CHAIRMAN INHOFE: We are writing to express our deep concerns with the recently released highway funding formula to be used in the Safe, Accountable, Flexible, and Efficient Transportation Equity Act of 2003 (SAFETEA) proposal. Were this proposal to be enacted, it would have a significant negative impact on Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania is a key gateway connecting New England and the Northeast to the Midwest and Mid-Atlantic. As such, our roads are by no means limited to Pennsylvanians but are often used by cars and trucks from around the country. Pennsylvania has the fourth largest highway system among the 50 states, with 25,000 bridges and 40,500 miles of state highway, totaling more highway miles than New York and New England combined. Furthermore, Pennsylvania's highways are the prime routes for delivering goods imported from ports across the Mid-Atlantic region. Truly, Pennsylvania is the "Keystone State" when it comes to moving goods from East-to-West and North-to-South in our region.

In addition to heavy use, the extreme weather conditions of the Mid-Atlantic region have taken their toll on Pennsylvania's highway system. 46 percent of the Commonwealth's roads are in poor condition, while 42 percent of the Commonwealth's bridges are structurally deficient. Such conditions have a tremendous economic impact: driving on Pennsylvania's roads in need of repair costs motorists $2.4 billion each year in extra vehicle operating costs; traffic accidents and fatalities cost Pennsylvania drivers an additional $2.7 billion annually; and congestion leads to costs totaling $2.3 billion per year.

Under your committee's proposal, Pennsylvania's funding increases at the fourth lowest rate among all the states. It is unlikely the proposed 19.54 percent increase over six years will keep pace with inflation, amounting to a cut in Pennsylvania's highway funding. Such meager levels do not account for Pennsylvania's disproportionate needs.

In light of the infrastructure maintenance needs, population, and geographic location of our commonwealth, we find it completely unacceptable for Pennsylvania to be a donor state in the final year (FY2009) of the SAFETEA program and are convinced that the funding levels in other years are insufficient in light of Pennsylvania's place in our national highway network. While we will continue to work on highway and transit issues and will likely be supportive of many provisions in the SAFETEA bill, we could not support a final SAFETEA bill that so unfairly shortchanges Pennsylvania.

We strongly believe that highway funding must be based in large part on the impact each state's transportation system has on its region and the nation and that a national highway program should direct federal funding to national needs. We welcome the opportunity to work with you to address this matter so that Congress can enact positive federal transportation policy this year.

Sincerely,

ARLEN SPECTER.

RICK SANTORUM.

(The remarks of Mr. SPECTER pertaining to the introduction of S. 2049 are printed in today's RECORD under "Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.")

Mr. SPECTER. In conclusion, I compliment the chairman of the committee, Senator INHOFE. I know how hard he has worked on this bill. I know how many people have come to him with concerns. That is one of the vicissitudes of being a chairman. I get the same treatment when I post my bill on the subcommittee for Labor, Health, Human Services, and Education and I post my bills on Veterans' Affairs.

I compliment Senator INHOFE and the ranking member, Senator JEFFORDS, for what they have done here. It is a major matter, bringing a highway bill to the floor. It is my hope that, working together as Senator INHOFE, Senator JEFFORDS, Senator SANTORUM, and I have always done, we will be able to at least reconcile some of these concerns.

I yield the floor.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I listened with great interest. I think he has some excellent points, I say to the Senator from Pennsylvania. He extensively quoted Churchill. I would like to add another quote to that:

Truth is incontrovertible. Ignorance can deride it, panic may resent it, malice may destroy it, but there it is.

I say that because there are some things—It is only natural when the Senator from Pennsylvania is not serving on the committee that he would not be quite as familiar with the development of the formula as perhaps someone who is on the committee. So I would like to respond to a couple of points because I really believe we have a very fair formula.

First of all, the formula Congressman Shuster put together is the basis for this bill. I happened to serve in the other body in the committee under Congressman Shuster back during the development of TEA-21. During that time, of course, he was pretty notorious getting a lot for his State. I understand that. I should be more that way myself.

But I would only like to suggest—if staff would be good enough to hold this chart up—this is Pennsylvania. Over here, take 1384 in the red, that is the average amount for each year. If you took all 6 years in the TEA-21 and averaged them out, that would be the amount. That would be $1.3 billion. Then, if you watch each year as it goes up, you end up with a substantially higher amount.

Let's compare that, if we may, with California. I saw an op-ed piece by the senior Senator from California in which she was very complimentary of the way this worked. If you look, you see they end up in almost the same place as Pennsylvania does percentage wise. But it all comes in the last year. That is because they are a donor State. In order for the large donor States to be able ultimately to reach 95 percent, it has to be done in the last year. I think we all understand that.

But when you compare the two charts, I would say if she is satisfied, then the Senator from Pennsylvania should be elated.

I would like to share one other thing, too. I chair the committee. If you take the total amount of road miles that we have in Oklahoma compared to Pennsylvania, it is almost the same, when you take out the toll roads. Of course, we are not dealing with toll roads here.

With the same number of road miles, each year Pennsylvania gets 3.5 times as much as Oklahoma gets. If anyone should be complaining, using that as a criterion, I should be the one.

I think it is very important you share with your constituents some of the things that are in this bill and how well I believe Pennsylvania is treated.

The Senator from Pennsylvania talked about bridges. According to the surveys that have been taken by the Department of Transportation, Oklahoma's bridges are No. 50 in the Nation—way behind Pennsylvania. These are things that need to be corrected. Many of these things will be corrected in this bill.

So I would only say formulas are very difficult. There is no magic formula that is going to make everyone happy. I remember the formulas in TEA-21 and ISTEA, and there were complaints from many States on those. No formula is going to satisfy everyone, but I honestly believe, when I look at Pennsylvania and compare it to California or Oklahoma or some of the other States, that they are very well cared for.

With that, I yield to any questions the Senator might have.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, just a comment or two. I did compliment the Senator from Oklahoma, the distinguished chairman, for being so well prepared. Perhaps he should have charts on all the States. I don't know. Perhaps he would have charts on the States where you anticipate difficulty or others on a comparative basis. But this Senator is not likely to be satisfied, as a general matter, with what satisfies the Senator from California. I think if we check the voting records of Senator INHOFE and Senator SPECTER and the junior Senator from California, Mrs. BOXER, we will find Senator INHOFE and Senator SPECTER on one side and Senator BOXER is on the other side a lot more times than not.

So, I will take a look at the charts and I will take a look at the statistics. I do agree with the chairman that it is a complex matter.

The first opportunity I have to review it is once I see the bill and I will make the analysis with California, and with Oklahoma. I have some substantial familiarity with Oklahoma because I have traveled the highways of Oklahoma a great deal. As the Senator from Oklahoma knows, I am a native of Kansas and went to the University of Oklahoma and drove that highway from Wichita to Norman on many occasions. To my recollection, it was a pretty good highway, but that has been a while ago.

But I again complement the Senator from Oklahoma, the chairman, on his diligence, having the charts. We will take a very close look at it. The Senator from Oklahoma and I have worked together on many matters in the years we have worked in the Senate together. We approach this in the interests of our States, as we should, but also understanding the needs of other States.

We will try to come to at least some sort of accommodation as we work through the bill. I thank the chairman.

Mr. INHOFE. I appreciate the comments of the Senator from Pennsylvania. I in no way want him to misinterpret the comments I made as being critical of his analysis. Formulas are very difficult. TEA-21 is something we know was totally politically driven. That was a percentage of the total amount of money, so when they got up to 60 votes they could just shut the door and say: Fine, we have our bill. We tried not to do that, take consideration of donor/donee status, fast-growing States.

By the way, you heard the senior Senator from Texas yesterday talking about her dissatisfaction with what Texas was doing. When it gets down to it, under this formula or any other formula, if you do something for a fast growing State that keeps bumping up against the ceiling, you are going to be having a problem. If you try to correct that, it is going to go into the donee States, of which of course Pennsylvania is one.

It is a difficult choice. We spent a whole year working on this and I hope you have a chance to really look at it closely.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, if I might ask the chairman, you say Pennsylvania is a donee State? We are a donor State here in the final year of your bill.

Mr. INHOFE. OK, in the first year, right now, you are a donee State.

Mr. SPECTER. We have been a donee State. If I hadn't been a donee State—for those who do not follow the terms, a donor is one who gives more than the State receives. Senator KYL is bowing. Arizona is in that status. A donee State is one which receives more than it contributes.

Had we really been a donee State throughout the six years of the bill—and I understand it was a slip of the tongue, or at least for 1 year, not the whole projection. But had I been able to hold the chairman to donee status, I would have withdrawn all my remarks and stricken them from the RECORD.

Mr. INHOFE. I was referring to 2003, where it is a very substantial donee State, recognizing it goes up and down.

By the way, Oklahoma has never been a donee State. Oklahoma was bumped against the ceilings: 73 percent, 80 percent, and then 90.5 percent, and of course we are looking forward to getting up to 95 percent, as I am sure the Senator from Arizona is going to share that enthusiasm.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, Oklahoma makes up for donee status with its football team.

Mr. INHOFE. On occasions, yes.

Mr. SPECTER. When you comment about Pennsylvania being a donee State, that is for the existing bill, not the entirety of the one we are voting on now. We are a donor State in the last year, which is the reason for my exchange. I think the exchange has been useful. I see Senators waiting.

I yield the floor.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, Penn State and the University of Oklahoma have had their share of victories and now it is time for somebody else to have their fair share.

I appreciate the hard work of the chairman, the Senator from Oklahoma. I make it very clear I join those who recognize the need for improvement of our highways. There is not a road in my State that could not stand some improvement. As a very fast growing State, Arizona needs to add to our highway miles.

I appreciate the fact that there is a need to create jobs, and highway construction certainly can help to create jobs in this country. However, it has always been the case that we prioritized because Members would literally ask for everything they could possibly get in the way of funding for their States. We have had to set limits. There is, after all, a limit on the amount of Federal revenue available for all good projects. Certainly, highways are no more important than education or health care or national defense or many of the other categories which also compete for the Federal dollar.

So while we acknowledge there is a need for a highway bill and that can have some jobs benefits, that should not be the driving force in terms of the competition with dollars for other worthwhile projects. We have to set a limit, particularly in this case where we have over a half trillion dollar deficit, according to the OMB; we have to be clear we do not spend more than we are taking in.

The reason this is a bad bill, and why I oppose it, first, it spends far too much money. Second, it spends more money than we collect in revenues from the gas tax. Third, it is very unfair to States such as mine, which are donor States. Arizona has always contributed far more than it has gotten back, and under this bill that gets even worse for the next 5 years.

Let me discuss each of those items very briefly. We start from the premise that we do need highways. We also have a huge budget deficit. Therefore, we have to clearly be sensitive about the kind of bill we pass. In this regard, the Secretary of the Treasury, Secretary Snow, and the Secretary of Transportation, Secretary Mineta, yesterday notified the Senate that they would recommend a veto of this bill if it raises the gas tax or other Federal taxes or draws money from the general fund. They wrote that the bill "should not use any mechanism that conceals the true costs to Federal taxpayers.

Highway spending should be financed from the highway trust fund, not the general fund of the Treasury."

The bill before the Senate violates this principle in a significant amount, by billions of dollars. Therefore, if my Senate colleagues insist on going down the road of passing a bill that violates the principles that the President has laid out, we risk having the President veto this bill. At a time when we have this large Federal budget deficit, it seems to me we ought to be joining with the President in trying to prioritize our spending and constraining it to at least the amount of revenue we take in, a balanced budget approach. That is the way we have done it in the past, and that is the way we should do it now.

Just the highway portion—and I make it clear there is a mass transit portion of this bill that has not gotten out of the committee of jurisdiction, the Banking Committee, and in terms of funding it is in the neighborhood of $50 billion; it could be more or less and I do not mean to be tied to a specific figure, $49 billion or 50 billion; I will leave that part out of the discussion because that part is not complete until we know the actual numbers—but the highway portion, the amount the Federal Government has to spend over the next 6 years, is $231 billion. This is what the Bond-Reid amendment from last year in the budget resolution called for the Senate to fund. The House is looking at a number far higher than this. I even heard today that some people in the administration are looking at a number above this.

In any event, the number that the Finance Committee yesterday raised revenue for was $231 billion. I sit on the Finance Committee and our job is to try to figure out what kind of revenues we are getting, and therefore, whether we could pay for $231 billion of highway funding. What we learned was that the gas tax, the use tax, that funds highway construction, is only going to bring in $196 billion during that same period of time. So the bill that the Senate said we should try to fund exceeds the amount of revenues by $35 billion.

Now, there are four choices. We can reduce the amount we had hoped to be able to spend last year when we did not have this big Federal budget deficit number staring us in the face, and now that we know the size of the deficit, acknowledge that we were just a little bit too optimistic last year; we were a little bit too forward leaning, shall we say, and trim back to suit the revenues that we are actually going to be collecting. That is the first thing we could do. That is what we should do and what any family would have to do.

Because we are the Federal Government, we could raise taxes to make up that difference. I don't think that will happen. The President says he would veto the bill if that happened.

We could just go into greater deficit. But on both sides of the aisle I think that would be met with great opposition. We do not want to increase the size of our Federal budget deficit.

That leaves the other alternative, and that is to take money from other areas in the budget and apply it to highways, to take general revenue funds, funds that might be spent on defense or homeland security or education or medical care, for example, to take that money away from those programs and spend it on highways instead. That is what is being proposed.

But it gets worse because the effort that is undertaken here is to confuse the American taxpayer into thinking that it is highway-related revenues. It is not. What the Finance Committee concluded yesterday was that we could legitimately come up with—and I acknowledge this and hope to construct the addition of the funds—that we could come up with about $214 billion in revenues that was, in fact, legitimately connected, money that was connected to highways or to the trust fund.

For example, there is $196 billion from gas taxes. There is an argument that we should be able to count the interest earned on the trust fund balances as part of the trust fund that is currently deposited in the general fund. Most would say that we can legitimately transfer that from the general fund and put it into the trust fund and call that trust fund money, and I agree with that.

I will not get into detail, but there are four or five other areas like that. Some might be a little questionable in some people's eyes, but at least in my view, you could justify $214 billion in revenues, in real money, being transferred from the general fund to the trust fund, but which we could legitimately contend should not belong in the general fund, it should belong in the highway trust fund. That is $214 billion. That leaves a $17 billion deficit. That is just on the amount we were trying to mark up of $231 billion.

So how do we make up the other $17 billion? By sleight of hand, which is why I voted against the bill. We came up with phony money, money that does not really exist but which, for the purposes of paying for this bill, we are going to count in an accounting technique.

There are two key pieces: one $9 billion and the other $8 billion. The $9 billion fund comes from something called the ethanol exemption. The gas tax is 18.4 cents but for ethanol we give a 5.2-cents-per-gallon exemption. We say you do not have to pay that tax. The Finance Committee bill proposes to convert this exemption into a tax credit. But under the new system, even if the money comes in, it will be sent right back to the taxpayer when they seek a refund for it, when they seek to apply for the ethanol tax credit, so the net result is that, even though the Government may collect the money for an instant, it goes right back to the taxpayer who paid it and there is no money, then, to be put in the highway trust fund. So what we have is the Government will collect 5.2 cents it does not currently collect, it will theoretically send that to the taxpayer, and as soon as the taxpayers ask for the refund of the credit, the general fund of the Treasury sends the money back. So no new money has been raised. We collected it; we gave it back. But in the meantime, through an accounting gimmick, we say that the trust fund is 5.2-cents-per-gallon richer. And that amounts to $9 billion over this 6-year period of time. But there is no new money. So that is fraudulent. It is wrong for us to suggest we are actually paying with real money for that part of this bill.

The other is called the fuel tax exemption, and it relates to an exemption that is provided to tax-exempt entities, such as cities and States and schools and churches. They do not pay the gas tax. They receive either a full or a partial exemption from the gas tax.

So the Finance Committee bill just credits the highway trust fund as if it had received those taxes, even though the funds will never have actually been received. That is $8 billion over 6 years. It reminds me of that old riddle Abe Lincoln used to ask. He said: If you call a tail a leg, how many legs does a dog have? And he would always fool the kids, and they would say five. And he would say: No, four. Calling it a leg doesn't make it a leg.

Well, calling this money part of the trust fund does not make it part of the trust fund because it is not ever going to be collected. It is an accounting gimmick. So when the Secretary of Transportation and the Secretary of Treasury write in the letter that they are going to recommend a veto of the bill if it uses mechanisms that conceal the true cost to the Federal taxpayers—they go on to say: Highway spending should be financed from the highway trust fund, not the general fund of the Treasury—I think this is exactly the kind of thing they had in mind.

How does the General Treasury make up this $17 billion? You cannot pay for highway construction with fake money. You have to pay with real money. So you take that money out of the general fund and you somehow have to make that up in the general fund. Do they make it up with a highway user fund or fee? No. Instead, there are a series of tax changes that have nothing to do with highways. Some close down abusive corporate tax shelters, the kind that Enron had used. And there are some other kinds of changes like that—nothing that has anything to do with transportation or highways. Some of these tax changes, by the way, are actually good tax changes and, in fact, we should make the changes, but they should be used to fund other things in general revenue that are traditionally funded by such mechanisms. They should not be transferred from the general fund to the highway trust fund, thus breaking a precedent that has held ever since the beginning of highway transportation.

My view is we should be very clear that by breaking this precedent, by using the general fund against what the Secretary of Treasury warned us, that we would be opening up the possibility that the highway fund or highway spending would be basically unconstrained by any mechanism whatsoever. It would be a honeypot of projects and ways for Members to go home and brag about how much they brought home to their States or their districts with no financial constraint because no longer would it be pegged to the amount of revenues we received through the user fees, from the people who actually used the highways.

So if we go down this road, I think there will be no end to the claim we will make on general revenues for highway projects. And I think it is a very bad precedent for us to undertake.

So, first of all, we are spending too much money. Secondly, we are not funding it in the proper way. We are now going to be spending general revenues to fund the deficit.

The third thing I want to say is that this is not fair to some States. You might imagine that one of them is my State. I am going to describe this very briefly. And with the indulgence of the chairman of the committee, since our offices are closed down right now, I do not have access to the specific information which I wanted to bring to the floor. I am going to say this generally, and then, when we have access to that data, I will come back to the floor with the specific information.

But a bit of history: Arizona has always been a donor State, meaning that Arizonans send a dollar in tax revenue for highways to Washington, and we get back 70, 80 cents. In the last few years, we have gotten 90.5 cents. Just a few years ago that was 83 cents, as I recall.

A lot of the donor States put their foot down and said: Look, we, at least, ought to get 90 percent of what we send. And that is when the 90.5 cents was put into effect. Arizona is a fast-growing State, the fastest growing State in the Union. We have huge new infrastructure needs, including highways. We have large areas of Federal land. Only 12 percent of the land in our State is privately owned. The rest is owned by a governmental entity. We have huge border infrastructure financing requirements. We are now trying to build a new bridge over the Colorado River, below the Hoover Dam, with our sister State of Nevada. We have huge expenses with our highways.

Yet instead of getting back an amount of money that would be commensurate with those needs, Arizonans send a dollar to Washington and get back 90.5 cents.

When the debate about the new highway bill began, we had some thought that perhaps we would finally get to the point where we could be treated fairly relative to other States. But, unfortunately, this was not to be the case. In a very general way, what happened was this: The Senator from Oklahoma, and others, with very good intentions, said we want to try to bring all of the States we possibly can up to 95 cents on the dollar. And they set out to try to do that.

But what they soon learned was there are some States with needs growing so rapidly, with populations growing so rapidly—States such as Arizona, Texas, Colorado, Florida, the fastest growing States—these States are growing so rapidly that it would cost a lot of money to be fair to them. In other words, we are behind the other States now. We are donor States, and to try to bring us up to parity with those States would cost a lot of money because we are so far behind.

Now, if we had been treated fairly in the past, this would not be a problem because, presumably, we would be like everybody else—right around the norm. But we have not been treated fairly in the past, which is why we are so far behind.

Now they are saying: Because you are so far behind, and it would cost so much to let you catch up, sorry, we are going to take care of everybody else, but you all have to stay that far behind for 5 more years. That, I suggest, is not fair.

Now, it might have been fair to say to folks: Look, we can't get to 95 cents on the dollar. Maybe we can get to 93.5 cents for all of the States. I don't know what the exact number was—93, 94, perhaps, somewhere in that neighborhood. If all the States had been brought up to the same level, then that might be where it is—92, 93, 94, somewhere around in there. But, instead, they decided to go to 95 cents for most of the States, and then, for four or five of the States they say: Sorry, we are not going to bring you up to speed for the first 5 years of this program. Perhaps in the sixth year we will try to get you to 95 cents.

Well, in the meantime, every one of those 5 years the gap will grow wider. And because our populations are growing, because our infrastructure needs are increasing disproportionately to these other States, because we have been behind for so many years—and, therefore, have a backlog that a lot of the other States do not have—instead of gradually being brought up to where the other States are, we are basically being left in the dust. That is not fair.

Now, if you only do that to about five States, you can still guarantee your bill gets passed because you do not need their votes. This is all about vote counting. This is the way the highway formula was always developed. And I commend my good friend and colleague, the chairman of the committee, for noting the fact that in the past that is the way the formula has been derived. That is why his State and mine and a lot of others suffered for a lot of years.

But I suggest that since there now seems to be a will to make things right—again, I commend him for that—that we should make it right for everybody, not just for those States where we can afford to make it right. In fact, I would argue that we really ought to start with those States that have been on the short end of the stick all these years. We should start with the States that are the furthest behind, start with the States, such as Arizona, that have so much further to catch up.

If we have money to add to the amount of money that donor States get, why shouldn't we start with those States that have the biggest population growth and infrastructure needs and have received relatively, therefore, the smallest amount of money in the past?

Well, I guess you only get 8, 10 votes out of those States, so we start from a different premise. I do not think it is fair. That is the third reason I have to oppose this bill and why my friends in Arizona are basically saying to me: We can understand why we have to spend more money on homeland security and fighting the war on terror and on fighting in Iraq, and so on. We can understand why there are some other big needs that perhaps could get an increase in funding, such as education and the Medicare prescription drug bill last year. But we will be darned if we are willing to continue to send our money to Washington to be spent by other States when we have such large needs here. And they basically tell us, because you have so many needs, we cannot afford to bring you up to speed with everybody else and, therefore, you are going to have to wait 5 years.

I cannot go back to my friends in Arizona and say: Gee, I am sorry but that is just the way it is in Washington; they expect me to do something about it.

So I hope my colleagues who support this bill will indulge me, and those others, and put themselves in my place and ask what they would do if they were in this position and not give us too hard a time when we ask questions that may be difficult and make sure that from a parliamentary point of view, we use all of the options we have to try to convince our colleagues the bill should be made more fair than it is.

I would be happy if all of us received less money by reducing the top number of this bill down to an amount we can afford, say $214 billion, or to simply reauthorize the existing spending levels for 1 year until we can go back and get this formula right. I would favor either of those two solutions today. I raised them both in the Finance Committee yesterday. Both were defeated. But I would opt for either one of those.

What I can't agree to is a bill that spends far too much money, funds it with general revenues for the first time, and is blatantly unfair to States such as Arizona.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SUNUNU). The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, let me say how much I always enjoy the junior Senator from Arizona. We were both elected to the other body in the same year, 1986. We both came here to the Senate in 1994. Neither of us is shy about the fact we are conservatives. He has heard me say many times that conservatives in some areas are pretty big spenders—that is, national defense and infrastructure—believing that is really what we are supposed to be doing in Washington.

I don't think you can find a State that has had more road problems than my State of Oklahoma. It is kind of a going joke there. Each holiday, so many people come for Thanksgiving, and they say: We could always tell when we got to Oklahoma because of the roads. We always knew when we left Arizona and got over to Oklahoma because the roads aren't nearly as good as they are in Arizona.

I would suggest a couple of things are worthwhile talking about. I have a chart. I want to help the Senator from Arizona when he goes home. I will let him take this chart home. When you look at Arizona, keeping in mind that the average State increase under SAFETEA is 35.6 percent, that is 40.23 percent. That is a huge amount over the average. The Senator from Arizona says it is because they have been on the short end of the stick for a long period of time. I can identify with that because being from the State of Oklahoma, we were at the very bottom. We had to come up by virtue of formula to 77 percent, to 80, then to 90.5, and now hopefully to 95. So that is a very large amount of money.

If you look in the far left of this chart, you have what Arizona averaged under TEA-21. That was $463 million. Then it shows each year thereafter, for the next 6 years, what happens by comparison. With all the difficulties we have in working on any kind of a formula, the Senator from Arizona and I have talked about the complexities of formulas. We have done States, donor States, fast-growing States, low-population, low-density States. Consequently, to come up with some kind of a formula that takes care of all that, we took all of those things into consideration.

Contrast that with TEA-21. In TEA-21, they had a formula as a base, but they had a percentage. Every State had a percentage. When they finally got up to 60 votes, that was it: We don't care what happens to the rest of you. We have our 60 votes.

We didn't try to do that. That would have been easier, I suppose. I would probably be making the same number of people mad, but nonetheless we didn't do that. We tried to use the logical things to take into consideration in developing the formula.

The Senator talks about a veto. I know this is just a difference in interpretation. The Senator from Arizona is on the Finance Committee. I am not on it. Consequently, I went to the chairman, Senator GRASSLEY, and I said to him, some time ago: This is what I feel we need to do. It is up to the Finance Committee to figure out how we get there.

The Senator from Arizona ran over it pretty exhaustively, and I bow to his superior intelligence in terms of the finance package because he is on the committee. But when I look over the fuel tax fraud compliance, that is something that came along a little bit later. I think that is real. My staff says that is a conservative figure, the 2.5 cents and the 5.2 cents on ethanol.

The interest, you agree, should go back to the highway trust fund. Spending down the balance is reasonable. I can remember back when we had balances of $18 billion in the highway trust fund. I spent 8 years in the other body on the Public Works and Transportation Committee where we started chipping away on that. And we all know the reason that was there to start with. It goes back to the Lyndon Johnson days, when they were trying to make it look as if the money they were going to be spending was not going to have huge deficits. So they said, let's just go ahead and apply that when we are drawing up our budget. We have changed all that, and we are making great headway in spending that down to a reasonable level.

The $6.5 billion, everybody does agree, is reasonable and I am sure the committee did also. Then on some of the clarifications on the transfer of the gas guzzler tax to the highway trust fund, it should have been there to start with. What we are trying to do is undo some of the damage that has been done to the trust fund over the years. We are doing that with this bill.

As far as a veto is concerned, let me share something that goes into a little more detail than the Senator from Arizona did. We have a letter here that expresses the current feelings, dated February 2, just a couple days ago. And in this letter from Secretary Mineta, this is the administration's position. They said, yes, we recognize we need more money for infrastructure. That is something we all agree and they certainly agree is necessary. They said, if you can get to the Bond-Reid amount without doing three things, then we would support you.

No. 1 would be you would not be increasing gas taxes. We are not going to increase gas taxes. Secondly, we are not going to play around. You know the games you come up with. Let's have a bonding program. You and I both know most of these bonding programs are nothing more than borrowing in some way from the future and encumbering future revenues. Or third—this is our biggest controversy with each other—that highway spending should be financed from the highway trust fund, not from the general fund of the Treasury. I grant you, the last item you talked about is coming from the general fund. I contend it should not have been. It should have been in the trust fund to start with.

That is an argument you and I could have a disagreement on, but I look at it perhaps with a little bit of bias, sitting on the committee and saying: All right, Finance Committee, if you can come up with this, this is what is best for America. I felt they did. And the chairman has told me he believed they did. We had Senator THOMAS on the floor, who is one of your colleagues on the committee, who I think is favorably disposed to the results of the work of the Finance Committee.

Mr. KYL. Will the chairman yield?

Mr. INHOFE. Of course.

Mr. KYL. As to the first items you mentioned, we are in total agreement. Those were items that should have been added to the trust fund, and they make up the difference between the $196 billion in gas tax revenues and the $214 billion. So there is no disagreement there. But as to the last two items, you could argue that the schools and churches and States and cities should have been paying the gas tax all along and that if they do pay it, it should go to the highway trust fund. That is true. You can argue that. But we are not going to collect it from them. We are not going to make them pay.

I suppose what you could say is, from now on churches and schools and cities and States have to pay the gas tax. And when they pay it, it should go to the highway trust funds. We are not saying that. We are going to deem that they have to pay it, but they don't actually have to pay it. There is no real money there. It is the same thing with the gas tax credit on ethanol. There the tax is actually going to be collected but then remitted. So the Government has it for a few days, but when they apply for credit, it goes back. Once again, we are going to credit the trust fund with the money, but it doesn't in fact get the money.

That is why the Finance Committee had to use creativity in finding these other corporate loophole closings and applying the revenue derived from that to make up the difference in the $17 billion or so. So it is not revenue we should have been collecting all along and putting into the highway trust funds. You can argue whether we should have been collecting it or not, but it is not revenue we are going to be collecting in the future from the cities and schools, for example. We are going to have to get it from the corporate loopholes.

Mr. INHOFE. I appreciate the response. I know the Senator to be very sincere. The time that we spent—we are talking about 12 months we have been anguishing over this issue to come up with something that is fair. It is not perfect. It is better than it was under TEA-21. We went to the Finance Committee and said: Can you get us there? It is my information that we got there and, consequently, I still stand behind the bill. We have an honest disagreement on that.

Mr. KYL. I ask the chairman to yield. This has to do with the chart you showed and the percentage increases. When you talk about percentage increases, I start to smile. You can always make a point with a percentage. I can remember when I was an associate in a law firm and I would be making, let's say, a salary of $25,000 a year. The senior partner was making $150,000 a year. We both get a 3-percent increase in our salary and he would say: That is fair. In fact, I will tell you what; I will take a 3-percent increase and I will give you a 4-percent increase.

At first, I would say that sounds all right. Then I said, wait a minute, you get 3 percent on $150,000 and I get 4 percent on $25,000. I think the gap is widening, not narrowing here. When I got to be more of a senior person in the law firm—and certainly with my Senate staff now, I always try to give the people at the bottom a higher percentage. Otherwise, the gap continues to widen. We see on the chart here how bad the pink or red numbers are, where Arizona is today. I appreciate you pointing that out. It is deceptive to suggest that since we are going up, we ought to be happy.

In terms of real dollars, the States that have collected more money in the past than Arizona, which have been donee States and haven't had this huge gap, are making far more in terms of the collections each year than Arizona will. You can show that it is going up, but the averages don't help Arizona. It is like the saying, how deep is the Mississippi River? The average is 6 feet, but if you get in the middle, you are in very deep water. Averages really don't count.

I would rather be the $150,000 senior partner getting a 3-percent increase than a $25,000 associate getting a 5-percent increase. That is, in effect, what Arizona is being offered.

Mr. President, I criticize the product. I do not criticize the chairman or other members of the committee. I know this is hard. Everybody is looking out for their own States, obviously. You cannot be fair to everybody and everybody's view. I appreciate that. So the comments are, I hope, in no way to be considered a reflection on the good faith of the people who are trying to do the work. My point is that I cannot stand here and represent the interests of my State with the kind of unfairness that I think is inherent in the bill, and that is simply, as the chairman said, something on which we are going to have to disagree.

I thank the chairman.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I suggest that, as the Senator from Arizona returns home, he ignore the 40-percent increase and go home and say $1.11 billion new dollars. Perhaps they can relate to that.

I know Senator CORZINE wants to speak and several others want to be heard but not necessarily on the highway bill. At the appropriate time, I will ask unanimous consent that there be a period for morning business.

Before I do that, I see the chairman of the subcommittee is here. I ask Senator BOND if he has anything further to say insofar as the highway bill is concerned.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I thank the chairman, the good Senator from Oklahoma. He is doing a wonderful job. I have been listening to the comments of our friend from Arizona and I understand his concerns. In order to achieve equity, in order to get the bill passed, we were only able to give certain States, under the formula, an increase that maybe in all rights was not adequate. But anybody who gets a 40-percent increase is certainly doing better than most.

I have driven the highways in Arizona, and I know that my colleague from Arizona does an excellent job representing his State. I hope the additional $1.118 billion will be a help.

This is a problem we always face on the highway bill. I don't know any State that cannot make a compelling case that they have needs that are greater. The chairman of the full committee and I are sitting on the first or second and third worst roads and the first and second worst bridges in the Nation. I am not getting a 40-percent increase. I can tell you in detail about friends who have been killed on the highways in Missouri because there was too much traffic—10,000, 15,000 cars a day on narrow two-lane roads. This is a huge problem.

The State of Oklahoma is a major Southwest-to-Midwest freeway. My State is in the center of the States. When you look at a map that shows the truck traffic and you identify the major corridors by red lines, the center of Missouri is a big red spot, and St. Louis is a big red blotch on the map; there is that much congestion.

We were very proud to have the first interstate in the Nation under President Eisenhower's bill, starting through St. Charles, MO. That is the good news. But the bad news is that the road is badly out of shape, and there is not enough money in this highway bill even to make a beginning on repairing it. The Missouri Department of Transportation may be able to make some improvements. We are giving them some options on how to deal with it in our State, but it is clearly a pressing need.

I can make a case that Missouri is the demographic center, because as many people live north of us as south of us, and as many people live east of us as west of us. The national traffic flow is through the State. We have needs. We don't increase at 40 percent, but we had to stay with the funding formula because this is a compromise. We are trying to take care of everyone and meet the needs that are pressing, meet the highest priority needs, and we were not able to do it.

We want to work with our good friend from Arizona. We understand his concerns and we thank him for his kind comments. Again, I will have to say that the effort we put in was a lengthy effort and much compromise—nobody got really all they need, which, unfortunately, is the nature of a compromise.

Again, I appreciate the comments made. I hope all of us can get together and move quickly. We are ready to offer an amendment. I gather we are urged to wait until tomorrow morning. If others have amendments, I hope we can be open for business tomorrow and get going because there are lots of pressing amendments and there are issues that need to be voted on. I hope we can get up and running and begin a very important debate and have votes on these amendments. I thank the Senator.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Missouri. I also would like to say that it has been a very difficult task developing this legislation. While it seems as though all some colleagues want to talk about is the formula in terms of money, there are many other issues we dealt with—environmental issues, streamlining issues, safety issues, issues that are of paramount concern to everyone. A compromise was made on all of those issues—some I don't like, but we did compromise.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that there now be a period for the transaction of morning business, with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each.

Mr. CORZINE. Reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. COLEMAN). The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. CORZINE. Mr. President, I wonder if the Senator from Oklahoma will allow for 20 minutes speaking as in morning business.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I amend that to up to 20 minutes for the first speaker and 10 minutes thereafter.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CORZINE. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, I, too, respect very much the challenges the chairman of the committee and the ranking member have been able to work through. I look forward to a good, healthy debate about some of the specifics. I think we are on the right track.

INTELLIGENCE OPERATIONS

Mr. CORZINE. Mr. President, I rise to speak on an issue about which I have spoken a number of times and which I passionately believe needs to be addressed—frankly, it is one that is well past the maturation stage where it should have been addressed—and that is an independent look at our intelligence operations, particularly as they relate to the pre-Iraqi invasion and how conclusions were drawn, so that can speak to the American people about the facts we had.

It is an issue which I think is essential to the national security of the American people. If we don't learn from our mistakes, we are bound to make those mistakes again. It is high time we have gotten around to it.

In the past few days, the administration and the world have come to understand and acknowledge on a broad basis the colossal intelligence failures that led us to war, a war that may have led to good ends, but the Nation clearly didn't come to those conclusions on the basis of the information we now seem to be discovering.

There is a question about means to an end that I think is pretty simple in the kinds of discussions I think all of us have in the families and in the communities in which we live. I don't think we want to get into a position where means justify ends when they don't relate to them. I just point that out as some of this discussion has evolved.

On January 8, Secretary of State Colin Powell addressed the lack of connection between Iraq and al-Qaida, stating:

I've not seen a smoking gun, concrete evidence about that connection.

We were told something different.

Then the President, in his latest State of the Union Address, referred only to weapons of mass destruction and related program activities, whatever that is—a far cry from the active nuclear program and stockpiles of chemical and biological weapons warned of in his last State of the Union Message in 2003.

It was last week's testimony from David Kay, the man responsible for the weapons search in Iraq, that finally brought this matter to maturity and captured the attention of the Nation, the administration, and the world, and that has really changed the whole context of this debate and discussion.

Dr. Kay, a man who told us last fall that Iraq's nuclear programs were only at the most rudimentary level, told the Senate Armed Services Committee there was no evidence of stockpiles of chemical or biological weapons.

David Kay has made an important recommendation—one that I think has been obvious for a number of months—that an independent inquiry be established so that the American people, so that the allies of the United States and those who would work with us, so that all of us who are involved in policy-making know we have the facts that allow us to make good decisions so that we are not committing the lives of our men and women in our military to efforts that are based on false premises, whether those are intentional or unintentional.

We need to have the right answers, and that recommendation apparently has now led—some might say forced—the President to announce he will name a panel to look at the intelligence issues related to Iraq.

I welcome the President's reversal on this critical need, and I suspect we will see a reversal of support for that concept among my colleagues, about which there have been some healthy debates in the last months.

This is about the Nation's national security, make no mistake. We need to understand on a collection basis, on an analysis basis, and, yes, on a use basis, just exactly how we got to the kinds of conclusions we did. The means need to be understood so that we can connect them with the end, so that we don't make the same mistakes again and again.

I have serious concerns, however, at least from early reports about what the details of the President's plan for this commission will be, that the response is inadequate—I think seriously inadequate. This needs to be an independent commission.

How do we get to an independent commission? How do we make certain that the judgments we get are not designed or at least limited to only a mission defined by those we are actually looking at? And second, will that commission be allowed to explore the use of intelligence, or the misuse, if you will?

I haven't seen the details. I don't think any of us have. We are reading press reports. But if they are true, it would give the appearance that we don't want to have a commission that is going to deal with the fundamental crux of a lot of these questions. Quite obviously, if we don't deal with the crux of the questions, then are we going to get results that create credibility with the American people, with this body, with the world, on whom we need to count to do things as we go forward? Are we going to get to those kinds of conclusions?

If that is not the case, then I don't think we are headed in the right direction. I am very afraid we are moving into something that may satisfy a call for a commission to investigate our intelligence, but not yet at the fundamental problems that led us to this particular decision in Iraq, but also can be and may have well been replicated in other areas.

I actually think the President is right to talk about it in a broader context. It is just an issue of, sequentially, which one do we look at first. Even by the inspection on the ground, we are told that 15 percent of the issues haven't been examined on the ground in Iraq. We need to deal with where our men and women are being killed now, as opposed to putting off and putting together all of these various issues.

We have what some people might say is a tactical issue with respect to Iraq and a strategic problem with our intelligence operations in a more general context. Fine, we should look at a broader scope of issues to get to the restructuring of our intelligence operations, but we need to deal with the reality of, how did our intelligence serve us so poorly, how were the conclusions so far off the mark? Was there a problem with collection? Was there a problem with analysis? Or was there a problem in selectivity and use of the intelligence provided?

As I said, it was last summer when I first offered legislation to establish an independent commission. I think we ought to get to a truly bipartisan, independent commission, one that is not unlike what we see with the 9/11 Commission, headed by the former Governor of New Jersey, a Republican, who is doing, in my view, an incredible service to our Nation. It is a diligent, independent, bipartisan approach to find out the facts that led to that tragedy with which all of us live each and every day, whether it is in your local hometown, like it is the case in mine, or whether it is in the broader context of the Nation.

Given the fact that we have had Presidential claims that Iraq had sought to purchase uranium in Africa, which could not be justified or substantiated by intelligence, is enough to ask the question whether intelligence was properly used. It clearly was not, because the President himself has denied that that should have been in the State of the Union.

So how did that intelligence get misused? How did that come about? Similarly, with regard to the aluminum tube issue, on which a whole host of folks have spoken out both publicly, and I have read some things privately, that call into question whether that was ever a viable concept for intelligence to be used as one of the justifications for entering into this conflict.

How can that happen? We need to have certainty and independence in judging how we got to the collection, the analysis, and the use of the intelligence. I think that is important if we are going to go forward with certainty and credibility with regard to our efforts in using our intelligence for proper and effective policy formulation in the years ahead. We need it so we can speak to the world with credibility, and it will not take place, in my view, if we do not have that independent commission.

So I want to reemphasize the point that use of the information is also very important. We have seen time after time, and opinion after opinion, of a number of people, outside of the David Kay remarks, that much of the use has actually been disputed within the intelligence community. I cite in particular an officer from the State Department, Gregg Thielmann—and I will try to get his particular title—who has made the assertion that we are basically operating under faith-based interpretations of a lot of information. He goes back and cites the Nigeria uranium and the use of aluminum tubes, disputes about stockpiles that were reported, and many elements of different perspectives with regard to the intelligence that was available to policymakers.

How did we get such a one-sided view? I think some people would argue it might be misuse. Some may argue it is selectivity. I think we need an independent commission so we can get to the bottom of these. I think we need to understand how the administration could make public statements that contradicted some of the analysis or failed to incorporate the balance that was actually involved in the communities' reports. Why did these reports Congress mandated under the very resolution that granted the President the authority to go to war include some of those unsubstantiated claims I talked about? Were members of the intelligence community pressured to produce analyses that conformed to the administration policies? They even set up an extra body within the Defense Department to derive points of view that would be used in the Defense Department independent of traditional agencies that are involved in the intelligence. Did the administration officials seek to bypass that normal process by cherry-picking?

I think all of these questions are real and they are ones that need to be independently analyzed. There are plenty of outside experts. I think a lot of people have heard about the Carnegie Endowment study that reported last week, and I quote:

Administration officials systematically misrepresented the threat from Iraq's WMD and ballistic missile programs.

They may not have all of the information. That is why we need a commission to straighten this out and to give us all confidence that we can go forward.

I spoke about Mr. Thielmann, who was the former director of the Office of Strategic Proliferation and Military Affairs in the State Department. He is incredibly offended by the difference between the information he saw and presented to the Secretary of State, as the one who is responsible for collating that, and what he has seen stated in the public. So how did those kinds of differences come to pass? Why are we dealing with such discrepancies?

The commission I proposed would be established by law independent of any executive orders to change its mission, change its role, change its scope. Its members would be selected by the leadership of both parties, balanced, kind of like the 9/11 Commission which I think people would argue as being very independent and is on the right track; receive an independent budget so there would not be issues about how thoroughly they might be able to pursue particular avenues of research; and would be directed to examine every aspect of this critical problem; obviously all elements of the collection, all elements of the analysis, and all elements of use from top to bottom, from our intelligence operatives to the White House.

By the way, in my view, Congress looks to provide the checks and balances that are expected through our constitutional offices.

I think this commission should be thorough and we need an end result that gives us all confidence that when we make decisions that send 120,000, 130,000 or 150,000 of our men and women into battle that they are fighting a war based on information that was intended to give pure advice as best understood. I do not think the looking back—20/20 hindsight is always better, but looking back, one has to question whether the claims that Saddam Hussein posed a dire and immediate threat to the United States were real. It is important that we have a full examination, particularly when there were other alternatives that would not have necessarily cost American lives, such as continued pursuit of U.N. inspections which were claimed to have been ineffective, further diplomacy pointless, when in fact apparently all of those efforts at U.N. inspections and other things had actually been successful. There has been a huge failure, one that is very real in the lives of the families who have given up their sons and daughters, and I think one that morally requires we have an independent, bipartisan commission that gets to answers independently of any of us who have been involved in the decision-making, because if we do not have that I think we are going to always have questions of credibility as we go forward.

So I hope we can work together. I certainly intend to offer either on a stand-alone basis or in an amendment format an additional opportunity to support a truly independent and bipartisan commission that can get to the bottom of something I think is fundamental to the national security of this Nation, and make sure all of our sons and daughters are fighting wars and protecting America with the kind of information that is there for the best interests of us executing our policies, not for the best execution of our political desires.

I yield the floor.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I want to answer some of the concerns raised by my colleague from New Jersey. Basically what he is describing is the Intelligence Committee. For 8 months, our staffs have interviewed over 200 people. They have gone through thousands of pages of documents. We have investigated all of the charges and all of the concerns that have been raised.

There will be a preliminary report provided to the members of the Intelligence Committee on Thursday. Starting afresh with another congressional commission is not warranted. The report of the Intelligence Committee has not been seen.

There are certain things that we know we have seen supported. I believe everybody believes David Kay is credible. When he testified before the Senate Armed Services Committee on January 28 this year, he said: I think the world is far safer with the disappearance and the removal of Saddam Hussein. I have said I actually think this may be one of the cases where it was even more dangerous than we thought. I think when we have the complete record you are going to discover that after 1998 it became a regime that was totally corrupt, individuals were out for their own protection. In a world where we know others are seeking WMD, the likelihood at some point in the future of a seller and buyer meeting up would have made that a far more dangerous country than even we anticipated with what may turn out not to be a fully accurate estimate.

There is no question about it not being a fully accurate estimate. This is one of the areas where I think all of us would agree, we did not have as good intelligence as we should have. We didn't have as good intelligence in the 1990s, when we should have. And President Clinton, on February 17, 1998, said:

If Saddam rejects peace and we have to use force our purpose is clear. We want to seriously diminish the threat posed by Iraq's weapons of mass destruction program.

Secretary of State Madeleine Albright, a day later, said:

Iraq is a long way from here but what happens there matters a great deal here. For the risks that the leaders of a rogue state will use nuclear, chemical or biological weapons against us or our allies is the present greatest security threat we face.

Sandy Berger, the National Security Adviser, said on that same day:

He will use those weapons of mass destruction again as he has 10 times since 1983.

All of the people who are making these statements have access to the intelligence information that we as Senators get. We realize, based on what David Kay stated, that we badly underestimated the ballistic missile capability. As a matter of fact, Senator GRAHAM of Florida was prescient in a letter he wrote. In a letter dated December 5, 2001, signed by many others, he said:

There is no doubt Saddam Hussein has reinvigorated his weapons program. Reports indicate biological, chemical and nuclear programs continue apace and may be back to prewar status. In addition Saddam continues to redefine "delivery system" and is doubtless using the cover of a licit missile program to develop long range missiles that will threaten the United States and our allies.

That one was right on the mark because that is what we found.

What are the needs? Obviously, when there are not people who speak Arabic, when we do not have unofficial agents in the country, we are missing out on one of the important elements of a good intelligence program. But, you know something. It is not just Iraq. We didn't know how far Libya was along until Muammar Qadhafi, not wanting to be pulled out of a spider hole by an American soldier standing over him with a grenade, decided he would come clean. We were unaware of how far Iran has gone. And, clearly, prior to the first gulf war, we did not know just how far advanced Saddam Hussein's programs were.

We also know—and David Kay was clear about this—that we cannot account for weapons of mass destruction that he had. There didn't have to be a large stockpile. A suitcase full of anthrax or ricin, or even a handful, can be a great terrorist weapon, and we will be lucky if we find that small amount, particularly after you look at the lengthy program of denial, deception, and destruction in which he engaged.

There is a lot of intelligence that was lacking with respect to Saddam Hussein. We have to do a better job. The purpose of the Senate Intelligence Committee, one of five or six committees already investigating it, is to find out not only what we lacked but also to recommend changes because the one area on which we would agree is that we have to have a better system of intelligence. What we learn is going to put us on that track.

I know the staff has worked hard. I am looking forward to the report. I will be surprised if it does not confirm what David Kay says and lay out some recommendations. The President has a responsibility as well. We have an oversight responsibility. If he wants people to look at it, to tell him how to improve it: Good luck. Go ahead. But we have the Iraqi Survey Group, internal investigations, and I believe probably the best investigation is what the Senate Intelligence Committee has done.

I apologize. I know my colleague from Illinois wants to speak so I will yield the floor.

Mr. CORZINE. Will the Senator from Missouri be willing to take a question with regard to the Senate Intelligence effort?

Mr. BOND. I will be happy to.

Mr. CORZINE. First of all, I compliment him. I am quite supportive of the Senate Intelligence Committee doing a total rundown on both the collection and the analysis that led both to the Iraq situation and some of the failures he mentioned with regard to Iran and Libya and different points of view. God knows the Pakistani dissemination of technology we have read about in the newspapers in recent months is a pretty horrific proliferation issue about which I think all of us should be concerned.

But there is this fundamental issue of whether intelligence has been misused and whether we are getting the checks and balances in looking at the collected and analyzed information. Are we looking at the full range of possibilities?

I ask my colleague from Missouri, am I correct that the chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee said that studying the use of the intelligence information was really not part of the efforts the Senate Intelligence Committee would take on in this process? I think the record would be specific. But is that the case or not?

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, to respond to that question, what the Intelligence Committee looks at is what is the intelligence that was gathered. There have been some suggestions that the intelligence was influenced or colored by pressure from the administration. David Kay said absolutely not. He said he talked to the analysts, there was absolutely no information—there was absolutely no information—and he said that really the intelligence community owes an apology to the President—and I would say to the American people—for not having done it better. But they are dealing with a very inexact science.

If you follow what other elected officials had said prior, during the 1990s, 2001, 2002—what they were saying shows that they used the same intelligence. We are looking at the intelligence, the national intelligence estimates and all those things. We look at it, and if you want to second-guess, if you want to argue that we should not have gone into Iraq, I think David Kay answers that and says the world is far safer. It was a much more dangerous situation than we thought.

Yes, there are errors. There are areas where we overestimated his capability. There are areas where we underestimated his capability. But the fact remains that Saddam Hussein had so much weaponry, it is going to take 18 months just to destroy it. He still may have chemical and biological weapons. We look at what the intelligence is.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired.

Mr. DURBIN. I ask unanimous consent to be recognized in morning business for 30 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, let me say at the outset I commend my colleague from New Jersey, Senator CORZINE, who came to this floor several months ago and said we need an independent commission to look at the intelligence that led up to an invasion of Iraq, and the use of that intelligence, and called for a vote on that issue. I don't remember the final outcome of that vote, but I know I stood with him because I thought it was the right thing to do. Many people on our side of the aisle and the other side of the aisle resisted that suggestion, saying the Senate Intelligence Committee would be able to do this investigation.

But the Senator from New Jersey has hit the nail on the head. Senator ROBERTS, the chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, made it clear long ago that our committee, the Senate Intelligence Committee, would not look into the use of intelligence but, rather, whether it was accurately gathered and presented to the policymakers. That is a critically important question and one that would be part of any valid investigation.

But equally important, if not more, is whether or not that information, once given to the policymakers, was honestly communicated to the American people. I can think of nothing worse in this open forum of government than to have the suggestion that there were misrepresentations made to the American people on something as critical as a decision to invade a sovereign nation. That is the question before the Senate.

This week's Newsweek cover story is based on Dr. David Kay's testimony last week before Congress. It has pictures of the leaders of the Bush administration and the quote from Dr. Kay, "We Were All Wrong."

The obvious question is, Where was the error made? Was it just in the collection of intelligence data or was it in the portrayal of that data, the description of that data to the American people? That is a painful question and a delicate question but an important question.

Senator CORZINE has said for many months we need to have people come and ask that question, both questions, in an honest and bipartisan way. I salute him for his leadership on this issue. I know he has been frustrated by the rejection of the Senate for his proposal, but now it is full circle. Now, even the President, who once opposed him, says it is time to move to a commission.

Mr. CORZINE. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. DURBIN. I am happy to yield.

Mr. CORZINE. It seems to me it is absolutely essential we understand how the President of the United States can put those 16 words—which were in absolute conflict with the information that generally was available in the Intelligence Committee, if I read that properly—into the State of the Union Message of 2003 with regard to aluminum tubes and with regard to uranium and then later the whole discussion, particularly Secretary Powell's presentation to the U.N. of the use of aluminum tubes. This was also in very strong contradiction to much of the information that is now available. We could go on, with unmanned aerial vehicles and a whole series of other issues.

So somehow or another there were disputes about the response that one should make with regard to collection and analysis of data. And that gets at the fundamental question of how did we use or misuse the intelligence that was presented. To not come up with an answer that is credible to the American people, credible to policymakers in this body, and credible to our allies and the world community is a failure of leadership on our part. It becomes absolutely essential that any independent commission needs to deal with the use, not just the collection and analysis.

Is that how the Senator from Illinois feels?

Mr. DURBIN. Yes, which is why I supported the early resolution. I hope the Senate will return to that. I hope we can find a way to choose people who are fair arbiters. There is a fear on the other side that something will be done to embarrass the administration before an election, especially a feeling we should let the chips fall where they may. Can't we find people in this country—I think we can—who will be honest, dispassionate, and nonpartisan?

At issue is not just a question of who comes out ahead on the political ledger sheet. The question before the Senate is one of the most important elements for America's national defense and security. If we had planes being flown in Iraq that were crashing, if we had tanks that could not shoot straight, if we had a lot of equipment over there that was failing, we would hear very quickly from the press, from the public, from the Pentagon, that we need an investigation.

Here we have a failure of something equally important, a failure of intelligence. We need to get to the bottom of it. If we are going to be successful in any war on terrorism, we need the very best intelligence in the world. Clearly, our intelligence failed us in the leadup to the invasion of Iraq.

We find ourselves today in a situation which is likely to be long term, costing American taxpayers $1 billion a week but, more importantly, continuing to cost American lives. That is a compelling reason to move on this with dispatch.

I sincerely hope Senator CORZINE's suggestion is followed up on as quickly as possible.

Mr. DORGAN. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. DURBIN. I am happy to yield.

Mr. DORGAN. I ask the Senator from Illinois if it is not the case that the gathering of intelligence—today, tonight, tomorrow morning, yesterday—might be the very function that determines whether our country is able to determine and prevent a future terrorist attack against our country; isn't the intelligence-gathering system that important?

Mr. DURBIN. I say to the Senator from North Dakota, more important than it has ever been, since September 11. It is only with valid, credible, good intelligence that we are able to anticipate someone who is trying to cause harm to the American people or to strike us in our territory or to, frankly, attack our special interests around the world. Intelligence is a critical part of our national defense.

Mr. DORGAN. I inquire if the gathering of intelligence is so critical—and the Newsweek magazine describes it as a failure in the description by Mr. Kay, the top weapons inspector—if, in fact, it is a failure, then I would expect that the President of the United States, the Congress, and the American people would demand, on an urgent basis, that we figure out what happened, what is wrong, and how to fix it. Not later, now. The safety and security of this country depends on it.

With respect to the issue of intelligence, we ought to now understand, having the vision in the rearview mirror, the issue is not what we think but, rather, what we know when a country changes a doctrine, as the President did, with respect to preemptive attacks. If you talk about preemption you better know things rather than think things.

I went back and reread the presentation to the United Nations by the Secretary of State. When he made that presentation, I thought to myself, that is a masterful presentation. And what he did, interestingly enough, is say: We know the following; we know the following; we know. And he put pictures up and he put up pieces of information—we know this from human resources; we know this from inspections; we know this from satellite photos.

They did not know it. What he said we knew turns out to have been fundamentally wrong.

So it seems to me the President, the Congress, and the American people ought to demand on an urgent basis there be an independent commission to find out what on Earth happened and how do we fix it.

Let me make one final point, if I might. Can there really be an independent commission, when a President, who did not want a commission in the first place, and said in recent weeks he did not want a commission, now will say our executive branch and our administration will create a commission that is independent? Can that really be a commission? Or is it not the case that a truly independent commission would be one that follows the course that we usually follow on urgent issues, and that is, we put in law, a law from Congress, that creates and funds a commission and creates a truly independent body to take a hard look at what happened.

The executive branch cannot possibly have a commission that investigates itself. This is not about politics. There is no political way to talk about safety and security of the American people and our great reliance on intelligence.

This is not about Republicans or Democrats. This is about the future of this country and getting it right. It is critically important.

The Senator from New Jersey and what he has been talking about for months about this independent commission is right on the mark, as is the Senator from Illinois. I am pleased to join him in this discussion about how important intelligence really is.

I ask that 10 minutes be added to the Senator's allocation for his presentation.

Mr. DURBIN. I think the Senator said something important in relation to the September 11 commission, a commission which is headed up by former Republican Governor Kean of New Jersey, which has asked for an extension of time, so on a bipartisan basis they can ask all the questions as to whether or not we did anything wrong that led up to September 11, and what we could have done to prevent it.

Former President Bill Clinton said to a gathering of Senators, I am prepared to testify before that commission. I am prepared to cooperate with them completely. If there was any shortcoming or failing in my administration, so be it. It is more important that the American people know that we have done everything in our power to make this a safer nation.

That should be the attitude of all Members. We should swallow our political pride and say this is not about partisanship. If an error was made by any President, Democrat or Republican, which has put us in harm's way or endangered America's security, don't we deserve to know that? The fact that the Senate Intelligence Committee has drawn a line and said they are not going to even ask the question as to whether the intelligence was misused by any member of the Bush administration tells me they are being politically protective. They are protecting the political interests of the White House instead of the paramount concern, which should be protecting the American people.

I hope, frankly, there is an independent commission that asks hard questions of those in the Clinton administration and President George W. Bush's administration and any administration that might have some bearing on the intelligence capacity of America and on the protection of this great Nation. I thank the Senators who joined in on this important issue.

THE PRESIDENT'S FISCAL YEAR 2005 BUDGET

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I came to the floor to address President Bush's fiscal year 2005 budget. This budget was presented to Congress yesterday. It has been characterized by the Concord Coalition, and others, as one of the most irresponsible Federal budgets to have been filed. It continues President Bush's failed tax policies, unfortunately, at the expense of Social Security and Medicare. It shortchanges funding for schools. It shifts the burden of paying for environmental cleanup from the polluters to ordinary taxpayers. And it hurts States in the Midwest, such as my own State of Illinois, that are facing terrible budget situations. It imposes new Federal mandates without providing adequate Federal funds.

The budget is a fundamental reversal of the very things the President said his administration stands for. It is not compassionate, it is not conservative, and, sadly, it is not credible.

Why is it not compassionate? The President's budget again fails to provide full funding for No Child Left Behind. This was the premier education policy of the Bush administration, supported, on a bipartisan basis, by this Senator and many others on the floor, with the understanding that as we identified the weaknesses and shortcomings in public education, we would come forward with the money to help the students reach the level of testing where they should be.

Now we find in Illinois and States across the Nation that test scores show that kids need help, and the Federal Government continues to say: Take the test, announce whether you are a failing school or a successful school, and we will provide you with less money than we ever promised.

During the debate on No Child Left Behind, Senator Paul Wellstone of Minnesota sat behind me. He opposed the program from the start. He said: You are going to create a program where the tests become the object of education rather than learning. Unfortunately, because the tests create such high stakes, many teachers will have no recourse but to teach to the test, thus dampening the enthusiasm to learn, the creative element that is part of education.

That was Paul Wellstone's point. I said: Paul, I disagree with you. Tests are about accountability. We have taken tests all through our school years, and we should hold our students accountable, our teachers accountable, our school boards and others accountable through testing. So I disagreed with him on that premise.

Then he added: But I will tell you something else. When it comes to providing the Federal resources that you are going to promise, I'll bet they won't be there. When the schools need them, they won't get the help from the Federal Government to improve the education of our children.

Unfortunately, as I have traveled around Illinois, I am afraid former Senator Paul Wellstone was right on both counts. We are finding more and more teachers and principals and school boards complaining that they are spending more and more time focusing on tests, doing their level best to avoid being branded a failing school and facing sanctions from the Federal Government. And when they find some students who are not meeting the test standards, they are hard pressed to come up with the tutoring that is necessary, the afterschool programs or summer school programs to bring these kids back in the mainstream and to bring them up to the level where they should be.

So what do we find in this budget from President Bush when it comes to his premier policy on education? The law in No Child Left Behind authorized $34.3 billion in funding to school districts in this next fiscal year—$34.3 billion. The President's budget only provides $24.9 billion. The President's budget falls short by over $9 billion of keeping its promise to the American schools and people that we would give them a helping hand so that the kids could move forward in their education.

In Illinois, a State which is facing a deficit, which is causing a lot of hardship, we are going to lose over $250 million which would have come to us had the President put in his budget a request for funds adequate to fund his premier policy for education. So in Illinois we are facing a mandate, No Child Left Behind, and no funds to pay for it.

Well, I can tell you, school districts around my State can think of a lot of ways to help their students, ways that do not involve the test we are sending them. Unfortunately, they do not have the resources to deal with it. But they deal with the test, paid for by the Federal Government, and do not have the resources to help the children.

When it comes to housing, the President's budget eliminates entirely the Department of Housing and Urban Development's HOPE VI Program—the only Federal program that focuses on revitalizing the Nation's most distressed public housing developments. The Chicago Housing Authority received $105 million in direct HOPE VI grants in fiscal year 2001 and has also given approval to issue another $291 million worth of bonds.

HOPE VI provides grants and unprecedented flexibility to address housing and social service needs. In Chicago, these grants were to be used to demolish 4,500 aging public housing units and to replace 1,675 units with new ones in public and mixed-income housing.

In most States, including my own State of Illinois, we are facing a terrible housing shortage. Working families are struggling to find safe, decent places to live. If we do not provide a helping hand to these working families, these families, with their children, will be pushed into housing situations which, sadly, are going to be very difficult for them to cope with. This decision by the administration to eliminate HOPE VI funding, to say we cannot afford this limited Federal commitment to help with public housing, is going to be an expensive one.

The President's budget also will provide $12.7 billion in additional Federal funding for Medicaid between the current fiscal year and 2009. That sounds good: an additional $12.7 billion for Medicaid, but there is a catch. The President's plan requires that Medicaid funding remain budget neutral over a 10-year period. In other words, in 2011, 2012, and 2013 money going to the States will have to be reduced by the amount that they were compensated in higher payments early on in budget years. Who can believe in these out-years the cost of medical care will go down?

So as the costs go up, the States are going to be asked to give up money that was paid them years before. That is not going to provide health care for a lot of families, particularly lower income families and those who cannot afford health insurance—unfortunately, a growing class in our society.

When it comes to veterans benefits, for the second year in a row the Bush administration proposes that veterans pay a larger share of their health care costs.

All of us come and praise veterans, as we should, the men and women who risk their lives for our country, some of whom I have seen recently at Walter Reed Hospital, and many you find returning from Iraq and Afghanistan. We are all there at the parades to shower them and their families with praise for their contribution to America. But our speeches are cheap and our words are hollow if we do not follow through with support for veterans programs.

The President, in his budget, proposes increased fees for some veterans, including a $250 annual enrollment fee and an increase in monthly pharmaceutical copayments. Congress rejected both of these proposals in recent years. The Bush administration comes back demanding them in their budget.

I might say a word, too, about the global AIDS commitment of the President. I thought the President spoke for this country and our values when he stood up a year ago in his State of the Union speech and said: Let's commit $15 billion over a 5-year period of time to fight the global AIDS epidemic. But for the second year in a row, the President's budget fails to meet his rhetorical promise to the world. It falls short of his full commitment.

The President proposes $2.8 billion, which is again short of the $3 billion annual commitment over 5 years. Furthermore, the President's budget proposes to cut our contributions to the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis, and Malaria. He cuts it by two-thirds, from $550 million this year to just $200 million in the upcoming year. The problem grows. Our commitment to it recedes and backs off. That does not help.

When it comes to the environment, in the proposed Bush budget, the environmental programs sustained the second largest reduction of any section of the budget, after agricultural programs. For the first time since 1981—almost 22 years now—line items for environmental programs were reduced for two consecutive years.

The President's budget will make taxpayers pay for even more of the cost of cleaning up toxic waste sites in the Superfund Program. Illinois has 40 such contaminated sites that are not to be cleaned up because Superfund is broke. The President refuses to fund it, and the President refuses to hold the polluters responsible. It means that average taxpayers and families across my State will have to pay for pollution caused by industries that are let off the hook by the Bush budget.

The President is asking for $1.38 billion for the Superfund Program this year, all of which will likely come from general revenues because the administration has refused to reinstate the polluter pay program.

To pay for that increase, the President proposes cutting clean water funding from $429 million to $94 million. Last year the Bush administration proposed a 79-percent decrease in the same program.

In agriculture, this is the area hit hardest by the Bush budget. This area sustained the largest cut with a reduction in discretionary spending of 8.1 percent and conservation programs are the first casualties. That is unfortunate, because preserving our soil and water resources are absolutely critical to the future of farming and critical to those who believe that we have a stewardship responsibility for the land. That responsibility is not met.

The President's budget proposal imposes deep cuts in the COPS Program, a program started under the Clinton administration, which has been wildly successful. Cities and counties and local units of government, States as well, have come to the Federal Government and with a very simple application form brought more men and women in uniform onto the streets of America, making it safer. President Bush's fiscal year 2005 budget proposes no funding specifically for the hiring of officers and instead provides $17.6 million for community policing development initiatives, whatever that means.

Even if all of this funding were used to hire law enforcement and school resource officers, it would be a 91-percent cut from the fiscal year 2003 funding level. In Illinois, during fiscal year 2003, COPS hiring grants provided funding for 123 full-time police officers. A cut of 91 percent that the President proposes would mean 111 fewer police officers patrolling Illinois neighborhoods and schools. This is a step in the wrong direction. This program is not only popular; it is needed.

When it comes to homeland security, we can do better than the Bush budget. In Illinois, 671 law enforcement agencies have directly benefited from funding made available through the COPS Program since it was created in 1994. Since that time, over $410 million in COPS grants have been awarded to my State. These grants have funded 5,832 additional police officers and deputies, as well as additional school resource officers who break up gangs and try to find out when children who have problems attending school have much bigger problems at home than even teachers realize.

The President's 2005 budget request for homeland security includes $3.6 billion in the Office of Domestic Preparedness. This funding request represents a 19-percent overall decrease from this year, when $4.4 million was available. So we see that in areas of homeland security, this budget makes cuts.

I am very concerned about this budget. I am also concerned about the fact that this is not a conservative budget. How can you claim to be conservative, as President Bush says he is, when his budget is swimming in more than $500 billion worth of red ink? Let me show you some charts which graphically tell the story.

Every minute the Bush administration spends $991,000 more than it takes in. A few years ago we had a budget surplus under the Clinton administration. The number was $236 billion. A few years later, under this administration, we are anticipating a deficit of $521 billion. So that is a swing of $757 billion from surplus to deficit. It gets worse.

We have asked the President year in and year out: How can you justify this?

Look at the quotes from the President and this administration. He said in 2001:

[We] can proceed with tax relief without fear of budget deficits. . . .

Sadly, he was wrong.

In 2002, the President said:

[O]ur budget will run a deficit that will be small and short-term. . . .

That is certainly not the case. We are facing recordbreaking deficits.

In 2003:

Our current deficit . . . is not large by historical standards and is manageable. . . .

Wrong again.

In 2004:

The deficit will be cut in half over the next five years. . . .

Clearly, he is going to be wrong again on that projection.

Then you take a look at the claim that he will cut the budget deficit in half and you see that it is not credible. By 2009, the operating deficit is likely to be far larger than $237 billion. This is the deficit claim. This is the Social Security surplus which will be included in regular spending for our Government so that the President reaches his goal nominally when, in fact, he is doing it at the expense of Social Security.

The Medicare surplus will be raided for $23 billion. The alternative minimum tax, which I predict will be the biggest single family tax issue this Congress faces over the next 5 years, to even fix that would cost $55 billion by 2009.

And then, of course, we have the additional cost for war. Isn't it interesting that the President's budget doesn't include the cost of the war in Afghanistan and in Iraq, nor does it include increases in homeland security? So the deficit we are talking about doesn't even take into account the billion dollars per week we are spending on that war effort.

Let me tell you how the President will maintain his spending when he runs out of money. President Bush's budget hides the full story. Every penny of the Social Security surplus will be spent by this administration under their proposed budget plan. The amount of Social Security surplus saved between 2005 and 2014: Zero. The amount of Social Security surplus spent in that same period of time: $2.4 trillion. Instead of strengthening Social Security and Medicare as the baby boomers arrive, President Bush's budget plan will make them weaker than ever in our history.

Let me also take a look at what happens with the Bush budget when you look at the full story. The President said repeatedly in his State of the Union Address that the key to our economic prosperity is to make his tax cuts permanent. I think, frankly, the first round of tax cuts were not advisable and were unwise. Not because we didn't need a tax cut and a stimulus but because the majority of the tax breaks went to the wealthiest people in America. The President has said we have to continue on that course, continue to give tax breaks to the highest income Americans.

Sadly, if we follow the President's advice and make those tax cuts permanent, take a look at what this means in terms of the long-term budget picture: a $1.6 trillion, 10-year cost to extend the tax cuts. How can this be sensible, prudent, or conservative? It is a spending spree and cutting spree that fails to take into account the ultimate cost.

I mentioned the cost of the AMT reform, the alternative minimum tax. Just 3 or 4 million people are currently paying this tax. But the way it is geared to take into account inflation, millions more will be brought in to pay this tax. In fact, many families are going to learn that they are paying more in alternative minimum tax than any other tax. You can expect to hear from them. The President ignores this reality. The cost of reform of this alternative minimum tax goes through the roof if we don't do this and do it quickly. Sadly, there is no suggestion that we even consider the problem.

Incidentally, when you take a look at the amount provided in President Bush's budget for ongoing military operations in Iraq and Afghanistan and the war on terror, there is zero provided. So in addition to the budget document we are considering, we will have a supplemental appropriations bill much later in the year which will add on more spending which we must have to sustain the troops in the field. How much: $280 billion is the anticipated cost between 2005 and 2014—a hidden cost which the Bush administration doesn't want to deal with directly in their budget document.

The gross Federal debt, assuming extension of Republican tax cuts on a permanent basis, AMT reform, and defense policies, $15.1 trillion in 2014. What a wonderful and glorious gift we are leaving our children and grandchildren. We are spending them into a debt that, frankly, they are going to have to deal with for the rest of their natural lives.

What do the Bush administration's irresponsible fiscal policies mean? By 2009, each person will have a share of the national debt which will total $35,283. So the President says for the average family: We will send you a check for $300 or $400 for each member of the family, and we will give you a little bit of a helping hand.

What he doesn't tell you is that, at the same time, he is mortgaging the future of this country. For what? For tax cuts for wealthy people.

How do we pay off our debt in this country, how do we sustain it, if we are spending $991,000 a minute more than we are bringing in as the Bush budget proposes? There is only one way to sustain our economy and to pay off that debt. That is to borrow money. Which countries come up to the window and want to buy the securities to fund America's debt? Take a look at the list. The top 10 countries holding America's national debt: Japan, $526 billion; China, $144 billion, United Kingdom, $112 billion. The list goes down the line.

Isn't it interesting that the countries that are holding our national debt in many instances are the same countries that have substantial trade surpluses with the United States? In fact, the two fit together. When China, for example, which now has an inordinate trade surplus with the United States, wants to make good on the extra dollars they have, they buy securities and pay off our national debt in that regard. So we end up beholden to the banking systems in these countries that, frankly, are holding America's debt. They have a powerful position. That has become a reality. In order to fund this debt—the largest deficit in our country, a debt that will grow to record proportions—we do two things. We borrow all the money in the Social Security trust fund and from the Medicare trust fund, and then we turn to nations around the world and ask them to buy the securities to sustain our debt. That is the future which the President is suggesting to us.

During the course of the State of the Union Address, the President said at one point—I remember it well—that manufacturing jobs are increasing. I can say to the President, whether it is the State of Illinois or Iowa or Michigan, manufacturing jobs are not increasing. They are increasing in China. We have lost 20 percent of our manufacturing jobs in the last 5 years, and in Illinois there is no end in sight.

Sadly, as you see the shrinking of our economy in each State, with more than 3 million jobs lost under the Bush administration, you understand that we are not only spending ourselves into long-term debt, we are not getting what is essential for America, and that is strengthening our economic base, making certain that our schools are the best, that we are training our children for the quality jobs of the future, making certain businesses have a helping hand from Government to help meet their health insurance obligations to employees, making certain that our trade laws are enforced in a fair way.

I am a Democratic Senator who has voted for free trade in the past. I believe globalization is as inevitable as gravity. But we have to understand that simply entering into a trade agreement is no assurance that the other party—other country in this case—will live up to the terms of the agreement. We have seen case after case—steel is a classic example, where countries such as Brazil, Japan, and Russia started dumping steel in the U.S. By “dumping,” I mean selling it at lower than the cost of production. They were not only trying to bring in dollars from the U.S.; they were trying to close down the American steel industry. Sadly, they were successful, to some extent.

What does it mean today to us to have fewer steel companies and fewer steelmaking jobs? Let me give you one illustration. Today, in Iraq, there are 8,400 Humvees that our troops are using in the field. These 8,400 vehicles are special problems for us because they are not equipped with armored plating. If you go to Walter Reed and meet the amputees and injured soldiers, many will tell you: Senator, do something to make the Humvees safer.

So when I went to the Department of the Army and said, "What are you going to do about the armored doors needed on Humvees?" they said, "It is our highest priority." I asked them how they would make them. They said they are going to turn to arsenals in Rock Island and Anniston Depot and contract it out. I asked: How long will it take to make 8,400 armored doors and get them there as quickly as possible to protect our soldiers? They said: If we work night and day, we can get it done in 1 year. One year? During World War II, we were building bombers every 12 hours and ships every 30 days, and we need a year to build 8,400 sets of doors to protect these Humvees?

I was incredulous and asked why. They said: Senator, we only have one steelmaking plant left in America, which is in Pennsylvania, which has the capacity to make the steel we need for the armor on these doors. There is one left in America.

When countries violate trade agreements and dump steel in the U.S., ruin our steel industry, close down the businesses, kill the jobs, endanger retiree benefits—after that happens, we find ourselves in this situation where we need steel, the best in the world need it desperately, and we cannot make it in the U.S.

When the President talks about a strong America in the future, it involves education and job training and helping businesses pay for health insurance but also enforcing trade agreements. I supported the President's tariffs on steel as the only way to answer this dumping of steel. Are we going to quit now, since the WTO has threatened they will impose $2 billion in tariffs? I hope not. Frankly, I think we need to take a more aggressive stand when it comes to building our economy and jobs for the future.

Don't tell me we are in a recovery. A jobless recovery is no recovery at all. Families who are still unemployed and cannot meet the basic obligations to keep their families together are not families that are better off just because productivity is higher in America. We need a stronger economy that has good growth, including jobs. Right now, we are far from it. The Bush budget doesn't move us in that direction. It is not a credible budget, a compassionate budget; it is not a conservative budget; it is a testament to a failed economic policy, where the U.S. economy is not back on its feet, where we continue to see people losing their jobs, where good-paying jobs are going overseas, and little or nothing is being done.

That will be an issue which drives this electorate in this election, as it should. As we review the budget, I hope Members of Congress will step back and realize that making tax cuts for the wealthy permanent policy in this country will guarantee weakness in Social Security and Medicare for generations to come. If that is the reason my colleagues believe they came to the Senate, then they should stand and cheer this budget. But if they feel a special obligation, as I do and many colleagues do, to Social Security and Medicare, we should demand more.

How can you claim to be conservative when your budget is swimming in more than $500 billion worth of red ink? The President is proposing a paltry $53 billion in revenue-raising measures to offset the budget's $1.3 trillion in tax cuts. And he's proposing changes in the budget process that will make it harder to increase spending on important social programs down the road while failing to place similar constraints on Congress's ability to extend tax giveaways to the rich.

The cost of extending the tax cuts alone will reach $1.6 trillion between 2005-2014. Before the end of this fiscal year, Congress will have to raise the debt ceiling—currently at $7.4 trillion once again. The continuation of the administration's policies could produce a national debt of greater than $15 trillion by 2014. Is this fiscal conservatism?

Even the unofficial voice of the right seems shocked by the fiscal irresponsibility of this administration. Talk show host Rush Limbaugh weighed in on the gloomy fiscal picture painted by this budget on his nationally broadcast radio program. "Bush has outspent Clinton," Limbaugh told listeners last Thursday. "I hate to say this; I'm sorry folks."

And how can you claim to be credible when you increase funding for missions to outer space, provide even more tax breaks for the wealthy but cut money for community oriented policing, for higher education and for critical transportation projects?

In 2000, our Nation had a $236 billion surplus; in 4 short years, the Bush administration has managed to turn that into a deficit for the current fiscal year that they project to be $521 billion. CBO estimates the fiscal year 2004 deficit will be closer to $477 billion. Either way, that is a striking turn of events, and neither figure tells the full story. Once Social Security is factored out of the budget, the OMB's fiscal year 2004 projected deficit soars to $675 billion.

The President claims his budget will cut the deficit in half in 3 years. This promise speaks directly to the credibility gap facing this administration. The President simply isn't leveling with the American people; we've heard this story before.

In 2001, the President, upon inheriting a fiscally sound house, told us that "we can proceed with tax relief without fear of budget deficits." He was wrong.

In 2002, when it was clear that this wasn't the case, he told us that "our budget will run a deficit that will be small and short-term." Wrong again.

In 2003, he said, "Our current deficit is not large by historical standards and is manageable." Once again, wrong.

Now he is promising to cut the deficit by half over the next 3 years and is focusing his deficit reduction plan on limiting domestic discretionary spending. That is not a credible solution. Growth in domestic discretionary spending has been almost non-existent over the past 2 years. Out-of-control spending did not cause these record deficits. The President's irresponsible tax cuts for the wealthiest Americans did.

The OMB's estimates were $134 billion greater than the estimates the Bush administration used to build support for the program in Congress. Democrats in the House are calling for an investigation into when the President knew that the number would be much higher than the one used during deliberations.

The $521 figure is slightly inflated. No one else is this high. CBO is $477 billion. The $521 includes $20 billion in lower revenue estimates for fiscal year 2004 just to be "careful." This would certainly make it easier to cut the deficit in half if the baseline from which you are cutting is artificially inflated tens of billions of dollars higher than anyone else's estimates of that baseline.

Another component of the credibility gap is that the President is engaged in a high-stakes shell game, shifting the actual responsibility for paying for his policies until after he has left town and hiding their true costs from sight in the current budget.

The administration provides no estimates of the cumulative 10-year deficit in this budget, thus masking the real long-term costs of these policies. Groups on the right and the left have estimated that the administration's policies will add over $5 trillion to the federal debt over the next 10 years.

The budget does not include the full cost of the supplemental spending in Iraq that was passed last year, some of which will take place during this fiscal year. We know we will be in Iraq. Why isn't all of this money included in the DOD budget?

Furthermore, the CBO says that as late as 2009, we may still face tens of billions in costs to fight terrorism. Yet, these funds are not included in the budget either. The President has added $250 billion in supplemental requests since taking office; we can certainly expect more of these in the future.

The President's budget ignores the impending retirement of the baby boomers, and fails to factor in the full cost of the Alternative Minimum Tax relief he requests in this budget.

Finally, despite promising during this campaign to make Social Security solvent, the administration's budget proposals will use every penny of the Social Security surplus over the next 10 years to pay the bills we are racking up today.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I will respond to my colleague from Illinois. First, regarding the budget deficit, and comments made earlier regarding intelligence issues, I will find it interesting to see whether those who are so concerned about the Federal budget deficit will back up their words with actions by voting against runaway spending.

Alan Greenspan, head of the Federal Reserve, says the biggest problem is that Congress cannot restrain its bad spending habits. So for colleagues such as the Senator from Illinois—will they vote against the $30 billion in subsidies in the energy bill? Will they vote against twice that much in unpaid for highway funding—that is to say, unpaid for in the highway trust fund? It will be interesting to see how those who complain about the deficits actually vote when it comes to adding to the deficit.

Remember that last year, when we had a whole series of votes, when the Republican majority finally got a budget passed, we had to defeat a whole series of amendments by our Democratic colleagues—we usually got 51 or 52 votes—because almost all of the members of the Democratic Caucus voted in favor of spending more money in these amendments. We defeated something like $88 billion in spending amendments offered by our Democratic colleagues. Thank goodness we did. That amounted to over a trillion dollars in savings over the 10-year period of the budget.

So for my Democratic colleagues to complain about spending and budget deficits and then go on and vote for the projects that they can brag about back home, I think that at least is—shall we call it a dichotomy, in any event.

What about this business of tax cuts for the wealthy? Actually, I have some statistics here which I think are interesting. It shows that the reduction of the tax rate, the top marginal rate—these are the “wealthy” that our Democratic colleague spoke about—actually, mostly helps small businessowners, the very people who create the bulk of the jobs in this country.

You cannot have it both ways, my friends. You cannot complain on the one hand that we are cutting taxes for the people who create the jobs and then complain we are not doing anything to create jobs. That is just exactly what the tax rate reductions on the highest marginal rate accomplished. About 78 percent of that savings went to small businessowners. These are the people who pay at the top individual rate. They are subchapter S corporations or partnerships; we call them flowthrough entities, which pay at the top individual tax rate. They are small business employers. Sixty-two percent of the income tax filers in the top bracket are small businessowners, and 98 percent of the companies are small businesses.

According to the Small Business Administration, 75 percent of all of the new jobs are created by small businesses, which would suggest that small businesses created over 2 million of the 2.8 million jobs added since the start of 2002. How were these small businesses able to create those jobs? They had the capital to invest to do so. How did they get the capital? We cut their marginal income tax rates. Again, they received, by far and away, over three-fourths of all the relief that went to the top filers, the small businessowners, by cutting that rate.

Tax cut for the rich? No. It was for the small businessowners to create the jobs that have gotten our economy moving again.

Let's recall who actually pays the taxes in this country. These are Internal Revenue figures, I might add. The top 1 percent of taxpayers pays over a third of all of the taxes. One-third of all the taxes are paid by 1 percent of our population. The top 5 percent of the taxpayers pay over half, 53.4 percent. So just the top 5 out of 100 are paying more than half of all the income taxes in the country. The top 10 percent pay about 65 percent—in other words, almost two-thirds.

How much does the top 50 percent pay? Ninety-six percent. In other words, the bottom 50 percent of taxpayers in this country pay less than 4 percent of the taxes. So divide the taxpayers in this country into two parts. One of our Democratic colleagues running for President is fond of saying there are two Americas out there: the wealthy and not so wealthy.

Let's take the top 50 percent and the bottom 50 percent. The top 50 percent is paying 96 percent of the taxes, and the bottom 50 percent is paying less than 4 percent of the taxes. Naturally, if we are going to give a tax cut to taxpayers, you are going to be cutting the taxes of those who are paying most of the taxes. But I wouldn't call these people all rich.

As a matter of fact, if you look at the categories, the top 50 percent makes $28,528. I wouldn't call that rich. How about the top 25 percent? We ought to be getting into the rich category here: $56,000 income a year. Raising a family of four, that is not exactly a big income these days. You can get by on it, but I wouldn't call those people wealthy or “the rich.”

I think we have to be a little bit careful. And I know my colleagues wouldn't do this, but there are those outside this Chamber who would demagog this issue saying it is all about dividing America between the wealthy and the deserving, the so-called middle class.

We appreciate the fact that America is made up of every stripe of folks, and they all contribute in one way or another, but when it comes to creating jobs, it turns out if you reduce the highest marginal rate, which is what we did, what we have done is to reduce the rate for small businesses which have created the jobs that have gotten the economy going again. That is the effect of the tax relief that was recommended by President Bush and this Congress approved.

I suggest we give a little credit to the President for helping to stimulate the economy, create jobs, provide economic growth that is unparalleled. We had over 8 percent growth in the third quarter last year, and 4 percent in the last quarter. The stock market is doing very well.

It seems to me the message ought to be one of hope; that we have turned this recession around; that we have reduced taxes. As a result, we are creating jobs and actually things are looking pretty good.

If our Democratic colleagues would like to help us keep a lid on spending, then stop voting for every amendment that spends more money. It is pretty much that simple, Mr. President.

EXCERPTS FROM DAVID KAY TESTIMONY

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, with respect to the other subject which I wish to briefly deal with, this afternoon several of our Democratic colleagues have criticized the President and the administration and invoked the name of David Kay, a weapons inspector, to make the point that they claim proves the administration somehow misled the American people and the rest of the world in making the case for taking military action against Iraq. That is not true. I think it is time people start quoting David Kay properly to see just exactly what he said. I am briefly going to do that.

I have a few excerpts from his testimony before the Senate Armed Services Committee on January 28 of this year. Senator McCain asked him this question:

[Y]ou agree with the fundamental principle here that what we did was justified and enhances the security of the world by removing Saddam Hussein from power?

David Kay:
Absolutely.

Senator KENNEDY asked this interesting question:

Many of us feel that the evidence so far leads to only one conclusion: that what has happened was more than a failure of intelligence, it was the result of manipulation of the intelligence to justify a decision to go to war. . . .

David Kay responding:

All I can say is if you read the total body of intelligence in the last 12 to 15 years that flowed on Iraq, I quite frankly think it would be hard to come to a conclusion other than Iraq was a gathering, serious threat to the world with regard to WMD.

And WMD, as we know, is weapons of mass destruction.

How about its violations of the United Nations resolutions? Somehow the impression has been created that maybe it was just a fraud, that Iraq really wasn't in violation of those resolutions, that somehow the weapons of mass destruction never existed. Here is what David Kay said:

In my judgment, based on the work that has been done to this point of the Iraq Survey Group, and in fact, that I reported to you in October, Iraq was in clear violation of the terms of Resolution 1441. Resolution 1441 required that Iraq report all of its activities: one last chance to come clean about what it had. We have discovered hundreds of cases, based on both documents, physical evidence, and the testimony of Iraqis, of activities that were prohibited under the initial U.N. Resolution 687 and that should have been reported under 1441, with Iraqi testimony that not only did they not tell the U.N. about this, they were instructed not to do it, and they hid material.

Going on:

Iraq was in clear material violation of 1441. They maintained programs and activities, and they certainly had the intentions at a point to resume their program. So there was a lot they wanted to hide because it showed what they were doing was illegal. I hope we find even more evidence of that.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, if we are going to be quoting David Kay and talking about the state of our intelligence, go to the transcript and present a more fair and balanced picture than has been done today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas.

THE PRESIDENT'S BUDGET

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I appreciate my colleague from Arizona talking about some of the statements that have been said on the floor today and really setting the record straight, which I think is very important.

I would like to continue to talk about the President's budget. I heard people say the budget is too much; we are going to have bigger deficits. And then I hear people say: Oh, but it is not compassionate; we are not spending enough.

What the President of the United States has submitted to Congress in a budget is very bold, but it is also very simple. The President of the United States is doing what every family and every small business would do when they are in a budget crunch, when their revenues are not meeting their expenditures. He is prioritizing the spending.

He put as his very first priority the national defense of this country. He raised the spending from last year on national defense by 7 percent. He made a priority the homeland security of our country, protecting our homeland. He increased spending 10 percent on homeland security needs.

He decreased the growth in spending. We never decrease spending in Washington, DC. He holds discretionary spending to below 4 percent and non-security-related spending to .5 percent—less than the rate of inflation.

The President is saying we are going to prioritize our family budget just like families all over our country are doing. We are going to protect our country in national defense, we are going to protect the citizens of our country in homeland defense, and we are going to cut back in areas that are not absolutely necessary.

I wish to talk about what the President has done and let the people of our country decide who is being responsible in our budgeting.

He advances the ongoing efforts in the war on terror by providing $1.2 billion for rebuilding Afghanistan, continuing to build the broad coalition. NATO is now in Afghanistan in force to try to defeat that center of terrorism where the Taliban took hold and was helping al-Qaida. We are making the commitment and keeping our word in Afghanistan.

There is $5.7 billion in military and economic assistance to front-line States supporting the United States in the war on terror.

The President is strengthening and transforming our defense capabilities by providing $402 billion for the Department of Defense, an overall 7 percent increase. The President's budget is providing a 3.5 percent pay raise for our military personnel; improving housing, which is something that I as the chairman of the Military Construction Subcommittee in the Appropriations Committee want to do, working with the President to assure that we have a quality of life improvement for our military personnel who are on the front lines every day protecting our country and in harm's way in many instances.

He also provides a 10 percent increase in homeland security. We are providing $5.3 billion for the Transportation Security Agency, a 20 percent increase; $6.2 billion for the Coast Guard, a 9 percent increase, because the Coast Guard is being called on today to step up to the plate to patrol our borders and our shores. They are doing a great job and we are making sure they have the capability to do that job.

It doubles the level of first responder preparedness grants, targeting the high threat areas that face greater risk. These are the policemen, the firefighters, the front line first responders who can save lives if we have another terrorist attack. In many instances, it is those people who are outside our Senate Chamber today working on perhaps a new terrorist attack that has occurred in the Senate as we speak. The first responders are there trying to go through our buildings, gathering the unopened mail to see if there is any more of this ricin that was found in the Dirksen Office Building. We need to prepare those first responders so that everyone in America who might be vulnerable will also have an immediate response with trained personnel.

It protects our food supply by providing $553 million, a 180 percent increase in funds for a new agriculture and food defense initiative; $274 million for a new vital surveillance initiative;

$5.1 billion, an 11 percent increase, for the FBI, to make sure we have the counterterrorism effort that our FBI can give.

So these are the defense initiatives and the homeland security initiatives the President of the United States is providing for our country. That is exactly what I hoped he would do, focus on the big things that only the Federal Government can do to secure our country. That is his first responsibility, and he met the first responsibility in the budget that is being criticized today.

Let us talk about the discretionary spending. Where are we putting the priorities in discretionary spending? We are cutting back on the increases in discretionary spending but we are holding the priorities that are so important. We initiate a job creation plan. We are looking at an economic recovery that is just in its initial stages, but we have not seen the jobs yet. The President is very concerned about people not having jobs. We are talking about a $250 million grant program for our Nation's community colleges. These are the places where we can train for jobs in the future. These are places where we can train for the high-demand occupations that are identified as the places where we can put people to work if they have the training.

Our community colleges are the unsung heroes and heroines in our country because they can put people back to work with training. They can take people who have lost jobs in one sector and train them for something else. There is $333 million to help students make the transition from high school to college.

He provides for a national energy policy, one of our best job creators, to ensure affordable, reliable energy supply; upgrading our Nation's electrical grid so we will not have blackouts and brownouts in any part of our country; promoting energy efficiency and increasing domestic energy production, which will protect the environment and put people back to work.

The budget will also spur job creation by providing more than $20 billion in small business lending and equity programs. Small businesses are the economic engine of our country. If we free small businesses and help them with the capital they need to expand their businesses and grow, we will be able to create the jobs that will stabilize our country.

So through the President's budget we are trying to increase job creation in our country. We will not have a true recovery if we have a jobless recovery. The President understands and knows that, and he is trying to make sure we address that very important issue.

Let us talk about education. President Bush is the education President. He wants to make the commitments that will allow every child to reach his or her full potential in our country. His budget increases title I funding by $1 billion, 52 percent more than in 2001; it provides $1 billion more for special education, a 75 percent increase since 2001; it increases funding for early reading programs, a 12 percent increase over just last year. The President knows that if you can catch a child early, you will be able to correct that child's reading problems and allow that child to absorb the education that allows the child then to reach his or her full potential. The budget helps 5 million students pursue postsecondary education by providing $12.9 billion in Pell grants, an $856 million increase.

He is fulfilling his promise to increase the funding for historically black colleges and universities, minority-serving institutions, by 30 percent, $394 million by 2005. That is this year's budget. It provides $57 billion in direct and guaranteed student loans to postsecondary students and reforms higher education student aid by raising loan limits for first year students, expanding options to offer courses online and increasing loan forgiveness for those teaching certain subjects in high poverty schools, a great trade, a win for everyone. If we can put teachers in schools that have teacher shortages and forgive student loans, we will make up the interest that would be paid on those student loans by giving more children a chance for a quality education.

So how can one say the President is not doing right by education when he is focusing on the increases in spending in education that will fund No Child Left Behind, the act we passed to try to increase options for education so that our public school education can compete with private school education and give parents all the choices they could possibly need to do the best for their children?

We know every parent has the dream for his or her child that that child will be able to get a great education and send that child off into America, into the world, fully ready to earn a living, raise a family, and have a good life.

Let us talk about health care. Let us talk about what the President's priorities are in the budget in health care. The President expands health care coverage by making it more affordable for small businesses to purchase coverage for employees through association health care plans. It is very important that we lower the number of uninsured Americans. We can do that by making health care coverage available to small businesses that want to cover their employees and help their employees but they cannot afford the premiums if they are a small business. If we can pass association health care plans, as the President has requested us to do, we can take millions of Americans off the uninsured rolls. That is what we are asking our colleagues to help the President do.

It implements the prescription drug discount card to give immediate discounts of 10 to 25 percent to cardholders. In the next couple of months, our seniors will be able to take those prescription cards and buy drugs with a 10 to 25 percent discount. So that is immediate help. That is while we are also building up a system that will give even better choices and more options for prescription drug coverage to our seniors. The President's budget will give $600 annually in immediate assistance to low-income individuals to pay for prescription drugs. So the low-income people are going to get that $600 direct, immediate assistance. And then the drug benefit plan should be implemented by 2006.

The President does provide incentives in his budget that will provide immediate help for our seniors for prescription drug discounts now, and to work toward the options that will provide real help for a prescription drug benefit for our seniors.

Environment: The President has several things in his budget to enhance the Nation's supply of clean, affordable energy by increasing funding for clean energy resources, by trying to have more research into hydrogen and fuel cell research and development. He wants a zero emissions coal fuel powerplant and he wants to fund development of that in this budget he is presenting.

He presents the President's Healthy Forests Initiative to prevent the catastrophic wildfires we saw raging through western America. It was just horrible to see what was happening in California this last year, the forest fires that were raging and taking people's homes as well as their property. The President has a $58 million increase to remove excess wood and brush that fuel these fires.

He would accelerate the Great Lakes cleanup by providing $45 million, a fivefold increase over previous levels to clean up the Great Lakes.

He tackles the remaining Superfund sites. We all know the toughest sites to clean up are these Superfund sites. But he is willing to take this on and increase, by 50 percent, the funding for Superfund cleanup so we will be able to get a handle on the worst environmental hazardous areas that we have in our country.

I have heard all the talks on the Senate floor today that have criticized the President's budget. I think the President has a balanced budget. He is prioritizing where we need to prioritize. He is providing for the national defense for our country. He is providing for the homeland security of our country. He is putting the money in education. He is putting the money into job creation and job training, and he is helping to meet the health care costs of our senior citizens and people who work for small businesses.

Our President presented to Congress a balanced budget. Everybody can find something to criticize, something they would not prioritize the same way. But the President is leading and the President has presented us a budget that will cut the deficit in half in 5 years while maintaining the homeland security and defense our people have asked him to provide. I think we should work with the President to pass this budget and have some budget authority that will keep us from overspending and increasing the deficit further.

Mr. President, this should be a team, not a critical debating society. We should be teaming together to help America get through the war on terrorism, fund our priorities, cut the deficits, and be responsible to the people who elected us, as the President is trying to do.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I will have a few remarks at the close on what has been a difficult day, but very positive in many ways as we have come together and faced the challenges before this body and have been able to conduct very productive and very useful business over the course of the day in spite of a major distraction on the outside that was magnified and illustrated by the fact that three Senate office buildings closed and people do not have access to a lot of the papers in their own offices. In spite of that, we are continuing the Nation's business in a very productive way.

COMMENDING A FLORIDA IMMIGRATION OFFICER

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, I thank the leaders for giving me this time. I want to have the Senate recognize an American citizen who, very likely, prevented the entry into the United States of what is suspected as the 20th hijacker. I want to tell you this story about this immigration officer, who is at the Orlando International Airport. His name is Jose Melendez Perez.

Mr. Melendez, a little more than a month before the attacks on September 11, 2001, denied entry into the United States at the Orlando Airport of a Saudi national who had arrived at the airport from the Middle East by way of London. Federal authorities now believe that this man, Mohamed al-Qahtani, was the missing 20th hijacker. He was later captured in Afghanistan. He is now being held in Guantanamo Bay, a place I have just visited with our four-star general, General Hill, just before Christmas to have Christmas dinner with our troops who are conducting that operation there.

This story is quite an interesting story. It is beginning to get a flurry of recognition, and that is just recognition for this great American. The fact is, he was just doing his job, but he was so expert in it that he stopped the entry into the United States of this person. He alertly denied al-Qahtani entry into the Orlando Airport based on a combination of indicators that suggested he was up to no good. Mr. Melendez's experience, training, and instincts served our Nation very well.

It is interesting that what he told me, when I met with him last Friday to congratulate him, was that he just got a feeling about this guy as he was referred to Mr. Melendez for secondary questioning, since he did not speak English. After questioning al-Qahtani and discovering many holes in his story—holes about why he was there, how long he was going to stay, who was going to meet him—and it is thought, very possibly, that it was the hijacker pilot of the first plane that went into the World Trade Center who was the guy upstairs to pick him up—Mohamed Atta. We don't know that for sure. But also there was the fact that he didn't have a return ticket or enough cash to purchase one.

After having that uneasy feeling about none of these answers and a very belligerent manner, by the way, by the man being questioned, Mr. Melendez put it into his own hands to make the decision that he was going to have him arrested, put into detention, and sent back the next day on a plane. By refusing al-Qahtani entry into the country, Mr. Melendez very well may have helped save many additional lives on September 11.

So this is a proud professionalism in the Immigration Service which so often gets nothing but complaints. I think it is time for us to stand up and salute Mr. Melendez and his service. He modestly protested to me last Friday that he was only doing his job. But we know because of the replicated actions of folks like him being done every day, not only in our Border Patrol and other immigration activities, but in the State Department and in decisions being made as to whether or not to grant a visa in embassies around this country, and with all of our intelligence services as they are making these decisions day by day, hour by hour, it is working to protect us.

Mr. Melendez has shown us what correct protection of our borders looks like. Now we want to rededicate and congratulate all of the hard-working colleagues at the Department of Homeland Security. We want to provide them with the resources they need to protect our borders and the ports of entry. Dedicated security personnel are not there to make travel more difficult; they are there to make us safer. Mr. Melendez in this instance apparently prevented the compounding of a national tragedy on September 11, 2 years ago.

Mr. President, I thank you for the opportunity that I could recognize a wonderful American, an American who spent 27 years in the U.S. Army.

When Mr. Melendez retired, he decided to continue his Federal service, in this case with the Immigration Service. He is a wonderful American who has a big family centered in Orlando, with nine grandchildren spread over several cities and some back in his native Puerto Rico.

I am very proud today to share his story so our colleagues in the Senate might also recognize his brand of modest heroism.

I thank the Chair.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

ANGEL ARELLANO

• Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I am pleased to recognize Angel Arellano's efforts in raising funds for the Chaffee Zoo in Fresno, CA.

On Thanksgiving Day, after listening to a family conversation about the Chaffee Zoo's financial struggles, Angel Arellano, a 9-year-old girl from Fresno, CA, wrote a letter to the editor of the Fresno Bee. Her letter contained $1.00 and urged all Fresno residents to match her donation to help pay for the Chaffee Zoo's much needed repairs. Miss Arellano's letter expressed her anguish at the animals' precarious future. She wrote that the animals deserved food, water, and a warm home. Her plea sparked a movement to save the zoo. Her heartfelt letter caught the attention of past and present Fresno residents, inspiring thousands of individuals to send donations, ranging from $1.00 to $10,000.00. Currently, total pledges and donations have reached nearly $180,000.00 and have come from as far away as Great Britain.

Angel Arellano's concern motivated people in Fresno and around the world to help save a Fresno institution. Her letter conjured memories of past visits to the zoo and reminded people of the joy felt by children when visiting with family while spending a Sunday in the sunshine, enjoying one of Fresno's treasures.

Angel is a wonderful example of one person making a difference. To her, I say thank you. She has set a great example for all of us. •

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. GRASSLEY:

S. 2048. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to make permanent the deduction for qualified tuition and related expenses and to repeal the sunset of the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001 with respect to such deduction; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. GRASSLEY:

S. 2050. A bill to repeal the sunset of the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001 with respect to the affordable education provisions of such Act, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I am introducing two education tax bills today. These bills will help us make permanent the $30 billion in education tax incentives that were contained in the 2001 tax bill.

The first bill will extend and make permanent the tuition deduction that was enacted in the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001, Public Law 107-16, or EGTRRA. A lot of people think we don't spend enough money on education, but they also don't think we should make the 2001 tax cuts permanent. I don't know how they can justify that position. The education tax incentives in the 2001 tax bill have done a whole lot of good. The tuition tax deduction is available only through December 31, 2005. The cost of the provision for those four years was about $10 billion. So you can see that it was very expensive.

For parents struggling to send their children to college, the tuition tax deduction has been very important. Some of them probably wish it were set at a higher level, but at between $2,000 and $4,000 depending on your income, it is still a beneficial tax incentive for the middle class.

The second bill that I am introducing today will make the rest of the EGTRRA education tax provisions permanent, as well as the deduction for teacher classroom materials that was passed in the stimulus package of March 2002. That provision expired at the end of last year so it is very important that we enact it on a permanent basis and do so as soon as practicable.

I hope my colleagues will join me in sponsoring these bills and will agree to consider them and pass them in the Senate in the next month or two.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bills be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bills were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

By Mr. SPECTER:

S. 2049. A bill to amend the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977 to reauthorize collection of reclamation fees, revise the abandoned mine reclamation program, promote reining, authorize the Office of Surface Mining to collect the black lung excise tax, and make sundry other changes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, today I will introduce legislation which is entitled the Abandoned Mine Land Reclamation Program Extension and Reform Act of 2004. As I have explained briefly before, I do so because this program is going to be unveiled tomorrow at a ceremony in the Pennsylvania State Capitol attended by Secretary of the Interior Norton in addition to Governor Rendell and a number of other officials. While I would like to be present in Pennsylvania for the event, the Senate will be in session and there is important business to be conducted here. So in my absence there, I thought it appropriate to introduce this bill. I had planned to do so tomorrow, but there is a joint session of Congress in the morning and I am advised there may not be morning business. So I am taking just a few moments of floor time to introduce the bill now.

The Bush administration has already announced the outline of the bill so I am not in any way preempting the administration by the introduction of this legislation. As I noted earlier, the administration had made this legislation available to me for introduction in conjunction with others in the Pennsylvania delegation, and I am pleased to do so because it will address a very serious problem for my State.

By far, Pennsylvania has the most extensive problem of any of the States in the Union, where we have some 250,000 acres which are in need of reclamation. Some 2,400 miles of streams are affected on our water supply because Pennsylvania has been so heavily mined. Shortly after I came to the Senate in the early 1980s, a little town in Pennsylvania named Centralia received national and international attention when a young man fell into a deep pit and a fire was burning there. It was a fire which resulted from an abandoned mine. For those, if any, who may be watching on C-SPAN, these fires rage underground burning unmined coal. This fire was raging. A large hole enveloped and the young man fell many feet below the surface of the terrain. Fortunately, he was rescued.

It was necessary to move the entire town at a very substantial cost borne in significant measure by the Federal Government, not entirely because homeowners could not fully recoup the losses of their houses. This bill will provide some $3 billion to take care of health and safety. It will be a reauthorization to the year 2018 on an authorization bill which is set to expire in September of this year. There will be a phase-out of payments ramped down until the year 2018 when it is projected that the problem will be solved. This bill will improve the flexibility for the States where they can make a choice of their projects and make a decision based on where they need to go on water quality.

It is obviously a very important matter for the environment, and environmental protection is a high priority in our country. I am pleased to see President Bush and his administration move ahead on this important item. It takes care of all of the smaller States with a minimum allocation of some $2 million. There is some assistance for the Combined Benefit Fund, which has been established for the benefit of the retired mine workers, where the health and benefit plans had been abrogated. We had legislation introduced and enacted several years ago, led by the Senator from West Virginia, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, in conjunction with Senator BYRD, which I cosponsored, and we tried to provide for the retirement health benefits for the mine workers. This bill will make an allocation which will be helpful in that regard. It will not entirely satisfy the matter.

As I noted, this is President Bush's top priority in the Interior section of his budget. Secretary of the Interior Norton will tour some mines in Pennsylvania. Again, I express my regrets not being able to be with her and the Governor when the event will be held in the rotunda of the State Capitol at 11 o'clock tomorrow. Burt we intend to have a news conference here in Washington simultaneously with her announcement there.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2049

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

In making funding decisions on these projects, the State or tribe need not consider the priorities in subsection (a) of this section. If the adverse effect on water supplies occurred both prior to and after August 3, 1977 (or other applicable date under section 404), section 404 shall not be construed to prohibit a State or Indian tribe from using funds under this paragraph if the State or Indian tribe determines that such adverse effects occurred predominately prior to August 3, 1977 (or other applicable date under section 404).

“SEC. 404. ELIGIBLE LANDS AND WATERS.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—

“(1) Lands and waters eligible for reclamation or drainage abatement expenditures under this title of this Act are those which were mined for coal, or which were affected by such mining, waste banks, coal processing, or other coal mining processes, and abandoned or left in an inadequate reclamation status prior to August 3, 1977, and for which there is no continuing reclamation responsibility under State or other Federal laws. For other provisions relating to lands and waters eligible for such expenditures, see subsections (b) and (c) of this section and sections 402(g)(1), 403(b)(1), and 409 of this Act.

In the event the bond or deposit for a surface coal mining operation on lands eligible for remining is forfeited, funds available under this title of this Act may be used if the amount of such bond or deposit is not sufficient to provide for adequate reclamation or abatement. If conditions warrant, the Secretary, State or Indian tribe shall immediately exercise the appropriate authority under section 410 of this Act.

“(b) INITIAL PROGRAM SITES AND BOND FORFEITURE SITES WITH INSOLVENT SURETIES.—

(1) Sites of surface coal mining operations conducted after August 3, 1977, and lands and waters affected by such operations are also eligible for reclamation or drainage abatement expenditures under this title of this Act if they were left in an inadequate reclamation status and if the Secretary or the State, with the concurrence of the Secretary, makes either of the following findings:

“(A) A finding that the surface coal mining operation occurred during the period beginning on August 3, 1977, and ending on or before the effective date of the State regulatory program approved by the Secretary pursuant to section 503 of this Act for the State in which the site is located, and that any funds for reclamation or abatement which are available pursuant to a bond or other form of financial guarantee or from any other source are not sufficient to provide for adequate reclamation or abatement at the site.

“(B) A finding that the surface coal mining operation occurred during the period beginning on August 3, 1977, and ending on or before November 5, 1990, and that the surety for the mining operation became insolvent during that period, and, as of November 5, 1990, funds immediately available from proceedings relating to that insolvency, or from any financial guarantee or other source, are not sufficient to provide for adequate reclamation or abatement at the site.

“(2) All sites referred to in paragraph (1) within any State shall be reclaimed before the State or the Secretary may make the certification referred to in section 411 of this Act.

“(3) Amounts collected from assessment of civil penalties under section 518 of this Act are authorized to be appropriated for the purposes of this subsection.”.

(E) amending subsection (h) to read as follows:

“(h) GRANT OF FUNDS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Upon approval of the State Reclamation Plan under this section and of the surface coal mining regulatory program pursuant to section 503 of this Act, the Secretary shall grant, on an annual basis, funds to the State to implement the State reclamation program as approved by the Secretary.

“(2) APPLICATION PROCESSING DEADLINE.—Within 60 days of receipt of a complete abandoned mine reclamation fund grant application from any eligible State, the Secretary shall grant to that State any and all funds available for such purposes in the applicable appropriations act.

“(3) DISPOSITION OF UNEXPENDED FUNDS.—Except as provided in paragraph (5), any funds not expended within 3 years after the date of any grant award shall be available for reallocation or expenditure by the Secretary for any purpose under section 403(b) of this Act.

“(4) SOURCE OF FUNDS.—In awarding grants to States and Indian tribes that were not certified under section 411 as of September 30, 2004, the Secretary shall exhaust the funds dedicated to those States and tribes in section 401(d)(2)(B) before awarding any funding allocated to those States and tribes under section 403(b)(1).

“(5) STATE SET-ASIDE.—Any State with an abandoned mine reclamation program approved under subsection (d) may retain, without regard to the 3-year limitation referred to in paragraph (3), up to 10 percent of the total amount of the grants awarded annually to the State under paragraph (1), excluding grants made under the authority of section 403(b)(2), if those amounts are deposited into either—

“(A) a special trust fund established under State law that may earn interest and from which the State may make expenditures solely to achieve the priorities stated in section 403(a) after the State is no longer eligible to receive an allocation under section 403(b)(1) of this Act; or “(B) an acid mine drainage abatement and treatment fund established under State law and from which the State may make expenditures solely for abatement of the causes of acid mine drainage and treatment of the effects of that drainage in a comprehensive manner within qualified hydrologic units affected by coal mining practices. Any interest earned by this fund shall be expended for the purposes of this paragraph. For purposes of this paragraph, the term “qualified hydrologic unit” means a hydrologic unit in which water quality has been significantly affected by acid mine drainage from coal mining practices in a manner that adversely impacts biological resources and which contains lands and waters that—

“(i) meet the eligibility requirements of section 404 and at least one of the priorities in paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) of section 403(a); and

“(ii) either are or are proposed to be the subject of expenditures by the State from bond forfeiture proceeds under section 509 of this Act, or from other State sources, to abate or treat acid mine drainage.”

(17) Section 406 is amended by—

(A) striking the word “Soil” wherever it appears in subsection (h) and inserting in its place the words “Natural Resources”; and

(B) adding the following new subsection at the end:

“(i) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary of Agriculture, from the general fund of the Treasury, such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section.”.

(18) In section 408(a), the last sentence is amended by striking “, in accordance with this subsection, who owned the surface prior to May 2, 1977, and”.

(C) inserting a new subsection (c) to read as follows:

“(c) STATE ASSUMPTION OF EMERGENCY RECLAMATION PROGRAM.—The Secretary may propose, and, after opportunity for public comment, adopt, regulations to require that States assume responsibility for administering the emergency reclamation program under this section to remain eligible to receive grants under section 405(h) of this Act. The regulations must establish procedures for that assumption, including, at a minimum, a requirement that States revise their abandoned mine reclamation plans approved under section 405 of this Act to include provisions that—

“(1) authorize the State to make the findings required under subsection (a) of this section; and

(21) Section 411 is amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 411. Certification of Completion of Coal Reclamation.

"(a) The Governor of a State, or the head of a governing body of an Indian tribe, with an approved abandoned mine reclamation program under section 405, may certify to the Secretary that reclamation of all eligible lands and waters under section 404 with the priorities stated in paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) of section 403(a) has been achieved. The Secretary, after notice in the Federal Register and opportunity for public comment, shall concur with such certification if the Secretary determines that such certification is correct.

"(b) The Secretary may make the certification referred to in subsection (a) on behalf of any State or Indian tribe if, on the basis of the inventory referred to in section 403(c), all reclamation projects relating to the priorities set forth in paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) of section 403(a) for eligible lands and waters under section 404 in such State or tribe have been completed. The Secretary shall only make such certification after notice in the Federal Register and opportunity for public comments."

PROGRAM

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, tomorrow at 11 a.m., the Senate and House will conduct a joint meeting to hear an address by President Aznar of Spain. We do ask Senators be in the Senate Chamber at 10:40 a.m. so Senators can proceed together to the Hall of the House of Representatives for that address.

At 1 p.m., the Senate will reconvene and resume consideration of S. 1072, the highways bill. Notwithstanding the recent events, it is still my intention to complete action on this bill before the February recess. Indeed, with the progress demonstrated today, I believe we can indeed accomplish just that.

I do inform my colleagues that roll-call votes should be anticipated during tomorrow's session as we begin the amendment process. I encourage Senators to come to the floor to offer and debate amendments. In addition to the highway bill amendments, the Senate may also consider any available judicial nominations tomorrow. We will alert all Members as these votes are scheduled.

With regard to the events that have occurred over the course of today, I do appreciate the patience of all of the Members with the restrictions we have had to put in place in terms of access to papers and access to their offices. First and foremost, our attention is on the staff and on the safety of the Senate family, the extended Senate family that begins with our own employees in our offices and then extends out through the Senate community and, indeed, beyond the immediate community here.

It has been a difficult day but, as I said earlier, it has given us an opportunity to really come together in some remarkable ways. I contrast it with a lot that we had to go through several years ago with anthrax, which was a very difficult time as well. It was a separate agent, but now another agent has been directed against this body. These agents are weapons that kill. People ask, is it terrorism? Was it a criminal act? To me, both of those demonstrate the intent to harm and to hurt. Both were acts of terror. The whole purpose is not just to physically harm but also to cause insecurity among people.

We have learned over the last several years the best way to alleviate and tone down that feeling of insecurity when dealing with unknown agents—agents that have never been used this way in the history of mankind, poisonous toxins or biological agents that for the most part we cannot really see you can see the powder, but you cannot touch it, and you know the weapons kill when they get into the immediate surroundings and are directed at individuals—is the pulling together and the sharing of information, with openness, holding press conferences, using the Blackberries, the computer and the telephone, the personal interaction. Put that together with good information and accurate information and things can work out in a smooth way, in a way that allays the great fears we all have when dealing with the new powerful agents, we are all more comfortable, more secure, we are all a little more relaxed.

This is very serious business. There is nothing more serious. We are talking about the health and safety and welfare of individuals and, through those individuals, their families. It extends not just on Capitol Hill but the feeling of insecurity around the country.

I keep coming back to the individuals and the families. I do want to share with everybody that the individuals in my office are doing fine. The people who happened to go through the office where this powder was discovered took appropriate procedures on behalf of my staff that went into effect immediately in the response by the police and HAZ-MAT personnel, with appropriate notification all the way up through late last night. I have been very pleased and very proud. They are all doing fine. We have had two conference calls today, one bright and early this morning. Many did not get home until 2 or 2:30 last night, after waiting, of course, for some of the latest results. We had a conference call with everyone early this morning before the Senate session and we just completed another one. We are providing access to medical personnel and physicians and trying to answer as many questions as we possibly can with them. I am mighty proud of them and things are looking fine.

It is remarkable also for me to see, having been involved in both of these attacks with toxins, chemical acts and bioterror agents, the real integration and the working together which people do not see. I share with my colleagues our thanks to the various staff members who, starting immediately yesterday and working through today, include the United States Capitol Hill Police—and they serve on both the Senate and the House side—who demonstrated excellent leadership. Their experience and the protocols immediately came together, working very closely with the response team and the Environmental Protection Agency.

We all asked questions. Yes, you saw a powder, but how far does it aerosolize? How far does it travel over the Capitol grounds? The EPA has been instrumental over the last day having prepared for this sort of event over the last several years.

The United States Marine Corps; a lot of people say, What do you mean? The United States Marine Corps has been very helpful in the process of getting things back up and running.

The Joint Terrorism Task Force is something we did not even think very much about 3 years ago. And that joint terrorism task force is now an organized group. They were prepared for this.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation has been working diligently over the last 24 hours with us and the Department of Homeland Security.

As a physician, of course, I usually start with recognizing the medical personnel. In all public events, we will have the Senate Capitol attending physician there. He, again, walked us through the anthrax threat. He has more experience than anybody in the world today in terms of a bioterrorist or chemical terrorist attack in an institution or society such as this, having gone through anthrax and now the ricin attack, and that is John Eisold who does a tremendous job. One of his physicians was with my staff constantly all last night from early in the evening until the early hours of the morning, sitting with my staff throughout, answering questions and reassuring them and appropriately advising them and counseling them.

The Sergeant at Arms, Bill Pickle, who was not here when we had the anthrax attack but who has been here over the course of the year, again, is doing a superb job. He and I have talked to each other at least every hour except for maybe two hours between 4 and 6 early this morning.

Secretary of the Senate Emily Reynolds' office right now serves as a central hotline point and control room in terms of coordination.

The list could go on and on. I mention all this because Senator DASCHLE and I have worked over the course of today and we are doing our very best in terms of the communication, getting accurate information out, and we are continuing to do just that over the next several days.

The Senate has not missed a beat. We have been in session, had a productive day. We are in session tomorrow, for another productive day. We will have a joint meeting of Congress to hear an address of the President of Spain, a wonderful friend to the United States of America, President Aznar.

Following that, as I mentioned earlier, we will come into session at 1 p.m. and votes will occur.

I mentioned we are moving one committee over to the House side; other committees will be meeting in the Capitol. I do ask that individual committee members check with their committee chairman for the location of individual hearings. We do have three Senate office buildings which are closed: the Hart building, Dirksen, and Russell. All three Senate office buildings will be closed throughout tomorrow. It is primarily to facilitate in the most time-efficient fashion the collection and removal of mail. That is the primary purpose. That is well underway as we speak.

With that, I believe I will bring this session to a close. We will be back working hard tomorrow and we will be staying in touch with everyone over the course of tonight.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, very briefly, I am the only former Capitol policeman here who is a Senator. I have such great respect for the work they do. When I was a Capitol policeman, I did not have near the responsibilities, not even close to what goes on now in this modern police force. We have what I think is, if not the best police force, one of the best. They are the ones who are really talking about first line responders; they are that.

The problem occurred with anthrax, or with this ricin; they are the first to go there. They do it with courage and determination. We see these men and women a lot of times standing at their duty stations and some people wonder what they do. Well, every day they are working—for lack of a better way to say it, as happened in the Capitol just a few years ago, they take bullets for us. They are well trained in any aspect of law enforcement, as well trained as anyone in the country.

I underscore the remarks of the majority leader. We are very proud of our Capitol police force.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 1 P.M.,
WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 2004

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in adjournment under the previous order.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 6:18 p.m., adjourned until Wednesday, February 4th, at 1 p.m.
